Emmanuel George Cefai (12th March 1955)

Emmanuel George Cefai born on the 12th March 1955 in Victoria, Gozo, Malta is a Maltese philosopher and poet who published first a number of philosophical critiques in the Daily News (in past years and formerly a daily newspaper in Malta) and where Cefai himself developed his own philosophical system. Cefai wrote the poems published in Poem Hunter chiefly between 2004 and 2006. Emmanuel George Cefai graduated as Doctor of Laws from the Faculty of Laws in the University of Malta in 1977. The lyrical poems of Cefai contain a variety of emotions, from joy to sadness, from elation to depression, as well as deep thought and verses of sheer beauty. Cefai can indeed be called a poet of beauty, he is also a consummate depicter of human emotions. His poems are mainly in blank verse, but nevertheless demonstrate a musical rhythm almost throughout.

Cefai began writing philosophy in about 1977 at the early age of 22 composing around those times his only philosophical work published to date, a work named The Spirit of Metaphysics. In this short but seminal-intentioned work Cefai embarked on a new philosophy and science and the resultant reform in the methodologies, history and discoveries of civilization very much in the same way as Bacon had done centuries before. In this work Cefai also brought together Philosophy and Science, put forth revolutionary reforms like the elimination of the gap between actual and potential, theory and fact, hypotheses and science. Not only that but Cefai in a part of this work for perhaps the first time in history described the arising of life processes from non-living processes. Cefai went on to write scientific papers bearing revolutionary and landmark proposals like the elimination and engineering of Death and disease and the establishment of Immortality. In fact Cefai has written about a hundred of these scientific papers and these appeared in the learned site of and also in the site of Cefai himself at . These papers are apart from papers in the two scientific e-books Fifty Scientific Papers and Sixty Scientific Papers. In the note to this work Cefai declares that he has still as yet in draft form unpublished works in drama, epic and longer poetry, sociology, economics, politics, philosophy of law, philosophy of logic, philosophy of metaphysics, philosophy of aesthetics, ethics and other branches of philosophy and of civilization including more revolutionary and landmark scientific proposals. This Note runs as follows:

‘....Besides this work I have put forth other works but which I still have in draft form and wish to put forth other works in almost all branches of civilization including in drama, epic and longer poetry, sociology, economics, mathematics, politics, philosophy of law, philosophy of logic, philosophy of metaphysics, philosophy of aesthetics, philosophy of education, philosophy of history, philosophy of religion, ethics and other branches of philosophy and of civilization including more revolutionary and landmark scientific proposals. In a particular draft scientific work I overturned the laws of Newton, put forth an ever-expanding universe eliminating the Big-Bang Theory in the process and explaining the origin of things as per my draft work On the Ultimate Origination of Things. In another work I explained step by step and through precise scientific methodologies the origin of living processes and also how these processes can be originated. Much of my life has been devoted to the reforming and furthering of our present civilization; the civilization of this, our planet, that I love so much....’
'adjust'

'Adjust'

'How? '

'To all sorts of pain Sufferings and deprivations:
And Continuous as in ever-increase Leave the rest to the brain'

Rattled the skeletons
Yet their heads they nodded

'Ah' said the Monsignor And ceased.

Then continued the Monsignor:
'When the devils knock Let the door greet them ever'

There was thunder
For I saw the hanging

'Fifty Days And More

‘Fifty days and more Have passed
And yet
You have not visited me’

So spoke the Voice beneath The damp stones of green.

Fell I on that blessed ground And kissed I that blessed ground
That day.

‘My mother, o my mother’

Emmanuel George Cefai
‘the Night Is Near, Going These Ways

‘the night is near, going these ways
The town will fade in to the Eyes of heaven’
So said the Poet Seer
And stopped.

But
The people arose in assembly
And said:
‘Our ways are ways of the multitude
See
We vote here in our assembly
And that be almost plebiscite’.

Then spoke the sword-bearing Angel of the Heavens round his Loins:
‘the ways of the multitude These are neither votes nor Plebiscites
All bear their responsibility For their ways:
And so this town Irrespective of votes, majorities and Quasi-Plebiscites’

'tis Given Us To Roam The Earth

'Tis given us to roam the earth
As broken-hearted ghosts
The sun-rays will too strong be for our eyes
And in the pale moon-light
The lakes will on their bosoms want Our feet to glide and skim the waters wild.

The flame, the flame of life still burns
I wonder how: so many sufferings Have assailed it: I know not how The flame of life still burns:

And we still roam the earth
As broken-hearted ghosts
The winter frost doth pity take on us
The summer heat suspends Where it sees us: and the green Spring Brings birds and lays to us:

Still our ear hears, still the note Of the dark nightingale in the lost wood Strikes our heart and thrills our marrow cold With a sweet thrill we felt full years ago

The flame of life still burns
The flame of life still burns.

Emmanuel George Cefai
'tis Hopeless Now I Know

'Tis hopeless now I know they say that hope goes last and that it should not go.
But now
But now
'Tis hopeless now:
The day's now ending in a sweet romance
The dusk is lighting up the city-lights
And the dark night the city now enfolds Into its mantle that it may dream and sleep.
Full constant/Eternal pessimist, I,
'Tis hopeless now I know.

Emmanuel George Cefai
'tis Permitted Us Nay

'Tis permitted
Us Nay
Our right
And duty
To excel
But
In
The Kit
That Evolution Dons
On Us

Chorus:

Clean the Earth
New beginning Lightning and thunder Primeval rains and motions Sudden genesis arising of Promethean fire
Anew
We do, we do, we do.

Civilization to all Civilization of all Civilization from all
What you and you and you Write
Think
To civilization yield Let it be registered quite And without fussy requisites Into the Book of Civilization
And this Book growing Ever-increase
Ever-increase
Into the Book of Evolution

See how flowers thrive
So many billions of things That as we Breathe and live:
See, see.

We are the new generation Duty of us to be new generation Duty, duty, duty
New civilization.

This day as other days
But no!
The Thought
The Wish and the Yearning That above
Thus expressed Amongst all races
Amidst all nations burning In to the breasts of all The words
That Wisdom gathered Above
Told
So many utterances of owls wise
Old
This day be the day
This day be the day
Oh!

Emmanuel George Cefai
'what Did You Eat To-Day? ’

Asked she.
Said I:
‘Today, my love,
I ate, and I ate sadness’

Emmanuel George Cefai
‘You are slow losing your teeth,’ I said to myself.
At fifty I was armed well although I had removed even long teeth:
I still preserved them; dirty and yellow And shrunk the roots were still Pointing as they were when blood passed in them.
O! hear the night-wolf cries! There must be Spells moving round disguised as ghosts And mists disguised as shrouds but not Among the streets:
But in the vineyards of the Rhineland where The Rhine winds between the bosky acres and The towns, buildings and palaces and Shores peopled almost to the edge with Shrubs and trees and with the animals that live in them.
Hear! Hear! Come in the nocturnal scene!
And you will hear what Goethe heard When he opened his heart to the sweet scents Of myrtle and the Muse’s secret perfumes:
There go I too to obtain as by right
The same experience and the same privilege.’
So said I and stopped and my teeth rattled.

Emmanuel George Cefai
1977

1977-I that was a year with a Roman 'I' afterwards to manifest the verses for that year if they come again
I will let them in even if through a back-door.
That year
That year
I saw the white root sprouting My strength ah! give me that strength of that year, those times.
that was the year where the white root was sprouting in the brain
and the first philosophy

Emmanuel George Cefai
A baffling cloud rode over The electric currents
The current waves.

Hummed the current waves
They passed the electric poles Humming.

And it was night
And stars were out Dawn was yet away.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Band That Played

Hedgehogs at night
In orchestra
In corner dark Yet in moonlight!

How slow
How slow
The band
The band that played Those sad, sad tunes
And slow
That night!

And hedgehogs played Played in moonlight Played mournful slow Played demoralized Without a script
Save the heart's script
And all played slow Robotic slow
For sad was night
And sad starlight.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A barge mysterious in the thick of night Sailed slowly to the somber shore Beneath the ramparts of the dreaming fort How silent how austere how still The lapping of the waves against the barge.

Whence is the barge coming in the night?
Whence did its journey start?
By night or day?

No reply came – and none in that still barge Appeared to reply or move or breathe:
So horrid thin the stillness in the barge
The barge mysterious in the thick of night.

Anon near the shore it stopped awhile
And there without a pilot stood, without a hope Of towing to the shore though near stood:
Slow imperceptible moved it with the waves That danced in the dim lights of the old fort That drowsed and drowsed ignored
The lapping of the waves against the barge.

And then of sudden lo! It moved as if Sprung by some unwound spring or else Like a thing startled at its guilt At seeing the hiding draperies of the night Slip slowly down before the toll of dawn
The barge mysterious in the thick of night
Sailed all invisible to another land Where night still holds its scepter sway
And eerie bats their piercing cries emit.

Ay, ay that slow mysterious barge Is into the long night so far away Gone, gone from the eyes gone from the dawn From good and virtue called it moved and went To where the evil witches danced the night In hidden lands by human eyes unseen.
And good and virtue and evil and all – are relative.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Bastion In The Sun

In the sun
the bastion burns and basks
yet even though it not night not sleeping times it sleeps it bends its head
dreaming
dreaming of olden centuries dreaming of a slower life and more serene in its misery for serene propense be the miserable while the brain of the bastions burns and basks and in the sun below the weary horse carriages of tourists pass with heat swamped suffering horses.

The Sparkling of the Sub-Burnt Waters

in the old port the sun-burnt waves sparkle yet in their golden glory yearn for the twilight color and the friendly chill
of the red dusk
in the old port
the sparkling sun-burnt waters.
Even so
I
In my fast ageing Yearn for quite life a boarding of the barge that departs from the land on seas directionless:
and in the midst of these waters let my Soul solitary cut off the chains from Earth find liberty.
at last.
at last.

Emotions on looking from a Valletta Garden onto Sea

Ah! how I suffered in life Suffering hand in hand with ageing walked.

It still walks
now
the more passionate.

The brain thinks the eye to thinking propense yet distracted by the light blue breasts of the flat waters silent below majestic.

Emotions win by little over the images:
the eyes look vacant as the thoughts brim the cup of life
for how I suffered in life Suffering hand in hand with
ageing walked.
Emotions on a Parting

In the parting I had planned no emotions.

But ah! emotions to uncontrollability be propense.

Emotions silent but pinching as sadness knows to pinch.

Farewell at last!
Long, long last!

the curtains on the stage
fall the last hand-shake then turn back broken heart solitary in your solitude uneasy walking.

The Emotions of A Return

In the return
Of one or more you know or knew there will be emotions: vain you try to keep them in the bag:
like Zephyr's winds escape emotions of a return chameleon varying.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Bell That I Hear

there's a bell that I hear
and its sounds are distant yet clear:
it touches my heart vesper bell it voice sinks with the deepening of night as my Soul
my Inner Soul.

on the Hedge of Life with fresh and green garlands I celebrate even a last night in the Shrine of Joy with the bacchanalians.

Beauty be ever with us even in the worst!

there's in this my madness some point which does not turn and turn directionless

and that be Beauty Beauty in the Soul's inner gladness.

On the face outside
there be the Mask of Life Sad and resigned
yet
behind and below
there be the Fire of Life
not to be quenched desires
burning not to be stifled roaring fires.

The rain drizzles a little though it be July and a semi-hot day.

there's a bell that I hear
and
its sounds are distant
yet clear:
it touches my heart
vesper bell
it voice sinks
with the deepening of night
as my Soul
my Inner Soul

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Bird I Saw

A bird I saw Hopping
Hopping
From bough to bough
In the ecstasy of joy
That it had since the Dawn.
Ah! my Monsignor,
The Soul, the Inner Soul
Of us
Needs so many times
The quiet of reflection
The thin density of solitude
A lens that thick That thin,
Not more:
Small feet and The small noises Ah! these
The genesis of the larger Thoughts.
A bird I saw Hopping
Hopping
From bough to bough
In the ecstasy of joy
That it had since the Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Broken Heart

A broken heart
An obscure present
A past that was Carry I
In my hands,
Carry I: Before you I
A broken heart
An obscure present
A past that was

Emmanuel George Cefai
There is a buzz amidst the boughs clustered together lovers from one tree to the other:
clustered
clustered
bees are awake but do not sting they are in ecstasy of the moon they be in ecstasy of the fierce stars that burn:
white as powdered by the moon's
light and trirems ghostly without hands on deck and elsewhere, pass as in a painting through the dreamy sea-port and the baffling mists:
ah! the Sub-Conscious!
ah! the Sub-Conscious!
the night be beautiful if Dawn be so beautiful!

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Call From A Cicada

A call from a cicada
at night!
at night!
the windows are open on the waters of the gondolas and sighing dreamy gondoliers:
the waters leap straight bosom parallel to the levels of the canals the palaces
and in the night caviar of sounds of violin over floating waters
to night
In Venice to-night

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Cemetery

A cemetery
A doll
A fire
A fading
A thrall

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Cemetery Of Desires

all lyimg open-mouthed gasping
into the stars' nocturnal fires

I will not tell this night Nor sing nor versify Nor science, nor philosophize
No.

a cemetry of desires all lying open-mouthed gasping
into the stars' nocturnal fires

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Centaur Walking Valletta At Night

I Poet Seer disguised myself Into a Centaur Came out in the Depth of Night
To feel the pinch of Beauty and delight
To feel the cold,
The chill, the frost,
And waning light
To hear my paces Break the solitude
And Thus walking yield
My Inner Soul to Night

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Chapel

A distant bell
An evening vesper A sad dusk to tell.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Chapel Dilapidated

How many a time!
The brain goes to it For there it finds Its resting patch
From such daily Hammering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Cherished Song This Night

A cherished song this night
Is humming
Through its teeth
After with Zephyr conspiring
In his ears whispering Out of his bag
Let out the winds
And
The winds gnaw
And
The winds neigh
And
The winds sorrowfully lament
And
The wind add drear to the Drear
And
The winds add sad to the Sad
To-night
To-night
In old Valletta.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A child lights everywhere
Now
That
We Have Dark
Dark Dark deep night
And Dropping a stone in the dark waters Makes not sound
The heart of Earth sleeps And the brain of Earth dreams Better so:
That in the Sub-Conscious the Hand Moves and guides and makes What in the Conscious we enjoy

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Child! A Poet Seer!

A child! A Poet Seer!
One person I
See
Ah! two in one
The child in me!

And
In that child There's thought, Emotion, pride!

A child! A Poet Seer!
One person I
See
Ah! two in one
The child in me!

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Child, A Child Running,

A child, a child running,
a child carrying a book, a child carrying a book of verses
whither you run my child?
whither you hide my child?
The spies are every where.
Yet
you still run and run clutching always to you,
your heart,
the verses.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Church

A church.
Small chapel.
Mantles of snow
One on the other
As Wave on wave.

In the frozen yard
A patch of red -
The devil so-called.

More stark More noticed
There
Amongst the white
Of congealed snows.

And he was humming - 'Why? Why? '
His face was wry -
'Why do they call Me devil? '

A small violet Raised its head Out of the snows As by magic Sprouted:

And
Said the violet:
'Every thing has
A name.
Yours that.
Accept it'

Then Chin hand Philosophically thinking
The devil spoke:
'Then I am resigned.
That be my name
Let it stick to me.'
And
From the churchyard Jumped he.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A City Of The Sea

I yearn
A City of the Sea
I yearn
A City where gods dwell And yet be human:
So Civilization will Rise and rise ever-higher
As in ever-increase

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Cock Of Bronze On A Turret High

A cock of bronze on a turret high Sang in the night before its time Yet it so willed, and so it was.

The city slept and dreamt as yet.
Too loud the rains fell.
Too wild the gale-winds blew.

Ah! Will! Will! When you will,
You have your task begun and more
The rest extension of the Will.

Emmanuel George Cefai
there's a cove
in the night there's a hole in my Soul
yet
the hole in the Soul
as soon it empties it fills there's a pain in my heart there's suffering in the Soul there's Beauty grasping yet:
and in these nights of darkness there's yet a life there's yet beauty though sad it's serene

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Cross

A red cross A blue cross

Azure sadness ‘I did it – I will Stay in a cage’

A brain stays in a cage.

Drear and cold around Crosses turning round

And There’s dread
And
There’s unhappiness
Ever-increase.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Dark Cast All These Months

A dark cast all these months
has come over my thoughts
my mother, my mother
would it be otherwise?
The Will with Pity combined the two I saw whispering their energies and intelligence combined saw I in to their union mutual swim as in a crystal mirror life's own film.

ah! now the graves rest quiet
only disturbed by some lonely chirp
here and there
chance and probability in play and execution
then no more

the silence as a dagger holds in store the film of images that were before in the bubbling of life itself life's bubbling now transformed to this wretched cloud and mist that in the night arises to combine conspire and in procession march with other ghosts and shrouds that torches bear and chant Gregorian sounds:
so we! so we!
thus
a dark cast all these months
has come over my thoughts
my mother, my mother
would it be otherwise?
A Day Grinds Slow To

A day grinds slow to pass but so does every day so did every day

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Day That Declines

A day that declines
a night that reclines a Poet Seer divines

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Desperado Will I Grow:

A desperado will I grow:
At least in that desperation Wherever they take mew I will breathe Wherever they make me will I breathe Whatever they take from me I will breathe: New Year; it is Fit to say so. There is be no shame In being desperado in these circumstances.
Read, read, read, the poems and the lines,
In tune in to your heart the song and verse That others sung and then Pregnant await by the Rock of Birth:
There a Dawn will come and she and Muse Will equipollent be
And equivalent:
And you will sing again
And you will sing again.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Dialogue Of Satyrs Went Thus In Part

A Dialogue of Satyrs went thus in part:
[For part I heard, for at one point the cunning Satyrs disturbed alarmed skipped kangaroo-style]: Satyr One: Look at the clouds they frown and threaten rain Satyr Two: No, I have made pact With the moon; we be friends and with just look and wink agree without we speak.
Third Satyr: Then to-night the revels will go on as we have planned Since now a week from hence.
Satyr One: Prepare the banquet within an hour Satyr Two: Why? the banquet be the knoll, see how the moon lights it as Ocean's breasts;
no need to tables arm as for our imbibing wine and ale more pleasure here in the grass to drink than on the table.
Satyr Three: Let the night herself Prepare the setting, scene and things.
Beauty is on our side and calmness too.
Look there the citadel sleeps and below the houses dream, to the east disturbed spirits march as ghosts and shrouds in their lorn cemetery yet march not out; therefore they disturb us not.
Satyr One: let us bring wine but no the hares and rabbits dressed in white napkins bring to place the mugs and couples together uphold the jugs of ale and wine.
You see when Beauty to herself Is left?
No cares, no cares, but sleep your sleep
You will at least be stronger in the morn and do what be necessary by strength that you had not calculated then before.

Satyr Two: I hear a sound.
Did you?

Satyr Three: I hear and sense. Go we.

At this the satyrs rose and skipped into another coppice disappeared they that was the time I saw them last, that night.

Then, being by now near midnight I tired and sleep touched by wand of Morpheus down the green moon-lit knoll To the sad town I hid.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Dirge Of Hedgehogs

A dirge of hedgehogs
Dirge of lamentations
Mists white and Colored incantations:
O let me go!
There’s a hedgehog that Yesterday was struck By a harsh car speeding
At night
In the pity silence of starlight
A dirge of hedgehogs
Dirge of lamentations
Mists white and Colored incantations

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Dirge To Sing

A dirge
To sing
To play
The violin
Tonight
Tonight
But Then - we play
A dirge
For every tragedy
Every single day

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Ditty I Must Sing

A ditty I must sing
To-night
A sweet rosary
Of verses must I sing
To-night
Snail silver on the walls Dream I
To-night

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Donkey Reveries

A donkey had reveries
Yet
He memorized them all
And
He became
As wise as the owl Nocturnal Soul.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Drear Day

A drear day arisen, yet to breathe

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Faery Song!

A faery song!
More than one Fairy song!
The tunes be in the air
Though
It has not liberated chill Some
frost
from winter’s reign.
Sing nymphs no human hears Delight the music notes the ear Violins in charmed trees play Nightingales sing their lay Inhabitants nocturnal play For Dawn be far away.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Feather In The Cap

Laws hanging on the people Not only at night

The cemetery is full
The roads in it are still A mini-stream in the light Of the old moon.

The yews above Mute sad-joy demonstrate.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Feather In The Sky

A verse
A feather
In the sky Afloat

So is my verse
So will I
So deserve

And
When Laden with Night-dews and cold Relative
Slow
Slow
Slow
It fell Unto the winy earth
Still Warmed reviving in The hands of Dawn
It still Breathed the call of Verse.
'That's bravery, ' said my Monsignor

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Figure

In the heavens
Large and airy Yet with boundaries Gigantic Large Saw I
And I heard
Its gentle laugh And voice that Through those heavens echoed Wild
'My father!
'My father!'

A Figure Black

A fist to heavens.
Dripping rain.

Portal of delight Yet the curtains of Drizzling rain made High wall of mist.

Eyes blind with beauty
It be Dawn!

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Figure Saw I

A Figure saw I
Moving along the bastions
And we were by Hastings Gardens.

Turned not its face
The mantle black rolled round the figure In the strong night-winds
And we were by Hastings Gardens.

With quick and stealthy step Melted the Figure black
And we were by Hastings Gardens

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Fir In Hastings Gardens

In Hastings Gardens
the fir points out jutting into the night chill is growing
as
the red sunset glows.

days come and their zenith
have for zenith there be as coming
but end was irresistible.

So hummed the fir
that night
and the other trees
in Hastings Gardens
stood still erect and silent.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Fish Flew With Its Fins

A fish flew with its fins
It was a night of spell.

A hedgehog jumped fast Across the road
On feet of kangaroo.

An owl left her boughs
And flew a brief around Inspecting stars and moon.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Flower Loses

A flower bends A flower weeps
With discontent
A winter wraith Smiles irony
The winter winds Blow tragedy

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Fountain Of The Waters

There be A fountain of the Waters
Blossoming
The most at night Hidden somewhere
Here
Yet
Its silent noise Gives it up not Easily
Sweat to find it
And drink your thirst From it
To the front door and Porch of Beauty

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Ghastly Face Have I

A skeleton
A ghost
A roar of thunder
In the wild and hoar
In the dance of the ancient ghosts
In the hoar of the desert snows:
The ghastly face remains
Nay
To ghostly face transforms.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Ghost On Toilet

A ghost on toilet in the Bath I viewed.
Through the chunks of the Door but slightly
Open
I peered and saw
The naked ghost.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Giant Comes Out
	hey told me they told me
he comes out in a land where snow falls almost all days
where winds blow almost all the year
where the mountains
shine blue in their snow
and I wish I wish
and I yearn to be in that land to be in that frigid of snow
to be in a small three or four rooms a villa of cold with a roof of red to go with the white and the gray of the plain:
and when the giant comes out I will go out with stretched hand:
in the land
he comes out in a land
all days
where winds blow almost all the year
where the mountains
shine blue in their
snow

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Goblin Green

Along the star light Grates
And a green Sheen

how hopped he!
All alone in That solitude
Only by the friendly Moon and stars it lit!

Soon and anon
He a brook sees A pond-sort of
And goes to drink Crystal the clear waters In them bathe Beauty’s daughters
In the night
Deep night past Mid-night but not now Not now

Not now
So the goblin drank
The waters of the brook Mixed
With night dews
And
Crystals thin of Frost and chill

Opened his eyes When drank he
He heard a noise Leapt he
In to the nearest Bush with panting
Heart.
Two figures balaclava-clad Were there Robbers that had a sack
Were still all covered
And
From behind the bushes green
He peered and peered Silent as not to be seen.

The booty they amongst Themselves distributed Then on the lawn
They looked up at the night
The stars the moon
And slept with one eye
Open

But ah! at dawn
The goblin saw them gone
No trace
In to the magic brook
He washed his face:
‘Too late! Too late!’
It said.

And so our goblin
Went
From that place sad and Wry
Though Dawn was rising high
And the Sun rising slow.
But ah! that too
Was years, centuries ago
The old oak in the scene Still stands and
At times
On lone and tempest nights
Of wintry hoar
It whispers to itself
The tale of centuries old
The old oak!

A Good Measure Of Sleep

A good measure of sleep
Verses flowed

The Poet Seer loosened
His tired tongue

The parched throat filled
And there was chanting.

A Great Continent

In a great continent
I felt the experience of the Sub-Conscious winds passing over:
and as they passed those winds they intoxicated me

A Hen Was Walking On A Path

Of dust
Roses occasional grew Where she trod

Ah what wild country
That!
Bring me to it and build Me a humble bungalow
And
Leave me there unnoticed to the world.

Come not, here, my friends
This be our parting
At least
This be the parting knell
In advance it will bar Future plan given
My self suspension of Immortality

As I was walking to my Hideaway
The place of quiet
Final permanent stay
I met the hen Saluted spoke not Both went their way.

My neighbor the hen is.
Uncouth shadows in the Night
Frighten me not For in the hen
I see a neighbor.

We speak not
Yet
Fear shuns this place Its desolation makes Fear, fear itself
And shy away

in the throes of night I saw around In the air
Floating
A thousand candle-lights
And more
I was not frightened.

Desolation goes round Here all time
All day all night
All seasons all the skies
The ardent heavens
Silently

just a verses distant the dust
from the country lane is flying
I saw the old sandals
Of the old figure
Passing
Throwing off dust
For
Such the desolation
That in that plain pervades That even this Figure rare That had roamed astray
From other Ghosts and Shrouds Shied before close of night all far away.

In that I surpass them not.

away
with him
before

A Lady In Russet

Lady
In Russet
After Dusk Inside
The Palace Halls Walks
Restless Moves
But Inside
The Palace
Only
The Lady Stays: With Cobwebs
And
With Ire
And Rattling
Of
The skeletons
and now
I fearless
I who
The Muse Accompanied Inside
The Palace of Fear
With courage filled
To hear
The sighs
The tears
The scream occasional
The lighted candelabras
In the whole dust of dark
And
Then the bursting
Of the new sprung morn...

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Lake That Burns

A lake that burns
See
Its surface burns
Its bosom hot With smoke that not Putrid
But like incense Smells
The lake that burns
The lake that burns in to the night

Over the heights of cloud On cloud
The winds of Zephyr Scale:
Ah! this scene and this Place in the Sub-Conscious fit: More than the beauties of the Conscious
Though both be beauty.

The drunk wine
Potion
In the sacred cup of Drear and glory simultaneous Pours little by little Drop after drop
Of the blood of the heavens Evolved rain.

Soars the eagle with wings Spanned and straight Proportionate and uniform
As
From chaos and chance
And probability
It evolved by degrees and By the hands of Master Time.

Sacred and smoking incense to quiet the Relative wrath
Of the old gods
There
In the high heavens Seated
Seated
On uneasy thrones of gold.

Startled
From the warm of sleep
The miserable Poet Seer
The Poet Seer of misery Walks
Paces
Pace after pace
In the bed room:
Midnight is past
And near three the clock Chimes.

Shattered with Gold and topaz Twined
Diamonds of the East:
The uneasy Statue lay
On the cold floor:
So cold that mists Emerged Emerged in to the Sub-Conscious Asleep at night
In the vessels of Life.

Tattered and torn Fragments
Fragments that however join
The night is long
The night is uneasy:
The night is painful Germ
Of the genesis of the Next dawn.

Here
The Poet-Child-Seer woke
And
With opened eyes
And wild
Roamed
For he knew that in the Reign of the Subconscious
Was
From the last remaining Drops of Conscious.

Fingers that uneasy hang And trembling
Thoughts
Each finger a cluster emitting Like as to magnetic rays
The altitude of emotion.

For he woke:
The Poet-Child-Seer woke
And
With opened eyes
And wild
Roamed
For he knew that in the Reign of the Subconscious
There
He roamed like a fish
In the delphinium of Time
There
There the years swim Slow mute and silent
In the mists of the days
In the clutter of lives
In the mute flags
That sub-conscious
Fly
In to the depth of night
The Poet-Child-Seer saw Storm-Child of the centuries
You must be saved
For you be Poet-Seer
And your nobility
Must Let you rise
Rise
To the heights of the old days
The noble ancientness Subsequent
The turnings of the globe
Of history
Sub-Conscious the brain mute
Looks
Looks in to the mirror of life:
The clutter
The mists that fly
The fragments of Sub-Conscious.

Castle of night
Castle
That glimmers in the lake waters Castle
That smokes incense from Its hidden dungeons Where beauty hidden hides
From the night
Till
The casements of the castle Open on the smiling gray
That is next dawn.

Beer
That smokes from the mugs
Of the channels of beauty:
Snows
That fall in the long nights
Flowers
That red and trellised
DNA-twirled
In the cold heights of the heavens
The night

In the ways of the Town of the Brain Beauties move slow
 Mute and silent
 In the canals of Time That smile
Sphinx of the Universe
 The hammer
 Of the old ancient Nobility of dogma.

Into the night
The red dusk fades
And unto his eastern cave Flees:
The old Norseman with the helmet
Of iron and covering Icicles of snow
Dripping
Passed by silent
His descendants he saw
In the town and the city Entering
A bedroom a couple Made love Another bedroom
He saw an old man sleeping:
And there
There
Stood the old Norseman
With tears in his eyes
And white-red beard.

‘You Poet Seer, ‘ he said to me ‘have predilection for the Winter, nights, stars, moon, and Their brood: Why? O why?’

Replied the Voice: ‘Contemplate Beauty.
In the mute paces of Master Time
The Sub-Conscious finds its Flowering:
And therein too therein Lies its Spring:
In the mute paces of Master Time
You will walk too
And too
Be in the luck of Beauty withholding.’

In to the palaces of Beauty For Beauty has many palaces
The Poet-Child-Seer of the wild Wild eyes
Will barefoot pace Walk Wandering
Wandering amidst the maze
Of corridors secret Secret passages
And halls of beauties
And of glories old:
Where shone the lights of gold
On many a festive night
Whilst
In the garden outside
The rains fell,
The rains fell
And snow.

O! this be the work of the Sub-Conscious That magic wand
That touched, just touched Will wanders write on earth
And in the skies
The heavens immense Words noble and great and of us all That taken to the heart and In the heart
Will on the tapestries, the noble Tapestries
The wonders of old beauty Ancient Manifest.

Smiled then
The Poet-Child-Seer spurning Wealth and power
For wealth and power
Is the power of the word,
The Voice of the Individual Sovereign Will
The beauty, the night, the stars, the moon,
And then
The opening of day the Dawn.
Lullaby of the Poet-Child-Seer Wandering through
The forests of beauty
The thicket of trees
The mists colored and deep
And thick with the scents
Of beauty and the dreams
The scepter of Morpheus
The song mute and lonely
Of solitude in dreams Lullaby
Lullaby of the Poet-Child-Seer Wandering through
The forests of beauty
The thicket of trees
The mists colored and deep
And thick with the scents
Of beauty and the dreams

Dawn that comes, dawn of beauty
Beauty that rises from the pebbles
Beauty that rises with the mists
The scents of spume and sea-waves
The genesis from the sea, the waters
That girdle
The tongues of earth:
Dawn that sings in the songs of birds
The rising trees of green that stir
Dawn that comes, dawn of beauty
Beauty that rises from the pebbles
Beauty that rises with the mists
The scents of spume and sea-waves

Night of the stars
Night of the moon
Night of dancing lights Night of the faded twilights Night of defeated dusks of red.

Dawn that comes, dawn of beauty
Beauty that rises from the pebbles
Beauty that rises with the mists
The scents of spume and sea-waves
The genesis from the sea, the waters
That girdle
The tongues of earth:
Dawn that sings in the songs of birds
The rising trees of green that stir
Dawn that comes, dawn of beauty
Beauty that rises from the pebbles
Beauty that rises with the mists
The scents of spume and sea-waves

Country
Permit to build round tourist Industry
A village small and at the back
The trees at night will whisper and Protest
At the intrusion of an alien fold
So
Will do the night creatures Though farther inside the wood they
Go
And the night-birds that flew over
The land
When it was green, a field, their home
And now
Now
They shy away from home and relocate.

A lark was I - today
In the high skies

A Poet Seer's vocation Is there

A Poet Seer's vocation
Is duty

The Poet Seer blind in The light of Dawn Sees Venus
Sings and bends
His head to duty Absolute.

There be more larks
And they are in the heavens
Above
But they be not so much Of Poet Seers
As me

A line, a white line over the seas
The dim lit seas off the breakwater Of ancient Valletta:
And over the white line a ghost Was walking Following
A shroud a pilgrim grey was Walking.

A Lone Bird Sang

A bird
A lone bird sang
In the wide heavens
Below
Mists circulated in a rainbow Trance
Ecstasy of beauty Carousel of beauty
Circulating in the airs
And the thick shadows Night was gone
And winter was suppressed Albeit far
From her own ending:
Yet
As yet
A bird
A lone bird sang
In the wide heavens
Below
Mists circulated in a rainbow Trance
Ecstasy of beauty

A Look! A Wink

A look!
A wink
And Love's arrow
Flies
From Cupid's bow

The people in the streets
Are
In their multitudes
For
It be Carnival

Hear the drums Beat
They eyes flare
Up

The night is in my Eyes
And Dawn be in your eyes
That light
For Love makes eyes so A million miles to go Travel with speed of light Tremble more than star-light.

A look!
A wink
And Love's arrow
Flies
From Cupid's bow
And it's Love!

A Man Of Sad Proportions

A man of sad proportions
But well built In intellect emotion and the rest:
He did not miss
To have in him that Hellenic soul That on the shores of the Aegean Heard Aeschylus and Homer sing
And
Was ennobled by so many humans
In drama
Aeschylus Euripides and Sophocles: In history Thucydides
In philosophy Plato, Aristotle, Socrates In science Euclid, Archimedes.
And then so many more In so many disciplines
Where human to himself said ‘Let me be, civilized and lord Of Earth attempt in as proportion direct’
That spirit of primeval Earth
Still breezes over us today.
That spirit of primeval Earth
Thousands of years Generations, centuries has Remained with us and Of us been.
We must continue and then
That in ever-increase.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Man Past His Middle Age Looks

A man past his middle age looks from
The dirty wooden bridge over the waters
That flow drear as the overlying Heavens. Think, human, think, How drear be life even in most joyous Moments.

Of old are the charnel houses, we
For ourselves proposed Immortality
But are still struggling up the river Currents against still Not winning a medal.

A man past his middle age looks from
The dirty wooden bridge over the waters
That flow drear as the overlying Heavens. Think, human, think,
How drear be life even in most joyous Moments

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Mantle Of Colored Amethyst

A mantle of colored amethyst
Over the port to slowly glide seems Slowly, slowly, slowly
Like passing clouds
Like the white mists Hovering over cold Everest.

And in the near distance high
The peaks appear white and blue Like azure domes full overturned in sky Or like up-turned cups
From Bacchus’ nightly revelries
In some green dale, some hidden dale Of wayward Thessaly.

The waves do quiet swish Against the pointed rocks That raise their head
To look at Fort Saint Angelo Unseen by human eye:
And in the sky the fireworks Burst like gaudy flowers In the din
Of mid-day glorious sun and drunken ecstasy
At the warm touching of the mellowing Sun.

The Poet sees and feels and sings.

A Monastery Medieval

Not dilapidated But old
With old Rain water pipes
And musty libraries
And books
And rooms of monks Joying
In its Increasing ancient Dilapidation almost Monastery
That glides
When the snows
Fall
For then
The mists will Have risen Long before Long
Long
Before Medieval monastery
And
The Man said
He saw the heads
Of some monks peep
From out their casements
And
It was deep night
Far
Far past mid-night:
Yet
All the monks when Confronted by the Abbot
Said:
‘Sir! We were sleeping.’
A Monk With Red Brown Robes

A monk with red brown robes they saw they asserted

Where?

In the cemetery last night
they said.

He was attuning psalms and prayers.

Around
the ghosts and shrouds and shadows thronged around

Lights came and went; and went and
came.

Trembled with tremors Earth; then ceased

A satin robe they saw before the Dawn came; walking then disappearing

And King Night furtive went down Cemetery Lane.

A Mourner said:

A Mourner said:
'What pity those genes gone astray with his passing away.'

Then

And the two Mourners silent marched After the coffin with bent head and mien.

A Mouse And A Rat

Dusk was fading.
Yet in a deserted part Of the old town Met Mouse and Rat.

The Mouse saluted first
The Rat then hailed.

The Mouse: 'My kin; Though free; in freedom Fear be; unless we Cut the chains to earth.'

The Rat: 'Earthiness is Tying down, down to her,
The Earth.
Freedom will not be.
That Freedom that you see Is subject at all times and Places
To the hanging swords
Of Fear of the Earth.'

And
Together agreeing that Fear of the Earth prevailed
The two good friends
To a nearby tavern of mice And rats together went.

A New Saint Francis Is Needed

So grappled we with Power
So grappled we with Wealth
So grappled we with all the rest Of their family:
That on our eyes
A mantle-veil of dark Descended has:
We need to liberate
Our hands from chains
Of all of these:

But more.

Our brains, our minds
We need to liberate
From these.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I will not see you Touch the earth
Kiss it on landing Touch the rocks
No!
Island of my dreams Home island
My feet totter
And
In the night I went Carrying a sack
And bent:
I will so
I will so I will not kiss
That sacred earth
Too hostile has it grown For an old man
And sick
You will island
You will still Be love
My love
My pain
My suffering Broken heart

A Nightmare!

A nightmare!
A night!

The sirens sang
On their little rock.

In the small bay
The seas rose up
In revolutionary sway.

How high shrieked waves!
How high the sound!

For all of this Was all of this
For all of this
A nightmare
A night!

A Pain In The Heart That Be Not Heart Attack

A pain in the heart that be not heart attack
In the sub-conscious floated In Beauty and rich imagery It gloated.

There was a silence of a sleeping city
After the hubbub of night
The sleepers took to bed and Dawn they shout out.

They went to sleep again
Those sleepy marauders
But then it was a day of rest
But more it was a day of holiness

A Poet Of The Night

A poet of the night, of fire
As yet
And the eyes of the night’s ire!

Lonely and with bent head
The Poet Seer
Alone with tears in the eyes

Yet in him burnt desire Unbounded as the Oceans wide To sing and chant as wide as the night’s ire!

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Poet Seer

so little appreciated a scientist a geneticist ignored in to the oblivion assigned to the so called mediocre in the bi-partition made by our brilliant civilization:
and

the works go unheard of with the lot rue not your fortune your destiny
the same for drama, it's a tragedy of tragedies and semi-comedies and of rebellious fire bursting of revolutionary ire the same with prose o! will continue the list
and in proportion the heart-break continue?

A Poet Seer Is Come

A Poet Seer
Is come
He is come
To our village
Not far from the Rhine
So sang they
With merry faces
They
With red faces
They
With mug of wine Frothing
They
Not far from the Rhine
Not far from the Rhine
A Poet Seer
Is come
He is come
To our village

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Poet Seer Saw A Leaf

A Poet Seer saw a leaf
falling falling sere cast away with the winds
here and there humiliated
as if it were garbage:
Said the Poet Seer:
'Look as this leaf am I;
so many years of work yet unrewarded and with the sword of oblivion over me thrown here and there as garbage.
Is that the Muse the happiness you promised me? '
Spoke not the Muse nor answered.
But left the Poet Seer to contemplate of ages yet to come and humans yet to come as in a globe as Banquo saw kings in his descendants.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Poet Seer Shabby And Hunchback

A Poet Seer shabby and hunchback down a drear hill went and it was growing dusk and it was growing red and twilight shone the waters of the bay:
and hummed to each other the caverns and the caves a vessel sprightly went into the port without a hand to row or pilot:
silent it glowed
under the white seething moon
and yet
though the Poet Seer shabby and hunchback weak and alone who walking almost fell
yet
sang he a sweet song of verse that told of olden days of ancient times by just occasional rhymes:
and marveled the jocund red dusk and danced jazz-like the mighty stars.

A Poet Seer To Meet Cervantes Longed

A Poet Seer to meet Cervantes longed and in the night he woke

He saw in the vague dark a light diminished of Cervantes was.

And spoke they long that night
In his bedroom as it was their home Till Dawn Cervantes made as shroud to go.

A Reddening Sun

A reddening sun
Into the azure sky fading
I seem to see:
My love, my love
My reddening love,
It seems to be:
Like ripe fruit in the sun
Like green boughs in the air Like lazing children sleeping In the hot summer afternoons After the mid-day eating.
Like a soft-sleeping siesta
A-dreaming and all-beaming A dulcet pair of azure eyes I see Is this my child to be?

Along the fields of sun
And grasses green and trees Head-bent with overloading fruits:
I seem to run without an aim And looking in the sky
I want to speak and shout
And do not find my voice:
Such the mark of happiness
When to the brim
The red glass of happiness
It overflows and brims.
And in this feast of drunken wine A dulcet pair of tiny ears I see
Is this my child to be?

A Sign In The Heavens

Sign in the heavens –
The Earth too much of woes –
And there will be more of woes

Looked upwards anxious faces

Crowds gathered in orison And penance.

But ah! the remedies must Be in the Soul,
The Inner Soul.

And there’s The sign of the heavens Relentless
The heavens will be The Voice said
High
‘You have not cleansed the Souls’

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Siren Sitting Was On A Rock

A siren sitting was on a rock Around the dolphins swam Around the shark swan peacefully:
Around the winds passed quietly With a darling cool velocity:
And in the dusk the red Soon turning to darkling red As blood that was in sky
And in the night the blood Redness increased Increased in the enchanted sky.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Small Boy

Once a small boy
Now weighted with years Blessed with work only Once a small boy

Once a small boy
I see Oblivion after me
I worry for the Earth
Once a small boy

Once a small boy
Days, months, years
How different they!
Once a small boy!

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Small Town

There will be a town
A small town
That sleep now Yet it be bustling Bustling with thousands
In the morning
The capital town.

Feet passing here, there, Shoes, sandals bodies
All universes of emotions
There all chatter speak Silent and go their way
Of life for as life goes Life goes those ways.

Yet at night
Will disappear.

In the morning bustling town
A few ghosts and shrouds Roam in early dawn
The last of more Then vanish too as smoke
From a shot gun
As mists of chill that fade
On mere touch of the sun They fade
They fade
And the bustling city leave Leave to its destiny.
New day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Smile

A smile
What difference
To my heart
In my heart!
But to you Just somber Indifference

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Song – A Singer’s Lullaby

A song – a singer’s lullaby
A heart of a sad Poet Seer In love with life so madly To Spring he flutters wildly
And sucks beauty’s nectar suddenly:
And on each flower stops and stays For whole nights and whole days.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Song Unsung By Day

A song
Unsung by day
But
In the night
Ah! then even the walls
Of Hastings Gardens
Sang.

Sang the fir trees Sang the brawny oaks Sang the tall elms Sang the low bushes Sang the beauty-drunken Nightingales
They sang
They sang

A glow-worm passed by
And
He wanted sing
As others did:
A cricket passing by Helped him to Sing

In party full
All of them, a whole city-town Alive
And bustling
In the deep of night
In one big party sang.

An eerie posse of shrouds Passed by
And with the rest
The sang
In eerie whispers
And
In eerie undertones
Till
The first lights of Dawn Faded all away
In one blinding lightning
That burst in day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Spirit’s Monologue

I Spirit speak, assert this solemn night
detaching myself from the other Spirit crowds, do hereby speak, assert:

'I am the Spirit that because of the sad heart rose from the ashes yesterday and airing
me as with a wand a tempest brought upon the woods just outside of Floriana going to Msida.

I brought the chill that then extended blowing Zephyr-like to old Valletta

How frosty the streets grew trembled the lights of the old lamps romantic trembled the starlight over Floriana and Valletta but not the stars.

Then not content
I brought the heavy clouds placed them over Floriana and then old Valletta and unfurled the edges of the fleecy clouds how many drizzles fell that joining in a cumulus
as in Fibonacci numbers grew and grew and brought rains that thundered on the streets and bent the heads of trees made the boughs tremble and the leaves turn yellow.

hOur after hour
passed: I brought the thunder
the lightning rose from over the Port coming and going.

And those were times
And those I did in centuries of past Still do will do in centuries to come For Beauty's sake
And the Sub-conscious.

No Dawn stood in the way.
Continued
the tempest that I held as puppet on a string thundering lightning and raining.
No less the chill,
the frost.

But alack! Dawn at last with her fiery entourage on the distant horizon appearing stopped I and slid as fast clouds glide over the turbid heavens.

And those were times
And those I did
in centuries of past Still do will do
in centuries to come For Beauty's sake
And the Sub-conscious.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Spirit’s Monologue 2

My monologue, my duty and my right
I come, but let me speak me,
First.
My heart aches, joy has flown,
And I take comfort in this monologue.
So that’s therapy, yet palliative propense.
See humans and imitate Hear humans and be more wise. (i)

Of yews and symbols of the grave Equation and song simultaneous With season after season we go along Together.
Blood, blood, blood,
The woe of the Earth is Out of the human petering out With every drop that’s out Years of gathered woe and Clustered weeping.
Firs and elms and other trees
Who opened their sad song Unto the night and Unto moon.
When Night walks in the fields
Alone.
Free my nights
And Free my hands Cut the woes
And
Cut the chains
Spirits be essence of free! (ii)

Out of breath
Beauty
Leaves
Me
The Night
Is Burning
I
Feel
His Red
Eyes Searing
How beautiful the night Continues in the Dawn!

I am the ghost that loiters
By a strait alley dark
In old Valletta
I am the Shroud who with Bent head
And silent
Watches small children Breathe and sleep
And roam the houses Whilst hour after hour Midnight approaches (iii)

I breathe into the night
When it be waning
That night will stand
Erect
Welcome the dawning
And
In that glorious still Parade of beauty
His eyes all dazzle! (iv)

Come, come chorus of Young and tiny Spirits Breathe pure air in the Town
Now humans sleep:
That tomorrow they will Find a new air breathing:
Come, come ghosts and Shrouds dance all around This street no car be
Passing
No human foot treads
Or from the windows
No fearful face be peeping (v)

I am Prometheus yes, too,
I into him transform And light with fire
The breast of humans Downfallen by travails of
Day
And woes a-weeping:
I be Minerva
And in the sub-conscious Inject the wisdom of the gods
At night in humans.
I be Narcissus looking in The pool that’s Earth and Sea
With it enamored (vi)

For
My monologue, my duty and my right
I come, but let me speak me,
First.
My heart aches, joy has flown,
And I take comfort in this monologue.
So that’s therapy, yet palliative propense.
See humans and imitate
Hear humans and be more wise (vii)

A Star

Speaking with a star
To-night is charmed
The ancient battlements Put forth their brave bosoms to the moon
That hides in half below the clouds.
For
To-night be charmed
To-night is charmed

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Star That Fell

A star that fell into a lake

The waters whistled and the caves
And coves bristled

The moon silver reflected on the Swarthy green of hills romantic

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Star That Fell?

A star that fell?
A monument from the heavens?
I saw the new monument Past-Dawn yet Last dusk was not there Right
At the entrance of the city old

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Statue Spoke

A Statue spoke
And it was night
And it was dark:

‘Sleep Earth, sleep, ’
The Statue said
’better sleep always
And sweet song
As lead on yours Eyes weigh.’

‘I am the one who suffers Seeing you suffer
I am the one whose heart Speak sad when it see you In woe’

‘I am the one who commands winds
I be the one who commands clouds
I am the one who commands rains
I am the one who the night hears
I be the one who advisor be to Dawn.

‘I am, I am,
I am the One who speaks
As the heavens speak out loud I speak in heaven’s voice be One with it, One for All, All for One.
I am
I am.’

A String Of Verses A Rhythm

A string of verses
That is A string of line
A rhythm and not Thought:
But
Yet
Conducive to the Thought
Just
A string of verses

A Tear From You Fear

A star
A tear
From you fear
You throw:
My love let my head
Rest on you, dear.

And Let the nights Season and place
Despite
Be nights of love.

We
We two are here.
We
We two love so That Earth's heart
To tenderness be moved.
And
Though the chains be Not yet cut
A star
A tear
From you fear
You throw:
My love let my head
Rest on you, dear.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Thief In Hastings Gardens

He walked helter skelter not moving much and low a shadow small.

Pink Panther-like his steps in to the dark faded.

then erect to the full he looked at the moon.

And I saw him:
a hedgehog large and old spectacles befitted him.

Out of Hastings Gardens
he then stole and the moon concentrated on him:
I saw him:
The Hedgehog.

A Thousand Airy Harps

A thousand airy harps
a million showers of dews, to-night.

The fleet in the port sleep, the ancient fleet, the ghost of fleets,
to-night.

sing
a thousand harps a million angel tongues spirits at loose
restless
to get in birth again start all over again not err as erred before
not

A Thousand Doctors

In the city a thousand doctors Wear the immaculate blouse Of white and have black Moustaches.

They stand up erect in the Hospitals; notebooks in hands;
And lovely nurses by; with a Cross; the patients lie.

As children in a pram
The patients wheeled Here and there from lab to Lab; then to their hospital room And bed

A Tired Worker

'I
I am the tired worker
Who aches in back
Who scarce can move
Who draws his feet
Round
I am
The tired Poet Seer
Whose heart has seen much Whose heart has felt much
And will go.
I
The Tired Poet
The tired worker
The tired Soul
The tired Inner Soul
Who yearns for all To dissolve
For all to evolve
Round and round
The mists go that Were things now Transformed without sound.
For
'I
I am the tired worker
Who aches in back
Who scarce can move
Who draws his feet
Round
I am
The tired Poet Seer
Whose heart has seen much Whose heart has felt much
And will go.'

A Toad

Croaked a Toad Then all the Toads
In to Orchestra of Toads
As an Orchestra of Toads Sung and croaked
And there was a whole Band playing
Not as sweet as Nightingales
But
Of differences long term a flattening

A Toddler, Piper Hobbling

merrily
Over
The town Alone went he Piping low Vibrations just Not silence to humans break
But ah!
That was enough
To thrill
Hedgehogs, insects, toads, Rats, cats, goblins, dogs and all
All
After him to tread
The earth with flying soles
And wide eared of smiles And feet that hurried fly
Under the smiling sky.
Of night
That night.
And
All of out the city went
To another distant land Where peace is as the day
And no war even night But peace and quiet all Places and times and chimes
So
The wise band
That night
And
All of out the city went
To another distant land

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Tomb

aha! only a tomb only a grave only a mute silent
and yet
and yet
there's some that will not win there's work for you there's work for your descendants as they fragment you more multiply more fragment of you aha!
only.

A Tomb And Yet A Womb

A tomb
And yet a womb
Of life
Energy
That in the night
Roams a smiling sight
A ghost
A shroud

A Town That Screams

A town that screams
But
Furtive in the night
When ghosts and shrouds in sight
When house facades smiles
Slow
When dusk be done

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Town That Sleeps

A town that sleeps
A mill that turns around A Sub-Conscious that Smiles
Humble in its nocturnal victory

Bring the nymths and fairies
From the night
Though after hours of dancing
And
Under spelled trees prancing
Their spirit still burns
Wild as in the deep of night:
Humans learn we from them.

Though Dawn be nigh
And the white line of light Already scar the curtain of the night Wherein shone eyes of glimmering star-light Yet time continues slow and deft and Sure
Just
One single dress.

Bring the nymths and fairies
From the night
Though after hours of dancing
And
Under spelled trees prancing
Their spirit still burns
Wild as in the deep of night:
Humans learn we from them.

Sing Poet Seer not only in the Night
Though the night be your favorite Haunt
And though Sub-conscious be the breeding nest Of thoughts, your thoughts!
Sacred and deep simultaneous.

Bring the nymphs and fairies
From the night
Though after hours of dancing
And
Under spelled trees prancing
Their spirit still burns
Wild as in the deep of night:
Humans learn we from them.

A Town Under A Town

A town under a town
That was My dream last night.

Conscious
I extend Town on town Or town.

A town is an apartment Block?
Town on town as Thought on thought?

A Treaty On A Lady

On a lady Coy and beautiful But almost thirty five
A man and her mother Spoke whispering.

The cunning mother Increased
The temperatures of The suitor
As he raised his offer More and more Spurred
By the mother ‘I have to tell my daughter, ’
She said jokingly
With mischievous
Eyes
Groaned the thirsty man Becoming
More and more thirsty.

Till
To where the mother
In collusion with the daughter
They brought him:
Ah! women so powerful
So potent
On a man who’s become Thirsty
And more thirsty!

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Trip To The Heavens

It was on a trip A trip to
The heavens
That I passed so Many clouds
Heard so many screams Then silence
Here I must stay
This be the place
Where Suspended between Heaven and heaven
We see fear from below Distant
And Immediately
We sing as the lark sings
Suddenly
In early dawns of gold.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Twilight

Precursor
Of A restless
Night
This night
This Night
In Old Valletta

The wind already Drifts
Through
The streets
Carrying dust with it And some Yellow leaves
I need to rest
I need to rest
From this Calvary
There must be rest
Here
In this old Valletta
Here
Now
This night

A Verse  A Chant

A verse
A chant
So small
And yet
This night
My heart
Your heart
Our hearts
It trapped.

A Verse, A Line, And Enough

A verse, a line, and enough
it will be song
if it be noble

Sang the Chorus:
'You experiment and so you must.
Verses and songs thrown here and there as the parts of human life and breathing things must be.'

Then said the Poet Seer:
'But sing me noble and sing me sweet, simultaneous'

this kiss we give the Chorus said:
for that to us be inspiration verse and song no, not now'

then the King said:
'Of all this bliss I will turn the whole heavens and they will rain being made joyful they will rain their sweet dews that sweet verse and song contain'

then sang the Chorus:
'grains of sand that scent in coming of the Dawn how white her face
how irradiant the lawn that up the green hill goes the lark that in her throes singing and heaven-leaping goes'

a verse, a line, and enough
it will be song
if it be noble

Emmanuel George Cefai
A vessel tumbling here and there and ill-constructed, with creaking timbers and with winds a-shrieking this vessel on the green waves by Pisa sailed on yet touched not the shores
for the Fates willed that it shall be the seas.

A giant wave of green came upon a white faced Poet-Seer though youthful
yet
he held in hand the last few sheets whereon the divine verse he sung amidst those storms.

In vain, Neptune was not cajoled nor the Fates sated.

