Bill Knott(1940 - 2014)

Bill Knott, originally known as Saint Geraud, was born in Carson City, Michigan. He is an associate professor at Emerson College in Boston. He first received recognition with The Naomi Poems published in 1968.

He published this work under the pseudonym Saint Geraud (a figure who, it was claimed, lived from 1940 to 1966). Poet Thomas Lux wrote of the collection: "The best poems in this first collection ... confront the reader with their directness and imagination They're poems of anguish and frustration because the poet takes responsibility." Knott's poems are sometimes surreal, with startling juxtaposed images. Critic Meghan O'Rourke noted the variety of forms in Knott's poetry, identifying the simple style of some poems and the "highly-torqued syntactic compression" of others. In The Unsubscriber, she found "the mode alternately heroic and vernacular, the subjects ranging from ecocide to the degradations of age to meditations on the sword of Damocles and Rilke's archaic torso."

Knott, who was an orphan, spent a year in an institution for the mentally ill in Elgin, Illinois, when he was 15; he worked with his uncle at a farm in Michigan, spent two years in the army, and wrote his first book while working as a hospital orderly. He taught for many years at Emerson College in Boston. Bill Knott died on 12 March 2014 at age 74.

(desire)threadbare(Desires)

 -to S.

The light lay in shreds across the bed, only your waking could make it whole; resuming its costume of day, its role which seems to overnight get ragged—

Fate latent as weights in theater curtainhems, what soul is sewn here to be rung down at last, divested of these disguises. But if we are bared by such cloth as cries in this lament for the sun's fragility, would I dare now to shake you astir—to drape over you my shadow, whose myth-ex-machina remains all mine, mine, and therefore torn from yours.

Bill Knott

(end) Of Summer (1966)

I'm tired of murdering children.
Once, long ago today, they wanted to live;
now I feel Vietnam the place where rigor mortis is beginning to set-in upon me.

I force silence down the throats of mutes, down the throats of mating-cries of animals who know they are extinct.
The chameleon's death-soliloquy is your voice's pulse;
your scorched forehead a constellation's suicide-note.

A phonograph needle plunges through long black hair, and stone drips slowly into our veins.
The earth has been squandered by the meek.
And upsidedown in the earth a dead man walks upon my soles when I walk

A baby is crying.
In the swaddling-pages
a baby.

'Don't cry. No Solomori's-sword can divide you from the sky.
You are one. Fly.'

I'm tired, so tired.
I have sleep to do.
I have work to dream.

(poem) (Chicago) (The Were-Age)

'My age, my beast!' - Osip Mandelstam

On the lips a taste of tolling we are blind
The light drifts like dust over faces
We wear masks on our genitals You've heard of lighting cigarettes with banknotes we used to light ours with Jews
History is made of bricks you can't go through it And bricks are made of bones and blood and Bones and blood are made of little tiny circles that nothing can go through Except a piano with rabies Blood gushes into, not from, our wounds
Vietnamese Cuban African bloods Constellations of sperm upon our bodies Drunk as dogs before our sons
The bearded foetus lines up at the evolution-trough Swarmy bloods in the rabid piano
The air over Chicago is death's monogram
This is the Were-Age rushing past Speed: 10,000 men per minute
This is the species bred of death
The manshriek of flesh
The lifeless sparks of flesh

Covering the deep drums of vision
O new era race-wars jugular-lightning Dark glance bursting from the over-ripe future Know we are not the smilelines of dreams Nor the pores of the Invisible Piano with rabies we are victorious over The drum and the wind-chime
We bite back a voice that might have emerged
To tame these dead bodies aid wet ashes

2 Futilists

Even if the mountain I climbed Proved to be merely a duncecap It was only on gaining its peak That that knowledge reached me.

Is there a single inch-- one square millimeter on the face of our planet which some animal human or otherwise
has not shit on?

Is there anywhere even a pore's-worth of ground-- earth that has never (not once in its eons) been covered by what golgotha of dung?

If such a place exists,
I want to go there and stand there
at that site in that spot, truly and purely for an instant.

Advice From The Experts

I lay down in the empty street and parked My feet against the gutter's curb while from The building above a bunch of gawkers perched Along its ledges urged me don't, don't jump.

