Breathless In Ecstasy, I Am

Thou art the love of my life, I praise thee for all you giveth to me forever
Time has brought us closer and one, the sheer beauty you are leaves me faint
I offer all of my, love to you, a gift of faith for thou, no object more precious
Bound by our passion, blessed by our love, captured and stationed by our hope
When I make love to you, all time seems to stand still, dazed I am from it all
Flushed with the afterglows willing, we rest taking in the facets we have made

Do I Deserve Your Love

I sometimes question all the reasoning behind were our love did begin, it hath puzzled me so for all these years gone by
Your tender loving ways have always been my beckoning force, with you in my life every day seems so much better and brighter
When alone with you or away and you cross my thoughts, every part of me yearns to hold thou once more, so tightly in my arms
My love for you is steadfast and true, a testament to what we mean to one another, bound by space and time, passion our foundation
Once we were young and gay, life was sweet and we took it by the handful, now we must savor it like sweet wine, to preserve future endeavors

Foolish We Were Once

Many years ago when life was but a day of unspoiled folly, we did take it in with all the love it and shared with us all it offered
Young we were and full of life, your beauty was all I needed to go on, we survived on the wonders around then not to look back or regret
My love for you has stayed true and ever present, no one will sever these bonds for I am yours now until eternity ends it for me
When alone with you I still see that spry young lass, I did fall in love with those many years ago, nothing has changed in my eyes of you
We do take each day with all it offers, never forsaking it's bounty, as it could be our last, but I would die happy now if it was to end

Memories of a Lost Love

Fleeting are those who's memories now are gone with the times
Long ago we were one, all was ours in this cruel mortal world
As the years pass, fondly I remember the sweetness of your kiss
Time draws us further away, like the wind blown petals and leaves
I wonder now, what may have been if our love had stayed in place

My Far Away Love

Ever since you left me, my heart and life have been an utter shambles, no were can I turn with you gone from here
The long dark lonely nights are more than I can bear alone, now that your not here beside me, life seems so bleakly empty
I know the distance is long and you have forgotten our love, hope is that what we had will reunited us again
When I think of you, my heart is filled with joy, we shared so many good moments, in a blink of an eye they vanished
What went wrong with our love, did we not take it to the highest of heights or were we blind to the perils it took
Some day I hope you will come back to me, all will be forgiven, then it may just strengthen all we have when love returns

My Life Without You

It may be a far and distant day but I must carry it with me, at best even one glint of it in my mind is almost to much for me
I ponder all the years we have been in love, the moments of bliss and with now and forever, would we have done any more, that we will never know
The days would be dark and ever so lonely, the nights alone in our bed not having you there are to much, the emptiness would be deafening
So I must make all of the time we have left, never letting the tiniest things take away from what we have, each more precious than the next
Then we must make all of the time we have remaining, forsaking not to dwell on the small things, but celebrate every as our last

Naked In Our Love

We trace not who, but were our love lays
End not the moment, only extend the time and space
Away from you, I gasp for air and your look of love
Only to know we shall be again in each other's arms
I await you and my heart beats an amorous song
Now together, the heat of our spirits does light the room

Return My Love to Me

It seems like a year since you went away, your journey now has ended and you are returning home to me now to mend my sullen and tortured heart
The letters you wrote shared your adventures away and told me of the world around us, thee words did speak of your love for me, I was captivated
I have read them now so many times the pages are in tatters, the scent you laced them with on each page, was a reminder of you and your beauty
My love for you never failed me nor waned for one minute, I knew the day would come when you would be home once more and with me soon
As the day approaches and your arrival does near, I am filled with a sense of uncontrollable passion, our first night will be so right

