

Poetry Series

christopher montgomery
- poems -

Publication Date:
2009

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

christopher montgomery(Feb 8th 1987)

I was born in a small town. i've always been a 'by my self type of person. at the age of 10 i wrote my first poem that got published. During my highschool years i endured alot of pain and upsets witch increased my writing. i Joined the army when i turned 18 and deployed to Iraq. while there my Fiancee cheated on me. after returning i found and Married Nichole who is now my wife of one year and were doing ok. The first year is the harest is what they say.

The Poem In My Hand

I carved a poem in the palm of my hand with stood all the hurt and pain i could stand thinking all the hurt and pain you put me through my hand was now full but the poem it grew the poem left my hand and is now at my arm slow trickles of blood not doing much harm the passion and hate that brings me here the love and the joy that you for some reason fear.

covered in blood my arm falls to the floor loosing faith that God has anything in store blood flowing like wine at the king and queens ball, my eye lids get heavy and slowly they fall.

My body now cold my mind starts to race.
all the memoies of a love that i can't erase.
i gave you my all, heart soul and mind.
But for some reason your heart was too hard to find could it have been different, something i'll never know i have made my last choice its time to let go.

Good bye to the woman that shatterd my heart good bye to the dreams i had from the start

Good bye to my love i hope you understand but if not thats why there is a poem in my hand.

christopher montgomery