

Poetry Series

jermanee hart
- poems -

Publication Date:
2011

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

jermanee hart()

A Pain Release

Yall laugh, Yall tease, Yall criticize me,

Only because i had a different pain release,

I cut, I scratch, i erase away, only puts me in a shameless place,

Doing all that, i felt no pain, the only pain i feel is the unbearable shame,

My lane, my vain i cut away,

The judging yall do makes me hold my head and say im lame,

Yall laugh, Yall tease, Yall criticize me,

I leave and while im walking im crying inside, Teardrops on my heart thats what i say,

Now im asking God why hes punishing me?

He gives no answer, gives no sign,

So i take in my hand and close my eyes,

Trickle Trickle dripping down, I collapse on my knees kicking and squirming on the ground...

jermanee hart

Born To

Born to a family where secrets are binds and lies are our foundation to get along.
Born to a mom who wasn't a mom who did crack to release the pain she felt at the time.

Big responsibility on her plate as I was a baby she controlled my life. Her addiction got the best of her but all she did was take the easy road.

Daddy dead killed selling drugs instead of caring for something he helped create he destroyed his own mind and determined his fate.

Then the mom who wasn't a mom went to court and left her responsibility on her mom (my gma). But what selfless act she had to pick up my mom and dad's slack

To Be continued...

jermanee hart

That Girl

That girl i saw not long for has left me now how long for?

Her eyes are mine her smile is too but whered she go and what to do

Her smile was mine it faded away to a place i really cant relate

The secrets behind my now faded smile hold the pain in my heart and the love in my mind

I cant comprehend why my pain is near at hand what happened to happy laughs and heartfelt tears

Good old times back in them good old days have now slowly faded in a shameless lane

Im now ashamed of the girl i used to be but the girl i am now will forever stay...

jermanee hart