An Instructor's Dream

Many decades after graduation the students sneak back onto the school-grounds at night and within the pane-lit windows catch me their teacher at the desk or blackboard cradling a chalk:
someone has erased their youth, and as they crouch closer to see more it grows darker and quieter than they have known in their lives, the lesson never learned surrounds them; why have they come? Is there any more to memorize now at the end than there was then"
What is it they peer at through shades of time to hear, X times X repeated, my vain efforts to corner a room's snickers? Do they mock me? Forever?
Out there my past has risen in the eyes of all my former pupils but I wonder if behind them others younger and younger stretch away to a world where dawn will never ring its end, its commencement bell.

As much as someone could plow in one day
They called an acre;
As much as a person could die in one instant
A lifetime--

Another Hole For W.R Rodgers

Speak like a singularity, a lack residing deep inside every lock, just past the point keys can jab: against all thrust make safe-ensure your door's core is held back, for reckless access to that pure center quarks more quintessence than taking exits from those pried voids whose secret quickly sates: ubiquitous if Space presses Enter.

Which inadmissible sill still calls loud with imagine: our skeleton keeping each such portal neither open nor shut, unhoused of that exclusive dustborne cloud we breathe, though there must be something it accumulates, accommodates: what?

Bill Knott

Castration Envy #11

Tying the pimp in dreams to a lamppost
His tuxedo wet with wheedled kisses, can I wake up sucking the footprints of toilets
In jails that glitter like crash-dived marquees.

A dog appears in call letters on my skin.
Twin worlds, who exchange threats via scoreboard
I rival this night, this fight to the death
With enough leftover, ooze for twosies yet.

Either even, I wish I could put on take off My clothes without first saying to my cock "Excuse me, is this yours," while the stars

The collected no-shows of eternity, rise.
Hey, remember the way painters gauge perspective?
Me, I cut the thumb off and throw it at stuff.

Bill Knott

Cemetery

Who whispers here is forgotten.

Saliva's emptiest fruit adorns the stones,
words ripening your mouth
to a spoilation
of silence.

Who speaks here
reads a text that downloads
the screen of his fingernail, through which nothing's visible as glass is.

For the memorial
we must kneel
to pick each flower
from amongst its modifiers:
but to do that one needs a hand bared
of all uses, of all trades:
as ours is not.

Bill Knott

Christmas At The Orphanage

But if they'd give us toys and twice the stuff most parents splurge on the average kid, orphans, I submit, need more than enough; in fact, stacks wrapped with our names nearly hid the tree: these sparkling allotments yearly guaranteed a lack of--what?--family?--

I knew exactly what it was I missed as we were lined up number rank and file:
to share my pals' tearing open their piles meant sealing the self, the child that wanted to scream at all You stole those gifts from me; whose birthday is worth such words? The wish-lists they'd made us write out in May lay granted against starred branches. I said I'm sorry.

Bill Knott

Compact Dusk

Here at the height of the day night change
The color of the sky is uncertain,
The sky depending in which direction One's eye strains, each of its swatches a strange

Hue which dies too soon and which makes this hour Linger in the mind transient as a life,
Whose names once known remain another Posied-up portrait on our palette knife.

Until even I wonder if one tint Ever survives the harm of seeming unique (Evening's intrigue, time's singularity.)

Study for its trace, its placemap, I see — Redundant as a stopsign in italic—
The face on which my profile leaves no print.

Bill Knott

Dearth Demise

Satiety help me I have inhabit of this world. Extant upon its designs to be more aimlessly fluttering at the window, to shadow all the patterns

it offers each sun. In frames far as eye I draw my words towards a juggler's shards as if our fallings-down our deaths occurred but did not involve a lot of colloquialized arm movements, the body language throws. Thus the shape of your silence when it speaks me is different than mine in saying you, though both of them resemble that spasm hymned as repose lifepause a happen of sorts the way the horizon's a long way without meaning to.

Excerpts From The Diary Of Damocles

I don't dare speak too loudly, some timbres could be fatal-- that string is not too strong I think: and at times I have to breathe. Or maybe I fear my paraphrastic exhalations will spoil the oiled perfection of its sleekness, will mist over that brightness whose needle sharp point compasses my every stray. I am as edgy in my way as it-- as little-rippled, as subtle.

