

Poetry Series

Daniela Rodriguez
- poems -

Publication Date:

2007

Publisher:

Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Daniela Rodriguez(June 9,1990)

So Much

So much on my mind.
I wish I could find a solution to my problems.
This and That and This and That
And then SPLAT!
It all jumbles in the back of my head.
There are things that I lack
but all I get is tearsheds.
Sleepless nights
Endless fights
Ti live is my right
but the want to fight
is a state of mind.
I want to gather
My thoughts
But my feelings end up shattered.
I want to be me a lot
I'll give it a shot.
Stop worrying so much
And turn up my mind a notch
The feeling of being trapped
Without a map
This and That and This and That I can't keep on
With this act so long
I want to feel like I belong
These thoughts of mine barricade me everyday taking away my luster and shine
I'm losing the sense of time and date
When will these thoughts of mine evolve?
When will this dissolve?
There is so much to solve.

Daniela Rodriguez

The Others

Looking at the world
Makes me look at myself twice.
The world is very deceiving.
It leads you into a path of wild and destructive things.
How could you have so many in need and still want more?
Don't you feel anything?
Don't just look at them.
Look at their soul and then you will understand.
Look at them straight in the eye and say you don't care.
DO you dare?
If you want more out of life, give like if there's no tomorrow.
Give your two cents each day and you will see later on,
you will be the richest person in the heavens.
The world would be a more comfortable place to live.
Live for for tomorrow,
Live for today
But give them a chance to enjoy too.
Our greedy monsters will soon back down
And slumber underneath the soil.

Daniela Rodriguez