Poetry Series

Danny Speicher - poems -

Publication Date:

2012

Publisher:

Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Danny Speicher(February 26,1982)

Danny Speicher was born on February 26,1982 and grew up in the college town of Lawrence, Kansas. Raised by his mother (Cynthia Speicher), aunt (Patricia Collins) and grandmother (Ruby Collins) until his grandma's death in 1997, Danny received love unconditionally from his family throughout his upbringing. Having been the son of Frank Joseph Speicher (a prominent figure in the city of Lawrence who died when Danny was 7), he found a unique and strong connection to the Lawrence community.

Speicher's faith in Christ had always been a central part of his life and for a short while he attended Oklahoma Wesleyan University in Bartlesville, Oklahoma to pursue a degree in Pastoral Ministry from 2004-2006. He is currently back in his hometown of Lawrence, Kansas looking to pursue degree in education, instead, after finding his passion for teaching at a local elementary school upon his return.

Danny has been writing poems since childhood. However, he truly started developing his passion for writing after he graduated from Lawrence High School in 2000. His poems often express his faith in God; his passion and romantic love for loved ones who have come and gone in his life; or even more often express his love for family, friends or places. Whether he writes of love or loss; faith or strife... He always writes with a unique authenticity and classical style that is distinctly his.

A Bright Sun Shining

Don't cry, my dear sisters, don't cry today
The storm may be raging, thunder crashing
With clouds threatening and lightning flashing
Darling, the sky won't always be that way

Dear brothers, don't burden yourselves this night The sky may be dark as a raven's wing And you don't know what the next turn may bring But, on the horizon, a line breaks bright

These troubled times are treacherous and tough Oft wondering whether you'll eat or starve But, each day is a day which our God carved Even now, His provision is enough

Dream of that day with each silver lining A cloudless day, with a bright sun shining

((May 15th, 2009))

A Cloudy Night

Sitting under a cloudy horizon
With you in my arms, your lips against mine
Letting you see a place I go alone
You and I under a cloudy night sky

Silence was the language spoken that night Thankful to see one another again Staring deeply into each others' eyes Not really knowing the dream we were in

Oh, to relive that night over once more Perhaps I would hold you closer to me Perhaps my kisses would be far deeper Perhaps I'd hold you... Never let you free

Oh, how the moon would poke through the clouds As if to smile in approval, sweet And the few stars would shine down upon us So sweetly dancing as our lips would meet

In one moment 'my place' became 'our place' And all those things that I dreamt of right there Those very dreams had finally come true Under the clouds in that humid night air

A Cloudy Night Revisited

Sitting once more under a cloudy sky Alone, yet dreaming of you sitting near Once again alone in my place of rest Missing you dearly and wanting you here

Silence louder than the claps of thunder Rolling through the plains, shaking me deeply Wet green grass reminding me of your eyes Dreaming a dream within a dream, weeping

Oh, to relive that night over once more Perhaps I would hold you closer to me Perhaps my kisses would be far deeper Perhaps I'd hold you... Never let you free

But, a year later the moon shines no more
The stars twinkle not between lofty clouds
The sky burst forth in tears to match my own
Bringing memories wrapped in night-time shrouds

Our place remains our place, although still mine Yet all those things my heart once dared to dream And all those thoughts that those dreams had come true Remain a dream, less lasting than they seemed

((July 29th,2008))

A Dispatcher's Prayer

Dear Lord, please help my mind to be sharp
So that I might focus on the needs of others
Help my ears to be trained
To listen to the calls that need my attention
Train my heart to persevere
Though, at times, I may feel overwhelmed
Keep my voice steady and calm
As I guide citizens and professionals
Keep my hands quick and accurate
So that I might relay details precisely

Lord, never let me become discouraged
For I know You've put me here to help my community
Never let me be fearful
For I know You drive my words and actions
Never let me forget that You are my provider
And You will provide, hour by hour, what I need in this job

((May 30th, 2009))

A Few More Steps

Walking up the hill, cross upon your back
Will that next step be the step causing you to crack
Wanting to scream out, "Lord, where have you gone?"
Then you see Him on that hill as dusk becomes dawn

Just a few more steps until you're in your Father's arms
Just a few more steps until you're away from harm
Just a few more steps walking in that blinding light
In just a few more steps... You're gonna be alright

Money doesn't seem to be in your reach Another man on the phone giving you the speech What he doesn't know is how you would pay it all But, the jobs you work just can't stop the call

Just a few more steps until you're in your Father's arms Just a few more steps until you're away from harm Just a few more steps walking in that blinding light In just a few more steps... You're gonna be alright

You have lost all your hope to find your way
A loving god wouldn't let your hurt grow each day
But, you hear Him beckoning in the dark
And, deep within you, there is that passionate spark

No matter what the road may hold And even if the darkness falls He sees you shivering and cold And He's holding you through it all

Just a few more steps until you're in your Father's arms
Just a few more steps until you're away from harm
Just a few more steps walking in that blinding light
In just a few more steps... You're gonna be alright
In just a few more steps... You're gonna be alright

((September 19th, 2006))

A Kyrielle Of Faith

Though all seems wrong within your life And the light seems soon to depart And though pain may cut like a knife Trust in the Lord with all your heart

Don't fear deceitful winds of change Or think of those whom you're apart When it's steep on that mountain range Trust in the Lord with all your heart

Does He not feed birds of the air?
Or clothes to the lilies impart?
How much more does He care for you?
Trust in the Lord with all your heart

Though all seems wrong within your life Trust in the Lord with all your heart

((April 4th, 2006))

A Mighty Beast To Plunder

Waves crash against my boat today Like many other days before I've hooked the prey I've longed after My hands so bloody and, oh, so sore Th fish is strong in mind and heart But, I am man and will prevail He taunts me with his power But, on and on, I sail He circles once and circles twice Constantly still still circling All day, all night around and 'round Not paying heed to my pain's sting Pulling to tight will break the line Giving slack will give him freedom On this sea of purgatory My batle will soon be won His strength waning now, I know His circles so small For him, the end is drawing near His flesh will feed us all In the air he jumps so high Saying his goodbyes one last time We have bonded, the fish and I Murdering him, I feel, a crime Nature exists to give us life This, my guilt, doth relieve What a mighty beast to plunder What a bounty to receive ((Inspired by Ernest Hemingway's book, 'The Old Man and the Sea'))

Danny Speicher

((October 20th, 1999))

A Poem Long Forgotten

As we stroll down the pebble path
A poem, long forgotten, enters my soul
So long I've waited for a love like yours
So long I've yearned for its grace
You bring life to my solemn being
And purpose to my once lonely future
For all my waiting and patience, true
It has paid off for I've finally found you
All this time waiting
God must have been
Keeping my love pure
For you, my lover... And my friend

((October 22nd,1999))

A Poet's Touch

If once upon a lake of god I stood and, I, a story told Not one single soul did find Peace given to a troubled mind For when I speak, instead of write It ignites no wisdom, no passion, no light For what my pen can write today Are words my lips could never say For eloquent in speech, I'm not It is words in ink, I have sought I do not wish for words to speak I am blessed with the paper I seek God has granted me a poet's touch Granted, however, it isn't much But, with this talent to touch lives With pen in hand, I'll live and strive

((August 28th, 2000))

A Prayer For America, 2017

Father, our Giver of all that is good And Creator and Sustainer of life We come humbly before you on this day And lay before you our struggles and strife

Bless our nation, though we deserve it, not Anoint us, your children, to do your work Though the road ahead may be dangerous Evil and hatred 'round each corner lurk

Embolden this, Your Church, oh Lord, to love Even while men endeavor to hate, love Whether leaders align or malign us Even if tortured, set our eyes above

And, may we, through Your courage, always love Oh, Lord, ever through Your victory, love

We do not know what the future doth hold Nor do we know the intentions of man We do not always see the path, clearly Nor know the why's, what's, or when's of Your plan

But, You see it all, beginning to end While, still, your eye remains on the sparrow So, set our feet to go about Your will Strengthen our muscles, our bone, our marrow

Lord God, grant us peace in our confusion And provide for us wisdom in our speech Make us quick to listen, slow to respond In anger may Your tranquility, reach

And, may we, through Your courage, always love Oh, Lord, ever through Your victory, love

((January 16th, 2017))

A Rush Of Cool Air

A million questions swirl about my head Wondering, pondering implications If my heart will give my mind vacation Or, this time, will logic prevail instead?

Her face clouds my thoughts each hour, each day Her greyish blue eyes and blonde locks of hair Rise before me like a rush of cool air As the worries I once had fade away

Will I find peace at the end of this quest?
Will I, at the end of this present day
Be able to, with all confidence say
I'll, forever, find shelter in her breast?

Lord knows I don't know; But, I do know this It's worth all Hell, to find that kind of bliss

((September 16th, 2010))

A Smile

Perhaps it was the mood I felt tonight Perhaps just sheer coincidence of chance Perhaps it was just an exhausted trance But, I felt a smile, my face, ignite

I don't know what all it was that you said Or if it was the words you spoke at all But, tonight, for the first time since the fall A smile came thinking of what's ahead

I don't know what might come of you and I If our paths will cross or stay steady on Friends or lovers, or a friendship long gone All I know is that a smile drew nigh

So, thank you for bringing light once again And finding where this smile's been within

((July 17th, 2008))

A Sonnet For A Fearful Heart

Life is dimmed from time to time with heartache We focus on the pain we feel inside Realizing what we have put at stake We are humbled by likely loss of pride In this humility He works His love Like only His love can work from within Sweet is His grace that rains down from above Restoring our wounds, burying our sin He shows us His love through His Holy Word Through the communion with Him in our prayers Through smiles of a loved one, or laughter heard Or the smell of rain, drifting in the air Yes, God's blessings are given everyday Oh, how they should calm our fears and dismay

((February 25th, 2005))

A Sonnet For The Sick

Why do we resort to all these harsh words?
Brothers, are we not called to be salt? Light?
To love the unlovable, dead in blight?
Why is truly loving the lost absurd?
Is this why our message now goes unheard?
Don't we see we aren't doing this quite right?
When the message we spread is out of spite...
The pathology of Earth goes uncured

Someday I think we all will be ashamed When we find the believer's real disease Wasn't recanting their faith in His name Rather that they shunned the sickest of these Concerned about being seen with the lame To give them the Key that would set them free

((December 4th, 2005))

A Sonnet Of Hope

When the grind of life is wearing me down And my heart is breaking to see your face It helps to know that where my heart is found You will always be found in that same place

Each day passes with hope for that great day When no 'good byes' will ever leave our lips And together we will enter this fray And from this fountain of life we will sip

Yet, until that day, I sit and I wait Longing to have your tiny hand in mine Sometimes I think of life's humor of fate How your far away... Always on my mind

I miss you so much when you're not here Yet, when you're gone my heart grows so fond How much fonder it is when you are near And, so I wait for that sacred bond

How special will this be if we hold on When you'll always be near... And never gone

((July 29th, 2007))

A Springtime Sonnet

When the winter blooms into springtime, bright And the birds are sweetly singing their tune We consider Your benevolent might And pray that the light doesn't fade too soon

Yet, when the nightfall does fall from above Your stars prolong the beauty of the sun Shining on to remind us of Your love And remind us Your work is never done

It is in these days of mild weather
That we find a relief from the harsh cold
One and all we all gather together
And fond memories and stories are told

At the end of winter you bless us so Blessing, indeed, your creatures here below

((February 28,2006))

A Sunset Sonnet

When the sun sets over the mansion, west And the breeze gently blows across the lake I remember what I once thought was best Thankful that turn, He didn't let me take When the peaceful sounds of nature replace The busy sounds of students, cars and such I stand in awe of God's love in this place As it reaches down for my heart to touch When nightfall comes to take away the light And the stars sing their silent songs above It humbles me that even in my blight I am given gifts of mercy and love

And, when the storm clouds come rolling on through Still I'll remember this sunset's warm hue

((February 15th, 2006))

A Year Has Passed

A year's gone by since I last heard your voice Yet, I still hear it at least once a day Whenever a certain song comes my way Oh, I wish loving you was just a choice

I didn't know what I thought would happen When a year marked this anniversary Perhaps peace, if only temporary Or a thought that might, my love's flame, dampen

But, the twelfth broke not unlike another And, yet still, a haunting figure lingered My heart begged for my opera singer How it longed even still for no other

But, alas, a year has passed without her Still I sit alone and think about her

Our love wasn't like any I'd e'er known How she had seemingly come from a dream How surreal each moment spent with her seemed 'Twas easy for me to lay my heart prone

Nights in the cinema and holding hands
When I held her, close, in my arms I knew
That there is nothing that I wouldn't do
To protect her heart, her dreams and her plans

Nighttime sky, in a place that was just ours Gently kissing and sweetly embracing While crickets nighttime voices were raising A summer song, upward to the bright stars

But, alas, a year has passed without her Still I sit alone and think about her

A promise ring, inexpensive, but bright After a brisk carriage ride to our meal Oh, how elation was hard to conceal In millions years I won't forget that night

But, the love grew cold as tragedy struck And, when my thoughts were divided in two She found it hard to believe love was true The blessing, I suppose, ran out of luck

After a month of her contemplation
She chose to end what I thought was epic
Used money as the divisive topic
Although I sought her with admiration

But, alas, a year has passed without her Still I sit alone and think about her

Still I sit alone and think about her
I dream of all that she might well become
And reminisce of days gone by, undone
Can't believe a year has passed without her

Yet, a year, indeed, has passed without her And, I, alone, still do think about her

((April 12th, 2009))

Again

Sailing on the water
You've strayed from your course again
But, the storm is coming
And, you're caught in the waves of sin
Jesus, my Lord, save me
From my sin
Please, Jesus, bring me
Back home again
Knock and He'll open
Seek and Your heart will find
Truth that will free you
And peace for a troubled mind

((November 23rd, 2000))

All I Ever

All I ever wanted was to love and be loved
To set a love story in motion in my life
To be a caring father and loving husband
To all my children and my compassionate wife

All I ever have refused to do or to be
Is a burden or a hindrance to those in my world
And I would do anything to make their lives great
Even when it left me hurt, in a corner, curled

All too often all that I wanted in this life
Has been abandoned by what I refused to be Knowledge, all-too-well, of my own imperfections
I could not lie when my scars they started to see

But, Lord, here I am, still standing alone down here Please find me someone whose heart, my scars, does not fear

((February 17th, 2017))

All That I Did Wrong

Lord knows I tried my best to do my best
In all that I did that I did with you
And, Lord knows there's plenty I never knew
Of what you dreamed when, at night, you would rest

Although, in the end, I have no regrets
If I had a chance to do it again
I, frankly, don't know where I would begin
Of notes I'd change in our little duet

Perhaps, as a man, more strongly, I'd lead Perhaps I'd give you more freedom to roam With the full faith that you would return home Million things I might very well concede

But, oh, to, once again, hear your sweet song I'd make you a list of all I did wrong

((November 22nd, 2008))

All That We Did Right

Looking back, now, on all that we once had Laughter and the tears, all that's in between Of that which lay invisible, unseen Of those secret things that made us both sad

There were many things we did very well Never once failing to say, 'I love you' Or trying our best to prove the love true And how quickly, yet logically, we fell

Grinning when the other came into sight
Trying to squeeze every bit of joy
From each moment, together, we'd enjoy
My dear, these are some the things we did right

And, though all we had ended in a fight Please, dear, remember all that we did right

((November 22nd, 2008))

All Things New

I grasp at air to find the words to say
I plunder my heart to find emotion
To aptly describe my life's devotion
To a God who makes complete each new day

A journey that has left me oft broken
A dream or two that have been left behind
Often made my eyes of faith all but blind
Often left only empty prayers spoken

Even when my heart did not believe You Even when ev'ry ounce of hope was lost All debt was paid as You burdened the cost All praise be to God who makes all things new

Even when my heart does not believe You Remind me to praise; You make all things new

((April 28th, 2010))

Alone

My heart is breaking
All I hear is silence
My soul is aching
And I am all alone
I cry out to my friends
Only apologies come
And there is no end
To my suffering

((December 10th, 2000))

Always Keep Hope

To you who are hurt and crying at night
May your desire be to be healed
May your heart be safe, and like wax, be sealed
And may your blindness, once again be sight

To you who have been cut, wounded and torn May those wounds be, again, restored to health Whether you're healed in poverty or wealth Whatever the mode, may you be reborn

Always remember to cherish your life
And care for your body, your mind, your soul
And be patient in reaching all your goals
Be resilient in wellness and in strife

Surround yourself with those who care for you And may their abilities help to restore All that made you who you were once before Let your pride die as their kindness imbues

May you rest peacefully under the wings
Of divine love and trusting in God's grace
May His presence move through you in this place
And sleep easy with the release He brings

Look for His blessings each and every day Examine events that might seem mundane Beauty exists in that which appears plain Look for moments to meditate and pray

And may you always keep hope in your heart Though it may be oft difficult to do Though it may not seem the logical view Never fail to keep hope within your heart

Amen

((June 29th, 2010))

An Ode To The Phoenix

Oh Phoenix of old, how could we forget you?
With your wings of fire and eyes all ablaze
In your stride, horrors and joys of earlier days
How awesome, how majestic is your form, so true.

Oh, there are times when your light goes dim awhile Your majesty is veiled by the sting of defeat But, never from your eyes is life fully deplete Of all creatures you know rebirth is worthwhile

So, fight on, fly high and, elevated, remind
Those who once rode proudly alongside your warpath
Of the strength and fear held in a firebird's wrath
And the hope it can spur for the best of mankind

Oh Phoenix of old, we'll remember you always And, take, with us, your flame to set our world ablaze

((November 10th, 2015))

And He Cries

All day long a smile wide on his face
And his laugh, it can be heard for miles
Each person greeted with love and with grace
Yet storms rage deep within, all the while

Burdensome would be too much of a shame So, he burrows his sadness deep within No one seems to e'en remember her name Like all have forgotten just where he's been

But, her face, it never fades from his mind And her laugh, it can be heard in his dreams While desperately he searches to find Her love as impossible as it seems

And he cries in his sleep for her to see
The love deep within that could set her free

Beer, whiskey and a water on the side The music loud and the company kind He wonders if they ever see him slide Into the deep recesses of his mind

As he thinks of times not so long ago
Back when love was new and smiles were free
And depth was something he was sure would grow
Only thing that remained was just to be

Sometimes he looks across the crowded bar And could swear that his eyes had just met hers Sometimes illusions are just what they are The lines of reality start to blur

And he cries in his sleep for her to see
The love deep within that could set her free

((March 26th, 2011))

Angry

Woke angry today with morning's new light The weight of all the injustices done And all the poor feelings under the sun Had swollen within my heart overnight

Naught have I oft kept records of the wrongs Shoveled upon my heart day after day Never paying heed to the painful way Not minding being told I don't belong

But, deeply the fire was being stoked The outwardly reserved, calm demeanor Just left a broken soul to grow meaner 'Til all goodness was suffocated, choked

Today I felt anger as I awoke For a heart, forgotten, lonely and broke

So long I've been told I'm not good enough For the one thing I have wanted the most That sweet love having hovered once so close But getting gone when the getting got tough

" You're too poor, too fat, too bald or too sweet " Those being the daggers to kill my hope
Those, the threads used on my hangman's rope
But, today, those words fuel an intense heat

Money only buys man's selfish sorrow

Appearance fades with dimming of the night

What's wrong with you that you don't love what's right?

Poor, fat, bald, sweet... Leaves me no tomorrow.

Today I felt anger as I awoke For a heart, forgotten, lonely and broke

Anniversary

Here's to one year... One year that should have been With all the flowers and poems and such Oh, what a wonderful celebration Because we would have made it through so much

Here's to the year, in part, that we did have The history of memories and laughs And, all the struggles that made us stronger I write this for us on our dreams' behalf

Happy anniversary to what was
The 'what ifs' and 'could have beens', let them die
Don't relegate a great relationship
To nevermore futures of 'you and I'

Remember the good times that we both had Don't have regrets of those things that were bad Don't believe for a moment I am mad So, don't look back on those months and be sad

Some things in life are meant to be lasting Others are to touch our hearts and move on I thought our love was to be forever But, how blessed am I for the 'us' foregone?

((May 12th, 2008))

Another New Year

Another New Year's Eve, now come and gone Another New Year began all alone No one to kiss or to call on the phone No one to load my hopes and dreams upon

Perhaps she was correct so long ago Perhaps I'm not worth the smiles she gave Maybe I'll take poverty to the grave Maybe it's best she went to and not fro

I'm just a man seeking something greater Than the life that I have long been living Won't gain wealth by sacrificing giving Though selfishness might well help me later

Another New Year not settl'ing for less Than distant dreams of my heart's happiness

((January 1st, 2010))

Apart

Often I wondered how the tale would end In suburbia with white picket fences Or city lights exciting the senses But, being apart I can't comprehend

Yet, here I am, with a heart on the mend Or a heart that I hope will someday heal From the pain and agony it now feels Being apart I just can't comprehend

Yet, what more could I possibly contend? I can't make you fall in love again, dear No matter how truly my heart's sincere Being apart I just can't comprehend

Here I stand, my prayers, for you, still extend Yet still, apart, I just can't comprehend

((April 26th, 2008))

Autumn Prayer

Staring out the window at leaves of red and gold Gusts of wind spin them in a mix of rustic hue Contrasting clouds, grey, above, overlap and fold As the sun sets, bidding the long, cold day adieu

All of the trees are bare; and dying is the grass
The sun rises early and days quickly pass by
The scorching heat of the summer winds, gone at last
Too quickly, the frosty bite of winter draws nigh

Life moves slower and memories flood, deep, the heart One can look and find no hope in these days of grey Work seems harder and gains seem few and far apart Hope dwindling further away, day after day

Lord, Giver of Life: for your people please provide Comforter, Counselor: please heal these hurts inside Savior, Messiah: from me, your grace, don't divide Almighty God, Creator: humbly we abide

For, in these times of great desperation and fear It is then, beyond all other times, You draw near

((November 10th, 2006))

Awesome Beauty

When the golden sunset Sets over the amber hills And when the moon shines bright And all the world stands still There is beauty, awesome beauty God took the dust and formed a man He paints each sunrise with His hand He took all the love within His heart And gave us beauty from the start There's beauty, awesome beauty When the storm clouds come And thunder rolls When skies are dark And it hardens the soul There's beauty, awesome beauty God took all the love within His heart And gave us beauty from the start There's beauty, awesome beauty Through every age There is a call To admire the creation He gave us all It is beauty, awesome beauty See the beauty, hear the call Enjoy the life He gave us all God took the love in His heart And gave us beauty from the start There's beauty, awesome beauty

((May 17th, 2000))

Be Assured

Been a while since I last saw your face Longer still since I've felt your hand in mine Or heard a sweet, loving voice on the line What we had is now gone without a trace

It must seem like I've forgotten it all And that each memory has been erased And, life with you, is a dream I don't chase But, really, it's just painful, now, to call

To call and know that your heart doesn't feel The same way mine feels each and every day And know, for a moment, you felt that way Not truly knowing what set us off keel

But, dear, let your heart be assured and know That, to this day, my heart's yet to let go

((March 13th, 2011))

Be My Sight

I see a snapshot and I read the words Hear the voice speak at the end of the line Longing for just a little more face time Wishing I could fly freely like the birds

See eyes on a page looking back at mine Trusting, hoping I might be something more Unsure I'd come close to the me before Looking for a signal, purely divine

I've failed and I've hurt those I've loved before Tears I'm responsible for on their cheek Eyes clinched so tightly, not wanting to peek To see the tears I'll weep forevermore

Can I find strength to fight this present fight Lord, be my vision... Oh, Lord, be my sight

((July 6th, 2010))

Be Still

The wind picked up from the north As the clouds began to form The men in the boat grew weary Of the impending storm The boat shook from the waves And tears filled their eyes They called out to Jesus And He looked up to the skies Peace, be still The winds won't blow that long Peace, be still I can right any wrong All nature bows down to me So, surrender all your fear So, peace, my son... Be still He had strayed from those he loved He had lost all of his hope The road seemed long and winding Life seemed so hard to cope No prayers were made to God Until that night at home When he fell onto his knees And asked for God, alone Peace, be still The winds won't blow that long Peace, be still I can right any wrong All nature bows down to me So, surrender all your fear So, peace, my son... Be still

((November 18th, 2000))

Beams

What happens when my support beams all fail One by one they each crumble before me And take with them the structures of my life The rooms of my life that they once upheld

When the sunset of life comes upon me Will I just be a pile of rubble The vast archeological ruins Of a city that once championed love

A shell of my heart is what I will have When the last of four beams rot and give way Will I feel an immeasurable pain Or just numb from my soul's demolition

Soon that day comes unless new beams are built And, oh how I fear that it will come soon But, the beams are old and faulty inside Though once, like the rest, before, they stood strong

Free, I will be, from careful maintenance Not beholden to anything of worth For all that is worthwhile will be gone No need to stay around here anymore

So, if I cannot maintain these pillars And if the mansion falls as I assume Then I'll have to choose to lie on what was Or go, early, toward what is to be

((August 19th, 2017))

Beautiful And Free

If you love something you must let it go For if that love was truly meant to be It will come back after being set free It's a quote and concept that we all know

When you asked to move on, I set you free Not wanting to prolong your hurt or pain Not wanting to, your happiness, restrain I did so, though, I wanted you with me

I let you go to fly beautiful and free Not wanting to fight or embattle you Wanting your scars to be shallow and few Knowing, you, I might never again see

I let you go to fly beautiful and free Knowing, you, I might never again see

((January 13th, 2009))

Beautiful Mystery

I know a girl and, likewise, she knows me And she is one beautiful mystery She runs and she hides for days at a time Her life forms an intricate paradigm

People ask why I care for her so much But, they don't know the power of her touch One embrace, one unplanned brush of her hand Grants me all of the strength I need to stand

And, then she speaks, she laughs, and she smiles And then my heart grows and swells for miles In that moment, all she is quickly appears I lose my self-doubt, she loses her fears

If I never understand all her ways

Just trying would give me joy all my days

((May 5th, 2017))

Beautiful Night

Beautiful night, how the stars, they so clearly shine
And the joyful moon how it mirrors back my smile
Oh, beautiful night, you're good to a heart like mine
Oh, beautiful night, you've made this long road worthwhile

Beautiful night, glow of the city behind me Smile, I, with my heart at peace and my mind at ease Oh, beautiful night, tranquility sets me free Oh, beautiful night, I dream of moments like these

Beautiful night and all seems so right with the world Questions come later; decisions, future doth hold Oh, beautiful night, for now I watch the sky twirl Oh, beautiful night, I wait for light to behold

Yet, in the stillness of evening I dream these dreams That the beauty of this night is all that it seems

Belle

Just today I heard you were doing well
That you love your job and you love your life
Not one instance of hurt, nor bit of strife
And I caught myself happy for you, Belle

Often I pray for you to live your dreams
And think of the greatness you might achieve
I think of all the things that I believed
Knowing that one day, on a stage, you'd beam

I wish I could let you know how I feel And, I wish I could still encourage you Somehow feel the hug that's long overdue And I'm praying that you'll live your ideals

But, today I heard you were doing well And found myself so happy for you, Belle

((June 4th, 2008))

Benji

I've heard those who mourn will be comforted And, Lord, I am praying that verse holds true Because I am in need of some comfort Losing friends isn't easy to go through

And, though I know I'll see him once again
On a mountainside grander than those here
My heart still mourns and still needs Your comfort
I still need You to wipe away my tears

Funny, it doesn't seem so long ago
That your laugh brightened a community
And, your smile made any day better
Now, it brightly warms all eternity

And, though I know I'll see him once again
On a mountainside grander than those here
My heart still mourns and still needs Your comfort
I still need You to wipe away my tears

It's hard to say goodbye to friends so soon I wish I could have come to know you more I know this wasn't the last chance I'll get I'll come meet you on that eternal shore

And, though I know I'll see him once again
On a mountainside grander than those here
My heart still mourns and still needs Your comfort
I still need You to wipe away my tears

((Dedicated to a friend of all, Benji Hawk, who we miss dearly))

((December 11th, 2007))

Between Now And Eternity

Stuck between now and eternity's shore
Pursuing a call, praying I heard right
Hurting from work, but, somehow, wanting more
Wishing I'd find a wink of sleep at night

Oh, how life is complicated right now Wanting to be who God called me to be Not knowing just what or exactly how But, I fight for hope, I fight to be free

And relationships they come and they go Some, longer than others, stay by your side But, when their departure just isn't known It's tough to know just how much to confide

Though I'm not alone, I'm lonely inside I feel I'm throwing myself on the sword Not knowing if work is my hope or pride Time is a luxury I can't afford

Stuck between now and eternity's shore
God grant peace in my tumultuous heart
Even though now, my own voice I abhor
Give me Your courage, Your words, to impart

Beyond

Somewhere beyond these sad, overcast skies There is beauty that is happening now Stars, bright shining and twinkling above With some stooping to earth to take a bow

Somewhere beyond these sad, overcast skies He's giving a show, amazing to see And, though we're here now, watching and waiting Someday we'll see that grand show, you and me

Somewhere beyond these sad, overcast skies There's a miracle happening above As the angels rejoice and heaven shouts Of the Father's great, omnipresent love

Somewhere beyond these sad, overcast skies There is hope for a tommorow so bright So, smile and know it's not far away When, hallelujah, we, too, see the light

((December 13th, 2006))

Bittersweet Release

Clouds roll in, black, full of desperation Slowly been rolling in for quite some time A dropp of memories here and then there Drizzle reminding the heart, life's not fair

The clouds looked ominous and bleak above The droplets fell like anvils on the soul But, as the heavens opened the floodgates There was a bittersweet release of fate

For all the things that once were striven for Were suddenly washed away in the flood And all those big dreams that once were so near Beneath the storms gale, they soon dissappeared

One could be angry at such a sad plight And one could sadly lament of this pain But, odd enough, a bittersweet release Has entered and granted this lonely peace

((February 5th, 2007))

Blessed And Amazed

A year of hopes and dreams and worn-out prayers With no indication that they'd been heard All the memories and familiar words And lonliness made sleepless nights not rare

Oh, these dreams, be they waking or asleep Made that sweet face seem not so far away So oft that kind voice would whisper and say 'Come and find me, don't let me slip too deep.'