Prey to vapors, to sudden icecap thaws, seismic dicethrows, the world wires me, I hex myself up to a pitch of infinite finicky sensitiveness, alert to every window opening down in my castle's bowels, every mousehole emergence.

A simple housefly--a moth murders my rest when it mistakes for light that glittering blade in which every passing glint is glassed--barometer of my highest apprehension.

I know my fear is only a ploy, a sticking point in the old hairsplitting debate of the winds . . .

I the first split personality divide into a Dam/an Ocles, a mother and her myopic

son. Or, since everything is reversed in its mirroring shaft, a Selcomad, mad and sulky.

Language does this to me.
It inverts my position: King

I am, but await my crown, unmanned until it come down;

my kingdom lies in twain to each, I am in half to all.

If only I could reach up, up, and take it in my teeth,

suckle that penile projection, cloister its unremitting hardness in the sheath of my throat-- swordswallower who exalts his posture with this adjunct second spine, aligning gut with palate, my groin with my height.

Male means to be in the crime of things here, this frail planet killed wide, maimed down.

Male means murder, rape and war.

Its indomitable will will not allow approach. All broach will fail.

It must fall on you or not at all.

Insane, isn't it? History hangs impregnable to the mind, eager to halve your brain with rift, intrusion and strife, the warrior's dissonance. No whole is hallowed, no peace. Don't let the humor of this scene (when the phallus falls the fears recede) attend

you away from its cruelty.

I stand here exposed to whose justice, my crime my Y chromosome. That Y aims his prick point down at me.

A dowsing wand that seeks my artesian quench, my depths of death. His insistence sustains me in steel, his encased incursion covers my melt, my metal. Each day he rights me:

his richterscaled tremors are my weather, my wherefore:

his gloss his gleam condemns my fortunes, his ore loads my gold with schist. His soliloquy interrupts mine at every word.

Linebreaks enforced by sword, his poem sunders my rhythm.

All mine at last is made him.
His blade remembers my name . . .

Bill Knott

Face In The Window

I am a modest house, a house solely notable for the fact I lived here once.
Its brass plaque depicts an oxygen eye in which two pupils of hydrogen dance.

Downstairs is where I lit fires whose insights with approach-velocity froze me, then singed off into flame. This always happened when I came close to a truth. Months passed. Years. Nights.

Shall I accommodate myself again, a humble aquarium of lordly thumbs, some fin de species? Of course each word the blackout-moth mutters to my keyboard shows the snowiest letter on this page is "I"— must I now plumb its one remaining pane?

Feeding The Sun

One day we notice that the sun needs feeding. Immediately a crash program begins: we fill rockets with wheat, smoke-rings, razorblades, then, after long aiming
--they're off. Hulls specially alloyed so as not to melt before the stuff gets delivered we pour cattle rivers windmills, aborigines etcet into the sun which however, grows stubbornly smaller, paler. Finally of course we run out of things to feed the thing, start shipping ourselves. By now all the planets-moons-asteroids and so on have been shoveled in though they're not doing much good it's still looking pretty weak, heck, nothing helps!
Now the last few of us left lift off.
The trip seems forever but then, touchdown.
Just before entering we wonder, will we be enough. There's a last-second doubt in our minds: can we,
can this final sacrifice, our broughten crumb, sate
it--will a glutteral belch burst out then at last,-- and will that Big Burp be seen by far-off telescopes, interpreted as a nova by those other galaxies, those further stars which have always seemed even more starving
than ours?

Bill Knott

Flashbacks

All it takes is Laura Riding's riding-crop across my butt, and I'm off: Git-up horsie she cries astride me as I crash sweetly onto the carpet.

Boredom what an esthetic, cleansing the days-
I laud the vintage of my toothpick.

Small-husband to the floor,
my foot stoops in dance,
in courtship intervals.

Putting their clothes on afterwards the lovers are surprised at how empty
the buttonholes seem.

Fragments From The Beach

(Nonasyllabics)

In retrospect the tragic nature of sea is a taste wept too daily, too depleted by freedom's rupture;
the eyes have other secrets to see and deeper use for the detritus within us: the bright effluvium of ego dries up, mired as it is in wealth, that remedial medium.

