

Poetry Series

hayley granger
- poems -

Publication Date: 2008

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

hayley granger()

Caught In The Fire

Fire, for it's a gruesome beast
It wants you, it needs you for his feast
It gets you, it eats you
And you just bleed

You bleed now from the inside out You've got nowhere to run, for he's put you out Now that you're gone and all alone
You feel as if loneliness is your home

Loneliness is not a home
It's a place you fall into and go astray
You run, you hide, you get out of there You get away from fire so you can breathe air

You are, you are free You've gotten away from the place that makes you bleed

hayley granger

Heather

Heather

Heather is the flower sitting outside your door

Heather is a baby crawling a round on the floor

Heather is what you say a very beautiful thing

Heather is that something that always makes you sing

Heather

hayley granger

You And Me

i walk with you,
you walk with me,
together we walk to the edge of the sea,
we are there together,
you and me forever,
together at the edge of the sea

hayley granger