

Poetry Series

Carlton Douglas Kennedy

- poems -

Publication Date:
2014

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Carlton Douglas Kennedy(24/04/1982)

Writing from 2013. Love nature and being kind. Loves all people. Photographer, creative bead maker & charity fundraiser, Creator of life, My own and others. Making people smile is what i like to do.

A Child.

A child is pure and shines in love,
Pure in love and happiness,
They don't know hate or greed,
They take knowledge from those who think best,
A child with love takes flight,
A child with problems must fight,
Beautiful child be everything you want to be,
A child must live life free,
A child changes people,
Come now child let's discover happiness together,
A child.

Carlton Douglas Kennedy

Battered Not Broken

Battered but not broken,
It's the fear they have awoken,
The bruises hurt the tears commence,
It's only there actions that make no sense,
A life full of pain Your head filled blame,
Go take your mind and body,
Go be the chance you take,
All your happiness will be revealed when you make a break,
Don't be broken take control,
This could be the last chance for parole,
You are better than this don't fear there fist,
Know you are never alone.

Carlton Douglas Kennedy

Before You Go.

Before you go give me your hand,
Before you go tell me your safe,
Before you go let me see your heart,
Before you go share you last smile,
Before you go let us feel your happiness,
Before you go say goodbye.

Carlton Douglas Kennedy

Footsteps

Flowing my footsteps down the lane,
Trying to think as much the same,
Looking above the rainy clouds,
Smiling at birds that makes those sounds,
Following my footsteps down the lane,
Giving in to my ball and chain,
Glancing upon the tall sycamore,
Dreaming of better times forever more,
This face i show can only tell,
The life i have inside my shell,
The footsteps down that lane,
I stood there and waited for that train.

Carlton Douglas Kennedy

Humanity.

Humanity is in us all,
We care but we sometimes fall,
We must be there for others and stand tall,
Can we be the ones that set up that stall,
Live and breath humanity,
For we can teach the young,
For the song we know can bring happiness must be sung.

Carlton Douglas Kennedy

Just Me.

Just me who i am with in this body I own,
Forever changing I understand I have grown,
Many challenges I have faced,
All the dreams I have chased,

Just me in the room i call home,
Thinking of how to set the tone,
Will it be a graceful day i have today,
Or do I falter to pretend I'm ok,
Just me I count on so many times,
I'll always be true to myself,
Courageous enough to know il always have just me.

Carlton Douglas Kennedy

Lay Heavy

How can i begin to wonder of life of further on when all i see is a poor man continually struggling on How does a person seek riches when thy neighbour is down on there luck
How can i look towards the years of me without coming unstuck
These shoulders i bare thoughts upon lay heavy full of guilt
To think i once had everything from what once i had built
A fine man i used to be until they came
The people in body armor struck, it was a day of raw emotion and downfall
Of a man with everything who ended with nothing
A life that was but seemed a dream
We die the same with the last tear in our eyes
Oh lord please take me now i am ready to fly.

Carlton Douglas Kennedy

Living.

Living for the expectations of other people,
Born with a number on a paper,
Media forcing me to take thy route,
Medication given to make me safer,
Living a life i never wished,
Feeling a need to take a drift,
Making excuses that im no good,
Smiling at others who seem so good,
Living for others but not me,
Giving so much but yet not free,
Im living.

Carlton Douglas Kennedy

Lost.

Lost when not knowing what to do,
Empty spaces we form to choose,
Silent thoughts evolve in our mind,
Beginning to surrender our voids to those who judge us,
Falling into a place we don't like,
Trying get back but we never find,
That's what we feel when lost.

Carlton Douglas Kennedy

Loving You.

Loving you is something you must do,
Kindless hearts will try to diminish your self worth,
Keep smiling and don't hurt,
You are worth so much more,
Keep on being a human being,
Learning to love starts by loving you.

Carlton Douglas Kennedy

People.

They are good kind true and bad,
Beautiful the people who seek love,
Dangerous the people who seek power,
God could be people or a person that people told of untrue,
People learn from people,
Plenty are those who choose to follow,
Never ending cycle of life we people proceed,
New old and missed of those who are people.

Carlton Douglas Kennedy

Smile.

Smile to those who you not know of,
Smile when you care,
Smile for you don't know who it will bring happiness for,
Smile for yourself,
Smile because you can,
Smile when you see the special moments,
Smile for the times you didn't,
Smile.

Carlton Douglas Kennedy

Trees.

Trees are tall there leafs fall,
We look them up and down and see beauty,
The vision of growth and strength in the over powering Branches,
There funny little shaped trunks,
They are claimed they are hugged,
They are drawn and sawn,
Tree's are our friend when we let them be,
Tree's contain destruction,
In mother nature's grace,
We love the trees all the same because they give us space.

Carlton Douglas Kennedy