

Poetry Series

Saquib Anwar
- poems -

Publication Date:
2013

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Saqib Anwar()

Deciduous

Shifting upon the banks of a holy river...
Drenched in numerous funeral fires nearby,
Shrivels of
Burning flesh and bones
Of believers, Of course!

Watchful of the masquerading flies,
Those born and bread in this holiness
Is making me philosophical,
And Worried,
About the stark colorless death
Of an atheist!

Saqib Anwar

Maria

Scathing in the fumbling breaths
Groping in the lane of dust
Withering for the lust untoward
Trickling by the trick of trust
Scaling the wounds of Hyde
Into the saltiness of Maria.

Saquib Anwar

Meadows Of The Past

Meadows of the past
Simmering Sun
Wild Novice over the auric cast
Shadowy Hun

A drunken well
Battered quench
Glimmering eyes
Loquacious souls

Tinkling bells
Crowdie ques
Easter eagered
Leaving for home!

Saquib Anwar

The Lone Grave

Bespeaking truth
A lone grave
Hummingbird perched
Be-humming lullaby

Estranged creepers
Over dead man
Nobody's footprints
Nones's flowers

Numerals of his life
Past to past
But a shrouded name
For unspoken cause

Saqib Anwar