O here on Earth - the Poet Seer - shrieked to the ever-oncoming waves of green we perish to transform, on seas the same!

No sooner said then a great wave-bolt hurled by Neptune himself at the hest of Fates by cruel toss the skiff, the sailors, the Poet-Seer overturned.

A Villa With Few Rooms

rustic to the root and core will I perching over a hill want where the cool autumn comes to rest itself

and where the cool autumn comes to rest itself a fragrance strange abounds hangs all around the air is wholesome like baking bread or mutton or pudding:
the heart pumps blood serene hate flees away invisible and there is happiness

and though the cool autumn comes to rest itself in this agreeable place and home
yet
some-time yearn I too for a long winter full of drizzling rain morning and afternoon then as the red dusk sets thunder and lightning’s long fingers over the hills above the village small can I see, I want to see from the casement as rain half-blinds half-obstacles the view.

And then
The chill of the thunder-clap
The thrill in every marrow
I want to feel
And feeling this I feel
The richest and the happiest in this world.

Awhile the cool autumn cometh to rest itself.

A Voice Called Me

I heard a voice call me In the woods
Inside
For I had slept
Then
I saw a fair girl
Transparent veils
Venus herself how Would more beautiful
She be?
Then suddenly Dropped the night stars Found I myself
Lost in the wood In total dark.

A War Of The Seas Of Life

The womb of the night
A measure of beauty
A chest of beauty
A rise
A war of the seas of the life:

A fountain of freedom
A gushing sprout of light
A light that comes and that goes And falls Down to Earth
From where it arose.

The womb of the night
A measure of beauty
A chest of beauty
A rise
A war of the seas of the life

Emmanuel George Cefai
A Widow Bird

I

A widow bird stood mourning for her mate
And to the leaden skies poured her distress Silent stood the vale and the echoing sound In piteous accents the grieving bird caressed While a still silver stream encircled round And gurgled its accents unknown with piteous sound.

II

The widow bird the haunting air did hear And thus the widow bird she spoke:
’Where from my friend, did you last hear The call of my bird love that days ago With me in the nest did lie and with our young? ’

III

To which the air replied to the widowed heart:
’Long many a day ago heard I the notes Of your bird love over a distant hill Ringing before the red dusk fell and night With its dark mantle covered the tired earth.’

IV

And then the widowed bird disconsolate Asked the crystal spring that passed by And said the crystal spring: ‘My friend Myself I cannot tell and no news heard.
But my elder sister the sea-wave tells me
That they saw feathers floating on the sea’.

V

At which the widow-bird more disconsolate Asked the grey rocks that looked upon the sea
And by the night the swishing waves were heard Kissing and lapping at their granite base: ‘Alas! Alas! ’ The granite rocks bespake ‘We saw a bird, a distant bird that flew Fall sudden down into the ocean-sea’.
At which a tear rolled in each eye
Of the widow-bird

VI

And sat disconsolate the widow-bird and pined Pined in the night stars and the azure dome Of heaven pitying on her pining too;
She knew not day or night or heat or frost
And sicklier grew with every hour passed:
Till the day came when she in the nest lay
And could not fly to feed her chirping band.

VII

Till to autumn a harsher grey did follow:
The cooling breeze to frosty northern wind Did turn and the cruel rains set in:
Winter had come.

VIII

And then sickness to pining added misery
And then her sweet birds chirped with pain And leant their heads and more and more Their eyes did close
And the white snows did come and frost Bit with harsh whip the lips and nose:
And in the night the cruel rains did fall
And in the moon’s light the lake froze.

IX

And pined the widow-bird and her offspring Till their eyes closed
And the white snows did come and frost
And in the night the cruel rains did fall
And in the moon’s light the lake froze.
A Willow, A Sigh

A willow, a sigh,
underneath

I and you
underneath.

And you cry at every embrace sweet embrace

And
you sigh as we kiss as we yearn

Then,
a tear from you starry eyes
and you cry
and you cry
and we kiss.

A Woman's Will

a woman's will so often propense, to move heavens on Earth.

power and glory so often melt before the woman.

we men are propense so often to dance to the magic of woman to both men and women?

the woman is a magician and born
this way.

and women be gems, whatever, whenever.

A Word, Just A Word

A Word...just I a Word

Struck by her beauty
The strutting beauty
The riotous blood
In me
Accost her made me.

In that madness
I ran to her ‘A word Mademoiselle, Just a word!’

Ha! She continued on Strutting arrogant:
And I was left with A bottle of words in hand
Just that

Bell of abandoned chapel Roofs falling Rain over paintings Altars with crevices And walls and Pilasters small:
Weeps
Every vesper
The abandoned chapel.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Abandonment - I

To laze a little in the Afternoon

To be a nightingale
And sing the night

To be a lizard
And in night's secrecy Clutter around and
The walls climb.

To laze a little in The fading sunset

To look at wood-trees in A pining dusk

To have red cheeks a-fading
As the dusk

To float face upwards in The starry night

To be a frog and sigh In the nocturnal mud of Desolate ponds.

To be, to be....

Sweet, sweet abandonment
In a rosy wood..

Sweet, sweet amidst the Twinkling briers

To reap the beauty of a Night's awakening

To clutch a moment
In the rise of dawn
To do, to do....

To see a satyr
In the deep of night
And seeing me See him leap Into the waters and Make circles round
On the waters' breasts
Without a sound....

Circle after circle...

To be a nymph in a Grecian land
To swim
To swim
Up the Aegean Near the shore
Where the waves spume Against first rocks of old..

To be on a lea where First the Earth is born from The retiring sea-masses:
And the first grass spouts To mix its scent with The salt of the sea
In some Grecian shore and Earth it must be It must be....

To be an eagle soaring Over Earth ah! in perpetual Flight above the earth
And moving dinosaurs
Lush trees and tall
And vegetation green
To be, to be, to be...
To peer amidst the Reeds of wakening Spring Hear birds pipe and
In the heavens
Flutter high with joy
Alas!
That draws heartfelt sighs!
Alas! alas!

So many joys there be In abandonment
So many, so many!
Alas! alas!
They be around us
And they be for free
To all, no riches needed
Yet we ignore, yet we ignore...

And then
And then to dream
To hear waters incandescent Slip down the fateful Rocks and the boughs bend Over the noisy waters
They prefer, these boughs
A silence where to dream Of Saturn overthrown by Jove to reign fugitive over Old stalwarts; to view
As in a bead flowers diverse Colors diverse in a bead Line the banks of small streams Beyond the hill as you go Up the dust from it Lies to your heart
Your tongue in thirst
In agony of thirst
And sweat but still You trudge and trudge That's life
And then
And then
To dream
To have more moments of abandonment To close first verses as The dusk begins to rattle Day towards the night
And fires swarthy the stars' light Here end I my sweet abandonment
The first of more I will to come And flourish for my heart’s content To come, to come...

We grow
All were so young
All drank the fount of youth
All were small boys Small girls
But now
Now
Totter in our ageing.

For all
The Ages pass!
Age his scythe mows
And passes
All
All
Nay
Even the Poet Seers
Below the Muse's hands
For all
The Ages pass!
Alas!
At last!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Acrid Scent

The land was Shouting
The waters screaming

There was an acrid
Scent
The nightingale heard it
And after one hour Started her singing

The oak was wiser Waited more
To taste next phases of The weather.

For when the land
Be shouting Waters be screaming

And
In the tintinabulum
Of time and ageing Breathing be melted
In the acrid fumes
Of acids boiling.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Across The Skies

Across the skies
A warning
Across the skies
Lone sea-gulls
Flying.
I heard the door close hard and heavy My Soul had I closed into itself:
Began to peer inside the universe inside me
I changed
the previous methodology
I changed.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Across The Small Lake-Pond

Across the small lake-pond
the light flashed
yet
there was not the peal nor rumble of thunder

Emmanuel George Cefai
Across The Stairs

Across the stairs
That to and fro Dangle across the skies:
A hundred angels flew
And the earth – our earth turned.

Across the stairs of heaven
A hundred angels held Trumpets in their hand
To herald the coming of the soul

And it came.
White-clad and robed and sandaled In fine proportions glistening One after another up the stairs it went.

The angels saw and liked.
Amazed the angel Gabriel Saith ‘Lo on earth
There are fair creatures too my friends’.
And he rued his sexless state.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Adamantine Neck

Adamantine neck
In vessel placed Amidst the Battlefield.

I saw
A specter tiptoe
On the wall
Grey Grey shadow
As shadows of the Past Wounded and Silent:
The vodka bottle poured Suddenly
Giant.

The giant spider Drawled in the Dim moonlight Up the walls
With giant strides
Yet slow.
In the bushes
A naughty glow-worm
Threw
On the retiring spider His lights
Searchlights of the night Bold
Bold
Bold

Add Oil – The Light Burns Dim

Add oil - the light burns dim
This night of humid heat And leaden-eyed dreariness
And throbbing unhappiness
In the red blooded heart!

Add oil - the light burns dim Never so low
The light of hope has burned.

And before now I see High on an altar full prepared
The chalice of bitter wine I have to drink.

The light burns dim - it flickers
On the wall its startling shadows dance And the heart sinks with hope This night of sacrifice And dreariness leaden-eyed
And throbbing unhappiness
In the red blooded heart!

The burning embers go; the smoke goes up.

Add Up

Add up
Add up the lines
Together
Then stop Then think
And
Your assessment

Advantages And Disadvantages

'I will not hide that'

'Tell, come'

'I am sixty'

'But does not any thing
Have advantages and Disadvantages? '

'Agreed, I tell'

Aesthetic Ecstasy

Aesthetic ecstasy
Religious fervor Met
Dusk was beginning Both Liked the dusk
And pined
And Then without a word
At Simple glance of eyes Towards the dusk Went hand in hand

Emmanuel George Cefai
Aesthetic Pride

aesthesis out of this Earth transports at last:
beyond
beyond
on magic wings it flies.

The powerful and the wealth remain poor and miserable chained to earth the more they strive to unchain themselves the more the chains about them turn and fast.

After A Few Days Of Celebration

After a few days of celebration
The Change fell morose
Into the string of drear Day after day, of day
After
Day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
After A Long, Long Time When My Voice

After a long, long time when my Voice
Rose high unto the heavens to sing
And verse on verse I wove on things, Emotions, seasons, fields, dusk, dawn, Night, fairies and the rest of things:
It grew of sudden parch; choked the words.
And no verse issued from the poet’s rock.
Its sides were dry and dust had gathered too Seeing that in the watercourse of poesy Dryness had made it overgrown with grass:
But
Suddenly the lightning struck; the Muse Came and inspired; rose again the Voice, That Voice that rent the heavens going Upwards towards old ancient Olympus, That Voice sang and verse on verse it made:
After a long, long time; a long, long time.

Emmanuel George Cefai
After That He Had

After that he had failed to get at Immortality.
Oblivion reached him with her hoar hand
cruelly.
A thousand years and
more more of Oblivion.
then one fine dawn a few professors proclaimed him the re-writer of civilization overturning Oblivion.
Too late
Too late.

Emmanuel George Cefai
After You Left Us

after you left us, mother, I unveiled the treasure
That I and you only knew about

It was a work of immense intellect.

You dictated, your brain, I transcribed.

And I had the honor to be scribe of such greatness.

Now mother your tribute and your due Is only left for me, my duty irremovable.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Again

Again
again the pincers of stress pressed me
pressed me
to write verse and song
but
only under the bleeding of the pincers of stress under the breast-heaving of the pincers of stress

Emmanuel George Cefai
Again Again Again

Again
Again
Again
Like as when your country Calls and calls upon you You first be indifferent
Then confused
Then
In the surge of next-emotions
You
Will be strong from weak
And a patriot
And
Your blood you will shed
Again
Again
Again
Again

Emmanuel George Cefai
Again In My History

Again
In my history
I am with back to the wall.

Again
So many times
The sacrifice avoided the carnage

But not now.
There will be carnage all will be lost Saving a tortured Soul
The Earth grounds wandering
Restless
Ever, ever.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Again, Again,

Again, again,
in its pith life arise and life falls
the works of old by others constantly replaced be:
and in that rate of replacement and to it directly proportional there lie the way to sheer justice to works that in oblivion be as in the limbo that I suffer now.

Against My Will

Against
My
Will
They Carried
Me
Along
The Paths
Of Hastings Gardens
The Fauns of the Red Dangling ears Carried me
Yet Felt
I
Not Pain
But Rest Rest
As
In
A hummock blest
And Sweet
The Music
Of
The Dangling ears
Red
Of the fauns of Hastings Gardens
Made.
Agamemnon Sailed

To leave reserve
Agamemnon sailed
On his gold decked vessel
Down
The old Tiber whistling
And
It was night
A night of bustling White stars that burned With fire
That Prometheus had regaled
To human desire

Age Begins To Drum You

Age begins to drum you
Years will not escape you
You will not slide and slip Through their tentacles: Ah! Age! Age!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Age Has Placed Me

Age has placed me
Where
I will not ever Rise now:
How much I preached
If you fall, rise!
But now
The match be closing Seconds remain
And
The goals to be scored Are a big multiple.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Age Is Stopping

Age is stopping Age be melting
Under the warm blasts Of science

Exact science Precise science

Prodding
Prodding
Immortality!

Ages In Man

Ages in man Ages in women
All are successive.

Till
Immortality arises.
There be no exemption.

In terms of beauty
Women lose the more.
These, the ages.

Agony In The Face Of Earth

I saw the agony in the face of Earth
I saw one tear single going down
I saw the face of Earth enraged in red

the sea
waters
weep
the eyes
of
the hills
and
the vales
are red
the faces
of
the rocks
and bays
are gloom
the time
is come
a strong voice
from
the heavens
said
the time
is come
from all sides
came
the words
the time
is
come

I saw the agony in the face of Earth
I saw one tear single going down
I saw the face of Earth enraged in red.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah how love burns how eager it thrills
In every vein in every dropp of blood:
How all impatient is: how from the feet
It higher, higher goes like rising temperatures Till the face reaches and the cheeks At first with blood are tinged and then Like idols as of old all brazen look:
And pleasure wells as incense in the heart Before the shrine of heathen gods and stones And having gained possession of the fort Love turns general and all directs The limbs and feet and hands and all Become his foot-soldiers in his full intent:
And from its riot the body rhythm goes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah Ivory, Ivory

ah ivory, ivory
shines like the sun and therefore loves the mid-day ecstasy of wine and lazy afternoons and siestas.

But ebony
Ah ebony Shines in the night
When the soft night uncovers the soft winds That liberated thus Over the sleeping port they blow:

There is a happiness in grief
And in the night
Your beauty of ebony shines bright

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah Power! Power

Ah power! Power Goeth away and wealth goeth away
and night and day and dawn and dusk
and I the mystery light the Bighi light the light of Bighi hill will stay.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah When The Heart

Ah when the heart
Is touched How vibrate
Its strings!

And when
The strings vibrate
How secret happiness
We feel!

Do not mind Whether ‘tis sad or not But what will count Is that The strings
The strings of the lone heart
Are touched!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! All In All

Ah! All in all
Whether on a gold throne
You sit and rule
Whether you count the dross Of monies, lands, properties Whether you languish see The dawn and night in misery
You will always come to Dawn to night to New Year’s Eve
And to New Year
Not less
Not less

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! Beauty When It Is Ravished

Ah! beauty when it is ravished
How wild, how wild its eyes will look All drowsy as if just awoke From steadfast dreams by drowsing poppies numbed How wild, how wild and drowsy will she look!
Not long enough will be The hours of the night, the long summer night
And all its humid heat and sweaty drops
When the full body rests the welcome rest From the long tedious day of laboring And the limbs their muscled beauty relax Unto the soothing night, the welcome night.
Below the casement a small rill with happy mien Gurgles into the night its dark unfettered voice
And its unconquered syllables indistinct And heard and understood by satyrs bright That hold unseen their winy feast at night Into some coppice still and olive-green and calm While the still wind a single rustle does not make In the thick foliage of the talling oak Within whose highest branch the old owl rests And with awakened eye half-opened half-closed Looks all before at night she witnesses
The dances of the fauns amidst the green And sheltered avenues sentinel by trees And feasting satyrs red-lipped with warm wine And hold cups and drinking to their god That from his heaven upon them smiling looks:
Ah! long the night beneath the bending yew It seems a pilgrim gray half-bending and all still And by him lies his staff unmoving quite
And with him Time rested and did not move:
Ah! pilgrim Time the night has conquered too Your limbs with its faint drowsiness And faint half-audible caresses That in the ear melt like a serpent hiss Or like the sorceries of Circe when she lay Into the cave to calm Ulysses’s whims Whilst waves reflected danced all long the rocks That were the roof reflected from the sea That down below down giddying heights
The sea-waves danced with nymphs that danced on them:
Full rippling the love-words of Ocean waves When dreaming in the waters drowses more In feeling their cool numbers to him flow Ah! drowsy beauty wild untamed unfettered
By the musty parchments of conventions old And hated as the ancient Saturn gods:
That Jove and his men duly overturned
The old though good with hate all covered goes When time wills that it cede unto the new A leaf that in its glory in the sunshine basked When time doth make it sere 'twill hate itself And wish its bough by its new spring replace:
How drowsy beauty is, how wild untamed How magic are the castles that it dreams
And in it waves will leap Over a hundred stories to the fort Where lies love and grace and history
And that like lighthouse in the night Shines its tall rays unto the welcome skiff:
That the tall bosom of the sea swift plies Into the long night, the long welcome night.
How will the blood to the warm veins Rush in delight like wine a-warming full When Bacchus holds his feasts and revels full And laughs resound from the dark coppice green Where he and his companions revel full Hid from curious eyes and human steps.
But now gray pilgrim Time stirs full and tall He rises now and looking at his watch
He on his staff his voyage now resumes And sands again now trickle down the glass Anon unwarranted the eyes of Down Into the dark nocturnal mantle peer and see Making full breach with it: soon the dress That satins the dark mantle of the night Will here and there dissolve and loose Its dark transparent gloss to a light grey Wherein the rising Dawn by slow degrees Tears the web of dark that night has meshed Till the downy structure to its feet Is like a castle to its crushing sent:
Awhile the sun a-shedding his stirrups gay
To ride into his car with joy prepares:
And dwindles the long night, the welcome night But beauty still with ravished eyes and wild Into the drowsy dawn will rise and look.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! Better For The Weather

Ah! better for the weather
if it be tempest then let it be tempest at home we stay together you and I not cold outside but in the warmth of home and love:
common emotion let it expressed in uncomplicated verse:
no synthesis, special description just straightforward assertion

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! Better Leave To Chance

Ah! better leave to chance Than plans and strategies Beauty wanders a-randomly And should she roam by plan (and strategy) Then will not so enchant
But fade
But fade
Like the blood-ticking cheeks of violets
At the first touch of the frosty Boreas:

I saw and met with beauty wandering Barefoot and wan-melancholy Walking down Nix Mangiari steps all randomly.

Nearby I heard the day rolling into the sea.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! But The Man Will Not Live Alone

He wants a woman every day or nearest.

And if he will change a woman every day or nearest, he likely will.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! Cunning Poet-Seer! You write Sing and versify like prose:
But in the words there’s thought And food for more thought I guess and assert that you are Fishing for the consents of the crowd:
Like Politicians.
Can an Artist be so?
The next thing I will have will be An Artist with a fishing line for votes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! Do Not Turn Off The Light

ah! do not turn off the light
so long as there is hope after this bleeding
this night
I could not lie with pain
Nor sleep
Yet bleeding had diminished:
Till there is hope
Do not turn off the light:
And when
The time cometh
Then like the stars at touch of dawn
The light will itself banish.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! For Emotion

Ah! for emotion rather than for words
In verse
In my present distress!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! How I Would Quaff The Red, Red Wine!

Ah! how would I quaff the red, red wine That brimming in the golden cup Shines in the moon light to-night:
My thirst is deep and deep as a cool well That unto earth’s entrails full stretches Such is my thirst: I would a flagon drink And then one after other in full train Would I quaff rapid as in the oasis green When welcome foods and shades arise midst burning sands:
Ah! this thirst is nothing to my thirst for love!
My heart is torn and the more torn the more Will it need love to requite it and breathe!

And in this night I would I would I drink A whole long welcome full river of love And feel it cooling and hiss serpent-like Gurgling stream-like burning my throat.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! I Yearn Now For The Burning Suns

ah! I yearn now for the burning suns that I yearned to forego a month ago:
the burning sands I yearn The restless bay
Where restless wavelets lapped so sweetly When the red dusk fell heavily Yet strange and cool and sensual over the bay:
And the strange bay
Was filled with spirit of the dusk Cool were the waters where I bathed And from the shore
The fishermen’s boats prepared to sail.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! Life As A Hummock

Ah! life as a hummock
treats us when we be lazy it makes as sleep hyponis
art of the sub-conscious

Restaurant of life
there are so many menus there will be menus
humans
many humans will be in the restaurant of life

Ah! life as a hummock
treats us when we be lazy
it makes as sleep
hyponis
art of the sub-conscious

Ah! Lo The Light! - So Shouted Our Guide

ah! lo the Light! - so shouted our guide
We on one olive green Abruzzo hill did stand Below the pines and the smokes from the vale Where peasant dwellings hid their humble heads.

So here was the ghost - the night had still Not fallen down its veil with slow enmeshing Adown the olive hill where we did stand:
But from the skies low and one storey-high
The Light flashed in the dark.

‘That is he! The ghost! ’ - the guide excitedly:
The night did flicker with a thousand stars That shone like silver diamonds on the sea Of strange azure and rare that heaven is:
And the Light flickered all mischievously.

It seemed a playful ghost - but hist!
It spoke - at first a drawl I heard but then Less indistinct the words came to my ears
And less and less indistinct grew with every word:

My friends! If you but appreciate My ghostly status you will not look strange At me or what I say.
For I my friends full murdered was Here on this knoll, this hill, Six hundred years and more did pass:
Ah! Love for you they murdered me
When the night stars Shone in the Levant with lover’s eyes
And the wind subdued sang in yon small wood Between the trees a-mourning funereal:
The stone that murdered, the dagger, the blood
All I remember well and recollect:
They thought to destroy me, yet here Am I six hundred years and more And speak as living men and move and walk:
Only that the frailties of these men I do not have: for no vile dagger can Any more harm me or trouble me:
And see I without seen; and hear without heard:
For me the wonders of the Spring
The same are as the gusts and frosts That in the Winter hoar pinch the pine trees And hang from them in frosted icicles:
When Christmas comes in snowy garb of love And nightingales sit all lonely on their branch.
I am as living men and more and no hurt can Damage me; nor can green envy shoot His bolt at me; and green-faced conspirators Cannot dagger me as they did then.
No harm toucheth me or ill
Will near me’

So saith the ghost - and then it stopped all suddenly It uttered a few last words incomprehensible As when a drowning voice is sinking in a well Where time manifesteth to drown in silent spell.

And then the Light shone not nor more it flickered to our eyes astonishing:
But in the air, the quiet air
There lay the touches of the veil of night
As it went down a-down that quiet hill;
And lights electric neon lit Down in the valley where The peasant dwellings hid their humble heads.

Adown we went; adown Abruzzo hill
And in to Abruzzo vale we went:
The night was climbing in his regal car
And lighting one by one the stars That like diamonds shone in heaven’s face
Or like fresh tears in a woman’s eyes
Where paradise in dwelleth in a lake

Adown we went - no word we said
Our hearts were full - our minds not less For we, we human prouds had learnt
In a few moments a lesson that had not learnt In years of pondering study at university:

Cool was the wind and licked our face:
The night was climbing in his regal car
Lighting one by one the silent stars That as diamonds shone in heaven’s face
Or like fresh tears in a woman’s eyes
Where paradise in dwelleth in a lake.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! Love, My Love Like A Glow-Worm Shines

Ah! love, my love like a glow-worm shines Like to a glow-worm it so tiny is That a small hand can crush it:
Like to a glow-worm so elusive it So hard to capture now here now there:
This love, this glow-worm this ship Sailing out of the port alone this night Pilot-less and sailor-less and in the night
It fades, and fades, and fades.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! My Leg Aches

Ah! my leg aches
Yet the moon shines.

The eyes of the moon are bright
And have tears in them
To-night.

My heart aches.
My heart bleeds.
My heart yearns.
That's all
And
That is enough
Too.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! One Year Has Descended

Ah! one year has descended upon you mother in your new residence:
a residence for long and the first year will soon be sealed with your destiny be sealed so many destinies

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! Pinches Of Cold!

Ah! pinches of cold!
How less, how less Than sadness!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! Read My Verse

Ah! read my verse

‘There I found consolation’

‘Just that? ’

‘There’s more. There’s The mechanics of Adjustment’

‘Ah! with Adjustment you can suffer ever And the brain stand’

‘Stand? Stand ever? ’

‘Till it be broken’

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! Songs

Ah! songs
Renaissance nights
Nights of serenades
Nights of violins
Sweet tunes
Though
More thought
Be desired
Though more Experiment
In Style
Less, less conformity Yet sweet the music plays Nocturnal before days!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! Strange Inconstant Northern Star

Ah! strange inconstant northern star
That in your trail behind you seem to leave A trail of frost invisible
Into the long night of the universe
Tall and half-visible strange inconstant star.

I, too will inconstant as you be
And be A father to new stars from more than one Roaming restless and macho in the universe
Into the long night of the universe

And then
A million seeds and more will ride Down the trail of frost invisible
Into the long night of the universe
Tall and half-visible strange inconstant star.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! The Earth Is Bursting -

Ah! the earth is bursting-
Like a woman in labor-
The earth is tearing itself-It’s opening its bowels hideously-All fly as the earth yawns
And in its pains
The horrid clangor deafens all
At last
What we have valued icon-like Now like a broken pitcher lies A thousand fragments.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! The Frost Bite

Ah! the frost-bite
How doth it sting with cold!
But sweetness of love
With every thought Wells up pleasure
A thousand times as much!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! The Motion Of Time Passing – After

All Time is Motion and Motion Time
How, how long!
How, how long!
You hear this day Mister X passed You hear next day Mister Y passed You hear next, next day Mister Z passed What is the delay that’s keeping Immortality of Ens so much at bay?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! The Pearls Of The East How Famed They Are

Ah! the pearls of east how famed they are For them how many men with spears fell Turned inside them while the thin fingers Of blood rolled.

How many a maiden fresh and full demure With love-looks and potion-laden full With darting eyes and wild – she looked.

How many a modest maiden breast Heaved at the touch of pearls of east
And when the even tinct the skies with spots of red And the wild dusk heralded sensous night:

And when the moon shone on the bosomed sea
And when the owl called forth from the old oak And when the clouds passed on the shadowed lake:

Then Night bedecked with pearls of east walked like a queen.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! The Ravages Of Time!

Ah! the ravages of time!
Ah! the ravages of age!
The snows more cruel will not be Against the frozen faces of the rocks Hard grey and black supporting them:
Nor will the nights more severe stand Where shielding clouds elude
The frowning of the heavens; the disconsolation of solitude.

Vessels have foundered on shores and seas
And then their splendor lay in wrecks Disjointed wood; melting paint; and shattered glass:
And all the paraphernalia of all wrecks:
I will never rest until I climb
The mount of sacrifice from where I look Upon the wrecks of all I built and made In previous years and burning youth and fray Then will I have a little rest and then I will my pinions throw at heaven’s face.

Then one long cry desperate and wild After minutes of realization will I throw:
The jug I built and which I threw to earth
I see and weep - and yet not tears come Nor words by which unlock my heart:

This me, this wreck, this hopeless case and wild.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! The Scientist The King Of The Earth

Ah! The Scientist the king of the Earth
And emperor he is!

You see,
You see he just suspended Immortality
He was on the track
But disgusted
Suddenly stopped.

Tell me
Tell me that the red dusk Has come and that The Poet Seer has not pined
Tell me
Tell me

For this Poet Seer and this Scientist are one.

See, hear, the seas are roaring
The bays, the coves, the caves
The huge waves are entering!
And there is hooting all around
And
Winged creatures black flying around In to the frowning heavens full Abound

Here hear the flapping
Of giant wings:
Of things that saurian flying
Sound
Huge sound, huge windmills
Turning
Turning
Turning
And  fires huge flaming at once And sudden giant burning.

The Angel that you painted And on loudhailers Defamed
As a brute Monster:
He’s returning, wounded
And lost and tired
Falling
Falling
Look! The sound!
He fell!
Face upwards he moves not!
At last Vindictiveness has won Though angels flock around and
Weep
Your spell has won!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! The Siren Song Of Ambulance

Ah! the siren song of ambulance
Of formalin
See a priest with stole and cape Grim of face Sick bed
Tears
Cry of horror
White of fear
And in the distant far Sings the song of ambulance!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! The Venetian Violin

ah! the Venetian violin how lay on the desk unstrung, unseen by admiring eyes:
much less the hall of applause full distant was.

And in the night
A silver faery came Tall wan unearthly
And in her eyes
A wildness spake not words
And in her walk
A furtive pace of fear
And in her cheeks
A modest blush retiring Under a cloud like to the candid moon In winter nights on lakes and waters froze Shining with feeble light.

And strung she the violin
And numbers flowed
And flowed into the night
Into the ancient walls and vaults Of that antique tower:
And in the night
The music notes unseen
A hundred elves and fauns
And satyrs made dance Like the Three Graces.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! The Word Cemetery

Ah! the word cemetery
how often mother to utter it you have made me
you
my mother of the cemetery

inside the cemetery sleep the residents the sleep, the long sleep
while the energy from underneath the cold stones that seal the grave escape and roam.

ah! the word cemetery
how often mother to utter it you have made me
you
my mother of the cemetery

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! Then A Quiet End, The End

And then a stop.
A grinding of the wheels.

I see the face of Immortality Surprised.

And smiling devilish a face
We hate.

And in her hand a sickle held That dripped slow blood.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! When I Take My Lyre, As Merlin

Took his book of magic.

My waning health revamps, kindles
The fire that in embers crackled.

And the night bleak so bleak
Lights with the burning stars.

Aye! Aye! Blood courses, Spanish, Passionate, Mediterranean, proud.

Nor does it renege its Italian ancestry Nor lose the thread of Teutonic remote.

Nor the night sleeps, but dreams and Speaks unto itself Valletta’s history.

Ah! when I take my lyre, as Merlin
Took his book of magic.

My waning health revamps, kindles
The fire that in embers crackled.

And the night bleak so bleak
Lights with the burning stars.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! When The Heart Bleeds

Ah! when the heart bleeds
When the brain thinks not But vague and parched Wanders through valleys
Where thorns grow

The thorns that hurt
The feet
The thorns that hurt
The head
Throttle
The parched throat

The Voice that sung
At last
The day will come When that Voice sings not When the waters of Babylon Too much of exile taste
To drink

Emmanuel George Cefai
Aid Me My Muse, My Mind Instill

Aid me, my Muse, my mind instill
And in my soul your warm breathe give To sing of Morpheus and his pleasant dreams I cannot sleep these days.
Aye! Aye! Aye! I cannot sleep
And thus came pilgrim to the Muse’s shrine And there to ask my prayer to grant
That I may rest my head in welcome sleep:
What gifts, my Muse, favor will procure And cast me up in(to) your fortune’s eyes Sprinkle with myrrh my passage to your shrine And fill with queer shapes its unwinding path?
What gifts, my Muse, will please you most Amidst the gleaming jewels of the East Which the hoarding miser strokes with trembling hands In darkened solitute blest by a small light?
What gifts, my Muse, will enchanting procure Your gracious favors to my anxious self Make your scepter yield with wanton hand
And of your ordinance soften the content?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Airport Of Spells

Airport of spells
Mists and charms
You tell me my Monsignor You sing so oft of these!
And then
Said the Poet Seer:
To sing of these be never enough.
And Life
Is sweet not only in these Things?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Airs Are Rising

The airs are Rising up
And there are waters Hanging in the heavens Scents just below
A throne for Beauty Nearby

Waters
Thoughts
Nights
Sleepless Rants
Rants
Rants
The waters of the brain
Blessed Earth
More than morning dew
This cold night.

Emotions one by one Lackluster nerves
Freeze
Sub-conscious thoughts Move slow
Yet Growling
The waters of the Nile Spoke to the snows High peaks rattled Avalanches
So much snow fell Tinkling of bells
Of cuddled sheep
Below a Scottish alp
By Aegean waters
A Poet Seer thinks on his harp Airs Of The Common

There be the airs
Of the common
The lackadaisical
Now and then
At least
Even
In the most inventive
The commons creeps Into these even Through the slightest Crevices

Emmanuel George Cefai
Airy Harps

Airy harps in heavens
immense strike and play

they be the carriers and the messengers of the General of the Skies.

Ah! these Instructions
Not orders, my learned friend.
No, instructions at least to be practical
and to be pragmatical
these the instructions:

'Bury war in the cemetery I show you It is watery
It be the liquid Sea the vast yet confined Ocean'

'And be as one in All,
and One for All,
and One of All full permanent.'

Emmanuel George Cefai
Alcoves That Bear Brunt

Alcoves that bear brunt
To thousands of Whispers:
On lone nights rare
Of cold and frost
Yet
Also in summer steam
As arrows in the heart
The echoes saunter
In the solitariness Figures dark and rattling Pass by nights

Emmanuel George Cefai
Alien

Picked up from a band that marched Skeleton after skeleton

From a fairly distant star on earth Thrown

And now on earth on a rocky coast-ledge Where wave with lightning combated Rain with frost, chill with wind
In that general ire
How wild,
How inclement your reception here!

Yet on the Earth away
From eyes of human you voyaged.

With the strength of an Alien The half-courage of the solitary
One;
Of survival, the burning desire!

Now
That days passed
That weeks passed And months
And even years Alien to Earth
You are not more an Alien For by the laws of the immense heavens
You have become Earth’s citizen!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Alighted In This Place

I warble since the Dawn
Alighted in this place
This port this town
Here on Earth:
With me
Warble
A thousand birds that slept In boughs
And more
The spirits, ghosts and Shrouds,
Still in the womb of Earth Circulating
I turn to the port breezes
For more joy
That has been rare
That always was
Rare
These last years in my life.
Rare joy.

Emmanuel George Cefai
All In The Flashes

all in the flashes
all in the whirl of days
for these be only whirling,
whirling, whirling,
now
you be in power them I now you be in glory then I turn the wheel that's already turning

Emmanuel George Cefai
All In The Light

all in the light that flashes
all the night
all in the light

Emmanuel George Cefai
All Is Dust

There were tall verses, slow and With soft voice

Uttered were they as the sun set
And the flagship of Dusk Had entered

Fading
After a glorious hour
The Dusk repeated:
'Ahi!
Ahi!
Ahi!
All id dust
All id dust
All is dust!'

Emmanuel George Cefai
All Must Rise, All Can, All Will.

All must rise, all can, all will.

Rise up humanity but not in violence

In masses yes, but in the intellect.

The Revolution of Violence was done.

And now the Revolution of the Intellect.

Emmanuel George Cefai
All Over

All over
All over the rats Black rats
White rats
Dark rats
Grey rats
All Scrambled over
Ah! the Sub-Conscious!

Emmanuel George Cefai
All Your Emotions

All your emotions are In up and downs
Now:
As graph lines that ascend
And then descend
And
Then ascend again
Common to all times there
Be Just relentless restlessness
The fruit of stress
The times we live.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Alone

alone, solitary, they brought a bier put in and coffined him confined him to the grave.

Season after season came season after season passed on the tomb light, then cancelled was his name.

and the heavens unhappy thundered in anger full:
and the stars were still asleep from the night's stand.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Alone In Grief, Alone In Thought, Alone

[The Pieta’]

alone in grief, alone in thought, alone
the mother stood, the mother wept, small, silent, tearless tears at the brim that never came:
The Pieta’

Around the gloom, around the dark, and hopelessness
She held her son a piece of flesh Alone in grief, alone in thought she stood
The Pieta’

She saw him hit, she saw him fall, his eyes
She closed herself; hers the last kiss Hers the last touch, farewell:

Alone in grief, alone in thought she stood Pieta’

Emmanuel George Cefai
Alone, Alone - I

Alone, alone
You walk, you toil and lose
You work for years
And day and night
And then robber-like They steal, they steal from you All your fruits, all your work When will the pity of heaven come?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Alone, Alone - II

Alone, alone
Perched on a high bastion
The palm-tree stood
It looked dejected
With every dusk.

And
With every quaff
Of wind
It moved
It moved
Its bent head it moved

How bent
Its head
Like the Pieta’

Emmanuel George Cefai
Alone, Bereft, Abandoned

Alone, bereft, abandoned, Unkempt, half-dressed, unsavory, Walking, slow, pensive, moody, Demoralized, head-bent, vacant-looking Pot-bellied, tired, tired-looking, Shunned, despised, persecuted Unhappy, leaden-eyed, cast down.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Along the gravel walked the solemn sea Apache!
The attack-call!

The brain confused and stress will not Yield yet
And in as proportion direct be
Restless

I saw the green frothing
The anger red
The clothing
Before the bull’s eyes.

The white matador I saw Turn round and round
The cloth

I saw the white matador
On the ground
Turning round and round
As dust turned red.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Along The Ridges

Along
The Ridges Blow
The Snows
In
The Wild Lands
Of Patagonia
Along
The Ridges Move
I
Where Men
Of
The Earth
Will Reach
Me
Not Or Else
With Such Difficulty
That I
Will Fly-transform
To Heavens
Further
Up Should
They Reach me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Already Felt I  My Flesh Fall

Already felt I my flesh fall
one after one naked
the bone appear suffering and skeletal

A ghost was I becoming
till a ghost became I

And donned the Shroud to cover my nakedness of bone
bending
under the suffering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Already I Be In To Exile

Already I be in to exile
I have long prepared I have long begot my thought and my resolve in the hours of stress In stress was born my will to exile and ancestor of my exile:
Already be I in exile

Emmanuel George Cefai
Already In The Air And In The Sky

Already in the air and in the sky
Lead color sometimes appears:
‘tis the sign
That summer will soon end:

I long for lead a little lead of sky
After the glorious suns of summer
The blood coursed red and raw and fast
But now
Less coursing I feel it wants to be:
More cool, perhaps more rational And welling up more pleasure all the same It longs to bask
To bask away from suns
Into the mellow autumn coolness that will come.

But night, this night Will soon cover all
The little lead of sky it goes And night buries it Buries in its folds of dark
And with it goes There goes the first glimpse of Autumn
And its strange serenity.

To-night, this night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Always At The End!

Always at the end!
Smiled at last
After so many disappointments!
Yet
There remained an hours few A days few
And
The end was disappointment
This time too!
Mother! Mother! Help me
My heart breaks
The last straw lives Only lives
And
All the rest is all broken
At the end
Always the end!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Always Routine

Always routine always drear
the earth rotates

but that is what the mass universe dictates that is what Principles dictate Proportion sovereign

Emmanuel George Cefai
Amalia!

Amalia!
magic name, common name, rare name Amalia!

But in your name there is a person behind the scenes:
there was a heart that beat there was a heart that had to beat for more years

alas! Amalia!
the gales of misfortune carried you you were speaking with red face the day before
the day before you spoke not more and face upwards lay in the hospital bed without a move

and I
I
entered without sobs,
for my heart was too broken to make sobs,
and I felt that I was treading sacred ground I touched your cheeks now becoming cold your hair grey of suffering I touched
and begged them give me a little tress that was all.

That was all.
The mass, the funeral, the tomb, the cold morn of the entombment, your shroud remains Amalia!
your blood remains Amalia!
and that was all.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Amidst

Amidst
The last lines
Now
The last of verses

Age
Has made his clutch
And Hapless as a sparrow I
In the eagle's clutch Lie.

Ah! Age! age! Age!
What change and havoc Wrought
Till one or more Will come and stop you:
Till then
You oft sadistic pleasure
Take
As the coffins in to the Screaming graves
Are laid

Emmanuel George Cefai
Amidst The Desert Sands The Violet Rose

Amidst the desert sands the violet rose
In the mirage blinding transformed And re-transformed cyclical:
Realizing it itself unseen
By human eyes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Amidst The Nights

Amidst
Amidst the nights
Bones in skeletons Assemble more

Assemble in the skeleton Assemble in the night Skeleton to skeleton

And then they march over
The sea
Drilled and non-stop Towards Dawn
Over Ocean and seas.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Amidst The Woe

As
In football
Amidst the woe
And breaking:
Amidst the disaster
On disaster
He found
With sacrifice Strong work
And hard
At last
A leap of brain
That got him over
When Choice was just Either get over Or else fall.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Amidst, Amidst

Amidst, amidst
Amidst the waves
The ocean-waves that sparkle on the pilot sea
And glisten in the night to dancing forms Of elfin size in silent prancing lost.

Aloft, aloft
My soul I have let go
That it may find at last Its home, the yearning-prize Wherein it must go now:
The ocean-sea that sparkles in the night.

I hear the chains cut
I hear the pains fall
I hear my dress of breath Fall in the channel sea, beyond the straits Where the wide Ocean beckons and awaits:
Where the wide night yet sparkles full as day Where the dawn riseth from its eastern cave Where beauty surfeits by excess of love:
Where the Good rests and stays
My soul will sail.

And from the triad of rocks that menacing Stands in the ocean path
The sirens sing their lay.

Yet the night shines and there is light
The soul sails on, the siren-song by-passed Withers and loses in the ocean’s vast.
The breezes blow, the breezes blow my face.
And the soul sails, still sails this night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Amnesia Of Beauty

Amnesia Amnesia
Of Beauty
Yes
It
Was
But
Now
The Hand
That Slept Revives
But
Now
The Lyre
Sings
But
Now
The Violin Plays
But
Now
The Heart Sees
Full
And
All
Be
In Earth
And Heaven above!
Amongst The Trees

Amongst
The Trees
The Spectral
Dance
Now
Goes
A Poet-Seer
His Eyes
Of Wonder
The Cemetery
The Very Deep
Of
Night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Amulet Of Singing

Amulet of singing
Bird that jewel Eyes sports Even in the Day
But what eyes
Diamond of East
And amaranth
In every night!

Emmanuel George Cefai
An Adult Love

an adult love
so is ours:
and on transgressions
so-called based too the greater the so-called transgression
the more our ecstasy in love
and weaker in Love's hummock grow.

Emmanuel George Cefai
An Ailing Sun

An ailing sun
Now
Today
Will forge through The Port straits
Low on the horizon
As red dusk
Mounts over Valletta on his steed
And
All the city pines
And a mantle gray Covers its face.
Just as a passing posse of
Clouds.
The night’s still on its way.

Emmanuel George Cefai
An Early Dawn

this dawn was early and an early dawn is welcome more more so after night's sufferings.

another day.
another day that's gone that lights up cheek of heavens with such early dawn.

the heart weighs less
though behind a corner hidden Sorrow and Pain conspire
whispering

Emmanuel George Cefai
An Even Song

An even song!
So said the Muse
I will
To fire songs.

The more and more
As winter
Goes along!

It will keep you
In your hearth warm
Your house
Your castle Delight in fairy
Song.

Emmanuel George Cefai
An Hour Ago

An hour Ago
There Was The Hubbub Of The Feast
The Guests Chirped As Birds Chirp Wine Flowed And Whisky Made Glasses Clank And Ring
But now
The feast is finished Now Dispersed in all directions
The chirping guests Now
There Is Silence
Knife Of Quiet Sadness
In The Place
Of
The feast
Only
A Slight wind neighs
Slow
Slow and slight.
And the Dust
Goes round.

Emmanuel George Cefai
An Indifferent Dawn

Dawn, here, today.

Dawn in Valletta.

It was indifferent.

Now that it has melted into day
That it was so indifferent we Will say.

Before night's drear trembled and With it trembled all Below the heavens on Earth.
The usual stress and angst
And drear.

Now day's preparing a banquet
That was fixed days ago.

Slow it lays utensils, wrapped in
Drear
After a dawn indifferent.

Emmanuel George Cefai
An Iron Will, A Rod Of Power,

An Iron Will, a rod of power,
That was of others, not of mine
For I am broken.

An arrow red that Through the heavens flies Speedy as velocity of light Of the lustful stars that burn and glow.

For here
In this menagerie of churning history Where history rides on brooms
Day and night
And thus right on the face of the Heavens
It engraves and writes
An Iron Will, a rod of power,
That was of others, not of mine
For I am broken.

Emmanuel George Cefai
An oar paddling the waters
An Oar
Prodding the waters Circles round
Sweet humming abounds
Sweet music ferries
From side to side Shifting and rattling
In Beauty applied.

Emmanuel George Cefai
An Old Owl Sage

An old owl sage Sate her on a fir
In Hastings Gardens
Midnight was nigh
And said the sage owl:
‘Choose the night
Do not hate the day
To hate never a way
But choose the night
The stars, moon light
Already in the night
So many humans come
So many discoveries
So many verses
Dramas plays and prose Philosophy economics Sociology – all civilization
How much of it Was begotten in the night
Quiet!
And more must be begotten
In the night
And we individuals must Take on us, wear
The mantles of the night In what we do and think and make And then together will we be The more; the less of war;
How much Begotten was and must in the Night quiet!

Emmanuel George Cefai
An Unfortunate Slip

To an unfortunate unfortunate slip when I was walking trudging, trudging
I fell
now air raid after air-raid
On my poor shelter
rings:
the giant boxer rains his blows
yet with each of these blows courage rebellious grows.[

Emmanuel George Cefai
An Unpretentious Night

An unpretentious night
Of awarding the delight
A goblin green in sight
A verse a glowworm bright

Glittering
Glittering
The scent of Peace
But past Long past and Irreversible
The flesh and blood

Now Skeletors and ghosts and Shrouds
Rattle in their bones Tremble in their Souls Sit at tables by night Have powers each of them
More than king and emperor

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ancient Document

An old and ancient document With fervent eye Examined I
In my delight and In my curiosity.

I willed all round me
Still
As door nails:
In that incandescent Revelry.

Roared outside
The winds and rains
And thunder and
The shivers down
My spine sent the lightning!
And more nights and Days and occasions as This night,
will I!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ancient Houses

Why ancient houses
Old so oft Attract the winds of Chill
The paling frost
The sere and cyclic Leaves that round and
Round
Fire the earth with sound?

Ah! the faces of the Houses
Ancient and old and Crumbling
Burn:
For it be dusk and Sunset is now gone
The woods
Outside the town
They tremble
They vibrate
With the thrill
Of Nocturnal awakening
Come! Come!
The first stars are already On the horizon
In the dun of heavens

Why ancient houses
Old so oft Attract the winds of Chill
The paling frost
The sere and cyclic Leaves that round and
Round
Fire the earth with sound?
Ancient Houses Old So Oft Attract The Winds

Why ancient houses

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ancient Mother

let us together go my ancient mother let us together go dusk is past and night time come for us.

come take my hand
I fear not your ghastly hand nor the misery of your sufferings in your pale withered face at least you are not skeleton and decked in the old flesh that before your last illness were.

so let us go.

the caravan awaits, the ghost horses neigh occasional and now take my hand, mother, now alight

and let the driver take us where he will all places now for us be just the same.

and there be drear even when we reach Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ancient Prometheus

The thighs and muscles of ancient Prometheus he had.

High up from rock to rock with Giant legs
He muscled his way up.

Blinded the sun rays beating and Increasing.

But ah! he too had Hanging around his neck
The carcass of the albatross.

And of the tired dusks switched off
By lurid nights.

Time is the Master of happenings
And
By and by Though our present-day Prometheus Dripped with sweat
As he climbed to the peak he had Not reached:

Ah! how many peaks we will to climb
But reach?

Let us stop now; a welcome ledge
Now beckons.

And let our Prometheus fade with day and Rest at night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ancient Too

Through The bushes
And Hastings Gardens
What happens every night!

What tales the firs they Know
They saw
What tales the oaks Enclose!
What tales the garden paths
Even
As we were of old!

And
Then how many fled at Dawn With first signs of
New day
As the seas lighted
Smile
From house to house and town to town Its spread
All simultaneous

Times fly as motion flies!

The ancient remains and the present
Ancient too!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ancient Wars

The magic of our ancient wars
And of the bastions in the red
Of cannon firing and light
That magic recall I
But through my verse.

The houses trembling with The sounds of war:
Inhabitants and humans
Who roam about
As ants
When
Seen from above.

The magic of our ancient wars
And of the bastions in the red
Of cannon firing and light
That magic recall I
But through my verse.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ancient Yearning

Parched
The document
Attention it tears Easily!

In the midst
Of ancient hills
And valleys
Stand
For sake of learning.

My heads nods
With tiredness
And sleep
And my spine Bends.

Dust rages as I turn
The ancient manuscript Obnoxious to my Nostrils turning

I mind mot
For in that document
There be my yearning
My heart be sinking Back to those Folios of the document,
The Ancient.

Emmanuel George Cefai
And

And
In the square the angel statues high In semi-circle on the pilgrims look They always look and look Even when the rains come
And the sun shines.

Emmanuel George Cefai
And A Lone Nightingale Was Singing

And a lone nightingale was singing
Solitary
Solitary lone singing Cold was the frost Wild the lightning
Dawn in hiding.

Emmanuel George Cefai
And Back

the light turns from here to there
and back.

I am out in the cold countryside
in the cold winds and rains.

A fire in the nearby chapel lights.

And I see coming out droves of white-clad sprites

And on their faces a small black cross.

Emmanuel George Cefai
And Bell And A Cock

And bell and a cock
Together unlock
The beauties of new
Day
At the white of the dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai
And In The Distance

And
in the distance
the thunder
tremble the monuments and drenched tombs the shrouds and ghosts
their procession nocturnal cancel.

Emmanuel George Cefai
And In The House

And in the house
All is now silent
I rise and grope
In the dark, dark
And lo! Before me A blue light I
A thin blue light See I all a-shining And leading me
And guiding me
Into the dark
In the long night
In to the long night!

Ah! father, father Where are You leading me:
The thin blue light
Now veers to here
And then to there Now up
Now down
It plays:
And in the night
The long lone night
The seconds turn and turn!

And in the house
The lonely house
A soundless sound
Is humming:
The light
The thin blue light
Is leading still leading
And in the night
No time is passing

No hope of dawn
Or day
Is coming:
But dark
And dark:
Yet in the night
This night
Of black
A thrill felt I
And happiness
That never felt!

Emmanuel George Cefai
And In Their Buds The Flowers Hide

And in their buds the flowers hide
The beauty of the future
So my grief:
It hides in it
The future of beauty.

Emmanuel George Cefai
And Lo! Into Another Hall

And lo! into another hall where played a hundred and more the violin; all played as if a different tune yet in that magic excellence they played the uniform relative and the same

As I turning to Minerva:
'Why of so many experiments there a One that sweetens more with Time and Motion passed?'

'That is the tune that civilization Must in the future take the more that All in One, even the human, locks occurs the more in ever-increase Evolution goes and that the way that the human must be indicated and encouraged to'
I spoke not; humbled by the wisdom of the uttering of those words.

And with Minerva in a stately walk into another hall she pointed entered we.

Emmanuel George Cefai
And Over The Lake Marge

And over the lake marge
She wandereth;
A-holding in her hand
A candle – the flame
So flickered in the wild wooing wind That ran about the lake Rippling it with waves

The lake – how raging white It looked with rippling waves:
That foamed all white
The lake looked like a mouth
That foamed and foamed and foamed.

And over the lake marge
She wandereth;
And in the trees around
No bird singeth;
The nightingale mute looketh
From her rustling branch;
And on a thick oak branch
The owl all-ruffled resteth.

And all the world
Seemed to turn round
And round;
The moon seemed not
To smile
In its familiar white But red it turneth
And like a fire-ball
It burneth;
And o’er the lake
A sudden red appears As if a war occurred
And waters stained with blood Ran everywhere.
And high on high
The azure heavens lost
The usual blue
And turned a streak of red
In the long fading background
In the lost distance Where planets turned mysterious.

And down, and down below
The lady in crimson red Now lonely walketh;
And in her hands
A candle flickers slow
With every pace
With every wind-gust

Life flickers on the wall, warm, here and there

Emmanuel George Cefai
And The Masks Turned And Turned.

And the Masks turned and turned.
Slow they danced with measured steps.
Studied each step and pace and slow.
And the Masks turned and turned.
And though the winds that Zephyr sent to blow such frost and dreary chill
yet they touched not the Masks
that underneath their identity hid:
and revelled in the mystery of it.

Emmanuel George Cefai
And The Nightingales Were Singing

And the nightingales were singing
Do you remember that?
The wine was not liquid but like gum
And it fell slow and seeping Down the trees it fell.

It was mimicking the Milky Way.
Where the milk of the stars Was trickling down Drop after dropp of milk Gum like in those giant gums Of immense distances.

For the heavens have such tears.
And the immense heavens have Immense tears.
For immense things propense are To immense things.

And then
Throughout the night when Zephyr Watching with glistening eyes
The summit stars decided To unwind his bag of winds
A little – just a little;
Then
There cascaded in the immensity
Of the night blue heavens
There cascaded
The solemn winds and on the sea
The sails swelled.
It was centuries ago.

But from the Milky Way a Star Was observing film-like Centuries ago before its eyes.
Ah! The transposition of time And motion in a ray – it is Just like a film, just like a film
It wanders in the silence of the nights.

It was an intelligent night.
And the moon smiled and shone Even on the seas it shone Silver and white alternating In the ups and downs of the waves Small and introvert:
And calm.

Ah! Verse and song
ah! Verse and song
For You
I will not exchange this or that:
‘It is your duty, sir, ’ he said ‘Yes, ’ I said, ‘I will but await;
First I must sing my song and verse And string till moment come That I string not The lyre the Muse gave and that As regards use is loaned to me:
I cannot sir, duty must be, but Tarry yet.’

And the Human smiled for he understood And in him too the Muse entered too As magic spirits in the trees of a wood.

Emmanuel George Cefai
And The Ruins Of Ancient Rome

And the ruins of ancient Rome
I looked and saw On the Internet:
I looked and looked
But more
Thought and thought and thought
For
In those ruins I saw Falling
Falling
The ruins of my All My Fates
My Destiny.

Emmanuel George Cefai
And The Spume Flies!

And the spume flies!
Up and down
The vessel hoots and Falls and rises.

In the town
Diseases carried are in human forms.

Yet all the houses are alight and clean.

