

Poetry Series

caitlin huddleston
- poems -

Publication Date:
2012

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

caitlin huddleston()

i am a 13 year old and most adults dont take us seriously think we hate poetry but i love it its one of the best things i do... :)

All You Think Of Is You.

You might have a great life, but you never think of the bad things,
but you should start,
think as if you were homeless,
abused,
starved,
kidnapped,
stolen,
lost,
no one to help,
nothing but hopeless,
the list goes on and on,
all you think of is you,
you take things for granite, you don't appreciate the good things in life like you should,
you always take advantage of everything you have,
all you do is want,
and want some more,
take things into appreciation,
and appreciate everything in your life that is good,
and pray for those who live without.

caitlin huddleston

Cold Change

when you have nothing left to do, just try and find the real you,
if they dont realize,
just give up the truth in your heart.

cuz when your named,
it stays glued,
you cant even chance it to be rude, never try to be something your not.

you might never be the same,
you might never stay alive,
but you cant forget to just live your life, cuz change does come.

caitlin huddleston

Dont Run

When death comes your way, dont run dont hide,
cause it will always find you,
you might as well just let it take you.

It might not be what you want,
but wether you do or not,
it will come,
sooner or later.

You have a short life,
live it gracfully,
and always know,
death will come to be.

caitlin huddleston

Hopeless

Why underestimate,
why think we cant do what you can,
we are just like you,
only young.

You dont know are extents,
all you see is child,
dont underestimate,
we can do large amounts.

You do as you wish,
but dont think little of us, we are larger than you think,
and you will regret.

caitlin huddleston

When Boredom Strikes The Dead

when boredom strikes flee for freedom, if deceased comes dont betray um,
find the real you in me, as soon as they start to see.

Before it leaves take it with you, dont think to run because they will find you,
with all the fun inside,
get away before it strangles you alive.

Open your mind and start to revive your life, think about all the good things in your past life, dont ever forget the real you, because once your gone your going to be just like them too.

caitlin huddleston