

Poetry Series

Boshmo Shmo

- poems -

Publication Date:
2012

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Boshmo Shmo()

Don'T Cry When I Die

I cannot stay drowning in this pain,

Especially knowing it's me to blame,

I cannot help it, I'm going insane,

I cannot hug enveloped in this shame.

Please don't cry, you really wont miss me,

You never hugged me, you never kissed me,

You didn't care when I was alive,

So why should things change when I die.

Go away buddy, I'll make this quick,

This whole game of life is making me sick,

Do not worry when I start to bleed,

I'm not a person you'll ever need.

Tell dad I'm sorry, Tell my mom I'm gone,

Tell my sister I'm sorry we haven't spoken in so long,

Tell my grandparents I'll miss them, and the cousins the same,

But it's time I finally put, an end to this pain.

Boshmo Shmo

Drifting

Alone on a cloud drifting away
Waiting for darkness to turn into day
Shivering cold with spreading frostbite
Not one living creature for miles in sight
Not one single person knows I'm here
I'll never be rescued is what I fear
Alone in the night sky drifting away
Trying to move forward while stuck in yesterday

Boshmo Shmo

She Lives A Lonely Life

She lives a lonely life,
with nobody to talk,
She lives a lonely life,
With nobody to walk.
She smiles in the halls,
But she's broken past her eyes,
Her heart is broken,
And her smile lies.
Her mom and dad hate her,
Her best friend died last year,
Her pop-pop is in the hospital,
But she doesn't shed a tear.
She has lost all her ambitions,
But the happiness she'll fake,
But what nobody really knows,
Is tonight her life she'll take.

Boshmo Shmo