So, if I'd had the choice, I'd dream all day I'd just listen to that voice speak softly And I'd see that smile flash wildly And stand, mezmerized, by all of her ways

But, now all these dreams come true before me And that sweet voice is sweeter than before Her heart beats for me each day more and more All this is more than I dreamed it could be

And, all I can feel is blessed and amazed As I look upon her beautiful gaze

Born But A Little Child

He who spoke the world into creation
He was born but a little child
With love so meek and mild
His birth brought the world a new elation
Was born to die to save all the nations
He was born but a little child
With a precious glowing smile
Was to become the church's foundation
He was born but a little child
To reclaim the fallen world for His own
He was born but a little child
He came that true love, through Him, could be known
He was born but a little child
To take on our sins, and for them atone

((May 31st, 2003))

Bright And New Day

Yesterday is gone, never to return
And tomorrow is approaching quickly
Don't forget to enjoy life and live free
Because this life will soon be a page turned

Gone are those long days of sadness and tears With memories and nostalgia wrenching Wrenching emotions and your heart clenching Here's to no fears and far happier years

Welcome to this bright and new day, my friends Where assurance is ours of joy and peace Brought forth by a God whose love doesn't cease If we grasp it we'll know it never ends

Welcome to this bright and new day, my friends If we will grasp His love, it never ends

((December 31st,2008))

Brighter Fate

The sun now descending
The moon draws close by Another day is over
And brings me to a sigh
Where does all the time go
What comes of all the years
A life of great hopes and dreams
Has rendered naught but tears
The peace has been buried
Near future showing hate
But times, they are changing
Bringing hope of a brighter fate

((January 24th,1997))

Brightest Of Days To Darkest Of Nights

The sun shone for a time on hope so pure
As the rays danced upon those daydreams clear
All was right, with not a cloud in the sky
Together we basked in that day so dear

Oh, why do the brightest days have to end So often preceding the darkest nights How we long to diligently defend That which seems, to us, entirely right Why do brightest days fade to darkest nights?

The clouds rolled in that September evening And all that was known was lost in the haze As what was real was distorted by pain And all we longed for were those sunny days

Oh, why do the brightest days have to end
So often preceding the darkest nights
How we long to diligently defend
That which seems, to us, entirely right
Why do brightest days fade to darkest nights?

Pain seared the marrow, intolerable
As horizon set that innocent sun
All that came easy, now was difficult
And those plans that we made were now undone

Oh, why do the brightest days have to end So often preceding the darkest nights How we long to diligently defend That which seems, to us, entirely right Why do brightest days fade to darkest nights?

Perhaps I am the one to light this flame
And give light to that which brings so much charm
Perhaps if the dark saw what shone each day
Maybe then, to light, he would do no harm

Fighting darkness always carries a price

Lord, give me strength and Your constant advice Direct my steps as I carry this light
Help me not fade in the stillness of night
Help me speak wisdom into the cold air
So when he hears, he will know you are there
Let the words I speak be Your words, not mine
In this night, I'll need words that are Thine
Always stay near me and never be far
Always direct me by light of the stars
For, this light I bring is more dear to me
Than any other that will ever be

Oh, why do the brightest days have to end So often preceding the darkest nights How we long to diligently defend That which seems, to us, entirely right Why do brightest days fade to darkest nights?

Do these brightest days really have to end?

Do they always precede those dark, dark nights?

Perhaps today I'll finally defend

That which I know is entirely right

Perhaps today won't fade to dark, dark night

Broken

A broken heart is a broken spirit It takes joy and humbles the soul It feels as if a knife delves deep inside And creates a never-ending hole Some say pride comes before a fall And pride is the danger to fight Some say a broken heart could do you well But, I cannot see the light I've had many loves that haven't loved me back I've seen many hearts come and go Some say goodbye and leave me alone Others keep me to toss to and fro So, where are all the good girls, you ask Where, oh where, could they be They are in the arms of those who hate Not willing to commit to me I've seen so many people hurt From the first day I was born You would think I would know the pain But, it's my ignorance, keeping me forlorn So, here lays my heart, my broken spirit Crushed, once again, by the one I love So, once again I pray to God To send me someone from above

((May 22nd, 2000))

Called

Pain, like an anvil, heavy on my heart Stress, like a vice, clamps tight upon my head Wondering if I heard it correctly Or if I've, by my passion, been misled

I look upon the darkening sunset Across that stoic, storied hill of lost souls The weight of their fate lay on my shoulders Their sin, upon my conscience, like hot coals

Tip-toeing that fine line is a hard task
Between premature eagerness and sloth
I'm the guard on this city's watchtower
But, when is best to light that fuel-soaked cloth?

So, I stand watch and I wait for a sign As when to light the torch and blow the horn 'Till then I sit in anticipation Sleepless, eager, tired... never forlorn

For, my Lord called me here for a reason So I rejoice in this cold, hard season

((October 23rd,2006))

Carnival Blues

No different from any other year
The carousel goes around and around
And miles away you can hear its sound
But, one thing is different, you're not here

The smell of kettle corn and funnel cakes
The carney voices vying for a buck
Calling out to all fools to test their luck
But, the blues within I just can't mistake

A year ago we rode the ferris wheel Sat in a shelter in the humid air Catching one another's eyes in a stare Talking of a future and what we'd feel

Another familiar place I saw you And, yet another night of feeling blue

Chad, Dan And Stan

There were birds in the air over there
Flying in the sun's glare, unaware
The farmer's son and his gun
Plans to shoot one just for fun
And the muzzle's blare did cause despair

All the birds fought to dodge the hot shot
Not to be caught and stuck in a pot
The young son cried, teary-eyed
Wanting their hides to be fried
But, failed at his plot to blot the lot

The boy, Chad, went home to his dad, sad Sure his dad would be mad at the lad But, he ran, his old man, Stan His brother Dan had plan And, they were very glad that Dan had

So, they went to the pretty city
In their truck, Itty-Bitty Gritty
And they prowled around for foul
Passed owls who started to growl
And singing ditties at six fifty

For at six fifty they found Nifty
Nifty told them where to go, thrifty
So the three found KFC
And agreed in jubilee
That this was thrifty and thanked Nifty

So, in the end, Chad, Dan and, dad, Stan Went home and tomorrow's plan began They'd drive down into downtown And look 'round for food, renown Never again planned to hunt or tan

((Loopy Limericks for Little Lads))

((October 13th, 2008))

Cleft For Me

Look to the east, the sunrise is rising Morning is breaking on the horizon A new day's come and the light is blinding Been waiting so long, but now I'm finding

That all my dreams, my hopes and desires Were swept up in His consuming fire And I find that all that once I had thought Was worthwhile, had been left out to rot

Yet, I remain, ever clinging to One Who is as constant as the rising sun Though I oft fear what tomorrow may bring If I'm being truthful, my heart will sing

Oh, Rock of Ages, ever cleft for me Won't You, forever, let me hide in Thee

And, answers He, in compassionate tones Reminding me that I'm never alone Gently guiding me and making me whole He gives me vision and restores my soul

I learn to be confident once again
And deny myself and reject new sin
Oh, never to boast in my newfound strength
I boast in His grace and His love's great length

It stretched to my fears when I was afraid And, though I owed a debt, the debt it paid Blood-infused sweat and tears in the garden Didn't keep Him from granting my pardon

The water and blood from His side that flowed Allowed nail-pierced hands to carry my load

Waking or sleeping, I find my delight
In the same man who gave the blind man sight
I find my joy in the hope that He brings

So, now my feet dance and now my voice sings

Oh Lord, each day that I rise from my bed
May I have your thoughts running through my head
And every night when I shut my eyes
May I dream and ponder only Your prize

So warped and twisted and darkened inside Only by your grace, Lord, can I abide Never in my own strength can I succeed In Your providence I find what I need

Lord, my sinful heart cries out for Your cure Each day mold me anew and make me pure

((October 8th, 2010))

Cling To Love

Oh, Muse, long ago, you graced this doorway
Or, was it so long ago you were here?
Can't remember your voice so well, oh Muse
But, at night, while dreaming, your voice rings clear

Oh, Muse, once you had my heart in your hand Inspire or crush any time you chose So long since I've seen your beautiful face Still I see it clearly, when my eyes close

Oh, Muse, you took my heart for a season Though I gave it to you for a lifetime I sat at your feet and basked in your glow As long as you'd grant your heart to touch mine

Oh, Muse, don't abandon the love you know And cling to love, oh Muse... Don't let love go

Oh, Muse, you departed on a stormcloud Late in Springtime you left without a trace To this day I watch you from a distance And fondly think of your tender embrace

Oh, Muse, you've chosen another to love
I pray that this time you'll let that love grow
No obstacle, either real or perceived
Will avert love's supernatural flow

Oh, Muse love deeply, think freely, live life And cling to love, oh Muse... Don't let love go Believe in the power of miracles Chase every dream that you've ever known

Oh, Muse, don't abandon the love you know And cling to love, oh Muse... Don't let love go

((February 8th, 2010))

Columbine Remembered

The alarm clock rings

Another day starts

Sleep fills her eyes

But, joy fills her heart

No fear was present

When she left home that day

She was still in study

When the bullets were sprayed

They never expected

The pain on that day

They never predicted

The price they would pay

They died as victors

Alive within glory

They died as heroes

Proclaiming a story

Still they live on

The doors flew open

Announcing their reign

How could no one have seen

Their hurt, their pain

We stand here mourning

A year to the day

And still is their memory

And it will, forever, stay

They died as victors

Alive within glory

They died as heroes

Proclaiming a story

Still they live on

Their lives weren't in vain

Their faces aren't gone for good

Their stories encourage us through pain

And our courage is found in their blood

They still live on

((April 20th, 2000))

Come And Follow Me

"The harvest is plenty, workers are few"
And He said, "Come and follow me"
"And, through me, you will help them see"
Peter was out fishing with Andrew
The brothers of thunder were fishing too
And He said, "Come and follow me"
"And fishers of men, you will be"
Then, a tax collector came into view
And He said, "Come and follow me"
No matter what you may have done before
He still says, "Come and follow me"
He calls you to a life of so much more
He cries out, "Come and follow me"
And we follow Him, for Him we adore

((May 31st, 2003))

Crimson Trails

(The third, and final, poem in the series entitled 'Sonnets for a Savior')

Jesus, my Lord, was beaten and was mocked
And His blood formed a crimson trail
Though His body was weak and frail
He fell as His legs violently locked
And those who once followed Him watched in shock
As He walked down the crimson trail
Though His face was quite light and pale
He now drug His cross to the skull's dark rock
And His tears met the crimson trail
He died so that we might live forever
For us he walked the crimson trail
His promise of love will fail us never
We now follow the crimson trail
And His love for us will not be severed

((May 31st, 2003))

Dagger

God, I feel it again... uncertainty
That cauderizing dagger to my heart
The burning, hot steel of anger and fear
Brutal... tearing my soul slowly apart

I called to You in my hour of doubt
When others failed, I trusted You, alone
I cried out to You when I had been crushed
And, in that moment, Your grace brightly shone

But, each new day brings a heart of sadness Longing for those simpler days as a child Each night's dreams bring images full of fear With each vision my spirit is reviled

I come to You, again, praying for peace Because, alone, this heart can't take much more My sorrow, it exceeds my joy today These deepest fears are too strong to ignore

Lord, I'm needing a hug from my Father And an arm around my shoulder to guide All I want is to lay down... quit the race And there's no friend in whom I can confide

Dark Night

Hello again, my dearest friend, my child It is good to see you again at home I have watched you wandering the world I have watched you feel very much alone

You've come back home with tears in your eyes Another black dusk has darkened your sight You saw the light on and Me standing there And came in, weeping, giving up the fight

But, if you could only see what I see From this window's view far above But, if you could only see what I see Through these eyes of pure, perfect love If you could just see what I see Within your heart... You would see Me

The world has crushed your spirit and your dream But, deep within, you still feel the fire If only you could find the strength to go Purpose could once again be your desire

But, if you could only see what I see From this window's view far above But, if you could only see what I see Through these eyes of pure, perfect love If you could just see what I see Within your heart... You would see Me

Each time through the fire, each time through the flame Each flaw smoothed, each impurity removed Each defect, weakness, tested and strenghtened Each will, in the end, worth and value prove

So, when the darkness quickly drapes the sky Try to invision, then, what my eyes see As your heart is tested by the bleak night And, in that darkest moment, you'll see Me

Dawn

Lord, hear my cry at the dawn of the sun It is to You I want to turn It seems my life is now coming undone And now, Your love is what I yearn Lord, so often I've turned away from You I thank You for your loving grace No other's love is so perfect and true I will forever seek Your face Lord, I have now reached my darkest hour Because, from Your mercy, I've strayed I find myself now with weakening power And all of my dreams slowly fade Lord, take those broken dreams that I once had And throw them in the blazing fire Destroying my will, with Your will to add Your purpose is my desire Lord, hear my cry at the set of the day When night slowly creeps up again So, lead me and guide me is what I pray And let my new life now begin

((March 14,2003))

Dear You

Dear You, to whoever that you might be
I just wanted to write to let you know
That I'm still waiting 'round for you to show
To see those eyes I've been longing to see

Dear You, I've been waiting for you so long
At times it seems as though I'll never find
You, that's been in my dreams and on my mind
So, I sit and wait and I write this song

Dear You, I've been mistaken once before Through similar traits of another love Apparently not you that I dream of But, I'll wait for you, as I, you, wait for

Oh, love I had for the mistaken girl How much more I'll have for that hidden pearl

Dear You, I am preparing, now, for you
Oh, my dear, I wish I'd started before
Oh, my love, I wish, by now, I had more
But, please don't view this blindness, now, askew

Dear You, wait for me as I build for us
A life in which you can easily live
And security I can surely give I'm impatient, sweetheart, I must confess

Dear You, as I close this letter to you To you, my girl, whoever you might be I pray you'll stay pure and looking for me And, I, myself, will remain pure and true

Dear You, the you I'm looking for out there Each morning, for you, I will pray a prayer

((September 25th, 2008))

Did You Know I Pray For You?

Did you know I pray for you in the morning?
As the dew wicks away from the rose petals
Or when Winter snow on evergreens settle
Even as Spring storms, they come without warning
Markedly, then, I pray for you that morning
When Summer burns so hot it could melt metal
And, in the Fall, when flowers lose their petals
My dear, I do pray for you in the morning

Did you know I pray for you during noontime?
And think of you fondly and wish you the best
And when the church bells in the evening do chime
Did you know that I pray for you to be blest?
Throughout the day I pray for you many times
And, at night, I pray that God might give you rest

Divine

To You who has made me and made me glad Praises and glory and honor to You To the Sustainer of all that is true Gratitude for all You've given, I've had

Though the darkness comes and stays for a while Your Word lights the path within the twilight Giving me sight when there should be no sight Shining beyond mile after mile

And when sunlight breaks the eastern skyline And the birds are singing their morning song And the heavens and earth singing along Joyful that through it all You were divine

Oh, Lord, Maker of every perfect thing You have taught this once-saddened heart to sing

((November 8th, 2008))

Do Not Fear

You hear the thunder rolling
It seems the sun has faded away
You've lost all hope for true love
You can't see the break of day
Sometimes it seems hard to live
So hard to move on from here
But, don't lose your faith
Because God's grace is near
Do not fear
God is with you
The night is nearly over
Day is is nearly here

((November 2nd, 1999))

Do You Ever Think Fondly Of Me?

Do you wake in the middle of the night Crying, uncontrollably, desperately? Do you cry like I cry within the night? Oh, do you ever think fondly of me?

Do you hope, at times, this wasn't really true Begging God for one more chance at this love? Do you pray like I pray it wasn't true? Oh, do you ever think fondly of me?

Do you ever dream dreams of days gone by Of past memories shared, while your heart breaks? Does your heart break like mine for days gone by? Oh, do you ever think fondly of me?

Do you ever think what dreams may have come Had we made it past this last obstacle?
Do you ever think like I think... dreams to come?
Oh, do you ever think fondly of me?

Do you ever think fondly of me, dear?
Wondering what I'm doing now and then?
Do your thoughts hangup and cause your eyes tears
When you sit and think and ponder on when

Once upon a winter's evening, so cold We sat cuddled in each other's embrace Do you ever think of that evening, so cold? Oh, do you ever think fondly of me?

Don'T Fear The Dream

Don't fear the dream, children, as I once did Don't fear the dream in the stillness of night Follow that call, given in the darkness For it will lead you into that bright light

Don't fear the emotions that well within Don't fear the emotions as the tears fall Follow your conscience, speaking deep inside For life with no heart, is no life at all

Don't fear the power that you've been given Don't fear the power when your moment comes Follow the Giver who gives you your strength For there's reason you are who you've become

Don't fear the dream, so bold, as I once did Don't fear the dream or the visions by night Follow that call, as given by your King For reward awaits those who fear, yet fight

And, even when your struggle seems hopeless And, even when your heart begins to fail Don't fear the impending evil ahead For if He is with you, you will prevail

((January 19th, 2006))

Don'T Play Me Love Songs

Don't play me love songs filled with naive views on love Can't you see this heart breaking? Can't you hear it cry? Please don't play those sweet, old love songs; Please don't ask why I guess this love inside I don't want to think of

Don't play me sad songs filled with harmonious woe Don't you know I know how to be sad already? Please don't play sad songs for this heart, so unsteady My eyes have already cried far more than you know

Play for me, instead, a song filled with hope and dreams Play me songs that speak of tomorrow, not today Reminding me this pain won't always come my way Make me feel that life isn't as hard as it seems

Don't play love songs, I don't want to hear of their bliss Play me songs, instead, that give me hope of her kiss

((March 10th, 2008))

Dreams

Day after day I try and find peace in the midst of madness In the midst of sorrow and tragedy and poverty I look to the sky looking for an answer, finding none Finding only an ethereal hope

Lackluster life with daily monotony
Only finds my heart longing for something more
Longing for the life I once had Longing for an adventure, longing for love

Yet, here I sink in mire and mud Kicking to gain footing, sinking slowly in my effort Reaching for a branch that used to seem so near Seems further away, no longer at my fingertips

For so long I have wanted to rise above
Rise above real life to something of my dreams
Dreams of a love and a life of living not for me
Being a part of a partnership not floundered even by death

One shining moment I grasped a hold of that dream Held it in my arms as night spun night to day But, alas, I grasped too tightly and the dream fled from me And I was left alone, alone in this sad reality

Still at night I dream, with vivid imagery
Of a new day and a new life and a new love just for me
I see the world as it should be, peaceful and serene
And I wonder if I'll ever see a day that shines so bright

I dream of understanding for the world's diversity Brother and sister, hand in hand, across the globe I see Black and white and every tan shade in between Living together, loving each other, in perfect harmony

Yet, morning breaks and, again I realize What I have realized each day of my life That the world is mired by a curse of hate Not easily cured with immediacy So, I simply do my part in changing the world around me
By loving and having compassion on those who enter my life that day
Keeping my eyes open for the love that might come
And maintaining faith that my God, my Savior, will deliver His dreams for me

((December 11th, 2009))

Dreams Of Love

Cars speed by, below the city skyline
People walk by and yet they cannot see
The hopes and the dreams waking inside me
As I work and I strive to make them mine

And the street lamps, they act as stars above
The heavens never sparkle on this street
And the rhythm never loses its beat
But, despite the noise I think upon love

Oh, love, the dream that surpasses all dreams Love, that had nurtured me, then broken me Love, that will not let my soul simply be Will it truly remain as it now seems

Dreams, oh dreams; and dreams of love just for me They play out within where no one can see

((September 17th, 2010))

Dreams Restored

'What's the use', I said to myself, once, as I sat under a tree, alone For there were many problems I faced and sins which needed to be atoned So, sat there, I, with clouded emotions and a sad look upon my face Never wanting to lift my head, instead, sit there, alone, in my disgrace

Fear... What a horrible thing when it paralyzes youth seeking their dreams If only they would look beyond reality... It isn't all it seems But, pressures come and slowly crush that vision and curse the hope deep within Until all that remain are shells of dreamers and thoughts of what might have been

Take heart! All who have lost your way, for those aspirations can be restored Not just restored, brothers and sisters... No, they can be deeper than before On the wings of passion and with the strength of experience these take flight In stark contrast they blaze on, bright and beautiful, against the cold, dark night

In those moments, lived on for as long as you'll carry the torch, you then see Fear you had wasn't of failure, but fear of what you might be called to be But, fear not, at that time, for it is then that you'll feel His hand holding yours He'll never leave you nor forsake you, even if you go to distant shores

And, I pray that you, being rooted and established as His true beloved May have power to grasp how wide, how long, how high and how deep is His love That you may know that this irrational love surpasses the knowledge of man May you be filled to all the fullness of God, as you on truth, solid, stand

(September 28th, 2007)

Dreary

Dreary Monday afternoon
Wishin' I could see you soon, clearly
Sadly, thinking of our days gone by Wonderin' the reason why, madly

It wasn't 'cause I wanted to
But, here I am not holding you, so dearly
So dreary
Darlin', if I said I wanted to Spend my life lovin' you
Wantin' wouldn't help you to Be near me

Dreary Monday afternoon
Wonderin' if you'll ever never fear me
Dreamin' of what once we had
But, dreamin' only drives me mad

It wasn't 'cause I wanted to
But, here I am not holding you, so dearly
So dreary
Darlin', if I sang this song
Even if you've done me wrong
Would you please come along
And be near me

Dreary Monday afternoon
Hopin' you might find this tune and hear me
Just lovin' you and you alone
Oh, darlin', please just dial the phone

Say three words, my dear, and free me On this Monday afternoon... So dreary

((July 20th, 2009))

Empty Promises

Sometimes I forget that you and I ever were Your name rings empty like a reference from a dream Reference to times shared leave memories unsure At times, you're a shadow, less real than once you seemed

But, then there are times when it all comes back to me All the drugs and the whiskey wear thin in my blood And my eyes turn and your face and body they see The nostalgic tragedy, to my heart, doth flood

Damn you for lying to me about loving me
Damn the memory of those words within my mind
Damn all your promises flowing so flippantly
Damn the life I spent on you, damn all of that time

Sometimes I forget you and I ever were
That is what now constitutes the "good times" for me
True happiness now relegated to a blur
Damn your empty promises, giv'n so flippantly

((May 27th, 2013))

Endless Skies Of Blue

Blue eyes shining, haunting my dreams
I wake to find them with me even still Blue eyes, to shake them is harder than it seems Sometimes I wonder if the memory can kill

Slice through my soul like a knife
The two oceans sweeping me up like sand
Washed about this random, haphazard life
Not knowing if the next tide I can withstand

Three hundred and some odd days
Seems like forever since they've last seen me
Yet I still see them in so many ways
Nothing from their gaze seems to set me free

Life rolls on with or without them finding me Whether I want it to move forward or not I wonder if my hazel stare she ever sees But, I would bet that me, she's all but forgot

So I will dream of those endless skies of blue That I could look upon like the night sky All too oft dripping gently like the morning dew And all too likely, will do so 'till I die

((February 19th, 2013))

Equilibrium

The fog lifts beyond the hazed horizon
Morning illuminates the darkest night
And the fears I have now begin to fade
My faith returns that things will be alright

In my soul worry and fret lingers, still But, God is replacing mistrust with trust Realization... life would be lonely If I believed no one... So, I must

Thoughts of friends rallying in prayer for me
Has kept this frail heart beating through the strife
And memories of life, love and laughter
Have helped me to keep perspective on life

Happiness is simply an illusion
Which no one can, alone, hope to attain
But, joy is fruit of a spirit that trusts
And, when trusting God, that fruit will remain

So, happiness, I do not have within But, equilibrium I've found through joy Fear, bit by bit, being replaced with trust And, God, His grace, He lovingly deploys

I'll find joy in life, with God in control Even when darkest nights, upon me, fall I know I can rely on my Savior To be my Rock, Shelter... My All in All

Era Of Tears

In the silent darkness I sit and ponder Your plan Where You are taking me And where exactly I stand I wonder about my future And, I reminisce about my past I think about the joys I've had And how they didn't last You are the One Strong Fortress That I can count on through it all My rock of my foundation of faith That still stands so firm and tall But, still I hurt and still I cry I suffer through this life It seems my pain will never end And all I see is endless strife So, Lord help me through This bleak era of tears Clear me of my anger And hold me above my fears Give me strength to find hope And hope to find love And let my light shine above all Until I rise to You, above

((April 12th, 2001))

Ever Again

Do you remember late night talks And innocence maintained And a passion, insane And moonlight campus walks?

Do you remember the romance And finding love And praising God above And your teaching me to dance?

Do you remember nights together And locking eyes And sad goodbyes And, walking in winter weather?

Do you remember fake fights
And silly jokes
And gentle strokes
And things whispered only at night?

Do you remember a night in the city And the carriage ride And me by your side And you looking so pretty?

Do you remember us And all that we stood for And all we endured Do you remember us?

Do you remember what ended our run Can you tell me how Love could blossom then, but not now Do you remember what ended our run?

Will I feel love like that ever again
With innocence and naive trust
In a love not turning to dust
Will I feel love like that ever again?

Will I feel love like that ever again?