Emmanuel George Cefai
And Then Of Sudden There Camne A Sound

And then of sudden there camne a sound strange as if from the nether earth from soils damp and wet arising;
and it sang in a strange microphoned tongue
'Be merry sirs, no human sees Hum hum around like nightly bees
Or like the crickets on the summer nights.
But merry be.
The waters trickle.
The gutters full.
Slope the water-rains.
The heavens open remain.
Rain falls.
Thunder opens white in rage
its mouth.
Then vibrating Earth
it sounds.
One after another Light
after Light
the Thunder goes.
One after another Sound
after Sound
the Thunder goes.
And the day is in throes.
The red dusk fled.
Throne has been left
Into the hands of night.
Be merry, Sirs, the storm
Has ushered humans in:
To their warm hearth and home
And most now sleep profound Go round, round and round
For no human espies
Long, long and far
the Dawn be; your faces
have many hours to whiten
with pale fear of new Dawn and Day.
Be merry, dance, round
and round,
without a sound, silent,
ghosts and shrouds, animal,
bust and All, dance, merry be:
The storm will last as long
As the night be with me.'
So said the Voice then stopped.

Emmanuel George Cefai
And Though The Pitcher Is Not Broke

And though the pitcher is not broke
Its heart is broke And still the song that rose and sung
And in the dust the lyre lies.

The chords are torn and broken
And if
Some-day some hand the lyre strings Its silence it will break with echoes hoarse

Then better lie the lyre silent here Where dust and ages mate:
Torn are the chords and broken And hoarse the echoes are and raw.

Emmanuel George Cefai
And Violin

And violin
how sad and slow and sick the string, the notes, the play.

the dusk has suffered and has gone weeping
the night followed close.

I saw Night pensive chin in hand and furrowed head-brain and silent pacing, pacing, pacing

Emmanuel George Cefai
And Yet

And yet
Yet
To purchase a few drops of breath

Emmanuel George Cefai
And You Will Pine

And you will pine
Away
And you will pine
Away
Swollen the feet
That trod all Afternoon
Disheveled the hair
That sweated through
The night:
Weary-sleep the eyes
That
Through the sunset Slept:
And now
Now that it be dusk
You will pine away
You will pine away.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Anger Brewing Constantly

Of innocence lost
And of Anger brewing Constantly Justified anger
Now
Thrive I.

In my eyes
In my brain too Beauty no longer Dwells
Alone
In solitude
But with things
Other things

Civilization of thirty Years ago
And
more
By now
Be too dim Too dim
And
There remains
Still flickering
Civilization
Alternative

Emmanuel George Cefai
Anger Hangs

Whilst anger hangs on boughs
Where does hatred hie?
I saw hatred hie
Into a thorny cave and Stealthy hie
As the Figure of Judas passed by.

Vale on vale, mountain
That rings with cow-bells, Climbing, to the dense Clouds ever-reaching Ever-nearing
To the dense clouds
To the dense clouds

Corn bending for
It was night; the waters Were lusting; the little Snow that was left In the highest peaks
Was melting.

Ovum and egg of civilization
The brain begetter too Master-general self-appointed Yet as of merit
Not lacking
Though
In ever-need of ever-increasing Forces.

Again
I saw the Figure of Judas
It does come but be gone As soon as it comes – Seconds – light flashing
And going and tempest rains That peter down on Roaring tempest gales and Bursting clouds
Roaring lightning
Ever
Till a wide-smiling rainbow
The cruel patch-work Sever.
And night on parallel train Voyages to
The end.
As Dawn begins, begets
Her light and smile
And waking and tempest-vanishing
Too
Be on the same train Parallel.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Angry Doors

I heard angry doors slamming at night
I heard thunder there

There were goblets of poison on table
strewn everywhere.

Doors creaking and teeth of Draculas biting and sucking just blood.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Angry Stars

when were the stars
so angry
as tonight Whispered
a cloud:
A century ago that was!

I remember the day
the night of clouds the tempests and the gales of wrath deluges waters in gutters flooding of streets wrath everywhere and the night had a hammer in its hand

but ah!
that
was a century ago
a full century!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Angst Of The Tragedy

Angst of the tragedy
More angst exponential
In tragedy upon tragedy

We
We humans travel the Earth
In day and sleep at night

Let us reverse humans and Our day will be the night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Anguished Soul

anguished soul

the figure stood the night stars shone sea-waters swept

he spoke not

Emmanuel George Cefai
Anguished Souls

the anguished souls they gather on the plain as chaff together clustered by the winds that blow

they pine a lonely soul swims dark through dark waters

Emmanuel George Cefai
Annoy Me Not Earth

Annoy me not Earth
But bless me
With the fruit
From Beauty's berth.

Give more rights Individual sanctity
But more than that Nobility.

Annoy me not Earth
But bless me
With the fruit
From Beauty's berth.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Another Civilization

Here
Another civilization
Here
In the cemetery
There is silence
A small lark in The first light sings.
The rest is white light;
Silence.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Another Day

but what a day!
my life changes today
with you.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Another Day That We As Yet Survived

Another day that we as yet Survived
The dawn
The curtain raising of the Earth.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Another Year

another year will go.

the verses have yet come.

and I sang.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Apart

How long apart
How long apart
The seas in front
They roared Rattling the pebbles:
Wild and lone Stood I on the shore.

I saw the fading
That went with my ageing Yet verse was still young Yet suffering.

I hear
Bells from churches
In the distance
Ringing Ringing
Yet my verse was still young
Yet suffering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Apartment Eight

Apartment eight I love
you just the same as the woman
who resides there.

Apartment that brings So mellow-gentle memories and sighs of love
desire in my breast that heaves.

I must sing more than once
Of you.
I must whisper to Muse many many times of you.
I must versify many a time
Of you, my dearest, my love....
- whisper
as I kissed you and you kissed me our lips melting to each other our hearts leaping
beyond
Apartment Eight.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Aphorism

Aphorism, verse
Verse, aphorism

Emmanuel George Cefai
Aphorisms Resounded

Aphorisms resounded in the Heavens.

Below the storm, the tempests Roared.

The cacophony of sound was a Sweet mellowing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Apostles You Must Be

Apostles you must be and Never stop

And never fear never stop Never hold

Apostles of civilization new Ever-evolving
The baton is for you to carry now

Emmanuel George Cefai
Apples That Hung Tempting

Apples that hung tempting Garden filled with smokes
And hisses
Was it not filled with mists
But yesterday?

Towards a night where Marches and drills of Ghosts and shrouds
Alight the ways of the Cemetery.

Apples that hung tempting Garden filled with smokes
And hisses
Was it not filled with mists
But yesterday?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Arab Drums

Arab drums
and Arab words
and Arab singers
and Arab verse
and Arab dancers....

on and on the song slow and rising as a lovely snake amidst the desert immensities
so wound the song the Arab song as water that willed not to stop amidst those parching sands

ah! desert civilization fair world as chains are cut as you
in those immensities hide
and yet still on the Earth abide

For little lovelier for little sweeter
be than Arab drums
and Arab words
and Arab singers
and Arab verse
and Arab dancers.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Arab Horses

The Arab horses neighed and Opened their nostrils as Fierce they pawed the reddish
Sands.

In the short distance
Rose
The walls of the walled city Tall and square:
The closed giant door
The sentinels
The red domes of pointed mosques.

Night helter skelter
Came
And hiding said:
‘I will wait.
Time will come, as It will come to all.
The red dusk will my Precursor be.
Ancient and noble’

Time passed by too quick Fleet as lightning
Holding by the hand, Motion.

Awhile
Again
The Arab horses neighed and Opened their nostrils as Fierce they pawed the reddish
Sands.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Are Not We Skeletons?

Are not
We skeletons?
At the moment
Clothed in flesh
We hear
The bellman in the streets
We hear the paces
From our beds and Warm rooms:
We glide
Into the pressure-oven
Of Time and clear waters
We will move slow
That Age will not Stifle us that early Gain more time:
Though
I am underneath and
At heart
A skeleton

Emmanuel George Cefai
Are The Fates Sated? Ourselves Are

the Fates of ourselves?

When will we make our world a city of all for all?

When will be abolish division between State and State, race and race?

When will all cities be villages of the same Earth?

Civilization of now to be over-turned by the next civilization ever-increase continually from moment to moment.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Arise
Open the dimming eyes!
Open!
Eyes are made to see
And you must see To the very Bone.

In The humid Soily Graveyard Tombs
And Graves Asserted Their Possessor Rights Nor Feared
Day Thought Their Pyramid
Rose
Erect
And secret-sacred
In Deepest
Night

Lo! Time passes!
Look
At The wrist
Watch
Time passes!
But
We Have Sworn
Not
To Heed
Time
Not To heed
Dusk
When it comes popping Red through waning
Skies
Nor night that the Heavens immense and Treads the servient stars
Nor Waking
Of
The day
Nor waking of the seas
The first stirrings
The relative end of dreams
When
The vessel of the sub-conscious Leaves port
Re-enters
The conscious stark.

The Whale
From
Its Snout
Snorted
Waters
Into
The Skies
Disrespectfully?
Ask the waters;
Ask the day;
Will they speak?
Light is on,
Now.

Come, my Monsignor
Come, take my hand.
We go.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Arise Bent Shroud

Arise bent shroud
Though it be dawn
Though night be your time
Your site
Bent shroud

Emmanuel George Cefai
Arise From Your Tomb

Arise from your tomb on the appropriate Day Arise my mother, and be glorious,
Yet
At least once again once more again!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Around

Around
Around
The incense sound!

The coffin white
Of brain the scythe
Of chill the blight!

But of all woes Age pales the face Makes the heart throes

Emmanuel George Cefai
Around The Fountain

Around the fountain
Danced
Children of delight.

Future years were for them!

For me stone-walls afront
And blight!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Around The Site

Around the site
I walked arising
For
I needed to shed Aside the torpor
Of holidays
And re-start work In the forges of Blood and sweat.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Around The Space There Grew

Around the space there grew the density of particles
then there grew the density of stones
there grew the wrath of a storm there grew flying asteroids but asteroids of verse there grew the bleeding of
love
there grew the anxiety of despair
there grew the pining of
eyes
there grew the round globes of wrath
there grew the seas that went back and went forth there grew the mountains compressed from the grinding pressures of Earth
there grew
there grew

Emmanuel George Cefai
Around, Around The Earth

Around, around the Earth
of blue
the moon glides
around, around the Earth
of blue, the swishing of the tides
around, around the Earth
of blue
o golden chariots separate beauty herself rides rides

Emmanuel George Cefai Arrive Late

You
Will Arrive Arrive Late There's A Long Queue
The Heavens
Are High
In
The Heights
And I
Poet Seer
Look
Up
At Them
And sigh Sigh
For
The Ever-riddling Wait
And Opening
Of
The Doors Vacant
And Immense
Before
To Ever-increase

Emmanuel George Cefai
Arrow Of Consciousness

From the arrow of consciousness
That flew Straight in to my Breast
Pierced my Soul
And Blood came out Tickling
And
Red
From the arrow of consciousness

Emmanuel George Cefai
As great in Art
So in Science
Let be as great:
Though great always be Relative.

See
What we request
Is what we need Not of vindictiveness
But of necessity
Not of hate But of the desire to Heal wounds
Desire
To make happy
Where for years Suffered Had distress Misery
See
See
Now Justice need be done
And there is no other Way
No, no other way.
A Prospect where we ask Ask the necessary
Do not ask for not what Is not ours
But ask conservatively
Ask for us
For what is ours

You
Have the power to Rise
You have the need To rise
You have the duty.
You
That have the Gold of wisdom
Before you Take it now
And be you
The first to light the flame
In History:
In another hundred years History will light that flame
All the same
And you
You will have lost the chance Of being the first To light the torch in History
The first to lead the way To our Earth
To History.
Do not lose the chance!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Art Work

The art work on your life
It fits the store
Of honey built over a
Year by humble bees
In thousands gathering
Industrious crowd
That without humming loud
Silent in their industry
The sweet produce usher
In.

So Must your tongue be
So Must your thoughts be
Poet Seer
Hear these words hear
And practice in your day
From dawn to night
A suffering to glory
All along the way.

The art work on your life
It fits the store
Of honey built over a Year by humble bees
In thousands gathering
Industrious crowd
That without humming loud
Silent in their industry
The sweet produce usher
In.

Emmanuel George Cefai
As A Lovely Flower

As a lovely flower
A thought
Even
A chanson by a nightingale
A rustling by the fir
Nocturnal
In the perched garden:
Even as these Dream and breathe Wild and raw magic
The people of the night
Walk
In Hastings Gardens
Hand-in-hand
Satyr and hedge hog, cat
And nymph, bacchanalian And glow-worm
So many
So many
As a lovely flower
A thought
Even

Emmanuel George Cefai
As Aged I

As aged I
I the Poet Seer turned the Coin of Life from Conscious to Sub-Conscious face
around:
no, no silent sound
but in my verses crept graves tombs and cemeteries
and shrouds and ghosts and marches in the nights of sabers long marching, marching
trudging:
and sighing bridge, trees bent, after dusks, mild and violent nights of stars and otherwise: tempests and glooms hanging as the swords of Damocles hanging as the guillotine over Danton over the old City houses time to go:
leave just leave the Coin of Life turn to Sub-Conscious face.

Emmanuel George Cefai
As An Exhausted Sea-Giant

As an exhausted sea-giant
that has hooted for so long
that has swam the churning primeval seas and oceans
as an exhausted sea-giant amidst the burning fires of distress the extrinsication of stress and stress
the extrinsication of despair
and despair the extrinsication of fear
and fear the extrinsication of the sub-conscious

Emmanuel George Cefai
As Dante Found The Ferocious

As Dante found the ferocious Animal in his way
So I
So I.

And in this my outcry Let the heavens tremble
And the earth rend.

And drear be every where Dies irae, dies illa!
The waters rise, the Rivers overflow their Banks.
And drear, drear,
Drear.

Emmanuel George Cefai
As From Behind Tree

As
From behind tree and tree the Muse played with me such homely verse

as prose and talk it was without the pin-point laws of style and principles

from tree to tree ran I
and on each time a new thing learnt from my mistake.

Till that I learnt by experience - not by rote
But of all took note inside my Inner Soul.

And thus this cunning nymph of Muse thought me without the need of classes to be Poet-Seer

Emmanuel George Cefai
As I My Steps

As I my steps
Along the grated streets Of sweet Valletta I retraced
I passed from street to street And I me thought that I could find The dwelling where you lived.

For me those streets familiar quite Became as dearer and dearer
As I from city street to street
My steps retraced their bearer

Aye! Aye! The streets became as dearer And beautiful more than I had seen For years and years before:
The pregnant windows frowning black Unmoving ghosts in city pent
I wandered quite what did they hide Behind their closed doors:
The small quaint front doors in the street
A few light inches the cobble stones above With memories faint and dim And with fast-fretting hither and thither
The hazy residents of those small abodes Hid from my anxious questioning sight.

And as I passed along the street
A chimney high I saw smiling with glee As it played child-like with white passing clouds Above the warm sun shone on the old stones That dreamt and dreamt and dreamt of years untold.

Aye! Aye! The city old Above the harbor glideth
In my warm dreams:
The sailing clouds
Above the trees
In the small garden passing:
The green leaves
In their high towers With each to each
In their wild love-making
To each and each are rustling:
The citizens in city streets With hurried steps are passing.
And whither do they pass
And thither do they go?

The silent steps
In the small sullen street
I start descending
As if some thief to catch That in some city nook
From me is hiding:
A lazy cat
Watches with half-open’d eye:
Little beyond
The stench of its urine Drown’d by the sweet sense Of roses pent in mortar cask And hanging from the city wall.

Yes! Time is passing
In this sweet silent city of my dreams:
Let me allow it pass
Into the ocean sea-blue
That in midst of it Like as in lover’s arms
My senses and myself will sink.

And I will not speak
And I will not sing
If not my lyre speaks
If not my lyre sings.

Emmanuel George Cefai
As In A Dream

As in a dream
Closed Closed walls
High walls
And I
I inside
The tomb
Face upwards
Reveries and reveling
But in dreams
In dreams of sweat
My mother calls
‘Come!
Come to me!
I wait.
The cold wind blows Breaks the surreal quiet
And
Some leaves move.

Emmanuel George Cefai
As In A Dream I Voted

As in a dream
I voted

As in a dream
I wrote

As in a dream
I exited

Emmanuel George Cefai
As In To The Sweet Memory Of Things

As in to the sweet memory
Of things

We go out roaming to the Open fields

And shout our parched throats
To noontide freedom Cutting off of chains

Emmanuel George Cefai
As Inspired I Sing

As inspired
As inspired
I sing and I chant.

Plays the lyre.

And my love
Is a plus For my love
By be near.

Emmanuel George Cefai
As Many Nights Were

The night is long
As many nights were
Long
As many nights be long
To come

The wise owl on her Bough
She sits

The nightingale silhouette
In to the deep dark and moon
To the white stars
To the dark heavens
To sleeping towns and all
Sings Sad yet continuous by night
Sings:
Opens her beak
Just sings

Emmanuel George Cefai
As Of Night

As of night
the Shrouds shrieked
the night heavens too
bore the sign just look at their face and at the seas' bosom the seas' place the raven too hearing the Shrouds with a pigeon's coo
As of night
the Shrouds shrieked
the night heavens too
bore the sign

Emmanuel George Cefai
As One Poem Stood

As one poem stood the verses and the song were at war

but the Muse seeing with Minerva intervened

And verse and song were again at peace

Emmanuel George Cefai
As stars at night
On humans hang
So the laws hang.

But stars and laws
Be not the same!

The humans saw
The laws as hanging swords

And
The stars were smiling gods.

This night of nights.

Emmanuel George Cefai
As The Bull Dozer Moves

As the bull dozer moves
So the hordes of green goblins
In the night
The chains that tie us so Are loosened quite And humans will more Humans be
And not just rest
But
In the sub-conscious reign Propense will be
The brain and mind will reign
In
The powers that they lost
In day
Into the hubbub of dull life of Rote:
In the conscious where the Beauty dazzled eyes Propense to close
The night walks on velvet
And dark satin wears The trees were chill and Their ears open To the wisdom of the Owls
And to the boughs of the Night-singing nightingales.

Emmanuel George Cefai
As The Car Whizzed Off

As the car whizzed off
To start going I saw them waving after That I waved to them
They were at the entrance of The cemetery
Dressed up in black So often
so often the heart in its tempo whirlwind of emotions throbs the same verses or at least similar not just an incantation but testament of the emotions.

Emmanuel George Cefai
As The Dry Meseta Stretched

As the dry meseta stretched
So stretched Bacchus Heavily asleep and overtok
By chiding Dawn:
She passed him and smiled
Continued on her way on the fast Earth And Bacchus
Bacchus woke in the sun
That blazing in his eyes:
Blinded his eyes to waking ‘At last! ’ said the sun ‘At last! ’ Bacchus said.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ascending

The slow ascending
Chant to-night
As to the muezzin’s
In the turret high
So
The chant of the Poet Seer
Erect
With open eyes and wide
Though Night was deep in hours
And sweet beauty:
Dawn dazzling with her Wanton beauty
With Venus stood:
And Time with Motion Stopped; then again Started to run and Turn the Mill of Time
Again.
And still
And still
The slow ascending
Chant to-night
As to the muezzin’s
In the turret high
So
The chant of the Poet Seer
Erect
With open eyes and wide

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ashore, Ashore With The Tide’s Flow

Ashore, ashore with the tide’s flow
As in a sack some thing washed in:
And lay amidst the shells
And pebbles of the shore Amidst the lapping of the waters rude
And the sea-waves’ roar.

Ashore, ashore with the tide’s flow
The sea-waves washed her in One eye was closed the other open And on her golden hair
Were drops of red:
Wild lapped the sea-waves and the cloud
Frowned on the sea-shore
Amidst the lapping of the waters rude
And the sea-waves’ roar.

How many winters rude have skimmed Their frozen fingers on the white breast Of the pale moon-lit lake a-dreaming sound
How many a Spring of green Has come and gone:
Since that ashore, ashore with the tide’s flow
The sea-waves washed her in Her clothes that rich were tattered were Unseemly with the smoke of cigars
And the drunk smell of alcohol Her look was wild and sad and raw:
Wild lapped the sea-waves and the cloud
Frowned on the sea-shore
Amidst the lapping of the waters rude
And the sea-waves’ roar.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Aspects

Aspects
Aspects
They were asserted
They were facts
Now
The night-dews were Already falling
Some stars were Juggling
Blue in the dark
Was sweetly melting
From windows
Strung and played Violins and notes
In old Valletta.

Emmanuel George Cefai
At Fifty Now The Time Is Come I Think

At fifty now the time is come I think
To make the sums, to draw the line Already the guns smoke and stink
With smells of acid powder:
The battle-field is dwindling. With it
The battle is dwindling too.
The last smokes are crawling from the guns.
Remote and rolling more remote
The roaring of the guns.
The time is come, my friend, the time is come
To make the sums, to draw the line
And add and count and sum.

Emmanuel George Cefai
At Her Desk Tonight

The Soul was writing at her Desk tonight
Before the stars
Trembled.

The ghosts and shrouds
Of Time
They wept
And went

Left Dawn to face the Dreary day Unfortunate and Alone in solitude
Beaming and smiling
Light.

Emmanuel George Cefai
At Last At Long Last

At last
At long last
I cut the chains
That my brain to the land That kept it hammering Hammering on land
Oppressor of new found freedom!

Emmanuel George Cefai
At Last Emerges

The Inner Self, the Inner Soul from behind the mask

the frightened wraiths dip down into the inner depths the Inner Soul wanders, wanders up Nix Mangiari steps

And up and down and down and up Restless below the tall linear bastions glides

at last emerges

at last the Inner Soul, the Deep Soul, the Individual Sovereign Will.

Emmanuel George Cefai
At Last Exhausted

At last exhausted
the Poet-Seer on a rock giant stretched himself as vexed Prometheus did

At Last The Discovery

At last!
At last the discovery
The Poet-Seer
Given some due
His verses
Students read
His verses
People sing and Love
And Housewives at work
Hum.

Emmanuel George Cefai
At Least

at last decided the grave beckons more a magnet the cemetery the pines, the firs, the yews the other tall trees and in the candid nights so often
so often
the processions of ghosts and
shrouds!

Emmanuel George Cefai
At Night The Watch-Clock At The Palace

At night the watch-clock at the Palace
Rang the hours full distinct and clear
The wind wafted the tintinnabulum of the sound

Two lovers press together in the corner Thinking they are unseen; a woman spies From behind her window curtain.

But all that was a hundred six full years ago!

Emmanuel George Cefai
At Sixty

At sixty
Then
I will not have A beard hanging from My chin.

I will be a buffoon.
I will rise higher
And higher in this new profession
I will set target:
Buffoon of the Earth.

And Below the smiling
And the dark joking
There will be
An ever darker heart Sad and pining.

Emmanuel George Cefai
At The Altar Of Incense

At
The Altar of Incense
The slow ghost
Stopped
And started Thinking.

Outside
The chapel funereal
The cypresses
Whispered though
It was not yet
Night
But only dusk,
Though deep of red.

In life
Things to us attach Mostly by order of The Law:
But the Law faints
At the door of the cemetery:
For there
Other laws, if any,
Reign

Ah! this be verse of the celestial Things!

little by little
above
the asphalt flew driving still still into the air in to the dark till it flew high as roofs and chimneys and beyond that silent unmanned car without a hand at steering without a passenger it floated flying flying unmanned into the dark into the night into its promised land the land it had to reach before the Dawn: Ay! That Land No Coasts But Air Air And Air And Rumblings Of Thunder Flashes Of Of Genius Lightning! That Was Where It Disappeared The car That Along The Avenue Of Night There Drove That Car Alone No Hand At Steering And No passengers how wild how eerie that silent car and as it flew velocity full along the night desert boulevards little by little above the asphalt flew driving still still

Away From The Old City On The Plain

Away from the old city on the plain Wide long and stretching linear The ghosts and shrouds meet All in their domain.

And I, I, Poet Seer out of the house
In restless summer or in tempest hoar Roam out helter-skelter to the plain Where ghosts and shrouds meet.

Ah! there how dance we, we together
The ghosts and shrouds and me!
Hand to hand, mute, silent we!
And the night hour after hour strikes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Away!

the clouds sail in the night in part obliterate the moon already it shines low and weak oblivion's sweet in things that we praise not but desperation in our things of praise.

the waters in my eyes they leap and light blinks dim.

blithe the Moth of Destiny flies around the town our ancient self Valletta from balcony to balcony from roof to roof it flies resting sometimes.

in the last night adown the muddy stream below the rows of buildings screamed:
but in such silence that none woke to see the slime of Styx that passed by in the stream slow and engorging as a lava flow from red-hot Aetna.

nocturnal without words but yet with masks of yellow-green around a cobwebbed table gather we in the centre spirits yield white light dark rest envelopes
again
the we is I, I,
Poet-Seer!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Away! Away! At Least For But One Hour

Away! Away! At least for but one hour Cast out the drear thoughts, the horror Of the hour:
For it be gained, even If an hour:
What be gained, be gained.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ay! We Humans Have Just Ended

Ay!
We humans
Have just Ended
A complex Succession of Thoughts raveling:
We Suddenly Fall silent
For
We know

Emmanuel George Cefai

A-yet! A-yet! Blood flows pencil Like and thin a-down your face
a-down your lips
A-yet! A-yet!

The helmets crash
The armors clank
The shields burst
The fire sparks fly.

The morn is up
The dawn has come
The dawn is gone
Yet bleak the day.

The earth is dry
The earth cries
The earth is in misery

A-yet! A-yet! Blood flows pencil
Like and thin a-down your face
a-down your lips
A-yet! A-yet!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ayi! when the fields turned red but not with the red of the dusk the soil was damp and wet:
the humus beginning to flourish:
that was the war,
the screams, the shouts,
the shorts, the cannons and the airplanes.

Ayi! this be Earth
you see what happens again and again often - so Earth does not learn so often from the past from the funereal History.

Ayi! you ask me ask me for these lines what they be worth the future seed in them
you ask me.
when the fields are now that the night be coming and red dusk ended
the fields are with bubbles at the surface bubbles red not bursting but growing, growing,
growing.

Bacchanalians

Garland on head
In place.

Your hands dainty Delicate
On the Capitol
Will crown me.

For in the throes
Of the wine-drinking
My soul of verses Find I
Rising:
The anguish in
The Inner Soul
Produces.
I,
The Bacchanalian
Crowned and green.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bacchus - I

Plodding slow
In one hand staff and cup In another
A large pitcher still Steaming
Now
Every half minute
He Quaffs
Quaffs now from one Then other
His look is blank be he sad or Sad joy betook him?
I, Poet Seer
Will not Leave this King
Even if beggar dressed
I would still follow:
My Muse give me
More than a few verses Stop not,
Yield not,
Continuous Bacchanal verses.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bacchus In Concert - It

Horse shoe formation
A hedgehog
In the midst
A violin
Playing.

Thousands sit Imbibing as in Magic nights:
They dance
In the sub-conscious Not wild
As yet.

Beyond the cliff
A sea of waters
Smoke and incense Fly as yet Over it:
Here the Sacred:
Here
The Cliff of Verses.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bad Smells Tobacco-Clouds That Rise

bad smells tobacco-clouds that rise continually from earth unwanted;
the earth stinks - we are on it, condemned!

The globes of white light that shine White in the evening serenade by Hastings Taut thin and earthy shine and raw:
Hours will pass - till they start flickering And waning at the touches of the dawn.

I think I saw green goblins on the walls Of the high bastions - in the night
The owl unruffled in its feathers slept;
The nightingale hath refused to sing
The ants in mourning garb funereal crawl.

The earth stinks - its wounds will never close!

Ball Of Dusk

The Ball of dusk
How Sad it moved
In it Faces of yellow Or masks
Stood
The ball of dusk
That Moved slow
And sad
And Drear

I
Saw
The Population Grow
In
That Sad Ball
In
It
I looked
And My feet Dropped
As
By A magnet Drawn Into that ball
Around
My

A Hand Put on
Mask
I Felt
And Round
My Back
A Cape
Of Red
Was Put

Danced
We
All
Danced
Danced
The Ball
Of Dusk
No
One
Spoke
And Silent
All Moved
Slow
And Dreamy
In

Sinister Lone Dreary
We Danced
And Danced
And
To Each Other
Spoke
Not
But Danced
And Danced
Into
That Ball
Of dusk:
Then
As Night Broke
And
All
The Silent
Stars
As
One
By
One
They Came
And Grew
And Shone
I
Heard
A Scream
The Dancers Ran Fading
In Mists
Of Drear
As
They Ran
And Alone

Band that moves moves slow and sad along the streets
the band moves the coffin they bear

Barge Of Magic

Along! Along!
The barge of magic

Save of joy
Shocks and fear!

Barren Land

The barren land it was to produce but produced not
we came early this morning to see
at least some of the seeds sowed sprouting
no, no,
you waste your time my Monsignor to come here on this bleak rock,
solitary
in solitude that soon
and too will crack and go under the utter hand of sheer extinction.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bastion Palm

The bastion palm
Yes
How many nights
Awake
It loitered there
Suffering
The blasts of the Chill wind
The insults of the Pattering rain-drops
The comfort
Of the night-dews.

You Experience
For You suffer

That suffering
Has thickened
Your trunk of age Already thick
And loaded
With the strength
Of the life saps You dream as Wise kings dream
And wake as Artists Do
In time for seeing
The Beauty of the Dawn
More than I see.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bastion-Like

I had around me
Built bastion-like
The walls of thought

Inside occurred
The fermentation in The mists
Of thought

Thought upon thought Multiplied more Than fungi in infection.

Boathouse, a soul-less barge Images
Floated.

A satyr with a prong
Not Neptune Gloated.

Emmanuel George Cefai Bats Screech

Bats Screeches Cries
Sounds

Of Silence

Ah!
Contrast
And Similitude Side
By Side Walk Hand
In Hand
In
The Wise
Town
And Beautiful

Beauty
Spread her wings here:
And Dawns want not to go away
Here
Nor the star studded nights
Of diamonds.

The waters wild That leap from crag to Crag
Though not here
Are in the heavens echoed Above
Here

Vibrant
The night in the mantle
Of its own silence Sheer:
Vibrant
The town huddled and Colored
In its own silent line
Here!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bay Of Echoes

In
The bay of echoes
There are small coves
And caves
Not a large bay But how many
The caves and Coves!

You will not
Whisper
But Hear the coves
And caves
Chirping
And Uttering.

Not even a reed
The humblest grass
Will escape
From the orchestra Of spies and Informers:
A rustling of lizard
And
The screeching of a snail
Will be reported.

And if a Poet Seer Coming by Determines to chant
And sing?

Ah! then
There will be another Hell
But not of burning fires
But
Of Burning voices Or just Let’s assert:
Another Babel

Emmanuel George Cefai
Be Kind

Be kind: it be night

Beauties Roam In The Night

Beauties roam in the night
Fairer than deep starlight

And violins music sing And quiet shades will bring

And the seas sleep full deep Till Dawn tiptoes to peep

Emmanuel George Cefai
Beautiful Lake, Wide Shores

Beautiful lake, wide shores and quiet lapping of the deep blue waves how my emotions with every lap leap!

and thus beauty of things to beauty of emotions be conjoined!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Beauty

Beauty Thrilled me
All my life
And
All my breath
Where my feet
Went Where my heart
Stood Where my heart Burnt

And
To beauty
All to beauty Gave my Soul
My Inner Soul
Pain and sadness Full despair
Rotten
Desperation
Al
All became My companions

Out
Out in the wilderness To sing went I Roaming
Skipping Without joy
Yet Without thought Opiate I Changed my mood
For in desperation
I
Was drowning
Drowning fast Drowning fast
Yet
I
I to Beauty Gave my Soul
My Inner Soul
My All, for All.
All to Beauty
All for Beauty.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Beauty Be Thine!

Verse upon verse
Line
Upon Line
Beauty be thine!

In old dressed Or our times Beauty the same shines
When Beauty it be!

Your eyes smile
Though
Inside a hell of sad Invades
For so
Beauty be thine!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Beauty But In The Airs

The teeth touch beauty
Feel
Beauty but in the airs!

The heavens rise.
The heavens sit.

The waters glide
And beauty faded
Fast
This night of cemeteries!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Beauty Catapulted Me

Beauty
 catapulted me

Look! in the fairy pond in the fairy garden a swan white paddles.

And in the night she bends her head and dreams.

Dreams of beauty under the night stars:
not seeing the night stars
the moon
but in more beauty.

Look! in the fairy pond
Dawn will wake the swan Beauty wakes Beauty

Emmanuel George Cefai
Beauty In The Words

There's beauty
In the words
All words

But in the words That common ancestor be Such as the sun, the dawn,
The dusk, the night

These rise above the rest Are genesis of most There's beauty in those words,
There's beauty.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Beauty Inside The Hormones

There was Writ beauty inside the hormones
And the genes
Those breathing Spirits over The fields and country looming.

Here
As we approached the sea cliffs
My anger
Started to subside.

And then
And then
I watched from the edge Of the sea cliffs
With relative serenity
The waves, the bathers shouting,
Children running, the bees buzzing,
The flies biting,
The sun straddling.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Beauty Is Wild

Beauty is wild, the Artist Wills her.
Out with palette he goes.

The beach waves roll
The caves echoing
Thunder.

In the roars of fear
The screams of raging waves In Artist beauty are full Synthesized.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Beauty Medieval

Out of the swoon
Of Beauty medieval
The lights were Coming
Then fading
Alternate
Ah! lights
So trembling!

The horses Without soldier in The saddle:
A cavalcade of Fire
With no drivers

Then Heard I
An Egyptian song
Saw Palms Oases Felt
The Scent
Of dates
I was in an Egyptian land

Emmanuel George Cefai
Beauty Must Of Thunder Be

Beauty must of thunder be
And roll as thunder
Growl as thunder growls.

Too wild, too wild
The jungle in which beauty Thrives.

We must be of the jungle
That one jungle
Same
Where beauty dwells.

The wild, the raw, the hard
All this be beauty
And high
Rises the Soul, the Inner Soul.

For Beauty must of thunder be
And roll as thunder
Growl as thunder growls.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Beauty Queen Of Love

Beauty queen of love Maid
Though in your thirties Still as lovely as In your twenties
Mistress of kisses
Once Begun I will
They do not end Ever to restart
Again

Emmanuel George Cefai Beauty Speaks

For Beauty speaks
As the wise man speaks Without speaking at all

And
We Need beauty where our thought Be dim or fails us

Beauty conquers all including Power and glory;
The Inner Souls said that.

For
What be humans without The nobility of an Inner Soul?

We cuckold beauty till
We find that we need it Despairingly.

Maxims and aphorisms speak Propense the more Proportional to their brevity.

Where you hear speech and see No speaker
Then look into your Soul,
Your Inner Soul.

So much lies in beauty
It be as inexhaustible
As it be indispensable

Oblivion places so many things Unjustly under her dark wings Beauty be insatiable Goes on and on
With evolution herself Head to head

The love of wisdom is our Propensity to survival

Survival signifies that out
There are so many obstacles In line one after the other Hanging above our heads

Bravery must be grown with Sacrifice

Emmanuel George Cefai
Beauty Vanity Is So Justifiable.

Ah! for Beauty vanity is so Justifiable.

It gives beauty more color in its Beauty.

It awakens motion more and more Both in the beholden and The beholder.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Beauty Was Of My Body

Once
Beauty was of my body
But now not so.

Once
Strength was of my limbs
But not now so.

Once

Flashes of thought Shot through the brain of Youth
A fire that burnt quick Shone
Speeding as the lightning Speeds:
The halo of strength
And beauty relative was In my hair:
But now not so.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Became More Blind

We fell together
In Love
And in Love's ways
And Become more blind
Every-day
More dreamy-drear.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bed Of Colors

the world
I piant in a bed of colors no, not the grey of the drear
and the black of the night
no
no

magic nights and haunted stellar nights and beauty
and
the dawn's enchanted!

a whole Gordian knot cut and unleashed upon me here in this world of drear
fire
fire me from sad to enchantment of joy and wine
night and moon women and ale
- a world of colors

Emmanuel George Cefai
Before

Before my brain
Before my eyes
You bending
You smiling
In the rain
By the sea
On the beaches
Then Writhing in Pain
Then Shedding blood tears
From your eyes
Sweet kiss
Sweet embraces
So many things
So many things
Before my brain
Before my eyes
Of you
Of you!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Before Aged I

Before aged I aged as the oak before aged I dawns rose and went
and now that I have aged dawns too come and
go.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Before I Was Not That

Before I was not that I was Sibling to The civilization of the Day
Which loving so With patience and with Sacrifice
I rewrote:

Then Finished the task
I turned my steps
And way
Towards
The Sub-Conscious Way.

And
In vaults of spacious night
Another civilization
Of the Sub-Conscious bright I brought Nurtured and fed
Before I was not that.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Before Me

Before me
The stars look on the waters
And the reflected moon.

Calm the trees now
From the winds
That neighed at sunset

Glow of night
Throbbing heart
Throbbero more and more Round midnight

Emmanuel George Cefai
Before Me Sour Soul

Before me
Sour Soul
Holder of the grave Watcher of dim
And rugged Towers
Serpentine passages Moving hogs and Talking hedgehogs Businesslike and Bespectacled
Before me
You have become a Dusk
A fading
A losing A waning
My very Soul
In its ennui song
Of the swan-song
My very Soul.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Before The Farewell

Before the farewell
I hand in hand
with you went out
went out

We saw the green we saw the fields
we scented waters flowers, all.

but ah! the heart-break was sweetest in the sweet dusk’s thral!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Before The Glimpse Of Dawn

Before the glimpse of dawn
With parched lips
He spoke one word
Then he moved not

Emmanuel George Cefai
Before The Heartless Time Designs To Run

Before the heartless Time designs to run
His frosty hand over my heart’s red blood And his white scythe a frozen river make Where before coursed the warmness of red blood
I will and must bethink myself
To make successor of my labor’s wealth And in him and his seed my labor will With every generation’s turn revive As doth the Spring after the Winter’s frost So doth my blood in my seed revive And every generation will unthaw
The blasts of the cold hands of heartless Time And by green lush new-born Springs it replace:
Which seeing Time hath cursed his fate
And went unseen in a cold mire to drown

Emmanuel George Cefai
Before The Night Has Patches Of Blue

Before the night has patches of blue to be seen by the stars and the rotating moons, the slow rotating moons, only,
only, I repeat,
and by some Muse-chosen Poet Seer with tears in his eyes looking looking profound a thinker
too
for answers, for inspirations from the darkening heavens

Emmanuel George Cefai
Begun, Begun To Drum To Play

Begun, begun to drum to play
The drear funereal notes
For me alas!
They begun years ago:
And now the pain of sorrow
Has grown hard to bear:
Begun, begun to drum to play
The drear funereal notes

Behold The Dusk Extending Street To Street

Behold the dusk extending street to street
And its wide fingers caress the Port skies:
Behold the dusk like a cloud of immensity Sprinkle with somber red wherever it pass.

Soon will the hanging bat non-hang itself
From the sooty balcony-top adrift above
The sixth floor looking sideways to the sea And soon the dusk air will Be as an ocean high wherein it sails.

And in the dusk-red skies an immensity Of stubborn silence holds – the sea Without a wave all startled as with guilt Overloaded holds or else in sympathy:

Down the old steps a pair of footsteps From step to step the lingering silence break
And in the distance fade and in the past:

On high the eerie bat-cry sounds from time to time.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Behold The Wild Boar

Behold the wild boar Behold

Through the western skies
He travels fast as arrow
To the East

There pearls
There dances magical
And genii rise in mists

And spells
And lurid sensuous chants
And sultry dances

But learning and civilization too In much not alien to the Orient
Too
And oft the genesis of the West
In civilization too.

Bell That In The Distance Rings

Bell that in the distant rings
Silent.

Mute the fields and country
Though
In some small watermill Gurgle slow late waters.

One word
One kiss
One call
Will make the distance Short.

Bell That Rings

I am the bell that rings lone into the night of cold and frost and pinching rains and roaring thunders and vivid lightning
I am the bell that rings
the Poet Seer stopped singing
a few days
he stopped
he ceased
but then
he rung
again
and chanted chanted O capture the Emotions globally globally
be careful! they slide cunningly:
humans are in them for humans of emotions be and emotions are driver-seats and drivers
for the human biochemistry:
stag
red
that ran
in
to
the night skewed
mists
that went about her
high an arrow shot the stag fell raced not more rang the station bell hooted the old train the Doppler effect memory in the awnings stared the owl from her deep wisdom woken.

ah! rhytym be emotion,
emotion rhythm sang the strong Stag with frosty mists of breath coming from its nostrils deep inside.
The times pass, the ages pass
the cunning joker laughed
out
his sad
heart
in the midst of the Circle
and the people clapped:
he smiled outside and cried inside the Buffoon.

Bells

In the distance – bells ringing How taut – how Altered by the wind Yet more romantic!

The day be just begun
The week be just begin Yet ring the bells.
The church bells romantic

Ah! we these moments need
In our lives – not all the time But oftentimes
To hear
To joy
The altered notes Majestic wind
inaudible
In bells romantic!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bells That Ring

Bells that ring
Into the night
Alone
Alone

The shore is dread
And sad
The sea a quiet Shed

Sleeps deep
The ancient town
And its inhabitants

Cathedrals, churches, Palaces, edifices,
All silent and all
Sad

And Bells that ring
Into the night
Alone
Alone

Bells That Ring So Distant

Bells
That ring
So distant
So sad
So forlorn

Bells
That rang
The vespers
Just an hour ago
Now
Silent in the dusk

So
The brain
That hammered in the day
Now Quieter lies In its vesper hours

so far away!
and in the distant day
in the distance
the bells ring the eyes weep broken hearts
from leap to leap.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bells That Tinkle, Yet

Bells that tinkle, yet
Looking here, there, all round
I am indifferent to where be the bells Were they invisible as energy?
For cannot energy sing?
For cannot energy sound?
For cannot energy bring forth Sweet notes that penetrate the Violet mirage of the declining Earth?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Below The Bridge, The Arch, Drear

Below the bridge, the arch, drear Waters flow, and dirty and in the Grass rustle fat black rats.

Of course it be evening: the sun
Is set down; and red dusk Brings blushes to the faces of the day.

Declining, declining, the waters plough
The ticking of the time their motion
The sick Poet-Seer by the banks pacing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Below The Fort

Below
the fort skeletons washed at night.

Eyeless and hollowed eyed yet looking as with eyes the night dark and moon light passed through their hollow eyes

they moved little
but of their will for as in a sweet hummock lay on those low waters the waters of the night
below the fort where stayed they.

as the night deepened one by one sometimes group by group stood up and marched from sea to land:
you would hear their bony
feet
divide those salt waters clean and clear and bright.

then up on the land they as in a drill set up in marching order marched at shout of the major one a band ordered and a band organized
and one by one into the heavens
high amidst the rare clouds at those height disappeared they.

the Dawn rose up and lighted by the fort.

Waters clear and pebbles that rolled yet remained from the last night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bend

Bend, bend trees
Your time be come for Bending.

Arrives the funeral cortege,
The coffin, the mourners,
The grave diggers wait Impatient.

The grave open yawns
At the edge of the dusk
A fall, a coffin falls Into the earth it Rests.
Disperse the sad crowd
Silent.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Beneath The Cold Stones Grows A City

Beneath the cold stones grows a city breathes a city at night if you be a Poet Seer you can hear whispers and you will hear breathing, breathing, breathing underground
every where you tread in the vast cemetery of monuments and crosses.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Beneath The Palms

Beneath the palms
Head upwards to the Skies
They placed him Heaping a heap
And then of sand
And mud a mound
A Poet Seer sang a dirge.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Beneath The Thunder Cloud The Storm

Beneath the thunder cloud the storm
Growls – angry door of coming night
And of the flashing pink twilight.

The verses sound but the voice Of the Poet Seer though rising Loud and hoarse against the heavens groans.

And in the colored amethyst of the wild Looms large and angry a mist of green Envy of that which has long been.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Benighted

The night
Benighted
Light
More than the light of Day
Today:
For today
Was it not Tempest Day
Day of the rain?
Day of thunder?
Day of cold vibrating teeth?
Day of dark frost?
Day of sad winds?
The night
Benighted
In my calculations Choose I
Today.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bent At The Keyboard

You will see me bent at the keyboard Ticking, ticking, ticking.

But you know how much I am in Suffering?

My pain burns ever-increasing; my debts
With life crushing

To sage Minerva; I forgot her then.
Now I remember her, and do well.
So I assert I.
But the best is that when you have

To all of them, attempt to use,
All of them; so please do.

Better not learn!
If that be to turn
From sad to desperate
We,
Humans
Like me Already be Just desperate
Just Poet-Seers!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Better Thirsty And Sing

Better thirsty
and sing

To run lacerated amongst the parched fields in the parched suns and country

yes its pain

yes its suffering

but if the Muse orders this so that I will sing

I will run lacerated
amongst the parched

Emmanuel George Cefai
Better Thirsty And Sing 2

Better thirsty
And Yet sing
As a bird Wander I
In the country
In the town
In my hand
I bear my heart Carry lyre
Sit and string Verse then comes When it comes
And I chant
And I sing
Yet Till then Better thirsty
And I sing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Between forty and fifty
And yet I pray
I suffer; am in misery
And grumble yet
Yet I pray.
The tears fall
The tears roll
The eyes are wet
And yet I pray.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Beyond The Outside Sounds

Beyond the outside sounds
Of the waves were the Finer sounds
The whispers of the night
The whispers of the conspirators The sigh of Earth yearning Beyond the outwards sounds Of the waves
Finer sounds
A Poet Seer detected and then smiled
At the sea waves’ roar.

Beyond the outside sounds
Are veil-hidden the instructions Of Mother Earth
And its minions as The General of the Skies Finer sounds
An orchestra gregarious Hedgehog led and horse Directed:
Where instructions spelt
With sounds
Beyond the outward sounds
Of the waves
Finer sounds
My Monsignor they for your grasp be
And for your taking
At the sea waves’ roar.

Beyond the outside sounds
There be Inner Souls that Beat and join Into an Inner Soul that speaks Crucible of agony of sound They pass
They pass
The wafted violin notes
That as knife-arrows penetrate Even the hardest hearts
In the New World Order After New World Order
Accelerated rate
My Monsignor you pace and Pace
restless
And not in vain
For
You as the Poet Seer you Gain the ear
With sounds
Beyond the outward sounds
Of the waves
Finer sounds
From airy harps in heavens Played my magic hands All for the taking All for the making
At the sea waves’ roar

Emmanuel George Cefai
Beyond The Wall

I know what be beyond the wall
I know for my brain
I the prerogative have
Of the Idea of Infinity.

Therefore as I think Infinite
All in all, I know the All
And so
I know what be beyond the wall.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Beyond! Beyond! - So Says He

Beyond! Beyond! - so says he
As he pointed to the citadel That as an elevated square of red Rose up unto the skies Like flames of red.

The wind how weird it neighs to-day
The wind how doth it round
The citadel!

How dank and humid are its walls
And here and there
By grasses over-grown
The fortress-walls do weep their old neglect While underneath
The houses slumber on
In the dark night
Whose silence only jarred is By the tower-clock
That in the lonely night Fights on its way.

No winter frost hath frightened it Nor snowy blizzard hath Disheartened it:
And in the thickest rain
High taut and thin
Its strokes come thro’ the rains.

And now
And now - to-day
In this vast starry night Where glow-worms seem to dance In summer’s mad delight-And the lone cricket sings Unto his mate
That on her wing now rests.

And now
And here
To-day
Let me dissolve my clay
In this vast wonder
In this oasis bright
In this new paradise
This night.

your mouth

your panting

so
I I Poet Seer soup of thoughts too me out of house but willing in to the storm's nocturne
and with you bird panted in the storm
in Hastings Gardens:
that I view
the beauty of the raw storm raging that I might feel in me
the chill of a lone night nocturne of perils.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bird In The Skies

A bird in the skies a lark in the hand and to wit the voices of nightingales to blend how the waters spring up to the heavens but reach not but touch not

And this all for it be
the night:
and this for all it be star-light

the stars wanton be along this path of poesy
this the Milky Way of verse full all the way.

amidst the rushes birds random here and there hop and dance two bird loves in a trance.

the centuries pass
the centuries pass
and the verse that in oblivion was sudden sprouted green and great and sung

I chant, I sing, I versify better than nightingales I these only sing melodious in the night; I surpass them.

A cup of venom golden lay To trap me; but I drank and drank with will I fell and lay still

I will sing not then Nor will chant; I leave the nightingales my work to do and in the nights sing too.

In the cold February
You daily challenge

February sings.

Black Bier,

Black bier,
Heavens that frown on earth
You see my Monsignor
The heavens circumspect our Earth
And find it dirty somewhat
Relative
And thus growing dark in face Load
Themselves with clouds that frown That frown
And rain
‘This night will rain!’,
So
Said the old boor returning home:
He looked in to the heavens with fear
He looked in to the heavens with mercy In his look Then went his way beyond
Beyond
The horizon of the vesper sleep.

Black Suits Funereal

A song for suffering
A funereal bell
For waiting:
See
See
Already the grave-diggers In black suits funereal
And white gauzes Wait not more:

You may stop
The hands of the watch-clock Call in again
A still uncompleted Immortality

Black-Eyed Scholar

The black-eyed Scholar
Now
Found the new manuscript.

With hands feverish
Through all the night
He pored and pored
And turned and turned Through a dim light Through the whole night.

Discovery was made
Yes, for discovery was made Of a new work
That night.

Tired the Scholar rose in the very First lights of Dawn
And fell
But Dawn coming through the Windows old Rose him again.

For the black eyed Scholar Now he made discovery
The black-eyed Scholar
Now
Found the new manuscript.

Bleak Ancient Brown—grey Mediterranean Pitcher

Bleak ancient brown-grey Mediterranean pitcher That smiles subdued now Trimmed
By the feet of centuries past Passing your face Mediterranean pitcher:

How many a humid night of Mediterranean summer Your wine perfumed the luscious table
And the words of togad speakers rose And fell and rose again around you as you lay Carrying the cool earth to them and ruddy face.

Your face no longer ruddy is but languid-pale
As the moon shines in autumn nights Or when the grisly clouds bypass the mere Frozen and shuddering under Winter’s hand:
Your face no longer ruddy is but languid-pale.

Still unbroken lie you though around The voices are not heard that long ago Muttered and chirped around you near each night And flames burnt in their torch on the high walls And mugs of merriment rose high and high And ruddy faces shone and ate and spoke.

Unbroken you lie now though around The centuries have passed by and silently And voices are not heard that long ago Muttered and chirped around you:
Your faded luster looks at your colors subdued And both
in silent conspiracy rue the time that passed:
Your face no longer ruddy is but languid-pale

Down on the floor; dust-covered lies The lyre that long ago was strung When you were passed around in merriment And carried the cool earth nigh every night Still is the song that rose and sung with it:
Your sides are still unbroken; your heart broke.

Blessed Be The Time When I Grew Up

Blessed be the Time when I grew up
From childhood in song and poesy:
Yet
It was a quick time; my heart Quickening as my emotions Thrilled
And reproduced in to a birth of Beauty that the Dawn herself admired.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Blessed The Dust

Blessed the dust
That fell off from the sandals Of the bearded missionary off
The town that banged
The town-doors after him:
The sacred cow
They saw floating in the
Heavens
And pigs fat and fleshy Without wings
Floated high too:
The waters of the river
Next to the town whispered Amongst themselves Floating on the trirems of Small clouds
That melted in the sundry
Mists:
That sang the song of solitude
For the night
This night

Emmanuel George Cefai

Blind, blind,
The blizzard,
The blinding rain,
The chill of pain,
The frost of thawed rain.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Blind The Spiders Wove

In the dark light Blind the spiders wove
And wove
The web of culture

And Dawn stopped not:
For they were as
Of the Dawn herself:
And so
Continued in the Light of day
Even when the sweaty zenith
Had reached up to the sun

Then
In the fainting afternoon
They lazed
And sighed
As sunset clasped
Her belongings to go:
Sighed
More at fading of the day.

Cutting
Cutting

Emmanuel George Cefai
The blinding figure of
The Poet Seer
It rose
As a vast giant mountain
In the night
For it was night
Austere and dark
His somber silhouette stood Majestic
In those silent realms.

He spoke not Nor versified
That time
That night
But round him
That is right above
To left to right Shone bright
And glimmering
The myriads of the stars

Alone
Out high and Jutting
Stood
The Poet Seer

The
Night
But blacker
Than the less dark
Night Lighted by stars of Light
Alone
Out high and

Of blinding lights and Thoughts and calls
And language of old And Biblical
We be enamored Rilke, Gibrain were
From our ages not far Rumi was farther:
But all three Though not exclusively
By far
All three were Muses
In alternation
At one Time or other:
Why not?
Time was moving
And
With the Time the evolution of a Poet Seer.

The Parliament façade

The town sleeps
But
The blue spiders
Move Without quiet Without sleep
Lust
And excitement
And angst
Combined
Together in a mix
Of the emotions.

For the mix of the emotions Let it be supreme
Over
The emotions separate
That be
To Evolution’s march
The nearer

Emmanuel George Cefai
Blurred Eyes

With blurred eyes
And sleepy Sleepy eyes
He saw through
The dense vision.

He gave eyes
To the vision
He gave breath
To the fainting light
In its dim credo.

Throughout the night
He ranted
But not loud
Only
In a heart-broken voice
Furious whispering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Boar's Head

The boar’s head
It grew
And grew
And multiplied Head on head
With the boundaries Ever-increasing –

The boar’s head
Was in the brain
In the mass universe
The same Whirling round
And round
Whilst
The sleeper
Slept with a breathing sound.

And
Then
A hundred boars Came on trotting Breathing loud
And belching Wide red eyes
And wild
And sweating
Down their backs
On their wet tails Glistening
Then of a sudden
A noise
Was it from Heaven above
The night stars, the sly
Moon?
Faded the boars as sudden
As one second.
Boat To Lethe

Let me dream
In the hummock of the Soul
There!
There’s the boat to Lethe.

I want to be there.

I want to breathe
The sensuous listlessness
The freedom tied With the sweet snake of Ever-honeyed sensuousness

Who will come with me?
Who will not come?
The boat stands ready and The Soul disposed.

