

Poetry Series

Cassidy Pendragon
- poems -

Publication Date:

2006

Publisher:

Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Cassidy Pendragon()

I've lived in Colorado my entire life, just changed my last name and religion. I lived with my mom, grandmother, and two sisters in Colorado, and spent summers in Kentucky with my dad.

That Song

I do anything to take the time, and thoughts of you away from my mind.
I sometimes wonder why I still care.

And then I here that song again.
That bitter-sweet sound of indescribable darkness.

It touches my memory like no type of anger can.
It fuels my desire to revisit the past.

If I were to see you again, I would have no words.
But I would hear that song once again.

Playing in my mind, forcing me to remember, that I would always remember.

Cassidy Pendragon