

Poetry Series

danielle arrowsmith
- poems -

Publication Date:
2009

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

danielle arrowsmith(10/91)

im still in highschool. love writing poems.

please feel free to vote on mine and tell me what you think about them

Everything

Everything is a very hard word to define it can be words people food or time but the worst is when everything is wrong the days and weeks go on an on and are so long the sun isn't shining noone seems to be smiling deep down you feel empty, like theres nothing there you sit all alone and you begin to tear it feels like nothing has been going right for a year and everythin people say goes in one ear and out the other you just want to run away for cover you want to fill the emptiness inside wondering if people would morn if you suddenly died its so difficult to move on depression is taking over you can't recall the last time you were sober you stop.
a tear drops.
empty and alone
can't find your way home.
as you sit there with nothing what you need now is Everything..

danielle arrowsmith

Inside

happiness inside
i can not hide
you are my peace that never seems to cease love of my life

you take away the strife you care about me you hear me when im down on my knee you give me understanding when the world is demanding that you have to be someone your not you have to be someone whose hott you love me when no one is around when im lying on the ground crying to you when the pain is unbearable when it doesn't seem repairable you help me stand up for whats right even when there is no hope in sight you help me to love

thank you for all the things you have down for me you help me stand up to my fears that have grown through past years

danielle arrowsmith

Pain

hey you over there you don't seem to care do you see past your desires your in that group of liars words you dont care about words that i doubt do you think about the words you say some of them will always stay i know your hurting no one your problems are alerting don't blame yourself don't put your problems on a shelf i will always be here i see your falling tear ending your life is not the key you mean so much to me although you think your going insane please don't put me through this pain

danielle arrowsmith