

Poetry Series

Kelvin Onchoro
- poems -

Publication Date:
2013

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Kelvin Onchoro()

The Cry Of

I will remember this sad day, when darkness fell upon my land when my enemy pounced to kill my people i remember the griefs, mourns and shock that teared my heart, My brothers and sister was hanged to the Nation by enemy, the cry of young ones, unborn and born,
We hold you to our hearts forever
God be with your souls, We will fight for the justice its upon us to protect more souls though we fell, i must wake we will never be defeated

Kelvin Onchoro

The Lone Heart

You said you were leaving but why did left the memories behind Keeps thinking of you till headaches win my head never wanted to make you cry but did it yourself n left,

I stand on the mirror to my reflection,
the man standing in front of me,
Full of tears and sorrow,
Doesn't deserve dat, n you know it
The smile has gone and left me ugly, for no one to love,

If I was the sun, my heart would burn all Sparing only ashes, but the love I had cant allow N I had to let go, move and nurse my wounds of lone Then I realize loneliness as my only friend, I would smile alone
In memories of past, to give a moon response of hopes

I stretch my arms to take chance, its there, a shining hand Rubs ma face off de sadness, to a brighter new day
My ability shows capability, unfolded power
N conquer the weakness

Am never alone

Kelvin Onchoro