((September 1st,2009))

Everything That You Are

It isn't the waves of the lake Nor is it the rush of the wind It isn't the fresh smell of the leaves That helps my heart soften, my friend It's never been the rest or the sleep It's not the dreams I often dream It isn't the endless, sapphire sky That sets my hardened soul free No, it's the sound of your voice It's the touch of your skin That takes me past all my fears To a place that I've never been It is your laugh and your smile It is your dreams, it is your smile It is everything that you are That heals this heart that is scarred When my life seems like a busy mess When it seems it will never slow down It isn't just the music that calms It's the feeling of having you around Or, when I've had one of those days Where nothing seems to go right All it takes is the thought of your face That keeps me relaxed at night It's the sound of your voice It's the touch of your skin That takes me past all my fears To a place that I've never been It is your laugh and your smile It is your dreams, it is your smile It is everything that you are That heals this heart that is scarred

((August 1st,2000))

Family Restored

Once, while walking down an old beaten path Pondering a family once bestowed But, once, a cursed word incurred their wrath So, lonely, strode I upon that rough road

Yet in the midst of the darkest of nights
Sat, above the cloudy heavens, I Am
Who came to earth to take on hurts like these
To bear them as our sacrificial Lamb

Time went on and human hope soon faded Of ever regaining what I had lost How quickly humankind becomes jaded When upon life's rocky roads we are tossed

Yet in the midst of the darkest of nights
Sat, above the cloudy heavens, I Am
Who came to earth to take on hurts like these
To bear them as our sacrificial Lamb

But, the cancer remained under the skin Faith in forgiveness, silently killing Forgotten, yet growing deeper within Needing mankind's forgiveness, God willing

And, even when the hurt had been repressed Still, at times, the heart was strangely depressed Until that day forgiveness was granted A loving God grace for fear supplanted

And in the midst of the darkest of nights
Sits, above the cloudy heavens, I Am
Who came to earth to take on hurts like those
To bear them as our sacrificial Lamb

((December 27th, 2006))

Feeling Again

Everyday I wake up and my eyes see
The sun and horizon You paint for me
I just have to thankful for Your love
Every time I share a smile or laugh
Whenever I stand on someone's behalf
I just have to be thankful for Your love
And, in those moments where my eyes shed tears
And, my heart starts breaking in all my fear
Even then I am thankful for Your love
Because I remember as years unfold
That, how, once, my heart was so very cold
So, I am just thankful for Your healing
And, that my heart is, once again, feeling
Be it joy or sadness, passion or pain
I am simply thankful to feel again

Foevermore

Down the old dirt path where the willows grow Where the gravel stops and the old crick slows Where the sun sets late and the West wind blows There you will find me, by the corn in rows

When the weather changes from rain to snow And on the high plains the bucks chase the doe I'll be watching you still, just so you know Though my flesh remains, buried cold and low

Someday we'll embrace within that warm glow Where golden streets wind and crystal seas flow Where pain is no more and there is no woe We'll stand hand in hand upon that plateau

Where the sun ne'er sets and cool breezes blow We'll live forevermore where death doesn't go

((August 15th, 2015))

For He Is Good

Perhaps I'm not yet on the paths once tread Perhaps it seems like miles stand between At least I'm getting back to where I've been Alive once more, learning from time once dead

I praise Him for He's worthy of all praise I cried out in sorrowful, silent pain Wondering if I called to Him in vain Yet, run He did and He saved me today

What words capture this rapture of the heart I could speak endlessly never finding Liturgies that speaks of light so blinding And the hope that this day is just the start

Give thanks unto the Lord for He is good Mercy shines past what once I understood

((September 9th, 2008))

For Whom I Love

The wind comes down from the mountaintop To bring a fresh air to me And in the breath I take, so deep I, once again, feel so free And I take the moment to thank the Lord For the day that He has made And I lay back and ponder His love In the willowed tree's kind shade The winter was so harsh, so cold But, now the spring is nigh And, I praise Him for His love and care As I slowly close my eyes I dream of all my life has been And all that is waiting for me I dream of those of whom I've loved And how they've set me free But, most of all I dream of those Who have given me their hearts Those who have cried on my shoulder And needed me from the start Those are the ones I long to help And keep me going from day to day Those are the ones I have a heart for And for whom I daily pray Lord, I pray that you'll always let me Be a shelter for those who are hurt And a liberator to set them free

((February 2nd, 2001))

For You, Alone

Today's the day I live for You, alone And the start of a brand new day in me I want to leave a legacy behind To leave my legacy, You are my key

So, I will strive harder to be like You
To live the life in my words, in my deeds
And to tell of Your love to all people
Like the scattering of the bluegrass seeds

I will consciously choose You ev'ry day
And when a new turn comes on this long road
I will seek Your stron ghand to guide the wheel
Until I see my heavenly abode

And, when I am raptured into that place Even then will I seek Your righteous hand No longer in question or doubt of You For, then I will see Your eternal plan

Forever, I will sing your praises, Lord 'Holy, holy is the Lord Almighty' As I stand, amazed, at Your throne, oh Lord 'Holy, holy is He, the King of kings'

Forever Be

Night fell today, in times that ought be bright Dreams, crushed, that, many years ago, were made Hopes cut from me with a razor-sharp blade Failed in battle, though I fought the good fight

I wish I could tell you now all is right
That the all the oppression quickly decayed
And all hurt and despair quickly did fade
But, I can't say this... At least not tonight

Yet, I know, somehow, that I'll be alright For I know that my Guide never has strayed And no obstacle can be His blockade So, even through this dusk, I see the light

Oh, Lord of my life, and bastion of might Forever be my hope, my strength, my sight

((April 10th, 2015))

Forever, Always This Way

To the girl who does make my world go 'round To her who can make my hopes rise and fall To she who walks with me, so I stand tall And calms my weary soul without a sound

Whose presence makes a week pass like a year Whose laughter delivers my spirit joy Whose words remind me I am one blessed boy And whose intentions are honest and clear

With eyes which men can drown in if they stare With a body that forms an hourglass That moves so sensually with each pass And with a face that reflects that she cares

To you, my sweetheart, I can't help but say I'll like you forever, always this way

She looks in the mirror and cannot see
The beauty that's reflecting back at her
The same face in which everyone concurs
Is far too perfect for a fool like me

Whether she's dressed up in a dress and heels Or dressed comfortable, ready for bed Be she dressed in black, blue, purple or red When she enters, all attention, she steals

If she changed her appearance o'er and o'er My heart couldn't ever change how it feels But, how she looks right now... Oh! The appeal! God has blessed me, just to let me know her

Dear, believe me when I tell you today That, truth be told, I love your ev'ry way

((August 5th, 2010))

Formidable Feeling Within

Oh, this formidable feeling within
How it chills to the bone as it slowly creeps in Oh, this fearful heart that beats inside me
As this hope that deceived I, once more, start to see

Oh, world how you seek and wish it to be Part of your life as you count on its jubilee Oh, world, beware this commitment you make For the more you commit... The more you have at stake

Oh, how do you know when their words are true Or simply mimicry of words that were from you Oh, how do you trust? You've been slain before When each thought of forever is one you deplore

Oh, friends, you must remember to look high above For that's the only way to learn to, once more, love

((January 23rd, 2009))

Frigid Winter Wind

Frigid Winter wind, chilling to the bone
Oh, it never seemed all that bad last year
Never seemed all that bad when you were near
When I'd find your embrace when I got home

It's hard to believe the truth, even still
That the embrace I once looked forward to
When those bitter cold Winter days were through
Will never again ease this cold wind's chill

Each night I find myself dreaming of you
My subconscious not letting go the dream
Dreaming our love was as good as it seemed
And, that the dream dreamt was still coming true

My dear, how I long for your warm embrace Longing still more for one glimpse of your face

((January 5th, 2009))

Give Me Your Pain

Here you stand, again
Your broken heart in hand
Life isn't always fair to you
Constantly changing your plans
You try to bear the stinging pain
Put on your clown face... Smile
When the hurt in your heart
Tears your soul all the while
You can give me your pain
Shed me your tears
Soften your heart
Release all your fears
Because I love you
I'd do anything
Yes, I'd do anything for you

((March 13th, 2000))

Glory

Gazing into the great glory of You I cannot grasp Your grace Peering through an endless sky I feel You touch my face Sunbeams from high above Your love is beyond my thoughts Mountains You formed stand strong and tall Yet often I trust You not But, Your grace reaches beyond my heart Something only You can do And You love me Your love molds my heart There's no greater love in all the world Than when He took my part And Jesus' love unfurled And He died for me Because He loves me

((October 18th,1999))

God Knows

Speckled stars shimmering, shining above Scattered like salt grains on an onyx stone Prior thoughts about future, hope and love Fade in the stillness of being alone

Shooting stars and wishes made in the night Prayers to the Creator of that night sky With sounds of my heart racing at your sight Mix within, thanking Him for 'you and I'

The moment won't last, time ticks quickly by Suddenly I know this memory, now Is one I will remember 'til I die And this weight begins to rest on my brow

Forgive me for not knowing what to do God knows I just want to be good to you

Oh, this picturesque celestial scene How it gives strength, as it teases and taunts, To pursue unwise avenues in hopes to gleen One touch, one fraction of what my soul wants

A sudden but gentle let down is had My mind pumps forth memories from my past And I'm left afraid that it's all gone bad Fearful that what seems so good just won't last

How I miss the days, not too long ago When confidence was standard; hope was free That is what you deserve, this much I know Dear, I'm so blessed that you're patient with me

Forgive me for not knowing what to do God knows I just want to be good to you

((August 2nd,2010))

God Will Provide

Long, I've sat in dark spiritual silence Waiting upon the answers from above Long, had I wondered if He truly cared Doubting if I would, again, see His love Troubles, they came as a hailstorm of fear Not knowing when to run or when to stay I'd lost my compass and I'd lost my guide Questioning each footstep along the way But, when the darkness became most blinding And, when the storm had enveloped my soul I, in my hopelessness and confusion Cried out to the One who can make me whole It was in that hour I again saw the Light It started out as a flicker of trust Growing into a flame of faith in Him And knowledge that His provision is just It was in my newfound recognition That I now knew that I was blessed, indeed 'God will provide, ' I soon remembered And, forever, this truth shall be my creed

((December 5th, 2004))

Goodnight, Muse

It's been a long time coming... night has come
It's come and been for what seems forever
The landscape long since, to darkness, succumbed
Within light attempted to endeavor

But, long since you've laid asleep far away Long since you've dashed from memory my name And though my heart yearned for the light of day Still your rest from me, it still stays the same

Every dream that has ever been dreamt
Came forth from times of twilight interlude
How my heart wishes the dream would have kept
However, farewell is long overdue

So, goodnight, muse, comforter of sorrow Perhaps one day we'll see our tomorrow

((May 15th, 2009))

Graduate

The world stands still And my heart tries to seek For a fond 'good-bye' For my mouth to speak The memories find me And a tear finds my eye It will never be the same Without you by our side I have never met someone As amazing as you I pray for success In everything you do There will be detours And many chances to stray If you stick with God He will surely show you the way You deserve the very best Don't settle for any worse I will always be here for you Just always stay the course

((May 4th, 2001))

Grandpa

Well, the time is drawing near And, I've prayed for your peace This legacy you've left Will live on and never cease The memories we've had Will live on in me all of my life They will be excellent stories To tell my children and my wife Stories of fishing trips and baseball games Watched late at night in our chair Stories of your changed life Due to one little prayer Grandpa, you've changed my life And you've given me laughter and joy But, now it's time to leave us So, don't worry about your little boy I'll be fine here with the family And we'll all soon be with you, so do not cry We'll see you and grandma... And all the rest WIthin the twinkling of your eye

((July 6th, 2001))

Gumdropp Glades

Somewhere far away from the city streets
A meadow of green cotton candy blades
Rolls upon a mound of chocolatey dirt
And the warm cinnamon winds gently flirt
While geysers of cocoa playfully spurt
In a place kids all know, simply, as Gumdropp Glades

Ask Lil' Lew Lemondropp who knows the way
Where the candy's free for the bill's been paid
And the children can eat the sweets all day
Without their teeth ever showing decay
And there are no adults to scowl and say
'Don't spoil your appetite down in Gumdropp Glades'

Someday you should go adventure to see
What lies just past the tall forest blockades
Where the brook that babbles past forest trees
In the glade, turns into sweetest sweet tea
And candy cane bluffs... Quite a sight to see
That rise up high on three sides down in Gumdropp Glades

I hear when we see it we'll lose control
And drink the waterfall of lemonade
While small gumdrops dropp from trees as they sway
We'll wish there would be no end to that day
As we play playfully as children play
When our hopeful eyes finally spy Gumdropp Glades

We'll wish there would be no end to that day
As we play playfully as children play
And we'll hope that we can, forever, stay
Within a gingerbread house, down in Gumdropp Glades

((October 4th, 2009))

Happily Humble

I just heard the news... Kid, it made me smile
I know how much you are in love with love
I know how you've probably prayed above
You only had to wait a little while

Though I am lonely and missing you much
It's quite tough to not be happy for you
Because, in my heart, my heart always knew
Someone very soon would find your hand's touch

Too beautiful to go unseen for long
Far too talented to not cause some stir
Too classy to not attract some monsieur
But, still my heart hurts to see you move on

I'm not the first to watch my world crumble Yet, her joy makes me happily humble

((July 14th, 2008))

Have You Seen Her Here Before

Have you seen her here before The one I am seeking after Has she passed by here lately With her beauty and her laughter I have lost her once again The girl that I have sought Have you seen her lately Found her, I have not The girl I've been seeking Has a sweet smile and charm Her heart is for Jesus And would never do me harm I've chased her once or twice So sure that it is her Yet, when she turns and looks at me I never am so sure Or, sometimes she will run And never turn around And how would I ever know That she isn't the one to be found Too weak and weary to run After someone who doesn't care About my heart or feelings That simply wouldn't be fair But, have you seen her around here before The one that I seek to find Because my heart is growing hard And love is going blind

((December 10th, 2000))

Hayley Rose

Hayley, it has been far too long ago Since my heart has last felt this kind of love And, longer still, since my heart melted so Encountering a blessing from above

Hayley, I don't know what my role will be
If I'll see you every week, month or year
But, just know... And, prayerfully, you will see I'll never be far, though maybe not near

I expect great things from you, Hayley Rose For you to be happy, healthy and wise But, more than anything for you to know That Jesus loves you; you are in His eyes

Learn to love and be loved by all you meet Showing Christ's love and joy to all you greet

((December 21st, 2006))

He Leads Me

On the fields by and by The roses bloom so bright and red And by the grass so green I'm gently and kindly led I'm led by His hand The hand that made all we see He tells of His children And His plans just for me He shows me clearest springs Clearer than the bright morning sky And lets me drink of them On His shoulder, He lets me cry He sent His only Son To die on an old rugged cross To save us from our sin And take its lethal cost Someday we'll see Him In His glory and His power I am ready for Him Are you ready for that hour

((February 17th,2007))

Here's To Forever

I never knew how life could be Living, giving love so freely 'Till there was you, touching my life Now I know just how life can be

Storm clouds still come darken the sky
And hurt still cuts deep, by and by
But, when you're near you ease my strife
When those clouds darken the sky

I often dream of tomorrow And the future only God knows Pondering us, husband and wife I love dreaming of tomorrow

I can't express my thanks in words 'Cause after all I've seen and heard I can't believe you're in my life For all you've done, I can't find words

Here's to forever, you and I And, never finding tears to cry Only laughter, even in strife Here's to forever, you and I

((February 11th,2008))

Heroes

It feels like life is speeding by too fast When peaceful and sweet memories of youth Touch this fabric... This ambitious future And idealism strays from the truth

The passions we once had, they fade away
When we think about the size of the task
And hope for brighter hope for tomorrow
When we're forced to put on this happy mask

Because truth is, at times, we're not happy We see people hurt: their pain everywhere Their hurt, at times, is an inconvenience But, we will refuse to turn from their stare

God has blessed us all with these gifts of love To stoop down and touch those who are in need Will we choose to use these for His service Or will we use them for our selfish greed

We know this task is too big for just one We know we cannot touch this world alone But, united against injustice... death We can be heroes this world's never known

((October 14th, 2006))

Hey There

" Hey there. " " How are you? " " What's going on? "

I wait in silent and hopeful repose

A response! So kind. So funny! So you!

Is there more there? Should I ask her? Who knows?

"Hey you! " "I am good." "I can't stand my job."

A smile received in a text-based world And I imagine her grinning at me Who am I kidding? Doubts within me swirl.

" Are you free tonight? " " I am free. " " Are you? " A plan. A date. Or, well... Is it a date? I am just so bad at these lovers' games Will I ever break from this lonely fate?

"Hey there." "Hey you! " The date has now begun Guide me, Lord, with the setting of the sun.

((February 25th, 2017))

His Legacy

Danny Speicher

For you who sinned from day to day I died upon this cross For you who are weak and frail I hung upon this cross Oh, what pain and scorn to bear The sins of every man But, on this greatest Easter day I died so you could stand When I died I knew that I Would rise again so soon The grave could not hold me long I came forth from the tomb Grave, where is your victory Death, where is your sting Satan's demons tremble as The angel's chorus sing ((Inspired by Francisco de Zurbaran's painting, 'The Crucifixion')) ((October 8th, 1999))

Holiday Memories

Holiday memories wrapped with love Small gifts from God sent from above With laughter and smiles, sprinkled with joy A doll for the girls and a truck for the boys Though this year memories won't be so bright Without my family within my sight Yet somehow I will find the will to go on Though their faces won't be there come Christmas dawn So often I sit at my tree, blue and white And think of all those cold Christmas nights Where my cousin and I would whisper and pray That maybe that Christmas we'd see Santa's sleigh The dinners, so great with turkey and dressing And, uncle Mike would lead the blessing Ah, but now those days are no longer here I won't be able to hold those I hold so dear So, I will quietly sit here at my tree and ponder Of past holiday memories and past holiday wonder

((December 13th, 2000))

Hometown Wish

My time in this city is dwindling
And, yet, very much I have never said
In all my years, from my birth until now
One might figure, Your Word, I would have spread

Instead I have stayed silent all these years And I think it's time for me to speak Truth To stand for what I believe in with love Speak, boldly, to all men, women and youth

Praising, worshipping the one Living God Shouting, 'He is the way... Christ is the way' Loving those who contradict your message But, still calling out, 'Come to Christ today! '

I have stood in stillness for far too long Waiting for unbelievers to come, see But, those who lay dying in this cold word Have been wounded, and were waiting for me

Even though they don't think they need the One I will cry to them, 'Come and see... Just come' And, when they turn their heads and walk away I will pray for them 'till the day is done

Lord, please be with those in my sweet hometown Show Yourself to them like never before Lord, please watch over my church family Deliver each one to your crystal shore

To my hometown and church, of whom I love Make strides to know your one true Creator Keep your hearts open to His call in life And, seek HIm like you've never sought before

Hope To Show You

Oh, my beautiful one, from way back when I never thought my heart would lead me here But, as I ponder on all that you are All I can wish is for you to be near

I've dreamt and hoped for a someone like you Whose heart is big and laughter is sweet Independent but still believes in love Set, but willing to be swept off her feet

When I see your eyes nothing else matters
And all the cares of the day fade away
When I hear your voice my heart tends to melt
And all I hope to show you and to say
I love you

I've watched your life flow behind in your stride Naught looking back as you follow your dream Watching, I wonder, could I come along And be a part of your daily daydream

When I see your eyes nothing else matters
And all the cares of the day fade away
When I hear your voice my heart tends to melt
And all I hope to show you and to say
I love you

I know I'm not the world's view of perfect But, I know I can love and care for you Just let me affirm this heart to beat true And each day I'll make me better for you

When I see your eyes nothing else matters
And all the cares of the day fade away
When I hear your voice my heart tends to melt
And all I hope to show you and to say
I love you

Just let me show you

Just let me say Someday I love you

((March 5th,2017))

Hopeless

At a loss for words, am I
Don't know what more to say
Or what more to do
Even now I still miss you

I've done all that I can
To erase you from my mind
To burn you from my soul
But, yet still I can't control

The feelings in my heart
Can't be purged
They can't be wiped clean
I cannot be weaned

From the love you gave
So freely, so easily
So absolutely perfect in every way
So completely every day

I don't know what I did I don't know what to do I can't keep my heart And your love apart

I'm hopeless I'm pitiful I sit in silent fear Wishing you were near

I'm alone
In the midst of a crowd that's mine
If only you were to be
One of those so close to me

Dreams and visions
Can never bring you
Close enough to feel
Your hands that can heal

Hopes and desires
Only prove to create
A false hope within
And further pity therein

I wish I could hate you
For the pain that you've caused
I wish I could despise you
With a fire so true

But, alas, I love you, still And I suppose I'd rather hurt Than to hurt the memory Of us together, you and me

I could never find it within
To destroy the love we felt
The night we sat under the stars
Together, in each others arms

Although I miss you
Although I hurt
I wish you nothing but the best
I wish you all success
I wish you to overcome the rest
Even shen you're put to the test
I pray that you rise above
With a heart full of love
I wish you nothing but the best

((November 1st, 2009))

Hour Of Decision

There's an odd sort of feeling in my soul Heat mixing with cold and hope with distress Sense of destiny and losing control When will this tearing apart be made whole?

Things I viewed so simply, once, as a child Are things I view so deeply now I'm grown Things that once seemed so tame have gone so wild And life goes on at its click all the while

The hour of decision is now at hand Ideas must be made reality
Oh, if I could stop the hourglass sand
I guess some things I'll never understand

Yet, here stand I, at the brink of my fate Which shall I choose along this broken way? Shall I slowly move and see what awaits? Or step boldly forward and shed this weight? What will become of me at the end of the day?

How Do You Pray?

So long since I last heard Your voice call me So long since I last heard You say my name So long wanting and yearning to be free Knowing that I'm the only one to blame?

So tired of hurting... Crawling through life So tired of tear soaked darkness, within So tired of fear piercing like a knife Begging for the chance to begin again

How do you pray when your spirit's silent?
How do you find a lamp without sunlight?
How do you love when your own heart is bent?
How do you stand, when your soul's lost its might?

So far 'til the end of this life's journey So far 'til my robe is washed by the Sea So far 'til my eyes His wholeness will see Singing that my body is wholly free

How do you pray when your spirit's silent? How do you find a lamp without sunlight? How do you love when your own heart is bent? How do you stand, when your soul's lost its might?

When your spirit's silent, pray anyway
When it's dark, still search blindly in the night
When your heart hurts, love beyond the decay
And, when you're weak, for His strength, daily pray

So soon I will come to Him face to face So soon I will find true peace for my soul So soon I will feel His amazing grace Dancing for I'll be young and not grow old

((August 6th, 2017))

How Much Longer

How much more can my weary heart take, Lord? I stand at Your feet and plead for Your peace Each time I see it on the horizon It ends up sliding further from my reach

How much more can my family take, Lord? They have sacrificed much in recent years Striving to do what You want them to do Yet still they are left with eyes full of tears

How much more can my lonely heart take, Lord? I frequently question if she's out there And, if she is, how long must I linger To catch a glimpse of her beautiful stare?

I seek Your direction and peace, my Lord As this ship sets sail on the sea of life I set my sails into the Spirit's wind And pray Your navigation through the strife

How much longer until we get home, Lord? How much longer must I wait to see You? I long to see land off the crystal sea And long for that earth: bright, shiny and new

((April 6th, 2005))

How Often Have I?

How often have I gone into battle
With swords brandished on my own, without You
Selfishly fighting battles for myself
Attempting to blaze my own path, anew

How often have I, in desperation Held out my bloody hand to shake in oath With the devil I have sworn to defeat Letting You and Your creation down, both

Yet, Lord, if I might, be granted mercy I don't deserve it, unworthy am I May I remember to follow your voice Though I may not hear it, desperately try

For, though my actions are often contrast From that which my heart beats from deep within I still believe in Your plan and Your hope And I seek You even when my hope runs thin

Lord, grant me a safe rescue from harm's way Though I may feel the cold wind of defeat I know that You still reign in victory So, in You, I will never sound retreat

Lord, forgive me the destruction I've caused The trusting blood spilled on the courtyard's floor Pride and fear paradoxically collide Lord, I'll look forward, and back nevermore

Thank You for Your loving grace, quiet peace I know there will be days of struggle still But, in these times when I feel Your embrace I find strength for Your plans to fulfill

And, as each day passes, make me stronger
Make me more like You, loving without fear
When I'm strong, inspire my feet to move
And, Lord, when I'm weak, let me know You're near

((May 17th,2008))

How To Just Survive

Choke back those tears my brother, my sister Don't show emotion in this cold, cold place Don't tip your hand that they've gotten to you Don't stand apart from this dead human race

Just take a sip of your Starbucks coffee
That will hold back the screams within your soul
At least for a few seconds as you drink
Perhaps, by then, you can regain control

Your emotions are worthless here and now Only what you do, what you say make you And, if you do enough for the right friends You may just survive and just make it through

Keep quiet about your soul and knowledge Don't talk about divine conspiracy Their hearts are hardened so don't even try To the secular Christ is heresy

What's true for you, may just be false for them It's arrogant to think you know the truth Our gods of green can save if we believe All is relative, there's no absolutes

I know you feel this fire within you Burning to ignite Earth with the divine But, just drink the water of convenience And that feeling will pass... You'll be just fine

How Will I Know?

Oh, Lord, I stand before you, mind spinning Not knowing just what step I should take next I am so excited yet so afraid Lord, how will I know, what path will be best?

Many great decisions are now at hand Yet one seems to quickly rise to the top All other decisions will come and go Lord, how will I know, to go or to stop

Heart beating a thousand beats a minute I ponder, deep, just what might be bestowed A new era? New season of the soul? Oh, Lord, how will I know? How will I know?

Humanity

Far upon a building high
I see my past by and by
And with each memory it brings
Ancient voices, loved ones sing
Where they've gone I do not know
Someday I'll go where they go
Now I sit and daily pray
That I'll help others without delay
Humanity is all we've got
And, thus, humanity is all I've sought
What if all alive loved one another
Love like sister and like brother
What a wonderful world this would be
If we could learn to live in harmony

((October 5th, 1999))

I Called To Him

In the midst of my darkness and despair
I cried to the Lord, begging and pleading
'Lord, take note of what this heart is needing'
My heart cried out to Him and He was there

Hope had been stolen by a thief by night I called to those who had, once, given peace Were, now, all looking for that same release So, I turned to God in my weary plight

I turned to Him not believing He'd move For no other reason I turned in fear Longing to have Him, once again, draw near And, for my sackloth mask to be removed

I called to Him; I knew not where to go I called to Him and He burdened my woe

I had my doubts that I'd hear Him again
It seemed so often that I dreamed big dreams
To find they are impossible, it seems
And that I wasn't worthy of a win

Oh, but He heard my cry in that dark night He loved me in spite of my disbelief He embraced me and comforted my grief He removed my mask and granted me sight

Despite my doubt, He found me wandering
He found me and gave me new life again
He searched me and forgave each of my sins
And, more than that, He calmed my pondering

He answered me and He showed me the way Oh, how can I keep from praising His name

((March 30th, 2009))

I Have No Choice

I don't suppose I noticed it in the dim light of the moon
Or the way your hand held mine all night long
I don't suppose I realized just what I felt inside
I may not have felt it then, but, I felt it soon

Ours isn't a love like any other I know
Feeling your heartbeat and hearing your voice
Looking to the heavens and finding the blessings here below
When it comes to you, I have no choice
I love you

It wasn't in the cool night air that kept you close to me Or the way we swayed to the beat of the drum It wasn't the Americana picture perfect scene It was on that car ride home that I knew I was free

Ours isn't a love like any other I know
Feeling your heartbeat and hearing your voice
Looking to the heavens and finding the blessings here below
When it comes to you I have no choice
I love you

So, this is what it feels like to be in love?
I never knew my heart could feel so full... So empty
So content when you're near, turmoil when you're away
Who am I to deserve such a gift from above?

I never thought I'd know this loving fate
I never knew a love would spring from that first date
Never thinking I deserved an angel like you
Or that I'd see my heart find a love so true
This much I can say, for as long as breath fills my chest
I will long to make every dream come true, I'll do my best
And, when the day closes and you've lived all your dreams
We'll live a storybook life, pulled from fairytale scenes

Ours isn't a love like any other I know Feeling your heartbeat and hearing your voice Looking to the heavens and finding the blessings here below When it comes to you I have no choice I love you

Feeling your heartbeat and hearing your voice When it came to you I had no choice I love you

I Haven'T The Choice

I breathe in because I haven't the choice
Ah, though, the action, it may be pleasant
I breathe this breath to give me strength and life
I breathe for the day you might be my wife

I work hard, because I haven't the choice Though I get fulfillment from the effort I work hard for a life for you and I I work for our future home by and by

I seek Christ because I haven't the choice Though the discovery is exciting I seek Christ to find out how to love you I seek Christ to make my heart always true

I love you because I haven't the choice Though the love soothes any pain, any day I love you, dear, because I know your heart I love you when you're near and when apart

I love you because I haven't the choice Though I know I've written it once before I love you once wasn't enough to say I love you and long to say it each day

I love you because I haven't the choice And if in a hundred years I still say I love you, Love, I love you more each day I love you will be what I long to say

((July 17th, 2007))

I Knew Peace

I felt the icy, strangling grip of death Closing in quickly around my heart As I struggled to breathe that one last breath

I heard my friends crying out around me 'Stay with us, please don't leave us now' As suddenly my spirit became free

And, I knew peace, like never known before I did not feel all those pains anymore I knew peace, which surpassed just a feeling I couldn't wait to see what was in store I knew peace

Golden bricks on the streets were blazing bright And the pearly gates were shining The day, it never seemed to fade to night

Although the scenery was amazing My joy came from deeper within As my worries faded, I started praising

Yes, I knew peace, like never known before I did not feel all those pains anymore I knew peace, which surpassed just a feeling I couldn't wait to see what was in store I knew peace

I Love You, Love, Except When I Hate You

I love you, love, except when I hate you For sweet things whispered in the still of night For how beautiful you were in my sight Oh, love, how my love remains ever true

I hate you, love, except when I love you For all the pain you've caused my heart to feel For questions now had as to what is real Oh, love, how the hate burns from red to blue

I love you and in the same breath hate you Dichotomous paradoxes remain Hope and logic have long ago been slain Leaving just ashes where, once, stood the two

I love you, love, except when I hate you And, love, how that hate burns from red to blue

((April 30th, 2012))

I See You

It's been a few months since I've seen you last Perhaps the loneliness should have faded Yet, still, within me, my heart is shaded It seems to not want to forget the past

Whether it be on the couch or in bed Oh, whether it be talking in the park Or just watching a movie in the dark I see you each day everywhere I tread

It's not easy forgetting one like you
It is impossible to let you go
I wish there was a way to let you know
That even though you aren't here, I see you

Whether it be morning, noontime or night Even in my dreams, you are in my sight

((July 1st, 2008))

I Will Resign

A little tear here, another drop there
The sobbing doesn't often last too long
A short bridge between verses of a song
But, hurt I feel, then, I don't dare to share

For in those moments, in the silenced air Twists and turns of life seem so very wrong My bond, my passion, evermore less strong But, admitting that, I ought never dare

For though the path seem a trail of despair With heartbreak comes a new and brighter song And broken dreams lead home where we belong So, I won't be troubled when life's unfair

It's just one chip more in your grand design And one more hurt, to You, I will resign

((May 6th, 2015))

I Wonder

I've often wondered when I'm all alone What you're doing at that very moment Whether life makes you happy and content And if you gaze upon the great unknown

Are you thinking of me lovingly, dear? Reminiscing about what we once had? I wonder if thoughts of me make you sad And memories make you wish I was near

I wonder if you're satisfied with life
If your living out God's purpose for you
That's what really matters, in my review
Although it often causes pain and strife

Oh, I wonder what you're doing right now I pray you're living out your dream somehow

((November 17th, 2008))

I Wonder If You Know

You hold each other under twink'ling stars
While the moon peeks through ev'ry passing cloud
I wonder if you know how blessed you are

You listen to the band's weeping guitar
While nightfall provides a privacy shroud
You hold each other under the twink'ling stars

Knowing the one that you love is not far Holding hands throughout the bustling crowd I wonder if you know how blessed you are

Sitting in the back of your rag top car The night more perfect than should be allowed You hold each other under the twink'ling stars

Taking her to a coffee shop or bar
With her clinging to your arm, you're so proud
I wonder if you know how blessed you are

Running to your love you see from afar Forever pledges are forever vowed You hold each other under the twink'ling stars I wonder if you know how blessed you are

((August 4th, 2007))

I, Once, Dreamt A Dream

I, once, dreamt a dream that dreamers oft dream
Of loving and living a lovely life
A house, my children and a caring wife
I, once, dreamt a dream that dreamers oft dream

