

Poetry Series

forgotten soul
- poems -

Publication Date:
2015

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

forgotten soul()

Distant Light

I see off into the distant light a hand reaching out for a small delight, Let me hold you I hear it call, waiting to reply i've lost my soul.

Where have I gone where will I end, finding the light that seems to have no end.

I want you near so come to me I see the light that is eternity! Don't hide from me you said your my friend why then have you called an end?

Fake from the start I see your true kind, Let this light have its own damn end...

forgotten soul

Hide And Seek

Windy day's are here to stay seeking out there lonely prey, Finding souls to carry home open the pit let noone know.

I see there shadows on the distant wall's lurking to gather all the lost souls, hide and seek they always play knowing one day they will take you away..

It's there cause not yours to see the end Why must we run to no end? Find your way to heavens front door knock loudly before its to late! !

Hide and Seek its your turn to play..

forgotten soul

Humanity

Humanity,

Where has it gone? Sinking into the abyss of a failing idea that once called itself freedom. Oh how I cry when I once laughed aloud singing the joys of family and freedom. It's coming to its end and now we weep as life has become grey and pointless, the sheep are swallowed up and the wolves keep running and singing their songs of death. Good bye America the Great and so Proud! You have eaten the last child now freedom is fading like the glory you once stood for.. keep looking at your memories O-children who believed, The dream of freedom is all we have left as the movie of life is almost over. The End!

forgotten soul