

Poetry Series

Gary Freedman
- poems -

Publication Date:
2010

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Gary Freedman()

Achin'

Needing it

ramming hard
driving it

Heaving
sighing
groaning

sliding
embracing humping

feeling it
moving
hip motion

endless
banging
riding

coming
YELLING!
I'm coming!

shooting
relaxing
withdrawing

kissing
laughing
smiling

wet

cigarette?

(Washington, DC
October 31,2010)

Gary Freedman

Fish In The Sea

i love to see
fish in the sea
and eat a pea
with a bee.
what do you say that we hook up and diddle-dee-dee

Gary Freedman

Significant Moments

An historical novel written entirely in quotations and inspired by The Waste Land by T.S. Eliott.

Gary Freedman

Summer Solstice

The lonely, grated metal table starts the day, an adjustment is made to apprehend that the other chairs are empty. The June morning beautiful and still to be, should woo me with its early luminescence. Yet the appetite is not shared, lost somewhere in memory.

How lucky the horizon is blue and needs no handwriting on its emptiness. I am written on thoroughly, a plagiarized novel found again. I remember the predictable plot too late, realize the silly, sad urgency of my plight.

'Do you always watch for the longest day of the year and then miss it?
I always watch for the longest day in the year and then miss it.'

Gary Freedman