The Soul be the ferry man
And
It be too whisperer of Knowledge and wise saws
There will be helping hands
I will not look and Let the Spirits work
As I am ferried
As I am ferried
Ferried to Lethe.

Emmanuel George Cefai Bobbed

bobbed
up
in
the sea
by
the vessel
where
the king paced
on
the ship's deck:
yes
I want a

said
the bobbing flesh stinking half-rotting
but
more
I want justice
and
my Soul
you did
not hang not was thrown in the sea but flew long long before almost as the rope tightened my neck: now hear my echoing crypts; for these haunt even beyond my will beyond desire Justice be that Justice works that way

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bone Of Man

Bones of man trembling The frost blows gust after Gust
And it be night.

Bones of man trembling
The frost blows gust after Gust
And it be dark.

Bones of man trembling
The frost blows gust after Gust
And it be  Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bones

Bones that in the night Shine
But not only on nights Of moon light, even when The moon behind the clouds Frowning and huddled in the frozen skies Hides.
And the swans in the lakes where Are they?
No longer their chants or songs of Nightingales.
But only
Impulsive gusts of wind blowing Blowing random and discrectional
This night
When the bones shine irrespective of the moon.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bones Crack

I heard the bones crack
though
still the skeleton hopped on
and on

I heard the bones crack
the waters dyed to red
by magic cysts
I heard the bones crack

the ghost lament elongated united into the heavens
melted
I heard the bones crack

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bones Of Magic

Bones of magic They hid Themselves
In part in the Strewn soil
Under the old firs

How long,
How long,
We will not live
This life!
The life of magic and
Of wild beauty!
Life is given to these
The wild and the Beautiful!

We live this life
Let us
Abandon the old cast
And don
This exchanging the past!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bones That Danced

Bones that danced
Round
Round
Round
The Figure of Emotions
Round
Under the hammer of pressure

Bones that danced
Round
Round
Round
The Figure of Thoughts
Round
Under the hammer of pressure

Thoughts-Emotions
All confused Stressed
In ever-increase
Yet
That's Evolution!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bones That Rattle

Bones
Bones that rattle Skelet ons whose few Remaining teeth tremble
vibrating:
smoke that is the fruit of chill and frost December
Trees Shorn of their pride and Humbled: Streets strewn with sere leaves And sliding rain waters Snow occasional and
Rare
Clocks in church Desolate
Closed after the vespers Trembling walls
Dreaming
Of ancient centuries:
Bones
Bones that rattle
Skelet ons whose few Remaining teeth tremble
vibrating:

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bones Walking

Bones walking
Bones walking
Desperation stalking
A couple of wild eyes Bones, bones, bones.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bony Skeleton

The Bony skeleton that's I
In my sub-conscious I cease temporarily to versify
and dream.

Ah! to dream may it be to versify!
Will it so!
And to versify to dream!
Will so!

the bladder on the rocks screamed with circling sea-gulls: the mists rose as in Amsterdam or vales deep in the dawn and early morning

Let me point my finger to you that's bony.

I saw too an obese
skeleton
and it was clanking
clanking.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A book of songs O!
O said the Muse
A whole book too!

In the high seas
In the high winds
The spells
All fly
Tonight!

A child with Locks of gold
And lovely scents
Is in the skies
Where bats of gold Circle and fly
All night
To tune of Silver star-light
Tonight!

Emmanuel George Cefai Bored From Painting

Bored from painting
I took to chiseling
last night:
I chiseled a crucifix and a broken-hearted Mother.

Come! I'm out!
At night
Early night before the deep of night
passed darkling clouds
on earth
I went out.

Slid
through
the door closed
the door
slowly without sound as a rat fleeing.

now I have arrived at the edge of the village the last street
and of that last street
the edge.

come! come! into the green!
the green that still appears black in the moon's light!

I turn
I jump
I turn
I turn
and turn again
Joy!
Joy!
Joy!
All drear be gone!

I walk,
turning and turning.

Round,
round
the stars go round the moon goes round the night revolves around me!

I will not return
before the edge of night.

Here! The bottle!
Ho!
Ho!
Ho!
I will get drunk make me drunk willingly, I know!

It's like a suicide!

But no!
No, I will return!

I fall asleep atop the hill that I have climbed tomorrow
let them find me return me from the grass haunting me from the dry fig tree above me.

Come! blanket, night!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Born Of One Kiss

born of one kiss another kiss and another
and another shame frowns and flees away and burning

lights.

till as the day the cycle done in full
the lovers both blind fall.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Both Science And Philosophy.

Now
That in equal woe
We lie
The brain works
Thus
That the same Woe Is neutered by Both science and Philosophy.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Brain

Brain
That is Filling with soot Power station of Disease
City of dirt

Light and clean
Grasses bright
On these we tread
On this tiptoe
When the moon comes
Out of the clouds
To gladden us.

Gamma evolution
Through
The city walked I
Through
The deserted city Stress
Stress
Stress

Light and clean
Grasses bright
On these we tread
On this tiptoe
When the moon comes
Out of the clouds
To gladden us.

Thus goes life Beauty and not Beauty and less
Of beauty grades
Beauty as dawn
Beauty that gives Birth to Dawn
Beauty that hand
In hand
With Dawn carries herself.

Light and clean
Grasses bright
On these we tread
On this tiptoe
When the moon comes
Out of the clouds
To gladden us.

I walked in the sand
My footprint
Stuck in the sand
I walked in moon light
In dark only lit
By the stars’ light:
I walked
I walked in the sand
And it was night.

Light and clean
Grasses bright
On these we tread
On this tiptoe
When the moon comes
Out of the clouds
To gladden us.

In the sand In the magic
Of the night
The diamonds
Hidden lay Blinding throughout
The hectic day
Of Earth
On Earth

Light and clean
Grasses bright
On these we tread
On this tiptoe
When the moon comes
Out of the clouds
To gladden us.

It be the dusk.
In the background
And helter-skelter
Figure after figure Black and grey Moves as On the film:
Stealthy yet bold
Are these the specters
Of all nights here?
The ghosts and shrouds?
The rattling skeletons
Of the rattling teeth?

Light and clean
Grasses bright
On these we tread
On this tiptoe
When the moon comes
Out of the clouds
To gladden us.

Figure of bronze That affronts so many A wintry day
The tempest prongs
The frost
The rain
The snows Look! The snows still Lie at the base of the Obelisk.
The waters frozen Caught
In an X-ray
A photo static Universe of remembrance
And of pain
And of emotions
Most combined!

Light and clean
Grasses bright
On these we tread
On this tiptoe
When the moon comes
Out of the clouds
To gladden us.

Sing the night-winds Sing the waters
Sing the night-waters Sing pyramids Tall and pointed Under cold Egyptian skies Verona plays and Venice
The violins strings:
A cathedral in Cologne Stays up at night
And organ music heard Playing behind
The closed cathedral doors.
At Saint Paul’s there
Be
No noises, no sound
But silence
And a crowd Motley and subdued
By the sweet Thames:
Sing! Sing! Sing!
It be so frosty! Warm Up the heart
For the crowd down Speaks not Humble frustrated
And demoralized

Under the cold heavens Under the cold skies
The waters freeze Stay up; and in The heavens form
An adjacent rainbow
Of a narrow frost:
Red noses in the clouds Reflected in twilight Waters and shadows:
See the bat shrieks aloud Whirls its stealthy way Out of the light of Both the dusk and day!

See the closed doors Open them to the waters Of skies that pour Not cruel waters cold
But rays of a new Dawn
And a new day!

Break Down The Caesuras

Break down the caesuras
And
You will have a prose of Gold
Said the Poet Seer Smiled the Monsignor
And said not word
But smiled and smiled.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Break Though The Night

Break though the night I heard the glass of night break in silence though no quarreling voice or high.

Three trees together
in Hastings Gardens
whispering.

And I said my prayers for I had been long in praying.'

Emmanuel George Cefai
Breasts Be Desert

your breasts be desert
and your throat is dry
but
and
yet
the beauty inside as a lode star draws me to sing and versify
and chant and sing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Breath From Olympus

From great Olympus
A vast snow
Into gases and waters
Melted
Under the eagle eyes
Of magic.

That breath be sacred Coming from a sacred Temple of immensity.

And
Where it passes
The sacred so oft be
With the noble
That even cement walls
Start speaking.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Breath Passionate Warmth

Breath passionate warmth on your passionate breasts heaving.

Your face turns red I feel the heart
throbbing.

Your skin burns your thirst burns
with expectation.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Breath Slow, Breath Slow

Breath slow, breath slow and yet the lungs open to verse to poetry:
the Muse outlines the Poet Seer divines!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Breathe, breathe, Greek breath, the pines
Are hanging down for they pined
At the parting of the red dusk:
And since they bent their head
They will not rise, no, not even Night-stars lighting after the other Will do the trick: they still bend
And further bend as the night deepens in Even though the winter chill bites not.

Breathing Slow

Breathing
Breathing slow Breathing heavy
A very Leviathan
He lay sleeping.

Tall as the beach
He lay on Almost.

Careless he was
Of men humanity
And Earth:
Not aggressive
But
Just indifferent.

On the beach
He rolled Lazily.

The sun baked him not Nor when the sunset and
The dusk
Conspired chill.

Or when the night-shrouds
In his ears
Whispered.

They woke him not.
But Still continued
He Indifferent.

He deemed himself
The greatest Poet Seer
But asserted not:
He did not bother
Ever
To sing or versify.

Breathing
Breathing slow
Breathing heavy
A very Leviathan
He lay sleeping.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Breeze Of The Cursing Night

Slow
Slow Breeze of the cursing
Night:
I, the Poet Seer
Am in the cemetery.

Yawning and Creaking
From here
From there
It be past midnight
In such deep
Everywhere.

For Slow
Slow Breeze of the cursing
Night:
I, the Poet Seer
Am in the cemetery.

Bring Laudanum for
The night
The waters
In the well
Of sights
The ocean waves
That
Come
So many secret
Whispering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bring me
Bring me the uneasy steps Of goblins green and Long-eared rats of
Magic.
The rhyme that rhymes
Through music
Yet
Be no rhyme of mouths
Of word to word.
Rhyme that be no rhyme
But the offspring of Sweet rhythm after rhythm
I want
I desire Yearn for:
Bring me
Bring me
These things bring me
Else
All outside the skeleton shard
Of the sleepy brain Bring not But only these Those skeleton walls of Brain
That are unconquerable
When all be conquered.
The brain inside
Its citadel
The highest power oft
By armies so besieged Under its very walls by Armies sitting down
By it
So much involved Bring me
Bring me.
Bring Me To The Waters

Bring me to the waters
Let me climb
By Neptune’s daughters

For myriad be Neptune’s daughters
Every wave of the sea!

The Ocean vast stretches And loud rolls its laughters Attesting the might of those waters.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bring On The Hours

Merry first Then sad
The music slowly Slower gets Slower gets Till to a halt it grinds:
Then
Will faces turn white
And the feet that trod
The magic grass and Magic night
Hurry one after one.
The curtain rises
Slow.
The day alights in the first grey.
The Dawn.

Yet encloses
With its land tongue
Of that vastness part
And makes the part That part feel as the Whole
In vastness
In broad expanse

Brother Of The Voice

I am the brother of the Voice on Horeb heard

I am the father of tempests and tragedies at sea

I wreak mischief but I be not vindictive

I unsettle seas and winds and lives and countries

I wind through towns and cities modern
age

I make obstacle on obstacle to discoverers

I sow the seeds of fear in thinkers
bold

I pass by graves and tombs; they open up and the skeletons yield

I am the King of Cemetery after Cemetery and flee at Dawn

Buffeted On The Waves That People The Red Sanded Beach

Buffeted on the waves that people the red sanded beach
I realize the sea is frothing at the mouth
As if a marine war ended in carnage
The rocks re-bounded the strange sounds and raw.

How long and drawling every wave of sea
It reaches the rocks exhausted. The remaining strength And substance of the wave is broken on the rocks That rise tall pointed black bleak and raw From all around the bay and that Re-bound the strange sounds and raw.

When will the sea Tire its liquid siege? Its legions Of miry waves on the black rocks spent Replaced no sooner than destroyed And the sea
Froths at its mouth with vigor green Renewed as in battle.

No generals lead the waves save their own ire
And the inexhaustible surging of being a wave That on the rocks high pointed bleak and black Re-bound  the strange sounds and raw.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bulgarian Village

Come! we are on top of just a hill
but
it
is giddy
yet giddy giddy
giddy

below the clouds where the clouds open the houses of the village stretch
the streets?
four or five in all.

Small yet lovely.
Beauty here sits.
In silence.

then in the dark the stars glide fixed:

yet wavering
trembling
shying.

below the clouds
where the clouds open
the houses of the village stretch
the streets?
four or five in all.

Dark is dispelling LO! in a few minutes
there's change of scene in the fast drama.

Drama to other drama leads.

Suddenly a white vortex
immense:
the dawn.

Yet
as soon as the face of day the white of smile assumes from the edges
fast clamber the darker grays the frown
the scowl.

This the drear, my Monsignor.

Here
the universe nears Emotions as I
have.

Come! come! let's go over the hill yon hill that scowling cloud of dark thickness
will soon get drizzling.
On me and the village.

Come! Come! Let's go!
Bundle Of Beauty

Bundle of beauty
Walking a cloud
A mist
In to the frigid air
And dust
Beauty that beauty Admires
Beauty that to thrall Fires.

Burning Incense, Eerie Deep Silences

the house was that, the Earth was that - there was the smell those eerie deep silences.

house that temples twisted large hairs and locks of twisted...

from the high minaret sung the wind and lowered down - smiled the Earth.

Is dancing
The sexton with the tree
The water-wave with the desert sand
The races of Earth
Together
Face to face, land to land

The wind is rising
The flowers bend not Dusk pleasant blows
With Zephyr;
Circe with Ulysses
From her far cave Pines at the Dusk
Soon
Will the night-stars Deck the sovereign
Face of Night!

Zum zum zum zum Zum
Hum hum hum hum hum

Hum

The lakes are filled
Of water
The reservoirs glitter
With water
The small hamlets sleep Surrounded by the snows
And by the waters

The wind is rising
The flowers bend not Dusk pleasant blows
With Zephyr;
Circe with Ulysses
From her far cave
Pines at the Dusk
Soon
Will the night-stars
Deck the sovereign
Face of Night!

Let me see the Dusk Displaying

And Let me see the Dusk Wavering
And Playing

And with the beauty
Of the flush-faced Sunset
Vying!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Burning Of Life

Burning of life, yes, Burning - - there was a Figure That passed into the night
All helter-skelter
Following the ghosts and shrouds there were jewels - those were eyes - diamonds from the East talking talking the leaves and trees were
whispering
In the cemetery
Yesterday
at night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Burning Swords

In me
There be burning swords
My Love
A child will I conceive.

In me
There’s life battling Wanting to extend Even humble degree.

And then
The burning swords
A fire will churn
And charm and Rise and leap
And
Then
A child will I conceive.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Burnt Amiss The Dread That Was

some time ago;
the rift is not cannot be for in between there be transformation to transformation and then back cycle to cycle;
e = mc^2 Einstein carried in to literature not just the lyric; but extended more as from ancient Mecca the Mohammedan lore and conquest and new religion grew; as from a cell fertilized a human grows:
and all the ways and modes by which from low to high the things extend and grow:
burnt amiss the dread that was
some time ago;
the rift is not cannot be for in between
there be transformation to transformation

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bury In The Tomb

Bury in the tomb
The yews Move hither and Thither
Restless.

Be quick
With every second
My hearts beats itself
To bursting.

Lower the coffin Close the lid
The tomb.

Emmanuel George Cefai
But Ah! The Hours Fly Though

But ah! The hours fly though Danced they slow:
The measured paces served not
To delay the motion of Time:
And soon
One called – it was the Voice –
That spoke in to a nasal microphone –
’Look the Dawn within the hour
Will on the shore pebbles be Treading: prepare you
To Vanish in the airs and Vapors Blue Whence in the night’s beginning came you.’

Emmanuel George Cefai
But The Chill Was Strong

But
the chill was strong, the chill was heavier than the rain, the malice in the eyes was green,
but
but that was the position that night of envy and inglorious quiet.

Emmanuel George Cefai
But Then Let Me Think

But
But then let me think
Though it be night
The more inviting
Be
The solemn sacred silence

Emotions that swelled That rose high
And that fell
And then rose again
These emotions
Now lie in plateau Level-plain

The bosom likewise.
But
The emotions are still there
There as the stars
As the night
As the moon
As the paces secret and Mysterious
As the marches of shrouds
And of ghosts
As the furious humming silence
Of the moth round the dangling Lamp-light of the night Down under Down under the bastions Mourns the sea
In and out
In and out Rise and fall, come and Go sea-wraiths.

Butterfly Of Early Dawn

Butterfly of early dawn
Here and there
Flitting boisterously Without possessions and Without Even the thought of power
Yet
You hold
In your soft pollinated wings Promises and things More potent, more noble

Emmanuel George Cefai
Buzzing

buzzing
at night warmth
of
the frost whispers
that thaw
the chill
that grew
in
the dusk
that
was
of the moon
the early
of moon
the sands
that slip by
from my hand
that tremble
as tremble
the hands
of a
Poet Seer

Emmanuel George Cefai
Buzzing Nymph

Played
Round and round
The buzzing nymph Bee-like seeking
The sweet and the beautiful
She played Till on a thistle
She Pricked her finger white Came forth
A tiny bead of red
Blood.

Emmanuel George Cefai
By A Fair Pond Adonis Sat And Stared

By a fair pond Adonis sat and stared
And in his gaze was glory of mid-day
When the stark sun feeds itself on its glow And feeling it the more it glows and warms Like coursing blood of lovers newly made:
Anon a maid of fair proportions tall
And locks of gold and curled and tressed
The fair Adonis by the pond espied:
At which her heart inflamed at once like to Torches that burn alight on castle walls at night:
She racing came over the green champagne
And with a smile the flowers she ravished
By her wild beauty: sweet the sun shone
In all the glory of his warm mid-day and smiled:
But in her haste she a wrong step took and Into a grisly well and deep fell unawares Whilst by the fairy pond Adonis sat and stared
And in his gaze was glory of mid-day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
By Fields

House building in the fields
By fields
Surrounded
And by the spirits
And airs of them
Let me lie here motionless Gaze at what The immense heavens give Undress
From dawn to night
Then night to dawn again.

Emmanuel George Cefai
By Fire Hurled

By fire hurled, ejaculations of the lustful night, fires that burn on old Antarctica melting white glaciers.

Emmanuel George Cefai
By Law And Fear

A world that rules
By laws and fear
And by punishment
Then Boasts human freedoms fundamental:
A civilization we built
But not all things that live Conjoin and share
Under her weight
We chafe and despair
And groan
Grumble and change
But change be like
As the donkey round
The watermill miserable
Round and round and round

Emmanuel George Cefai
By Order Of The Law

If things attach
By order of the Law
Then
They detached Upon
The expiry date of the Law
And the human law Stops fainting
At the doors of cemeteries

Emmanuel George Cefai
By Slow And Trembling Steps

By slow and trembling steps
The bearded sage
The Sacred Mount ascend Began.

Wild howled the winds around Him
And
In his heart felt he the cruel pain
Of all those that conspired Against him.

Yet
Undaunted he still Climbed and climbed
By slow and trembling stage
That bearded sage:
Yet
For his wisdom though The mount did he ascend
The bearded sage
And though he on the top
At last
Below
Saw glittering all the wealth
Below
And all the towns and universities:
Yet in his heart he felt
The pain of solitude and more For Earth indifferent behaved
To him
And in oblivion had she buried Him.

Emmanuel George Cefai
By The River

By the River
Sate I Opened my book.

Read.

Of beauties and of Wondrous things.

Wondrous things?

All normal propense and All relative.

By a spring
I stood
I stood up with parched Throat

And Sang of beauty with just A parched tongue.
Just.

Emmanuel George Cefai
By The Sea In The Secluded Bay

By the sea
In the secluded bay
In ancient times
A giant tied with chains
To rocks
Of entrance to a bay Roared at The stars at Night
Wept by the suns of day Lazed
In the afternoons.

Emmanuel George Cefai
By The Sides Of The Blessed Mountains

By the sides of the blessed mountains
Wept I
They read my verse and poetry
By the rock face of the mountains Wailing snow of dripping snow
And
We do so to wail, we need,
We humans.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Minerva organized
The Cabaret of Night
All day preparations Went on
By red dusk
So intensified.

Spirits, nymphs, Sileni and fauns, Dryads and one-eyed Figures and the rest Onto the garden Stamped

The Orchestra
Was played by Hedgehogs.

The nightingales were
The special singers at the Cabaret.

Bacchanalians served wine Clothed in green.

Clanked pitchers, rose glasses Voices loud as the night Deepened

And the venue was Fair Hastings Gardens.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Calculation After Calculation

Calculation after calculation
The Hammers
On
The Brain Ticking
Ticking

The Poet Seer taking to The Port of Mathematics Linked together as in Chemical bonds
Verses and figures Verses and symbols
The chants were then
A whole mathematical plan
The Poet Seer was foisting.

You see
You see my Monsignor
How Symbols fire
Even in the even cemetery
Light
That at first burnt low But now flames out and
High
In the wild burning desires
Here
Here
You see
You see my Monsignor
You see.

The barefoot monks are Chanting psalms
In the tormenting marble cold
Of the night cloisters
The night pity takes
But not more.

Then midnight deepens with His subject clouds
The monks to the respective Cells
Hasten their casement close
Yet Within just a few hours
To open the casements yet again On the new Dawn
*

The Poet Seer
Ah! the old cunning Poet Seer Like wine he bettered more
And more
As his hair grayed Then whitened
Then his back arched and Bent
A little
From the studious days Since childhood uninterrupted
The Poet Seer

As with a magic wand
His tongue and brain
As Prospero and Merlin
From scene to scene
He takes us at his
Will
In ever-increasing beauty.

And
Then
We utter ‘O’
As the night curtains fall
And with another swing
As yet of wand Ushers he
The new Dawn.
Call

Call
Call
Your cry
Though it be scream
After
The mishaps of your Destiny.
For Here tragedy trod Upon the heels
Of tragedy:
Here
The wilderness
The extinct
The barren
The parched.
Scream
Scream only

Emmanuel George Cefai
Call After Call I Will Not Cease

Call after call I will not cease
To tell you to reproduce: while You still breathe though slow,
Though obesity
Makes you in danger and increases it:
Yet
The more so you should thrive
And your blood to delirium warm
Even if it be the coldest winter day
To make new children in your wake.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Call, Call For More

Call, call for more Birds
The trees await
Now that Dawn’s awake
Now that the Spring smiles fair Now that waves ripple sands
Now that alight immense coastal strands Now that the lark soars high Now that there’s burst of song in sky:
Now that the flowers wake Now that glimmers the lake
Now that the sun rays light
Now that the day’s crowned bright Now that Spring shows its might:
Call, call for more Birds
The trees await
Now that Dawn’s awake

Emmanuel George Cefai
Calm

Calm stressed spirit.

The cutting of the chains is nigh
The heart will break.

The eyes will blind
And desperation will do the rest.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Calm And Sleepy Dreams

Beach that calm and sleepy
dreams
under the rearing summer sun ah! how different how different from the night before when every rock and stone moved restless full as the wide Ocean waters roared the caves and coves

Emmanuel George Cefai
Calm As The Woods That In The Winter Dream

Calm as the woods that in the winter dream
Beneath the frosty gusts of Boreas When icicles thin pencil-like and white From overladen boughs all numbed do hang.

Serene as sits the owl when on her bough
She all around reviews and thinks Unruffled in ruffled feathers sitting She thinks and utters not a syllable.

Fair as the fields that gild with corn Their crowned forehead in the tepid Sun
When Spring young trumpeter of the coming boon Fruits and corn and laden trees heralds.

Calvary Of Suffering

I
Said
My Calvary
Of Suffering
On
The Fuming
Beads
I
Said
It:
The Politics
Were
Of
My Father
And
They Passed
In
The Blood
To Me
And
In me
I
Had
The Fire
Of Prometheus

Emmanuel George Cefai
Candelabras Hanging

Candelabras hanging
Red floor
Tiled masonry
Palace of the clouds
Yet feet on earth

Ah! verse soon
Will be ready
And the monument
You yearn to build
Be built.

Then call
The people to view
The landmark Masterpiece.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Candles

I saw
candles, candles, candles:

I saw the mask
of up-lying face
I saw the mask
and I felt the cold

on the wood the coffin lay and the mask lay and said I; Speak! Speak Poet Seer!
Speak!
Arise!
For me at least, arise!

No
he spoke not, nor arose

And I still saw the mask of the up-lying face
I saw the mask
and I felt the cold

Emmanuel George Cefai
Cannon Of Lightings

Cannon of lightings
Fired
At intervals of
The raging tempests
The restless night
Of palms moving
Moving restless
With the wind and chill and frost Last winter.

Cape Of Sadness

Cape of sadness
Black wrath of concentration camps
Clouds that hover angrily Mists of hopes that fall
Downwards
Downwards
Into the vale of Conscious and Sub-Conscious both:
Thread mill that loses the breath
The Poet Seer gasps, looks at the Heavens but their face is angry.

We are in storms to-night, see the thunder-light!
We are in the reign of sadness to-night,
See, see, even the drear fading starlight!

Cape of sadness
Black wrath of concentration camps
Clouds that hover angrily
Mists of hopes that fall
Downwards
Downwards
Into the vale of Conscious and Sub-Conscious both:
Thread mill that loses the breath
The Poet Seer gasps, looks at the Heavens but their face is angry

Copernicus with us, the vessel by Columbus moves and there be land in sight:
Tempests subside a little
Are still green as yet
As yet.

You see where you have brought me to?
You see?
You see?
Cape of sadness
Black wrath of concentration camps
Clouds that hover angrily
Mists of hopes that fall
Downwards
Downwards
Into the vale of Conscious and Sub-Conscious both:
Thread mill that loses the breath
The Poet Seer gasps, looks at the Heavens but their face is angry

There be such low depths now that I feel the bottom

Where have you brought me to? Why The precipice? Was not the Calvary Enough?

With pince-nez in the fading light You examine my thoughts that Your refined computer transcribes:
Like an electrocardiogram
The transcription goes:
The red dusk is in its throes
The light is yielding to the dark Draw the curtain.

Fragments that make the block
The One from Many then comes:
The deed is done, the job.

O! dark thoughts dark, dark thoughts!
Yet though the stomach churns
The lungs feel some warmth and Some breath:
The brain enclosed in an iron Sheath.

See, see where they brought me:
The edge of the cliff is ready Below the giddying heights
The raging seas, the green of waves,
The sea-wraiths and the spume

And then in the night the restless
Ghosts and shrouds:
Pacing the city restless: come!
Come! I will be one with you.

Cape of sadness
Black wrath of concentration camps
Clouds that hover angrily
Mists of hopes that fall
Downwards
Downwards
Into the vale of Conscious and Sub-Conscious both:
Thread mill that loses the breath
The Poet Seer gasps, looks at the Heavens but their face is angry

There was an end, it had to be,
That was a bitter end and
Yet
Yet before the Calvary:
With every day I prayed its end My prayers heard at last?
The bottom I assert has now Been reached.
The summit of the agony, the Cross,
The yellow of paleness
The last sweating
Stop.

Did I a Poet-Seer deserve this?

Carnival Floats

The King of Masks he rides the Carnival floats his face he dyes
he hoods his eyes he smothers song
he weeps, he sighs floats on along

Emmanuel George Cefai
Carnival Of Rain

Mask that carriers forth
The Carnival of Rain
Though tempest it be not
As yet

Tremble the young hearts
More romantic
A Carnival of Rain than Sheer just carnival.

Figures that for few days
Around
Around Circulate
After all
They be Civilization alternative.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Carry The Civilization

Carry the civilization of
The heavens
All to Earth
Excellent berth!

The snow mountains in Their peaks
From our Earth to the High heavens point.

So must we.
And
We must the civilization
Of the heavens extract;
Carry unto our Earth:
That be revolution!
And
Our duty practical.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Carrying Your Lovely Body

I withdrew you Carrying your lovely Body
Into my cavern of desires Where lay together we
In the happiness of Rising fires

Twenty four hours times Millions ever-increasing The day we wished to be
We
In the happiness of Rising fires

Alas the sunset came And the red dusk
After
Then the night
The day had closed:
Still we continued
Our sighs beacons of Our happiness continued Lighting as the stars and More in ever-increase Even through the dawn
In that happiness of Rising fires
Sighs
Whispers and kisses Embraces Sighs
Sighs Desires

Despairing?

Heights
I think of heights
So Recently:
The bated breath
The red eyes
The sorrows
The dreary waking up On every morrow High girth
Below a stream Below the rocks
To blaring cataracts Give birth:
Let me
Let me in this deafening sound Shut out the Conscious World And in the lap of the Sub-Conscious Fade.

Cefalu!

Sea and ancient Spume of sea United joined To scent of ancient Unique Cefalu!

How many tales
How many nights
How many tales
Between your streets
Your walls your green Up to the houses and The stones.

If stones could speak Speak Beauty and Speak Venus
Arising from an early Sea-shell marble-type
They would speak
And speak loud:
Cefalu!

The houses here dream
To seagulls’ screams Under the wings of Morpheus
The songs of Mnemosyne
Under the spell of island Where you stay Under the distant smell Of burning Aetna.

If stones could speak
Speak Beauty and Speak Venus-Dawn
They would speak
And speak loud:
Cefalu!
Celebrate With Pain And Suffering

To celebrate with Pain and suffering
But ah! they produce
There be a whole inventory
And civilization be enriched:
Beware! Suffering be necessary.
Zoomed into the pebbly beach
The sordid waves
And it was lightning of the day
New day, new life Old habits, old infirmary
By time of Night-Nurse.

Cemeteries

who has not been to cemeteries must issue from this ball!

who has not loved red dusk must clear from the way!

who has not loved black night
please leave this dance.

For gruesome be this dance and behind masks are all.

Mask to mask, hand in hand occasional, all dance without a sound, without a word, all stare, all dance.

an orchestra of hedgehogs also in masks, they play drawling sounds and slow at night, from sun and light away for even the stars dark this night obscure their light from bright and clouds hover in heaven and in sky while under gales pass by.

and the society of night continues on and melts at the first Dawn!

Cemetery Of Emotions

I have a cemetry of emotions
I feel it as the waters of a well going up me waters that want to emerge and sparkle in the dark moonlight and leap from crag to
crag:
Running I saw souls Even in the face of Rising dawn:
White was its face
But somewhat ruddy orange round the fringes along the fringes
And it throbbed for emotions to throb be propense.
There was emotion
That was emotion.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Centuries

They were feasting
But centuries old
ago
For
On them
They had
The costumes of centuries ago.

The milk seeped through The grey rocks
Ledge on ledge
The waters mixed With milk.

Outside
The band played
Inside
They slept and Dreamt.

The band! What Gruesome band!
A hedgehog, lizard Toad and
The rest!

Centuries whirred round
Ageing
Out of breath
Stopped momentarily

Emmanuel George Cefai
Chain

For the chain
Be broken
The chain of the green eyes.

Now the eyes be red only Deep red.

There be no anger in the eyes
But only the slumber propensity Of dreaming.

I would not hear the chains be Broken.

A whole town was broken
The gales yesterday Wrought havoc.
That town was the Town of My Soul.
Yes, it be called so.
It be so.
And it be broken
And the chains cut.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Chains

I heard the chains
Chain after chain
Chain after chain
Chain after chain
The sounds not stopping
The sounds not yielding
I heard them:
Long continued they Then stopped they.
And then
I rued their stopping Then suddenly
At night
They began again
Screeching the ground
And rooms
The sounds not yielding.

Emmanuel George Cefai Chains Of Suffering

here
here on Earth
the chains of suffering attach attach to me
wherever, whenever.

with them
they bring restlessness everywhere, whenever and the parched Soul
cries
'I'm thirsting'

No friendly hand brings even a mug of
waters.
But the suffering continues
Destiny smiles cruelly
'I'm thirsting'

Emmanuel George Cefai
Chalice Of Silence

In the chateaux of moons
The moons round circle
Silent
Attention! As not to tread
On each other's heels
They rattle
They shift
In them fires That ancient Chalice of Chance and probability:
Flats
The chalice of silence
In the chateau
In the middle
Around
As planets the moons turn
Around
Obedient planets
Of chaos in chance-and-probability

Emmanuel George Cefai
Chances Of Life

yet
as in to the chances of life life by chances lurking there's Beauty too in hiding:
we in our childhood are blindfold to much of the Emotions
we hover round the mid-point of their mountains yet never go the peaks stay back thus rarely fall off
then
in the drunkenness of youth we upwards ply to discover the peaks and joy and experiences
and in the first strengths of Youth ignore the slippery edges and ledges
then with the first calls of Ageing
one by one
we fall into the abysm where in the least the waters of Lethe bathe us amidst mists and
clouds:
there in to the saving arms of the Sub-Conscious
at long last and whatever the Ageing
we turn to the Child once again
Sub-Conscious pitying:
and there
the cycle starts and ends there's Beauty and there's sadness
so much!
so much!
that's after all our experiences! [

Chanted To-Night

Chanted to-night
the trees of the cemetery
chanted to-night
the charnel houses and tombs and graves and lit the monuments
and lit the walking robes past mid-night:
For to-night there occurred What Was To be Done not here on Earth elsewhere
yet
yet here on Earth Trembled the Earth
Herself.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Chanting Soul

The Chanting Soul
Innocent and wide eyed
The soul of the Big black eyes

But more
That certain Chanting Soul
Had the big heart
And
That with its verse-chanting Was all That it needed
For a worth into this Earth.

She had no palaces crowns Power or their ilk
But
The Chanting Soul
Innocent and wide eyed
The soul of the Big black eyes

Charm, Charm, Sadness Of Verse

In you
The mists of magic turn Transforming to the depths
The pitch of sadness:
Rise Rise inhabitants of the ancient Wealds ancient and old:
Rise
Your bones strew in the depths Of tree-roots rise and go Charm, charm, sadness of verse
The head is bent
The mouth eating black bread
The lips sipping drear water

Emmanuel George Cefai
In the charnel house
the temperatures burn and rise to furnace heights.

But not in the day.

In midnight.

Turn over and over cephalic bones and heads with eyes of holes hear, see, human!

There be a leveling hand and that leveling hand be just!

The Vocabulary of Resignation

My Monsignor when times will be propense perhaps to consider me out of the burning oblivion of my soul, my Inner Soul, my Monsignor.

Those times will wipe out the injustices of years and centuries
where in to the tomb descended a Poet Seer with bent head
in resignation and a broken heart.

For, my Monsignor, Oblivion an injustice be,
that burns for years,
for centuries,
the Voice and the vocabulary of resignation

Chief of Night Dews Unlike the Rest

Chief of Night Dews unlike the rest
The night-dews
Giant and diamond of the Orient Glimmers
Glitters
In the night of the glow worms
And of the shining socket eyes
Of ghosts and shrouds
Shades and shadows that go round and round.

And the Trumpet of the Sick Night
Sings
Sings
What surfeits it had at the red lust
Of the red dusk
When
The rabbit limped into the bushes Where the silver aged trees bend to The soft running stream and Rushes.

At last
At last
The day they have fixed
To take to the guillotine
My head in effigy
They have already made in Wax
Already made Already made
To burn next night.

And
the night dews will weep
And
some humans will weep
And
the silver aged trees will weep
And
the bells that vesper sung will weep
And
the nymphs of the night will weep
And
the goblins that race the plains will weep
And
the arcane rocks of the cliffs will weep
And
the face of the sad will weep
And
the Sphinx will stop grimace and weep
And
The bees that hummed drowsing weep

Limped slow unsteady on its tiny feet
The aged hedgehog.
By the hedges taciturn
It hummed all to itself
A wise nocturne:
Owls heard; their ears pricked
And from another coppice of the trees Began to sing the lovely nightingales.

Chief of Night Dews unlike the rest
The night-dews
Giant and diamond of the Orient Glimmers
Glitters
In the night of the glow worms
And of the shining socket eyes
Of ghosts and shrouds

Child In You

You have to bring out the child
In you

Then you will feel better in Your sufferings

Pain will be with you but also Some jocosity

Pragmatic be:
Your calculations make.

Choose  jocosity

Emmanuel George Cefai
Child Of The Loaf

Child of the loaf
Dark and black Bread
Swarming in the streets
At night
Picking
From dust-bins.

The chill and
The heat
Be Indifferent.

Yet
The wisdom of the Owls
The songs of the nightingales Bring tears in his eyes.

And the night high above Continues its silent revels.

In the fields
At night
A farmer of three jobs Works by the night
Tending his sheep
And crops
Tilling the earth
By the light of the Moon
By the cool of The breeze
His face was shrouded
And a strong waft of Wind
Unveiled that shroud
And
Then Unveiled a ghost
A rattling skeleton!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Childless

To the so-called childless:
Let out your sperm
That matter: energy
Be born
That be indestructible
And
In that matter: energy
There be descent and Immortality
In as direct proportion
To its indestructibility

Emmanuel George Cefai
Children

children be gems jewels in our crowns, nay, they make our crowns
more than jewels make them.

yet
they be too amongst our many anxious days and sufferings

yet for all and in all children remain the gems.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Chill

The chill
It cut my face
Just as the razor
More than the razor
But blood
Remained inside the suffering.

At that rate Suffering increased.

extravasations of blood would do the trick reduce sufferings and reduce brilliance but not eliminate
them

Emmanuel George Cefai
Chill To The Bone

It is chill to the bone to walk
at night
solitary in ancient Valletta.

Ay! when I was younger I lost the more chances that I had

And now the little that remains screams, screams, screams.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Chill-Dripping Trees

chill-dripping trees
it be not yet Christmas or New Year Eve
yet
you drip drip
the anxiety
and
the stress
in chill and frost
tonight

Chorus Of Ghosts And Shrouds

with eyes that from red redder turn and dark grey faces that to charcoal black turn and flicker
in the candles that they bear,
they, the Ghosts and Shrouds.

Heap scents where the Ghosts and Shrouds pass and walk:
bring the showers, bring
the rain
in the joys of pattering dissolves
pain

Tread, tread Ghosts and Shrouds while the phosphorus rare and proud they tread lightning glow-worms that come and go
come and go
and awhile the procession goes.

Candles, smoke, incense and chant faces straight and disciplined, No Ghost speak to Ghost or Shroud
No Shroud speak to Ghost or Shroud only all, with one intent, see they move,
they move forward in procession, see they move
the vessel moves, the crowd.

Heap scents where the Ghosts and Shrouds pass and walk:
bring the showers, bring
the rain
in the joys of pattering dissolves
pain:

See the bulls of the red night, See their horns glisten, radiate in the twinkling light moonlight and from the wildness of the stars and from the clanking of waters bright dancing nymphs arising, arising with white water wraiths out of waters, out of seas.
in the trammels of the night.

And the harps by hands of sprites energy not mass nor white colorless-invisible in that magic, in that night where in every corner spell hoots in caves where it dwell

And the night amidst the nights and the spell amidst the spells candles shooting, moon alighting, and the nymphs of night all dancing Neptune with his fork all green prancing on a secret hidden lawn:
before springing light of dawn.

Chorus of Ghosts and Shrouds
with eyes that from red redder
turn and dark grey faces that
to charcoal black turn and flicker
in the candles that they bear,
they, the Ghosts and Shrouds.

Chorus Of Spirits

Chorus of Spirits
singing slow as you ride and white images of marble beauty glide:
chorus of Spirits

in the first touch of Dawn remain to protect Earth in her coming woes

Emmanuel George Cefai
Choruses Of New Song

I

In chorus I
the Dawn has come the Dawn has whittled the tearful drama of the night:
quiet!
the waves roll not but plain stretch immense full a main.

Quiet!
Magic words for hearts that pained and suffering go:
and frozen groan the stars and night-dews scent

Scant
the waters in the palace
song
roll by the beaches in the empty halls
where ghosts and shrouds in conclave groaned last night.

the hedgehog
sleeps
too tired for food has been roaming
the day
for food to search to feed its young ones

open your eyes my Monsignor for you will beauty be soon
deeper than in deepest
night
and fervid dawn.

Cities Of Hanging Shrubbery

Cities of hanging shrubbery flowers that reflect in the waters
resting:
winds
that change direction
every now and then Zephyr that as a bandmaster directs the winds obey
the winds obey
in the cities of hanging shrubbery

Emmanuel George Cefai
City

In the city
The sun burns.

People in black Together collect
And walk.

Then as the sun
Starts fading slow
The music of the graves Begins its eerie chant.

That was the Day of Wrath,
The Day.

And in the cemetery Under the sad trees of Broken hearted silence
No sun burns.

Emmanuel George Cefai city of dusk
we my Monsignor so often write of dusk and things
as it:
from our humdrum civilization we move better a sackcloth of spirits
high and joys than whole centuries of drear and fear

Emmanuel George Cefai
City Sprawl

in the wake of the city
that sprawled merrily
and grew, grew every day sung like a ditty
the more everyday;
of a supreme thought the underbelly: ah!
my Monsignor that was where I learnt to measure view in details view under the lens the supreme thought make it bear more thoughts sublime offspring thereof;
then
in time a whole descent of the thoughts;
that was where I arrived at that level, and stopped to take breath
but then
froze in the sun light with no hope of thawing:
so resigned, with bent head, I prowled round and round in my fury-frustration in the whorls of the net
in the city in the calm in the silence of palaces and streets that be strait in the expectation of dark and of sunset and dusk to look from the belvedere from the high silent city the Medina on so many other towns and cities and settlements.
on the whole of the star-lineages the mantle of silver comprising
the moon
the mantle and me we touched, communicated as through a thought, then more thoughts till reason was sated.
the roll of the jazz was the roll of the thunder the flash of the lighting the call of the crowds the waters full gliding
through mists up surged from the levels of our Mother
the Earth.
I smelt the smell of the chemicals the bowels of Earth in the working the belly of thought and the sump of the doubt:
the pride of assertion of assertion
of assertion...

round about the day
as it wound round and around the tinkling of bells my Monsignor the time has come to hear me to the heavens my ear I place my ear
my ear...

and a whole constellation - a whole, I repeat, with the dazzling of my eyes
I trace

I write these days
Of ghosts and shrouds
I saw they form so much A part of things
In this our Earth
A civilization alternative.

Civilization Changed

They always were prone to say:

'Look around that date Civilization changed in so many areas thereof'

Then
a hundred years after they say:
'No but in subsequent dates Too changed civilization:
The former magic years were just more loaded'

Emmanuel George Cefai
Civilization Of Colors

Today
In the beginning
There was a vagueness
Everywhere.

Then little by little A thin mist
Veiled
Started to form.

And
In as direct proportion A whitish color that To twilight turned

And then to red
Then Subsiding from a deeper red To a pale yellow turned With shadows of green.

In the harbor of Civilization the masts
Of the vessel began To dangle here and there Pendulum like and restless

There was a quickening
A quickening of the All
I felt it
All felt it Touched it with the hand

It was first a horse Of clay that turned to Bronze
Then three orphans hand
In hand
Weeping and walking.

Ah! civilization then
In this rare day
Had its pyramid in Statues: Masterpieces whose Genesis
Was vagueness first
Then
A little whitish mist.
Yes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Civilization Of Night

the civilization of Night
ah! it be no less than day
no less than civilization of day:

at night discoveries at night thoughts noble and thoughts great at night great prose written and verses noble, great:
and at night too
is born play after play.

at night I Poet Seer work at my keyboard away quiet and silence inspire and combined with desire lighten wild and fierce that wild Promethean fire under whose forge civilization great be
made,

The nymphs, the fauns, the bats,
satyrs and Sileni,
and all - owls, nightingales trees - so long a list!
a whole civilization great that grows with every night touched by Evolution's light!

For
the civilization of Night
ah! it be no less than day
no less
than civilization of day
Ah! the Civilization of the Day
From the back ground of sun light Thrives.
You see its results.
Then look the other way.
See night almost equal in Hours
Counting with it Dusk sunset and twilight fading:
See its results.
History speaks.
And History without words
Speaks.
You see even the plants and green Unto the sun light rise Then bend
In to the more rational realms
Of the night-stars that fierce Burn their way
At end of each woeful day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Civilization Of The Earth

Of things
That in my verses
I have mentioned
Full
The civilization of the earth
Be made.
Such things sang
I
As dusk, and sunset,
And
Dawn
The windy days
And tempest morns

But Also sung I things
Of
Yet another civilization:
Such
The cemeteries, the ghosts,
The shrouds, the eerie
Winds
The haunted houses
And
The haunted clouds
The haunted bays
And
The haunted seas
The haunted caves and Coves
And
The galleries of tombs and Graves
In sullen cemeteries.

In between Boasting both Conscious and subconscious
Wealth
The owls nocturnal
And Nightingales amorous
The hedgehogs that As dusk beholden be Cross the soil paths Under the tall trees
Erect
Firs, elms and the Strong oaks.

Of these
These many things Sang I:
Both conscious
And sub-conscious
Always
Mixed to some degree
Now prevalent this Now that Now equal mixed.

But most of all Of humans sung I With love always On all occasions by
And all emotions,
Thoughts - a whole gallery!
And
Of the warmth-current of Things that Kindles All.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Civilization On A Cliff Edge

On the cliff edge
A Figure with a Sheath Giant loomed.

It has been there Since before Dawn
Right on the cliff edge.

It relished the genesis Of Dawn and Beauty born
As Venus from a sea-shell.

Behind
A plain of rock Stretched level.

Around
The deafening silence
Of a thousand bees.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Civilization Will Be Of The Moment

Civilization will be of the moment
let it be a violet that springs beautiful for a drunken mid-day just one, just one, drunken mid-day then fade with bent head in the dark and cold frosts of a winter night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Civilizations Alternative

Civilizations alternative
of night
when the stars fierce burn
and the Band of the Cemetery Ants plays to the moon civilizations
when the skeletons and bones afford not to stay quiet
rise open the tombs and graves yawning:
civilizations alternative Duchess of the Night of hollow eyes and rattling chains
one after one the chains rattle the chains groan the chains sparkle in the night the chains pain and suffer the chains experience gain
civilizations alternative

Emmanuel George Cefai
Civilizations I Gave You

See, see,
How many civilizations I gave you.
See.

The civilization of the day

The civilization of beauty
The civilization of dramatists and Scientists The civilization of the sociologists
The civilization of the lovers of the knowledge that be mad for it That of nymphs, Sileni, fauns and Spectacles till The stars fall for rises
The eye-dazzling dawn Venus-Beauty.

The civilization of the first light of Immortality Then I suspended it Grieving

The civilization of ghosts and shrouds

The civilization of power and glory

The civilization of materialism and discovery And science
And power and glory

Then the shades came
The shadows fell
The faces darkened
The brows furrowed
And Issued the Souls
That groaned
Had tears in their eyes
The very Inner Souls:
There issued forth
A new civilization
The civilization of the night

With it parallel
The civilization of the sad
The civilization of the resignation The civilization of the night with stars and Tempests and firs and nightingales And owls and Orchestra of Hedgehogs.
The civilization of the cemeteries The civilization of the skeletons
The civilization of the tombs
The civilization of the graves.
And these
be still with us, of us,
To us.
These civilizations from
The civilization of the night.

Great and unmoving:
The doves below it
White
And rest
Dreaming.

The scent
Of the sub-conscious Everywhere
It lies
It hies
And moves as a serpent New liberated from the Lair
That held it unjust captive
Of the stars.

Now the forges where The verses are blown And heated Cool a little And further cool little By little Out! Out! Into the open!
Into the woods and the Dark infested Champaign

Scent
Scent everywhere
Still A Statue
Over the Heaven’s Panorama looms
Great and unmoving:
The doves below it
White
And rest

Cling In The Tomb

with blanched faces wait we unwilling to board ship fright with every passenger who goes up passenger after passenger fright after fright

Clock Of The Time

Ah! would the Clock of the Time
Stop
And frozen Fix itself
In the hours of the night
Sweet
Cathedral strikes the sound Every quarter
Every hour
Romantic night!
Sweet and distant
The sweet songs
Of the love-mad nightingales
And Quite near Rustling heard
Of the sea-waves in the Port
And
The whispering of stars.

Clouds

Clouds
clouds
shattering against the thin thick barrier walls of frost shattering shattering

down
down below the human pass through streets and square in the old ancient city:
put forward fast forward
see how the paces hurry trembling in an ever-increasing manipulated flurry those those humans

lone lone rotating march in the vast flurry of frost particles genes gene particles relative of the searing of the leaves, the fall, the rustling on the garden paths, strewn
strewn with leaves that fell
fell hapless and hopeless
lone
lone rotating march

how drear the day how dreary the earth moves
the earth rotates
how dreary
not much of variance no spice to smell, no taste of spice and burning tongues:
no,
the usual drear of day even if sunny the usual days of grace then the fall of the guillotine the sad monk to his cell betakes his way and loud his voice resonates in his pray dusk, vesper, night to come the cloister-earth lowers its warmth and frowns
the cicala and the grasshopper a dialogue attempted then stopped, stopped in a distant mill the water gurgles deep

and slow
in a distant plain half dozen farms alight dogs bark as night lowers the curtain of the dark mute and rapid flees home back a lark and screeching a wise owl a bat circles around and then it shrieks a moth
the bat emulates circles and hums droll the sea-waters enter in the creek amidst the hideous heights of brazen cliffs and it is night

ah! attempt! if you must succeed first you must attempt that's order chronological order of the universe order logical:
how dreary vapor from the heavens fall from beneath the iron-waxing stars yet they light white and smile by half the other half a wry, mask of the cynical:
rustles high the spume carrying waves the cruel seas all Ocean-prompted rage an owl flies off her safe branch and to earth takes a short walk and sage for it is night

a figure tall, how tall its top the Poet-Seer looks high:
and a look of fear on his face he bears walks the tall figure
always becoming taller, taller
in ever-increase without limit in that space of breeze
nocturnal
that the heavens and the mass universe present and the sombre immensity they represent:
a figure tall, how tall
how elongated and ever-fiercer talls and walks and is not sated for mid-night quickly rolls:
an hour
ago it was that distant
now it is come a moth passes against its face by mistake with fear drops
down
where a procession of shrouds in full gown proceeds candles in hand some others torches bear the gruesome gathering without direction steer
into the night
into the deep of mid-night, yes, for it be night
damiente de lucens sapiente.

Spirit of mountains!
Not mass, but little of it
The rest in wave currents
In energy moves in hiding Yet from pass to pass it goes The Spirit of the mountains!

Even so I would be as you be Spirit of the Mountains!
And would my verse
More in your spirit be To cut the chains
And fly away from Earth Except free mountains
Be
Just
A Spirit of the Mountains!

Cobbled stones

The times that fly
The regrets that were The wild running of Wild, indeed:

Awhile
The cobbled streets
Romantic and patient Receive the soles
And paces
And the time passes
With every pace
And the time passes.

Between mountain peak and Mountain peak
So high
So high
The waters melt
The waters melt
And have A satin softness in Their stamen skin
For mist on mist
Be building
Be advancing:
Teli kerek sedis talet

Emmanuel George Cefai
Columns Of Fire

Columns of fire
That’s desire –
You human Have indeed
So much of fire
Enough
If you desire
And desire.

Let your desire
Be in ever-increase.

Let your desire
Know
No horizons
No dawns
No sunsets
Palliative of pain
And so much
Heart-breakings.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Combination

A combination A combination in the tempest rose colors were mixed winds with rain wild doors and windows together creaked
houses in fear together in frost shivered.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Combinations

In the permutations and Combinations
Of time the stars twinkle.

The masks of white Below them
Restless gases
Hide.

And the calm-bosomed seas
In the Port hide the Restless undercurrents black.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Come And Sing Be Merry

Come and sing
be merry the ring of life has turned from winter hoar Spring has seized the oar Come and sing
be merry
it's the Spring!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Come Early For I Want To See You

Come early for I want to see you Arise me from my bed
By early Dawn and let me Let me for the first time see you.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Come Out

Come out
Come out
My friends
The goblins Dark has Brought forth
Myriads of stars.

The waters flow
Listless
And soundless Midst of the Upper Barracca

So many vessel
Passed
And this night
Through the port Just a ghost vessel

Emmanuel George Cefai
Come Out Of The Thicket

Come out of the thicket
That twines your Thoughts
Wires of flashing Electricity
Thoughts
Deep too deep for
Trembling
Fears and deliriums
You will need a long walk O!
To reach the borders.

Beyond
The waters wait still and Austere.

Thought weighs upon the waters
As rain-laden clouds Before the tempest-storm Breaks forth this night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Come Through The Fog That Hangs!

Come through the fog that hangs!
Chilly ghost of the reel of the future;
Cut my hair now before it grows not Cut it you will hold it
In a reliquary of forgotten humans:
Who strived not to be forgotten:
Who wrote, who thought, who asserted.
Come through the fog that hangs!
The clock of age is to be reverted as by magic.
Magic will be the mechanics by which the clock of age be reverted

Emmanuel George Cefai
Come, Come, Come? She Said

Come, come, come? she said
In a half weeping tone Suppressed

And her lovely arms out Of the darkling waters rose For her sweet love

But ah! little by little Her arms sank and sank Into the deep night, deep sea.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Come, come, dry your eyes and tears Cunning woman, whose every day
The clock of reproduction closes Tears a leaf from the calendar.

Lake that was fire in the twilight
That
Now under the moon light Shines
Reflecting the night’s desire.

Mount fairly tall but where The snow whitens the dark Of night to blue-azure:
In the long distance better glimmering Over the burning lake shimmering.

To-day
The moment comes for me
To trace my steps to this site:
As night closes round me
My heart in fear leaps
My heart in fear leaps
My heart in fear leaps.

Below the pomengranate tree where Warm reigned in summer, where The night could be heard breathing sweat
You lay
Into the ecstasies of love and kissing Panting.

Then your cunning
I kept at bay in your ecstasy
You had to choose between it And cunning:
Just like percentages or Two glasses: you add one And by the amount and proportion That you add one the other You decrease:
That’s proportion inverse.