Blame it on fate, on beach memories-- pebble put in the pocket or shell fragments; any memento carries us as much as we it. Time capsule contains every evening's interval.

The ocean observes its own puddle.

Hair Poem

Hair is heaven's water flowing eerily over us
Often a woman drifts off down her long hair and is lost

Bill Knott

Heritage

"...here thy generations endeth in accord."

I physically resemble my mother And father and therefore must have been Adopted, because on my TV screen
The role-children rarely share a feature With either parent. The fact they're actors And I'm not is what makes me misbegot—
A matched world of monitors all 2-shot
The mirror daily where I pray these stars

*Come: cancel everyone of us whose names And clans have sundered human unity Descend always among daughters or sons
To live still, beyond the Net's trivia games, Till their faces cloned shape ours. Family.
From android to ape, we'll be Thy reruns.*

Bill Knott

Ledgelif

The taller the monument, the more impatient our luggage.
Look, look, a graveyard has fancy dirt.
Historians agree: this is the pebble which beamed Goliath.
Every billboard is theoretically as beautiful as what lies unseen behind it.

Mouth: the word's exit-wound.
It is impossible to run away face-to-face.
Shadow has closed the door out of you to you, but not to us.
The sign on the wall advises: Hide your gloves beneath your wings.

Even sculptors occasionally lean against statues.
Migrations?! Fate?! Life swears up at ledgelif.
All the sad tantamounts gather. They want, they say, to errand our ways.

Please aim all kicks at the ground.
Address all blows to the air.
We are to be barely mentioned if at all in the moon's memoirs.

Bill Knott

Lesson

Our love has chosen its appropriate gesture
Which when viewed in the midst of all the gestures
It didn't choose seems almost insignificant.

The gesture our love has chosen is appropriate We both agree not that we have any choice but Amidst all those others does seem insignificant.

Is it incumbent on us thus to therefore obliterate
All of the gestures except this insignificant one Chosen by our love for its own no doubt reasons.

It is up to us to obliterate all other gestures Though they cluster round thick as presentations
Of war and sacrifice in a gradeschool classroom.

Use of our love's chosen gesture for the obliteration
Of all those foreign gestures is forbidden however We must find something else to erase them with.

Our love has chosen its appropriate gesture
Which when viewed in the absence of all other gestures Seems to spell the opposite of insignificant.

Bill Knott

Lifeguard Clinging To A Steeple

Why are all the survivors of the needle's eye nude, as if their lifethread had disrobed rather than sewn them. Sans coat-fare, we proceed it seems only to precede;
birth to burial, are not yet here.

But when did we first start embracing the wakes of ourselves in each other rather than each other? As the fruit falls to hiatus us, its bloom spoiled by last year's cores.

Or the sun whose portrait rots in our pores, those sweatbeads blurred in closeup but clear afar-- that pointillist pap, that hybrid suicide.

The face carefully tattooed around love's wounds does not itself look injured.

Monopoly

Finally the day dawned when a monopoly owned everything in the world
So it went looking for its stockholders to celebrate But they were all owned by it they were all dead they were someplace
Their photographs hung in elevators which went up and down up and down carrying nobody Everyone else was in bed doing exercises to get in shape for noon Hey the monopoly said let's uncork the World Trade Center and get blotto
Silence
The monopoly scowled
All it wanted was a little good-fellowship, like you get in the highrise apartment-buildings
Then the sky got awful dark Gee
And everyone was in bed frantically doing those exercises that get us in shape for death
Exercises known as "kissing" "fucking" "caressing" Everyone was unaware that they had been bought Or that the earth was about to sell them to the moon
For a little light

Bill Knott

Obsolescent

Bending over like this to get my hands empty Rummaging through the white trashcans out back Of the Patent Office I find a kind of peace Here in this warm-lit alley where no one comes.

Even the rats too they know that nothing new Is going to get pitched out now--no formula, Not one blueprint will ever be found in these Bright bins whose futures are huge, pristine.

Old alleymouth grabbags my attention at times I see the world flash by out there, glow-glow as The floors of decontamination chambers-

I go back to my dull, boring search, foraging For the feel it gives me of the thing which has Invented me: that void whose sole idea I was.

