

Poetry Series

Suresh Muthreja
- poems -

Publication Date:
2009

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Suresh Muthreja(04/04/1956)

A friend for life. Hobbies include Reading, Writing, Travelling and Photography.

Am I My Own Enemy.....

Many a times I ask myself
Am I my own Enemy?
Waging war against self unknowingly, Unintentionally and without malice towards anyone
At times hurting people known and unknown
a backlash could be dangerous
At times I feel a protective cover around me
Cover from known and unknown people.
I have the courage to face the world
The dangers that shadow you in the city life.
But am I my own Enemy?

Suresh Muthreja

Living Everyday...

Everyday when I get up in the morning
so many thoughts run across my mind
so many reminders of things to do so many desires, dreams, wishes to be fulfilled.
Like a ritual I get fresh, bath, eat breakfast and come out of the house.
Depending on the conveyance available I move to the destination planned and or unplanned.
Sometimes letting my heart take over, sometimes my brain.
My actions, reactions may hurt someone, somewhere, unknowingly.
My deeds, harmless at times, result in making me only tense and depressed.
My thoughts wanting me to do things unnatural and immoral but in no way hurtful, deceitful, painful or dangerous to any living being I know.
I want little, hidden, forbidden, pleasures of life, but the tensions and pressures of economical fiasco that I face suppress it only to make them surface hour after hour.
Thus diverting me from the deeds, acts that need to be completed.
Putting others, unnecessarily and unknowingly, under pressure.

Suresh Muthreja