Oh, how I long to dream that dream again Where hope solemnly sought for nothing more Than to find her standing there, at my door Oh, how I long to dream that dream again

How do dreams die... Do they ever revive How does one learn to trust the coming day When the past keeps trust an arms length away How do dreams die... Do they ever revive

I, once, dreamt a dream that dreamers oft dream Oh, how it seemed closer than dreams oft seem

I lived a dream once upon a daydream
We'd walk slowly through the park holding hands
Speaking so sweetly and making our plans
I lived a dream once upon a daydream

I lived a love once when a love loved me
I knew her in ways that only I knew
I was the first among her chosen few
I lived a love once when a love loved me

In one heartbeat she chose a diff'rent path Oh, how could she leave without one last kiss I often wonder if love still exists In one heartbeat she chose a diff'rent path

I lived a dream once upon a daydream
Oh, how it seemed closer than dreams oft seem

((February 2nd, 2009))

I'D Wish

My dear, if I had one wish in my life
Just one to last me the rest of my days
I wouldn't wish for my days without strife
Nor for the moon's soft beams or sun's bright rays

I wouldn't wish for silver or for gold Not even for long life or a quick death I wouldn't ask my story to be told Centuries after my life's final breath

And, though it be all that I ever dreamed I wouldn't wish for your love to be mine Or for me to look better than I seem No, my dear, all those wishes I'd decline

I'd wish for you to make sense of the pain And for your heart to learn to love again

When I look in your eyes I see your fear I feel the hesitation in your hand Would your heart feel any better, my dear To know that I, too, am afraid to stand

Or, would my fear only deepen your own
Do you count on me to stay strong and wise
Though thunder crash and shake me to the bone
Do you seek a gleam of hope in my eyes

Truth be told I would walk your path for you I'd fight the monsters that haunt you at night But, these are battles that you must pursue But, I'll be there with a wish and a light

Wishing for you to make sense of the pain Praying your heart will love once again

I know that you doubt what I say sometimes And, I know that you've heard it all before You don't understand what I find sublime

Or, what you possess that I'm looking for

It only took just one look in your eyes
From that moment, I never stood a chance
When you laugh, talk and even when you cry
All that you do strengthens my heart's advance

There isn't a thing I'd change about you Not one thing, for my own sake, I'd erase But, I know you hurt, and it hurts me too So, if I had a wish I could embrace

I'd wish for you to see hope in the pain And that you'd find the peace to love again

((December 14th, 2010))

If I Had Known

If I had known those many years ago
That I was in the best years of my life
Oh, I would have grasped your hand much tighter
And laughed at what we once thought to be strife

If I had known those many years ago
That my time, there, with you was running short
Oh, I would have told you I loved you more
And made disagreements a last resort

If I had known those many years ago
That, now, you wouldn't be here by my side
Oh, I would have listened to you talking
And listened to you sing, all misty-eyed

If I had known, I would have tried much more To keep you from leaving me here, ashore

((February 25th, 2017))

If I Ne'Er Loved You

Sometimes I wonder just where I would be If, on that April night, I'd ne'er met you And, if, my dear, you had never met me And we'd never known the love that we knew

Is it really true, as the old phrase goes
That it is better to loved and lost
Than that love to have never have had known
Was the experience worth the cost

What, if on that May evening, long ago
I had just walked away and ne'er looked back
Never had caressed your skin, white as snow
If I had never loved, would I have lacked

Dear, I often wonder where I would be If I ne'er loved you and you ne'er loved me

((June 13th, 2009))

If Never

If never I find what my heart longs for If never I see the journey unfold If never my heart knows the joy of love Still, I can say I have riches, untold

If never my name is written in time
If tomorrow I'm gone and no one knows
If my life yields only one true friend
Still, in that friendship, my Father's love shows

If never I possess land of my own
If never I sit under my own vine
And never retire from my toils
Still, I know I have a mansion, divine

If never I see His peace on this earth Still, someday I will find peace in rebirth

((August 4th, 2016))

I'll Never Be Gone

You run and you hide and fear for the worst You think I'll be upset you have moved on Even if I'll never call you my own I may fade back, but I'll never be gone

I know that we live in this broken world In a broken era with truth foregone But, believe me when I tell you this truth I may fade back, but I'll never be gone

I lost a battle to a better man
I moved too slow and I was too withdrawn
But, I'm still your friend and rock forever
I may fade back, but I'll never be gone

So, if you ever wish, for a smile, bygone Know I'm just faded back, I am not gone

((May 15th, 2017))

I'LI Rise Again Anew

It all came toppling, tumbling down
Believing rebuilding wouldn't reveal
Anything more than more heartbroken frowns
Or that feelings weren't things again I'd feel

It all came toppling, tumbling down
It's true that all that was built was destroyed
It happened overnight without a sound
Leaving hope dead with a large, gaping void

It all came toppling, tumbling down
And it remains in ruins to this day
But, chains are slowly becoming unbound
A day is coming when again I'll say

I'll rise again, oh world, I'll rise again Rise again anew, let new life begin

((October 8th, 2008))

I'M Waiting For You

I've seen you in my dreams, familiar one Your face just beyond what my eyes can see Each time I see you, my heart comes undone Wanting so bad for you to be with me

I thought I had known you once already Just an apparition, an illusion A lover's heart that was far too ready To find you, but was caught in delusion

Yet, I sit and wait for you and I dream
Of you, sweetheart, and of your love for me
I know you pray for me to be what I seem
And I know you wait, for my eyes, to see

Wait a bit longer; I'm waiting for you God will soon find our dreams all coming true

((October 13th, 2008))

In His Arms

Safe and secure within these arms of mine Safe and secure, holding my neck tightly And your eyes clenched as light flashes brightly Oh, little one, in my arms you'll be fine

The world will turn and, my dear, you'll soon find That words can hurt far more than sticks or stones And broken hearts ache more than broken bones But, little one, in my arms you'll be fine

But, if the day comes when my arms fail you And fade away just as all arms soon do I pray that you'll find arms greater than mine And, dear, in His arms, you will be just fine

And His arms are bigger than your sorrows And His arms, they will never let you down In His arms you can take on tomorrow As you learn He will always be around

So, if the day comes when my arms fail you And fade away just as all arms soon do I pray that you'll find arms greater than mine And, dear, in His arms, you will be just fine

((July 4th, 2009))

In My Life

With you in my life, the days seem brighter
Nights seem cooler, the stars shine more clearly
The gentle breeze blows softer than before
And my heart seems to beat more sincerely

With you in my life, birds sing joyously
As white clouds roll by waving as they pass
And, all seems so right in this little world
When you're near me, gazing at skies of glass

With you in my life, I strive for my best To become a man worthy of your love Ever yearning to prove my love for you And praying I'll be the man you dream of

With you in my life, my joy overflows
Oh, how it makes me sing and laugh and write
Writing of love and hope and things unseen
And things seen only in dreams, shown at night

With you in my life, my heart looks to love To find that which it's never found before Oh, how inspiring... Terrifying Always looking forward, longing for more

With you in my life, I feel emotion
From fear to joy and always elation
Waiting to see what will unfold beyond
To find what will be the next revelation

With you in my life, in short summary Every day seems less mundane and more real And, hope for the future is far brighter So blessed to be in something so surreal

((June 5th, 2007))

In The Air

Just like a hurricane, she blew into my life And, ever since that fateful day I've been aware Of changes: oftentimes with joy, others with strife And, I could feel her all around me in the air

And she could bring a smile to a hardened heart Just as easy, she could lay a soul wholly bare But, I knew that I loved her from the very start And, I could feel her all around me in the air

Then all of a sudden, the cyclone stopped blowing
The nature of which, I couldn't be bothered to care
All I knew is she'd left me without me knowing
I could not feel her any longer in the air

Now, I sit by the glass; at the branches I stare Wishing, just once more, she'd surround me in the air

((May 9th, 2017))

In The Dead Of Night

Lord, why is it, now, times are so tough When we work so hard for not enough Thoughts of saving seem absurd While the rich get the last word Paycheck to paycheck sure can be rough

Lord, I know my life is in Your hands
But, there are things I can't understand
Like suffering of the good
Oh, I'd help them if I could
But, myself, I'm unable to stand

Lord, You've given me this one great dream Reaching it is harder than it seems Everyone seems to wonder What curse I must be under Which keeps me from picking up more steam

Lord, I know you have a master plan
And life is lived in a long lifespan
But, Lord, I'm growing older
And, my dream's getting colder
Oh, Lord, complete what, once, You began

Lord, I trust You in the dead of night What can I do to temper my fright So, may I humbly appeal You to quickly take the wheel Drive my life to purpose in Your light

Lord, I thank You for all that You've done Sacrificing of Your only Son And the dream You've given me With the hope of being free These promises that can't be undone

((October 20th, 2008))

In The Light

Paradoxical, this light that we seek
As it appears and fades, leaving us weak
And all the world tells us we must find it
Yet not one of us has yet confined it

We've been there before, once warmed by it's rays We remember them as happier days But, that light suddenly faded to black We found ourselves not wanting to go back

But, maybe there's still light out there for me Waiting and praying I'll come set it free Perhaps an Answer for this fear within Can wash away nightmares of what has been And, once again, I can be in the light

Oh, how burnished days incinerated Makes one's view of fire complicated When all you've ever known is the nighttime Can you e'er see radiance as sublime?

But, maybe there's still light out there for me Waiting and praying I'll come set it free Perhaps an Answer for this fear within Can wash away nightmares of what has been And, once again, I can be in the light

So, today's the day I banish the fear
And, look deep within for courage to fight
I'll cling to the One who always draws near
As what's dark and safe take wing and take flight

For maybe there's still light out there for me Waiting and praying I'll come set it free Perhaps an Answer for this fear within Can wash away nightmares of what has been And, once again, I can be in the light

((January 23rd,2009))

In The Silence

All throughout the day I live, laugh and play Never showing, never feeling the pain Deeply lurks sadness, in his dark domain In silence waiting night to turn from day

In the night I am found out... Found afraid Hearing all the voices of those I've failed Wishing for more noise than my breath's exhale A quick ascent to dreams often I've prayed

I've failed so many and many do haunt
I wish I could somehow make right my wrongs
Wish I could be in both this and that throng
But, I'm one man... So the voices do taunt

Lord, take me quickly to dreaming tonight For, in waking silence, I am affright

((February 17th, 2008))

In The Vale

In the midst of my sleeplessness and confusion And through my infinite nocturnal thoughts and dreams Strong, there stands a figure keeping my stance upright Hands hold me when life is tougher than once it seemed

And, though all my thoughts seem so real and so scary
Like premonitions... An end of the world of sorts
I know that these thoughts are just that; thoughts, for now
God wants me to live each day, no fears to distort

Oh, and through this time, now, of personal struggle Where things seem to be the darkest they've ever been Even still there is a flicker within my soul And a great torch, He still gives to those He calls kin

And, so as I struggle, I watch the world spin on I see the birds fly high, I hear the children laugh And I have peace that tomorrow will be better As I, now, learn to let Him guide me with His staff

And, though, right now, I walk throug this valley of death I will not fear the evil that gathers around For, God, my Shepherd, He is with me, in the vale And, HIs staff will keep me secure and homeward-bound

((June 21st, 2005))

Into The Light

'Lord, I really wanted this job so bad'
He said, crying out to the Counselor
'I just can't seem to find work anywhere'
'Lord, won't You please show me what is in store?'

'I've got so many bigger plans for you'
'Just follow me into the light and see'
'Plans to prosper you and not to harm you'
'A road that would forever set you free'

A young couple talks about what's ahead They see different paths on what's to come She smiles, kisses him goodbye one last time Now he wonders, where will his love come from

'I've got so many bigger plans for you'
'Just follow me into the light and see'
'Plans to prosper you and not to harm you'
'A road that would forever set you free'

Sometimes life seems sad and laden with fear Just give Him your heartache and all your tears

One day a sweet girl is playing softball Hits the ball as her teammates cheer her on Goes to bed healthy and happy that night But, when morning comes, her spirit is gone

'I've got so many bigger plans for you'
'Just follow me into the light and see'
'Plans to prosper you and not to harm you'
'A road that would forever set you free'

'A road that would forever set her free' 'Eternally, for always set her free'

((June 25th, 2004))

Irrational

Irrational, I'm called irrational
For loving too much with little return
For not moving on when my heart does burn
But, when all's said and done, what's rational?

Is it the absence of all emotion?

Not chasing love with reckless abandon?

Or leaping not knowing what I'll land in?

And not letting my heart cause commotion?

Is it choosing a path for logic's sake
While abandoning all romantic thought?
Thinking ten steps ahead while feeling not?
Are feelings a risk I just shouldn't take?

Irrational, I might very well be But, life without love is simply not me

Love's irrational in so many ways

And it's love that makes me do what I do

And say what I say and oft makes me blue

Yet, just as often, it sets me ablaze

Oh, how irrational lovers must seem
To the man who doesn't know how to feel
It must appear odd to see someone kneel
As that someone's heart's been ripped at the seam

Judge forth you logical experts on high Shake your swollen heads, click your sharpened teeth Render your verdict to me, here beneath Oh, and of course, fail not to roll your eyes

Because, irrational, I might well be But, life without love is simply not me

So, I will go on dreaming of a day
When my wife and I will walk hand in hand
Down the greened hill and on to the white sand

Yes, I will dream of a life lived that way

And, I'll love others without condition Not expecting in kind that which I give Pouring forth my love like a broken sieve Giving my all will become my mission

And, someday when I'm old I look and find I'm alone, without a wife by my side
At least I'll know that my love never died
I may die alone, but I won't die blind

And, I'll be known as irrational me But, my life without love, just couldn't be

(August 13th, 2011)

Is This Love?

Roaming far below, looking to the sky Stars shimmering and dancing up above Am I meant to soar high to the Heavens Oh, God, oh Father show me: Is this love?

Earth dwelling creatures aren't meant to reach up And glide among clouds, flirting with the sun Dreaming of a day of drifting in the wind But, Lord, let me fly if this is the one

I know I am here, feet firm in the sand No wings to flap and no feathers to lift My body up onto her equal ground So, I'll wait for You, Lord, my dreams, to lift

If there's one thing I've learned through all my years Is love, without Love, will leave you in tears

((February 19th, 2017))

It Isn'T

It isn't in the way you say my name
Though it's sweetest sound I've ever heard
Nor is it in the way you stake your claim
Though proud, I am, to be yours, rest assured

It's not the way your lips smile at me Nor their soft caress that makes me love you It's nothing that you can taste or can see It's not anything you say or you do

If I had ten thousand songs to sing And if I had a million pages to write Oh, even then, I couldn't truly bring The words or a tune to express it right

So, look in my eyes, dear; see how I feel There's no other way to show you what's real

((February 18th.2010))

I'Ve Seen Beauty This Year

Three hundred and sixty five sunrises
Three hundred and sixty five sunsets, too
One whole year of days and nights comprises
The measure of time that I have spent with no you

Winter's chill over a blanket of white And then Springtime's rebirth of life anew Summer and Fall did come and go quickly Time goes by, still leaving hope to be with you

Glistening rays on golden waves have danced And storms' fury seems beautiful, it's true But, no bright lighting cloud could stand a chance When compared to the beauty that's found within you

Make no mistake, I've seen beauty this year I've seen it each day with the morning dew And watched by night above this earthen sphere But, within all of these sights I am seeing you

So, though it may have been a year that's passed
And, though I have missed all our times, through and through I've not forgotten your beauty or class
And I pray for the moment when next I'll see you

((December 25th, 2011))

Journey

Time's been weighing on my mind as of late Thoughts of what will come sooner than before How fast time passes breeching every door And what will become of me and my fate

Perhaps it's wedded bliss some friends have found And sounds of babies cooing at their feet Or my body signaling some retreat How silence has become a dreaded sound

Maybe my highest hopes were set too high Dreams I dreamt maybe too far out of reach To love, prosper and generations to teach How just beyond, the end seems all too nigh

Forgive me for not settling for less
I can't find it in my soul to live that life
A journey filled with disappointing strife
Average legacy, lacking my best

Forgive me for not producing more fruit
There are so many times I've grown tired
To my recess, I've had to retire
Lord knows I've longed for more on this dark route

They say that His timing's perfect and right
That good things will come to those who will wait
That, in the end, these paths will be made straight
I just wish I had His map in my sight

I hope I've not missed blessings He's bestowed That I've not set my ways higher than planned Denying the love of an outstretched hand And all of the goodness that, then, would flow

But, I count on His wisdom and His grace His still, small voice; a whisper on the wind And I'll listen on 'til this journey ends And hear Him clearly when we're face to face ((September 28th, 2014))

Kalends Of March

Oh, kalends of March with your dreary dew Familiar heavenly teardrops Both soaking and parching my mournful heart I, too, cry until the ducts fail and stop

Why, oh why, does the petty still control Joy upon these inaugural March days As if those eyes beamed upon mine again As I failed to see lies within the gaze

Five days of bliss before my extinction
Five days of lies told in masterful form
Five days of hope for love everlasting
Five days of calm before these savage storms

Oh, kalends of March, nefarious bane
I pray your release, in earnest and vain

((March 1st, 2015))

Kindness

Gently lifting friends from turbulent times Finding in each person something to love Knowing that compassion comes from above Kindness is difficult business sometimes

Holding needs of others above your own Praying each night for those you don't yet know Reaching the needy in heat, sleet and snow Showing everyone the love that He's shown

Living random acts of kindness each day Randomly 'til they are a habit of love Seeing the problem and answer thereof Commiting yourself to end the dismay

Heroes we may not be, just women, men Devoted to help those hurting within

((November 13th, 2008))

Kyrie Eleison

God, I come to you broken, sore Peace, I desire, nothing more But, if chaos I cannot flee Oh, Lord please have mercy on me

At times it hurts to love so much To open your heart to be touched But, love I must... Hurt I must be Oh, Lord please have mercy on me

I've been blessed with many riches In my distress, it enriches So, whether pain or jubilee Oh, Lord please have mercy on me

In my time of indecision Where shadows darken my vision Open my eyes to clearly see Oh, Lord please have mercy on me

Life is not always manifest
But, may I always show I'm blessed
So, the world might someday plea
'Oh, Lord please have mercy on me'

((July 26th, 2006))

Kyrie Sonnet

Pain pulsing from every inch within me Eyelids closed to shield my eyes from the sun Each strand of my body coming undone Wishing, from agony, to be set free

Depression flows in like the rolling sea
My emotions rise and fall like the tide
Happiness and sadness, closely reside
Within the shadows of this soul called 'me'

Lord, can't you hear me crying for relief? Can you not see me striving to be strong? Yearning to hear a harmonious song I sit, patiently, in silence and grief

Oh, Lord, break these chains and set this man free Oh, Lord, won't You, please, have mercy on me?

Unseen daggers rip my innards apart An endless resounding gong fills my ears No one can dam the flow of my eyes' tears Too often my days end before they start

My dreams are left in the darkness of night
Unfulfilled, hopeless and so far away
I wish just one could see the light of day
But, when morning breaks, they're nowhere in sight

Father, I know You draw nigh when I cry Father, I know You have a master plan Holy Ghost, gently guide me by the hand Assure me His will is best, by and by

Oh, Lord, I pray, let me abide in Thee
Oh, Lord, won't You, please, have mercy on me?

((November 13th, 2009))

Last Night

Last night, last night, I held you in my arms Cuddled close as the world spun night to day Gazing sweetly upon your loving charms Oh, for last night's embrace to be replayed

Last night, last night, special to me were you Your head nestled so very close to mine Dreaming of a love eternal and true Oh, for last night's vision of love to find

Last night, last night, how close to me you seemed Forever I could have held you with me As your eyes fluttered sweetly as you dreamed Oh, for last night's image of you to see

Last night, last night, I glimpsed our destiny Lying in my arms, your hair all around Forever, always, laying next to me Oh, for last night's prophecy to abound

Last night, last night... Just last night I held you Oh, how I wish I were there beside you

((September 3rd, 2007))

Lawrence

Lawrence, my grand hometown down by the Kaw Oh, how I love her beauty and her lights As, once over Pleasent Grove, I behold The dorms of KU's campus lit up bright

I love the people who take pride in her How when asked who the best 23 was MJ doesn't always trump Simien But, most of all, I love Lawrence because...

She took time to nurture a Kansas boy like me

((March 20th, 2005))

Let Your Healing Never Cease

My hands are busy My heart is cold My life runs quickly And my eyes turn old If for just one moment I could take some time alone To explore this aching heart And chip away at its stone I give my love so frequently I help them get away I take their problems, personally And lead them on their way But, emotions are a luxury My heart is going without And takes from my being Like a never-ending doubt I dont' want to be sad But, I want to be able to cry I don't want to be apathetic But, I want to be able to sigh Lord, take this heart that's seen it all And mend each broken piece Lord, rest my war-weary spirit And let your healing never cease Lord, never let me become One who cannot feel And, Lord, always have me be The first to pray and kneel Give me this day, my daily bread And give me the strength to go on For a war-weary man with nothing to lose Is like life's pawn Give me an epiphany Just a simple ray of light To take me to the place Where my eyes can meet your sight

((July 2nd, 2000))

Life Of Purpose

This, a lifetime of trial and error
Of great hope and eventual let down
Of pure delight and imminent terror
A smile one second; the next, a frown

Blessings flow endlessly and with much grace They flow against tides of expectation Too often, they are thrown back in His face Selfish pride consumes us in this nation

Money, sex, power drive us to our goal
The shifting winds of culture knock us down
Until we bow to the opinion poll
So no unique opinion can be found

This, a lifetime of pressing through, onward Onward, but so rarely upward, we move And we speak words but rarely truth is heard Because the others might well disapprove

May we learn to stand on our own two feet Finding our individuality Again rising to challenge their deceit Driving out hate in its totality

Rise up, rise up and ne'er fear to stand firm Close out the voices echoing within And each day, choose to rise up and affirm Life with purpose; proud of where we've been

Life Revised

It's been a few years Since I've seen your face Walked a few miles Since I've felt your grace I keep replaying the day you died Everytime I do, I still cry Things have changed a lot Since you've walked this earth Been quite a few changes Some deaths, some births I know you've been with me And I know, my life, you see I never needed you quite as much As I need you right now Grandma, please help me Some way, somehow

((May 1st,2000))

Life With Love And Tragedy

Life with love and tragedy, they each flow In the inner sanctums that all men know Each lead to another, and another Paths lead to one then, soon, to the other

God, at times, weeps above... We weep below As each tragedy lines up in a row Loss uniting each sister and brother Wetting eyes of each father and mother

Oh, had I only known this long ago
When love piled high like fresh-fallen snow
I might not have so drawn to another
And, under that same love, gasp and smother

But, were I to have to choose once again In earnest I'd choose love, despite the pain

((September 11th, 2015))

Light Of Love

Seems like its been a thousand and one years Since I last heard your sweet voice in my ears And, a thousand and one miles do lie Between homes that encompass you and I

The last time we spoke, you seemed to have peace Your laughter came quickly and without cease And, the last time we spoke you seemed to be The same sweet girl that once sought after me

Alas, I know that you want nothing more Than to be a friend, with no hope in store For love to blossom between you and I Yet, the hope that is within me won't die

So, I pray that someday you might see me In the light of love, I hope you to see

I often wonder if you understood
That I meant for naught more than my best good
And all that I ever wanted to do
Was just to be right there, guiding you through

To sing you a song when you needed peace And lend an ear when you needed release And to love you unconditionally When ev'ry other fool had set you free

Ultimately, at the end of the day
I just wanted for you to hear me say
That you're a princess, and deserve the best
Then again, I'm no diff'rent from the rest

So, I pray that someday you might see me In the light of love, I hope you to see

Lone Sails A Ship

Sailing through these present currents and tides
This ship moves gracefully about the sea
Passengers and crew they never quite see
What's churning and spinning beneath these strides

Ever spinning further out of control
Ever wondering when the vortex ends
Pondering just where this ship will descend
And if someone might seek its drowning soul

Where will that fatal last iceberg appear Where does the battered, splintered hull find rest Will it e'er sail again... Finish its quest What lonely course should be set from here

Lone sails a ship, with ease above the waves If only one knew the torrents it braves

((March 5th, 2009))

Loneliest Of All

I suppose my thoughts were always naieve Believing that when you found that someone That life would be happy and filled with fun And, that feeling would remain when she'd leave

Reality set in the day she left
When the joy remained, but sadness set in Thinking about when I'd see her again
I fear the summer will not be so deft

The irony whipped my heart in a squall That though I had found the girl of my dreams And, love, on the horizon, sparkles and gleams Now she's gone, I'm the loneliest of all

Yet, the horizon nears close everyday Dear, may we keep this path and never stray

Lonely

Here in the darkness I sit and think
Upon times past on those yet to be
And wondering where do I go from here
It is so painful just to wait and see

I watch the dying of my closest friends
As tehy fight to survive, they die to me
I fight and I struggle to keep them near
But, who can fault a friend trying to be free?

And all the wise sages who once taught me Are active in their teaching, even still Yet, their lessons teach generations next And, this transition, indeed, is God's will

Family I love and have loved so long Even they oft misunderstand my words Though I try to tell of the dreams I see My voice, inadvertently, goes unheard

I try hard to pray to God, whom I know And meditate and listen for His voice But, often I go deaf from the silence And relieving slumber becomes my choice

For in my best dreams I dream of the past Of family, friends and sages of old Still laughing and talking with each other And my heart doesn't seem so sad, so cold

And, in my dreams, I see her face... smiling Who she is? I do not know her by name And when I awake I forget her face But, oh, how my heart loves her just the same

But, rise, I do and find myself alone Still wanting to be dreaming of love Still dreaming of the past and of her face But, awake I am, and lonely thereof ((May 23rd,2005))

Lonely Autumn

Slate grey sky over an overcast heart A new day dawning somewhere in the world Here, only wishing that new day would start Instead clouds, above, unfold and unfurl

Oh, this long, sad, lonely Autumn season Bringing a subdued sadness to the heart Solemn expressions keep, far, the reason The reason that this love was torn apart

Orange and golden hues line the city streets They give hope in a time when hope is dead Bringing fond memories when each leaf meets The eyes of lovers, who often have said,

'Cold, sad Autumn, embracing your blank sky Love will find not a lover such as I'

((October 24th, 2008))

Lonely Refrain

I once dreamt a dream, of life filled with love And a girl I loved whom I had dreamt of So much was in store, so much left to do But, love wasn't mine; her heart wasn't true

So, I sailed along and dreamt of the day When God might bring her beauty back my way But, the years have passed, and I have grown old The dream was a dream, or so I've been told

Why do we oft fall in love with our dreams The truth is never as good as it seems Love's fleeting; impossible to obtain So, why do I sing this lonely refrain?

She found someone new, in no time at all He was richer and more handsome and tall Despite my heart breaking inside my chest I sadly smiled, knowing it was best

Why do we oft fall in love with our dreams The truth is never as good as it seems Love's fleeting; impossible to obtain So, why do I sing this lonely refrain?

I've seen a million faces with my eyes
I've given love more than a couple tries
But, each time it seems a part of me dies
I'm left the rogue, who sits alone and cries

Why do we oft fall in love with our dreams The truth is never as good as it seems Love's fleeting; impossible to obtain So, why do I sing this lonely refrain?

I sit here alone, singing this refrain My heart breaks within this lonely refrain

((December 1st, 2009))

Lonely Winter

Lonely is my heart Empty is my hope It seems each turn is blocked Trapped by emotions I can't cope Every time the winter wind blows And trees sway in silhouette form I feel my heart freezing inside With no love to keep it warm When grey clouds sweep the sky And the cold raindrops turn to snow It makes me wonder why I've left And where my heart is leading me to go Sometimes I can hear whispers in the wind Speaking of love and hope to live on But, there is no one there when I turn I am nothing but fate's last white pawn The birds of the air laugh in mockery At my life's impending doom So, I silently stare at the lonely clouds And await my future tomb

((November 15th, 2000))

Long Ago Her Roses Died

Her eyes could soothe my deepest pain Though they attempted to restrain The tears she always tried to hide For long ago her roses died

A Spring, a Summer and a Fall We shared nothing, yet we shared all But, Winter came; she left my side For long ago her roses died

Dreamed, I, one day she'd come alive That she would smile, laugh and thrive But, to this day shadows abide For long ago her roses died

I'd give my all for them to bloom But, long ago her roses died

((January 5th, 2011))

Lord, Be With Them

Lord, be with them, and keep them in Your arms
Lord, open their eyes to Your miracles
And open their ears to Your voice
Soften their hearts to receive Your love
So, that in their older years they may keep You
And retain their youthful laughter and innocent smiles
And may my steps be ones that they can follow
To reach a heavenly goal
May my love for them and the lives they live
Shine through as a testimony to Your love for them
And may my faith open the doors to Your Kingdom
That the little children may come to You
Lord, be with them and open their eyes to Your presence

((December 29th, 2001))

Lost In The Mist

Chin up, my son, today you are a man No more tugging on mommy's apron strings Quit asking and asking help from her hands No more time for all your childlike things

Stop crying, stop weeping, mourning your loss Why can't you just stand on your own two feet? Live your life... leave family, be normal Stop looking for her, your problems, to meet

See that gold necklace placed upon her neck? It isn't your pendant lying there now Symbolism is clear... He took your place It will do no good to furl your brow

Danny, you're a man now, like it or not Close family... it will never exist Quit longing for it and striving for it Those days are memories, lost in the mist

((May 11th, 2007))

Love Anew

I hear your voice on the line and wonder
If you know just what your words mean to me
How they resurrect me when I'm under Feet of depression and anxiety

It's been so long since I've known this feeling
Of hope and a wanting of something more
And all the nights of fears so unyielding
Don't come 'round when I dream of what's in store

Oh, I've been wrong about feelings like this Let my heart become attached far too soon Cupid, may your aim not easily miss 'Tis too late, my heart doth already swoon

Oh, Cupid, your arrow aim straight and true For my heart now dreams of a love anew

((July 24th, 2009))

Love For A Season

The phrase has been said time and time again It is better to have loved and lost love Than never to have had love dreamed of And, I s'pose, that's my solace in the end

Though she broke this loving heart in April
At least I had her in the Summertime
Waiting for the time her eyes would find mine
Memories I've had, linger even still

Though she broke this loving heart in April At least I had her in Autumn's season How love grew with no apparent reason Memories I've had, linger even still

Though she broke this loving heart in April
At least I had her in the Wintertime
With her rosy cheeks and cold hands in mine
Memories I've had, linger even still

Oh, how she did break my heart in April With tears streaming down our both our faces Knowing we were going diff'rent places Pain I felt then, it lingers even still

In the end I s'pose all we have are dreams Oh, I wish love was easy as it seemed

((June 8th, 2008))

Love Lost, Part I

His grandma dead now, gone and passed away
The last page of her life written and closed
Her scarves lay neatly in the drawer
Of her dresser of solid, antique, oak
The funeral comes and goes that day
The world is a surrealistic portrait
All the colors blending in
All the brushstrokes combining as one
People crying as the organ plays
The casket now in the ground
The dirt piled in monument of
The one who loved this boy

((November 17th, 1999))

Love Lost, Part Ii

By her grass-covered grave, the old man stands
With a yellow flower within his hand
Remembering her love, now lost and gone
How one he had her company
Now he remembers at the memorial site
The sight of their very first kiss
Standing at the old town bridge
Memories flood his soul
Now he sits at home alone, alone
No family to claim his name
Why did she have to die so soon
Why is he now alone?