On A Drawing By Charles Tomlinson

By a swath of inks the eye thinks it sees solidities which alter with the watercolor way his brush washes its dye in distance, though even this finds a faraway fixed not by the surveyor's plumb but by the action of the thumb delaying all the fingers meant to draw out of the paper, splashed dry. The clean grain catches what it should retain if enough pressure pleasure is applied to the stain to lie.

Note: Tomlinson is not only a distinctive poet, but a visual artist of repute. His graphics grace the covers of many of his books. This Homage attempts to imitate his verse style, or rather one of his verse styles.

Bill Knott

Picture

Meadow of matchsticks, soon to be rekindled
by Spring the incendiary.

The exact flame of your blossoms will ignite the passions happily sapped by time--

Dripdrop their excess went and now miners' hats light up like love before your vein, the frame of which is there to depict the drift, the waste when I painted all the review copies they sent me. But those books open to polar pages where you and I weigh the ends of this teeter totem down, you at the head and nadir me;

where postmortem is the aura of self-portrait, its other half regained at last.

Poetry,
you are an electric,

Bill Knott

Self(The Poet PassÉ)portrait

His task to watch an hourglass wash itself,
A ritual cleansing that leaves him bare,
Though no purification's new enough To nullify the need for such labor--

Prior soon to repeat, platonic clone,
He should have practiced that horizon Vocation, camouflage, opening his Arms wide the better to hide. But of course

If the flesh is fire, bones are the kindling:
Still there but aching to be unbelied
By the lover, unbelied as breaths held Until all the minutes fall to the wrong

End of the hour and find his final Efforts,ve faded, dated as (or like) a sundial.

Bill Knott

Sonnet

The way the world is not Astonished at you
It doesn't blink a leaf
When we step from the house Leads me to think That beauty is natural, unremarkable
And not to be spoken of Except in the course of things
The course of singing and worksharing
The course of squeezes and neighbors
The course of you tying back your raving hair to go out And the course of course of me
Astonished at you
The way the world is not

Bill Knott

Space

From the trees the leaves came down until we joined hands with a wand and that act enabled them somehow then to reach the ground where they scuttered round our feet urging the latter to unite with a baton as if that act together with the hands can clasp

a dowsing-stick cut from the same branch from which we launched converging on gravity's purge-point at which point we merged to remove all consonants from our star-maps.

The infinite consists of vowels alone.

Bill Knott

Story Of Or

To pose nakedness is To refute it. A pose
Is a clothes. Like Stanzaic arrangements of

The word which should Ideally, be in pain against Its w and its d. No slack Is why such heaves of or

To denude itself could Make us exude gold, yet when
Was that ever opposite enough

What scream or epigram
This sperm has come To measure our mouths for.

Note: For 'or' to free itself from 'word,' it must strain ('heave') against the 'w' and the 'd' that enclose it. If, via this strenuous (perhaps squeamish) process, the meaning of 'or' is transmuted from the English into the French as a sort of homage to the pseudonymous author of 'Story of O' (Histoire d'O), then, alchemically speaking, (or so an Aurealist might suggest) it will have risen from the pose of its measures to or-emerge as an else-gasm.

Stress Therapy

Time, time, time, time, the clock vaccinates us.
and then even that lacks prophylaxis.

Ticktock-pockmarked, stricken by such strokes, we get sick of prescriptions which work solely on the body.

Systole diastole--
It is by its very

intermittency that the heart knows itself to be an I.

Bill Knott

Tempestrousseau

The clock is dressed in drag, I mean it wears space instead of its own proper aspect but if it wore time, would it disappear isn't visibility an effect of transvestism, that shield pastime whose crosscasual aim unmasks the eye: must you assume the costume of the other to be here, to present the sense with an ess. . .

Narcissus saw his guise decked out all ruse, but if there were none, what would our true clothes consist of, our rig rags, our regalia—

Whose dapper element dons us: Einstein's continuum—or Flaubert's condense that, come the same, the Bovary c'est Moi?

Bill Knott

The Enemy

Like everyone I demand to be Defended unto the death of All who defend me, all the World's people I command to Roundabout me shield me, to Fight off the enemy. The Theory is if they all stand Banded together and wall me Safe, there's no one left to Be the enemy. Unless I of Course start attack, snap-Ping and shattering my hands
On your invincible backs.