No longer you yearn for the tower
But you do yearn for the summer garden Trellised with remnants of the Spring Trophies of the yearly renaissance:
You yearn for that and I with you.
But now
Now the cold, the cold blasts roll Over the garden, the trellised walls Lanky and thin and dilapidate
By the night-rains wetted lie Dreary and cold and thin:
Haggard they look and speak not Nor our kisses warm nor our ecstasies Light the smoldering chimney fire But looks, furtive looks, just that.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Come, Come. Take Cheer

Come, come. take cheer
Though all around us all
Is falling part by part Bastions that are dilapidating:
Ah! bastions long ago
But that was long,
Long ago:
And now
Of air around us, and the sun,
The dusk, the dawn, the night
Of these
Only we can take cheer:
So let us adopt these, our New children:
And let us be one family with them
Come, come. take cheer
Though all around us all
Is falling part by part

Emmanuel George Cefai
Come, Sing A Song

Come, sing a song,
That the child sleep
That the small child Smile serene and not weep.

A fairy song be Beauty And therefore you must Sing a fairy song
Where image on image Sub-conscious and nocturnal Throngs.

Come, come, for Time with Motion quick, flees through The hours.
Mid-night be done and soon
The Dawn must find you Sing a song
A fairy song to child,
The small child.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Complete The Lines

Complete the lines
Just a few lines
Today
But Heartfelt.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Compounded

Suffering Compounded be when The sufferer to joy
Pretends and feigns.

The heart seeps
Blood
The Soul yearns
Crushed.

Yet the sufferer Goes out in to the Streets and gardens
And squares
To the people speaks
And smiles
And sings.

Emmanuel George Cefai Concentrate

I threw away all things
On a child to concentrate O! the time for ghost Children and Heart-breaking pains Must be made to Cease.

Ghost child to child Transformation incarnate
But what lies in that Incarnate!

Else
All that transforms be
As that into which it Transformed be:
The other way round
Too, my Monsignor

Emmanuel George Cefai
Confused The Brain

Confused
The brain
The thought
And all the hair's
On end!

Hazy
The eyes
The sights
The lights!

A bell rings
Far
A nightingale sings Afar
Vesper songs
For Dusk's away
And
Fading the day!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Congealment Of Icicles

The wanton frost
In winter its blood warms
In the congealment of icicles
In the numbing of bodies
So many other ....
So many other ...

As the peripati
They
They walked through the frozen Glass
And the smoke-filled room
Of the hubbub of voices

For
The wanton frost
In winter its blood warms
In the congealment of icicles
In the numbing of bodies
So many other ....
So many other ...

Emmanuel George Cefai
Conscience Raw

A conscience raw
A man of guts Reaches out oft Feared by all.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Conscience Was Walking.

Conscience was walking.

I asked her boldly: Whither?

At first she smiled and spoke not.

Then pointing to the Courts
She said: ‘Away from here’

Conscience was walking.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Consider this: a million harps sing in this storm

An avalanche slow gathers from the snow.

The fields below untilled deprived of the soft plough.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Conspirators

Emmanuel George Cefai
Constancy With Dusk

You see, my Monsignor
The transferring bit by bit Part by part
Of civilization from the Realm of the Conscious:
The Sub-Conscious in as direct Proportion grows.

You see, my Monsignor,
Our constancy with dusk
And night and stars
And moon, and dark,
Silhouettes and caves,
And coves and caverns
Echoing:
With satyrs, fauns,
Graces and nymphs,
Mists, magic and beauty Separate and combined
And all the rest:
Read my lines
Chant my verse and Know the list –
You see, my Monsignor.

You do not speak, my Monsignor
But hear always Attentive in the ear:
Think so profound
Dream in the sub-conscious Smile at the civilization
Alternative
My Monsignor.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Consume

Dark liquid
Yet juicy
I Think that chemicals
Are in it:
No,
Not chemicals
Of the sun, the Seas, the environment,
But
In a smoky factory Developed
And I
I
I consume.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Continue

Continue
Continue on this plain
The game has started

I
I am searched and roughed
More than in wildest witch-hunts

O that I would fade in thin air!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Cool Airs

Cool airs
The day has been sad
The day has been as Of gloom Continues more
As it fades more
To its fading doom

Emmanuel George Cefai
Cool Waters

These waters are cool Cool are the waters here
So sit here by me if you
Will.
We will be speaking
Little
But more of thinking.

The day declines
The dusk and sun Fade slow
And lanky
And night will grow

Meantime the waters
More cool they get
As in the deepest well Level deepest

Emmanuel George Cefai
Cool Will The Sea-Spray Be On Our Skin

Cool will the sea-spray be on our skin
And long and beautiful the red dusks
And warm the sands beneath our feet
And the sea-waves will from their rage Calm the sea-beach with lullabies.

Corpus Of Verses

The whole corpus of verses
My friend read
The whole my Monsignor
You sing and chant
You have the whole day, Sir,
Not the Dawn only

Emmanuel George Cefai
Corrected By The Night

Corrected by the Night
I saw him fume
At having to work.

But then the stars Burning did some of His work.

And Night remained
All the same brilliant
All the same wild
And raw.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Cottage Blest For Work

A cottage blest for work Though tired
Though of dusk
A few poor embers
Burning
Over the poorer dust
But
They make warmth
And
The cottage with a homeliness Be blest
That a wise soul
Would say
’Here I will stay,
Not move at all Enclose myself in here
Let the winds howl outside And fire rains fall.’

Emmanuel George Cefai
Couldron Of Powers

a cauldron of powers is the Sub-Conscious
magic dispelled the puny offers of the Earth

the Sub-Conscious scoffed at its proposals politely

the Sub-Conscious has temporary Emphyteusis that comes each time between, in between it re-charges its mighty batteries.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Country Arise From Slumber!

Country arise from slumber!
With all the rest we go
And yet
We feel among the last!

This should not be, my countrymen!

From slumber open we our eyes
At least
After such sleep
A New Dawn will light our eyes Give its light to our eyes Country arise!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Country Throes

Through the country throes
The water torrents in Night’s desperate storm
It goes Bursting the field walls
Dancing
At lightning
Eager for fighting
The bending violets and Flowers that
Into the earlier dusk Shivered all wet
With the dusk dews that
On them cruel fell Haunting those silent-growing Glooms as with a spell!
Clutter of voices
Under a broken field wall
A posse of hedgehogs in Council.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Courage In The Backdoor

Courage in the backdoor
knocked
the ghost ship sailed
to the chants of shrouds by the shore:
and the night grew pale and the moon grew pale and the stars grew pale the cliffs, the hills, the coves the caves,
are those of the post-dusk, when red has gone into the night and its black curtain
courage in the backdoor
knocked
the ghost ship sailed
to the chants of shrouds by the shore.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Courage Of A Fading Day

To bolster up the courage of A fading day.

The white stars shone from heart
To fringe

Sad and heartbroken – Night Had put a mask on them

Night had instructed them
To smile

And so obedient servants the stars
Smiled

Yet behind every smile a broken Heart lay

As waned and faded the tired woes
Of day

Emmanuel George Cefai
Covered

Full covered With hair as the Sheep
I
I, the Poet Seer.

Ah! clothes!
The warmth of them
Is the scent of the Verses.

The glow of the face
Red, buxom, livid.
Is the heart of throbbing Notes Throbbing verses

Emmanuel George Cefai
Covert Brushes

In the covert brushes
The wind neighs
And the wind-driven Liquid sea rushes
Up the golden sand
And dashes
Leaping dolphin-like
Before
On the dry hinterland
And rocks of grey
It ancient crushes.
Even so
In my youth
I jumped
My genes were strong
My genes were budding
In to the throes of puberty
All
All smiled and gladdened
No blood
Through any wound seeped
Nor Horrid dream
At night in the Sub-Conscious peep
No
Wise owl laughed loud laughs
And
I stood perplexed Surrounded by the dark Surrounded by the night
I
Human Nor Blew the gelid winds to make More drear and sad
The sunset-scented pathways That no longer scent
No
No
No

Emmanuel George Cefai
Cradle

Cradle
Cradle of white snows
In the deep summer

Cradle
Of the thoughts
In the hand Captured
As we captured
The butterflies in boyhood

Bladder of throbbing
Hearts
Blood in the veins Ruptured

The night be long
The night be long
And weary

And there overhangs
A hummock
Cradle
Cradle of white snows
In the deep summer

Emmanuel George Cefai
Cradled In The Dust

Cradled in the dust
Almost
Almost amongst a cobweb My mother’s last Hair-comb
The white hair
I kissed
On my knees
I feel
And my hands trembled
I will not exchange
I will not exchange
Mother in the dust
Others more aged
Still
Breathe and live and smile
But
Your face red
And Lips of red
With tears

Emmanuel George Cefai
Cranberry Hill

A rivulet runs from it it goes down
down
from crag to crag

from frost to hill to fading from the drunken glory of zenith of the day at noon
to the frost's fading
and rising of the dusk
red
and the twilight seas and waters.

and
now
now in the frost abundance there's children
playing playing with the flakes at each other throwing the salt of earth's icy roots.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Crawling At Night

Crawling at night
I
Poet-Seer

Into the shadows
I walk
On my hands and Sing

Around me
Not so far
I hear rustling
Animals of the night.
And I sing

Emmanuel George Cefai
Creaking Door

Last night I could not sleep till after Midnight.

And I heard still even till after Midnight.

But then when one struck after Midnight

I heard creaking, a creak, at first,
Then more, after mid-night!

Aid me my Muse to withstand The fear that comes again
That I felt then, then After mid-night!

And bring another Dawn:
That braver may I grow As needs I be Against the creaking doors
The doors that started
Creaking
At one, and after mid-night!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Creaking Window

The creaking window
In
The dilapidated House
Clanked
And Clanked.

A violin
Was heard
To play
On wild nights
In that vacant House of cobwebs

Night walks over
The house Tiptoeing on The roof, half-falling.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Creep
The hours
Hour after hour
The days
Day after day
The nights follow Suit
The haunting bats Cry eerie
Breaking the putrid
Silence
Sending trembling
That shakes
The walls and windows
Of the sleeping houses
Of the sleeping city.
The town drowses.
Wealth power the rest Become irrelevant
And not just Relative.

The whirring of the clock hands Begins and continues Furiously.

Till
As with every reign
The brunt and heaviness Begin to weigh in Favor of another reign In to the solitudes of The darkness.

On the lake sad Charon
plies
an empty boat of no passengers not even a shroud or ghost.

For these Be inland lamenting Processions of Flambeaux and Singing.

The night drowses
Thinks sub-conscious Reasons sub-conscious Breathes sub-conscious

And around
The whispering of Small night conspirators
In favor of a coming Beauty And coming Dawn.
They whisper,
Whisper continually.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Crestfallen Heavens

Crestfallen heavens no more storms See the Dawn is but an hour near.
And both the skies and the stars clear.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Cricket That Sings

Cricket
That Sings
To-night
You
Sing
Of Love
I
Hear
As Poet Seers
Hear
And
From
You
I
Of
My Own
Love Think,
My love
Dear.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Crickets Calls

night of the moon
crickets calls are rising in one song of love they rise as emotion rises:
to-night
to-night
the alleys of the country with white dust
light
throughout the depth of night:
a chapel in the distance looms
small yet against the plain-cliff
rising:
in a silhouette
melting:
how silent is the silence here!
how sweet and noble to be here and stay as long as you wish
here!

Emmanuel George Cefai Cried

Cried
The red dusk Lining
In the marsh
The sickly marsh

Wading and waddling
A figure black
 Beginning of the night
The figure’s
Still Waddling in the marshes

Lone
And scared
The figure black Looks here and there
And the red dusk Fleeing
Cries Cries
Cries.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Cried the sad seagulls
Over the sandy sea
And
Rattled the skeletons
In the charnel house
Thunder broke out Rent
The Earth asunder

Emmanuel George Cefai
Criteria For Release

Criteria for release
From the spell of the Moon
The round and yellow moon
That was of yesterday
The yellow Moon that Froze
The flesh and bone and blood
Of all these silent humans Into statues as of stone Deep into silence.
The criteria were Lumped in a musty document Rolled up
Into the heavens and bound By threads of intermittent gold:
Dawn must be invoked
By holy monks all night
This night
To break the spell and Move these humans
To blood and bone
De-freeze them.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Criticize So Much

Romantic wench, travertine
Of sound and screams, And cries

We criticize so much, but Then
End wandering.

Our eyes float in the heavens
Amidst
Rotating planets.

Under a cape Woman marches With regular steps Measured by Probability and chance Developed by now
From chaos chance and probability.

Romantic wealth
All this
All this and you still criticize

Emmanuel George Cefai
Cross On The Small Mountain

On the small mountain
The Cross
Stood in the face Of gales and tempests.

The centuries passed Pilgrims in sacks of grey And bent heads Under the heaviness of
The years they bore.

As yet
Mourning by day silent
The Cross stood
And
In the night
A Satyr passing by Once in those distant Retreats
He heard sobs
He heard cries
He heard a broken heart
Of the Cross mourning.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Crowed

Crowed out aloud the morning cocks
For it was morning For it was dawn and they wanted to be first alighted by first light to show the All that they were first, supreme and great.

Only an aged Cock of Wisdom crowed
not
For he spent night contemplating the Wise Owls that on nearby bough sate themselves and heard their speech and learnt and now all tired to the other cocks he spoke
the cocks that crowed.

'Ah my friends, my relatives, crow not too much,
not too continous, without stoppages and rests, nor with the volume that you crow now.
For soon your brilliant crowing will after the first wave of enthusiasm be a common sound,
a jarring sound,
and you throats will be hoarse and day as all days turn from the first brilliant spurt to day of drear.'

Crucified On The Old Hill

Crucified
On the old hill
Above the open plain
The level rock
Of pain.

The chill
The frost of pain
That a whip wields
Made of dried figs Sere

Crucified
On the old hill
Above the open plain
The level rock
Of pain.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Crunch Below Our Feet

Crunch below our feet
The pale sere leaves
That had fallen that Very dusk before
Just hours before Took sway above Together with his elves
The night stars and Younger sister moon
I say – I assert – how Beautiful the plane port-waters Glide silver and straight
And
In them dolphin-like shadows Leap and dance from time to time
above
above
the fort shines with lights that come and go and fronting on the other side houses and humans sleep and the Sub-conscious reigns.
How beautiful the ancient town
The crackling bridge that sighs Of olden centuries and sights
Here
Here in this very place of us –
Sweet old Valletta!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Crushed

Crushed
Our naked feet
The thorns that trapped them
Yet
Though blood spurted out From here and there
The view of sea and ocean Before us Too tempting was
For Beauty
We would suffer thorns
In life
In us
And see before us
Suffering
The vast Ocean and seas Immense abounding Beauty and Venus on them
Walking:
And figures of gold Music to the ears
That thrilled enchanting:
And Blood from our feet
And
Blood from our feet.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Crystals From The Eye

From his eye he wept
But Instead of tears
Crystals came out Small fine dust
As tiny as dust
They came out rattling.

From the universe inwards Much that be, be sacred.
Yet there was who kept
A non-sacred hand.
In that mass universe...
In that mass universe...

For we are all sacred
And our bodies all
Be sacred
And our brains all be universes That be sacred
Then we must be treated As sacred
As sacred as we be.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Cuckoo Sings, Cuckoo Flies

The cuckoo sings
The cuckoo flies
Oft day
Rare night!

It earnest looks
To the star light
But that's too high
A heave - some sigh!

The cuckoo's heart
Is wounded yet
He flies with bats
This night
Tonight!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Cudgels On The Brain

the cudgels on the brain the sharp tongue, the written critique
the lack of appreciation, nay, no critique even
for when you have critique they speak of you.

and when they speak of you then you will not in oblivion be.

therefore as by reasoning syllogistic welcome critique, will it for it will from oblivion save you too.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Cunning Star

You speak not
Word.
Time passes
For you feel Around you
The gyrations
Of motions.
With Time you feel You feel Time
As a snake around you.

You have wisdom
That you got From centuries
No need of Evolved Brain
Just
Its equivalent.

Come! Come!
If Earth be on fire
Will you remain Cynical and silent Utter no word
Do no deed?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Cunning Words

cunning words
the life of thirsty things the cry of the night wolf the cunning of the thief who steals all, and the last beauty as good wine deserves.
I saw him in garbled clothes to kill the cold
but more than that
to hide him at the best for out of place was he where he know and knew he should not be.
but there he was.
I heard the clawings of a strange and savage beast
I heard the utterings wafted on the rain and winds
I heard them
I heard the frost crunch under the increase of cold I heard the blood congeal inside my veins
I heard the things of night all in a hum
and it was night
for it was night
and peace has by now left my Inner Soul, and exile went looking for more Sub-conscious in another land.
Yea! my Monsignor, open your eyes the Dawn comes soon to aid the owl presently wise.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let us this night
Take up
The cup of youth
Raise it high
High to the heavens Favorable and beaming
Skies:
And the sweet moon
On looking smilingly

For in our youth
Our years are little And in youth
The hopes of further Years spring
As from the seeds
The trees
As from the buds
The flowers.

We here are in youth
And
In youth our bodies Young Keen to reproduce Therefore Bring the wine
Around
The willing damsels Smile
Shoot arrows from Each eye.

Anon, anon the Night Passes:
We know
We know
But still young
Let us the few hours
That past mid night remain Enjoy and high
Our glasses raise And drink.

In Youth more to be Allowed than when The roasted body Sinks with crumpling Age and wrinkled lines Therefore let us together Celebrate:
Not stop, continue Till the sign of Dawn Drive us silent
From this happy place.

Green is the lawn
Not dark
For under the moon’s light
It beams
Glistens
Under the fierce star-light
And
The sweet presence of
The nightingales.

Ay song and wine
And beauty!
Girls your time too
Be come:
Made to reproduce
Your time be come
To do the noble task Becoming mothers Perpetuate our race
Into the further generations
When
Our ancient bodies fall Into the dug-up ground
With lessened trace.
Lo! The stars, the moon, King Night himself
Be all favorable
And Cupid with his darts Waits little behind.

And therefore Let us this night
Take up
The cup of youth
Raise it high
High to the heavens
Favorable and beaming
Skies:
And the sweet moon
On looking smilingly

Emmanuel George Cefai
Curdled Milk

And wanton mists
And flowered walls.

Thralls and secrets
Shrouds and ghosts
Tempest nights

Structures fall
Fears that nibble
The grass of hope.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Cure Blindness

Pass you
Through the verses:

You will cure blindness.

Destiny will weigh you
Down
But you arise.

I saw two lovers Kissing.

I see day Failing failing Failing Dimming lights
Fading
Beauty in pining
Beauty in fading.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Curled Were The Waves

Curled were the waves
the sea-borne waves and curled the mermaid hair

The hair of the golden mermaid

And sang that night it was a starless night and mermaids’ songs

Emmanuel George Cefai
Curtain Of The Sun As Not To Blind

Curtain of the sun as not to blind violin of lonely sadness-solitude band of the hedgehog and his gruesome friends garden of delight, shrinking at night star errant and from the other peers defiant portrait of old duchess seeping blood from her eyes on nights occasional cloud twilight and trembling, verve of coming night

the head
is cut

Emmanuel George Cefai
Cut My Hair

cut, cut my hair profuse it be profuse you cut my head will brave
the cold -
it will be as fire thrown amidst the glaciers and the blocks of snow detached in sea.... lyric stops so often stops yet that's a healthy sign and health I need it so - cut, cut my hair
profuse it be profuse you cut
my head will brave
the cold

Emmanuel George Cefai
Cutting Edge Of Crystal

Blinding light
Just in a Fading twilight
A heart that falls Yet rises to The nocturnal heavens
For the taste of immensity.
I will not protect you more You acerb goblin Too long, too long
I heard you
Hum a song
Though garlanded with green
You hop the lawn with wine And nymphs
Night after night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Cyclical

I know
The vespers in the heavens
The waters flooding
High
I know
I know

Cyclical
The days turn
One after one
The cliff edge near
Be
All suns have set
And Beauty is here
No longer
Nor strength
Nor wisdom clear.

Amidst the drear
That be of each day
Now
I
As a Poet Seer Versify and sing
My duty do In sacrifice
Though
Amidst the drear
That be of each day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dance

dance with light steps the night will only depth now the night will rise its head that be in shroud light steps to here light steps to there hopes are fires that alighted melt the frozenness of cold ah! dancing breaks the cold even the hardest snows
so must your words, my Monsignor

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dance Exquisite

You
Dance Exquisite
Though
Past
The Fifties Going
To
The Sixty
In A Few Days:
You
Dance
You
Dance Exquisite
Not Need
The Brilliantine
Creams
For Your Hair:
It still shines.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dance To The Magic Night

Dance
Dance to the magic night!

O!

There's yet little starlight
Though
Dawn be nigh!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dancing

Dancing
Smiling
Merry Waves
Merry
Smiling
Dancing
It be day
Dawn
Rising sun
Dancing
Smiling
Merry Waves

Now
With Clouded Face
And Frowning
I view
The decline
Frowning Static Sad-faced Waves
Pining
Pining
In Red
Dusk
Pining
Pining
In Fading day
Pining
Pining
Even so
We
We humans
pine Pine pine
When
The
Time
Be Come
For Pining:
All Inescapable
All Irresistible
All Irreversible
We Humans
Pine Ine
Pine
And
We Humans Fade
And fade Crumble
As A Monument
Once majestic
Crumbles
By centuries
Dust to dust.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dancing Nymphs

Night!

Dancing nymphs
On toes dancing
Dancing
Dancing
And
The fountain rises
High
Explodes water Bursts delight
And
It be night
And
The dancing nymphs Are still On toes dancing
Dancing
Dancing

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dancing Steps

I heard steps dancing and it was heaven's floor that rang with castanets and guitars in the distance.

Strings of harps and a flute occasional of waning and of swan song lamented.

At least to soothe my sadness in the twilight pride.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dantesque Dance

Spirits that dance
The Dantesque dance
The yellow dance
I said to be green rushes And wild palms and Rushes:
Naiads that sing sweet
And with Nightingales nocturnal
Keep the owls alert
You will keep Wisdom walking:
There were things
That floated the black sea
And troubled waves
Bearded and yellow-green
In the night
Through the tunnel underground
A whole crowd
Clustered all around
Spirits that dance
The Dantesque dance
The yellow dance
I said to be green rushes

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dantesque Gowns

Below the town
In Dantesque gowns
The spirits roam and Run
And dance
Below
The tunes be heard
But no, not above earth
Of asphalt Streets that suddenly Became nocturnal wry mouths Town that into a ghost Transformed and Re-transformed back to town
At Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dark Arab Horse

Ben-Taleb

Dark Arab horse
That froths and Rises high.

Restlessness be in you There's beauty to Thought married

I hear the sea-waves on The shore
You
Coming from the sands
And nearby sand-dunes
The stars are so away
That only light for your Restlessness
Be a smiling of moon's light.
Ben-Taleb!
Ben -Taleb
I hear the chains falling
You
Here Arabian music
On these beaches
And rushing seas
To-night!
See
Their glittering clanking
In to the night of dim Light and silhouettes
By the sea-shore's a-roaring Ben -Taleb the restless
high!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dark Comes Over The Eyes

when the dark comes over the eyes
then
you
will not versify
in
the bleak blank nor Hastings Gardens make joy in the eyes and sparkling wit of owls wise with old wisdom:
no, the earth will just rotate when the dark comes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In the dark light
Blind the spiders wove
And wove
The web of culture

And Dawn stopped not:
For they were as
Of the Dawn herself:
And so
Light of day
Even when the sweaty zenith
Had reached up to the sun

Then
In the fainting afternoon
They lazed
And sighed
As sunset clasped
Her belongings to go:
Sighed
More at fading of the day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dark Ocean

Look
Look over the rim
Of the dark Ocean
And
Of the Souls
That pass
Over the waves
And the Ocean bosom
One of these be mine
And lithe as the others Dances.
For what remains
So little be.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dark Well

In the dark well Simmered the night

A cock looked down
From up

A star reflected The image of the cock Non-crowing

Emmanuel George Cefai
Darling Of The Skies

Darling of the skies
Now
That it be dawn Lark
That flies
Minister of new day In the Cabinet of New Dawn.

Yesterday
You roamed amidst
The tombs
The monuments
Of the drear Cemetery.

Now Turncoat that you be
You fly Sky high Transformed
From the torch-bearer Ghost and shroud
And Shadow
Of last Night
Just
That.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dawn And Dusk A Wager Made

Dawn and Dusk a wager made
As to who would win the Poet’s favor-They contested together like friends - no envy Felt they - they are not human.
When Dawn the Poet arisen just It lightened up the brightness of its flame Burning like gas self-replenishing And ever-replenishing its flame:
Bright grew the face of heaven and on Earth
The thrill of happiness rings everywhere:
And to delight him more with magic wand Without a sound by words known to gods
She to Aeolus called and to her hied
The king of winds in russet baggage clad Wherein imprisoned winds at will he held.
The which seeing the ardent damsel
The King of Winds asked her, her favor She with sparkling eyes Begged him refresh the air more than it was:
No sooner prayer made than prayer accepts And the soft winds more mellower made The growing morn amidst the light of day That from the horizon’s edge grew and advanced:
A fringe of gold appeared and attached around The wavelets riding on the bosomed sea
And more and more the gold shone in the light As Phoebus smiled upon the merry scene At which the Poet pleased began to sing A song of mirth wherein as in a mirror fair
The fair resplendent world he painted full:
And on that wealth of pleasant lordliness
A crown imperial did he pile and stall When his emotions he unfurled full and all.
Happy grew the day; and happier grew The damsel Dawn and many an hour lay With locks all flying on the wafting breeze Unknown and un-espied by Poet’s eyes She on a crag unknown unseen did stand An oak that like a lord proportioned stood Hid her among his foliage green and thick: Thus lying she full many an hour stood Enchanted at the Poet’s song her bosom heaved Up and down with emotioned ecstasies Through she happiness felt as never before.
But time full expert is at stealth and soon
A growing heat, a humid temperature
The damsel Dawn felt growing up the crag Wherein she stood from sight sheltered:
As when the serpent turns around his prey
And with contortions wild and strong it holds The hapless victim is in its strong press
So did the heated vapor turn round the Dawn
And as the hanging icicles from down the trees In woods where owls by night do haunt and hide At sight of warming rays of Phoebus’ car Melt first a little with the first drops and then Drop after dropp falling melting all So Dawn did melt in the hot grasp Of her unwanted love, the mist of day.
And where stood she a few dew drops remained Of all of her and fed the violets That on their stalk stood up to welcome day.
Full soon the Poet rose and stopped his song
And with full heart and fair went down a hill
And there he went his home and dreamt a dream:
The day arose and glaring shone the wheels Of Phoebus’ car as faster sped they on.
As in defiance of Jove’s mighty reign.
Amid the heats and turmoil of a summer’s day
The Poet dreamed and rose
When the afternoon with retreating steps Descended a small hill that looked to west.
Full subdued was his look; and in his eyes
The fire of the morn no longer shone;
But full instead a tear in his eye shone
And twinkled like a star down Saint Anne’s way.
Grey grew the vault of heaven; and the air
A cooler shade assumed; the flowers bent Their raised heads all more yet to the ground
No longer in its face the ruddiness Of the merriness of day when they drunk
The golden wine of Phoebus as he passed Nearer and nearer warming from his car
And rallied they in wondering ecstasy That in the laze of surfeiting afternoons did pass.
Sang the Poet and his lyre tuned
The notes the Muse inspired by magic wand No merry tune they gave; but full instead A sober shade of gloom as midst the trees Of olives green and thick and foliaged full
The white-robed seer in slow steps slowly paced.
There was yet in that sadness a swift note That tasted of happiness never before And as the grey with more grey tinct the skies
The song full sadder rose and mellower.
Dusk came transparent in his airy car
And from behind the Poet’s form he heard His song and in his eyes appeared A tear his emotions welled and made:
Gods weep as we frail humans do.
Of wars and loves lost and forlorn
The lyre strung and sung;
Till redder grew the fringe of firmament
And far above the north star shone alone.
And sadder grew the song and wilder strung
The Poet’s lyre and redder the firmament Till with a pencil of dark a veil appeared With full advancing step towards the Dusk.
At which full startled Dusk bethought him To go and so to depart did he prepare.
With shy retiring step the Dusk betook himself Unto a hidden knoll and there the Dawn In a faldetta garbed waited -
As when in our country fair in centuries past
The women did their modesty promote by garb Dark thick and folding so the Dawn
In her enfolded garb lay as the Ind Within the turbaned sari coloured lies.
At which the Poet noticing
He took the hands of Dawn and then of Dusk And with them joined his hands in amity And with tears in his eyes thus wisely spoke:
Sweet Dawn, fair Dusk my friends,
Both of you in the contest for my palm Have lost and won, for in poesy
You both induced me and fanned by Muse
There is no exact weight in Poesy
By which to cut and draw the lines
And if this be done, then proportionally Will Poesy be the loser of this deed.
Therefore my friends you both have won
And gladdened me with your deeds and stance.
So said the Poet; then the Dawn and Dusk Looked into the other’s eyes approving full And with some token they want to thank But the Poet moved his hand and further spoke Thank me not my friends for all of us Are debtors and creditors full reciprocal And our friendship must needs ever be That thus I in my lines will place
The friendship of us three in to eternity.’
So spoke the Poet and then he bade them come Down that green knoll for dark was gathering And in the sky strange birds and sounds were seen:
And so they hied them that long night Unto a merry tavern
And there they had a meal and after that They to each other drunk a toast And joining them fair Bacchus full himself With all his merry fauns and satyrs went Unto that tavern proud anon he heard That the Poet was there in that long night.
And all together they made merry there And drank and toasted: never more plenteous Did wine brim burning from the pitchers cool Or more foamy from the making smell.
But that long night, that long night is now far And into centuries long full lost and hid As into a vast wood of million trees
The searcher looks for one and finds it not:
But Dawn still rises in the merry morn
And with her locks refreshes the soft day And wipes the wounds of Earth and men Reviving by her kiss the loss they made;
And Dusk, sweet Dusk, still red, Paints the plain heavens soft and sad
And many a lover to this day and more Pines in sweet Dusk and loves.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dawn Come Away

dawn come away
said the Poet Seer come with me leave a drear day for me to sing and chant
and versify
And Dawn went with the Poet Seer

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dawn easily qualifies as one of my mistresses.

Mistresses of the flesh yield pleasures of the flesh.

Mistresses of the flesh yield children-products of the flesh.

But Mistress Dawn yields children too.

Thought, ideas, verses, dramas, songs, epics, all, civilization.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dawn Is Dancing

Dawn is dancing
Waves be smiling
And
The fort and bastions Waking!

Far away
The first sea gulls Flying
Flying
Crying
Crying

I
I, alone
Pace Hastings Gardens
Pensive, sad, and wandering, Hopeless, desperate, fading
I,
I alone!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dawn Is Far Away.

Dawn is far away.

Call her to the shores
At least
Though it be night.

And cold.

Dawn Waking

In the Dawn
Waking
The grasses Stirring

The hill Freezing
In the light
Not of stars Lighting.

The scene has Changed.
A New Act begins.
The play continues.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dawn Wanted To Celebrate Her Beauty

Dawn wanted to celebrate her beauty
she therefore a secluded beach chose and on the strand she lay in beauty statue of the sea, the spume, the morning salt.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dawn Was White Today

Dawn was white to-day
so white though green
the seas
and the Ocean away fretted with billows white and large and chilly clouds the heavens lined with drear of new drear day

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dawn Will Not Change Me

Drear
Drear
Dawn will not change me
In bed I lie resigned
A sigh
Not even to a groan
The wounds are Too many Beleaguered Soul
That suffers and groans not.

Dawn, Beginner Of The Day

Throughout beginning, Dawn, beginner of the day I heard a sound of gnats
Walking.
Your Zeus descended in a posse of mists Snows from the breasts of Patagonian mountains Scenting of the immensity of Himalayas.
Everest was there with circles of Puny mists around its Eastern crown.
Your Zeus be everywhere.
All rays, all light, tremble and Vibrate
Shrink to line relative and Tremulous filament.
Now day begun, the first sun rays Trumpet the coming of Helios And the Earth grows warm Stir the grasses, rushes, trees
And the birds on the wing They hop as kangaroos of the Heavens immense.
The water unloose their chains
In open revolt.
You rise, you walk, magnificent Object of Beauty, Subject of Soul resplendent with Every pace studied and Majestic.
Now day has begun though it be Drear and humdrum
Your presence lights it.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Day After Day

Day after day around the Water-mill of life we go As donkeys.

Yet were are happy so.
Yet we are honored so.
Thinker deep laugh wise.

Round, round, round,
The mill stone of Time Grinds the centuries.

You love the donkeys.
We humans go like them
In the respect described.

And that is no disrespect
But honor for us Humans and donkeys.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Day And Sunlight

You will not come with me, for I go in to the night

And you dwell in the day and in the sunlight

you dwell in light and see the
dark

I go to the night to dwell in dark and see light

fierce ring the lights of the scalding stars

the snow on the scary mountains melts and drip from crag to crag you see, my Monsignor, we are in a new civilization

calculate again, my Monsignor, calculate and come here with me, here be new thoughts, new sites, new sights, new deeds

Emmanuel George Cefai
Day In The Life Of A Cloud

Cloud fluttering in the heavens Sinking
Sinking
Sinking
But ah! the heavens have depths
The heavens have lure
The heavens yield Wanton temptresses and Yielding mistresses.

In the day of clouds that frowned
A cloud had to follow
What? Would it be ostracized?

No, no, no.

Towards noon, the Sun we blocked And in the zenith of the day We frowned
I frowned
We frowned.

And then in the afternoon we did Not reduce our black faces.

The more the day declined
The more we competed Between ourselves in Blackening of faces.

Frowning immensities in more Immense heavens!

Deterrents of joy, then as the Day declined
As our nerves and muscles Started to tire:
There came to our aid
Of a general tempest the ire
The thunder rolled
And then it light Light after light
Hoar, frost, rain
Lighted the infernal fire!

How below us
People as ants hurried Hither and thither
To their places:
Doors closed
Houses lighted: And we,
We,
Frowning immensities in more
Immense heavens!

Then as tempests replaced us
We retired
Into the general claxon
Of the orchestra of fire
The tempest night
The dark
The ire.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Day of dripping rains
When the heavens Cut off their chains So broken-hearted were So dark and black they saw
Day of dripping rains.

Along the distant main Horizon and sea together lock In one drear muddy green Bosom that moves with Spurts of white waves between.

Drooping a figure Black over The Port alone and weeping
A Shadow from the Past With hidden chains sweeping The asphalt road before Saint Anne’s Bastions: Drooping a Figure Black Drooping.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Day Stirs Slow.

Day
Stirs slow.

Already
The early cocks
Stopped singing

Already
The first birds
That chirped
Are throat-parched

Already
The sweet cool of freshness
Is
By the raw hands of uncouth Sacrifice
Tainted

Emmanuel George Cefai
Daylight Power Grandeur

There be a whole civilization
Other than our civilization Of daylight power grandeur:
Nay
More than one civilization.

There be civilizations
In ever-increasing number Heard me the Earth say And sing and chant.

And I saw restless Earth Stir more relaxed
Stir less yearning Less in groans

The statue of the Earth Grew in stature
With every new civilization
And in humility
Seeing thus in this
Of grandeur nay
Of civilizations themselves
The relativity

Days After Days After Days Are Lost.

Days after days after days Are lost.

Life bleeds.

The calendar pages

How long my Monsignor?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Days Dawn

Days dawn
But over your grave
Drear Sorrow always sits Never abandoning:
For Light at night
Up in the heavens
The glad stars Looked silent and In awe
Father
My father
For light by you
In the quiet cemetery
The tiny glow worms glistened
And the tread of Bony phosphorus:
Left quiet to itself in those Rare hours:
Yet with the other Spirits Not ranging far Far from destined site Of resting
You talked and whispered Only Poet Seers will view Only Philosophers and deep-browed Thought understanding feel.
And
When the glory of the day
New day Erected itself from the pains of Nursing
You were still there not Fugitive round Earth:
For then you feared not nor Had to fear.
For in your sweet sorrow
At all day’s routine hours In succession striking
For you my father Days dawned
But over your grave
Drear Sorrow always sat
Never abandoning.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Days Within Cycles

the days within cycles stand.

and these cycles in other cycles wend.

So cycle in cycle cog in wheel together.

The kiss and then the other kisses too be these not cycle?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dear Dawn

Dear Dawn
Upon a pole I saw your head impaled.

Dear Dawn
These days carnival will be soon.

Dear Dawn
These days will be My heart-break

Two years ago
Two days from now
I lost my mother dear Dawn.

Dear Dawn
My eyes weep not; my heart
If her crying were transformed Would make full hollow eyes
And ghastly dark
Dear Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dear One

To you dear one whose look is sweet but eyes are sweeter far then those unpainted lips in their full beauty sweetness increase;
your cheeks if else be beauty's shrine your cheeks of beauty are a temple great and your sweet manners these beauties preside as on a queen a crown Ah! my diadem! you cost less being willing than the costliest;
but being coy at times
you will cost infinite

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dear One,

Dear one,

I am sorry to hear the bad news about your colleague.

Probably it will be a sad new poem (from me).

Here it is cold weather too but not as in your country.

I am not very happy with cold weather and winter weather.

I always and often get flu.

But the worst tragedy is that last winter took away my mother.

Kisses

Emmanuel

Deciduous Forest Crown

Deciduous forest crown
On my head Emperor with the votes
Of verse
And enchanting of
The crowds
With song and chant.

Marbles and founts
Walking of fire Waters of magic Fountains: Eye that lonely and Detached runs
Swift after a swifter Eye: quarrel in the Night.

Deciduous forest crown
On my head Emperor with the votes
Of verse
And enchanting of
The crowds
With song and chant.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Decline Of A Sun

The sun declines
The sun declines my love

The dusk be near Come press more
To me and Let me kiss
Your lovely face

Now
I want that universe
Only:
The wealth and power
Of all the earth and
Of all history
Have melted in just Your first kiss
And melting in My arms, my love
My love.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Deemed Joy, Liquid From Graves That Seeped

Deemed joy, liquid from graves that seeped

In early morning all they saw a shroud walking.

And then round the corner turned it in the Cemetery

For after all it was in its city.

And the Poet Seer was foreigner from the upper city.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Deep

Deep
Deep
You have to be

In Thought you Have to be deep
And the more
Deep
The more Whet
Your appetite.
And
With Beauty
The same song Same cast
My Monsignor

Emmanuel George Cefai
Deep clad mists Oranges that fork Tongues
Waters that seep
From dangling water-melons:
Mists that weep
Gloom-clouds that rise Slow above a red horizon: Above all these Thought with a scepter and a Crown
Reigns smiling

Emmanuel George Cefai
Deep In The Night

The ghosts and shrouds
Gathered together.

They had marked on a paper
The graves and tombs
They willed to visit.

They had a whole night
Hour after hour:
In that hoar dark of The sleepy cemetery!

Till a grey line in The curtain of the heavens Drove them away:
The ghosts and shrouds.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Deep Night

Deep night
The more it deepened
yesterday
The more wild
The more its eyes
Had beauty of Beauty's own child.

In Beauty's hands
The breath of whispering
Nocturnal Passes over every wall and Thing
Over closed eye-lids
And Tempts all to dream
Sub-conscious!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Deep, Deep Night The Eyes Of Injustice Close

Deep, deep night the eyes of injustice close
For how injustice hurts, such a disease Of pain and aching heart
That needs of drugs such dose!

O I rhyme, but the rhythm counts.

O I versify, but my heart counts.

For then
My heart speaks.

And when my heart speak the heavens speak.

Aloud.

Aloud.

And my poor heart, the poor heart frees Itself from the clutches of injustices.

Give me a heart that is sad,
Never mind, the sadness,
But a heart that reads well
By a mere glance the heavens.

Just that.

Just that.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Deep, Deep Soul

Deep, deep soul
Of thunder.

Deep, deep, waters
Cool, nocturnal.

Night walks in the woods Deep, deep, deep

Barefooted thinker of the night
Shunning star and light.

Ancient moon of centuries Small lake exploding bright
In the livid restless night.

Aloud, aloud the horn
Of plenty and of mug
From the fields ale is born.

Bleat the sheep to-night
Spying through chunks moonlight.

And in the old Meseta plain Fall dews of night and rain That magic mists transforms.

Deep, deep soul
Of thunder.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Deep, Deep, Too Deep

After the vesper
The dark of night
Deepened with storm
With tempest:
Trembled the village
Tossed in their beds
The restless villagers
Centuries ago,
Centuries ago, my Monsignor.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dejected In My Room

Dejected
In my room
A Voice sudden
Said:

Replied: ‘Cannot I suspend

Dense Bushes

Peering Peering through the dense bushes
My eyes met on the other side Of the same bush
A couple of other yes Couple to couple Human eyes to goblin eyes
And we
We stared into each other’s eyes Fear lasted in the goblin’s
Eyes
As with a jump and shout of Dread
He out of the bushes

Depression made up hiccup words so I hiccupped
words
and had depression

Emmanuel George Cefai
Depression, My Monsignor

Depression, my monsignor
is when you lose and you lose then misery remains and tragedy
and famine
and then
top of the pyramid age and sickness.
So happened to a Poet Seer.
And he ceased singing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Descendants Of The Duchess –

So he said
And his voice resounded in that vast hall
As the sea waves that enter and leave Caves and bays and coves
When the high winter tempest the sea moves.
Along the hall, along the walls, my eyes Scoured painting ancient one by one None moved, no sound, but stared
And there was thought in that staring We (I and the portraits)
We communicated as by reciprocal glaring:
The sea-waves move; the brain waves Move; the wave – currents move;
Here and there
The descendants were not here
But all around the world, the country:
Destined for an Earth a planet that will shrink And melt in to its own fires in a wink
When the Time comes
When the Time comes:
And
With it wither, all, all of humans, ‘Amongst all’ the descendants of the old Duchess All comprised:
Then will her portrait rattle in its throes:
Ah! all of us humans are as the painting
Of our noble Duchess:
All destined for paintings if we get to them That most:
In our descendants the rest, from thence Down the giddying path of an extinction with The planet.
That’s where we go: so far
A human who reproduces does surpass A human who does not so reproduce.
And
If he bothers to see his descendants Work, toil, and broil
Then the equation further changes, Sir.
But
Let us revert to the old Duchess,
The old painting –

Emmanuel George Cefai
Descends Today

How fast the sun descends
Descends today
Over the rice fields.

How wan the dusk not As red as always:
Not as yesterday.

Ah! things change and change
From day to day
How fast the sun descends its way.

Desert Panes

Desert panes
Glimmers and mirages
I like them
For in dote
On mirrors of life!

Desert music
Lingers
In the distance
Then sudden springs
Louder Louder Louder
As with loudhailers Growing
Growing
Growing Desert music Lingers
In the distance
Then sudden springs

There's a dancer
A girl
That on her tiptoes
Turns
Thyat in veils transparent Turns Turns Turns
And There's a Poet Seer
Who in one hand holds A violin and plays
Then lays Down the violin
And the fair lyre Strings
Dancing and verse
They fly
They thrill

Desire

on hand Desire - the early morn
the fire that not of
night -
rotten mists neither scenting nor smelling - pause after pause-lyric sub-divided - pants and bosom falls and rises - I see Love rise in you slow and sensual -
'I go' you said -
'So early' - I
'Yes for the Dawn calls me and with Dawn Venus be I will return my Love for you more beautiful for your enjoyment-enrooted to the earth by chains I have to be set free by some Prometheus to follow you - days pass quickly - quickly, quickly pass
then disappointment occurred night on fire bed of sighs
and only desire.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Desire To Versify

Ah! In me
There's desire Desire
To Versify
And Sing

It Must
Not Be Stopped

It

Water-fountain
That Gushes
Gushes
Eso
The
More
Age
On It Passes
More
It Grow
May
I
Be Like
it!

Desolate And Ramshackle

Desolate and ramshackle
At night
How fear rises in The spine
As the ramshackle windows
Rattle
Proportionate direct
To every gust of wind
They rattle.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Despair

Delight was often Rare as yet:
 Majority of despair;
Tyrant.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Desperate Spirits night of the desperate Spirtis

me
in let
me march
with
you lead protest after protest in the silent cemetery where no permis need nor police cordons hold nor a State reigns.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Desperation

desperation
the cry - the screams the vase of the heart that breaks
into fragment after fragment

dark
dark dark

a man solitary and broken hearted walks on the bare streets
and the chains
rattle
rattle
rattle as of desperation

Emmanuel George Cefai
Desperation Children I See Weep

Of desperation
And in desperation
I have breathed such

Benighted
I walk in the lonely
Nights

My hair on end
My eyes are wild

I see children and I weep

And Think of a cliff
So steep
That desperation
However much attempt I Throws me down and
Down
Ah! desperation!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Desperation Does What Long Years Do Not Do.

Yet desperation must be extreme.

Yet once its fire be as wild as to Do all Reckless of calculation and of Cost
Then desperation acts itself Either to a tragedy or To glory.

Both and either redemption are.

And preferable more extreme
The desperation

Emmanuel George Cefai
Desperation In The Eyes

There's Desperation in the eyes
Despite
That before us
Life brought the menu
That she herself Wrote for us:

Emmanuel George Cefai
Desperation Is Descended

Desperation is descended
Thus
That twilight turned to
Red
The waters cried
The heavens cried
The hammer on the brain
The heart wrung cried
What more?
What more, my Monsignor?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Desperation Made Up Go Up Stairs And Down

To feel the legs no more as legs of wood.
To feel the slow but sure motion of suffering.

Though suffer I, my mother hold I suffering.
My suffering is hers, hers my suffering Hers too my hope, and mine her hope.

To suffer, to think, to hope, to despair:
All these together with emotions more Together war and churn inside my Soul.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Destiny And Shambles

Mistake after mistake
My lot Destiny
And Shambles

Young
I dreamt so much!
Yet Working and Laboring
All days
All weeks
All months
All years
See
See the shambles!

My whole body
And brain
Tell me
To go where I hide Permanent from My shambles

Emmanuel George Cefai
Destitute

destitute of love what Soul will front the fear-ghosts of Earth bravely?

destitute of love ah! sigh upon sigh not just the Soul but brain and heart and body!

the blind man and the blind lass of love be blind
but not of love destitute nor of their bravery!

Emmanuel George Cefai

Emmanuel George Cefai
Detach My Soul

I want to detach my Soul
But is be hard.

I want To go away
Fly
Beyond even Sub-Consciousness.

I Want
I will
That even my Sub-Consciousness Lies on the road unmoving.
I want
I will
To throw myself away Here on this road My mask even

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dews Of The Night

The dews of the night
A Spirit mischievous
As they fell
He caught them in a Cauldron
Floating high in the Clouds: Warmed them with his Breath passionate Warmed them to Steam of the skies
In the heavens of
The night
Funereal
Mourning
Sights

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dialogue

There came a dialogue.
It was Between me and
My Monsignor.

Said my Monsignor:
'Why sing you not today?
It is nine in the morning.
Dawn has been up -
And melted
Into the day,'

Said I:
'I sing when the Muse Wants.
When she wants
She warms my heart,
She goads me
And
Then she kisses me that My tongue with mellow-versed Words burst forth.
And that's the song.
And that's the verse along'

Said my Monsignor:
'Then has not the Muse Kissed you today? '

Said I: You will have Answer when you hear Me sing.'

Emmanuel George Cefai
Did They Not Say

Did they not say
That the Winter is colorless?
They depict him as hoar that is
White.
And white is a mixture of colors.
You can call him a mixture of colors.
You can call him a rainbow of suffering.
You can call him a rainbow of pain.
You can call him a rainbow of tempests.
But to give color to suffering and pain
And tempests?
For did they not say That Winter is colorless?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Did You Hear This Night

Did you hear this night
The gelid icicles falling?
In a golden warmth
I buried my sorrow
In a golden warmth
My misery entombed:
For a few hours of that dawn
Now a night of horror Awaits me as the day unfolds.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Different Souls In Counsel

I am in counsel.

With my different Souls
we
at a counsel table in a council room
all ours
sit together.

We,
I and my alter-Egos to each other speak equivalent of the I in monologue.

Our souls
jitter their teeth.

Still
we
I
here
I and my alter Egos sit now in fear
now
reviving little:
discoursing grave
with anxious faces
there
is a heavy smell of strong stresses
With my different Souls
we
at a counsel table in a council room
all ours
sit together.
Dig Deep In The Earth

Dig deep in the earth
It be of fairies' the berth:
Dig deep, dig deep,
The earth is fraternal:
Now is New Year's day And it is still Like to a baby imbibing
With the spirit of Christmas Day and New Year's Eve!

Emmanuel George Cefai Dilapidated All Things, My Things

I know
I feel my morale
Dip
My conscience
Numb
My brain in icicles
I feel

Ah! time has passed
So much
So much of time
And Though I sing
Age delved in me.

Civilization alternative
I yearn for A sun has set And early
And
More suns set
As sand
That slips from hand
One by one fall Dilapidated all things
My things
Ah! time has passed
So much
So much of time
And Though I sing
Age delved in me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dilapidated Building

In the corner
Of dilapidated building
He stood at night
Singing through his teeth
And suffering
Yet Fear came near Tried not to back Failed:
And
In the corner
Of dilapidated building
He still stood at night
Singing through his teeth

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dilapidated House

Dilapidated Dilapidated house
We Celebrate Father's Day
Your day Father
In it modestly:
It be a house
As fit for trysts
Of ghosts and shrouds.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dim Eyes

dim eyes that peer through the dim veils
that light
and dance
transparent light blue before the red dusk:
ah! for these moments!
so rare
in many a sojourn
so rare!
one moment even worth a whole sojourn!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dim My Eyes

Mother Dim my eyes

Mother
Mother
Dim my soul

Mother
Mother
Heavens frown

Yet from midst the roar of clouds
Yet
From midst the din of storms
Yet
From darkness of horror nights
From amongst the horrors
Loud
You come forth Bursts as the sun Smiles of love!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dim The Light

Dim Dim the light
Of my fading
Day
Dim
My spirits
My Soul
My Inner Soul
And Parched
The Sub-Conscious Blinded
The Conscious
Dim
Dim
Dim

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of diminishing returns
I Now experience
In verse and song
The Muse
First frowns
Then
Cries
I Stand before her
As statue of stone

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dimming Mists

Dimming
Mists
Snows Brimming
With Night-lights Peaks
That jut
high
and giddying
above the hideous heights
to depths
of mountains.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dip In The Waters

Dip in the waters
They be frosty
There’s a wraith
I spied from Nix Mangiari steps.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dirage Of A Closed Night

dirge of a closed night of a closed vesper time and florid dusk:
there were waters
flowing flowing a little
high into the fountain of
the dusk
and in the compressed eyes of sad
compressed:
you will not go
alone nor will you go without me:
let my voice and verse the dirge terminate for it be sacred
and sacred the Voice that chants

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dirge For The Past

Dirge for the past - I

Freed from its chains
At last!
Time has slipped Alas!
And
From my fingers Slipping
I still see
The sliding grains of me

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dirge Of The Verses Few

Dirge of the verses few Much thought although And much emotion
Dry your eyes
Furrow your brows
You be a ghost now.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Discover The Seas

Discover the seas now
the waters
burn in the sun
the surface only the deeps run cool and fresh from day's beginning:
hang
up the straits
sing
sing
sing
the morn is risen the waters sparkle the lark on its wing the first bough rustling through thickets green animals are bustling
in their first conjunction with the Conscious after cutting off the umbilical chord from the Sub-Conscious reign. discover discover discover the verses now,
today
will they flow more than they did yesterday?
Ah! as snows melting they slide in glee

Emmanuel George Cefai
Discoveries The Thrills

Of discoveries
the thrills
why they were large and laughing:
they were
binding of the trees the woods the rare but quick non-restive thunder at night
and suddenly the crack the heavens explode
no harm is done Bless!
the houses and the streets and woods and lakes and hills below are all safe and untouched
and all subconscious
dream

Emmanuel George Cefai
Disheveled Hair

the slow stars disheveled hair delirium of a vale
night of bacchanalian
greetings from a ghost

I too saw clanking
I too heard clanking
clanking

the verses experiment
themselves
let them!

iconic star image of foxes that bay at night caverns stiff chill and blue-tinted herbs of poison magic

the verses walk the verses talk the night hides in a cape
disheveled hair
delirium of a vale
night of bacchanalian
greetings from a ghost

Emmanuel George Cefai
Disheveled Life

Disheveled life
Breathing as worms breathe Gothic nocturnal bell That rings vesper-like Though vespers be well passed.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Disjointed Pieces, Bits Of Torn

Disjointed pieces, bits of torn
And butchered flesh, strewn randomly Around a battle field of smoking dun:
These, these present verses, so I willed So my Muse willed dictating to my mind Sub-conscious all unconsciously:
She led me to the desert, and there Parched and burnt
I asked her for her water which she gave I imbibed it without a look at it:
And in the night the cold fell from the skies
And in the night the desert vultures came And in the night the desert wolves did howl And in the night the desert strangeness came Appearing like a mist, a restless ghost:
And in the night the cold fell from the skies.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dismay

Dismay
place her away!
place her in stocks:
be it
not enough the world's and Earth's dark woes?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Distance Is A Prayer

Distance is a prayer
For Each minute of walk be suffering
And
Is not suffering a prayer?

The city wakes
The city sleeps Then wakes again
The city.

I saw them putting up
A monument in the city
And it was Dawn
As usual.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! Youth sweet youth!
When we much younger were How clearer the vision stood When we at the fields looked Or trod the summer sea
With oars and paddled boats Or else swam in low depths And basked on the warm sand In some half-hidden cove Along the rock hewn coast Of Circe’s silent isle
A-dreaming in the dusk
Its long, long years of past.
With closed eyes were we A-dreaming and a-musing Without a thought a whim Of fathering our children:
And now and now
A pair of ruddy legs I see
Is this my child to be?

Ah! What strange convolutions Gray thought when drunk With red and warm-lit wine Goes through!
What secret passages Throughout the brain
Zig-zag in its hewn rock Adown the humid earth
It looked child’s play Or some snakes and ladders Through long lost years Of silent history
In fetters bound
And striving for its liberty:
With its lithe hands and feet
A child’s lithe struggling hands
A pair of struggling feet
I seem dimly to see
Is this my child to be?

