

Poetry Series

ALBERT ENSA FORNAH
- poems -

Publication Date:

2014

Publisher:

Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

ALBERT ENSA FORNAH()

my name is Albert Ensa fornah a student of the university of Sierra Leone, a peace loving citizen

Posterity

Posterity will judge our bad politicians

Whose determination is to enrich them selves

we see our people struggling to survive

The statusquo of our justice system is pretentious

The poor owns the wrong and the rich owns the right

Our judges prejudge and prejudice justice over the poor

Posterity will judge our educated elite for using education to stupid others

For using their education to shatter the dreams of the hoipolloi

Posterity will judge them for using their pens to sign the death warrant of the

ALBERT ENSA FORNAH

Wicked Leader.

You pretender! in total preparedness, with prettified promises

You prodigally reduce the hope of your people

Never you behave like a surrogate father

In the minds of your people lies a stream of consciousness your people cry for sustainable leadership since you came you vagary change your plans

The youth are thirsty for jobs tired of vagrancy

Your wicked tempest continue to relinquish the hope of your people

You have the temerity to exchange the health of your people for money

You hear the tintinnabulation from your people,

Your tomfoolery behavior is leading your people to privation

Your dubious attitude will come to a closure some day

The duplicity you shown throughout your reign will come to an end

Your endeavor endorsement will not engineer any effect

Your wickedness is inimitable and your iniquities will die with you

ALBERT ENSA FORNAH