David Hinsley

Send Me All Your Love

You have been away ever so long, my heart does wish you were here with me, thou art truly my lovely, return to me once more
As the days have past with you gone, my mind does wander like a lost lamb, to all we have been for me, you can not come home fast enough
I count every day and moment like it is the morning dew, I know both will be there come the morn, but my life is empty with out you
So I lament and fret over your not being here at this time, I see you in every corner that is our home, your lingering scent does haunt the room
The day is here, I await as your carriage arrives, my love is almost uncontrollable, we embrace your kiss is ever so sweet, you are truly home

Surrender to All My Dreams

As I gaze at your soulful face,
I list all you are to me now
Beckon forth the still warm night
So I might dream of you again blissfully

Stars flicker skyward bright and clear
The scented air is soft but bittersweet
Breezes billow forth in utter pride, not shame
We lay in soothing comfort, but not alone

Night in all its life and splendor
Cares not once, but for all time
Drenched in love, sleep does come to
Now that we rest, the day comes to a close

The Pain Doth Last to Long

As I sit here alone, peering around the empty room, only to see you are gone forever
The months have turned to years, but my heart still aches for you and all you were to me
I try to collect myself and move on, but there is no movement in my being, unable to see
Alas it may come to reason that my life is over, no more can I feel happiness, only numbing pain
Every piece of this place is a reminder of you, it may take my sight away to rid it from me
Now as I cry myself to sleep once more, I dream of your return, but it to is no more a dream

The Scent of Her Being

The air is rich in her scent, charm and light
As she glides threw life and gently takes flight
Light and Sound are her wanting time and space
Breathless I approach all that is her and take my place in life
Alone I sway with the deepest thoughts of her, and I melt

David Hinsley

Wake with Me, Everyday

As the night falls and we lay our heads to rest, the slumber we take will refresh and bring new life to us come the morn
In the light of the room you move like a cherub on a cloud, your subtle beauty is so enlightening and a breath of reason to us both
My heart full of the love I have for now, passion it does rush threw my veins, what will our dalliance bring come the climax, sleep in the end
Drained of my entire being, I catch my composure never have I felt the ecstasy almost claim me, if it did I could die oh so happy
Flushed with the events of the night, we now can fall into a deep and complete sleep, your smile says it all to me, bliss be ours tonight

When Alone with You

Night does fall, together again we are once more, the glowing fire warms us, but love does tempt us further into a seductive journey
We retire to the confines of our bedroom, as you lay ever close to me, tell me of your love, your voice ever so soft and comforting
I too recant my love and fondness for you, pledging to be faithful for ever more, you are mine forever, this I do solemnly pledge
Alone with you I can feel the passion surging threw my body, as we make love it all bursts forth at once, sheer emotion is sent forwards
Now after the erotic dance has concluded, we rest to restore what hath been, will the spirits allow one more go, we shall see

Where Did Our Love Go

You said that our love was forever, that we would be as one for all time sake, it is not so
I try to piece together were we went wrong, was it a moment in time or did it disappear at once
My heart is heavy and it seems I cannot go on, broken I stand alone in this world abandon forever
But for all of this, I will have the memories, happy times filled with frolic and delight, but now silence
As I depart to start my life alone, I ask for one final kiss, a reminder of you and that we once were

Will Thou Make Love to Me

The night's air is fragrant and the musk of our beings perfumes the air, we are set for the dance
Each movement set to take us to the sheer limits of our love, there is no return from were it will go
We meet, I touch you, we embrace trading soft gentle kisses to introduce the passion set be forth
My heart beats strongly as the moments soar to the seductive peak we are waiting for, tis ecstasy
Breathless for all the love we haves hared, a brief respite and then on wards again we shall ride
Withered and spent, you lay in my arms, and do whisper the word of love to me, the silence be gone

Young and Foolish, We Were

Gone are the days when we did all on a whim and lark, comfort has now set in to our very lives
No more gay abandon, we are now firm in our ways, but our love does still crave body adventure
Once we did all we could to be daringly trite, alas with age comes wisdom spry dares are no more
But even with predictability there be, still some game to us, we frolic now to just remember
You are still the love of my life, age matters not whether true love is ours, we still have our dreams
