

Poetry Series

Jessica Violet Brown
- poems -

Publication Date:
2009

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Jessica Violet Brown()

Boy, Who Lives In A Broken House.

Boy, who lives in a broken house

Boy, Has a broken home,
New broken bones.
No broken skin.

Boy is wise beyond his years,
But he shall never see them come to pass.

The sky has no lights,
Nor dose his soul,
Boy never knew,
Boy never heared.
I love you.

Great evil occurred,
When boy isn't looking
But now he sees's all,
All the hearts broken.

He sours the sky's
Spreading love and hope
Though he does not know there meaning

Poor broken boy
Rich loved angle

Jessica Violet Brown

Together

Together Two children learn to stand,
Alike in disobedience,
United by grief',
Raised in a world of Corruption
Pollution and hate.

Together passion is shared,
A shared hope
A shared voice
They screamed
And the world heard them.
Many stood by there side
All united in there dream of freedom.

Together they will stand for hope,
Together they will fight for freedom.

Together they stood
Together they fight
Alone one died
Alone one lives.

Alone in grief
Alone one speaks
And no one can hear,
Alone one will raise her child
In a world of corruption,
Pollution and hate.

Jessica Violet Brown