((November 17th, 1999))

Love Undiscovered

Please don't sit here and cry, sadly, my dear For love that you, so longingly, yearn for Bring forth that lovely smile and dry that tear For when we fall in love, you'll cry no more Often I've laid quietly, quarreling With the demon of heartache and despair Dreaming of that one delicate darling And, oh, how much, I want her to be there So, whoever you are, sweet seraphim Don't think that I am not searching as well Stay steadfast, and don't commit on a whim In loneliness, like I, 'till we meet, dwell For, I stay pure and whole for you, my dear That's what I am hoping to find in you So, bring forth your lovely smile, dry your tear For, God's plan for us, forever is true

Loving Her As I Do

I have been in a murky, saddened corridor And the pain is oft more than I can take At times I've forgotten just what I'm living for And each morning I find it hard to wake

Love's been my mantra long as I can remember And giving it has always trumped receipt I gave my love to her, April to December And then that love found its final defeat

I wonder at times if she thinks of me fondly
And, if she were better she'd take me back
More than anything, I guess my mind works oddly
And I only wish her to find her knack

In dreams I've seen her cry a million times before And in my heart I've heard her call my name At those times I pray for her to feel pain no more And know if she needs me, I'm still the same

I know she wants me to reach to her as a friend And I know she longs to hear my voice, too But, these feelings, by my own will, I just can't end And, bedlam, I refuse to put her through

For she simply cannot love me as I love her
And I can't stop loving her as I do
For when my eyes look on her, these thoughts start to stir
And she becomes central in life anew

Don't ask why my heart cannot disconnect within And just see it as a love I once knew I hope for a day when I look on where I've been And not see her, then, as right now I do

But, for now I just pray, five hundred miles away And my heart longs for love it can't embrace Forever looking forward to that coming day And dream her heart, for me, might have a place ((March 26th,2011))

Lumber And Wood

As I looked out while driving down the road Gazed, I, on a stack of lumber and wood And thinking back upon fond memories Lamented the building no longer stood

Oh, the place was one I did not enjoy
Where, once, I was forced to be long ago
But, thoughts of my companions made me weep
For, that known haunt I'll never again go

But, life rolls on without heed to my heart Progress takes sacrifice once in a while But, will I remember memories there? Will I remember my grandmother's smile?

Those images lie deep within my heart Where no earthly advancement may destroy Yet, I wondered, now, what I could recall From those carefree days when I was a boy

And, I prayed as the light went red to green That I'd forever remember my past All that which made me who I am today Will, deep within my soul, forever last

Magnificent Light

Months, seeming like years, in darkness and dread Wondering when tomorrow's dawn would break Praying an end to this constant heartache Praying, 'Dear God, raise this heart from the dead'

Starting slower that I thought it would be One ray broke through the horizon's dark clouds Faintly breaking the terrifying shroud As ray by ray, light poured in, I could see

Magnificent light, brighter than the sun Gleaming brilliantly off each mountaintop Illuminating those dark valley drops And brought peace as darkness was now undone

Magnificent light, beam radiantly Keeping fears and each dismay far from me

((September 17th, 2008))

Masterpiece

Perhaps it's cliche; a bit overdone
But, it seems apparent each day in life
Is a page written full of joy and strife
As though we're characters when the day's done

Some pages filled with ineffable bliss
Still others are wrought with heartache and pain
Some where the hero is going insane
What possible good could come of all this?

But, each day, anew, brings with it a choice To become the hero or the villain Tread on safe paths or those that are thrilling? After each defeat to raise strong their voice?

Will our hero fade to their sad decease? Or dawn triumphant in their masterpiece?

((June 3rd, 2008))

Meet Me There

My dear, I know that our time here is through Oh, how I wish I could just change your mind I have no choice but to let you leave me And pray that someone better, you will find

Those conversations we once had each night Have ended... May not ever come again So, just in case I never hear your voice I can't wait to see you when these days end

Oh, meet me there, across the Jordan Where my arms can embrace you once again Oh, meet me there, at the eastern gate of Zion And you'll see where my heart has always been

What a wonderful day that day will be When again I clearly hear that sweet voice Oh, how I've missed hearing that precious sound To hear it again makes my heart rejoice

Oh, meet me there, across the Jordan Where my arms can embrace you once again Oh, meet me there, at the eastern gate of Zion And you'll see where my heart has always been

Live your life to the fullest, dear sweetheart Don't leave any dream in the still of night I'll see you soon, don't worry about me Your future is standing before you bright

And, when, at last, you've followed every dream Your face, peaceful, content, with death dew's gleam Walk forward into magnificent beams These years, they are much shorter than they seem

So, meet me there, across the Jordan Where my arms can embrace you once again Oh, meet me there, at the eastern gate of Zion And you'll see where my heart has always been I'll be standing there a smile on my face You'll see where my heart has always been Please meet me there, upon the streets of gold Where my arms can embrace you once again

((April 17th,2008))

Mind Of Prose

I've seen their faces in my thoughts, my dreams
Their solemn silhouettes offer no sound
Their cries, however, blare out as a scream
They call for their sceptres, robes and their crowns

Look over there, a prince of stone kneels down While his damsel, frozen, yearns for his kiss No magician's spell, for them, will be found While the mage's staff seems not to exist

Open the door to the noble throne room
See the King sitting so regal and strong
And the Queen, she stands firm, beside her groom
They wait, patiently, for that which they long

They see me sit at the keyboard and scribe Their eyes go wide each time I grasp a pen Awaiting history to be described Who will lose the fabled war? Who will win?

For you see, these characters and their foes Exist not in this world of flesh and bone But, instead, subsist in the mind of prose Waiting, for them, to the world, to be known

((August 14th,2004))

Missing Missing You

An odd conundrum of sorts, I suppose Nostalgia following nostolgic thoughts After months of this sad heart being fraught And my mind thinking thoughts nobody knows

But, here's my heart, not missing you as much Finding peace and solace in our contrasts And the memory of your touch has passed Yet, oddly, I miss the thought of your touch

Depressed in joy, a paradox am I
Moving on, looking back into the mist
Missing missing you; missing what I missed
Though I've moved on, you're with me by and by

Missing missing you is a mystery But, I suppose that's how I'll always be

((November 1st, 2008))

Misty Eyes

Life hasn't been the same for some time now With the dark taking light some way, some how And, I'm alone, unable to disguise That now I see this world through misty eyes

Hasn't been long since you were here with me I still hear that laugh, setting my heart free But, oh, how all these precious moments fly Now, I walk this road with these misty eyes

Perhaps life is meant to be seen this way Perhaps joy isn't meant for me each day Perhaps I'm to reprise those last goodbyes Daily my heart dies and brings misty eyes

It dies as it remembers its demise And so, each day I see through misty eyes

((July 12th, 2008))

Moonlight

The night was dark and the road was lonely And, I found myself wishing for a friend A travel companion to keep me safe One that will help me to my journey's end

I found that companion within the Moon With Her white Light radiating so bright With her kind glow giving sight to my path Illuminating the dark roads of night

I saw southern clouds rolling in quickly
To my dismay, there was naught I could do
Yet, I still fell in love with the Moonlight
Knowing darkness I'd soon have to go through

The clouds rolled in sooner than I had hoped And the rain, it poured, like tears from above And, for what seemed like several lifetimes I was without the fond Light that I loved

Despite duration of my endeavor
The clouds rolled back to display brighter Light
Brighter than even that glow from before
I praised God for His care through this dark night

And, through the night, She kept me company But, then gently in the East, the dawn rose And, I saw what the Moon was reflecting Sunrise was greater than anyone knows

For, I saw the fruition of the Light
I saw, in glory, that which I had chased
And, drove slowly in complete speechless awe
While my focus on the road was unphased

So, in the darkness, when the moon shines naught Even when the moon returns from its shade Focus first on the road laid before you And, look for the dawn of Light, He has made ((May 31st,2007))

Moonlit Moments

On nights like these it's easy to miss you With the stars in the sky twinkling above It isn't hard to miss our long-lost love As I sit at our spot, thinking of you

I never pondered I wouldn't get
To share all these moonlit moments with you
Sitting under a sky of twilight blue
Yet, here I am, and alone I sit

I suppose I'll never see you again But, I'll always remember nights like these With crickets chirping in yonder trees And you snuggled so close, my arms within

Though I long for moonlit moments with you I'll always treasure memories of you

((May 15th, 2008))

My All In All

Where do I go when earth crumbles below And the sky turns dark as sackcloth above? Who can I trust? Whose refuge do I know? When I'm unlovable, who will still love?

Though dreams be crushed and vision becomes dark And truth I once knew be revealed as lies

No matter how oft I may miss my mark

I know that on You my heart can rely

My Rock and Savior; Shelter in the storm I lean upon You for all others fall May my desires finally conform To Your will, oh Father, my All in All

I lean upon You for all others fall Father, may You become my all in all

((November 17th, 2010))

My Declaration Of Independence

To all who keep by my side And to all who have done so before To all who will be with me tomorrow And to all who know me no more I have spent so many years Trying so hard to be Someone that people would love I have forgotten to be me So often I would compare myself To a friend or an acquaintance or a star Thinking of ways to be like them And wondering how they are the way they are So many people want me to be one way While all the rest want me to be another They lure me in with promises of love And shared fellowship with one another 'If you were just a bit more like this' They say with so much hope 'You would do wonders' So, in belief, I grasp for their rope But, each new time a hint comes my way I realize that it didn't achieve the wanted goal Only to find after I've changed my ways for them I've just dug myself deeper into my own hole It's been so long since I've been true to myself I don't know what my heart wants anymore I've been told so many times I'm one way or another And that I should change or disaster was in store 'You're too nice', 'You're too generous' 'You're too romantic' and 'You're too shy' 'Don't get so attached to those you love' And, 'Don't let everyone else see you cry' Well, what's so wrong with being nice? And, what's so wrong with giving my best? Why can't I tell someone how beautiful they are? And, what's wrong with being a little more silent than the rest? Before you can answer with your usual replies Before your cynicism runs free Let me tell you it doesn't matter

Because I am myself... And, that is all I will ever be

((October 10th,2001))

My Grand Fault

Been told at least a thousand times before
That the heart is vulnerable within
And to let someone break it is a sin
To beware of risks and to slam the door

And I have found a thousand times before
That the heart is vulnerable within
As girls have taken my love for a spin
And then left my heart bleeding, crushed and torn

But, if my grand fault is letting love in Trusting a girl who has hurt me before And choosing to trust, not slamming the door Let me sin and, if need be, sin again

For if, when I die, the worst they can say
Is that I was a fool who loved too much
Who never was calloused from pain's cruel touch
Then, I might so die satisfied that day

Love isn't always a muse's sweet touch
It isn't always a bright, sunny day
In fact, more often it isn't that way
But, you fight through the less to get to the much

And if my grand fault is letting love in Trusting a girl who has hurt me before And choosing to trust, not slamming the door Let me sin and, if need be, sin again

((November 19th, 2012))

My Pretty Prima Donna

My pretty prima donna on stage, all the world to see Oh, how beautiful you stand upon the hallowed stage How beautiful you'd be even in the composer's age But, blessed am I, that beauty is for no one but me

My pretty prima donna sing, angelic voice resound
Oh, how tender the tone, so sweet and pure, peek from your lips
With each lyrical note your passion, from your mouth, doth drip
So soon that heavenly sound within will be world renowned

My pretty prima donna smile; the crowd enjoys your act Oh, how sweetly laughable is the persona you bring Whose innocence and edge bring forth with it a witty sting Soon we'll see grand auditoriums and theatres packed

My pretty prima donna with me, all the world to see Blessed am I, that prima donna is for no one but me

((October 29th, 2007))

My Very Own Hell

All but forgotten and joyfully so
Thinking my mind would never again find
The way that your eyes once gazed into mine
Why do these thoughts come and how do they go?

For so long I had found peace that surpassed All of the torment my heart had gone through Searing pain that was inflicted by you For once I thought that the past was the past

But, now you rest dense once more on my heart An inexplicable sadness within Not knowing why this oppression begins Praying if you, too, hurt, your pain depart

Oh, how I pray, you are still doing well And sadness is just my very own hell

((September 30th, 2013))

Navigator

I never knew it was quite possible To have within my mind the quantity Of thoughts and emotions I have right now I never knew I could feel so depressed Yet, only to feel gratitude later Or fear and hope bound in the same second The world seems to be spinning faster now Than I have ever felt it spin before Lord, I try to find my anchor in You I have never once felt so blessed and cursed So cared and strong, lonely yet close to friends Nor have I been so uncomfortable Yet, here I stand, looking into the fog Yearning to see the winding path's next curve But no sight, to me, is known to its twists So, now I call for my Navigator The One who has taken my hand before For, these woods, I cannot journey alone

((January 11th, 2005))

Near

Tick, tock and with each moment life moves on On up and above the noise of the past The hum of past failures... Fanfares of joy Take a hold of life... Time is fleeting, fast

Today may bring joy or sadness, severe
It may bring with it the sun or the rain
Through it all, may the All-Knowing draw nigh
In great prosperity and in great pain

Dreams, they rush into us and out of us
But, some of these dreams, thank God, they come true
But, when visions don't bring reality
Draw near to me... Help me draw near to You

Oh, while in this world, we will have trouble Sometimes sadness or anger; loss or fear But, hallelujah, He's conquered this world Praise Him! For when we need Him most, He's near!

So, in everything, by diligent prayer Present your petitions unto His throne And peace that transcends all understanding Will let your heart know you're never alone

Never Again Come Near

In and out of my sight your figure fades
At your whim, at your will you come and go
No thought to pain I intimately know
And your entrance cuts like a sharpened blade

Like a ghost of romance past you appear Feign interest in my life for kindness sake Each word causing this heart of glass to break Each cadence bringing the memories near

I cannot escape when you call my name Not turning from the love I promised you Not breaking the oath that I still hold true How can I stop dreaming of that sweet frame

I can't resist you even still, my dear Please, be kind... Please, never again come near

((February 15th, 2010))

Never Let Me Go

Don't think I don't know we live separate lives
I know the life you lead and all the dreams you dream
I know fitting in love is tougher than it seems
I know that often, too soon, tomorrow, arrives

Priorities are already set in motion

Foremost, you must first pursue a life of your own
Blazing a path, a journey, into the unknown
I still stand... Waiting to give my full devotion

My dear, don't you know that I would give you my all If I knew that you would give me your all as well I would walk through fire or rain, heaven or hell Yes, dear, even through death's dark valley I would crawl

If only I knew that you'd never let me go How my heart breaks that, right now, you can't let me know

((October 20th, 2007))

Never The Same

In one moment, your hand grasped onto mine Stars spiraled while nature, herself, kept time And all seemed so right in the world that night With your hand in mine, skin so soft, so light

I saw you smile as I reached to you
I felt you relax as we both, now, knew
This chemistry went far beyond mere words
Lines between earth and bliss suddenly blurred

Never the same, I'll never be the same Ever since my eyes beheld your sweet frame While my hand held yours while we drove that night And your skin so soft, so pale, so light

No, never the same, never be the same E'er since your touch ignited my heart's flame

((September 29th, 2010))

New Life

Always press forward In God's path for you Always seek His guidance In the things that you do Stand firm in your faith And proudly proclaim That He is your Rock And you wear His Name The storms might strong And the waves might be high But, always remember He is by your side Remember to stop and enjoy All the things He has for you And dream and pray About what He has planned for you Don't ever forget Life is infinitely great So, go out and live it Before it's too late

((March 4th, 2001))

New Within

Shackled in bondage and fearing more pain Not believing freedom would come again Remembering not to tread where I've been Hate clothed in love left a permanent stain

Nothing I could do could remove the hurt Nothing I could do erased memories Nothing I could do would, my doubt, appease So, I settled for a love life, inert

I ne'er saw you coming into my life Didn't know you'd bring healing in your wing Or, soothe my weary spirit when you sing But, healing, soothing, you erased my strife

You've taught me to trust and live life again Dear, I'm so blessed I've been made new within

((August 10th, 2010))

Nights Like These

It is on nights like these I miss her most Not unlike my missing her every day Where I toss and turn during each night's fray But, it's on nights like these, I need her close

It is on nights like these I miss her most Where the world comes crumbling down on me And words she used to say are all I need And, a loving lady, my heart could boast

It is on nights like these I miss her most Her warm, gentle presence embracing mine And all healing came when her hand I'd find When she was by my side, through pain I'd coast

It is on nights like these I miss her most
I suppose not unlike all other days
Where my heart yearns for her nurturing ways
It just seems nights like these, I need her close

Oh, how I wish that tonight she were close Instead of one of my memory's ghosts

((June 17th, 2008))

No Longer Around

Here's a toast to all whom I love Thank you for all that you've done I don't know if I'd had made it to today If all of those who I can think of were none The happiness and the laughter They will always, in my heart, remain When the sun is shining brightly Or when the dark clouds begin to rain I'll remember all the memories That we have diligently found And when the sadness starts to come I'll remember your joyful sounds Sounds of talking and giggling Sounds of your voices in my hear And, I pray that you, too, will remember me Just in case I am not always near We've had some wonderful times together In groups of simply two or many more Times of love and care, sprinkled with tears That's all I'm really living for So, if one day you find me No longer living here with you And, you're striving to remember What it was we used to do Remember just one thing To keep me fresh in your hearts That I have loved you all To the very end... From the very start

((December 31st,2000))

Now

Called but waiting in midst of death and doom Reaching out to the hands who cannot grasp Watching dead men stepping into their tombs God, I cry out for my time to be now

Human faces placed on robotic forms
Searching for purpose within the routine
They long to be someone, outside the norm
God, I cry out for my time to be now

They watch me prepare to enter the war They watch me as I don the medic's frock They wonder what all this training is for God, I cry out for my time to be now

Oh, God, shall I linger and learn to fight?
Am I not ready for the fray right now?
Perhaps now is the time to shine the Light
God, I cry out for my time to be now

Lord, answer me in the still, silent dark
Find me standing steadfast for Your command
Lord, don't allow my heart to miss the mark
Although I cry for my time to be now

Now See

Years alone, by myself, have left me cold Left me broken, bitter and getting old I used to wonder if my heart could love And attain the closeness that I dreamed of

Prickly and razor sharp as a knife
My heart had become due to fear and strife
Leaving gashes on those who even tried
To comfort me as I sat and I cried

Then there was you, who'd been broken before Knowing the pain and, yes, knowing the score You found me when I was hurt and afraid And realized the pain that was once laid

Open wounds bleeding is what you now see Realize the power you have o'er me

I see you crying behind those dry eyes
I see you gazing up into the skies
I know you hurt even when you smile
And I know that love might take a while

I am as patient as a man can be Someone like you, rarely loves one like me And, my dear, you should know that I do know I'd be a fool to ever let you go

But, sometimes I fear you'll never break free And your eyes won't see what I need them to see Fear that you'll never love or trust again Or move your heart back to where it had been

Open eyes crying is how you now see Please remember I'm not them, I'm me

I could ask you to stop letting hurt reign
I could ask you to bury all your pain
But, I know willpower won't do much more

Than cocktail 'brellas do for strong downpours

So, I choose to sit and wait and love you And pray that your love will someday shine through Oh, even though those days may not arrive I'll be there to help you to reach and strive

For I know at least this much remains true I do not love you for what you can do For thoughts you express or things that you say In fact, I know why I love you this day

An open heart, once blinded, can now see Because you chose to take a chance on me

((September 28th, 2010))

Oh, Corinth

Oh, Corinth, with intellect and knowledge
This flame within me has gone from your door
At times there must be a rekindling
So, that flame might burn brighter than before

Oh, Corinth, my heart burns, within, for you I am sorry I have failed you thus far Complacency had taken precedence Fighting battles of ease... losing the war

Oh, Corinth, I remain in prayer for you Watching you living, dying, not knowing The Truth that would set you free if only You could really see what He was showing

Oh, Corinth, I'll return to you someday With a heart that loves you, yet even more With a will that cannot be torn in two All with the hope that you'll open the door

So, Corinth, keep searching for Love and Truth Although you may not know how they appear When you find them someday then you will know This is Love... Truth... And it's always been near

On Nights Like These

A cool crisp breeze wafts the nighttime Spring air I am taken to a place where you cared Of our life and love and staying with me Never once a thought of being set free

A year has passed since I last heard your voice Dear, I realize that has been my choice But, how can I hear the voice that used to Bring affectionate thoughts, thought to be true

Oh, sweetheart, I miss it on nights like these Where stars sparkle above a cool night's breeze Or on nights where the grey pallid displays Or when it rains or snows or, nigh, always

But, especially so, on nights like these Thoughts of you prosper with unwelcomed ease

And, I wonder if you e'er think of me How great our lives, together, used to be About the nights we sat beneath those stars And looked for Jupiter, Venus and Mars

But, alas, I have my doubts that you do As another man is now courting you And what use is it to have thoughts of me When your life still remains as it should be

So, I suppose I'll sit and think of you With eyes of green contrasting skies of blue Even if you ne'er spare a thought for me Thinking of you in our spot is where I'll be

So, my dear if you're e'er back up this way You'll know where I'll be most every day

((April 4th, 2009))

Once More Into The Fire

Once more into the fire, my Lord, once more into the fire Another one calling to be saved, Lord, what shall I do? Therefore to offer help I go once more into the fire

Once more into the fire, my Lord, once more into the fire I can't save her with my own two hands, Lord, what shall I do? To offer her your strong arms, Lord, once more into the fire

Once more into the fire, my Lord, once more into the fire What of the others who won't call out, Lord, what shall I do? Pray for them and call to them, Lord, once more into the fire

One last time into the fire, Lord, once more into the fire I see You reaching now out to me, Lord, what shall I do? Take your hand to climb out, Lord, nevermore into the fire

((April 6th, 2005))

Once Upon A Dream

Once upon a sunset, red I took your heart in hand And on the whitened beach we stood Upon the pale night sand And we conversed of days gone by Of events, together, we'd seen Your smile, bright, under the stars As, in my arms, you leaned Our hearts, united, there under the moon As we held each other close And we whispered sweet forevers, too Vows that no one knows All of this we shared that night But, things aren't always as they seem For life was not an element there Alas, it was all once upon a dream

((August 30th, 2000))

Once Upon A Time

Last chapter closes this star-crossed saga Full of laughter and love... heartache and tears And the comedy becomes tragedy The shepherd's son walks alone through the years

I do suppose we always knew the truth
A princess never falls for a pauper
Yet, their romance, it seemed so genuine
We hoped, perhaps, love would conquer proper

The King seemed wise from his throne far away Saying marriage to paupers was unfair For the princess deserved riches and fame The pauper could never provide such fare

Oh, how, the pauper, he cried when she left Remembering the happy days of yore How he thought for certain her love was real Thinking of her voice he'd come to adore

But, fairy tales are just fiction at best And, love didn't win her heart in the end That love, now, is just once upon a time Perhaps faded... Perhaps always pretend

((April 17th, 2008))

One Day In My Life

What if for only one day in my life
I found the strength to give more than before
I found a belief it might make a change
I found the passion I've been fighting for

What if I woke one day with a fire
A fire that couldn't be quenched by doubt
A fire that burned away all despair
And ignite what I've been dreaming about

And on that one day, maybe I'd break through Through the barricades of my affliction Through the obstacles of this listless sloth To the person within with conviction

If for just one day, I could be that man Maybe I'd be remembered tomorrow

((February 20th, 2015))

One Last Goodbye

A million miles down this rocky road
Oh, the smiles that remain in my mind
And, memories, they don't have a hard time
Finding their way into my dream's abode

Eight thousand hours treasured forever And a lonesome, broken heart on the mend Love doesn't always come to a happy end At least it's a journey we endeavored

So, now that we've gone our separate ways And the 'I love yous' are now history I want to leave no shroud of mystery How I loved you, and still love you today

I guess I'll love you forever somehow Even when God grants love with someone new There will remain a diff'rent love for you But, it's time for one last goodbye for now

Until the thought of you no longer brings Images of wedding days, children's laughs An intimate love shown on your behalf Until then, let this hope, in your ear ring:

May God bless you and faithfully keep you May His countenance upon you bright shine May His face graciously turn toward thine And may He grant you peace, lasting and true

'Til I again look into your green eyes Please accept, with love, this one last goodbye

((May 30th, 2008))

One Perfect Night

Tonight I saw your beautiful smile once more Tonight I saw your eyes shining bright once again Tonight I didn't have words to tell what' within Tonight... I've never had a night like this before

It has been so long since I've felt so heartbroken It has been longer yet since I've been so in love And as I looked up at the cloudy skies above I thought of all the things that were left unspoken

More than anything I dreamed of one perfect night Where, together, we could sit, holding each other On a bench or on a dock just one another Watching the stars drift by in the dusky twilight

Oh, Lord, I pray for this night to come near and soon My sweetheart and I, snuggling under the moon

((May 17th, 2007))

One Year Ago Last

One year ago last, I last saw your face Lovely to view, eyes spark'ling just for me Love blossoming for all the world to see Oh, how I long to go back to that place

If I'd known I'd never see you again
I would have savored that image much more
I would have shown love deeper than before
Oh, if I had just known it was the end

Images flash across my mind of you Standing at the door as I drove away Neither knowing it would be our last day Oh, if we had just known, what would we do

One year ago last, I last saw your face Oh, how I long to go back to that place

((March 7th, 2009))

One You'LI Never Know

Run, run away from things you know are true Further, further past all you used to do And choose only what your heart wants to hear Nonetheless, if look for me, I'm near

Where once you followed and once you believed Relying on me for all of your needs Now you look around to the flesh and blood I know you could come back, if you just would

Close your mind, close your heart and close your ears Clench your teeth and swallow those righteous fears Close me out, but act like you've kept me in Believe it long enough sin won't be sin

Let your faith bleed from you in a slow, steady flow 'Til the you that once was is one you'll never know

((May 10th, 2012))

Our First Kiss

A million stars shining all above us Night air, thick, with hope of what was to come Venus shining her approval on us All limbs and heart feeling ever-so numb

What momentous event must bring such fear? Such, sweet, trembling fear into our hearts? Oh, too quickly, the moment... It came near To quickly came our moment to depart

Oh, how memorably awkward it was Yet how perfectly smooth it came to be How important was that moment because It was the first time we kissed... You and me

There is no other moment as sweet as this As the late night hour of our first kiss

((July 8th, 2007))

Passionate Sunset

The solemn sunset, red with passion Drops below the level horizon
The red apples in the green orchard
Sway swiftly with the wind
Nature sings her ancient hymn
In the silent stillness of the dusk
In the silent stillness of the dusk

((September 5th, 1999))

Perhaps

My dear, you'd be so proud of me, I think
I rarely think longingly upon you
Wishing the sleep to end and dreams come true
Rarely being at that teary-eyed brink

I suppose they'd all say I'm over you
After all I don't cry for us these days
And once again my lips ring forth God's praise
I suppose their observations are true

I suppose I'm truly over my dream
Of loving only you for forever
And of leaving your side never ever
Perhaps our love wasn't all that it seemed

Perhaps I am over your sudden flight
That is, of course, except nights like tonight

Perhaps it's the near full moon high above The still night air whispering in my ear With the stars shining so bright and so clear Perhaps just Fall reminds me of your love

Where cool breezes blow 'cross this broken road Gently bringing memories from the north Of our weekends together and so forth Perhaps my heart still holds this heavy load

Perhaps you're entirely over me
And, I suppose it's for the best you are
I would never find healing for these scars
Apart we will both, much happier, be

Perhaps, over me, you've always have been But would one question be, to you, a sin?

