

Poetry Series

Lauren Unicorn
- poems -

Publication Date:
2012

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Lauren Unicorn()

Before I Go

The picture is fading
The insults are making-me feel like I'm nothing inside.
And I've considered,
Life without the litter-
thrashing ever corner of my mind.

But can someone actually live like that?
Or is it all my fantasy?
Should I really even try?
Or should I just pack up my things and die?

Because I- I want you to know,
Before i decide to go that you can't hurt me anymore
You won't have to put on a show-
Of this illusion you call love
No more pretending you give a... about the girl you hurt the most.

Lauren Unicorn

Religion

Religion is like carbs.
It's filling, it's substantial, it'll get you through your day
But in the end, it's
All
Just
Comfort food.

Lauren Unicorn