Travel For That One Stranger

with just a pack of cigarettes a pen and some spare change on his left pocket all for somebody he hasn't found.

On a bus traveling miles and miles picturing a stranger with such a beautiful smile, read his printed out love letter which was stored in his unsent file dreaming a future with a stranger who would bare his child.

Days and nights have come and go

Where destiny brings him? no one knows.

He could have just traveled on his beloved sedan, but he gave it up for a ring, that he would someday put on the stranger's hand.