Do you e'er think of me on nights like these? Where the stars we once watched twinkle above How in those moments we were so in love All in the midst of this Northwestern breeze

Do you find yourself wondering at all What might have become of us in the end If all of our problems we would transcend Do you e'er miss me? Do you e'er recall?

Perhaps you don't miss me as I miss you But, if you do and want to honor me Don't hesitate to be all you can be And know I'll be proud of you if you do

If you ever think of me and miss me Honor me and be all that you can be

((November 14th, 2008))

Perhapses

Perhaps someday I'll look and I'll find you're no longer there Perhaps I'll see the departure coming And I'll hear the final cadence strumming Perhaps I'll wonder, in silence, if you e'er really cared

Maybe our tomorrows won't look quite as good tomorrow
Maybe promises we easily made
Tomorrow won't be easily obeyed
Maybe the hope we planted will harvest naught but sorrow

But, what if the perhapses and the maybes don't come true What if this love is as real as it gets And it doesn't run, but patiently sits What if the day closes and finds us still happy, not blue?

Well, if it's real and my heart can feel like this forever Than all the maybes and the perhapses And the risk of possible collapses Become worth it for the hope of love that will endeavor

Perhaps one day I'll find myself standing solo once more
Maybe it will be more than I can take
After I put all that I had at stake
But, when love's in play, risk's always worth what might be in store

((June 24th, 2010))

Perpetual Horizons

Sad eyes of memories of days gone by Thoughts of what could have been and should have been All the hopes and dreams welling deep within Wondering what moment set it awry

Still deep within past the tears of defeat Lies the same ambitions and desire Lasting through the rain and through the fire Thinking the life once lived might soon repeat

Having faith deeper than sorrow and pain
That the next chapter in this tale of life
Might hold new plots with less quarrelsome strife
And lessons learned now won't be learned in vain

Ahead perpetual horizons wait Filled with life greater than my dream of fate

((September 5th, 2008))

Plant These Feet

Oh, God, give me the strength to move forward
Build a man from ashes of this coward
Teach me to stand, 'tho I may want retreat
Lord, steady these hands and, Lord, plant these feet

Hurting deep inside as though cut by steel
Not wanting the pain that God knows I feel
I'd pray for my heart to go numb again
But, I find pain's better than where I've been

Responsibility and sacrifice
Honor and duty and paying the price
Traits that are worthy and noble in deed
Patience and wisdom are traits that I need

The path looks so rugged and overgrown Lord, clear it out so your path might be shown

((October 4th, 2010))

Precipice

Here we stand at the precipice of history
Fearfully gaze at its awe-inspiring face
Behind us are a flood of our greatest failures
Like never before we must now set high our pace

Tragically, many before us have tried and failed To rise to the apex of the height of their time So few have made it to the peak's high pinnacle Some lie dashed below, fatefully failing the climb

Easy would it be to sit and mourn fallen friends And, our lives, let the tide of history consume Failing to try for fear of rocks that lie below Instead helping to dig our obscurity's tomb

But, friends, today we must rise in the face of fear We must grab each stone of greatness and strive beyond To the apogee for which our forerunners strove Their souls, in encouragement, to our will, respond

And when we start our journey to sacred greatness We'll remember to turn and reach a hand below Selflessly assisting each of our companions Not leaving one man, woman or child in woe

So, on that day when we stand on the mountaintop Together, as a people, we can say once more That we are not islands, set alone in the sea But, we're a new mankind, far better than before

((May 11th, 2014))

Protect

I saw her tears I heard her cries Who had hurt her With sorrow in her eyes That monster had touched her Who would dare to touch I felt her pain I loved her so much She blamed herself For things she didn't do He had made her believe Lies untrue I'll protect her Forever and a day For her I'd die For her I will pray

((November 1st,1999))

Psalm 145

Praise and exultation, love and adoration Exultation and worship to God almighty Almighty God, most worthy, and King of glory Raised up from generation to generation

Your works are magnificent and full of splendor Your good deeds and faithfulness are always present Your peace and Your kindness, to my heart, is pleasant Slow to anger with your compassion to render

Undiscerning with goodness, His blessings reach all And those who acknowledge those blessings praise His name Proclaiming your power and promoting your fame Your reign, eternal, your Kingdom will never fall

May I join with all creatures as my worship grows And no matter my lot, may my praise overflow

Your faithfulness is sure; your promises are true When I fall, You pick me up and you raise my eyes And, when I am poor and hungry, you hear my cries You feed me and clothe me, and draw me close to You

When this life seems unfair and my heart feels betrayed I know You are faithful and your righteousness reigns And when I call to you in my weakness and pain You steady my soul and give me strength for the fray

You know all the desires that stir in my soul
Fruition will be granted at Your perfect time
Until then You will grant me the strength for the climb
All the while perfecting and making me whole

May I join with all creatures as my worship grows And no matter my lot, may my praise overflow

((March 15th, 2012))

Purity Lost

I saw your face upon the screen today Just as I have, time to time in the past In many ways no different from the last And I missed you in the same silly way

But, something was different about this view Something was missing, first I didn't see I scanned the countenance staring at me Five times over I found that which was new

Your left hand was missing your turquoise ring The symbol of which you were once so proud Purity hidden behind a small silver shroud Convictions and standards your soul did cling

Purity lost, but isn't forgotten
Sin can be cleansed like dirt washed from cotton

Shouldn't have been a shock as it was to me I knew your life and knew what it entailed I knew you were fragile, broken and frail And life wasn't all you'd hoped it would be

I still have faith in all that you can be
I know your aspirations and your dreams
Though the road be rocky, or so it seems
You'll naught make a disbeliever out of me

So, when you've done all the world sees as right I'll find a silver ring for you to wear
As past and future lie before you, bare
You will rise once again, into the light

Purity lost, but isn't forgotten
Sin can be cleansed like dirt washed from cotton

((December 11th, 2012))

Ravaging

What is that all-familiar twinge inside Still gnawing, gnashing that inner fiber Constantly looking to pay the piper The piper within tauntingly resides

What was it that was there so long ago What painful scar still oozes life this day What hope is there to ever end this fray Will tranquility e'er, truly, be known

Why does it scorch, again, this hollowed shell As if searching for valuable treasure Seeking to destroy some hint of pleasure Yet, wiser sought these rich plunders in Hell

Ravaging that which no longer bears meat Still sucking marrow for something to eat

((February 1st, 2009))

Reach High And Be Bold

The moments have come and gone, no different than before
And the world spins around from night to day and night again
In the twilight I utter pleas for mercy for my sin
It would appear nothing has changed since you walked out my door

I'm sure everyone thinks I am over you by now
Tears don't fill my eyes when your name's mentioned any longer
By all public accounts, the pain's made me grow e'en stronger
But, instead, the fire has only grown deeper somehow

Though the world never sees, you still haunt my every thought And, all alone, no one hears me cry for you in the night Waking with your face, through my tears, still burnt into my sight Searing reality that my heart's distress is all for naught

But, in my prayers, I think of you whole once again, anew Stars shining within your eyes and confidence in your voice A solemn resolve to forevermore make the best choice And smiling and laughing like you always used to do

But, for now you sit in pallor, rotting from within, out Your eyes dark and cloudy and fingers numbed by callouses Intemperate temper flaring and heart filled with malice A return to your beauty, seemingly the whole world doubts

But, I believe in you and the strength deep within your soul Though it be hidden deep and seems so far beyond your grasp It is waiting for the moment that you reach out and clasp Ahold of all that's meant for you and that which makes you whole

Today, today, raise your hands up and strive to clinch ahold
Of your purpose and your hope; Don't fear; Reach high and be bold.

((August 31st,2012))

Release Me

Merciful Savior, I beg, release me From this sackloth mask which, mine eyes, doth shield Let me see, once again, the harvest field Merciful Savior, won't you set me free

If darkness must dwell and vision, impede Then, Lord, bind my mouth by the same dark twill For what good are my words, arid and still Without benefit of an optic lead

And if my mouth be bound from oration
Oh, God, as well bound my hands and my feet
For without words how might my hands, then, greet
The children longing to be Your nation

I cry to you, Messiah, show to me Ways to follow You... How, again, to see

((March 25th, 2009))

Remember Us Laughing

Don't look in my eyes this moment, my dear You won't see me as I want to be seen That image of how I have always been Don't remember me with eyes full of tears

Oh, I know that you have to leave me now I suppose that I have known for some time You must take your path and I must take mine We'll go on without each other somehow

But, if you ever think of me someday Please don't think of me like I am this day Instead, remember us laughing, I pray Not these frail attempts begging you to stay

Remember us laughing at the state fair With summer breezes tickling your hair

((December 29th, 2008))

Renaissance

Darkened paths lay within shrouded walkways
And guarded hearts and muffled tongues once reigned
Dispassionate eyes hid what once was pain
Solitude and fear were standard those days

The wounded heart pumped forth nothing but tar A battered soul that had been ripped to shreds Festered, secretly longing to be fed Yet, the food it sought seemed ever too far

In a moment in time paths lit brightly
A spark lit up behind those steely eyes
Where tear ducts once dried out, started to cry
A rebirth the heart could not take lightly

Beneath the layers of tar covered life
The heart now pumped hope, a trickle at first
And more and more until it pumped forth bursts
Now passion replaced apathetic strife

A glimpse of an angel sparked that new day And what once lay dormant and dead inside Found new life that now sprung anew with pride And bound forth childlike laughter and play

Fall to Spring, a resurrection of sorts Sentimental reflection never mocked And romantic notions no longer blocked Not letting the past, the future, contort

Welcome to this bright new day's revival Where friends gather and love one another Emotions come like a wayward brother The goal is now love, not just survival

((June 3rd, 2010))

Renewed Hope

Renewed hope, follow my actions Oh, hope of God, keep me true To my vows and my commitments To follow and obey only You Hope that softly touches my heart Once again, work in my life Help me help others in their hurt And, with You, ease their strife Holy Spirit renew that hope That once lived within me That once took me to greatness Let it once again, quietly be Lord, take me from my sins And set my eyes upon You For all things fade away In the Light that shines so true Free my heart from the shackles That so often bind its love And give it true strength The only strength that comes from above

((January 23rd,2001))

Rest Easy

Long and rugged path stretches out for miles ahead Short strides make the horizon seem neverending Obstacles just beyond each curve, ever bending So oft wishing to be home, warm and safe, in bed

Heroes are never made behind shrouds of closed eyes Nor greatness achieved by simply dreaming at night Well-beaten paths rarely passionate love ignites And those who do naught but wait fade away and die

Be immovable, never questioning the stand Don't let tears fall, smile and forever be strong Rest easy in Him and the truth behind His song Look for answers, but know you might not understand

Love freely; express no remorse in its embrace Even if it devours and painfully scars And quickly departs leaving deep, defining scars Even then, know that true love cannot be replaced

Lady, don't let tears fall and forever be strong Rest easy, my dear, and find your peace in His song

((June 27th, 2010))

Restless

Yearning something more in the midst of something great Striving something with more significant impact Feeling more whole than ever before, yet something lacks Searching for that key to Your joy, key to this fate

Where can the lost finally find their way home, Lord? Where can the restless find rest for a single day? Where can the weak find a warm, loving place to stay? When all else fails us we know it's within Your Word

Lord, guide our eyes to the wisdom which seeks You out Lord, grant us the strength to humbly follow Your path Lord, may we choose Your grace and not choose Your wrath May we always have faith in You without a doubt

May the Lord bless us and keep us, smile upon us And may He be gracious and give His peace to us Amen

((October 2nd, 2006))

Right Then... Right There

Anxious awaiting and longing for her
She who makes my days bright and my dreams grand
Silently hoping for things not yet seen
Ah, for now, yearning to just hold her hand

And the time, it creeps by, taunting my heart Whose beats count down the seconds one by one To the moment I can see those green eyes Whose stare makes my very being undone

I've dreamed of when I will see her again Her embrace meeting mine under the stars When that time spent waiting will seem worthwhile And, for a short time, that time will be ours

But, dreams won't do justice to that moment
I doubt my thoughts could ever bring such bliss
So I wait... Ever-dreaming, even still
When we're apart, there's naught better than this

Here's to the time I hold her once again Running my fingers through her golden hair With her head nestled into my shoulder Oh, how I long to be right then... Right there

((July 1st,2007))

Runaway Heart

I once had a girl, and once she had me And though her charms were charms in which I'd dreamed Her infatuation wasn't all it seemed My happily captured heart, she set free

Ever since I've chased this runaway heart Hunting answers to patch it's gushing sieve Seeking out life in life, that I might live Alone on this earth; from her, far apart

Though I'm nearer this solitary strength
I am still longing for life lived before
My past vices, made her show me the door
Love is a game played, often at arm's length

Perhaps someday, another, I'll draw near To bring peace to this life of hurt and fear

((October 2nd, 2008))

Sand To A Pearl

Oh, little girl how I wish that I could Show you that someday you'll smile again That it'll happen, all of a sudden when A moment strikes more sweetly than it should

And, all these memories that haunt you now Where you see him in each place you once passed And, how the dreams you dreamt were meant to last Resolve to faded nostalgia somehow

Little girl, I see the tears in your eyes I've been there before, I know the pain well But, this sadness, your own, personal hell Will soon turn to bliss as you slowly rise

And, hurt you feel, little girl, little girl Will turn to beauty like sand to a pearl

I know you now think that life won't go on Because he's chosen a different path Now that you have incurred his sudden wrath He's journeyed away, but love is not gone

For the love that God allowed you to feel For the short time that you were in his arms Adoration you had for all his charms And, the cuts that sting and seem to not heal

All of this will appear all but a dream
Dreamt in a dimension so far away
When the one the Father chose comes that day
And, all that's real is better than it seemed

And, hurt you felt, little girl, little girl Has turned to beauty like sand to a pearl

Sanguine

Five nights away, a million before

A knock and an answer at that same door

Perhaps meaning entry, but likely not

A spark ignites where it once sparked before

A look and then away into the sky
Drifting glances, and a wandering eye
Much to ponder and not that on this night
Troubled mind, an exasperated sigh

More questions abound where answers were sought But the clockwork reversed was all for naught Flip the calendar to another page And maybe, just maybe, there's still a shot

The blood and the marrow that once had clot May still be the sanguine that once I sought

((April 19th, 2017))

Seek Love

Simple to do, easy to fabricate Love for a weekend, gone tomorrow night Not what was meant to be or what is right But, too frightening to just sit and wait

For what if the knight in shining armor Never journeys across the heart's courtyard And, there left all alone, saddened and scarred Even 'Good Enough' has someone in store

For what if the princess won't need rescue And, in her royalty, never glances At one in need of life's second chances And, 'Good Enough' has found someone to woo

What's one to seek, 'Good Enough' or love, true Seek love... Seek a love that's worthy of you

A bird in hand is worth two in the bush Does this wisdom hold when it comes to love The one thing in which there's nothing's above Perhaps best just give love a little push

But, alas the world is full of those who chose
The safety of certainty of a love
In which they, themselves convinced themselves of
That the love they had was the best they'd know

But, unhappy are they who look to find Their gallant knight kneeling before their feet Or their princess waiting, champion, to meet But, to 'Good Enough', instead, are confined

What's one to seek, 'Good Enough' or love, true Seek love... Seek a love that's worthy of you

Chivalry is not dead, nor is true love Love that resonates in poems and books Is alive and hoping you, too, will look And seek the will of Him that sits above

Respect and honor waits for those who wait A storybook life isn't out of reach No matter what this modern world may teach Seek that true love and have faith in your fate

Seek that love... Imitators, forsake them Find it and vehemently pursue it For once together, strife, you'll get through it Please wait for them and don't mistake them

For one should seek that love... That love... Love, true Seek love... Only the one worthy of you

((February 9th, 2009))

Selah

Feel the air around you
Strengthening your soul
Sense His arms around you
In HIs infinite control
Selah, in your troubles
He's with you 'till the end
Selah, through your happiness
He'll always be your friend
Selah, praise the Lord
In silent moments of prayer
And, Selah, simply be still
And know you're in God's care

((September 27th, 2001))

Self-Made Prison

A wife who loves me and will never leave A grin that shines out problems of the day Tender kisses that rise above each fray These are the kind of hopes I once believed

My kids in my lap as I read them tales
Of heroes and their maidens in distress
Tucking them in with a goodnight caress
Oh, how I prayed that these dreams wouldn't fail

A desk; an office; my name on the door Successful in my career endeavors The search for better forever severed Dreams of personal success, nothing more

Life didn't turn out like I'd envisioned Sitting alone in my self-made prison

Unwise choice spending an inheritance
On a house built upon a sandy shore
Nightmares now flash of the waves as they tore
The structure from its shaky existence

Trusting mentors as they guided me on To bondage that would define a decade If they had known, they'd have told me to stay Now I'm just an institutional pawn

I gave her my all: my heart, soul and dreams Laid my future at her feet, believing All her promises of never leaving But, her love was less lasting that it seemed

Life didn't turn out like I'd envisioned Sitting alone in my self-made prison

Oh, Father won't you take this broken heart Pick up even the smallest shattered piece Make it new, make it Yours, give me release Set me on a course, give me a new start

These failures occupy my thoughts by day And, at night they haunt my every dream I wake in a sweat; on my lips a scream I cannot go on living life this way

Lord, heal these sicknesses that oft plague me They render me useless and make me sleep And the pain they bring causes me to weep God, grant me reprieve... Won't You set me free

Life didn't turn out like I'd envisioned Sitting alone in my self-made prison

Lord, in my life, grant me a new vision Purpose enrapt with Your Great Commission

((February 19th, 2010))

Sing Me A Song

Sing me a song so I can sleep tonight
Tell me stories of mystery or woe
So, for a moment, my troubles may go
And, just once, all in my world might seem right

Sing me a song so I can sleep tonight
Make each word seem as if written for me
Don't let your voice waiver or go off key
Sing to me until morning becomes night

Sing me a song so I can sleep tonight Although my heart no longer feels that love Though to the side, my emotions, are shoved Sing me a song and make the darkness bright

Sing me a song so I can sleep tonight So, just once, all in my world might seem right

Sing me a song, a song that's just for me Yes, I know I can't give you what you want You know I refuse to put up a front But, oh, how I miss songs that set me free

Sing me a song, a song that's just for me Make it pure and make it rise far above Bitterness that tails unrequited love Please, sing and remind me what I'm to be

Sing me a song, a song that's just for me I miss your voice pushing me to stay strong I know your very life was a love song I know your heart paid a terrible fee

Oh, please sing me a song, one just for me One just for me, so that I might be free

((February 19th, 2011))

Six Long Months

Six long months without hearing your sweet voice Excruciatingly long months alone Wish I could say I wasn't at the phone Waiting for a call, but I had no choice

Still breaks me to think it's over for good From you, 'I love you' I won't hear again I suppose mistrust of fate is my great sin Oh, I'd move on now, if only I could

Six long months, I still wonder what went wrong It all came crashing down in one moment And our love, then, you were so far from it Alone I sit and write out a sad song

Oh, love of my life, I long for the past Oh, God of my heart, pleast end this pain fast

((October 6th, 2008))

Sleepless

Sleepless tonight, my mind ponders upon
The happenings that have come and will come Wondering from where, next, they will come from Sleepless, in silence, waiting out the dawn

Thoughts of victories won thus far along
And the defeats that left my heart breaking
Hopes for tomorrow don't quell the aching
But, hopes, today, tomorrow will right wrongs

Oh, Lord, calm this beating heart within me And dim thoughts of joy and sadness for now Grant peace as much as my heart will allow Tomorrow wake me to all I can be

Remind me these memories should have taught To be thankful for what, right now, I've got

((August 30th, 2008))

So Much Life For So Much Death

The leaves fly above my head
As the dog barks down the street
Fall has come like a thief in the night
Stealing life from summer, replacing it with death
The colors are prettiest right before the fall
The wind blows hardest right before the storm
Funny how much life
Can bring so much death

((October 3rd,1999))

So Often

So often I've wondered and often wonder still If there is a dream this heart, within, can follow Without leaving my spirit empty and hollow And a dream, that I really can, indeed, fulfill

So often I ponder where life is leading me Yet, more often than not, I feel my wheels spinning And in life's great race, everyone else is winning While I'm just waiting for someone to set me free

So often I see glimmering glory ahead Spark'ling on the horizon like the morning sun Praying that I reach it before my day is done Hoping I find purpose before they find me dead

Father, guide me to the dreams You would have for me And, please, loving Father, come set this captive free

((November 22nd, 2009))

Someday

Someday I will meet you again, far away, far away
Someday I will hear your gentle voice call my name once more
And all of the fears that once raged inside me like a war
Will, in that moment be soothed by your voice, on that sweet day

Someday I will hold your wrinkled hands in mine by and by Someday I will see your smile spread ear to ear again And failures I held onto will be carried on the wind When I, again, hear your laugh when I'm caught up in the sky

Someday I will talk with you, someday not too long from now Someday I'll listen to your stories from life and beyond And questions I once had will fade as once again we bond Where the saints of all the ages, His knowledge is endowed

Someday I will meet you again, far away, far away And, in that moment, be soothed by your voice, on that sweet day

((January 17th, 2014))

Someone That I Can Hold

The north wind is blowing Can you hear it call The chill of winter is here Causing me to stall My bones ache from time to time And hope so often dies Like the trees outside Alone my heart still lies You'll give me my heart's desire I hear you calmly speak If I follow your words Serve you and seek I've followed you through it all I've seen the good and bad I've served your people and I've served You And always I've been glad I've sought you at every turn I've seen your face before But, where's my heart desire That I've been longing for Lonely is the word I use My heart is freezing cold I wonder if I will ever find Someone that I can hold

((December 10th, 2000))

Somewhere Beyond

Somewhere beyond these sunset skies above Is a place where all this suffering ends Where there are no enemies, only friends Each day garnered with warm feelings of love

Somewhere beyond the stars sparkling bright A community of friends are waiting Those gone before, now anticipating The moment when you, too, can see the light

Somewhere beyond fading mortal coils

Are pearly gates and streets paved, bright, with gold

Where not one of us will ever grow old

And, finally, we can cease our toils

Somewhere beyond these sunset skies above Are days garnered with warm feelings of love

((December 7th, 2008))

Somewhere In The World

Where is my love I do not know Life's incomplete Tossing to and fro Her eyes are focused Somewhere in the world Her voice may be speaking As her story's unfurled Someone is probably looking Upon her sweet, pale face Yet, she's saving her love for me With her amazing grace Maybe I've met her already Maybe her acquaintance not yet met But somewhere she sits and waits For that day we won't forget

((October 2nd, 1999))

Sonnet For A Muse

Oh, my muse, my inspirational muse
Not sprung from the finite Gaia or Zeus
Who, with each word, to my heart, love infuse
And, hence, my hand, poetry, doth produce

Calliope's hearts never beat so swift Nor Erato inspire love so true Eutere never gave such lyrical gifts Nor Thalia, to souls, peace so imbue

My muse, is born of a God far greater Who inspires her, to inspire me To live for today, not just for later And makes my eyes find what I do not see

Oh, my muse, my inspirational muse Love me always... Imperfections excuse

((October 22nd, 2007))

Sonnet Of Her Beauty

Those green eyes; how they sparkle in the light Soothing each of my worries and each pain How large they are when gazing at the night Their beauty, too great for endless refrains

That long, flowing, hair; oh, how soft each strand How golden it shines from so far away Like the sun reflecting off of bronze sand Oh, how I long to caress it each day

That skin; so soft, so fair and very fine Her touch, like magic, to my restless heart Her hand fits so perfectly into mine Oh, how her embrace was warm from the start

Those lips; so soft and so perfectly formed How sweet are the kisses they bestow Oh, how my heart, is wonderfully warmed When from those lips the words "I love you" flow

And, oh, that smile; that perfect smile How, my heart, it immediately melts For that grin I'd walk a thousand miles Making this heart feel like it's never felt

And, although she may be miles away
This heart beats more for her every day

((July 17th, 2007))

Stay Your Angels

I do not know what tomorrow may bring
I can't see far beyond this horizon
Yet, I will praise He who knows tomorrow
For, I know, my path, He's had His eye on

Clouds hang low... The sky's painted dark and grey Torrents beat down on me as I travail But, He gives me strength, and sends me angels I know soon, on this journey, I'll prevail

Oh, won't You hear my call and hear my cry
Often this road can batter a man's soul
Oh, how words and actions, can cut like steel
But, I know it's Your love that makes me whole

So, please, stay Your angels... Your strength, renew For, I know my hope, lies wholly in You

((June 1st, 2016))

Still Inherit The Dawn

When the cool breeze succeeds the heat of day And stars freckle the now darkening sky May these words be the words I know and say 'The darkest nights still inherit the dawn'

When the night sets in all throughout the land And trepidation of darkness looms nigh Oh, Lord, may Your wisdom be close at hand 'The darkest nights still inherit the dawn'

When I stagger within the shadows of night Not knowing any answers to my cries I will search for answers... Wait for the light The darkest nights still inherit the dawn

When I feel like giving up on this road And feel like saying my lonely 'goodbyes' Still if great is the burden and the load The darkest nights still inherit the dawn

When all lies upon me... Nothing is right May I remember Your Word never lies And, hallelujah, Your grace is in sight The darkest nights still inherit the dawn

((March 27th, 2006))

Still, Small Voice

While lying alone at night I dream of days gone by Of gentle hands guiding me And my heart begins to cry The silence of my darkened room Brings fears of coming days It prods at all my weaknesses And on my heart it preys Where has my childhood gone to Where are all those who cared Why am I left all alone in here So depressed and so scared But, in my heart I hear a whisper A still, small voice from inside A lingering hope of a bright future Brings my heart close to its side It's words bring me my comfort And its words heal my heart Its words patch my soul When it's all torn apart They take me above All my suffering and pain And give me perspective They give me vision once again Take time to listen closely And you will hear the voice say 'I love you dearly and don't ever forget...' ".. To trust the Lord, Your God, and enjoy each new day."