Bill Knott

The Golden Age

is thought to be a confession, won by endless torture, but which our interrogators must hate to record—all those old code names, dates, the standard narrative of sandpaper throats, even its remorse, fall ignored. Far away, a late (not lost) messenger stares, struck by window bargains or is it the gift of a sudden solicitude: is she going to lift up her shadow's weight, shift hers onto it? She knows who bears whom. In that momentary museum where memory occurs more accrue of those torturers' pincers than lessened fingernails, eyes teased to a pulp, we beg for closeups. Ormolus, objets d'art!

A satyr drains an hourglass with one gulp.

Bill Knott

The Hunger

If a path to the Gingerbread House could be established by breaking crumbs off its edifice and sprinkling them so as to find what lies behind us across the featureless fairytale void of childhood: yet how very quick that trick wears out when the story's track takes hold, takes toll, a far-older trail prevails, we're forced to give up this lost cause; and the fact is that every last morsel was gone long before the you or I might totter our way back here to try to dissuade all these other Hansel-Gretels hollering in queue.

Bill Knott

The Misunderstanding

I'm charmed yet chagrined by this misunderstanding-- As when, after a riot, my city's smashed-in stores appear all Boarded up, billboarded over, with ads for wind-insurance.
Similarly, swimmingly, I miss the point. You too?

And my misunderstanding doesn't stop there, it grows--soon
I can't see why that sudden influx of fugitives, All the world's escapees, rubbing themselves lasciviously against the Berlin Wall.
They stick like placards to it. Like napalm. Like ads for--

And me, I haven't even bought my biodegradable genitalia yet!
No. I was born slow, but picking up speed I run through Our burnt-out streets, screaming, refusing to buy a house.
Finally, exasperated, the misunderstanding overtakes me, snatches up

Handcuffs. So now here I am, found with all you others Impatiently craning, in this queue that rumors out of sight up ahead somewhere,
Clutching our cash eager to purchase whatever it is, nervous
As if bombs were about to practice land-reform upon our bodies,

Redistribution of eyes, toes, arms, here we stand. Then, some new Age starts.

Bill Knott

The Patriots

at the edge of the city in the garbagedump where the trucks never stop unloading a crazy congregation stumbles from trashmound to trashheap they smash their fists down on whatever's intact they tear to bits the pitifew items that have remained whole they rip everything old clothes papers cans bones to nothing with their glazed teeth the enlightened the faithful every few meters one of them falls and is torn to shreds by the others at the edge of the city where there's a line waiting to join

The Unsubscriber

Like all children, you were a de facto Member of the Flat Earth Society, Believing nothing but what you could see Or touch or whatever sense led act to Fruition: mudpies made summer beneath A tree whose measured shade endowed decrees Between light and dark: such hierarchies Gave you implicit, a sophistic faith--

(Fallacious fellowship!)" Youth's adherents
Ignore the fact that most factions reject Their lyric league (which only fools have stayed Striplings of) and none condone its nonsense:

No-one loves that vain solipsistic sect
You'd never join, whose dues you've always paid.

To Ripley (Alien 1-4)

Always your face like a space (Destination: beautiful) ship Empties its mote of closeup trace Down screens that blink blank blip

Somewhere between countdown
And coma time is a line Where waking centuries often Drained against that measure we find

Our blood redshifts (direction: west)
Until film can clone one sun
With stars both whole and gone

Attending every sequel
We pray for an intent equal To our interest

Weltende Variation # ?

The CIA and the KGB exchange Christmas cards
A blade snaps in two during an autopsy
The bouquet Bluebeard gave his first date reblooms Many protest the stoning of a guitar pick

Railroad trains drop off the bourgeois' pointy head
A martyr sticks a coffeecup out under a firehose Moviestars make hyenas lick their spaceship God's hand descends into a glove held steady by the police

At their reunion The New Faces recognize each other
A spoiled child sleeps inside a thermometer
A single misprint in a survival manual kills everyone
The peace night makes according to the world comes

Note: von Hoddiss: author of 'the first Expressionist poem,' Weltende, published in 1910. His poem has been aped innumerable times (Auden's 'The Fall of Rome,' for example), hence the questionmark in my title.