Turquoise and shining pearls
And Eastern amulets
From the deep ocean seas
Of Indian oceans stolen And glittering necklaces
Of some Valois princess:
And mirrors brought from Crete To shine and all display In damasked Venetian halls:
And all that beauty thinks And all that beauty finds Does come into my eyes
And your sweet face methinks I see
Is this my child to be?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Do Not Come Evil Night And Keep Away

do not come evil night and keep away:
my breast burns its hot temperature keeping both love and lust away:
and in their stead
and in their stead
disease and shame and sin have drifted in their bed.

Do not come evil night my eyes Are painted with dark evil lashes pharaoh-like:
And in my shrine
Thoughts evil fester and abound and multiply:
Suspicions, dreads, and dark thoughts Beset me with disease and shame and sin

And in this hovel my brain has arrived To its delirium heat and roams and yearns Like a fool’s idiot basking in the sun Or like a violet withering in the first And chilly touching of the reddening dusk;
Thoughts evil fester and abound and multiply Suspicions, dreads and murder-thoughts
Beset me with disease and shame and sin.

And in this dreary hovel nay at times
I find contentment, sparks of happiness, High peaks and ledges followed by the drops
That lower fall each time, each dropp arrives:
Thus illusion and delirium work my brain Thus they plot both my overthrow and ready With daggers are.

And in this hovel has my brain arrived In this delirium my eyes wander as lost stars Falling like shooting stars down the hard face Of the silent heavens in cool autumn nights
That pale their looks with night o’er the seas.

I yearn, delirium rises and I see Its dagger ready.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Do Not Come Here

Do not come in Do not Come here
Here tragedy
Has made her Home
And breeds.
Do not come in Do not Come here

Emmanuel George Cefai
Do Not Come In

Do not come in Do not Come here
Here eyes weep
And Weep not.
Here Pining lights
And wanes.
Here tragedy
Has made her Home
And breeds.
Do not come in Do not Come here

Emmanuel George Cefai
Do Not Press Me

Do not press me
Do not press me
With time.

Now I have aged
Now weakness reigns
In my limbs.

I think mistakes
I made and made Into oblivion
Of mistakes the cumulus
Will make me fade.

The day is done
The life is closed
All youth is fled.
The book is read.

Do not press me
Do not press me
With time.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Do We Not Dream

Do we not dream
And Dream to dream
We,
All?

Challenge
People of the Earth
What you have heard
Before
What has been chanted
To you
Before
As the fakir song to the Bedazzled snake

Do we not dream
And Dream to dream
We,
All?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Do We Sleep?

do we sleep?
do we wake always?

At night we dream
so in sleep we wake.

And in the morning tired sinews sleep sub-conscious and secret while the body machine works.

We wake and sleep and sleep and wake and march
together a cluster and a herd we march
we march conscious in part sub-conscious in part always, always.

We, who are we?
It is the I, myself!
We is I.
We is I, the Poet Seer.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Do You Remember

Do you remember
When the coasts roared With angry waves and Spumes?

White were the roars
And angry
Solemn plained
The winds over a snow less plain Where the rocks harsh Stood in their parch ness still

And
Over the horizon slowly Faded a vague eye of mists And waning spells

Emmanuel George Cefai
Does Evolution Go Back

Does Evolution go back asked the Monsignor?
Said the Poet Seer:
Yes, at times, not always, rare,
Transforms, is transformed,
But it be Evolution

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dogs That Bark At Night

Dogs that glide Hounds that speed
So much
I heard the hoot of the owl
I heard the amorous nightingale
Then the dogs blew:
I saw the owls clustered together
And a few nightingales
But of the dogs only heard
The sound.
And that was all
But that was enough
Just
For my Sub-Conscious.

Door that knocked Yet no hand knocked Door that creaked
Yet no hand drew Door that slammed
Yet no hand slammed Ah! all this in the Nights of winter!

Down Cranberry Drive

Down Cranberry Drive
We went Tiptoeing
In the early night
On crunching leaves Betraying their sere state
We went Down Cranberry Drive
We went.

The Waters
A Little Away
In
The Cool Coppice
Rose
And Fell Fanned
By
The Excited
Lust
Of
The Artesian
Well
That
In
The Bottom
Lay
The spring
Of rising
For in Cranberry Drive For from Cranberry Drive
The moon though half-moon
To-night
We saw Glistening and Rising
More wonderful
As the clouds moved
Slow.
That was In Cranberry Drive.

And I will dream here
To have dreamt once
At least once in Cranberry Drive
before the breath goes out this very night in the excitement of the parting.

For here
The scent of strawberries
Suddenly arose
As they awoke
To compete with the Cranberries
In beauty and in scent
Here
The scent of strawberries
Now far Now drawing near
Yet
Always in it
Be
The intoxicating scents
Of dreams and liberty
And verse and song
And wine
And Bacchanalian lassitude
This night
This night
This night of magic Here in Cranberry Drive.
Here.

Down Raspberry Hill Went We

Down
Down Raspberry Hill went we
For going down be easy
And sportive to the feet
The hues we passed the surprised Animals the snoring plants
We met down on our way Made us run and jump astray
As goblins going downhill Would that all humans spend The whole and sacred day Going down
Going down
Just going down
Raspberry Hill.

Drama Of Verses

In the drama of verses I saw more than in the drama of life for I saw very little of rote.

open the door - let in the night winds and the night ghosts and shrouds - in their company you will pass your
sadness.

do not grumble about destiny - no, do not - let it steam-roll it takes where it wants we must obey and with bent heads go down the stairs of the stage when Destiny decrees the drama finished.

Draught

The draught
The ice
That fell
The dew drops
Nocturnal in the icicle

See the clock is Ticking
I hold it high Midnight strikes:
Away!
Begin and free!
The time is come you see!
See,
See the clock is Ticking
Hold it high
Midnight strikes

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dreaming

Dreaming
Dreaming
Amidst the grass that swells
With magic mists
The scent of sounds
The rustling of the Ocean Far
Far
Yet near, near how!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dreaming Of Cemeteries

how dreaming of cemeteries and past before as in a film:
that was Sub-Conscious

For it blurred past present future rolled them as balls in the urn of the lottery as motion of shifting as motion of rattling as motion of shifting and rattling

the rattling skeletons heard the motion heard and rattled
the more
each to each in competition
and the cemetery cloud gathered all the individual rattlings into one great giant nocturnal rattling!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dreams Of Old

Ah! Dreams of old Dreams of censer moving Here and there in the old monastery:
And here moved torn apart
That night
Like the old censer the young legs Moved in a passion
And a child was born.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dreamy

Dreamy
Dreamy
Dreamy and panting
He lay at long last
On a raw rock
Already
Though just dusk Besotted with Night-dews
And there
Within just seconds Came sleep and Morpheus
Dreamy
Dreamy
Dreamy and panting

Emmanuel George Cefai
Drear Day After Drear Day

Drear day
After Drear day
Passing
Passing
I work but
Feel
The grains of sand
Slipping.
The thunder of a shot wave
The apple
In William Tell
Last dim flames
Arising Counterbalancing of Sand slipping.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Drear In The Morn

Of night's beauties
the proud pheasant melted.
Suspension of drear in as proportion direct melted.

Night of stars the Sileni went out the nymphs danced to tunes of Timbrels
fauns leaped
in joy goblins round the trees and bushes
hedgehogs crossed
here and there in the non-traffic street
at night
over the asphalt with hedgehogs cats and lizards crossed streets
became bridges
beauty crossed
from side
to side then Dawn evolved and with it it brought smiles.

Smiles?
That's drear that rises as a dark mist
as soon as Dawn enters port.

Day is going drear
and drear will grow.

Dawn will not blow
beauty today.

Dawn will be silent.

Night its scepter yields to just the mists of Dawn soon they will further ascend to the heavens be clouds.

Dawn evolves but drear faster evolves

Dawn revolves but drear faster revolves.

What
was
the scope
of defeating night
then?

Night would as well remain.

At least
I would sleep
on and not see drear and not hear drear
no
no experience of it.

now
drear has from mists ascended
to the frowning clouds.

the day is done
the day is drear.

Wait! hope
in the sun?

No, wait till the dusk
red dusk.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dreary Day Draws After Dreary Day

After each day
Each dreary day
Another follows
More or less Drearier.

The march Goes on and on
As blind and Blindfold and No questions asked.

Though heavens be overcast
Out of the march of crowds
I do not pull but stay
Even Though my verses I have
To say
From lovely Beauty, away.

The march goes on
And on
And on My spine to it yields
My feet follow
The way.

The dusk comes
And then goes
The night approaches
Yet I stay.

And in the time warp
Fade
That be what a heart Yearning
Wills.
Then does,
Fading.
Emmanuel George Cefai
Dreary, Dreary, The Year Of The Martyrology,

Dreary, dreary, the year of the martyrology,
I will see auctioned property by property,
I will see the debauched past year rise
Its head and smile
Sardonic and mysterious like the Sphinx
With a querying look of mischievousness Like the old Sibyl that ages not:
But re-incarnates time after time
Cyclical:
And I trudge, I find I trudge,
The old and weary way to martyrdom
I have not cared to calculate How many paces (that is days: One pace per one day) I must make Nor how many a-panting of the breath to make:
But hist! is this discourse that one says
In the first day of a Year at any rate?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dressed In White

dressed in white yet underneath the black
the night has now arrived.

the arrogant figure that came from the grave it gave its back to me not view it from the front not shock me.

and there's the gathering of holy sufferers their laments stick together glued in one lament towards a black heaven.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dripping

Dripping from the heavens
The drops fell
From the giant fingers Pointing down to Earth

Ah! the Earth is beloved Despite her many wounds
Despite the frowning moons

Hogs flew with blue wings Over the twilight heavens Breaking the dark silhouettes of trees.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dripping Caves

Dripping caves
that night of spray have withstood
but now calmed seas in the dawn time you behold:
dripping wet be less and old ah! the film of what happened in night
slowly
slowly dreamy unfolds and experience be a dream
for this night at least
at least!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Drone Of The Lonely Moth

Drone of the lonely moth dust of the phosphorus cemeteries glow worm of phosphorus mass cold of the phosphorus rainstorm of shroud processions brainstorm of ghost lamentations lake enchanted as by incantations hill of the blood oozing castle cascade of thoughts

Emmanuel George Cefai
Drop

drop crystal and clear and clear free and full awake -
the Dawn!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Drop Of Blood

In
To
The Woods
Blood
Blood
Blood
A Drop
Of Blood An Ink
Of Blood
A drop of blood
Here
There
One after the Other
Path of blood-drops Field of blood Screaming
Under a moon
Beaming

Emmanuel George Cefai Drops Mellow

Drops
Drops Mellow
That from the Milky Way Fall to the Earth
Our Earth
Today
Tonight

Emmanuel George Cefai
Drops Of Life Trickle Down

So long
So long
As the drops of life
Trickle
Down and down
And on and on Beauty you see Even from a cage
Of iron:
Beauty you Feel
So long
So long
As the drops of life
Trickle
Down and down
And on and on

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dross Coins And Wealth

i.

Dross coins and wealth
Dross coins and wealth
Dross coins and wealth
You wallow in them
You think of them again, again
Dross coins and wealth
Dross coins and wealth
Dross coins and wealth
Dross coins and wealth
One even grey a blank vacant sterility.

ii.

Round the green hill
The rivulet glideth:
The birds flieth
The owl singeth
How happy is the earth to-day!

iii.

From the small dale
The shepherd voice ariseth Into a sweet canticle
As the day falleth
As the red dusk cometh
And night in mantle dark
By the next dale is coming Coming fast:
Coming fast
Like sleep Sleep
Sleep
Welcome sleep
The night cometh
The skies are darkening:
The stars are twinkling
And one by one Coming like Morpheus with his wand Into the next sleep beginning The eye-lids how drowsy lie And flicker like torch-lights
Slowly
Slowly
Slowly
Morpheus is breathing slow
His hot and wanton breath Over my forehead:
So sleep cometh, welcome sleep.
And dream I with open eyes
And through the night Look I upon the stars in sleep
And dreaming wake and waking dream again.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Drums

The drums
The drums of war
And Strife
They beat
They beat
They beat
How beat!

A lovely maiden
Sings

Amongst the drums
The lovely maiden sings
Amongst the drums of war
The lovely maiden sings
The songs of peace.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Drunken With Wine, Not Much, And A Little Absinthe

Drunken with wine, not much, and a little absinthe

the satyrs naked almost lay upon the couch but ah! at my coming in to the room how leapt, the prank, out of window that he opened fast!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dry Earth Of Dust

Dry earth of dust
Red with the hammer of Parching

Gazelle-shadow in the night Grey amidst the dark silhouettes
Lightning

Rains kept in check
The canyons thus be cold and parched And to full picturesque In Dawn’s light.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dry My Eyes

you caught me dry my eyes I willed to hide
but now you caught me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dry Sawdust

In the walls Dry sawdust in
The heat and drear of Centuries:
There's liquid Tickling
Down
In silent nights Blood mixed with Water
Yet
Blood thicker than water

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dry Tongue

In the dry tongue
You have found
The pearl in a towel
The pearl of the Orient
You had long Looked for You found:

Come!
Night is a landmark building Night is a jet across the black silhouette Night is a jar of scents Night is long hair of silk Night is a thunder in the summer Night is the cool first cool of Septembers Night is the blue turned dark Night is the sea, the Ocean Night is the night-watch on the bastions Night is the naked palm wind-swaying Night is the pearl that you looked for Voyaged for Traveled for Even in Orient lands Advanced
Still had not found.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dry Your Eyes

Dry your eyes
change your black in time cut off sleepless nights
for there be joy
though the body transforms slow yet sure in the upper earth
yet ring your bells don a smile for the Ideas remain and multiply

Emmanuel George Cefai
Duchess Roaming

There was a Duchess Yesterday roaming
Amidst
The haggard trees
She roamed and Groaned
And that was yesterday.

Why roam you Duchess
I saw your portrait
And
You emerge from it?

White Turned the face of The Duchess.
Into the wood Backwards
Walking
Quick Retired she
And Faded she.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Duck Of The Brass Neck

Duck of the brass neck
you
too
in the waters swim graceful along with the others
hear the buzzing of red eyed dragon flies
drunken and madly
in love
with the mid-day
blare of sun:
you too
with others will seek your place of rest
in pining dusk:
forget your neck, you
be now one of us,
and in this diversity we found our common monadity.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dumb Cows, But Quiet-Silent

Dumb cows, but quiet-silent
Through hoops of fire That around them dance and Still to flee show no desire.

Not too wise cows yet in their Lack of wisdom (though a Minimum must always have)
They ignored fear all indifferent.

Desperation teaches mistress of The wise class. The experienced The mustached from her learnt And how! Dumb cows.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dusk

The dusk
Let it receive the ghost
Of my ghost-child
Blood
Blood
Wounded my heart
A ghost child

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dusk And Moon

And dusk and moon
Together
This night as in All night
And the wine of The nightingale in chant
And songs amorous:
Ah! that this Earth
Of ours be of this,
In this!
A lone violin
Sad
Sweetens the air
The sea spume Scents salty
In the airs
Let off by Zephyr:
A light-house turns
And Turns
A night-lamp clanks slow
With the wind's rhythm

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dusk Be Gone

The Day Is Spent Now The Dusk Be Gone The Night Today Adds To The Dreary And Skeleton To Skeleton Whispering The Day Is spent And I am spent My friend, my Monsignor

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dusk came, the flower closed In preparation:
Yet of all petals one as yet
As yet it remained open:
Alone, the others petals closed, Alone, open to the frost-bite
She chose to suffer so to see the moon Trembled she in her heavy breathing:
The moon took and pity saw
And warmed the erstwhile petal
With his rays confident and kind Survived the petal, survived to see The early Dawn, its birth, as Its siblings had not:
It risked more than them, suffered
More.
Yet risking more and more suffering Made the erstwhile petal see What its sibling petals saw not.
For you, my Monsignor, to read and think!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dusk Had Now Risen

Dusk had now risen
In its glory
Not like cocks it crowed
But silence spread
amidst the town and field amidst the human animal and plant

ii.

O red color that from the orange of the sunset goes
and as the day fades in its throes winds round the Earth and throws its twilight on the waters stunned from the day's and Earth's events:
and the wounds:
O red color of dusk twilight of waters!

iii.

Till then round old Valletta circling the woods
around caught its eye
and then it settled on those sites that as the night approached more and more devoid of humans turned.

iv.

Already Night was on his car though Dusk still reigned:
and on his car Night already lighted had one star
then the cunning sovereign
v.

Till all the immense heavens shone; Dusk saw; turned pale;
with quick step down towards the seas and Oceans trod his way
to safety and rest and out of the fading day.

vi.

Thus settled Night new king
new Sovran but of a fading day by half
and of the other half of day
the first sovran and yet in the dark part when humans to subconscious betake
and conscious leave

vii.

The new king Night till mid-night
ruled as a new king
then as the mid-night deepened in his reign more colored yet more lax became more tottering
with every hour
till at sight of Dawn Night with haggard hair of white replaced the youth that hours before ascended heaven's throne
to watch our Earth:
and fled before the Dawn.

viii.

Till in a wood of old Valletta old an ancient spirit roamed desolate desolate in flesh
desolate as skeleton
what more destitution be made?
he lamented low though quite polite
and his sad notes like arrows entered and broke the very heart of night

ix.

Of how an early end tuberculosis brought him to:
when in the height of youth
the first joys of life in cumulus had brought him to life's first pinnacle and last:
yet humans this enjoy albeit decline yet this lone spirit faded before he made offspring of which full lament he made under the stars and to the moon.

All heard; all pitied; yet still the spirit tormented restless plained
and ran around with vacant eyes and red amidst the bending trees and sad.
Still sate the owl, and the nightingales few that were chanting stopped and heard and pitied in their heart the tale.

xi.

Till by the Dawn as spirits will to do so oft this spirit unfortunate he too dissolved as a frail flake of snow
at touch and attack of a fervent sun:
so ends the tale, my Monsignor.

Dusk Is No Scoundrel

Dusk
Is No Scoundrel
Though
You Called Him
so

Dusk Is On The Wing Each Day

Dusk
Is
On
The Wing
Each
Day
As Bats
Be
On
The Wing
And Waters Secret
In
The Secret
Night
Fall
Fall
Fall
From Ledge
To Ledge Birds
On Wing Arise
Vultures
There
Be No
Carrion
Here
But
Only Sorrows Sorrows
And Echoes
Of

Angst
Here

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dusk, My Monsignor

Look at the Dusk, my Monsignor For the Dusk in its silence Speaks, my Monsignor.

Rare the birds fly past Now; the sea without a sound
Round.
Except for some rare rustling

Above
the churches in the Ancient town
Ring fading day as things that Fade transform and change
Away
Almost, my Monsignor, each day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dust Of The Soul

Dust of the soul, when it Crumbled

Frost of the hands where Ageing has begun printing Furrows

Watch my son for the dusk
And then it be time To enter the cemetery

Put on the spectacles of Justice you will see

If during day you had pain
And had suffering

Otherwise let go, this
Time

Were you not
The prophet of the open plains
That glistened to the night Of stars and moon
That by just past
Midnight
Formed a white-silver cross Over the immense plain?

Short and stout in Rejoicing
Was the wraith
That appeared at the End of dusk
Beginning of the stars
And flow of night
My eyes be frozen
And
My eyes be leaden
It was the night
And it was the dusk
Before
Afterwards the dawn Yet still
My eyes be frozen

I drank and drunk
So large my thirst
I drank the flagon
Of the Tired Wines
And eye-closing sub consciousness
I drank
I drank the flagon.

Still Thrown
From the high heavens
As a meteorite
Down
Down
Minute meteorite
That fell Down giddying heights In Himalayas and their Wetted snows.

White waxed
The face of the High Angel
As the graves opened
And
The inmates up They stood
Silent and speechless:
For White had waxed
The face of the High Angel.

Down
The spectacles of an Angel
Fell
Down
Down
Till on ledge of hummock snow
They stopped.

We are as of the warmth
Of the hearth \ of cottage
In the woods
That Heart be called:
You heard?
That was the garrulous Wise owl.

And Littler further on
The nightingale sings
Her heart to the moon
As she willed.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Dust That Dawn Discovers

There be a dust that dawn discovers
Once
By day
By ray of sun
It evaporates as
The morning mists and the night-dews
The dust that fell at night From walking bones and Skeletons and shrouds Phosphor and acid of life
It fell
Then evaporated high
There was a dust that dawn discovers
Once.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ear Of Knowledge

Ear of knowledge
Hear the waters of discovery
Gurgle:
Just view and Pick.

Let it be not difficult To discover.

The Earth is the law.

The lower elements of night Roam through dust or soil.

And the immense heavens are The Constitution of the nether stars.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Earlier We Had Seen The Dawn.

Now
We view the black moon
And the black skies

Fear in the heart
Hope thrown away
Now

Emmanuel George Cefai
Earth

Earth moves
I move
Earth sings not
I sing!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Earth Be Dancing

Dancing
Dancing
The Earth be dancing
Round
Round
As thirsty eagles of the blood Converge
A new race of black toothed
Bats:
They be of Dracula for Their pointed teeth Lust for all blood
Ah! how poor the sheep Merciless under their sucking Teeth
These new bats of no pity: Whilst
Dancing
Dancing
The Earth be dancing
Round
Round

Earth Thirsts

The earth thirsts For milk
To-night

I can hear
The soil separating Small canals between Burning withy thirst

Tell
the stars for milk
To-night
And the Earth will Have rest
And the thirst of the Earth be satisfied

East West

I
I in my verse Hook in
The East
The West

And
Their in their commixture
I sit by a small stream With small reeds
And green rushes
And look face upwards
To the heavens
In quiet.

I Drink on night-dews Soft fallen in the Night and early dawn
And
In the clouds and mists Of East and West
Combined

Emmanuel George Cefai
Easter Bells Rang Today

Easter bells rang today
Briefly
Easter bells rang
And the sky hatched
With frowning clouds of rain:
We in the Spring
Today live Winter:
And would that Easter bells
Ring
But ring back to New Year!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Easter Valley

In Easter Valley
The roaming skeletons staggered over bones
bones
bones so thick and dense
the air.

Sadness had made his frown
The Artist in his gown Held high his palette
And painted sadness.

In that dark valley still Flowers and plants and
Trees
Grew crooked and bent
And withered.

That was a sad site, my Monsignor!
That was for sad souls, sad Inner Souls, as you my Monsignor And me!

For that Was Easter Valley
And
In Easter Valley
The roaming skeletons
staggered over bones
bones
bones
so thick and dense
the air.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Eat Bread

I saw a ghost eat bread
and it was black bread
yet
white shone its beard venerable and holy in the moon's light
and in the trembling light of receding stars.

aye! the night be beautiful
though it be one long drama of horror act on act scene on scene
climaxing towards end in bathos fleeing at the Dawn's fast light that early sails and permeates
the first of day.

I saw the grey eyes of a sullen ghost Blue were the tears of a swollen shroud
there
was a waltz
and strong Wagnerian tones
and notes Wagnerian
notes
and
and tombs they opened as houses in the morning they opened in the night under the stars
below
the curious moon the aching sighs of Souls and Inner Souls a-pattering:
aching sighing
aching be this the stolid nights so many night as in so many centuries be these?
be these?
I wandered in the cemetery in thought yet I lost not one scene as scene on scene scene after scene
they wafted as the wind into the tunnel whence any return will they not
all
awhile
three ghosts and shrouds fight friendly towards the edge
of night where its eyes hide
from sight of Dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai

That Sang

Emmanuel George Cefai
Echoed

From mount to mount The voices of freedom
Whispering:
For What conqueror will
The chains of mountains Snowy
One by one displace?
Or leave the mourning
Of the borrowed founts?
Sub-Conscious is like that:
The words you feel the Words you experience
And not analyze.
I heard
And will to hear
The voices of freedom itself
Whispering
We
The besieged inhabitants of The shady earth
We
The besieged inhabitants of The humid heavens.
We.
We.

Eerie Night, Let Humans See

Eerie night, let humans see
the light

and in this dread the sight of the glory of the Individual Sovereign Will in the auto-humility of the common factors with the other Individual Sovereign Wills

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ego Perched

Ego perched
On a sea rock
Just as a mermaid-siren
But in dawn
But in dawn

You
Must have woke the night
And looked at the night stars Seep through the veils of beauty That nights yields.

You Feasted your eyes on Twinkling of the stars
The love-sickness of the moon
The rising veils of mists From the sharp sea-waters
And
Then
The slow but sure rising Of voices
At first slow and low Then louder and more Of a hubbub Ghosts and shrouds and Shadows of wise night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Eighty, Goat Street

That address
Exuberant
-said the young man
-let’s go.

But then
The others said
Where?
Do we know?

Said the young man
‘Of life’s virtues
We
Are laden in their glory
To us to know as to all
It be to know.’

‘We go, we go, ’
Shouted the multitude
The young multitude.

So in a troupe
They all; went Searching Searching intelligently

The street was found
The house they found Yet it was closed.

‘So how go we in? ’
Said a youth ‘Shall we throw The door in? ’

‘No, that’s never way.
If all do so, wars will Fade, peace have the day.’
We knock and civilly Though persistently

And so they did Till from the cobweb Balcony
A head with horns
They saw come out And told them
‘I come’

Opened the door
The Figure with Horns Stood all erect
And all saw
In with respect Went they.

Long, long inside Remained they
For dusk was red
And dusk had gone
And the night lamps
They lighted
The stars were out
The moon was out
The waves and seas delighted And slept the town
And dreamt the town
When
By themselves
Through open door
They went
And all talked About all new things Ideas they had learnt
And Into this our Earth
They went
And told of wondrous things
And men who heard Closed eyes and smiled
And men told other men
What wealth
What civilization what Pride
In the sub-conscious lay
And how their life had Changed
In but a single day
In but a single day.

Elegy For Pain

Elegy for pain
And closed eyes:
Elegy for rest
At last!
Without preaching
In silence teaching!
See the mask
Of the silent Poet Seer
And yet it be not mask
But his unmoving lips
But his unmoving face.

Elek, Meri, Teli, Selek

Elek, meri, teli, selek
So whispered the waves
So whispered the sea

The night is out, the moon Turned red, and silent Is the sea.

The heart of the sea ticks red
And beats and beats in silence Beats.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Elf

Elf that dangles
Hanging
On a thread Spun a blue spider Thousand of meters Above the low hills and The town
That froths of day.

You
Will not own the earth
You
Are addicted to the Higher spheres
And to the music of The airy zones.

You
Will not wish to lie
A skeleton of bones Within a tomb
Nor feel the seeping Waters of a cemetery:
Nor
The lone warbling of a Sad bird near:
No,
No, you will burn with fire
To see
Below
The Dawn arising in the morn
New day
There burn with sweet desire When tired night-Earth has Been nursed and cared:
And
Albeit convalescing rising Brave
To a new day Another newer day
There
There you will want
There desire
There be.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Elfin Sight

One day
One night
A traveling train
Of elfin sight
Ferrying across
The deep, deep heavens
At night.

A storm
And
A Tempest
In the garden
Within the heart
Very heart
Of our city
Our own Valletta Confined.

One day
One night
A traveling train
Of elfin sight
Ferrying across
The deep, deep heavens
At night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Elfin Song

Elfin song
Elfin song Verses sweet
To ears meet Dangling
Dancing
Elfin feet
And a Hedgehog Orchestra Plays and plays Elfin hands
The lyres string
And
The notes
All around
Ring
And
The heavens dance
Dangling

Emmanuel George Cefai
Elves Of The Woods

Elves of the woods
On micro harps
Your song ring
Whilst satyrs sing.

Fairy song
That surfaces
Again and again
As life goes
Along.

And Lights of night Shine brighter
On and off
The more Reflect
The cadences of The fairy song
Whilst golden oxen
On a sedan
Draw the Poet Seer Towards Dawn along

Emmanuel George Cefai
Embarking On Verse

embarking on verse
and song embarking on a journey
be.

the sun sets too the sunset and the dusk arrive
and go.

then verse arises in
the night
propense

Emmanuel George Cefai
Embraced On The Grass

embraced on the grass fall we.

Stolen glances
to see that nobody be here.

and we fall
and we fall
and we fall

Emmanuel George Cefai
Emotion Views

Emotion views emotion Emotions witness emotions There be mines; for emotions are as gold mines or as silver mines you have to climb up often to find them to enjoy them climb so high below you see the fleece of clouds
soaring:
I will investigate more Precisely
More clinically
The white shroud of the Dawn
The dark cameo of Night
The brazenness of dusk
I will

Emmanuel George Cefai
Emotions

emotions turned to light
and thence to music notes
wavering
tapering
in to the chill star light

O star light! how much mentioned in my verse
and song!

You will say this be unmerited.

To which reply I: Unchain yourself my Monsignor from the chains of power and glory and of earth freedom discover in the higher airs

emotions
emotions turned to light
and thence to music notes
wavering
tapering
in to the chill star light

Emmanuel George Cefai
Emotions Are A Universe

Emotions are a universe
as large as dawn and sun and noon and dusk and night
and the rest
together summed.

you will hear them
the emotions
walking at night slow and helter-skelter
silent
in their own troops and when they meet the ghosts and shrouds and shadows grey of night they call them brothers, sisters of the night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Emotions As A Rock Jut

Emotions as a rock jut
yes, a rock jut and emotion to emotion in to the troubled breast on board the storm-tossed vessel rock jut to rock-jut emotions of the rock-jut

Emmanuel George Cefai
Emotions Become Blurred

When the emotions become blurred and the eyes look vague lose their focus relative specific object-things

when those emotions decline to become whirlwinds they change destinies

they plot too and at night whisper in conspiracy while the wooden bridge of old centuries, sighs

Emmanuel George Cefai
Emotions Breathe

The emotions
They breathe
They jump
They joy
They hear
They see
They have fear Throbbing in their Hearts
That’s nearest!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Emotions Cloud; Emotions Expand

Emotions cloud; emotions expand.

The areolas of the Dawn’s breasts Expand and point.

And the shy mountain by the sea
Closes her eyes.
At Dawn!
Just at Dawn!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Emotions Loud And Blaring

Emotions
loud
and blaring compact
stars
emotions
of a night
let loose
in the tavern brawl
of
the heavens sporting
in
the glorious
white star
light: riding
on am elfin cloud near the moon
small size small size dot
emotions
these on the higher level than human conscious level to be reached at least aimed at in to the sub conscious washes of the night and rivers of it

Emmanuel George Cefai
Emotions Occurrences

Emotions occurrences
O! the rest of life Turns us
Round and round
Cyclical
And we be in it For it be Cyclical: Therefore Irreversible to us Pending efforts supreme
It be

Emmanuel George Cefai
Emotions Run As The Donkey

Emotions run as the donkey
Round the watermill

You say: ‘How almost always the Same emotions go round
And round’

But in the mass universe
All has a percentage Of Conservation however minimal:
And that percentage in Emotions
Rises.

This was in centuries old, my Monsignor

This be in these times and days, my Monsignor

Emmanuel George Cefai
Emperor Of Clouds

Emperor
Of Clouds
Holder
Of
The scepter
Of
The Wise
Heavens: Rising Rainbow Covered
With Unfortunate Dun
Of War
So
My Muse Plays
So I
The pipe
Of my Muse
Be Obedient
To
All Promptings
Of
The Muse.
Obedient
To
All Signs
By Beauty
Made
Beauty
Instructs
And Orders
The lyre
Plays
Obeys
And sings.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Emperor Of Thought

Wanderer
In the fields and Lanky realms of Midnight hormones.

Night has come
The marches in the cemeteries With torches and flambeaux.

A martyr Slides
With wounds
Down to the floor
Blood
Red Dripping from Everywhere
Pity weeps
An assassin with open eyes Dagger in hand.
My Monsignor.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Enchanted Grail

Enchanted grail
The palace
Was distant by far From city
And town
The monastery
No less

Ahi! To be in to Those places
And
Those times was
The spirit of adventure itself
Walking!

From height to height Over or little less below
The clouds of price
Flying
Below a storm
Though winter's edge
Be brewing.

And fires Crackle
Crackle
In the chimney singing!

For time be life and Life be time
And in those nocturnal sovereignties
The Olympians of ancient days And their households of Satyrs, nymphs and Graces Thriving Thriving into the night Before yet another Dawn Bring hopes and tragedies to The Mother Earth
Emmanuel George Cefai
Enchantment

Enchantment heavy under the soft stars the sail some of the immense heavens towards the south soft stars single collective herd
of beauty and of milk and the night-dews that starts to fall as midnight strikes and deep deep into the night row sprites and ghosts and shrouds on olden boats are ferried slow over the mist hidden lakes and streams till Dawn comes till Dawn lights!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Enclose

Enclose me in A room Three meters by Three meters Square

Enclose me
Enclose me

And in the enchantment of the sad I will bring in the genius of What they assert as mad.

Emmanuel George Cefai
End Is Sweet

end is sweet fading sweeter for fading then is a prolonged ending and after all let us assert the ending was always ending always prolonged
and yet
no ending.
(just transformation).

Emmanuel George Cefai
Enemies

A counter-strike
Value in increase Bow not my head
To the arrows of the enemies

Emmanuel George Cefai
Engulfed By August

Engulfed by August
Heat and stress
I
Went
Out
Last Night
And
Of
A Sudden
Saw La Valletta Riding
On A Steed
Of White Towards
White
Clouds
Into
The Domain
Of
The Stark
Heavens
Nocturnal
While a nightingale sang While a nightingale sang from Hastings Gardens.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ennui

Ennui is of us Ennui
Ennui is within It need no horse
Of Sinon.

The waters move
But then
The ripples fired
Return
Sooner or later
To their shabby starting

You
Will say it be cycle:
Cycle it be
But you see my Monsignor In every cycle
There he Quantum of shabbiness relative.

Yet turn the coin:
In every cycle too
When the erection Takes place Under
The Promptings of fire
And mixing desire With desire
Then the cycle, every Cycle too
Is a burning fire Prometheus sees and smiles
What will you do, my Monsignor?

For Ennui is of us
Ennui
Ennui is within It need no horse
Of Sinon.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Entered The Wind

In to the town from The gates

Entered the wind
Without Knocking without A permit

Notwithstanding the sentinels

Emmanuel George Cefai
Epitaphs

Epitaphs were not my past.

Yet you asked me to sing one.

I must not break your
heart
more than it be broken in your mourning loss.

So I must you your due epitaph.

Short it be:
‘Here be one who mourns and fades’. [1]

Emmanuel George Cefai
Erect And Sad

A Poet Seer
Erect
And Sad:
A Harp Music
That Dances
In A Bottle Transparent Veils
Zoomed
To The Tiny Universe
Of Beauty
In A Marble Played
By Child Hands
And
The Rest
Of Wind.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Even If At War

Even if at war
verse and song
must in ever-increase increase experiment

Emmanuel George Cefai
Even In Description - Even In Storms

Even in description - even in storms and tempests a percentage of emotions comes.

With it through it the verses glow and grow

the song a temptress sweet becomes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Even Philosophy

Even philosophy
In these verses
Comes.

It stays and grows.

In verses and the Chant of the Poet Seer Philosophy
Thought
Stay.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Even So.

Even so.
The town yesterday slept in trepidation
For the one-minute shock of earthquake vibration.

Yet the earthquake was not here.

But the vibrations were; that was enough for The switch of fear.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Evening Bells

Atop a hill
A ball of dusk
I saw.

The evening bells
Were fading
Slow.

And
In the airs
There was a timid Glow of mists
That came First in the dusk They soared
And Soared Left dusk on land
Below.

How yawning Was the ball of Dusk!
Befitted it
The dusk around That hemmed
The dancers
In a dread of dread!

Strong lutes yet
Sad
Were flowing Notes humming
In the airs
Were flying:
A slow and giant Harp
Was glowing.
Music Befitted
That Sweet
Land of sadness

Masks roamed here
And there
And faces
Yellow
Yet in the dreary Dancing there Was fatigue
That rendered slow Even each foot
As made its numbers flow.

I saw a mask that fell
And lo!
Fast faded the tired
Soul
Into a glow that yet Remained a mist
That came.

Saw the other dancers Dancing slow More fatigued and More slow:
They danced and Danced and IBy me heard
The bones crack of a skeleton
Into
The de-populating of that show
Of masks and yellow faces And Inner Souls that Dimly glowed.

Thus one by one fading Faded the crowd numerous In to that ball of dusk Alone remained I
In the heavens immense One by one each of stars Did glow

Emmanuel George Cefai
Every Day Counts

Every day counts
At that Every hour counts
And every minute counts
And every second counts.
And
What be won be won Even a second

Emmanuel George Cefai
Every Day Dreams

Ah! from dreams
Every day dreams
Dream of every night Extrapolate and carry Into life
So many will laugh
At you
As a dreamer or a Psychopath:
Or else:
Yet wiser than them all Walk you.

Emmanuel George Cefai
'Every Day Is Gained'

'Every day is gained'
'every day be gained'
so said
the golden mermaid

The sea rolled westerly over the clay hills dusk waxed more red in the declining day and first night stars lit up the darkening way

'Every day is gained'
'every day be gained'
so said
the golden mermaid

Emmanuel George Cefai
Every Day Now Bears A Red Tragedy

Every day now bears a red Tragedy
Eyes that weep twilight already
In the day
Flowers that bend their heads already In the sun’s face
Every day brings a new weeping
Every day bring a new pining Eyes red, eyes redder, eyes Redder and redder Tragedy upon tragedy upon tragedy That’s all men Amen.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Every Second

age
age grows with every second but I am blindfolded in a haze of
beauty
by my very Muse:
otherwise
sensing the fading
I will not sing
and I will not versify
and I will not chant

Emmanuel George Cefai
Every Where

Every where
Every where I see the cracks
In every fortress That I built
These long, long years
That still remained to me
Every where
Every where
And I am sinking, Sinking
Sinking.

I hear the boom
The boom of the guns
The flashing of the swords
The neighing of the airplanes
And I hear
And I hear
The enemy shouts Coming near
And near.
And I am sinking, Sinking Sinking.

I hear
I hear the knocking
At the fortress door
I hear
The fortress door come down
And then
The enemy shouts – the wild shouts Coming near
And near.
And I am sinking, Sinking
Sinking.
Everything On Earth

Everything on earth
A percentage has Albeit this grows Decreases with the Work and sweat of humans
Or else
With the magic touch
Of random chance
Chance and probability.

The Earth is of us all
And for us all Not these to suffer
These to enjoy
All life of Equity Enamored be
And should.
And should.
And should.

Human it is for you
Too
To increase the percentage
In your favor
Too

Emmanuel George Cefai
Exactitude Of Word

Exactitude of word
albeit
in the drunkenness of
verse and song
poesy goes along precision and a sad, sad
song.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Except Not The Verses Of A Song

Except not the verses of a song
The Verses
As
They Go
As
They Go
As Through
The Aisles
Scented
And straight Moon-lit
Yet
Dim
Where
Ghosts and shrouds
Cross
From one side to the Other occasional.
That was the song
Itself.
The night its Container:
The moon
The holder of its lyre
The stars
Each
 Burning
With Its sundry Fires

Emmanuel George Cefai
Exchange

Exchange
This
With
That
The winter Came and Went
Then
The Spring
Comes Then Summer
Takes its throne
Followed
By humble Autumn:
And
The wheel
Goes On and
On
And
On
All
Cyclical.

Emmanuel George Cefai Excuse Me Dear

Dear
Excuse me dear Because I Reply
to your e-mails late.

You Write
So Many Beautiful
thoughts.

But
to reply
to you
I
Just Let
My Heart
Speak
out.

Excuse Me if many times
my heart
speaks
of
suffering and misery.
But
at least
I know
That my feelings
come
out
and that I am speaking to an angel sent by God.

As for me
I am
just a big and great sinner who has nothing except misery.

Kisses

Emmanuel George Cefai
Excuse Me For The Night

Excuse me for the night
No vesper bells ring
Or other bells
The silence speaks in the night stars
The secrets play
In the face of the Whimsical moon:
The tide of life goes
On and on Flow and ebb Ebb and flow
And nights be night after night
We
We must gear up to this We adjust and then see Evolution sits on a dark fence
And smiles

Emmanuel George Cefai
Excuse The Iron Gates

Excuse the iron gates
They have opened
And now
The troops
Of shrouds and ghosts Enter in to the cemetery

Enchanting Enchanting monastery of The clouds
And iron icicles
Yet hanging
Yet hanging

We
We humans need enchanting
And once got What more need we, my Monsignor?

I saw a child’s eyes
And they were innocent
I saw a child’s eyes
And they were dazzling Gleamed they bright
As torches in a tower night
I saw a child’s eyes

And Now I the hands soft and Warm
Of soft enchantment feel Her silken touch
Her skin of silk I feel
We
We humans need enchanting
And once got What more need we, my Monsignor?
Exhausted.
Exhausted in the seeking Of a child of love, at last
At least.
As to a gambler who plays all I played blindly and I Was no less worried or glad That I was blind.
Though and albeit For after all we are speaking of A child of love.
And that be all, all.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Exile Because Of Love

in exile because of love
I found restriction sweet after some time
as Ovid long ago
by barren rocky shores
as the sea woke from its own slumber and on the coasts it warred and spume and waves went up the highest rocks that define limits of the land and sea:
so I
in these wild reveries along the sub-conscious current flow in thought and in rare intermittent moments absolute in Joy:
and breathe expanding the lungs of the Inner Soul: from misery is born Joy and the days' drear as mists in the spring sun dissolve.
for in exile because of love
I found restriction sweet
after some time
as Ovid long ago
by barren rocky shores
as the sea woke
from its own slumber and on the coasts it savage warred

Emmanuel George Cefai
Existential

The existential is the lower Layer.

On top the essential layer
To which the existential still Attached
As foundations serves.

And the view is the All of
All.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Experiment

Experiment on experiment Practice
I
In my verse
Experiment on experiment
As earthquakes to What went before:
Yet
In their grandeur monuments Of humility and pride subdued And bent eyes
And silent veils
That the face cover:
Nor
Will you easy find Reading word by word
The verse
The experiments mentioned:
Yet
They be there!
And on you work
The better if you be as not aware!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Experiment After Experiment

Experiment after experiment
never a Poet Seer content always sad in verse, with verse

now here, now there, to left, to right, to
everywhere

experiment after experiment
never a Poet Seer content
always sad in verse, with verse

Emmanuel George Cefai
Explosive

explosive explosive noses
and explosive lips explosive legs
and explosive hips explosive feet
I walk semi-penguin like feet in front
I move in front
My face towards the light
ever-increase and new civilization
explosive

Extend Your Hand

Extend your hand
Raise your hand
To reach the heights
If not
You will not
No, not reach the heights

Emmanuel George Cefai
Eye In The Wall

In the night only
The eye in the wall Rotates itself
Here and there
Moving, moving
All round scanning Eye that ear be That hears
Even just whispering
Just whispering.

It saw the knife
It saw the blood
It saw the scream
The fall

A Poet Seer stood In blood
On the sward of green Eyes unmoving to
The heavens opened
Stood the Poet Seer.
Time stopped with Motion
By.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Eye That Closes

Eye that closes
World unfolding
As the flower
Budding.

Short for sound Long for tree
There's a trumpet
Under the tree
Where the owl sits Where the wild bat panting Hangs

And so many things
Bend to all of this!
For Eye that closes
World unfolding
As the flower
Budding.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Eyes

Eyes Corners
Rose Grasses Stream River
Sea Ocean Bay Rocks Pebbles Grating
Church
Wood Valley Rushes
Boathouse Cave
Waters Crystalline
Low
Green light Yearning
Night
Sub-conscious Always Always Echo
Echo
Echoes

Emmanuel George Cefai
Eyes Be Of The Propensity

Eyes be of the propensity to slaves they are prone to subject worship where some beauty attracts
them

ah! in sighs
I write verses
even so
my eyes in thrall
To the beauties captured all.

And
then eyes of sadness made in the Groves of Sadness Glade slowly walk and with each pace weep and sigh.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Eyes Of Night

Eyes of night are Pearls
That you should treasure
As
You take down
The cool wine flask Over the green of Leisure

Emmanuel George Cefai
Eyes Of The Ocean Dawn

My heart is breaking -
So often now
My heart be breaking -
All the bits are falling
And
I look with broken eyes
I on the Ocean look:
Great Soul!
I feel the breeze cool Past me
I feel the Ocean Dawn
In front of me
And
My heart risers
Rises
As revolution rises
Though
My heart be breaking Revolution makes it leap
Again
With that ancient fire
That came in part to it
From the noble immense Ocean Dawn
Though
My heart be breaking.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Eyes Painted Hollow

Eyes Painted Hollow
As Ghosts
And Hollow Skeletons
Yet Painted Painted
Too Hollow
For Weeping
So
The Painting Remains Thick
And
As Light
That Comes
And Goes Marauding
The Star-light
The fountains
Of the Earth
The ghosts of Ships loads of Dreams and shady
Nights
Under
The Scepter
Of old Sub-Conscious!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Eyes That Burn

Eyes that burn
I want them so
And I want them open
Open
Open
Dazzled with the light Without necessity of Dawn Put off the light Off towers Highways and ring roads
Eyes that burn
I want them so
And I want them open
Open

Emmanuel George Cefai
Eyes That Tell

Eyes that tell eyes that speak utter yet not single
word.

eyes enraptured in the
lights
nocturnal sights and the dawn's home-coming glides

eyes that move eyes that wonder open wide and in wonderment express all the beauty that them dress.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Eyes To Eyes

The wind was low
To the occasion Appropriate

Alone we were Looked to each other Face to face
Then eyes to eyes

And at that point
We knew had Reached talking.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Eyes To Plead

Eyes to plead

Waters to bless

Sacred mists

Womb that open-mouthed Cries to be filled

Hospitals and pain and Suffering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Eyes Wild

Of flowers eyes wild eyes dazed brain dazed a kiss!
ah!
that woke the brain!
there rose the bent flowers!
there was a sea that roared and Ocean echoed!
bay to bay
whispered
in that nocturnal bliss
'A kiss! A kiss! '

Emmanuel George Cefai
Face

face in mist-veils transparent closed
and yet I view!

I sad the sadness.

My fingers thump and thump.

Will I count the lost hours of my life?

the largesse of the snow-storm?

the wide heart of the thunder?

the startling of the
lightning?

no I sap my own Sub-Conscious

And the Inner Soul grates against the fading Conscious battling to the last falls
spear in hand!
falls.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Face Of The Figure

The face of the Figure is dark is frowning farce of the night Spirits hurrying
through the streets of old ancient city

Emmanuel George Cefai
Face Of The Skeleton

On the face of the skeleton
I Spotted
The sardonical laugh
And the skeleton teeth Jittering

Emmanuel George Cefai
Face That No Longer Shines

Face that no longer shines
Red
Red with the blush of life:
No,
No longer
But white
But yellow
The pallor of a face that does not move Face that no longer shines
Red
Red with the blush of life.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Face To The Heavens

Face to the heavens
And
To the passing giant
Clouds
With prong regal
The Figure imposing
Stood.

The days of tempest
Have not long been past.

Yet their ban
Be for some months
All permanent.
And that be why
Face to the heavens
And
To the passing giant
Clouds
With prong regal
The Figure imposing
Stood.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Faces Of Ancient Centuries

Steps
Faces
Of ancient centuries Traces
And smell of musk Old wines
That better grow
With Age!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Faces Of Squirrels

Faces
faces of squirrels elongated faces of old owls red-eyed frozen faces of hedgehogs crossing
crossing faces of hedgehogs
playing orchestra of animals
dancing
sliding globality of another
civilization
that to other civilizations transforms and it
itself
transforms as from other
civilization

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fading

The closing of the day
Fading of mists
The bleak arising
And the genesis of
Dark
The vesper bell that Hoary through the
Chill
Sweet sad notes emits
Through the red frost:
Noses red Hands red Coughing red Ah! Christmas will be near!
Yet
It be too far too, my Monsignor

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fading Embers

fading embers
I remember boyhood and young
age,
then youth
the fire that was the fire that burnt
now
fading embers
only
fading embers

Dawns now be insignificant.
the heart breaks.
So many years
and now it breaks.

The chains are cut.
The fading's done the runner slow nears
the line.
And all be fading.
While
a heart's breaking.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fading Is Sweet

the fading is sweet and slower the sweeter that's Leopardi's sinking into the waters:

you feel
one by one the chains to the Earth being cut slowly falling

and the slower the action the sweeter the motion that's physics dynamics mechanics of Leopardi's sinking

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fading Star

slowly
slowly fading star midnight is afar
though it be night
yet midnight be afar
afar.

Emmanuel George Cefai Fair Cupid

i.

Fair Cupid lay asleep awhile outside The frost against the panes swept and roared:
And icicles from the windows dripped and fell Froze was the water on the shining lake
And silent stood the lonely nightingale.

ii.

A taper white in the dark night glimmered
And against the walls it flickered and wavered Awhile the fair boy Cupid dreamt and slept:
The wild, wild wind against the houses raced
And icicles from the windows dripped and fell
Froze was the water on the shining lake
And silent stood the lonely nightingale.

iii.

Anon, anon along the corridor swift steps
Were in the storm to shuffle slow full heard And midst the dark walls a bright light Burst on the secret alcoves and ancient walls
The wild, wild wind against the houses raced
And the Muse in her glory entered where Fair Cupid on the marble dreamt and slept.

iv.

She viewed the fair boy with her shiny eyes
And for a moment stood by all entranced At all the marble beauty of his skin His flock of hair and white toga and his grace Made her enamored every second passed Till she bent down and kissed - yes kissed The temples warm where coursed the wild blood Like rein less horses into the dark night.
v.

She then withdrew and into a mist of blue Evaporated - such the power That Jove hath given to the Muse;
The while translucent in the wavering flames Of torches burning on the castle-walls
She herself removed from sight and yet she stayed.
And with attentive eye upon him looked To see the workings of her magic spell.

vi.

Seconds passed and then with tremulous eye
The fair young king of love his eyes did open And in each eye as in a lake of love Paradise seemed to lie beneath the moon
That shines its friendly light when dark begins:
And sweet sings the homely nightingale.

vii.

The winds of sudden ceased and stopped Gone was the frost and cold and in the night Drew its thin veils and from underneath did spring
The first grey light of the new-coming Dawn As she with stately pace like statue moved Across the lawn with dews and waters decked.

viii.

How time flies - tis the Spring
And there is joy in everything Away the frost; entomb the cruel cold:
The birds fly on the wing This lusty Spring!

ix.

And Cupid wakened from his winter sleep
Now in his quivers glees and shoots And makes conquests:
'Tis the Spring
And there is joy in everything!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fair Cupid passed a secret wood of green And therein full many a couple and lovers saw All invisible he was and in delight he smiled At each caress and touch and kiss and word of Love Therefore he deemed useless his quivers to loose
And with a merry step went down the glade
The sun went down a hill all red But ah for me for me the ageing years Have havoc wrought amidst their hoary waves And tempests green that freeze the warm red blood That coursed the shrine of body and Love in youth:
So Cupid to me came and at my prayer
He loosened his deep quiver and inside Right to my heart it went reviving me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fairer

Fairer than her or at least as fair are many women why insist on her
so much?

'That be a matter for my heart, '
said I
'and beauty in the heart resides more so when I love, I calculate'

Then said he: 'Hearts be not brains brains for calculation are hearts for emotion;
wherefore say so? '

Then I: 'The heart over a long term, the heart that loves it calculates, it calculates too for Love at long is living, and living with calculation continuous
goes'

Then silent he stood
'Wherefore silent, so silent, my Monsignor? ' asked I
'Ah! so silent! so silent your heart speaks in love as brains in thought.'

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fairies Outside

There were
Fairies outside
In the winter gales
The rains the blizzards
And the storms
Thunder
Lightning
All
All were outside Most
Were eying
Those dark silhouetted Homes
Armed
With the comfort
Of Lights behind closed Windows Warmth behind closed Doors
All were outside Most
Were eying
Those dark silhouetted

Fairy Isles

And now we be in the fairy isles
Not on the Ocean-Sea
But on the golden roof of heavens That blinds
With diadems and jewels glittering And night-dews' eyes.

Fairy Song Of Circe I

Among the beach sands I pace in this solitary revelry Ah! if all the Earth were but of one person inhabited! the dusks, the nights enjoy I, and still live, and suck the pleasures sad of one who no possessions has save dawn and dusk and night and all the rest:
who no labor requires and no cares but sleeps and dreams and dreams and sleeps in what be young, in what be best

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fairy Songs

So many fairy songs!
We need them!
Would that with every Dawn Each every smile of her Her forehead be,
Transform in to a fairy song
The next night
Yet amongst!
And next and next and next Ever-increase!

Fates

the Fates now are raging wild against me the gales of misfortune Zephyr has let loose and I rattle as a reed in the midst of the gale.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Father Can I Cease To Weep?

Father can I cease to weep?

Winter after winter year after year the barren field though ploughed remained a barren field.

And every time I see your hollow eyes of red
weep.

About me cold and mists in my brain.

Father can I cease to weep?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Father Was This The Bridge?

Father was this the bridge
Where
You and my mother kissed Before parting?

The sun
Had fallen hid her prowess In reserve for the next day

And the bats circled Curious and harassing
Whilst
In the distance beneath the bridge A car occasionally came A car occasional went
But Ah! Albeit all
Your Souls,
Your Noble Inner Souls
Be still together!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fear Grips My Hand And Makes It

Race on the computer Letter after letter, word on word, Then the line forms, the verse,
And then another verse,
And all these verses yet more verse beget:
And the whole at one time Stop like the caesura: the poem’s ended.
Whether a fragment or with satisfaction
The lyric poet-seer his lips will lick
The poem’s ended; the curtains fall.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fear Has Laid Its Hand On Me

Fear has laid its hand on me
Yet Beauty will remain.

Grim go I to my destiny
Yet Beauty will remain.

Not forget, o! think of me Beauty will remain.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fear is become my sovereign
And I its loyal subject have become I rise, I move, I sleep,
I wake with every dawn
To Fear,
Its drear notes hear Dance and sing to tunes of Fear Fear that become my sovereign is And I its loyal subject.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fear Must Be Not Of Us.

Fear must be not of us.

Yet Fear is as of Us.

For we are neither gods (as yet)
Nor shrouds and Ghosts.

Fear bends Wills and Strengths.

But neither Will must Bend we Nor strength must Bend we.