((July 13th, 2001))

Strong At Your Side

Since you departed, I've watched over you From many miles with many eyes trained Naught speaking a word nor hoping to gain A second chance back to your heart so true

Yet I watched you and, for you, each day prayed
That the dreams you once dreamt and shared with me
Would take flight someday and that you might see
How I saw you each and every day

The one who finally captured your heart
Was better than I could have ever been
I knew I could stop protecting you when
He gave you the ring and the journey starts

Yet, if e'er you need me you can find me Strong at your side if you need me to be

Such As She

Perhaps my hope for us is all for naught And all the giggles and the smiles shared Are meant to be forever undeclared Perhaps my heart's big dreams are all it's got

But, what if the signs I pray I'm seeing Are meant to be signs to charge forward still They aren't a hopeless romantic's strong will And I'm to be with this gorgeous being

Feelings as these, long ago left behind Told myself, for years, I was not ready Past loves' destruction left me unsteady Rendering my eyes for love all but blind

But, when someone comes along such as she With a smile so sweet and so gentle And a voice so very sentimental Oh, how the pain from the past quickly flees

If, when I seek her, she shoots my love down I'll find myself defeated yet again
Apt to return, depression, my old friend
And my tears, at night, my pillow, will drown

But, if you saw her sweetly grin at you Or heard her flawless voice utter your name If you saw the curvature of her frame You'd know, as I know, what I have to do

Boldly forth, as I've not done for so long Confidently stepping toward a love As if giv'n, me, directly from above And in receiving I cannot go wrong

So, I stand, now, with the sun in my face A strong western wind steady at my back And I step forth, though confidence I lack And pray to God, that she will be my grace ((June 3rd,2013))

Take This Cup From Me

This beaten road is long, rocky and rough
Pitfalls looming 'round every corner
In land where, clearly, I'm the foreigner
Sometimes it's hard to smile through this stuff

But, I see the goal as I've seen for years Never changing or moving close nor far Like, upon the horizon, shining stars Facing every day with stess and fears

Upon my back I still carry with me
Past baggage, that's yet unchecked at the gate
I cling to it as He patiently waits
There is sorrow within no one can see

Oh, Lord, if Your will might graciously be Won't you please kindly take this cup from me

There are days, these days, when the sky is clear And not a sound can be heard for miles When, across my face, I feel a smile Oh, in those moments, I know You are near

Perhaps You'll choose to take burdens from me Perhaps You'll give me peace for each new day So, in You, I might confidently say That, indeed, the Son has set this man free

But, Lord, if your will might dictate to me That you would take the chalice from my lips And, from day to day, guide each of my steps But, if I must, I'll bear this cup for Thee

But, Lord, if Your will might graciously be Won't you please kindly take this cup from me

((November 22nd, 2008))

Taylor

When your life started The next phase of mine began I never realized how much love I really had Until you showed me how to love like a child You've had blonde curls your whole life Framing your angelic face like fire You've always been a bit ornery But, you remain with a heart of gold Life won't be an easy task Finances and fame we might lack But, you've got a heart of a warrior And the fire of the Spirit within You are so precious and excellent I've never seen such life in one child Some may scorn you unjustly Some will trust you with their life Some will alugh at every flaw you posess Others will respect you for what you stand for Always remember... I pray that you do That even after I'm gone I'll always be with you You are my life And truest inspiration God has plans for your life Trust fully in Him With God and family on your side Your life will be complete I will cover you from now until forever By your side, I'll never leave you

((September 5th, 1999))

Tears

Weep softly now, beautiful angel Take confidence in my heart Cry, now, into my shoulder dear But, please don't quickly depart Let me tell you of my love How that love is for you Let me take your hand in mine And tell you of my heart so true Weeping 'till your eyes are dry You've shed your last sad tear Let me help you with these troubles Let my faith dissolve your fears Your life has led to anguish No one seems to understand I promise you my help and love If you'll promise me your hand I will be there to help you through In all your worst debates There to give you a smile If life's handed you ill fate So, look in my eyes, now And shed no lonely tears I will never, ever, leave your side My love will always be near

((August 15th, 2000))

Thankful

I am thankful for the colored autumn leaves And the crisp cool nights and stars all around When I quietly look to the heavens I'm thankful for a moment without sound

I am thankful for my family's love And the familiarity it brings When I see the smiles of all my friends I am so grateful for such precious things

I am thankful for God's blessings to me And the blessings He gives to those He loves When I think of mankind's fate without Him It's not hard to praise for gifts from above

But, what strikes me most this thanksgiving day Isn't the dinner or the memories made And it isn't our nation's Pilgrim way It's the fulfillment of years of prayers prayed

When praying someone would come take my hand And love who God made and who I would be Whom I could hold and who, with me, would stand I'm so blessed I found that one who loves me

So, I'm thankful for love this holiday
And the warmth that it has brought to my heart
When I dream how beautiful, sweet she is I'm thankful some day we'll never depart

The Dream

It wasn't too long ago my heart beat Sweet melodies and harmonies of love When that girl was all my mind thought of And each week I would await when we'd meet

Yet, I find myself now without her charms
Her beautiful face I no longer see
Her arms embrace someone other than me
When I long for nothing more than those arms

The twist of fate is like coming awake
When all I want to do is stay dreaming
Roses still red and the sun still beaming
Unable to perceive what's real, what's fake

If all love occurred once upon a dream Lord, please bring me to that nocturnal stream

((July 20th, 2008))

The Field Mouse In The Pumpkin

Far, far in the back of the viney patch
Lies a pumpkin without a stem
And, on that pumpkin was a little hatch
For no one knew it but him
And, who was he, but a little field mouse
That ate nothing but seeds
For living inside of a pumpkin
Gave him all the food he would need

(Co-Written by Brooke Considine)

((October 1st,2009))

The Gathering

Family members, once lost Now come running to you, found And those who have gone before Are once again with you, safe and sound The souls that touched your life All gather with congratulatory smile And those whom you've touched Thank you for the love all the while Those companions you've had all along Stand proud, strong... Holding your hand And those who reached out so many times Praise Him for your arrival to the Promised Land Those who have prayed for you and your cause Even when they did not know you Dance to a never-ending beat That you have stayed so strong, so true In the throne as the Great I Am He smiles and laughs in joy To see the great gathering Of all His girls and all His boys

((April 2nd, 2001))

The Girl That I Knew

It's over, It's over and I'm alone
Alone and confused and not knowing why
The pain would be less if I could just die
Oh, pain is greater than I've ever known

But, was it worth it, I hear you ask me Would I choose to do it over again With the knowledge I have now, present then With all honesty, as true as can be

With disbelieving ears I tell you, " yes" Stunned and confused you look at me as though I have lost my mind, or I fail to know So, you move on by, thinking of me less

But, you do not know the girl that I knew For if you did, you would know why I'm true

For two months, you see, I woke in a dream
For two months I got to call a girl mine
And she called me hers, oh words so divine
So, life, for two months, was perfect, it seemed

Time and time again I kissed her sweet lips Time and time again I held her soft hands And e'en if I knew the hourglass sands Were quickly pouring as time swiftly slipped

Even then, I'd put my heart on the line For the moments I held her in my arms Heard her say, "I love you" with all her charms Was worth all this pain and sudden decline

For you did not know the girl that I knew For if you did, you would know why I'm true

The Jester

I wasn't looking for my forever Though I had hoped it might forever be But, absurd when you're you and I'm me I'd still hoped for shortly over never

Time with you deepened my adoration
But, your time with me, drove a wedge straight through Any love, any care, for me from you
Instead, you joined my current castration

I wish I could say it was a surprise
But, through your false pity and placation
Life's taught me to fear any sensation
And to wear this silly jester's disguise

For no one likes to see a grown man cry No one cares to ponder the reason why

The Leaves Are Falling

The leaves are falling, once again
As they always seem to do at this time of year
And the chill in the air sweeps through Bringing thoughts of home and memories ever near

The leaves are falling, once again
How their colors seem so rustic and yet so bright
Childhood memories flood back
Times when it was fun to roast marshmallows at night

The leaves are falling, once again
And hopes of years gone by weigh heavy on the heart
Friends, loved ones and hopeful lovers
Speak in sepia dreams; but now, in life depart

The leaves are falling, once again
How the invigorating, life-giving breeze blows
How it blows life into these lungs
Giving hints of promises that only He knows

The leaves are falling, once again
Once again, they fall on the ground, like years before
Once again His promise is true
Promise to prosper, not harm; peace and love in store

((October 14th, 2006))

The Light Is Shining Still

The sky is filled with clouds and rain The ground trembles with its power Each bolt of lightning lighting the night sky Each minute counting down each hour The fear is there within each heart And hope flees with each passing thought It seems that as hard as humanity tried The struggles for peace were all for naught In the distance the clouds are broken The sun shines brightly through And all the fear you've ever had Is met by a peace so new Each dropp of rain now falls as light In a rainbow of hope and love And each new bolt of lightning seems so dim From the sun shining from above The storm still surrounds your life But, the light is shining still Yearning ot reach your broken heart With a peace that cannot be killed

((September 27th, 2001))

The Path

So long has it been since I last tread past The safe plane of what is to what might last So at ease was I seeing for miles And, not once, facing life's tests and trials

'Til the familiar song wafted abreeze
So, I followed the trail, above the trees
Once there, I found naught the source of the tune
But, another mountain, near'er the moon

And, I travel still, this familiar trail Where, too often, I'd been struck down as frail And, bewildered, limped back to the safe plain And 'lived' half-inert... The other, inane

If it weren't for treasures that lay beyond I wouldn't escape... So swiftly abscond For safety is sweet, if be it quite dull And, many men, by it's lavender, lulls

Softly, and gently, they peacefully sleep Not pondering treasures which they might reap Not wandering too far, or high, or deep Yet, you can hear their souls wistfully weep

As those who venture to follow love's song
Though the hills may be high and path be long
Those that continue and are not led wrong
Will die better men the meadowed throng

For they heard the call and followed the course Fought against all odds and against all force Drawing their swords and saddling their horse And, some, may even find their love song's source

So, this dire path, tread, I, once again And, I'll find myself here at my life's end For to waste such a gift which God did send Would be the true, unforgiveable sin ((March 23rd,2016))

The Prize

Prize beyond this present uphill battle
Shields crash together and sabers rattle
Pain and loneliness present on this field
For, in the end, alone, your blade, you wield

Oft the struggle threatens to overtake
And too often my heart is left to break
I will question the merit of this march
I will fall and bleed, with thirsty lips parched

But, just when I raise my horn to retreat The goal and prize, my gaze rises to meet And, again pick up my shield and my sword And pray, once more, to my Savior and Lord

'Make my feet swift and please make my heart strong, Let my mind find peace to help me along May my gaze naught move from the prize ahead And not rest 'til I reach it or I'm dead.'

Amen

((July 1st,2010))

The Rain Came Down

I'd waited in darkness, hoping for light Never knowing just when the dawn would break Never knowing just how much was at stake But, I found the truth when day conquered night

Love held a season of sunny bright days
And never let on it wouldn't remain
But, all it took was a cloud filled with rain
And love was naught more than a passing phase

I didn't plan for it to end that way
Nor did I plan for it to end at all
But, as our love turned from Summer to Fall
The rain came down and it washed it away

Again, I sit once more waiting for light May this breaking dawn quickly break the night

((July 18th, 2008))

The Splinter

The splinter far too deep in my soul To remove with human hands It burns and beckons me to suffer In a way that only that shrapnel can

I watch the world turn from night to day Unaware of my soul tearing apart And realize that I am just one of many Who can't control their broken heart

I wonder where the path will lead next And I hopefully look forward with naive hope To a future and a bride, unblemished And the odds of reality are hard to cope

For I know the world has told these girls
That love is a trophy not readily had
So many have settled for far less than the deserve
So few have shunned those who were bad

And, yet, I hold out hope for the one Whose dreams still linger and their hearts still yearn For a life worth living and dreams bigger than they And a flame of passion, within them, still burns

Oh, the world has told us not to dream... Not to live Oh, the world is a liar and a manipulator of time How its seething logic always distorting When life turns to hopeless from it's prime

Lord, guard the heart of she who is mine Lord, reassure her that I am searching as well Lord, comfort her after each fraudulent love And, Lord, save her from disgrace's disgraced hell

And, if you might hurry in bringing her my way My heart grows weary and more painful each day And, if you might guard her from lust's dark fray Oh, Lord, please quickly, let her hear me say: I love you

((August 10th,2009))

The Star

Tonight somewhere there brightly shines a star Spectators mesmerized by brilliant rays Will speak of its aura day after day While sit, I, and dream its beauty afar

I danced in its rays once upon a time
Dreamt of nothing less than what I beheld
Wanted for nothing more than hope upheld
What more could a man want than what was mine

Tonight somewhere there brightly shines a star I could lament that I'll not see its light That nothing's there to illuminate night And only dream of its beauty afar

But, how could I abide in dismay When, alas, I once basked the star's display

((February 15th, 2009))

The Sun Has Set

The sun has set and the night has come, dear And though the darkness now blots out the light And though the dawn be far away from sight In whispers of the breeze I'll still be near

How I wish the daylight had shone brighter And I wish the hours had been longer And I wish that I could have been stronger I'd give my all, your load to be lighter

But, the road diverged within the dark woods You journeyed north, leaving me on my own You journeyed north, bearing burdens alone As you go on, please be strong and be good

If e'er you loved me, e'er loved me at all Believe you're amazing and follow your call

((January 4th, 2011))

The Symphony

One line in the symphony
The musician hears it in his head
A single note or, perhaps, a chord
One by one on the paper they see

A melody, a harmony, a theme, or variation One line is all the musician can see But, a wall of sound surrounding his line He finds a crescendo and plays it proudly

But, then the diminuendo follows
And, again, he fades into the mass
On and on the symphony plays
The conductor conducts and the rhythm carries on

Then for a brief moment
A shining moment in time
You hear but your instrument, alone
A solo, your glimmer of fame

Or, is there another playing, just one?
A duet, perhaps, and then it resounds
Yes, the harmony, the connection
One musician playing perfectly in tune with another

Harmony! Oh, sweet bliss!
Harmony! Other instruments play softly, now
They play as a chorus for these two musicians
Gently, gently, they play, not wanting to diminish the melody

For just a few bars

A peaceful sonnet with notes for its verse

No words could speak the unspeakable love

A duet, lasting just a few more bars

But, wait, the discord! Oh, the painful dissidence! Is it coming from the chorus? What instrument? What section? Who? Who would dare bring the minor key?

No! Not them! How could they break from the melody? The peace ends as the duet now breaks One augmented half step

And, the maestro cues the next theme
The moment is gone, and the musician fades
Fading into the chorus
His fame has come and now it has gone

((December 27th, 2016))

The Valley

At times, pain can overcome joy There's really nothing to be done Except to sit through the darkness And to wait for the rising sun

Although it may very well seem
The horizon might ne'er embrace
The bright rays of a brand new day
And although hope seems out of place

Remember the dawn is coming Remember that glorious sight Look to the stars in the darkness And just picture the morning light

As it rises from east to west Illuminating each valley Don't lose hope within the shadows For joy, will soon, again, rally

Yes, as it brightens every valley Remember, joy will soon, again, rally

((October 11th, 2009))

The Way, The Truth, The Life

Lord, I come to You now, come to You now Having been down the road of selfishness Having been down the road of carelessness Lord, all I want is to live for You now

How many paths have I tried on my own? Trying to find You in other places Places that I knew You would never be While curling up at night, scared and alone

How many paths are there to you, oh Lord? How many paths are there to you, my King? You said, 'I am the Way, the Truth, the Life' 'No man comes to my Father, but through Me'

In this world of broken hearts, broken dreams It is sometimes tough to follow You, Lord And the burden of Truth looks so heavy But, the burden is lighter than it seems

How many paths are there to you, oh Lord? How many paths are there to you, my King? You said, 'I am the Way, the Truth, the Life' 'No man comes to my Father, but through Me'

And in our times there are no absolutes
There is no right way and there are no wrongs
But, Your Word, oh Lord, keeps us standing strong
As the world continues seeking the truth...

How many paths are there to you, oh Lord? How many paths are there to you, my King? You said, 'I am the Way, the Truth, the Life' 'No man comes to my Father, but through Me'

((March 21st, 2004))

They Just Fade Away

In this world where good folks are hard to find And role models fail us day after day All the more rare to find a true hero Thank God they don't die, they just fade away

No feats of strength or laser beams for eyes They still feel, still bleed; their days can be gray Superhumans trapped within human frames Their spirits don't die, they just fade away

They'd never choose to be invisible
Too hard to show love, encourage, and pray
When they can't give their comforting smile
Their love never dies, though they fade away

Until they will meet us on that glad day Our heroes don't die, they just fade away

((May 15th, 2017))

This Is Life

I used to wander always wondering
What this life was for and what it would bring Never knowing and too often hurting
Not yet seeing for whom I was searching

Every day was a mystery looking
For the girl I knew my heart was pining
And, just when I thought the dream was fading
She came in my life, sending me reeling

And, finally I know about true love Each step I take, in happiness and strife Has a purpose and joy along the way And, I can gratefully say, 'This is life'

Now I've met her every day brings singing And every night brings this endless dreaming Of life together and church bells ringing A life of love sets my heart to spinning

Yes, finally I know about true love Each step I take, in happiness and strive Has a purpose and joy along the way And, I can gratefully say, 'This is life'

So, fairy tales are real for those wishing For knights with burnished armor, bright shining Or maidens in distress needing saving Happily ever-afters are waiting

Though the knights may look different in this world And maidens may be hurt from years of lies Never stop pursuing dreams of true love When you find it, it's worth a million tries

Yes, finally I know about true love Each step I take, in happiness and strive Has a purpose and joy along the way And, I can gratefully say, 'This is life'

This Last Stand

Father, in this stillness, in this darkness
I haven't the choice but to surrender
To solemnly, defeated now render
These weapons I once used for Your greatness

One last charge into the fray, I now lead Hoping to shatter this e'er present dark So, to the lines, with passion, I embark To attempt to save the one who's in need

Lord, please guide my footsteps as I now tread And for this last stand, won't You grant success Make Your presence more, make my presence less If for Your kingdom's sake, leave me for dead

For nothing's more important than her soul Leave me for dead, Lord, if she be left whole

This Present Darkness

The heat of the day has come, now, to pass
And the sun dips low for it's final bow
The night's cool chill, from the North, does blow now
The lake ripples slightly like old stained glass

In the moon's dim light, my fears come at last While the sweat of the day dries on my brow Fear fills my soul in ways I don't know how Nightmares haunt my dreams, visions of the past

I cry to You, in solitary mass
My sanity breaks like a seedling's bough
In the whisper and wind I hear Your vow
That this present darkness, too, soon shall pass

So, I surrender, to the Prince of Peace And, humbly accept a renewed life's lease

((August 24th, 2015))

This Road

Long is this road stretching miles ahead
That passage with dark and narrow pathways
Is the journey which I know I've been led Lord, sometimes I struggle to bring you praise

Don't know where this adventure might lead I don't know what kind of pain I might face All I know is that You will meet each need Yes, You, oh Lord, will grant strength for the race

Already, I can hear Your voice calling
Giving hope where hope was once robbed from me
Father, once again, I feel me falling
Falling in love with Love that sets me free

Lord, I do not know where this road might lead But, I have always known You meet each need

((December 30th, 2009))

Those Who Failed

To all of those who failed to envision
Life I painted in my wildest dreams
Failed to look past the surface as it seems
And see me as more than chained in prison

To all of those who failed to stick with me Loves lost in the midst of wildest passions For richer pockets and finer fashions And left me to die, and thus set me free

To all of those who failed to see beyond
The pauper's clothes and the lack of schooling
And, instead, see a man whose heart's grueling
A man whose greatest days have yet to dawn

To those who failed to see beyond all this Wait... Watch a show you won't want to miss

To all of those who failed to take the time
To invest in me as I did in you
Labeled facts 'lies', when, in fact, they were true
Thus throwing away a future, sublime

To all of those who failed to take advice Of that which I knew to be true and right And, instead pushed ahead into the night And, now others pay the ultimate price

To all of those who failed all the above
I forgive you, I want you to succeed
I love you, I hope God meets every need
And more than that, I hope you find true love

But, though you failed to see beyond all this Wait... Watch a show you won't want to miss

Those Who Will Not Be Called 'papa'

I see you scowl and glare so sternly
I hear the wavering strength in your voice
Your mind weighs whether to yell or relent
But, take heart, some will never get that choice

Watching the world spin with life all around A father tosses his daughter up high A mother cuddles her son when he's sad But, alone, as if worlds apart, stand I

In those moments that exasperate you Please remember all the joy that they bring There are those who will not be called 'papa' Or a mother who, to her child, clings

Let the little children come unto me For, the Kingdom of Heaven, their eyes see

((January 23rd,2017))

Thoughts On A Girl

I hear you laugh and dream of your smile Your voice soothes my very roughest of days In what seems like a million diff'rent ways Yet, I remain silent all the while

I think of your face innocent and sweet
I imagine your golden hair flowing
And I hope that soon you will be going
To a place where the both of us may meet

I wonder if you've e'er pondered the thought Of love blossoming between you and I Or perhaps I do not capture your eye And maybe, practically, it's all for naught

But, someday soon I might just ask and see If e'er you'd consider being with me

((November 17th, 2009))

Three Pink Roses

Three pink roses stand pretty, firm and fair While peppermint fragrances fill the air This season of miracles may just be The season that might hold one just for me

Oh, God, please guide each and every move Lord, take these eyes and, their vision, improve So much is at stake in these next few days May my lips always be girded with praise

Whether love reign and forever impart
A partnership between two mortal hearts
Or if love be not in store for me now
May the teardrops not swell under my brow

For life is an adventure, wrought with fear And dissapointment looms, both far and near But, may I boldly walk upon Your path Not looking too far to an aftermath

Three pink roses stand pretty, firm and fair More graceful than words could possibly share What lies behind this unexpected gift Perhaps a new day, coming bright and swift

Lord, I pray, in this humble closing now That You grant this new beginning somehow Though I be just a poor man seeking gold Just once, won't you let me, treasure, behold

For just once is all I ask, for I'll be Always a steward of the gift giv'n me Always trusting e'en when I cannot see For, it was You, who granted me the key

Oh, Lord, guide my steps each and ev'ry day Please grant me this chance; Oh, Lord, I now pray

((December 7th, 2009))

'Til Sunrise

Oh, for that day when these days won't just end When the evening will fade to morning's light And when I can hold you all through the night Oh, for the day when these days won't just end

Oh, for the night I'll hold you forever When intimacy rules the hallowed dark And the light of romance suddenly sparks Oh, for the night I'll hold you forever

Oh, for the morning I wake to your face When I look in your eyes and find love, true And, all of the day think fondly of you Oh, for the morning I wake to your face

It is so sad to leave those sweet green eyes Oh, how I long to hold you 'til sunrise

((August 26th, 2007))

Timmy

What an amazing little boy
Who is now in Your grace
You have worked through him
To bring a smile to every face
He touched so many people
When odds seemed stacked so high
May none of us ever forget
How he lived his life
God, you've taken him home now
And, yes, we'll miss his smile
Until, once again, we are united
In just a little while

((March 6th, 2001))

To All The Fallen Heroes

To all the fallen heroes Who died to save another life Thank you for your service Gratitude for your strife To all the fallen heroes Who saw the horror in the skies Thank you for your efforts God lift our weeping eyes To all the fallen heroes Who died side by side Thank you for your courage May heaven open wide To all the fallen heroes Whose lives are now gone Thank you for your legacy Your legacy lives on

(Dedicated to the fallen men and women of the New York/Tri-State Fire Departments, Police Departments and EMT Services)

((September 15th, 2001))

To Bob

People say it's bright and golden up there And, bright, shining it may very well be We try and look beyond, straining to see Our eternal home way up in the air

A glimpse, a glittering hint as we stare Small sparkles of what's just beyond the sea But, as we sit and we dream of what will be While you and the saints, the banquet, do share

In a flash, an instant, we'll join you there While we wait a lifetime to find you, free Oh, what a reunion, we all agree We'll celebrate that day, up in the air

So, run ahead and don't look far behind For soon enough, you, we'll joyfully find

((May 15th, 2015))

To Love

Searing is the pain torn deeply, my soul
And often the memories rain fire
As if just the thought of you drew ire
From unknown keepers of my heart's control

There are times I slip into a madness Wishing I had never found love in you But, even if that wish were truly true What would a wish do to heal my sadness

No, even if it were to repair much
That wish would, alas, be very untrue
To love is to always remember you
Love would be void if I forgot your touch

Sadly sit I dreaming us as one As my thoughts on love are slowly undone

((August 26th, 2008))

To The Most Beautiful Girl That I'Ve Known

To the most beautiful girl that I've known Whose unconventional charms are so sweet And whose laugh is the highlight of my day How I wish I could sweep you off your feet

To the most beautiful girl that I've known Whose smile brightens my day and warms my heart And whose energy encapsulates me Oh, how I miss you when we are apart

To the most beautiful girl that I've known Who, though I have not known for long at all Has, somehow made my heart so fond of hers How very magically I am enthralled

To the most beautiful girl that I've known I wish I could assemble the right words To tell you the feelings I have for you But, dear, if I told you, would it be heard?

To the most beautiful girl that I've known I am trying to be a better man For you deserve only the best Being the best, for you, is in my plans

To the most beautiful girl that I've known You may never know how I feel for you I wish I had the courage to tell you That I've been waiting for a girl like you

((September 27th, 2005))

To This Day

I must have seen your face a million times Since the day you called me and said goodbye Never imagined I'd still think of you Yet, still, I awaken to those green eyes

A million times I've thought of you and why Why you left me all alone in the dark Jigsaw puzzle of a million pieces Questions, no answers: How'd I miss the mark?

Once in my life, I felt I had it all You by my side I could conquer the world Now with you gone away, all my strength fades 'Fraid of the storms, to the corner I curl

I should be so happy you found a man Who cares for you as I once cared, so true He's the kind of guy you always wanted He's a guy that's truly worthy of you

But, I am left here all alone, sweetheart And, to this day, I don't know what to do

((February 19th, 2015))

To You

When the world spins 'round With it's rushed pace and little time It is always nice to sit and know I am yours and you are mine Sometimes I get caught up In what the world would have me do But, with a simple smile or glance My heart, again, is true to you I've found what's important Through all of the rest It is to find the one you'll love And learn to love them the best There is so much I've already learned It is your heart I'm longing for And for your heart I'll yearn You've taken my life from nothing And built it into a dream come true And for that I owe you everything My heart, my dreams, to you

((June 24th, 2000))

Today's The Day

Perhaps today's the day that I break free Free from the hustle that comes each day Free from distractions that lead me astray Perhaps I can be what I'm made to be

Perhaps today's the day I'll choose to move Move beyond the past into tomorrow Move with purpose in the way I should go Perhaps I'll believe I've nothing to prove

Perhaps today's the day I'll find my peace Peace like a stream flowing fresh to my soul Peace that brings new meaning and makes me whole Perhaps that assurance will never cease

Perhaps today's the day I'll hear Your voice So clearly that my heart will have no choice

If today's the day I'm finally free
May I be free to run and tell the world
With Your banner of love proudly unfurled
For today's the day You have set me free

If today's the day I finally move
May I move boldly toward holy life
Allowing You to guide me through the strife
As I dance for joy for You've made me move

And, if today's the day I find Your peace May I promote that peace to all I meet Living in peace and loving those I greet As I gratefully give others Your peace

If today's the day I will hear Your voice May I know it and may my heart rejoice

((March 7th,2010))

Too Good To Be True

A smile, a laugh, a kind word and then Another day and a moment with you Could it really be that all this is right It just seems, to me, too good to be true

Is it my imagination again
A masterpiece so beautifully made
Could it truly be portrayed alongside
A tapestry so beaten, torn, and frayed

What if none of this dream is really real
What if I take a chance and step ahead
Just to watch and lament as all fades back
And, the fear rings true, 'twas all in my head

But, try I must; chances like these are rare May true love grow with the future to bear

((February 10th, 2017))

Tormented Heart

Once... Then once more, I thought I knew true love Twice I gave my heart, twice I felt true pain Thoughts, dark and dreary, twice have filled my brain Now I wait life to be all I dreamt of

Clouded are the skies when I think on her And clouded when I try to understand Exactly when my love ripped from my hand How those solemn farewells, leave me unsure

Was it moments before the last depart
Was it months before when first their heart knew
Or, had they all along felt love askew
No matter, here am I, tormented heart

Others may come, and may sadly depart No matter, here I'll be, tormented heart

((March 12th, 2011))

Tortured, Tormented And Torn

Oh, soul, so tortured, tormented and torn
Between this great love gained and love forlorn
Irony... How cruel to a lover's heart
Her soul to find, only to be apart

On these days, I wish not to have been born Oh, soul, so tortured, tormented and torn With lovers together, faces of glee Only thoughts of how far she is from me

Aye, all days are not to be joy-laden
Naught are these... I, dreaming of my maiden
Oh, soul, so tortured, tormented and torn
Won't you take from my mind this painful thorn?

Though halt that request if it were to be By removing pain, she'd be lost to me I'd make the sacrifice and lonely mourn Oh, soul, so tortured, tormented and torn

((June 17th, 2007))

Tragic Loss

God bless those on the ground Who lost a loved one today God be with those who are not found And keep their pain away Lord, watch over us And guide us far beyond This tragedy and tragic loss Of which our enemies are fond Lord, give our leaders strength today To lead our nation in Your path And if war is the path we take Strengthen soldiers of aftermath Lord, united, we are one nation Under You and Your legions May we never be divided again By the boundaries of religious regions May Your power and love Always and forever prevail Over the land of the free Consistently and always and forever without fail

((September 11th, 2001))

Trust In The Lord

The air is dark and heavy All your life's burdens are here The road seems long and rocky And your heart is filled with fear The horizon fills with darkness As the storm comes strong ahead You feel so weak and hopeless But, you remember what's been said Trust in the Lord When you cry, when you sing Don't beleive your own eyes For He sees everything And in all ways give thanks Thanks for His grace and love He will lead you through this life By the spirit, sent from above You've seen the battles fought You've seen your friends pass by Sometimes life seems so pointless That it's hard to even try But, God has given you a gift A gift of salvation and grace He loves you in your weakness Just look into His face Trust in the Lord When you cry, when you sing Don't beleive your own eyes For He sees everything And in all ways give thanks Thanks for His grace and love He will lead you through this life By the spirit, sent from above

((November 19th, 2000))

Twenty And Six

Twenty and six came in to work and play
Twenty and six all with joy and with love
Twenty and six now look on from above
Because twenty and six went home that day

Deafening gunfire in a place of peace While seven heroes fought to stop the spread Of the pitch black omen of death and dread But, on that day no light could darkness cease

No answers be found by king or by priest Not one can utter an answer to why Heroes and children were allowed to die But, this we can be assured at the least

Twenty and six who loved their work and play They all play together at home today

((December 18th, 2012))

Two Futures

I could have never imagined the bliss
When I hear your sweet voice speaking to me
Speaking of how our two futures may be How phenomenal the wondering is Whetehr the spark I feel truly exists
And, if, the spark, it lives: to what degree?
Oh, what pain remains, just waiting to see
May this hope of a future, be not remiss
Before, have I endured countless heartache
Ever searching, seeking, my companion
Never finding or seeing her presence
But, despite my heart's desire to break
Split like a somber, shadowy canion
I pray, soon, to me, her face, God presents

Under The Surface

Somewhere under the surface there is more More than meets the eye of this daily grind More than what average man's eye may see Is meaning beneath the meaning to find

The earth revolves around and round the sun We grow older with each revolution Each day spinning us closer to our end Each day begging for a resolution

Resolution to hate's infestation

Of this generation's culture of death

Each day spinning us closer to our end

What life will we live while we still have breath?

Somewhere under the surface there is more More to the sadness, loneliness and hate More to life, just waiting to be revealed Perhaps sharing what's below is your fate

Perhaps today's the day love's our response Perhaps love is what springs forth just below Perhaps showing love in the midst hate Will bring about peace like we've never known

Unexpected

When it came to love I had had my share I had felt my heart swell, then torn in two Leading to those nights crying, feeling blue Why open myself to so much despair?

Then I saw you, with your smile so bright
With your hair so golden, flowing so long
With a heart for Christ and a voice of song
Could it be that you would bring back the light?

So unexpected was the love you brought
That I will never be the same again
I await for this chapter to begin
Greater is this surprise than what I sought

Three great virtues are given from above Oh, how sweet, is the greatest of these... Love

((Upon asking the most beautiful girl to be my girlfriend and having her accept))

((May 12th, 2007))

Unexpectedly

Like Juliet to lovesick Romeo
Who did pine after Rosaline so true
Unexpectedly you, my heart, renewed
Oddly, to me, how quickly my heart grows
To a kind of spirit that I hardly know
Oddly, to me, how fast my heart subdued
The moment it first grew so fond of you
Oh, whether to pursue or just lay low?

