

Poetry Series

Amy Van Dyk
- poems -

Publication Date:
2009

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Amy Van Dyk()

All Are One

It began as just a point of light
The depth of it's brightness
Shown on through the night
It sang and danced as it carelessly grew
Caring not of what they already knew
Sharing none of this light with those who did need
Thinking nothing of others, powered by greed
A day finally came when pure darkness arrived
Standing one all alone it would not survive
It floundered and circled and let out a cry
The others together, bright as the sun sky
Helplessly mourned as this point of light died

Amy Van Dyk

Blame

This thing has taken away your life
Taken away your laughter, your tears
Your confidence, your fears
I hate it; and you so much
It is consuming me; like you
I am afraid of you, afraid of me
So sad about what you've become
So sad about what must be done

Amy Van Dyk

Got Lost

I remember lights bursting, flashing
Such disconnected thoughts
Chaos
What had we done?
Our own souls ran away from us
I don't remember anything else
It was the day I lost myself

Amy Van Dyk

Grow Up

Put whole self in, shook about
Never was there any doubt
Crossed too many lines
Ignored all of the signs

Now here I sit
Wondering why
Didn't somebody tell me
Go ahead, cry

It won't get you anywhere
Escape is not near
Really look in that mirror
It's time...

Amy Van Dyk

Sweet Addiction

My mind's eye is blinded
By what I have found
A powerful calmness
I'm not homeward bound
Oh let it end
But wait just awhile
I'll try it once more
Remember to smile
Can I do this again
Is it the same day
Can I do this again
I'll fall and fly away

Amy Van Dyk