Mother,
Hear my cry of suffering:
Each night I am in pain
And
The night hours cry to me
For join with you.

Fear smiles most at night.

Fear chills most at night.

Fear sways scepter at night.

For we are neither gods (as yet)
Nor shrouds and Ghosts.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fear Not!

Fear not!
The spectral dance
That you view before you.

In the deep of night
These occur often in the Cemetery.

Let what you view Teach you
And direct your emotions Bending them
Not fear but prudence, Fortitude

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fear Passed

I look a little askance
I begin giddying Fear smiles sarcastic.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fears Of Day

I found that in my fears of day for day I had left lacuna after lacuna in my life adding adding to the previous almost daily toll. Lacunae I just repeat.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Feasts come and feasts go
And
In the turn of years
The number of feasts becomes A number of years to
Centuries:
Such as the feast that in our street With every calendar year new Brings celebrations that come and Brings celebrations that go.
But ah! memories
In the Sub-Conscious stand Withstanding the onslaught Of years and centuries
As an infection sweet the Sub-Conscious
Goes
And then from brain to brain will pass In speech:
As the mothers who their sons tell The contents of the Sub-Conscious And thus these further to their children Unfold
And thus the train of tradition move To the train of the Sub-Conscious parallel.
Infectious sweet and yet passing as in A Relay of Time from one to other.
So
My mother what you told me
Remember I
And Treasure I
And you told what they told You even when small on your mother’s Lap you stood and all attentive Heard.
Thus
Too of your remembrances multifarious The Feast that once each year be Celebrated
Brings in due sadness such sweet memories And Memory becomes the glue
The chain
That in the Relay of Time joins First to next.
And on and on continues further in Life.
Now the Feast is come and come In to these days of drear Where Hope loiters alone Single tree green of broken-hearted solitude Amidst the drooping fading tree by tree Of fading drear.
Memories on each other
Flow.
The Feast will come and
Go.
Yet the old wounds will become As new wounds.
So sang of Heaven the sweet Violins.
So flowed the memories with Every striking of the bands With every pace the procession-voyage Of the Saint-Statue, with every Peal and toll of the church-bells, With every act, albeit tiny-small,
With every act I say and I assert There will be old wounds that New wounds again with Bleeding blood anew
Will drain.
So sang of Heaven the sweet Violins.
So sang of Heaven the sweet Violins.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The throngs and crowds

The throngs and crowds
together
conspired in the sweet and happy
sounds
the fire-works the barges lighted on the seas of dark
and all the crowds delighted!

the water buildings in the waters glare Narcissus like in the rare light where in other nights dark and silence
reign.

And streets be deserted.

But now
now
the crowds throng
one happy moving mass banning the desert hiatus.

Tomorrow will come
tomorrow.
And there will be a Dawn looking on the deserted shore the remnants of uneaten foods,
dust, the treading marks of paces.
And there will be no crowds.
Feasts Pass II

The people came Flocked in thousands Wondered at The fireworks displays
The music bands – O!
They said
For the saw
The rainbow of moving
Lights:
Ah! but feasts pass
Now it be morning Dawn too’s past Litter and silence Sad remembrances.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Feather

Feather
Feather that flutters Flutters from the skies
The heavens immense
The Place wherefrom the Voice
The Voice that inspires
The Voice
That when it speaks
Not the hand of the Poet Seer
Trembles
Not the brain of the Poet Seer
Lights
But the hand of the heavens
Trembles
The brain of the Poet Seer Lights

Soul
That so persecuted be Soul
However deep However noble
Your roots
Your genealogy Cut off
The chains that tie
You to the rocks of pain
Of order imperative
No, no, the Individual Sovereign Will
No, no,
Let the Deep Inner Soul be sovereign Not else
Not else

Butterfly
That flutters
Though
The night is still Only just past Midnight
The night still Has deep roots
The night Still reigns
But A lonely butterfly Hovers merrily And flies swiftly:
Ah! butterfly The darkness yields at last The heavens open The gray begins And whitens And walking comes the Dawn.

Let the night fly
Let the night fire Light The flames of the dream The Poet-Seer is sleeping on the rocks The hard rocks Outside The cold, the frost, the winds That neigh The night Is become servant of the Muse Temporarily: And through the night Dreams in the Sub-Conscious The Poet Seer And With the waking of the Dawn Sings with open eyes His songs, His verses.

Day of the night
Where
The night held sway
Sway
From the Dawn
That rose bleak
And dreary:
And
In the day Till the day
The whole day Remained Dreary
And thus
The night held sway
Even in the day.

Museum under the skies
The heavens
Open Dilapidated stones Columns Glories ancient
Yet
Inspiration to the bold
The brain that works Hammer
hammers
The tongue
The Voice
Of the Poet Seer who sings.

Muse
That travels lands Whole lands in Just one single night
And then
Sweet tiptoeing
Into an eastern cave
Wakes the Dawn.
Psyche slept
Dreaming
Her Sub-Conscious
Divine
Moved her in the heavens
And spoke Thundering
Yet sweet
The voice of Jupiter:
Then woke
All startled
The sweet goddess
But Around her the gray
The first whitening
Of a new day
By her side
Gently tapping her awake
The Dawn.

I heard the chains
Drawn
One after one
The chains
The night
The chill
The frost
The muteness of drear:
I heard the chains
Drawn
One after one
And now and then A groan and then Another groan
And
Then
The chains moving Moving
Again
Again
Again and again
And midnight
Is long Long in coming
And
Yet
The chains Move and move
And move
Not stop
Not yield
Nor the groans.

When the song is done
Let it be done
Not even a verse Increase
No, no even a word
In that monument
Of marble verse and song
New Michelangelo.

Not much
Not much
No, not too many words
But verse
Verse and song,
Just verse and song.

Tree
That this Winter
Has
For so many nights Withstood so much Frost
chill
and neighing winds
and whose horrid suffering fortified with the fortitude of suffering
the roots the very roots the nobility that ancient earth of the genesis and growth
evolution of the Inner Soul.

Ivory towers
That this rare night
Rose in the upper heavens
High
Distant
From our rotating earth Where so many sleep Somewhere
Where so many wake And toil
Somewhere
And yet
The ivory towers in the night
Rare
Rising
Rising in the upper heavens

Throbbing night
Why speak I so much of the night?
Why speak of feeling
Trembling?
Kierkegaard spoke of Trembling.
I speak of the night.
Ah! for thinking I realize That better is the night Than day for us.
Cast
The chains that still Remain
Like squids around Your Individual Sovereign Will:
That will be
More
More than the Revolution 1688
The French Revolution 1917

Sleep, sleep, sweet child
For
Today the heavens are of clouds And startling hawks around Circle
That I saw not before:
Sleep, sleep, sweet child.

The lines speak
And loud
Their utterance
As it the heaven’s utterance As be
The Voice
Of the deep Inner Soul
Ancient arcane nobility.

Around
Around
The bees of verse and song
Humming
Humming verse and song
Sucking
Sucking flowers wide and Wide-eyed Murmuring Whispering as the fairy waves Awoken by the Dawn
Around
Around
The bees of verse of song.

My wish, the child
Born
With blue-green eyes:
Not beauty in extreme
But health wise,
Yes:
And when you grow
My little child
With beauty of the body
A body that growing be Join my little child Join your intelligence
And cultivate
That magic tree:
It will give you sufferings
It not yield too much Of power, wealth and The like:
If you go by me:
But
It will make you great
And it will make you wise
You only have to suffer
You only have to toil
And then you have to will:
My wish,
The child.

Come, come, fairy cloud
The heavens thunder loud Crestfallen is earth’s shroud

See, see how hawks abound And eagles too in skies Where beauty in dusk lies.
And the power of song
And verse I feel along And thoughts too start to throng.

When my hand types
On the keyboard Trembling with each Word
Each line
My heart is open
As with a knife
That even if it know There’s no dissembling
But just Bare, open, red, and Blood
And no,
No dissembling.

In to a long tunnel of night
The vessel of thoughts alights
And on and on and on delights

Into these golden realms Shoot rare yet sudden beams Flashes, thoughts, screams.

And then the red dusk pines
And then night start to dine With napkin and red wine.

In the long, long, night to come Help me, my Muse, watch Over me.

Long is the night for a sad Heart – more so for such a Solitude.
And in this lowness and in This misery, my Muse Donate your Fortitude.

A fairy tiny a large harp Was holding Singing.

Nimble her fairy fingers
Sweet her mouth
Her verse noble.

And saw the night
And loved and danced
The night-stars in delight

In the long annals of verse and song
So many a Poet-Seer
And I among.

Together heavy breathing throng
So many a Poet-Seer
And I among.

And in this world of suffering Cluster so many in the throng
And I among.

Bring me the temperature
For like fever rises, Rises verse and song.

At times low somewhat Then in proportion parched
And slow.
But then arising as the Dawn,
The Sun, the drunken magic Revels in its magic own.

Blue were the skies this morn
And yellow gold the mane of the drunken sun
And in gray rainbows Dawn was born.

So many colors, yet in man
In us humans there be more So more of wonder to think and pen.

Yet blue were the skies this morn
And yellow gold the mane of the drunken sun
And in gray rainbows Dawn was born.

Ah! verse and song
The more you drink
The more addicted:
One potion drunk
Will other potions
Bring
One after one
And
For that drunkenness
The better are we all,
We,
The inhabitants of Earth
The better are,
And rise en masse,
Without our willing much,
Listless
Yet relentless
Of Evolution the march.
Bent the flower
For touched with chill
From the drunkenness of midday
Silent it lay and still.

Mute the petals fell.
And turned inside.
And in the distance
Rang a vesper bell.

Bent the flower
For touched with chill
From the drunkenness of midday
Silent it lay and still.

Like to the flower after Sunset, after dusk Bend we.

Like to the autumn cool
Before the fierce frost of Winter Bend we.

Like to a fallen sun
That swelled with midday’s pride Bend we.

Ah! frozen the face of the lake
And ruffled in its feathers the owl
For it be Winter.

You heard before mid-night and After too the rains the thunder
For it be Winter
And though the Dawns arise Day after day, most drear be they
For it be Winter.

Fog arising, fog falling,
Mists trembling,
Twinkling.

Rain gushing, hear How on the roof
It is falling.

And it is night!
From bed
There's warm delight

But ah! the thunder Sparks lights and roars
Outside.

So much I sing,
Of such weather
So much.

For in such weather
My brain breeds more Song and better.

The chimney high Affronts the sky
And night-storms.

Alight the thunder
Lightning
The chimney’s trembling!

And then the end: goes The wild tempest, exhausted before Dawn flees silent.

Magic church, chapel Small in the wide Countryside.

How many a vesper How many a sad day
You witnessed.

Few the happy days
And rare:
So we, we humans.

Verse speaks
As the great heavens
Speak.

Their voice
Is as the Voice Of the great heavens.

Of verse the sounds
As the great Ocean waves Noble rebound.

How rose the night
And the star light
To-night!
Too quick, too still Amidst the chill
To-night!

Seeds of beauty
In the Dawn strewn flourish
To-night!

Remember you?
In the garden you were
That by Floriana’s bastions Descends.

Remember the walk
Amidst the flower aisles
The trees, the fountain,
The stairs, the looking
From the bastions?

Remember the heavy thoughts Calculations, worries, Though shone the sun
For nigh to mid-day was Yet low, Low my spirit mourned and Lay.

Amorous beach, but not
With humans amorous,
But birds of love
And song
In the red dusk.

Feelings That I Feel

these feelings that I feel these feelings that I felt you feel them too?
you felt them too?

If so,
chant as I chant and versify as I do.

And then together all our Earth will rise as to one human and civilization and genius be of us all.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Feet Akimbo

The waters danced
Then
Sate
Themselves
With feet akimbo.

The supple fount
That in the midst Of the small lake
Of wonders lies Fires its spouts
In anger-energy
Of the sub-conscious
Of the sub-conscious

The Dawn slow walked With naked feet along The yellow rocks
And plane
Of the lake-coast
And
mists
That sub-conscious go.

Life ticks
And
The heart beats!

Awhile
The waters danced
Then
Sate
Themselves
With feet akimbo
Full subconscious
Slow.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fell Again

It fell again.

Winds
Had scoured the plain And ravished the Stunned xerophytes

It fell again

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fell The Verse

Fell the verse
As flowers fall
But it was cold
Just cold.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fell the window with the wind Opening
A Pandora’s box of magic.

Fly, fly, particles
The Earth is buffoon,
The Earth is tragic.

And tragic be buffoon
And buffoon be tragic.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fever Of Ageing

Fever
Fever of ageing Last struggles of Life
Heating:
Gasps of breath
Flying.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Feverish Gobbling

Feverish
Feverish gobbling ducks of night that swell fat and large at night when the red dusk awry gone pining stops takes to its feet to its welcome caves
it flees;
and the night is feverish feverish
restless
feverish

Emmanuel George Cefai
Few Bastions

There were a few bastions
In those thousands of bastion Meters
A few bastions old and Worn
More than the others Wet
With weeping of the days
That passed?

Ah! the worn bastions
The more they wept
The more weeping!

And Motion in the mass Universe
Continues working Mechanical Blind
Ruthless
And those few bastions
Weep
Weep
Weep nocturnal-cold.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Few Lines, You See, You See,

Few lines, you see, you see,
I could not muster more
Though
I have an excuse, a reason,
I assert:
I have been busy out, the streets Were cold, slovenly the Pedestrian streets, their bricks untidy,
And here and there small pools of rain
That had been falling.
Thought sublime flashed and went.
Then
I rolled back into my mood of discontent.
I saw an insect twitching in the dirty Waters on the dirty pedestrian street:
And I saw its agony and started To think again:
The mood of the heavens was dark And frowning
Better walk without thought, then think so drear.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Few Owls Gather

The night is falling.
See!
The few owls gather Soberly;
The nightingales
Place themselves on boughs That scent of ancient days Inspirers of sweet wondrous Lays
And
The stars are whispering:
The moon see!
It sends a kiss to Earth
And the sea-bosom
Lights
Silver the dark waves Skiffs pass.
See!
There be such silence here
That the heart breaks

Emmanuel George Cefai
The graveyard.
Few places of rest Here, ' so said
The Sexton.

'Half century
I have been here, '

'I saw old Age
I saw sickness
I saw Youth truncated
I saw tragedies
I saw disasters
I saw the mourning
I heard the screams
I feared red eyes.
I saw the coffins.
I saw them lowered Heard the dull Grating
As they were Lowered,

Now time is come.
For me Ageing
Has been a privilege Amongst disasters.

Yet
Save the engineering
Of Immortality
Down one these graves
Is all my tally'

Few words
And more of life

Few works
That tell the All.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fields Of Corn Delight

where fields of corn delight
there Beauty sits fanned by airs that over seas and oceans bare came with the Dawn
and in first lights of Dawn had birth and genesis
now
the lark has flown in high altitudes of the immense heavens
and sweating from the increased sun
prepares to go:
so in the brain thoughts have genesis
then in the flower of their youth to depart early they prepare and go:
so you
so you left in the throes of pleasure that as sudden turned to transformed to pain and
suffering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
in the fields of night amidst the moon lighted dust heard I the humming humming continual of the bee...

there be no glades in such a dark now there be shadows that stealthy prowl the fields harmless....

the glades are silent and the owls are garrulous indifferently
with concussions and hiccups...

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fierce Flower

Fierce flower that arrogant at Dawn arises: flustered by the very sap of life blood coursing you become Self more and more as the day deepens. You become drunken Self at noon and midday in the day's zenith. then the nadir begins as from each zenith For every zenith how long will it remain zenith? If it ever-continues then how it be zenith the pyramid of lower courses that be not there? unflustered yet as through the lazy afternoon where the sweetness of mid-sleep and of sweet resting makes for the genesis of the nadir. Sunset unveils the statue of Nadir. Dusk deepens it. Gives it its waning colors its fading twilight waters unquiet irrequietness restlessness of a changing Order. Night will be sovereign. then the zenith will be reversed by the new order the new order of the night it will have in princes, the princes of the stars and of the Duke Moon:
then we will go home hand in hand
and be one with the ghosts Shadows and Shrouds.

Fiery Sea-Gulls

Fiery sea-gulls
Of fire sea-gulls
Crying
Crying
And from Their mouths fire Spouting.

Trirems, vessels Roman,
The seas crossing Waters tossing
And I watch
From
The tower of my sadness
Of man desperation
Of child joy Romantic setting!

And
In this
In all of this Though it be yet dawn Yet dawn
As in red dusk Waning
Waning
I pine sad
And I pine desperate
And now, yet,
Cold night falling
And
The day of life
Now closes

Fig Leaves

all over covered with fig leaves and other woodland
leaves
the naked satyr

Mountains Subside to valleys Dies irae! Dies illae!
Hear! Hear! There's but a chorus of Angels singing They sing! They sing! They sing!
Whilst high be low Low be high And The earth's bursting Dies iare! Dies illa!
At last!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Figure

figure of benighted traveler thin and shadowy shroud and shady silent stealthy stealing on the walls as in mirror or in lake reflected.

there comes a time
when humans must throw off the garb of materialistic Consciousness replace it by the Sub Conscious mantle
that flies
as religion and faith flies:
then these two are not just transformations of that precision and science that glitter so in Consciousness?

there comes a time
when humans must turn round the coin:
the face only be turned the Coin the same
but in the Sub-Conscious seas and
oceans
the Inner Soul will steep herself and slowly drown slowly and beautiful in all times and places.

Figures

Figures that surface
Now and then
In verse and song
My verse and song
O let them come
When they so desire
At times
Immense of quiet
Bring
At times celestial fires.

We ate dry bread
You and I,
My Monsignor that Was yesterday
Today
We go a further step
We eat black bread
Of misery
And hear the fugue Sad and loser
Of burrowed graves In camps and Human hands that throw Human sacred bodies in The troughs:
Then cover them with Dug-up soil:
I dreamt
You dreamt, my Monsignor What ugly dream to dream!

But we
We Monsignor are now Almost in competition
For such dreams
We dream and dream
Our body sweats
Our arms
Our mouths sub-conscious Sigh
Sub-conscious of a sudden
We Find ourselves
Half-risen on our beds
With
The first dim line of light Of consciousness just Breaking!
Dawn peeps through the chunks
Of the closed windows:
There’s another day!

Figures Saw He Dancing

He rose up
Suddenly:
And the other Rooms he lighted
Found.

Looked at his watch
Time: Midnight plus
The deep of night.

And figures Saw he dancing in Those rooms:
He touched his eyes
Better to see!

Grey to black shades
He saw Dance silent
Yet as in a trance

As he approached Fearless
They faded slow
The color went
And they with it
And he stood there Alone and jaded!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Finding Sea-Shells After Dawn

After dawn
Barefoot still in the Autumn cool
Over the welcome pebbles
The girl with golden hair
And the white dress
About her went Looking for sea-shells.

No,
Not romantic, but cool
Of temperature and Waters soft
That to the feet
In welcome rose and Rolled.

The winter
That rolled waves above
The pebbles
Adding roaring of pebbles to Roar of waves and spume
No,
No that winter was not come
For
Autumn had to make its case
Well in the Court of Climes:
And
Yielded not an inch.

The ever-rising sun
Will soon
Dispel the girl and The sea-shells that remain Will breathe in quiet
In the rays of day.

Yet
She will come again
After dawn
Barefoot still in the Autumn cool
Over the welcome pebbles
The girl with golden hair
And the white dress
About her went
Looking for sea-shells.

Burning in the bellies of the Earth
For there be so much vastness
That
There be more than one belly Burning sadistic and By random chance Vindictive in its wrath Strong on the hammer-anvil
Of History:
I look all stunned
I hear the fires
And my soul
Is captivated:
Fires
Burning in the bellies of the Earth

Five Years Ago

A day was much Five years ago
Today
I fear the escape of Time and Age.

In the night
The Soul wanders
For I let it free
To roam and wander in Chance and probability.

I captured a cloud
My subconscious

And as a hummock on I sailed Flying carpet nocturnal
I fear the escape of
Time and Age.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Flat the land lay to the edge of the sea and tufted the fields to the wind open lay and passage to them free turned in the day, the mud of life the clouds of lead, the mists of fire, the cries of every wound of Earth and strife.

small the hiss of grasshoppers sings high the cliffs rise, though flat the island lake in the middle, jungle noise that rings.

Flicker

Flicker
Lights of town
Lights over the sea
Lights rare over country spread Lights of stile Lights of fields Lights of moon

Entering the fissure thin
And hideous high
In old Mtahleb.

Emmanuel George Cefai

Float Body - Float Over The Seas!

Float body - float over the seas!
The moon is clouded
Tonight
And frowns

Not weak light
But less
There be the iron curtain of the dark On sea and land
On town on country
Everywhere
The dun of sadness and
The groan of ghosts.

Shadows that creep
Grey on sticks
Wolves that haunt Stealthy
Amidst graves and tombs
Float body - float over the seas!
The moon is clouded
Tonight
And it frowns

Flower In A Park

A flower in a park Surrounded by The cries and shouts
Of joy
Of lovely children
Romping in the partial sun
Dancing therewith.

Risen
From night's humility
The flower joys
And gives joy:
So we fallen
Should rise again.

A flower in a park
Surrounded by The cries and shouts
Of joy
Of lovely children
Romping in the partial sun
Dancing therewith.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Flower Of The Bastions

Flower of the bastions always face up struggling to keep from falling through your nails and claws:
always face upwards upwards to the heavens dawn, early day and day, glory of noon, afternoon, dusk, you all experience
and then and then the splendid beauties of the night all nights all seasons
all days
till bending slow and to you imperceptible
you pine with age wither in sorrow sing as the swan in the last funereal dirge and elegy:
then
fail your nails and claws and down the bastion heights hurled and falling upheld by kind Zephyr winds a-mourning

Emmanuel George Cefai
Flower Of The Sea

A fish that gives The images of a flower
A shade
A lampshade.

You flutter through The liquid bubbling Pumping in and
Out
You travel

You more than the Flower of the earth
Have no feet yet Travel.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Flower Of The Wide Open Mouth

Flower of the wide open mouth
Lips red with wine’s hot bout
And smoking mists that the chill rout

O pain and despair is our lot And anger deep, too deep inflames Within me all fires of despair.

Winter after winter passed and failure my sad companion was and trembling
my blood

Emmanuel George Cefai
Flower Of The Wind

Flower of the wind
There be no wind
This dusk

Flower of the dusk
There be no dusk
That has since passed

Flower of the night
Ah! time's in flight Towards the coming Dawn
- As is the night!

Flower of the Towns
For the country Exchange your place
And with it a thousand crowns!

Flower of the Sad
You will last ever
To Beauty wed.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Flower Who Moment Of Chill

the moment absolute specific there you crystallize
there you be beauty-frozen

the path of the ice broken

the moment absolute
specific
there you crystallize
there you be beauty-frozen

Emmanuel George Cefai
Flowering

After a day of flowering
The petals close Close gracefully
The voice in
As direct proportion First hoarse
Grows
Then more and more Parched and stifled:
Till
The Poet Seer speaks not The Poet Seer versifies not The Poet Seer chants not After the flowering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Flowering Of Song

Flowering of song
Yet
Flowering of beauty
A level ascends
And then
The flowering of love
The birth
And life.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Flowers And Petals

Flowers and petals
Flowers and petals
They fell Fell from the ghost machine Fear was on their faces Pallor was on their faces
Yet
On their lips played Smiles one after
One:
The Dawn has come with Gold.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Flowers And Sex

Flowers and sex
Reproduction and will
The carriage turns Around wildly Wildly.

They found the boy
Then
They Quarreled
And Disputed
About
His genesis

'Where did you come from?'
Asked the Monsignor

'I will write off that,'
Said the Poet Seer.

'I like his verses quite Let me enjoy them Leave issue collateral aside'

Emmanuel George Cefai
Flowers In November

Flowers
That were placed in November
Last year:
The grave was still
And cold
And
You
And
I
At that time Though not
Of the gales and Floating rains
And lightning
And thundering
That passed over the flowers
Where will I find them
If I go
Now?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Flows The Water Slow Yet

Flows the water slow yet steady in under currents flowing twilight-red as the dusk lengthens
over the bastions walls and the ancient city:
flow the waters slow yet steady.

the old oak to-night on the waters flows
objecting to human eyes,
curious human eyes,
my mother, the old oak now rides the waves

On the shorn bough of the old oak no birds nor rustling but boughs and leaves dream silent as they sail through the old Port out, out into the deep seas open
immense

and the night beckons here
here
only the night beckons above the moon and the white stars and tempest kept in check by gloom
herself

flows the water slow yet
steady in under currents flowing
twilight-red as the dusk lengthens
over the bastions walls and
the ancient city:
flow the waters slow yet steady.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Flows Tonight

The air
It flows tonight

The thought
It flows tonight

And there's air and thought
Flowing
Together this night!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Flu

Desperation
Lead eyed Heavy breathing
Incessant coughing
What sleep
Tonight

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fly

Fly
Fly
Sea gulls of wrath
Your cry
Is harsh today
Your throat
Is parched
And yet you fly
And yet you cry

As a cutting knife Against the azure Sky Uttered one word
After the other
Your sullen angry cry

And
In the sullen angry cry
I hear
The wise voice of the wise
Who Mostly in cemeteries lie Still and alone by day Warning
To us, the uttered cry Unheeded goes
The sullen angry cry of The sullen angry sea-gull

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fly Lands And Time And Centuries

Fly lands and time and centuries they whirl around, we, humans statue-like, gape in wonder, and in the fires of the night-stars mirrors around us turn all giddying
while fly lands, time and centuries

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fly Of The Twilight Color

Fly of the twilight color

Antennae without head

Feet with wings still Growing
Growing

Night still breeding The terrors of the shrouds
The cries of Tenor-Ghost
The dread of suffering
The brink of Dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fly The Bats

In the night fly the bats
In colony over the large Cave.

They be propense to Cry not.
They fly low and wise.

The owls just underneath
From their sharp eyes and Ears observe.
Intake their wisdom, in part
At least, at last.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Flying Pigs

In the air Flying pigs
all of colors different they made a rainbow but disorganized another Babel
threw.

there were flowers hungering with open mouth though bending for night dews

Why be the night late as of to-night?
The manna of the dews
why be withheld?
Ah! Night sovereign-like asserts his prerogatives
absolute:
then
of a sudden rained to thankful whispers the manna of rain dews
the promised gift

And after all a prime Sovereign.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fog

For through the fog the introspection
The eerie eyes, thin and taut Like looking through a needle under fire
Yes
Yes I saw through the fog the introspection
The coming of the Figure Now it turned White, then
Black
Then White again, then Twilight like the fainting waves
When the red dusk starts lighting on the towns Panting the sunset out of country sides:
Yes
I loved the experience in that fog Heard the forge and bellows of the Earth Its heavy breathing
In its suffering:
Before during the Night it nursed itself:
Still wounded
Savage beast and raw, blood in its mouth,
And dripping from its teeth
The savage beast, this Earth:
I saw
Through the fog, the introspection
The eerie eyes, thin and taut and needle-thin.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Food Is Not For The Belly Only

Food is not for the belly
only

food is for the brain and then the brain eschews

the earth its flowers opens at
the dawn

and the sun lights the humans' ways alas! that so oft breaks the

day

alas! that sunset and red dusk so often cry and sigh for night to come fast and remain

Emmanuel George Cefai
Foot After Foot

Foot after foot
Pace after pace

In noble mien Uniform, from chance and probability With uncouth grace

So
So danced the ghosts
The shrouds

And hand in hand they stayed and danced.
The gruesome dance.

Emmanuel George Cefai
For All These Verses I Have Paid A Price

For all these verses I have paid a price that was not a pact with the Muse but I calculated that a price be paid and now that price is getting paid - and how!

the song arises slow and funereal - already!

already the blood flows the little blood that remained to the last, it stains, it calls, will call, for ever in Justice.

But that be all.

Beyond, peering as through a needle, eyes of a mysterious figure come

The end is here and the price is paid

Slow subsides the fugue, its job now done.

Emmanuel George Cefai
For Beauty

For Beauty
to bring forth
Beauty
a minimum you must do:
the baby is there and struggling to go out but you must help.
the same

Emmanuel George Cefai
For Good Measure

For good measure
How oft
We humans labor Realize
In our Sub-conscious
That That's enough Yet we pile on
And on
All for good measure:
And Till somebody Immortality
Bring
The piling be
As the piling of the dust
On the last coffin look In to the grave of terror.

Emmanuel George Cefai
For Graves

There’s a big hole
By the cemetery
They say it be
For graves.

At night
A Poet Seer
One night
Saw shadows Pacing

And graves and Tombs were open Till the dawn!

Emmanuel George Cefai
For Pain We Are In The Front Line

For suffering we in The front line.

And what reward is due
For this pain and suffering?

Emmanuel George Cefai
For The Sake Of It

For
The sake of it
We go
We trudge
To go away
From drear
And dreary day.

Benighted sounds Clanking and Rattling as the Bones of ancient Skeletons go round
And neigh as
The wind neighs
And round
And round.

For
The sake of it
We go
We trudge
To go away
From drear
And dreary day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
For The Years To Come

A reserve
For the years to come
Are Hoar
White-haired

Pointing

Stands Aloft

I

Kneel
Down
With Head
All
Bent.

Emmanuel George Cefai
For Time Was Deep

For Time was deep
And past and gone
See! The sunset is long passed Even the red dusk is deep And days were horrible Now of horror the apex Approaches: it be night.
See! The dark curtain in the heavens Already formed beckons with The first star light and the uneasy Flowing of the weak moon's light.

Time here on this Earth
What was it
But just a string of sufferings?
Defeat after defeat, tragedy upon
Tragedy:
Of disappointments I have had a Share all disproportionate and vast:
What remains then?
Tell me what remains?

My verse was there, my chant and Song from often a parched throat Burning with pain
And suffering:
That was there, but even so,
This Earth has made secure A worse disappointment when She wove the garb
Of cruel oblivion for such labor done
And hours long and days and months And years of suffering.

Earth covers all that remains Perhaps
My worst it will preserve and fix Impaled head to a pole for all Eyes' sight.
Was not what was done not Enough?

But the worst of the worst
Was her weaving of the cloth And net
Of stark oblivion:
In retort and disappointed thus Working on an Immortality
I suspended then
For I saw that worthwhile
That I saw
To do and live experiencing.

There be the dryness
Now
That I feel from The hunger and the thirst
She left me in:
Yet
In the Heavens there be a hand
That will Justice do Centuries and more
But will be done.

Where to breathe all the day
And think of Ideas great serene Though in a few own acres
Roaming:
Come the noon
And you will break some humble Bread and sip some wine:
Then
To a deserved nap - not lazy
For Arisen soon,
To further work of excellence
And suffering I hie Till end of day will close My book of happy toil and work.

Ah! that be what be wanted Desired!

Away!
Away from rising with a head of Thoughts
Away from sighing the first word Of waking
Away from tossing in sleepless
Nights
Away from dreaming horrors in The tired times

For You Verse And Song

For you verse and song
I fled the fields of love the fields of descent in these days:
for you.

Emmanuel George Cefai
For You, My Monsignor,

For you
For you, my Monsignor,
Who
Have not been intoxicated
In work
Day after day
And at dawn, every new dawn
From the dawn till the fast night When wanes red dusk Wanes day's light
For a while, my Monsignor,
My unfateful and rote life Adopt you Stay still midnight
And still more Think and write
Then all tired switch day's light.

Forest

Forest
That Winds Thick
And Foliaged
Even
When
In
The Chill
Of Night
The Leaves Bend Humble
In Nocturnal
Chill
tremble

Forged Together

Forged together
We
Forged under the throes
Of sacrifice
Under the whip of
Frost
There was Destiny the Master
He was a cruel Master
Yet
He was a good Master too:
For Forged together
We
Forged under the throes
Of sacrifice
Under the whip
Of him

Emmanuel George Cefai
Forgive me
If I depict in repetition
If I speak in repetition And if in repetition sing
I
I am and must be too
Sing and versify
Of so many same Things over and over again
A mirror of humanity:
You
Will understand
Forgive me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Forgive Me Forgive Me

Forgive me
Forgive me
For My raw and heavy words
Forgive me
Forgive me for my sad dreariness
For my critique of Earth
For my strong words
But Once we come unto the Earth
All of us merit who have done Something:
Even the least is a child of the Earth.
Nobody.
Over no human
The curtain of the Earth must fall.
Over no human Must cruel oblivion its heavy cloths
Lay
And cover the faces of her sleeping Children
They sleep and now their works
The Earth must uncover and Promote:
Otherwise Earth does them injustice
And
More Earth does injustice to herself.
And her other children.

Forgiveness - Not Amounting To Pity 0h

Forgiveness - not amounting to pity 0h forgiveness that be greatness that be suffering that be your greatness mother
now
that in you Spirit greatness
you have the power to forget
and obedient to the One who on the Cross forgave you forgave!

Fortunate The Time, Hear!

So often we embark on voyages of Gloom and yet just in those moments right below the depths lie the gold chests!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Forty Two Days

You Mother closed your eyes
That was
That was forty two days
I suffered
So long forty two days
The suffering I suffered
And will not versify.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Forty Years Ago

Forty years ago or so we danced and sang

Pop music in our hearts pop lyrics and pop verse on out tongues

yet even then the Muse visited me bringing a greater verse more beauty
- her fit of jealousy!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Forward
Forward
Take us our feet
They be so constructed Our face must Always look Into the Ever-expanding fire
Of Evolution ever-increasing

Emmanuel George Cefai
A fossil burnt
As glow-worms Burn

It burnt
From centuries
So long!
So many!

Hidden it had Remained
Till the summer heat
Had it unearthed
From the harsh confinement.

No human was around.
Quiet the night strode
The plain
In quiet thinking.

Below
The sea waves burnt
To rise
Over the giddying cliffs
The walls of History.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fountain Gray And Lonely

Fountain gray
And lonely
Of the night
Beneath the watchful
Eyes
Of Fort Saint Angelo
In the middle of the Sea and waves Blooming
Spuming

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fountain Of Night

Fountain at night

We sleep, we dream

We toss into the bed

You rise slow and tired
To the moon

Emmanuel George Cefai Fountains Of Delight

I dream
That I see
A world, a civilization
I will
I love

And Then
That world,
That civilization
In my verses Transforms.

Fountains of delight
Stars of light Dawns unlocked and bright Eyes dazzled and clear Faces change to joy with tears
And a happy violin
A happy violin plays Taking off
A little
At least, little
Of the drear of the days.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Four Thousand Days Or Rather

Four thousand days or rather Three thousand days – ten years:
My mother is already eighty-seven
And she is well nigh blind:
And she decays now day by day:
What will be in four thousand days
And three thousand days or more Or less?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fox Of A Burning Fire

Fox of a burning fire
Through hoops by witches Made you passed Examinations passed.

Five thousand lines and Verses will I to Distribute and cry
A scream up mountain heights

The hills will echo and After them chronological
The coves and then the caves
And then the bosomed Ocean-Sea.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fox Of A Comet

Fox of a comet
Trailing Into a night
Of Frozen icicles Blazing
Of Heaven's guns Relatives of Stars Thwarted from
The beginning of New dawns
Lulled
To a tricky sleep
In depths of dusks
And
Mesmerizing of twilights
Day after day
Year after year
Century after Century

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fox Of The Wild

Fox of the wild that bayed
the night
and in the dawn early dawn in the direction of the city-town sped restless and hungry were you not sated?

night did not provide prey or not enough?

desperation makes the fox run inside the city-town:
the wild is left behind him but for convenience only - the raw shines in his eyes

Fragment By Fragment Is Equivalent Of Bit By Bit

Fragment by fragment is equivalent of bit by bit Equipollent
Of the equivalent: the Same, the Equal, the All In One, the One in All, and the Relative:
These now all hang like on a Christmas tree
But this tree stirs when night throws out
The prying curiosity of humans:
Sit, sit, my Monsignor – they hang On a genealogical tree of Proportion.

Another subtle censure?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Free To Run And Sing

good day! to sing
free to run and to look at the seas smiling in the first lights of the day, smile, smile...

car that passes high ah! seen by the eyes of the Poet Seer
it be dawn!
and the car on which King Night had lighted all the stars car that passed high where goes it?

to be fast to be slow perhaps in some eastern cave hidden it joins her lord
till little before dusk its wings fly off again...

Freezing Night

In the freezing night of winter an old woman bent under her age and illness crawls

In her hand she holds a cane supporting her.

Slow
in the thin snow she draws
herself

In the night
by midnight
only the owls and nightingales
shudder.

Look! the woman
falls blood from her nose stain drop by drop
and slow
the white snow mantle.

And face upwards
unmoving
to the heavens
the aged woman stood with open eyes.

Came pitying owls and nightingale a squirrel warmed her a hedgehog guarded her
Yet
she moved mot
the old woman with the cane and she relinquished the cane

Then
mourned the owls and
nightingales
the squirrel and the hedgehog

Alone
and suffering this Mother born young and strong fell in the snow to fade

Yet the winds neigh her name
and the leaves rustle and from the eyes of the Heavens a tear drops of the old Mother:
and
yet the winds neigh her centuries and years years and centuries and when rare snow falls it bear rare drops of blood.
And the Heavens mourn
With broken heart
And the Heavens mourn
The hapless Mother.
The Heavens of the Broken heart
The hapless Mother.
Mother!
Mother!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fresh Youth I Like You In My Heart

Fresh youth I like you in my heart
Have to bear green trees and shrubbery Fresh and cool besmirched with morning dew:
I have still to reproduce to make my child:

My lady-love, companion, mother of the child Have I to happy make in full permanence Till I our child have made, at least.

Continous evergreen my heart has to be Continous has it to hear
The rustlings of the boughs in its woods continuously.

My child has to be made before born.
And to be made the mother has to see As in a mirror all at her display
The genes like cards I on the table lay She then re-arranges, packs, re-distributes And at the end refutes or else accepts.

That sentence is the destiny of our child.

Fain would I appeal if negative it be But ah! if my lady-love accepteth me Then let’s abrogate appeals and after-thoughts.

Emmanuel George Cefai
said
the discalced friar peering his head out of his cell into the strait and narrow street
back of the convent how the stars shine to cool waters drink and sober wine invite they yet here voluntarily
penance and suffering me to genius lead and glory.

lo! here the painting
be ready before the burning stars are out, all out.

mark,
mark as closed the day.
heavens have cleared the clouds ferret away and only Spirit-Soul
hovers.

Emmanuel George Cefai
From Far Away Come I

‘From far away come I
And ah! the land’s so far
So far
The land, so grey and
Drear
The skies, the heavens:
And yet one day
The skies, the heavens
Will open up Will smile:
But I will then have come You see the land already be Be far away:
For
From far away come I
And come here to rest
At last, the last, come I.’

Emmanuel George Cefai
From Homer and the Bible he sang inspired

from Shakespeare Ronsard and Dante verses he donned then further to our times he turned with Shelley, Byron, Burns, Keats, Lermontov, Pushkin, and the rest then to the eastern plains he looked again with Tyutchev and with Pasternak then to the glue of his experiments mixed me Eliot, Pound and all the rest

From Silence To Silence Flies

From silence to silence flies
the rock was struck with iron from its sides
waters
spurt from everywhere

From The Distance We Could View

The turning light that lit in part
Our view
Increasing our will and desire
To reach the burning fire.

Red blue and yellow turned The light and other colors too Revolved before us advancing
Fast
Marching, marching, marching

Under our feet we felt, we heard The crackling sere leaves crushing Screaming their screams at our Hurting them in that partial dark When in the high heavens passed A bat that screamed out flown
By a mute silent lark
That sought its home by dark

For we humans were
Why
We were marching, marching, marching
Always
In an approximate straight line trudging With lanterns
The light that turned and a weak moon
And even weaker stars in misty haze
For we humans were Marching, marching, marching.
Around the scents of wild leaves And bushes sleeping
In the subconscious aromas
Dreaming
Dreaming
dreaming

And
From the distance we could view
The turning light that lit in part
Our view
Increasing our will and desire
To reach the burning fire.
For this be life
And let this be life, my Monsignor.
For
From the distance we could view
The turning light that lit in part
Our view
Increasing our will and desire
To reach the burning fire.

Emmanuel George Cefai
From The Emanations Of Energy

there is a hum
a distinct hum a Poet Seer recognizes alone, alone and sad I walk Walk in the cemetery and of my mother think.

How cannot I, my mother?

How can my verse and song be different?

My heart is relatively strong though rent.
And I hear energy emanating in the cemetery
though it be morn, a little after dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
A message from the heart Let it not be Less value
Than the message from the brain:
Nay
Let the message of the heart
Be the same as the message of
The brain
The message of the brain be The same as message of the heart
Then
Heart and brain will have Propensity to travel
And travel parallel.
*
You see
The tempo, the verse, and So many of the rest,
That you
In Principles and dogma Propense to encapsulate These be free
And fly as the wild cranes
Without Predisposition of direction
Without Prior calculation
But
Fly as life flies
In chance and in probability!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Evening that shines Stars jewels of the Eyes of heaven
Brimming tearful
At end of dusk

Scraps of verse
Here and there Leftovers
By Chance and Probability Jewels in a leopard's
Eyes
-

Night dust flew
And night dust shone In top
The sweet country lanes
Those lanes That legend has A running horseman
Straight over the cliffs Unto the seas,
The wide dark seas
Where Dawn beckoned
And lay waiting Hour by hour
Wise as Penelope
With patience
Her time biding

Forgotten lanes Strait and dirty
With clanking doors Houses small
One two roomed
With many roofs Fallen in:
And beauty's sighs
At night
So many sighs
So many
-

Swollen wound
Of feisty flesh
Now rancid Putrefying
Stinking

the throbbing
the vulcan of ever-increasing ever-combining biochemistry

Emmanuel George Cefai
From Town To Town

From town to town Roaming
Though
In his heart
He feels the pain
Of a heart attack Approaching its Tenth year.

Yet
He gathers up In pain
And roams
From town to town
Like to a beggar
He begs the universities
To give him just one lecture To all the students Gathered.

But Once gathered
There was just silence
As
The Intellectual spoke
The short fat man of flesh
A giant in the heart Colossus in the brain Colossus relative.

And
Once
The lecture finished
After the usual
Ovation standing
The Intellectual Humbly disappears
And
To the next universities And lectures Prepares his way.

Thus
He Prepares a web of links Brings
Himself to all Earth
All that he has
He shares

And Humans hear.
And
Time will come When in awe
Humans
Will but utter his name.

Frontage Of Ancient Houses face and frontage of ancient houses in a line

passes ruthless by straws that burn

temples of waters in waters reflected

Emmanuel George Cefai
Frosty Scowl

From the frosty scowl came The drear, the humdrum of the day.
For
They sung not, nor Joyful as children with smile
On faces they roamed about Earth.

Furrowed and scowling too
Grew
The face of the scornful Earth Angry
By vesper-time and
First hours of the reign of Night.

The doors
Slammed and closed.
The lights went off.
The humdrum day had at Least finished to yield To the misty silences of Rotating figures nocturnal Not joy but at least Shiver of the spine
The thrill of night
The stars
The moon
Conquerors of the humdrum Conquerors of the dreary.

Frowning Moods

frowning moods
brows that furrowed

toilers of the woods and gardens small around the city old sleeps the city old
sleep
the houses on Windmill Street
sleeps Hastings Gardens and its
trees
leave only the winds to rustle in them.
nightingales have fallen silent how energetic in the dusk they sang amorously!
how energetic!
now the power house of their
energy is moved away
now dark, and stealth, and shadows reign, prevail.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Frozen

frozen by the bones of the hand of the skeleton:
and neighed the wind
and neighed the wind
and the black statue on the mount covered with snow of white
fell on the snow of white and the snow of white fell block after block as the dominoes:
and neighed the wind
and
neighed the wind

Emmanuel George Cefai
Frozen Stars

Frozen Stars

These stars are frozen they are in ill-luck and out of favor with the hanging heavens.

Slow building, long suffering
yet
through these nearly fifteen years
the freezing grew little by
little.

The cup was filled line by line till brimming.

My heart tells me.
There is wealth in there,
there be arsenals,
but all be frozen.
That be the key to your unfortunate misery, unfortunate
Poet-Seer.

These are my stars,
the frozen ones,
an unlucky Poet Seer, with arsenals all frozen.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Fugue Of The Night

the fugue of the night
it began in the dusk anticipated star light and circled moon light

the fugue of the night
how sad it plays yet the heart delights in sad lays!

the fugue of the night
An orchestra that played An orchestra of Hedgehogs in Hastings Gardens played

the fugue of the night
the sea colors have now passed the brilliant decadence of twilight the sighs and the whispers however begin.

the fugue of the night
the wood animals and the wood birds they hear and their ears they prick as the smoke of the tune as
the dun of the notes wafts fading in night

the fugue of the night
how many times the nights played in old Valletta how many olden centuries

And olden houses and olden streets and alleys strait and ancient remember that fugue of the night heart broken Valletta, heart broken for centuries!
Funereal
funereal goblets full of poisons
glittering in the moon.

How glisten the colors of the poisons in the white stars' light mirrors!

Night is so.
And my Sub-Conscious prompts me to wake at night walk through the streets
alone
hearing the echoes of my paces
pace after pace.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Gale Struck

Gale struck

The seas and Oceans
Had already been in tempest

Wind gale force nine

House tops and chimney rattling Roofs shaking with cold

Trembling the panes and the Doors creaking

Yet in all this the humans be sleeping.

Gale for three hours

Tempest remaining but Dawn be Beginning.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Galloping, Galloping Night

The night is galloping,
Galloping
On a horse that was bronze And did move in the day.
The night is galloping,
Mane raised
Directionless and wild Eyeing now and then
The burning stars
The weakling moon Thoughts fly as Hoofs fly.
The airs turn even more
Chill
Frost and snow mix
Undeterred
The night is galloping,
Galloping
Deeper and deeper Faster and faster Directionless and wild Galloping.

Garrulous

Garrulous yet
In that garrulousness
What wisdom in the night!
The book of night
However
Was opened
Through
The occasional thunder-light
The rumblings
Of beauty and the deafening Waterfalls
That jump in the moon's Silver silhouettes rock
To rock
And scream the flying trout And sleepless bats
The night is wonders!
And
The nights
Lend themselves to the beady Rosary
Prayers on the penance monks Barefooted in the cold Midnight monastery
And
Then
The sudden glories of Awoken Dawn!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Gaseous Drink

I heard them drink a Gaseous drink

And just under the night stars
Whispering

I saw them then each other Approach

Embrace and then face to face Dance precise foot to foot so light Under the old oaks and under The bright moon's light.

A slender ghost from behind An ancient tree Took photos silent

Emmanuel George Cefai
Gaseous Night Looked On The Waters

Gaseous night looked on the waters from the dangling cliffs from the raging waters from the green mouths of the white spume:
from the hideous heights
a head floats below in the seas

Emmanuel George Cefai
Gaunt Paced The Shadows On The Walls

Gaunt paced the shadows on the walls
And thick the masonry ancient stood In that castle with an ancient curse.

Shunned by all, dread floated As mists in the heavy airs so far That miles away all humans stopped and turned.

Night braved the fears of the castle cursed And the moon fled not nor the stars That from their distances measured their safety

Pass: Machine
That ruthless moves
Round and round
The wheel
The cycle
And
We absorbed in it Move with the wheel
And cycle of life Helpless and irreversible
Just that, my Monsignor

Ghastly Shadows

Ghastly shadows
ghastly shadow passing grey over the wall
and
on your head the hat of the priest: I was confused in the sub-conscious it was
yet
woke I confused, in part of fear in part of joy.

ah! time made not priest of the altar, but priest of civilization yes!

and more.

For sufferings I had for the civilization I brought forth: suffering, martyrdom, oblivion even calumny.

What more my Monsignor?

A crown of thorns replaced the laurel wreath;
a cup of envy-poison the cup of Bacchanial mirth.

ghastly shadows

Ghosts And Shrouds

Of a sudden sung the skeletons
Of
Ghosts and shrouds
As Turkeys clustered in a room
Compressed

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ghosts Of The Spirit

Ghosts of the spirit
They Mischievous things flew Flew
Flew through the woods of Eden For so the desolate place was called Where a Styx-like river
Flew:
And Boreas like winds from the north With hail therein Blew, blew and blew:
And flakes of hail flew
Flew
Like particles of red fire from the forge
The bellows of the Earth Laboring in tempest:
It was to be expected after all In that harsh winter, yes, it was To be expected.

Gibbets, gibbets everywhere Hanging, hanging everywhere
In the plain

In the plain
All was black prone, all despair Prone

And there was drear
On the plain sad of sad and

More than it grieves:
A heart that pines
At the red dusk
That ecstasies at the new Dawn.

Give Me Freedom

Let me
Let me
Give me freedom
I want to sing
To-night
My verses on their Feet
Will cross
The strait and Quaint street
Off Saint Paul Street
At end
Of Saint Paul Street
To-night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Give Me Sleep

Give me sleep
Now
The closing of
Eyes
The slowing of Breath
The flow of
The sub-conscious
The whitening of
Night
And a long, long Hours of night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Give Me Some More Verses And Complete The Day.

Give me some more verses
And
Complete the day.

For
The day has been drear
The day has been seer

And
I wither as a crunched-up Leaf
That fallen sere
Has yet passed more time
In the frost
And
In the chill
And purple dooms
That light
The dusky dooms
Before the old knight
Comes.
Before graves yawn
And stir
Before the rise of Cemeteries
Before
Before.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Give Me The Light, At Least Some, From The Ghost-Light Of The Shrouds.

Give me the light, at least some, from The ghost-light of the shrouds.

Look how they swim into the sea at night,
This night

Look how others walk on to the sea, and The waves sing to-night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Give Me Work

Give me work
Do not give Money, dross
Coins or wealth
But only
Work Work
Work

Emmanuel George Cefai
Glacier After Glacier After Glacier

glacier after glacier after glacier
the tempest bound vessel of humanity went straight ice-breaking fearless and risking for what remains my Monsignor but to risk and risk and risk?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Glass Of Sand

Glass of sand
Falling
Blood falling
In the time-glass
Too.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Glass Shrine

Glass shrine
Before whom snakes
Hiss since the early dawn
Before the night was out.

Slow
The magmas rise
From Earth's interior Washes

Turbid
In the Earth's entrails
Yet Outside a calm Reigns
Earth's mask.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Glass Shrine II

Glass shrine
Before whom snakes
Hiss since the early dawn
Before the night was out.

Slow
The magmas rise
From Earth's interior
Washes

Turbid
In the Earth's entrails
Yet Outside a calm Reigns
Earth's mask.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Glooms

in the sweaty dusk the glooms gather over the plain cattle dot the growing

dark

waters gurgle
slow and

Emmanuel George Cefai
Glorious Rolling Lines

Not
Glorious rolling lines
And rising ends
In verse and song
Of absolute necessity
No,
Keep down,
Keep to just rarity.

The cycle turned Around Screamed
The wheel
As it was turning.

In the old monastery Amidst Gregorian chants
Of middle night
Of Silence,
Incense was burning

Emmanuel George Cefai
Glory Of Day

Till noon
The glory of the day
The zenith
Somewhat lifted him
Not
By the glory of it
But
By the passage of Hours away from Dawn
And nearer to Night:
Ah! we humans have grown Have become Controlled by Day
And Light of Sun!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Glow Worms

Waning
Rises
Still Procession Still
To See
In
The Dark
And
In
The Night Glow-worms Glow worms
As
In

Go Back

Go back – go back – to verse
That I wrote thirty years ago
And more:
But is this evolution? – asked my Monsignor Ah! this is revolution – said the Poet Seer

Emmanuel George Cefai
Goblins Everywhere

goblins, goblins everywhere in the green under the trees

in the waters mid-night
gleaming!

in the moon's lights spirit beaming!

another world alternative to the one that be on Earth alternative to here

and the people streamed in crowds
and the people out and out left the towns left the cities roamed all round

Emmanuel George Cefai
Goblins Green

Goblins green
Every where are seen In Hastings Gardens this night
Roaming the star-light Giggling to the moon?s light
A whole feast of them!
Merriment and silent song Whispered ear to ear Fruits they brought along In baskets special
And then hunger getting them To eat together social throng
They dance not in this night But roam, wander the light
That the moon and stars throw That seep through the high boughs
Of the old oaks, tall firs, Ah! mischievous goblins green All round the Monument
They gathered clambering Top middle at the base
No body stops their elfin glee

Gondola That Sails Silver Now

Gondola that sails silver now Gold then
On the small woodland stream Blessed by the moon’s silver
Lights:
And the night thrives
And the night goes
And the Dawn arrives

Emmanuel George Cefai
Good Evening My Monsignor

Good evening my Monsignor it be still winter and red dusk from home is relatively not so relevant reason is akin to tyrant-type uniformity
away
from that chance and probability the Fount of Chance and Probability from which gush as from the breasts of the woman milk for children:
there gush the waters whose clear beauty carries in it the genesis of ideas flowing new continual and ever-increasing at which Dogma finding herself cornered on her own ground flies away.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Gothic Castle

Castle of ruins – yet dreams of continued birth!
Though part by part fall every now
And then
The dreams like the mists round it Rise and rise
And multiply as humans multiply

O! that we humans, we in the least As this Gothic castle!
At least what we lose on one side Would on the other be gained and More, more than gained, my Monsignor!

How thunder vibrates in your roots, Gothic castle of foundations Ancient as ancient roots,
Despite
The general dilapidation, yet,
Yet
Holding grimly in the mother Earth.

We too,
We humans must hold on to our roots,
Not
In the general revels of evolution Our heads grow so much That we lose hold on our roots.

Who loses
Holds on his roots will slide slow At first Then deeper down and faster:
So with us humans:
To this we will be condemned.

Therefore humans let us amend;
Let us look at nobility in the face Let a percentage always be conserved Of the old ancient past that Of all evolution root strong be must.

Falter not human, as the Gothic castle
Be:
See how many tempests, how many Nights when thundering tore
The Earth and ripped the trees
And yet
The Gothic castle still stood grim With white face yet brave
In that wild feast of lighting,
Orchestra
Light that comes and goes, so fearful!

You too, human Must read and must act.
To read and no to act be not enough;
It will increase the pain
It will increase the resentment
When the moment of collapse comes.