It isn't like me to fall so swiftly
Typically I fall so slowly in love
Usually I don't fall for one so soon
But, this love, it feels so different to me
As if it might be ordained from above
But, will I pursue... Will I let it pass?

((October 21st,2005))

Unheard Of Love

Fading light glimmering upon a sunset cove Nobody knows, nobody knows of the shadows Secrets can hide in the shadows nobody knows Too painful to speak, too shameful to think of

Shimmering is the last amber hue of the day
All creatures within the cove scurry to find
A shelter and fortress to shield their burdened mind
And they kneel to their knees as they fearfully pray

Prayers of forgiveness ascending far, far above Words of penitence to a god they do not know Hope for grace for they, the sinners, on Earth below All looking in the dusk for this unheard of Love

Oh, moon... Stars... Oh, Creator of heavenly light Illuminate the shadows... Guide us through the night

((September 23rd, 2009))

United: A Dream Of The Future

She is my life Life eternal The nectar of my soul Artisan of my heart Everything I've ever done Was done in preparation for her love Through this aperture of my heart I see her love shining at me Standing at the vista of my spirit Smiling in humble adoration for me I love her forever, her love I don't deserve She is the lover of my life Bone of my bone Flesh of my flesh We are one United

((November 23rd,1999))

Until You Ring My Chime

It's silly that I miss you For we've never even met It's silly that my heart longs For one I hadn't met yet

It's silly that I fell so
Despite your telling me to Guard my heart and keep it safe
For you weren't sure what to do

Never even heard your voice So, it's silly that I cry Yet in the darkness of night Still, I dream of you and I

You never did me wrong, dear No wrong was done on your part It just was too hard for me Not to fall for your sweet heart

There was so much that I found To be so perfectly grand Some nights i still dream of you Walking and holding my hand

Yet, I know that what you did Is what you felt you must do Who could fault your decision Your compassion ever true

Just know if I were to fall Someday, deep in love with you That I would move the whole earth Just to help you make it through

And, as a team we'd decide Where to go and who to be Me, sacrificing for you You, sacrificing for me So, if you read this someday
And you feel you want to try
To take your chances and see
If love might bloom with this guy

Well, that day would prove to be Truly one of my best days And each day from there on out I would find a million ways

A million ways to show you How thankful you're in my life And if love blooms as I hope I'd ask you to be my wife

Alas, for now, dreams are dreams And I'll dream them for some time 'Til they fade to nostalgia Or, until you ring my chime

((February 19th, 2013))

Venus

Venus, you fickle harlot of the night Shining high and bright in the southern sky Wistfully catching my averted eye Reminding me of love lost with wares bright

Venus, you fickle harlot of the night
Tease me with your charms as you did before
As you shone on the one that I adore
Providing her and I dusk's only light

Venus, you fickle harlot of the night Coming for a time and going again Just a year ago you watched love begin Just a year ago, we gazed at your sight

Venus, you fickle harlot of the night Perhaps your wary ways will shine on me As once before you did above oak trees I long to share with another your light

Venus, you fickle harlot of the night In another love your passion ignite

((May 31st,2008))

Video Game Victor

Video Game Victor viewed video
And audio inside his studio
Where he had a very nice patio
Of which no one knew, then, or knows today

For Video Game Victor would not leave To go outside when he could stay inside And play on a video water slide Though he has yet to get wet to this day

Video Game Victor once loved to go
Out the door out into the great outdoors
But, alas, those days, they laid, long before
He claimed his video game that he played

The once slender Video Game Victor
Moved to become a sloth-like, sloppy slob
Until he was a gelatinous blob
And grew into his couch, on which he stayed

To this day Video Game Victor sits there No friends or family, no future fate Staring ahead in a zombie-like state Not knowing of the sun's beautiful rays

So, young girls and young lads, here's the lesson Get out into the outdoorsy outdoors And, play and laugh like you had once before Don't live the Video Game Victor way

Whether you play sports or if you play games Move about with legs and arms stretched out wide With a bat or basketball at your side Stand proudly and, as loud as you can, say

I CHOOSE NOT TO BE LIKE VICTOR TODAY!!

((July 1st, 2011))

Waking Dreams

Alone I sit and ponder why
These tears are returning
For so long I've stayed strong
And, now I sit in ruins again

It isn't a conscious reminiscence of you
That haunts my heart these days
A series of dreams, waking me from my slumber
Starts every day off with a familiar longing

Six dreams, two groups of three each Three of fond memories of you and I Three fictional or factual future Unfamiliar to my soul when I wake

You and I at your parents' house Under a starry Arkansas night sky A brief pause in conversation Our first kiss

You and I and a ring upon your finger A beautiful dinner and a glass of wine A day full of fun, laughter and memories You upon a crocodile, your silly face

The last day I saw you, although not vivid in life Comes rushing back to me clearly in sleep A small argument and a gentle apology You waving gently "goodbye" at the door

You, older now, no longer innocent or joyous No longer with dreams or a song on your lips Sad and downtrodden, it is you, but not you I hug you and let you cry on my shoulder

You, in a hospital, wires and tubes You're crying and I hold your hand Helpless, but wanting to help I sit day and night while you cry You, in a church, laying silently without breath Friends and family that I recognize mourning You, laying still, unfazed by their tears "Hopelessness, hopelessness, how can I go on?"

Three come in the first wave
Three come to follow
Sometimes the first play alone
Sometimes the second come quickly thereafter

I sit alone in a place that was ours
Trying to make sense of these images
Trying to recollect the ones that I know
Trying to understand the ones I do not

Please, please if you can hear my prayer
Know that I still love you and miss you tonight
Know that I still pray for you when I pray
Please, dear, be careful... Be mindful of your dreams

I can't bear the sight of those unfamiliar dreams I've never done well when I see you cry I love you, please don't forget that I love you I'm so sorry that I didn't live up to your hopes

Forgive me
Forgive me
I love you
Please love me

((January 11th,2010))

Wanting Home

Driving down this sad, darkened highway road These trips don't get easier on the heart With all its emotions soon to explode I guess all I'm really wanting is home

Not a car on the road on this cloudy night By myself and incredibly alone My heart cries out to stop this inner fight I guess all I'm really wanting is home

Where family and friends who gather 'round Can have conversations without one sound And the laughter makes the house feel so warm And memories and stories are the norm I guess all I'm really wanting is home

The clouds give way to twink'ling stars above Remind me of her eyes twink'ling at me And all I can think about is her love I guess all I'm really wanting is home

Where family and friends who gather 'round Can have conversations without one sound And the laughter makes the house feel so warm And memories and stories are the norm I guess all I'm really wanting is home

As I round my house, the city lights shine Shining brightly framing my final destination And, although my house and city are fine I guess all I'm really wanting is home

Where family and friends who gather 'round Can have conversations without one sound And the laughter makes the house feel so warm And memories and stories are the norm I guess all I'm really wanting is home

'Home is where your heart is', they always say

If true I've not been home since I've met her And I'm anxiously counting down the days I guess all I'm really wanting is home

(November 11th, 2007)

What A Strange Beauty

What a strange beauty lies before my eyes now A Savior, broken, bleeding, crying out I stand watching, in awe, the crimson flow As the soldiers and crowd yell, scream and shout

What a strange beauty lies before my eyes now A mother, a disciple, remember As the images rise and His words grow His sacrifice now makes all Hell tremble

What a strange beauty lies before my eyes now This God, this man, prayse for those who hate Him This God, this man, even now He bestows His blessings to a thief, full of his sin

What a strange beauty lies before my eyes now What a perfect sacrifice for mankind He stretches out HIs arms, to us to show The weak His strength and His sight to the blind

What a strange beauty lies before my eyes now

What Cosmic Force?

What cosmic force makes us to fall in love? I once knew, I once knew, just what or whom I think I know the Who that makes love bloom But, the pain felt makes me question above

What stroke of fancy and moment of chance Makes us find ourselves in the place and time To find that one that makes our lives sublime There must be more than luck to this romance

But, why, oh why, oh Lover in the sky
Would you grant this love and snatch it from me
The only earthly love that's set me free
Who am I to question fate? Who am I?

I'm a man whose heart is broken apart Waiting for a love that won't soon depart

((July 5th, 2008))

What If I Told You?

What if I told you I still love you, dear? Not in the nostalgic, 'once upon a time' way And not the way that some people flippantly say What if I told you I still love you, dear?

What if I told you I think of you each night?
Of all the times we once spent together, happy
And of all those things we once said and wrote, sappy
What if I told you I think of you each night?

What if you knew each day I prayed for you? For you to never stop following those big dreams And for life to never be as hard as it seems What if you knew each day I prayed for you?

Love, I still love you and miss you dearly What I wouldn't give to have you near me

Would it ever work if we tried again?

If I was less forceful and more subtly inclined

And you were more focused on our 'ours' than your 'mine'

Would it ever work if we tried again?

Do you e'er think of the love we once had? Living, loving life as we walked with hand in hand And growing closer together, making our plans Do you e'er think of the love we once had?

What if I told you I still love you, dear?
I love you in ways that dry, parched ground loves the rain
And, dear, I love you still, though from me you refrain
What if I told you I still love you, dear?

Oh, love, I love you and miss you dearly And, oh, how I still dream of you near me

((February 1st,2009))

What If Today?

What if, today, I told you how I feel?
What if, today, I let you know my heart?
Would I even know how to express it?
And, would I even know how I should start?

What if, today, I told you how I feel?
After this time of hiding, deep, my heart?
Would you listen to all my thoughts on love?
Would you walk away, tearing me apart?

What if, today, I told you how I feel? Oh, would I, now, even know what to do? With someone so beautiful, funny, sweet? Would I even know just how to treat you?

What if, today, I told you how I feel?
The mystery that lies in my heart to be unveiled
And whether 'yes' or 'no' be the answer...
At least, then, inaction might not prevail

What if, today, I told you how I feel? Ah, but who am I attempting to fool? I fear love (or, at least, its rejection) This joke I play on myself is so cruel

So, what if, today, I said how I feel? Or, let it burn within me forever? In closing I declare I do love you Even if, your heart, I don't endeavor

((October 5th, 2005))

What If Tomorrow Never Comes?

Dreaming a dream as a child would dream
Out upon the ocean, out past the stream
I, wishing for nothing more than I had
I, wondering when tomorrow might come
I, pondering just where this dream came from
Of me, on the ocean, just a small lad

Alone with the waves I rocked back and forth
Somehow questioning my heart's true self-worth
An odd question for a child so young
An odd feeling of doubt stirring within
An odd, oppressive, fear came forth therein
A sinister lack of hope filled my lungs

'Alas, it's a dream, ' I heard myself say
Tomorrow will bring a new, brighter day
Even still I remained frightened and numb
Even still I doubted what I had said
Even still I questioned within my head
Oh God, what if tomorrow never comes?

What if the fear inside of me remains?
What if ghosts of past echo their refrain?
Will I descend into madness alone?
Will I die a man forgotten by time?
Will I lose every friend gained in my prime?
How can one conquer fear of the unknown?

Oh, Lord, save me from the fears of my past Lord, comfort me, for memories come fast Raise me from this mistrust within my heart Raise me from the lack of hope I have felt Raise me from the depression I've been dealt Lord, for your purpose, please set me apart

((October 29th, 2009))

What If?

What if I told you my heart breaks often When you're not here with me What if I told you my eyes cry daily When your face they can't see

What if I told you every day I pine To spend some time with you What if I said I dream of forever When we are one, not two

What if tomorrow holds suff'ring and pain Will you still love me then What if tomorrow your name is in lights Will you come home again

What if someday all that was true is false And our passion might wane Even on that day will you love me still Or will I be your bane

Me? I know the answers to these questions And how I would respond Oh, the mystery of love is joy to me It is my greatest bond

So, when days grow long many years from now And years pass by so soon And when time has taken its toll on us We'll still gaze at the moon

And we'll remember memories of yore Things too great to ignore Our love will become the stories of lore For you, I'll still adore

(November 16th, 2007)

When I Think On You

When I think on you, I think kind of you No, love didn't turn out the way I'd hoped The pain, for a time, made it hard to cope But, blame and anger are not what you're due

Oh, the hurt has come and the hurt has gone And, without a doubt it will come once more The gashes, they severed straight to the core But, for you, I pray your heart has moved on

Or, far better, that you were never true
That you never thought on me as a mate
Never once gave thought to a future fate
That would keep the hurt from reaching you

If, you e'er dream of me, know this is true When I dream of you, I'm smiling at you

((January 21st, 2011))

When Love Never Ceased

A beautiful sunset sets to my west
A subtle rainbow rises from the east
And I dream of love, when love never ceased
Tried, I, to keep it, tried my very best

Alas, the love has gone and has been gone Far too many weeks, far too many years Replaced only with doubt and childlike fears Trust that has been entirely undone

A beautiful rainbow fades to the east
The sunset gives way to a hazy dusk
I am left alone, a man out of luck
And I dream of love, when love never ceased

If only rainbows and sunsets could cheer A heart that's been hardened so many years

((June 29th, 2009))

When You Awake Once More

I know you can't hear me, calling to you
I know you won't reach for my outstretched hand
The gap is too wide, the expanse too grand
So, I can only pray God pulls you through

Oh, but on that day when you awake once more All Hell will quake as you wipe sleep from your eyes As you raise your humbled hands to the skies And seek a purpose you've not had before

You are not among the ordinary
You are, instead, chosen to live greatly
Far greater than you've been living lately
Far stronger than that which makes you wary

Wake up, my dear, wake and turn around It's not too late for purpose to be found

((April 5th, 2012))

Whenever You Smile

When we talk, I talk strongly and boldly
Of grand schemes and master plans I speak
When we laugh, I laugh so effortlessly
You make me smile with humor, unique
When we kiss, I kiss you confidently
Your lips provide me strength when I am weak
And when I see you smile I find peace
And from all my fears I find release

But, when my intellect gives my heart leave I worry about moving too closely
As my mind and all my fears, doubts do weave And my love for you stabs me, ruthlessly
For my sight won't relent and let me believe
Someone so beautiful loves me truly
But, when I see you smile I find peace
And from all these fears I find release

So, I will keep loving you recklessly
For my heart won't let me fail to do so
I will hold on to hope passionately
And cling to you with my love to bestow
For it's true you might hurt me callously
But, your love's worth the risk and you should know
That whenever you smile there is peace
And in your eyes, there is endless release

((Dedicated to my beautiful girlfriend, Lydia, on our first Valentine's Day)) ((February 14th,2012))

Where Do I Roam?

Where do I roam when I roam when nobody knows
What dream haunts me to find an invisible prize
To seek to see that which can be seen with closed eyes
Where do I go to when my feet go where my mind goes

What pain twists in my mind, causing me to wander Whose face do I see that leads me forth and beyond Whose eyes are grayish blue and hair of golden blonde What lies within my thoughts as I sit and ponder

Feet be still and do not move me from my slumber Heart be still and know thy grand purpose lies ahead Starting today and lasting long after I'm dead May I fix upon days beyond mortal lumber

Feet be still, heart be tranquil, eyes close and find rest And, spirit, never forget that you will be blessed

((February 21st, 2011))

Where Have You Gone?

Where have you gone, my Lauren, my Lauren Where could that girl, so enamored, gone? Tell me where you have gone, my dear Lauren So, I might find you and hear that sweet song

Please bring with you the days of childlike love Where every word said from me to you And every word said from you to me Brought with it feelings of passions anew

Lauren, I miss your giggles and your laugh I miss your light-hearted banter to me Won't you bring back your silliness again? Once more, that sweet spirit I wish to see

I love you, dear, and I miss your kind heart Bring back what drew me to you from the start

((March 11th, 2008))

Whispered In The Night

'I love you's' spoken in daylight are true and sweet And, the words, they mean nothing less while it's still bright But, how much more special they are when our lips meet When those three special words are whispered in the night

Oh, how long love waits for special moments like these When dreams of forever on such passions take flight How passionate are moments when our eyes first see Lips breathlessly seeking words whispered in the night

Melting with each other with each kiss on the ear Goosebumps just under the skin silently ignite Never wanting to release that which is so dear Never forgetting secrets whispered in the night

Oh, how precious are those moments lit by moonlight When those sweet 'I love you's' are whispered in the night

Who Could Be Worthy?

Storms - Dark and frightening, unforgiving Lightning striking fear in the weary heart Wind - Loud and boisterous, unwavering Tearing a wounded soul slowly apart

But, standing there, she took all of this pain Smiling as she wiped each and every tear Who could be worthy of a girl like her? She loves imperfection... calms every fear

And, in the good times, laughing and giggling Knowing that days like these are hard to find Taking each moment and savoring it Treating each person so gentle and kind

Who deserves such a wonderful lady? She, who takes her life in carefree stride She, who could outsing a lark in the Spring Who could be worthy to be by her side?

When all is said and done, she's amazing She's the girl that every guy would dream of If only they thought they could stand a chance If only they thought they could win her love

Out of all the ladies in this old world
She remains the best of them all by far
Her faith and beauty, her heart and passion
Are what keeps me wishing on that bright star

((May 2nd, 2007))

Who You'Re Meant To Be

It's been a long time since I talked to you
And longer, still since you've listened to me
But, if I could give you some help to be
Who you're meant to be, what you're meant to do

I'd let you know you're beautifully made
That you are witty and intelligent
That since I've met you, you were always meant
To be greater than what you are today

I see that you're heart's been broken again And I wish I could comfort you, my dear To simply sit and, again, hold you near And let you know who you have always been

You're meant for greatness and you are great Don't stop chasing what's worthy of your fate

((November 16th, 2008))

Who?

Perhaps I blinked when I ought to have stared Perhaps I never looked in the right place To find, just once, that beautiful, bright face Perhaps I lived my life a bit too scared

All I know is I must have just missed her All I know is I ne'er saw her come by Naught once did her gaze or glance catch my eye All I know is I don't know... I'm not sure

Who is she, my love, how does she appear? Who is she, does she quite gracefully walk? Does she smile? Laugh? And wittingly talk? Who is she, will she know if I am near?

Perhaps all I know is I don't know her Who is she? Will e'er, for her, my heart stir?

((September 5th, 2011))

Will The Sun Really Shine Tomorrow?

Walking those halls together we once walked Hoping I'll see her face somehow, some way Longingly looking back at brighter days Dreaming of all the midnight talks we talked

When I think of her, I think of her love Trying to hide hurt and pain I now feel Sometimes I muse if this is really real But, this nightmare I just can't get out of

Will the dawn break the eastern horizon?
Will tomorrow be bright as yesterday?
Will the sun really shine again today?
Oh, God give me something to gaze upon

Time goes by, each hour more desolate Every minute slower than the last Wanting this haunting night to quickly pass The memories just too hard to forget

Will the dawn break the eastern horizon?
Will tomorrow be bright as yesterday?
Will the sun really shine again today?
Oh, God give me something to gaze upon

Look to the sky, the morning is coming
The light over trees quickly becoming Brighter and brighter, nature starts humming
From deep within, my pulse begins drumming

Dawn is breaking the eastern horizon Tomorrow looks brighter than yesterday The sun finally shines again today Thanks for this wonderful work You've begun

((May 4th, 2008))

Wilted Flower

Late last night while fast asleep, visions came My last love dying on the cold, hard street Running to her as my heart quickly beat I quietly whispered the sweetest name

She, slain and dying, not once replied back Pale and bleeding was she and no one near To offer help or my plea for help hear Who, on her, would mount a vicious attack?

Suddenly, scene cuts: me in a white room Alone and, seemingly, waiting for news Of her progress and, yet, very confused Who would attempt to cause her doom?

Oh, wilted flower, so soft and so frail I long to see color in cheeks, so pale

Cut again to the recovery room

Her small frame seems smaller on the large bed

Stitches trace the cuts, from where she once bled

And a lone red rose at her feet now blooms

She stirs; slowly her eyes open slightly
She sees me and feels my hand on her hand
A gentle smile extends her face and
Her wrist turns to grasp my fingers, lightly

Now note, I, others surround her, as well My mom and aunt, and who sits at her head? Can it be my grandma fourteen years dead? So diff'rent from her former, aging shell

Oh, wilted flower, so soft and so frail Others love you, too; wish you not to ail

It is Grandma, stroking her golden hair One moment, magnificent and moving Grandma grinned at her, as if approving And raised her as a father would an heir

For the first time in such a long, long time
The flower seemed healed and blossoming, new
As if she had been made red from her blue
I felt peace as a bell began to chime

Waking to realize it was a dream

I felt peace thinking maybe in some way
Grandma might look in on my love today
And, take care of her, as odd as it seems

Oh, wilted flower, so soft and frail May others care for you, each breath exhaled

((April 22nd, 2011))

Winds Of Change

Oh, God the winds of change, they are blowing Bringing a revolution to this life Whether relief or challenge, not knowing Always of benefit, even in strife

What of the days past of comfort and rest Whose hours were filled with laughter and joy To be a child once more: happy, blessed For the simple things in life to enjoy

Oh, but these winds of change aren't new to me I am used to being tossed to and fro Though these winds don't always bring harmony They all bring opportunity to grow

So, let the rain pour down upon my roof Let the sun beat harshly upon my head May this wind, no matter the storm, be proof That you, oh God, are with us where we tread

Winter Dreams

Winter, the loneliest time of year Where wind blows agains the pane Snowflakes fall upon your nose And you offer your heart in vain You dream dreams at night of one Who would love you for who you are And when the cool night would come She would gaze with you into the stars She would catch the snowflakes on her tongue And smile with her cheeks bright and red Take a sleigh ride down the main street And let you gently tuck her into bed And as you creep out of her room Into the cool crisp air of night You would know for certain That she'd be alright But, winter is now And she is nowhere to be found Yes, this is why Winter is lonely I sit alone without a sound

((December 10th, 2000))

Winter Memoirs

See the snow falling See the ground, so white See the stars glistening In the cold winter night Feel the damp air Feel the wind blow Feel your heart dropping Along with the snow Hear the bells ringing Hear the trees rustle Hear the cars pass Caught in the hustle Smell the pie baking Smell the fresh mint Smell the hot chocolate Take in its scent Remember your family Remember your friends Remember your loved ones Before your life ends Always leave trails Where you have been For those who come after Will remember you then Don't take for granted All the joy in your life For it can quickly be replaced By heartache and strife

((December 13th, 2000))

Wish You Were Here

It's odd how much one night can change a heart To move from status quo to missing you From plotting careers to feeling so blue Why couldn't we have done this from the start?

Oh, how I wish you were here with me now Snuggling close to me, I holding you This dream greater than a dream coming true Oh, how I wish you were here with me now

In the still of night I think of your eyes
Piercing my soul, as if peering straight through How's it possible... Me being with you?
I have searched for you on a thousand tries

But, while waiting, God pointed you to me I to you, may He grant this life to be

((May 13th, 2007))

You Are The New Day

You are the new day
When I thought the nighttime would never end
You are the new light
On a horizon I thought would ne'er shine
You are a new hope
When hope was what I couldn't comprehend
You're my new chapter
Though I thought the Author might have resigned

Your heart brings forth peace
I never thought my heart would fully rest
Your heart brings me strength
I wondered if I'd ever stand again
Your heart brings longing
As I restlessly wait, knowing I'm blessed
Your heart brings wonder
As I ponder what may shortly begin

I look to God for guidance on this path Heaven knows I've failed this journey before I've seen destruction and I've felt the wrath So, I kneel and pray His will... nothing more

Your eyes pierce through me
Like you can see my inmost hopes and dreams
Your smile frees me
To walk confidently where'er I tread
Your laugh brings me joy
When I hear it, life's less stressful, it seems
Your words melt my heart
I oft think of all you've whispered and said

I look to God for guidance on this path Heaven knows I've failed this journey before I've seen destruction and I've felt the wrath So, I kneel and pray His will... nothing more

And I wonder what the next step might be Pray His will becomes crystal clear to me Please open my eyes, Lord, and let me see You are my new day, if it's His decree

You are the new day
Bright shining, splendid... Stretching before me
You are the new day
I pray you'll remain until my sunset
You are the new day
Setting my heart on fire... My soul free
You are my new day
And for this, my heart owes you a great debt

I look to God for guidance on this path Heaven knows I've failed this journey before I've seen destruction and I've felt the wrath So, I kneel and pray His will... nothing more

I look to God for guidance on my way Lord give me guidance, upon this new day

((April 19th, 2010))

You Ne'Er Leave My Sight

I look on you, I see beauty defined
I hear your laugh and my heart is set free
I can't fathom what first brought you to me
I surely don't deserve someone so kind

My eyes find yours, oceans of grey and blue And a smile draws across your sweet face It's no surprise that my heart starts to race My soul proclaims, "She's too good to be true"

Sometimes I find it hard to wait for you
Too many miles separate us now
But, when I dream, I am with you somehow
Even when I wake you remain in view

Sunrise to sunset and all through the night Waking or dreaming, you ne'er leave my sight

((September 13th, 2010))

Young Lovers

Oh, young lovers, young lovers in love
Please tell me where love goes awry
When the sunsets in the sky above
Why does love drift so far, when it seemed so nigh

Making no pretenses of right and wrong No finger pointing or blame game to be played No hatred or animosity belong Only a deep wish that you would have stayed

Young lovers, oh, young lovers who dream Of a life of love for more than a season Is that love truly as close as it seems Is it really good beyond reason?

She promised forever on a star in the sky Sincerely, as her earrings sparkled in the night With horses hooves beating as we passed by The lights of the city... What a beautiful sight

The promise faded, and so soon did she Nevermore to hold hands or hold close A voice never to hear again, a face to never again see A path that she, and she alone, chose

So, young lovers, I ask, again, if you truly know love For in a moment live can go awry And you're left praying to God above Wishing for nothing more for the other to draw nigh

Young lovers, lovers in love... With fear, proceed For nothing else in life can, so much, cause your heart to bleed

((September 14th, 2009))

Your Encouragement

Far, far away are days of stress free life Of living a day, a night without strife Going a day not wanting something more

Down the road I can see some peace coming In the shadows, there's a certain something A certain dream that I've been longing for

But, in the here and now, I find my heart Being filled with this joy, yet torn apart Yet, there's a certain hope within the core

So, in life, where emotions rise and fall It makes me smile to have you through it all With your encouragement when I implore

So, bear with me as my heart sinks at times Please know even when my joy will not climb Your precious hand through it all, I adore

For you are my inspiration, my muse The one that I care for, the one I choose And, there is no one else I care for more

((May 27th, 2007))

Your Eyes

There's a warm wind blowing from southern skies Under a December evening's full moon These silver-lined clouds will drift away soon For some reason, I'm dreaming of your eyes

It isn't memories of nights like these
Or importance of a date that rings true
I don't know why I'm simply missing you
Oh, Lord, how the thought brings me to my knees

Rarely do I wish you back in my life Rarely do I miss your hand's gentle touch I suppose I really don't miss you much Oh, but when I do, it cuts like a knife

Sweetheart, on nights like these with moonlit skies For some reason, I still dream of your eyes

((December 13th, 2008))

Your Hand In Mine

I miss the way you wore your hair so fine Whether straight and silky smooth to the touch Crinkled, braided, it didn't matter much But, more than all, I miss your hand in mine

I miss your voice so pure and so refined Soothing my heart each time it ached inside From talking nothing to husbands and brides But, more than that, I miss your hand in mine

I miss your humor, laughing all the time How naught was too serious for laughter Being child-like was all we were after Even still, I miss most your hand in mine

Perhaps I will learn to forget in time
The one thing I miss most... Your hand in mine

((June 23rd, 2008))

Your Nearing

Slave of my own inner doubt and misery
I thought my dreams were all but dead and gone
Seeing the pain hope had thus far led me through
Had set a permanent twilight for my hope of a dawn

But, lately I have been wondering
If there still might be more for me yet
And all those dreams that once roamed free
Have once again my subconscious met

And all the emotions that accompanied this hope Now rise around me like the blooming of the Spring As I stand breathing deeply of The aroma of excitement that it brings

Not lost on me is the less than subtle truth
That this new day breaks with your appearing
And so I hold my breath, close my eyes
And I await... Patiently... With hope and fear... Your nearing

((March 12th, 2013))

Your Smile

Sunset with an orange and violet tone Soft hues on the horizon for miles Beauty surrounding, enveloping me Yet, all I can think of is your smile

Prairie fire sweeps through a rural plain By it's flame, making sowing worthwhile Not unlike the fire that we face now Oh, all I wish to see is your smile

And, when I think about trials we face
And inevitable pain we feel now
I know it's part of joy we'll feel later
And, your smile makes it worth it somehow

An eagle flew high through the clouds above With grace, freedom and majestic style Someday we'll be free, too, to fly so high Until then, I'll think upon your smile

And, when I think about trials we face
And inevitable pain we feel now
I know it's part of joy we'll feel later
And, your smile makes it worth it somehow

A smile that turns a dark day to bright
A smile that brings me sweet dreams at night
A smile that strengthens my heart to fight
A smile that drives me to make everything right

Remember pain now becomes joy later That's just the deal, dear, that's just the deal Don't forget true love is irrational The joy we'll know will ease the pain we feel

And, when I think about trials we face
And inevitable pain we feel now
I know it's part of joy we'll feel later
And, your smile makes it worth it somehow

Your smile just makes it worth it somehow

((April 22nd,2010))