

Classic Poetry Series

Anne Porter

- poems -

Publication Date:

2004

Publisher:

PoemHunter.Com - The World's Poetry Archive

Another Sarah

for Christopher Smart

When winter was half over God sent three angels to the apple-tree
Who said to her
"Be glad, you little rack
Of empty sticks,
Because you have been chosen.

In May you will become A wave of living sweetness
A nation of white petals
A dynasty of apples."

Anonymous submission.

Anne Porter