Therefore human and Gothic castle Be as one:
Even in the shrouds and ghosts
That come at night to mourn and To lament:
Then with them in one general call Your cry to heaven will rise
A call of Justice to the Earth And a new Dawn that will soon come Tempests that abate Peace, Dawn, Day that come!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Gothic Shade

Gothic shade you Love that nook
The same nook in The wintry moon.

The silence
Drowses as the chloroform.
Waters propense to freeze.

A blue violet Grows wild hidden and bent.
The frost discovered her

Emmanuel George Cefai
Gown

In the yellowish gown Tarnished Tarnished with so much wearing The beast came tearing Across the earth leopard-like It roamed savage and proud:
And arrogant:
And the moon panted out Its breath
In fear at the arrogance:
For arrogance on one side Breeds
Fear on the other: a saw?
Rifle-thin and cutting bayonet-like The blinding light, the clap,
The rolling, sound that drawled,
The magnificent, unique thunder.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Grains Of Time Slip – I Stand Like A Fool

Grains of time slip – I stand like a fool
Or like a phantom for my cheeks grow white The clock is nigh to strike mid-night
And elves and goblins wild will soon teem here.

The water-mill is running with subdued
And ever-decreasing water-gurglings-low Still the glow-worms amidst the grasses shine Like distant planets in cloud of gas
And elves and goblins wild will soon teem here.

Ah! beauty to wrinkles turneth: strength To trembling palsy turneth irreversible:
And high - on high the north star shines and smiles:
The village-church and village-homes slumber And cats and dogs and hens and geese And sheep and all the rest founder in sleep
And elves and goblins wild will soon teem here.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Gramophone Of Centuries

the gramophone of centuries
past

a future a dream a Soul spleen:
I stretch my hands high to grasp the future
I grasp

Emmanuel George Cefai
Grating On Our Souls

The grating on our souls
And us
Continues and continues

Once born
It has not stopped for us!
But beats us in the face
As the sun forceful.

No, I will go To live in
To the Town of Sorrow.
There
There will be cooler airs
Less grating.
Though their will be Sadness.
I will mix it with Nocturnal silence.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Grave

The Grave
The Symbol
Must
We
Not Move
It?
Must
We Remain Succumbed
To
Its Shade?
The Winters
Weep
Over
The Graves
But Immortality
Shuns
Them.
For
In
The Heart
Of Immortality
Burns
The torch
Of Heart Throbbing
And
We Have Lit
The First Flame
Of Immortality
Then Suspended
It.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Grave The Trees Mourned.

Grave the trees mourned.
White the wind sang.
Dark along the steep
And weary cemetery road.
And it was night.

The graves sat still.
The dark played round
The marbles chill
And the small plaques.

Grave the trees mourned.
White the wind sang.
Dark along the steep
And weary cemetery road.
And it was night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Gray Figure That Paces

Gray figure that paces
Restless
I saw you in my boyhood Pacing against the wall
The shadow
The silhouette
And it was grey
And drear night on its way
Was without stars:
Yet restless
Grey the figure paced
Restless
I saw you in my boyhood Pacing against the wall

After all
So manifold
The ways of sorrow
So manifold
The descent of the suffering

Great Edgar Allan Poe

Great Edgar Allan Poe so dreamy
In his greatness:
For so in love with that word
Dream
He precisely reads both Earth
And Universe and Brain:
Albeit through intuition:
And according sings.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Great Waves Of Mists

There were Great waves of mists
And celestial body dust
Passing
As the rains fall
They moved throughout The heights
In rhythmic dance
In uniformity:

There were the nights.
These were
The thrills.
The waters stood Transfixed
Dancing round Castles:
The salt was fresh
So Fresh
You would wipe it at Your mouth.

There must be
At least
And there was The at least.
Furniture and waters Blew niter
they were of heaven and they
were
of earth

O happy sloth Dreamer
Of empires Genesis of Tongues
Of prophecy
Then Firmer tongues:
philosophy/

Till science do us Part
They became One of it
Too.

Shuddered the teeth
As
Trails and silhouettes Of ghosts and Lovely shades:
Glades plush and slothful
There was here
Marion, I saw her
With half her teeth,
A maid,
Left on the shop rack,
So to say cruelly,
Yet
Still so beautiful cunningly!

There was still a tree
That in the garden
Had not resigned
To rest
On it a whole orchestra of Birds
Sounded Played
Still Still Still.
It was
The tree of nightingales
The tree of owls not Singing
But utterers of wise Saws:
Other birds gathered
Though
Not so numerous as of A kind:
Around the garden
Stretched
Its perimeter of lamp-posts Round stood the houses
And
They were clanking.

Gregorian Chant

Rang the Gregorian chant

Around the people looked and Stared vacant

A cluster of crickets Unwanted by the Night
Burnt at the stake
Of thorny bushes

A boar with red restless breathing Passed by

An ox had Been on the assume trail Since early dusk
Though red of dusk
Through
Fading of dusk
Then
Faded itself.

Pique was on the dusty roads Between whom?

The stars and the moon?

Follow disruption of nights Breaking of the panes of Reference frames

IN an existential dimension

Grief!

that was what echoed in my brain.

thought that followed on thought in Dantesque train.

that night I slept it rained and thunder woke me through the window-panes the white light flashed over me and went.

I woke in terror.

Grief!

Grim

Grim Came the verses
Yesterday
Though it was night
And night was soft

Silky
The air flowed and in Between the rocks and In the caves
Entering it sighed
And whispered
Conspirator of the night

Canine in caves
Some rocks jutted.

The day was far:
The reign of Night Kept Dawn away Slighted the Dusk
To fading.

On his head Night kept his crown Sometimes with Strong hand
Despite the winds Blowing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Grit And Cobbled Stones

On the grit and cobbled Stones that led To the beach pebbles
The swooning Soul
Lay upwards

Gruesome Carnival Nocturnal

I was in it.
For I had Dressed myself
A Centaur in the Motley crowd.

Squirrels and hedgehogs
Bones and skeletons Lizards erect, walking Glow worms of the night And flowers bent and
trudging
Figures dark and folded
So many, so many
So many, so many

All joyful
In the stealth of night
All guilty
As if stealing life.
All gruesome
To each other's
Head
Not speaking:
All
Following all
As be impelled
And I
I Following too
My Inner Soul
In to gruesome carnival
And march Melted and became
AS one
With It,
The gruesome carnival.
Grumbling Our Way

Gyrate And Go

Round and Round
The circular Round the clock-hand goes
And goes

As it with pressure
On their toes
The hands wild
Gyrate and go.

Then they stopped.
For they saw
Me
And to salute me
They stopped
Their gyrations circular And out of the clock they Popped Waving Waving Waving hands

Ha! How Many Fears Will There Be

Ha! How many fears will there be How many frights! A whole year!
And I will rise from this drudgery?
Behind the bars of Misfortune,
I in the Prison of Misfortune dwell Just as in other prisons, if not worse.

Habit Of Sweet Kisses

into the habit of sweet kisses
now
I have grown wild and tied blindfolded to rotating
love:
here and there I hit
and instead of pain sweet joy I find:
so thrive

and you Venus lovely too
though my maid be as white and as lovely too.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Had I For Long Years Despised All Witchery

Had I for long years despised all witchery
And feared witches’ brooms and witches’ flights More than the fires of hell, Siberian frosts.
But now by necessity in corner brought What hath I despised so and formerly Now dearly want and long I for the call Of witches meetings in the silent night
When silent fauns dance and dark frogs croak That might I know and learn what love And my heart’s beatings point and indicate Yet in their throbbing utter fail to show:
Thus blinded I to witches’ cottage go
What hath I despised so and formerly Now hold to my heart embracing full.

Ah! Necessity, necessity

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hail Mist Of Night! Though Mixed In Light

Hail mist of night! though mixed in light Of the benign moon therein it hides
The first of seven wonders you will see:
Lo! Merlin emerges from the mist
With book in hand and magic wand.
He speaks not: but shakes his wand
And from a mist another mist is born And Aeolus emerges with a lute in hand.
Look! Soon the airs will change, faster
The winds already blow, though not a tempest,
The neighing of the winds around the bastion-walls Makes magic melody unheard by human ears
And this is all for you.

Lo! the trees shake, how tremble slowly the leaves:
As when the cymbals in fast numbers flow So the leaves tremble in their sound as The new winds flow through them:
There is a music in that colonnade Of firs and oaks. And magic reigns The colonnade
Lights of itself by magic hands invisible.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Half Moon

Half moon
The verses once started Keep coming as flowing Water kept coming stained With blood of ancient warrior-men Moaning and Rattling of skeletons Dour light
In the red dusk mirrored Shines a magic twilight.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Half The Year's Past Said The Poet Seer

Half the year's past said
The Poet Seer

On a hard rock he sate and Stretched below the town And the white buildings Distant glimmering.

And little Little below the men around They sate to hear
They sate themselves.

For
Half the year's past said
The Poet Seer.

Two days more and we be
In to the other half Albeit this year!

And we have survived for one Half
But ah! how must we Strive
To go the other half!

As going to wars
As going to the jousting tournament Where a victor smiles
And
Another motionless lies.

There we be going.

The heart only holds But beats
Throbbing
Throbbing.
The times frown as dark clouds
And more.

And the day bends her
Head
And the first chill feel I
The Poet-Seer
Said.
And sighed the crowd that
Heard.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Halloudi The Greek

Out of seas Halloudi the Greek
Came

Laden with wares
In his cart Drove he.

‘Out of the seas
From a land by the seas These be’

So said he
And chanted merrily.

Some of those passing Stopped
Then saw

Then gathered round
And looked and looked And picked now this Now that

Then some – just some They bought
‘How much?’

‘Ah! those things priceless be For they be of the sea
But for you just an euro passes’

‘Euro! ’ they exclaimed And bought

Of those who bought many Fell wondering Spoke words wise but not As before:
Said their friends
‘Halloudi! Halloudi the Greek!’

‘Let’s go to him!’, ‘and marched Then in a stairs to a wooden bridge They found Halloudi curled Like a sack and he moved not Touched him they and he Moved not Shook him they and he Moved not Mourned they:
‘Halloudi! Halloudi the Greek!’

Hamlet Of The Ghosts

Hamlet of the ghosts
Town of lamentations
Nocturnal

Bones
Scattered in the dust
Of footpaths.

Bighi lights
Come
Go
And ghosts and shrouds
Go round and round
Dantesque circle
It be night
Nocturnal the spell
Nocturnal the dance!

Paces
Pace after pace
Drop after red
Drop
Of blood
Falling
Falling
Falling

Into the silences of Still emotions Still not asleep
Pace after pace
Drop after drop

Bighi lights
Come
Go
And ghosts and shrouds
Go round and round
Dantesque circle
It be night
Nocturnal the spell
Nocturnal the dance!

Chains
Chains moving Chain after chain
Moving
Cars starting
I looked from the window
It was night
And no car in the street Was moving.

Vampires Night bats Dracula Teeth Teeth
Teeth dripping blood Corridor of drop after drop of blood Bath of blood and water

Lights
Lights that come
And go
Intermittent Pulpit of a ghost
That preached fearlessness
Even though Dawn
Was coming in from the Gothic window slits
And the first lights were Brimming.

Decay and age
They in a corner stood Danced in the night
In the small church
By candelabras lighted dim
The sovereign Principles.
Snake that hungry
Out over the dust and Humus Crept in to the church
To look for food and Found
Cockroaches paralyzed in fear Asphyxiated in that paralysis Of fear
As we, as we humans
Then having had his fill The snake slid out
On his belly in the dust and Floor but fast
The snake
Slid as us humans.

Hands only
No figure
No body
No feet

The hands
The steering of the ship
The ship of night
Manned just by hands!

For ah!
In to the land of mists
It goes
And there
Hands only No figure
No body
No feet

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hands Stretched

Hands stretched
Hands stretched
On the deck of the heavens
To reach the night of stars
And of the voluptuous white moon

The dawn is sensuous turning and Overturning on her downy couch.

The day is closing
But
Till midnight deep Strikes
Its ominous peals
The day drags on:
The end still comes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hanged Man Where Are The Words

Hanged Man where are the words
That from the balcony you said?
And the crowds applauded?
This world works like that.
This machine
Draws us in it like a sump Like as if we put a hand in the Washing machine:
It minces us, it minces us

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hanging Bat

The Hanging Bat
He hanged
Out of his will Yes
He hanged
Clawing his way Desperate
Desperate to live
And thrive
As then so Many crowds
As the Hanging Bat.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hanging Cloud

A hanging cloud
Tonight
Over
The city frowns.
The red dusk it obscures.

The hanging cloud Lead colored and tank mannered Speak not But glares arrogant below.

I
I Poet Seer Exchange
Glances with her Glances unwelcome
But Undeterred
The Hanging Cloud over the City
Stays
Lets not go the rope of its intent To drown the tired city in The rains and tempests and the Gales
Look! They be gathering!
The leaves fly and whirl
Round
Others
From the trees and the bough Are stripped Cruelly
By the sadistic Hanging Cloud:
That’s the beginning:
Only
That’s the beginning
A new Dawn will then count
The harm of night.
Happy City Night

up the stairs Down the stairs through one street
another
on the yearning night-bridge the people came to old Valletta

even coming music in the airs floated
and the glance on the skies high with fireworks and colors
went:

the old arch of Valletta
felt underneath it pass and re-pass
the flow of thronging crowds who talked who drank who joked who more serious walked who in family who alone who in friends who in groups the large crowd swelled and chirped.

airplanes of colors bright and several passed over the skies:
the people looked the people wandered the people cheered.

Ah! how many days rare to the working crowds the crowds propense and determined to enjoy to their working days in as proportion direct.

Time came.
Time was.
Time flew.
The end of the festivities and shows at last though late
came.
the crowds that thronged as snow in the sun's
light began dissolve
till by the sea and shore not one pace made.

for me
life in youth was the opportunity after opportunity that I spurned for work I choose alas! too absolute.

and now
and now the payment for those times pay I the sad headaches the pierced heart the fierce despairs
all these remain
now.
these remain

Emmanuel George Cefai
Happy City Night II

The night is happy
Tonight
Gather
The Crowds
By
The Water Spectacles
Music bands on stages
The face
Of
The Old Fort
Burning
With image after image Projected:
The crowds
Chirp wild
And happy as birds Let out of their Cages:
Happy City!
Ancient town!
Splendid
Dazzled-eyed beauty!
Old Valletta!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hard
Hard on the night walls
We struck and knocked We knocked
Then
Seeing that the tower opened not We shouted wildly ‘Ho! Open! Open! ’ But silence was and silence still Remained.
That increased our desperation.
The more we knocked and shouted
The more silence
Stood.
Our misery grew cyclical.
And the night cheekily Withdrew its dark cape first to a Grey
And then to the white splendors of the Dawn
And we stopped knocking And we stopped shouting.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hard Work!

Hard work! Hard work!
Condemned full
All the years of all
My life
All the days
And
All the months
All the years
And more
And more
As a train that tired
Grows
As age more inside
It grows
Yet
In this cage of such hard work Since my boyhood I entered
And
I entered with my will Shut up the rest all outside Saw sometimes outside
But in The cage of work stood in
And
As these verses and these songs
Read you, friends,
As the Principles of the sciences
The plays, epics, lyrics throng Economics, social sciences all along
And the rest
That all points of civilization touch At its lows and at its best:
Remember this,
I have been for years all long As this
And will I think so remain In the cage of work and work
Hardens The Ice Under The Pinions

Hardens the ice under the pinions of hard-hearted frost and gales and winds hurled by Boreas:
but ah! your look freezes more than these more hurts, more hardens to its cold

Emmanuel George Cefai
Harp On The Ground

Harp on the ground
Heavy.
Lyre too Resting her head
On the soil
Dreaming
So long awaiting.

Behind
The coppice that
To the fast growing woods Arising high
And higher yet Transforms.

A Poet Seer Silent inspects
A few sea shells Brought Up by the sea-waves
And Ocean's roar.

Wanes the silent
Day.
The birds sing
Not
Though in the trees
They hibernate
One night at least.

And the owl
With her greasy eyes Looks far
Afar
Over the shore
Over the waves
The seas
The Ocean's gore.
Emmanuel George Cefai
Hasting Gardens

I came to Hasting Gardens now
Today.

For man the human has full right To breathe the air as free Always in life
And see the pining dusk Enjoy the night of stars
The winds, tempests and rain
The rising of the Dawn
These be Fundamental human rights
As any other and more.
They be too irreversible, irreplaceable and Unrenouncable.

And Therefore I hied me to these gardens
So to scent
In the wild scent of flowers and of
Trees
In to the cries and songs of owls and Nightingales
In to the sights of hedgehogs crossing
Fast
Between hedge and hedge along the Way:

Long have suffered throughout life Work nullified by malice, enemies Who lazy but malicious triumph,
To all length they arrive:
Together join
They have arrived, I not
And took by stealth
And I have lost through stealth What I worked for.
That’s part of Earth.
Here
Here in this temple of the Soul
My Soul finds rest
And wills the other Souls.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hasting Gardens Dance This Night

And the crowds sing - earth Rings!

And violins play - dusk Goes away!

And trees in Hastings Gardens dance
This night!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Haunted

Haunted
And Haunting
Beauty
In
Its dazzling eyes
Though
Night Lust for Next day
Next Dawn
Next light

Emmanuel George Cefai Haunted House

i.

into the haunted house before the first dusk
in the heavens
lit
they went inside.

ii.

creaked the old doors
and
as they passed they cut the cobwebs that for centuries hung how musty the smell of every room
the whole house rang as a whole sordid tomb.

iii.

came dusk and red then redder glared and redder
its cheeks blared
till
in the dark
outside all buried was in night and dim lit by star-light

iv.

now when the moon climbed over the clouds defeating
them
then light more white shone dim yet more in that house

v.

with them lights and lamps and torches brought
and every corner they espied more and more cobwebs in the way

vi.

no sound no sights
in that house
they wandered why it haunted was and how:
for nothing haunted had they seen all time

vii.

so stayed they whiling impatient hour after impatient hour
passed:
the old clock
midnight struck;
of sudden a sharp wind arose around the staircase and in the rooms around it shed its chilly hand
without a sound

viii.
looked they white at each other’s face of white: they felt the floors below move yet they saw no cracks in floors or roofs yet felt and feared.

ix.

till one shouted: ‘Look! ’ He pointed – and A pair of blood stained Hands Was moving slowly near Alone as cut: With scream they rushed Out of that house

x.

once out they breathed relief in the night air though chilly was: and as they closed the door inside they heard laughs horrid, screams thin and taut, creaks and language foul.

xi.

closed the door sped they together holding: and then soon in the welcome home and welcome bed refuge and safety sought till Dawn yet again announced another day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Haunted Nights I Have Grown To Love

Haunted nights I have grown to love Depart not with the winter, though Winter has not yet come but on the brink Wavers already in the drizzly rains,
And the occasional thunder nocturnal

Emmanuel George Cefai
Haunting

Haunting Haunting the winds
Tonight
See how even
The electric poles
Sing
And the wood are Sounding as the seas
Or as Father Ocean
When enraged he be
And restless.
Though frost and cold
And drizzles of rain Splice at intervals
The ghosts and shrouds
Together tremble
Set off
The cold with
The enjoyment of the mid-night scene:
And from afar
Not distant quite there Shines
In a hazy net of rain drops
Through a short fog Trembling and vivid and Naked in the night
Haunted and haunting
Old Valletta.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Haunting Bell

Haunting bell
There be a green dressed
Human
In the loft of the tower
There be a Poet Seer
Ring
Ring by night Haunting bell
And let
The shadows grey
Of ghosts and shrouds
The walls of the tower Stain
Haunting bell
There be a green dressed
Human

Emmanuel George Cefai
Haunting Fountain

The fountain haunts
And
There’s its freedom
It chuckles
It laughs
It weeps
It sings
It gargles thirsty as The summer rocks Before touched by The torrents of the rains
In winter.
The fountain is not Deep
But how The waters echo
Moved!
Thrills as cold and Snow and frost
Loud
As loud hailers or the Roaring frost
Or Ocean when aroused in anger Rolls:
For haunted Haunted be The fountain
Teems with spirits,
Nymphs, ghosts,
Shrouds and all
The rest
A motley crowd
Yet what a crowd:
They said
They saw old Merlin
There once too
And Paracelsus too;
And the Knights of the Round Table
Lurked
And once the sword Excalibur Stood up
Erect in it
Yes, my Monsignor
And looking on was kingly Prospero:
The haunted fountain!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Haunting Haunting

Haunting
haunting down the glooms

haunting
haunting
graves and tombs

cemeteries that light in the middle of a night torches that go round cemeteries held and bound by ghosts and shrouds

So verse speaks but ah! in dreaming

The Sub-Conscious further
speaks.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Haunting Lines

Haunting
Haunting lines
Haunting, haunting
Paradise
Of Cascading lines Glimmering in their Brilliance gold!

Haunting
What a word!
Even wisdom fore it Trembles
And Hope takes color To face
And the sick stir and Arise.

Haunting
That be beauty!
That be dawn!
That be brilliance
All forlorn
And see,
Beauty walks the streets
See who will, this very night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Haunting Moved The Figure In The Night

Haunting moved the figure in the night Trembled with fear the oak, the chill Gripped the tall fir, Trembled the ground of the garden
And the moon by small steps danced As many a night star
In to that haunted night
The haunting figure moving in that sight.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Haunting Nights

Haunting nights
nights Oriental scented-smoke
and the lights
that come and go
and the petals ope and close
haunting nights
nights Oriental
scented smoke!

Age is weary fading sadness even dusk turns to pining and madness serene night and the still moon brought not gladness.

in the temple monks scant colored censers move the smoke arises to the temple's roof
and heavens:
haunting nights
though not in winter
yet so long as Beauty thrives
haunting nights as well
as be in the heat of the wild summer!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Haunting Nights By Garden Scents

Haunting nights
by garden scents

to the brimming eyes looking to a cusp of stars that all white burn and shine bright

haloes that on land and sea restless sea
come and go

haunted trees by satyrs, fauns and no less the scarce-clad nymphs

and no less the sounds of night in the silence deep and loud Snores at times sovereign night laughs and chuckles the sweet Dawn then arising her from reclining in full beauty
hies to Earth.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hawk

Hawk
That flies
Along the barrier lines.

The seas grow white faced.

The water rise.

The rivers overflow.

The Dawn is on the warpath.

Emmanuel George Cefai
He asked me
The man with the bright eyes
He asked me:
Why speak you
So much of the night?

Pensive fell I
Then
With a spark
And as a spark Responded I:

'For night at least Opiates the material world Opiates the material powers Opiates the material soul Opiates the material cruelty Opiates the pains of injustices'

Emmanuel George Cefai
He brought a Torch
It was in hand
Trembling
Yet Strong he held
High
The Torch of Burning Light!

Wandered around
And roamed around
The neighing winds Almost gales
But the Fire only Grew and flew
And flew and grew!

Torch of the Burning Light
In heaven raised so high For all races and States Nations countries and men
For us
For humans
Torch of the Burning Light
The winds struggle around The ancients obstacles shore
And thousand and more
Burning irons prick
The aching feet to Torment and to pain
Suffering
Suffering
Lord of the savage ring.

Emmanuel George Cefai
He came from foreign lands
And in the silent
Mourning
Be the epilogue:
The curtain rent falls down
Ends human dialogue.

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Dips Him In The Night

He Dips
Him
In
The Night
And
In
That Water Becomes Mist Reversible
In
The Dawn
When Rises
He
To sing
The Lark
Of the Dawn
Skies!

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Drank

he drank and drank and shouted loud: Hurrah!
in his own tongue:
alone he sate and saw and
smiled
the sea before him stood and underneath the rock bound cliff
as a king he felt drinking the water drinking drinking till round he saw the fading sun turning and the clouds and bay arms
turning
turning
turning smiled he at first rose like a child but failed his feet
and fell
and he moved not and he drank not

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Feigned

He feigned
Weakness he feigned
And then
When the time came His strength he showed.

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Fell

He fell
All torn
All blood
First moved Moved slow
Then ceased

A withered field
Now seeping blood
Corpses and cadavers
A brown of red Thousands lay there
Not all in wholes

Dullness of thought Bleak drear of clouds Waning of day
Screaming of wraiths
The Earth feels sad
Today!

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Felt Behind Him

He felt behind him
The pawing above
And he recoiled
Till Habit made him Immune-indifferent
Through thunder
Bound in forest trees
And in the woods outside
The sleeping town
The knight stunned Escaped and fled
From the city ancient:
The oven and
The forge of Witches distant-sited
Each from each
In to the thicket forest
That night
That night
Of all nights.
Of nights.

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Had A Big Heart

Big and large For human girth
But he had known
The sufferings of a brain Torn and lacerated
The traumas of life
One after one Had tasted.
He had the finger numbed
By ice in climbing
He had the eyes that Trembled in the frost
He had the brain that ached
Long nights of thinking
He had the brain that ached Long nights of working.
He had
He had
The human.

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Had Lived Long

He had lived long
He had lived long
By his calculations
By his inclinations
He had lived long

ii.

For in his hand
He had the key
That he had found
To Immortality
As the fire Prometheus Found so he Had been the first to Calculate Immortality

iii.

How worked he
On it!
As a dream Subconsciously
The years passed by Year after year.

iv.

Tired and bent
With work he grew Tired and bent
With work he grew
And tired thus Planned calculated
To cease his work Suspend Immortality

v.
He had begun with life
Itself
In his works that was First
And key after key To doors all locked
He found before
That with such keys
He could unlock Door after door

vi.

Bare before him Lay life its Principles
Before
Those in it saw mysteries Now saw mechanics and A methodology
A way of work to add to And increase
And engineer and mend Where mending should Before him lay
He worked all day
He thought all day
Of Immortality

But he had not Reached Immortality
As yet
Though the first cry
The first flame
Had lit.
As yet, as yet.

How strong he was In muscles ran
In flower of youth
And yet again
Even in middle age
He ran and ran

As he matured
His strength decreased not As he matured to middle age His brain shone more More brilliant than In youth shone it.

And as a crown
Of an emperor
Of empery with jewels Full dense one by one Dense one on one Shone the crown
How ravishing!

As in a blaze
He trailed the skies
As in a blaze
The heavens trailed he But with all this Older he grew Yet he had not found Nor completed he His work on immortality

Of life’s delights
He wary grew Lost appetite
And misery
Around him Began to grow
So drew back he
He slowed his work
That was at first Then more and more Slowed he Then came the point
The time he ceased
To work and work
On Immortality

Ah! how his heart
Ached sad and weary!
How his heart mourned Funereal in look was he
The years of youth
And further back
Of middle age had flown And lone was he.

he grew and grew obese and fat
yet had not lost his brilliancy his brain still worked as a machine as was when young was he.

and in his heart
he mourned and mourned though other work from all civilization he still he produced he had abandoned his immortality.

Ah when Prometheus Punished was
By angry deities
For stealing fire
And this all this Not keep for him
But give humanity!
So was our man, so he!
Self-Immolated for All Self Immolated for the Rest Self-Immolated for Humanity

No human recognized His work and this Gave him pain
More than all things
More Than all pain
More than all suffering Of Prometheus he.

He suffered, humanity smiled
And laughed Turned on the wheel of A drear life But carried on
From father to son Generation to generation And fatherless was he!
Prometheus paled to see How soft his punishment Compared to this.

From left to right In walking he
He swung as in a reverie
Of the sub-conscious he And in his face a drear
A paleness grew
At his fatherless ness
And of all years that flew Of age and loss of strength
He had so much in youth
He swung as in a reverie.

As in a horrid dream
In horrid nights all wintry
He walked as confused
And night on night
Night after night
More horrid were, more Drear, more sad, more Heart that broke
Was he.

In to this misery
He still toiled on But lost appetite to toil
For Immortality
Though still on his lips
He said he stuttered ‘Ah! Immortality!’
And his hand trembling Wrote as yet
Of immortality.

A flame he set A flame lighted he
A flame to Immortality
He had set the tune Yet humanity danced not With broken eyes
With broken heart Looked he.

As Hus and Wycliffe lit Their flame so he:
Yet in his flame
All union was
All union for humanity
And full enjoyment
Of immortality!

With what he made
From all his toil
He had reaped misery:
And an immortality
He lit but enjoyed not Towards the graves
Towards the tombs
To roam he started In to cemeteries.

For in the while His father lost Then years after All this pain
His mother lost
And all alone
He suffered misery.

Of night, of day, count Lost he But just continued to Toil and toil continued he!
And of the stars he had To look on summer nights
At least yet failed
And in the winter blasts Till midnight working he
In a small light
He racked his brain
And made a summit
Of all his misery!

To lose! To lose You Loser be!
Shouted Voices that Hounded him Clamored Voices that Haunted him:
And in a little break
He had - from time To time - his house
He paced lone and solitary
In pain, in misery!

And at long length
The Voices round
Those Voices cruel
To grow begin:
He saw his end
He wished the end
And saw the end begin.

The end! That was a phrase
That was a word
Contrary to Immortality!
He that had lit the flame
Of Immortality
Had come and cornered been
To all this misery?
But ah! alas! so the tale
Goes
So calculated he.

Yet in all this he Still held to him, his Heart the cross of pain
The cross of suffering
For Immortality.
For it still yearned
Of it still loved Still though in such a Misery.

His heart it ached Ached more than human Could ache
His heart grew sick
His heart grew weak
And the strong breath
The strong breathing
He had before Grew weak.

To night, to night
One night he heard Distinct whispering
A Voice first, Voices
Then, one after one,
He heard, he felt and Heard again, again.

‘Come with me! Come! ‘
Said a Shroud a Figure Thin airy and tout:
‘Come with me come
My son, I pity you,
And pain with you,
Suffer with you.’

Around he turned The echoes heard Dear to him he Recognized his mother’s Voice so long
She had spoke long to him!
Her eyes were closed
Her coffin made
And she lay straight
And she moved not.

Around, around
He turned and said
‘My Mother! ’ then
He choked no more
Of words would say:
But in his brain Thoughts flooded in
And all his brain
His mother read
All, all within.

Her words had been Just a few words:
But in the cup of misery
He gathered them
To him a balm
He closed his eyes
His throat was parched.

But at long last
He had found words
; I come! ’ he said
‘My mother dear!
To your side I’
He spoke not more
For inside him
He felt a joy, a Sweetness not seen before Not held before
And his Soul, he His Inner Soul he felt
A joy, redemption felt
And as with wings from Earth in levitation
His flesh weary had fallen
And his way up
Up to the heaven
Now had begun.

Alone, alone, with his Hand in his mother’s He to the high heavens Ascended he
The heavens smiled
The clouds of fleece
All white all opened
Had:
And in his soul
His aching soul
He felt a joy a remedy
A justice due and to be done
For all his misery.
Sweet sounds heard he Music of thousands of Violins; and Voices Sweet whispered around Discernible yet without sound
He looked around
He saw, he felt,
His chains experienced
All falling down
As light as joy
And light as light
Was he
And received he
In a Heaven of Light Wise, brilliant, civilized
And on a throne near His mother sate he.
A tale! A tale you see
My Monsignor!
A reverie!
It asserted was so It all asserted be.
The tale is closed
My Monsignor. The tale Is closed, the book is Done, the chapters writ,
The tale is closed.

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Lost

He lost Time
Time went round him.

He snarled at Time
As it went round Snake-like.

Yet
Time heeded not him
More round and round
It went

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Loved The Gothic

He loved the Gothic Once at least
I read his verses.

Said so expressly.

Then
Queried the Monsignor –
Why be so ruthless?
Why of barbarian days
He be?
Why locks he Pity?

Emmanuel George Cefai
He opened his sea-green
eyes
looked on the tranquil
sea
but ah! inside was so tempest-torn!

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Played

He played
He played

And I passed through the Street

The music heard walking slow

And sad

And I continued walking
Sad

And the music played

Played sweet to sad as I walked
Sad.

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Protected Us

He protected us in the rough weather sheltered us
now
he goes to the rough weather himself to pray for us

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Replies Not When You Taunt

Because now he replies not when you taunt and you will feel perplexed and you will be frustrated because when you tell him bad news, he moves not because when you praise him he will not smile nor his breast heave with humble pride

No, no, he will just watch; he will just fall.

No. no, he will be silent even though you crack a joke that will burst the sides he will not move, he will not speak, he will not give back you will frustrated and nervous yourself feel at his civilization you even take from him, this or that, or all, and he moves not.

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Saw That Among The Twists

He saw that among the twists and turns he saw life pilgrim-walking pilgrim-walking through the country roads throwing a little dust from its feet on lonely nights when the moon white came out

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Saw The Misery

He saw the misery
and he knew suffering
from each new dawn to pining
dusk
and
in the night
the night stars brought to him the light of Ideas New with increased suffering

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Shouted From The Distance

Then he disappeared
For he was running Away! Away! The azure diamond

On its feet tiptoes Toad that bears topazes

Twinkling of a hedgehog
A glow worm rising
On its tiny feet

A panda crossed the road.
A squirrel shot an orange Color and left
The traces of his pacers in the dust
Of country roads.

We Humans not only we Even these
The animals
The plants
Even these

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Slid Down And He Fell

He slid
Down
And he fell
And
As he fell Gushed the dark
Blood
Still red

And fell he to the floor Yet moving
Then moving Less
Then
Not moving

Ran the murderer
As Adam ran in Eden:
But ah!
In all of us
To all of us
A murder always be:
Namely: Destiny.

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Touched The Heart

He touched the heart
and now the heart that did is transforming to energy:
bring the coffin lower the shroud let the bearers weep aloud for he touched the heart and he touched the skies
the heavens immense
all that we have all that we are he touched
he touched the heart
he touched

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Was Ascending The Round

He was ascending the round strait staircase when suddenly he met Fear descending fast he met Fear in the face yet he went past continued on his way going up
the round strait staircase Life had begun for him.

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Was Defeated

On the physical
He was defeated
And realized
A lesson learnt Therefore from another Side as
With tabula rasa
He attacked
For he attacked as
By cunning.

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Was There When Time Decreed

He
Was
There
When
Time Decreed
That
It
Was
His
Time
To Be:
He Oversaw
The Growth
Of
His Family Roamed
Restless Forgotten
Vital Principle
He Did
Not Jot
Down: Reckoned
He Escaped
So Calculated
As
The Fish
Out
Of
The Net
He Calculated Without Precision
Let Himself
Overrun
By Emotion.
Yet
In One thing
He
Said:
Last
Day
Last Hour
Let's enjoy to the last
To Say
That we to last enjoyed
And Stayed

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Weeps At Stars

The eremite he says
His beads
His eyes are broken
And he weeps at stars

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Went

He went
He went away, the cunning one.

But he left footprints in the sand of his large footprint.

Just that.

Dusk came and night then covered the traces though the moon discovered some foot-prints in complicity with the stars.

The Dawn too far away was not in the story.

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Went Out Of The Shop

He went out of the Shop
Confused
By what the maid
The shop-girl told him
The even was growing
And
The eyes of dusk
Were rolling Night's first stars
Vied with moon.

Emmanuel George Cefai
He Winced At The Thought.

He winced at the thought.
But
though it was night
He let the skeleton show him his way through the tunnel.
Ah! neon lighted tunnel
turning red of light!
As centuries passed in it How felt he aged
And
yet his body was the same grinned
the guiding skeleton and rattled
his teeth in joy:
yet
spoke he not.
Midst of the tunnel a cemetery of skeletons
all lying upwards
and as he went by the third skeleton it moved one bony hand to its hollow eye:
recoiled he turned the guiding skeleton motioned him on and on
and from there as inwards into that tunnel penetrated
he though skeletons moved he was as one of them
for he had now no fear and winced not.

Hear

Hear how the birds chirp how the lyre suddenly sang the Poet Seer from a high rock unfolded his chant and verse and song how the Dawn herself sang sang in her happiness:
see, see, see hear, hear, hear it is things to see it is things you hear
well
these are things, the things of poesy
hear hear the song hear the verse

love
love without song without Poer Seer and the things he sings what be love?

hear
my Monsignor, move away, come out from your palace of power and glory from the warmth of your wealth and be as of one story with earth, with all it has
hear
My Monsignor, move away, come out

On the Deccan plain amidst the dank damp lay strewn a million sybils to each attached a rose a million roses:
this sight?
this and others like be love, be verse, be song.

hear

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hear Me My Monsignor

My Monsignor, hear.
There's the New Culture.
You have to be an apostle of New Culture.

For things of Earth largely We look at heavens and Immensities.

Our voices are harsh and raw
And blunt
But than the sweet, stronger.

Our thoughts are grand and
Drear.
Stress of Earth fades and fear
With it.
Instead
The noble Soul, the free Inner Soul that hovers.
And sleep and dreams of Ghost and shroud and Cemeteries.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hear Me, Hear Me,

Hear me, hear me,
The time flies
The dusk is gone
And quick
The night advances
Hear me, hear me.

Hear me, hear me,
Already the bat flies Already the owls speak Already nightingales sing
Hear me, hear me

Hear me, hear me
Before the ghosts and shrouds Take to the streets at night Before they pour out Their broken hearts and groans Hear me, hear me, my Monsignor

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hear Me, Hear Me, I Am Sad,

Hear me, hear me, I am sad,
And Wish to go to Hastings Gardens
Now
That it be dusk, red dusk
And Fallen
Is the glory of the day:
Fallen
The peacock beauty of the gaudy
Noon
And all the glories of its Golden reign:
These are now faded,
Fallen.
Beneath a bending tree
In Hastings Gardens
In pilgrim shabbiness Dressed
Bent more than the tree Mourns Hope.
Weeping

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hear My Paces

Hear Hear my paces
In the woods
Floating
In the heavens
One by one
The paces of a Poet Seer Broken heart and Cold
Thirsty and hoarse-voiced
The Voice of Pain
The Voice of Desperation.
Hear
Hear

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hear! Hear!
The caves and coves are resounding Each to each answering to us Their plaintive farewell:
The sounds join up together go Into one mist that rises high and Scents and rings as a sweet bell.
Hear! Hear!
Fairies from all sides Draw nigh smiling and near!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hear, Last Night, The Roaring Cavalcade

Hear, last night the roaring cavalcade
Of revelers that people street and club Party and elsewhere now sleep and doze And their thoughts upon the other are Deepening into profound austerity:
Cold is the night, but martyrdom waits.
Frosty is the night, but Fear lurks.
Behind the corner trembles the sweet Dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hearse Of Dancing Stars

Hearse,
Hearse of dancing stars
Fading
Fading in their wild despair Fading in their wild mourning funereal:
Hearse,
Hearse of dancing stars
Fading

Heart Of The Leaves

the leaves whisper
whisper to-night the heart of the leaves be full to-night and the heart of the leaves
it overflows tonight
more than the amorous nightingales.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Heart Of The Night

The heart of the night
was throbbing
slow.

the breath was pumping
out.

the cunning dawn
in waiting.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Heart Of Verses

I will take out the heart of verses pluck the flower of beauty from the fields the poison of the nectar
the condemned flower:

Over the night it will rain

Over the dusk the frost will harden

Go sleep; hie to bed;
and dream

Let the Sub-conscious do its work to-night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Heart On Fire

when I approach where you breathe my heart on fire glows my brain be in its throes when my seed loses its head when the night, the moon, the stars...oh I ignore them for you my sweet rose
though be I a Poet Seer.
my sweet rose
my sinews stretch my muscles they revive youth awhile returns and my breath - it sudden burns.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Heart That Aches, Aches So

Heart that aches, aches so,
And the sea roars about the dreary shore
To-night!

O to lie here on the shore and sand:
Hear your Will break its sinews and Conquered bend

Bend yes here, here on this shore On this lone coast where centuries Of yore, gather as ghosts and Shrouds
Lamenting.

Emmanuel George Cefai Heart Wills Emotion

the heart it wills to emotion
as in magnetism: contract expand the heart-walls:
Emotion outside the monument sits and dreams
and weeps.

Emmanuel George Cefai Heart-Stricken Bird

I
I Poet-Seer
I am a heart-stricken bird
All the same
Sing I.

And When I sing
My stricken heart
Mellows my verse
Sharpens my thought Intones my verses
Rhythm of my chants.

See
In the cathedral
The organ sings
And it be midnight Figures
Black
Dense in the packed Night-church
Unmoving
Unspeaking Noiseless
Silent Stand
Erect
They stand.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Heavens

In
The Heavens
There
Be No Laws
But Those
Of
The
All
That Hold
The Physical Underneath: Principles
That Speak
By Their
Mere and sheer enunciation.
But
In
The Heavens
There
Be Voices Principles Laws
And Ordinances Continual
And Humans
Hear Those Voices
Though
That
Be
On Rare Occasions
Hear
Humans
Hear.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Heavens Above

In the heavens above
There be unlimited rights Duties few, or less.

Ah! my Monsignor
That balance of supremacy Of right over duties
From the heavens
Better to transform To Earth!

We will not need so much Fundamental Human Rights
For these and more
Be writ in heavens immense.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hedgehogs Played

The silent hedgehogs
Play
Play silent

Without
The orchestra
They play the same

Without
The orchestra
They gather the same

And
They play slow
To their heart’s joy.

No earthly power or Glory seek they But only in the Friendly moon
Slow move and play.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Heights and peaks
These we must reach

And whatever high
And however high

We reach the peaks
And more and more and more And ever and ever and ever

Emmanuel George Cefai
Helmsman

Helmsman silent at The charge
Of the mysterious barge.

From
The old port Departed.

Departed when Its moorings sudden Themselves loosed
Under the sea-fort.

Departed is the barge
Into the clouds
Away
From the sea-port.

In the seas deep and
Black
It sailed and sailed

Continuous as In as in straight Line directionless.

From
The old port Departed

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hens And Ducks

Hens were running Ducks were cackling
Each other chasing
Be it a spell?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Her Ghost

Hear me!
The wind obeys me
Flatters my whims.

Yet you hear me
Not.
You only fear me.

Now
I have no longer Fear of ageing
Before me
The line is straight And ever-extending.

I own not Nor can I.
I have no power.
Yet to you
If I will so I will appear.
Calculate that.

You see me.
Bones all
And rattling
And a little dust.

You see: I
I will not change
Never be a handsome man
A youth
These are attacked by age Like withering flowers.

And me,
I am not attacked by Ageing.
I am free of Disease and Agony Of Death.
In to the mass universe Where I view
There is always give and Take.

There's a giving There's taking Albeit Imperceptible.

And now
The time be come
For me
To revert
To thin smoke
Among yon mists.
I go.

Most often where
I go There's snow
And tempest
At the doors
And windows.
So
You will not Venture out
And see me
By your window
Or your door.
No.
No.
No.

I fear not courts.
I am free
From all chains
All restrictions.

I am free
From inhibitions
From prejudices
I see
Not as you see
I think
Not as you think.
I crossed the line
With other ghosts
And shrouds
The line
You have not crossed
As yet.

Adieux!
Ciao!
Bye!
You see:
I am so polite.
I go.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Herbs

herbs
herbs of magic nights there be the foot-print of the satyrs who trod upon you whilst piping hot they had the pitchers in their hands
feasting the night before the Dawn struck where be they now
now
that the day be swinging
full?
Now that the sun arisen
warms and smiles?
Where be the civilization of sadness and sub-conscious beauty?
where?

Of

Emmanuel George Cefai
Here

Here
In our land
No snow
Yet my song Rings of snow
Yet
My song rings
Of white Black Figures melting
As you find
In as proportion Direct:
Tricky passages
That weave
Around
Foot print on foot print
On the dampened Earth
The Body goes up and
Up
The Soul goes with it Climbs weary Step by step
In life’s grey Golgotha.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Here Again

here again
go I:
sobering thoughts
minimum of doing just thoughts of regrets wishes
to turn back the clock
but the clock is stubborn and says:
'I must be logical
according to the mores
of the Earth
for as of the Earth am I'
And I stop
And I bend my head down As the bending withering flower
touched by the sadness of
dusk
the numbness of chill the indifference of dark
night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Here And There Randomly

Here and there and randomly
The thoughts roam upon awaking
With no order – listlessly:
Up and down and down and up The stairs wander they So randomly.

And yet
And yet
There is a restless quietness about them Blurred images turning to distinct Pictures proportional to the increase Of happiness flowing in the brain And serene watching of the bosomed sea From the bastions of centuries.

Thence the gaze
Thence the gaze
Upon the dome of heaven rests
And the finger
And the finger
Points to the skies.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Here I Arrived

Here I arrived
I will not to know how I arrived
Around swarm the round skies

The waters boil red; and green the saplings wax; and hoar and white the frost and the drop-chill.

Here I arrived
I will not to know how I arrived
Around swarm the round skies

Emmanuel George Cefai
Here To-Night Where Pass I With

Here to-night where pass I with The crowds; here in the pedestrian Streets of the old city and the old town Here passed elves and nymphs
And fauns and sileni
Last night.
And it was well past mid-night for The revelers of the New Year’s Eve Stood here carousing till well Past mid-night just before The small hours of the New Year’s Day Were deep in breath and holiness:
Then
When all was empty, all was silent too,
My Monsignor, these elves and nymphs
And with them fauns, sileni and the brood Of fairy world came here trotting by:
The fountain in the distance welled up high More than it does in the pedestrian day:
But then it was justified in the circumstances Of night of spell of fairies all the way.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Here You Come

Here
you come so often in the
dusk
are you enamored of it?
pine with it?

for
there on those stairs
olden and ancient made of centuries
I see you sit and move not and speak not word.

perchance you wait a nightingale's song
albeit distances among to cheer your failing heart?
A sad violin that plays from some open window?

Your sadness be greater than you greater than family greater than humanity knows not extinction

though extinction
looks you in the face stark raw and naked
and still still you continue continue on the stairs to sit on those stairs
olden and ancient made of centuries
I see you sit
and move not and speak not
word.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Here, The Sole Survivor,

Here, the sole survivor,
here, buffeted by the winds of Fate, protected by the prayers of my mother, held up when I fall by my old father, here, I battle with last breath and heavy breath extinction stress and delusion no easy life, my Monsignor!
the balance to and fro moves and Fate and Destiny will be the arbiters.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hewn Of Out Of Wood

Hewn of out of wood
And trees.

It prepares for a decay and Transformation.

Pairs of eyes weep,
The priests intone
The funereal mass
The grave-diggers intone
The fugue of graves
And burying.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hiatus Of Age

Hiatus of Age, of gold fish Bowl
My Love
You sleep not to-night
My Love
You rest not to-night.

The waters in revolt
They rise and fall and Rise again; anger cyclical They moan that there was A fraud
A fraud artistic, the more Heavy then for them
And more
For their conscience to bear.

The Earth to-night Will vibrate slow and Imperceptible
Save few animals and fowls Privileged
And Poet Seers.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hiatus Of The Heavens

Hiatus of the heavens

Yet heavens auto-cure
So speedily

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hiatus Of Time

Hidden Sun

Hidden sun that now be brazen hidden sun that now will pace incognito in the terrace as the red dusk twinges round as the port waters enter, enter and the moon before the night throws its light without a sound.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hide Me Blue Mist, Hide My Guilt

hide me blue mist, hide my guilt my conscience had been pregnant for so long and now delivered is:
the guilt, the baby-boy of conscience and myself has now been born.

Come witches in the night, accompany me
My baby-boy needs company
And unto your magic spells to open its eyes:
Then will it in itself see no-guilt
And will to change its name apply Pending approval by the father’s hand, my signature.

I will sign as soon as applied.
And casting the old robe of guilt into the sea
I will amongst trees plants and birds full freshly roam Singing my innocence with birds and bees and trees.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hideous Mouth

Earth that opens its Mouth
Hideous

Roars that belittle
A thousand and more Thunders

Earth rent Buildings falling
More rapid than Sand-castles (iii)

Screams, people running Here and there hands Held to heads

From above
Not even wildest ants Run that way

Ah! the day of wrath
It had to come
It came! (vi)

And it be manifested how The pleasures of those Who look
To the children grandchildren
And descent
Be vanified
All at one go

Laid flat and equal both extinct
And descent
In to the final extinction of
The Day of Wrath

In the flattening of the All There be equality
There be justice for The long extinct
Who now sit on the fence
Here
As others in descent Face the Day of Wrath. (ix)

Emmanuel George Cefai
History Writes

History writes, writes, writes
and yet

So often goes on round and round and round

And we, humans with her go around, around, around

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hoarder Of Verses

hoarder of verses miser of rythm
notes disorganized chanter of
verses
plume giant red over the roof swaying in the light wind and chill frost
this winter night
this winter night.....

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hoarse
The lone Figure Tall
That remained
Close
In Hastings Gardens.

Yet
Wise is spoke Though rarely spoke
Then
Words of wisdom spoke.

How laughed the seas
The water-waves
As water-waves know How to laugh:
How smiled:
How dazzling
Dawn
Over the bastions Blinds!

How fairy be the night
How magic all Trees, shrubs, flowers, Paths, all:
How sacred be Even to tread:
Here
How the heart of a garden
Beats
In Hastings Gardens!

And
Yet
Hoarse
The lone Figure Tall
That remained
Close
In Hastings Gardens.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hoarse Rumblings

the hoarse bellows
those were rumblings
of an early thunder
this night did
you
not hear
love?
for
life
be full
of thunders
heavy rains
and lightnings
over earth
and then inside
the heart
till oftentimes
the heart
be broken:
ah! you see
my Monsignor
why
we need
a
civilization
alternative?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hoarse Voices

Of the hill! -
To the hill-
so shouted the hoarse
throats
and the hoarse voices

Trudged
tanks and horses and carts
up the old hill trudge after trudge
after trudge

And the voices grew hoarser
And the night grew darker

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hobbling On Their Carts

Hobbling
Hobbling on their carts
Of red wood
And orange pine Yellow painted in some Parts
Hobbling
Hobbling on their way Life be that!
It hobbles gay
Yet
It hobbles on and on!

Emmanuel George Cefai
I
The heavens
Holderlin

In front of me Cities
To the waters Crawl

Despondent heavens
Red
And turning Lure.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Holidays, Workdays, Came And Go

Holidays, workdays, came and go:
So suffering:
We fear it yet it comes and goes:
We fear such till it comes
Then
When it comes we fear, fear so That after all fear will at last go And the weary rote and routine Of day and week and month and Year in centuries continues on
And on
Like the punishment of suffering Ixion Holidays, workdays, came and go:
So suffering:
We fear it yet it comes and goes:
We fear such till it comes

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hooded Capes

figures turning hooded capes
hooded capes
and the night be fast advancing
see how the stars tremble-quake!

in the midst of a dark street figures turning turning
turning capes and shrouds in the still silence
figures turning
turning
turning
turning

in the night figures barefoot figures dark dark in night
and dark as night figures turning
turning
turning
and... night passing
passing
passing

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hooded My Eyes

Time
Hooded my eyes
I was there.

The dice lay on the board
In part
In part
On floor.

Threw was a Blockage Right at The very beginning.

There was life breathing.
Breathing under the giant
Tree
Where the owls roosted
And
The nightingales for More dark
Impatient panted.

Slender the whirl of Hope
Went round.
Slender.
As embers fading.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hooded Shade

Hooded shade
Bent head
Silent and mute.

Why?
Why?
Why?

Creaks the old and ancient bridge Under the frenetic paces of Olden centuries
Yearn the ancient woods
And weep and cry.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hoofs Of Horses

the hoofs of horses the bronze statue
the raised bronze leg half cut and more

reeled the wind around the statue and the holding stone neighed
neighed
neighed

the bastions up are blue

united are the trees into one cluster-gale

dow there were giggles giggles of goblins
nymphs
some were dancing others in the waters swimming.

where be the rains that lighted red and put the hills on fire
the caverns shivering the Oceans in a
dread?

geometry and Euclid ah! beginning
for me
but to proceed from these departed I where is the street that leads to the Golgotha?
asked the ghost in the cemetery
To me, yet I spoke
not went on its way
the ghost.

where be the chill that unearthed soils and bones from Hastings Gardens?

the snows rare that on the town fell at night that no human enjoyed?
Tell me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Horn

I hear the horn.
He came for me.

I feign not to hear.
But my hair stands on end.

A castle and a house stopped.
It was no dynasty

Emmanuel George Cefai
Horror Is

Horror is the uncovering of the Sub-Conscious from all dress.
Naked

Emmanuel George Cefai Horrors

Spell
Out
The Horrors
Night Hide
Not Behind Starlight
But Horrors
Be
In Day
Too
At Least
The Night
There’s Silence
Some Remedy
Some Healing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Horrors Lighted

Horrors
Lighted through the heavens

Thunder

Lightning

Emmanuel George Cefai
Horseman That In The Night

Horseman that in the night
With raised fist
At the ancient star light Prods on his horse
To speed of light
In the sundry mysterious Night

Lo!
There be skeletons dressed In energy as ghosts In sackcloth as
Shrouds
And in the transformation Of Heaven’s hands Shadows grey and dark and Wild.

And Lo! Alas the morn
Is far
Is long ago
The frost of night
Has not begun to thaw
Even Though Dawn be hours away
To light up the new day

Emmanuel George Cefai
Horses Of Seas And Oceans

Horses
Horses of seas and Oceans
Cartoon-like
You swim through The depths of liquid

The waters
Cried
With the shrieking
Wraith -
That was yesterday
Night.

The dolphin waters Arched and With bent back They surged Surged through the Horses of seas and Oceans

Emmanuel George Cefai
Horses That Rise High

Horses that rise high
On their feet neigh
Horrible
As on the war-path
Or on midst of olden battle-fields
Manes that fall back Fly with the niter smelling winds Slip
On the blood stained snows
That still fall
That still fall
Horses attempting Above humans to rise
And their way wending Unfettered in their wild, wild will And closed sub-conscious eyes
We too
Must be as sub-conscious be:
Horses that rise high
On their feet neigh
Horrible
As on the war-path
Or on midst of olden battle-fields

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hospital Of Elves

Hospital Hospital of elves and Fauns
And satyrs
Light!
It be the deep of Night!

Look!
Flicker the lights!
Trembles starlight!

Skeletons
On the move
They
With shrouds
Dance
The gruesome dance
To-night
This night!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hospital Of The Brain

In to the hospital of
The brain
I saw suffering
I saw Pain

All together
Bound in chains.

Red the blood
And red the pain Red the suffering
And the chains

With red forks
Ad prongs of red Devils danced
And devils pranced.

In to the hospital of
The brain
I saw suffering
I saw Pain

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hotels Of The Night

Hotels of the night, towns
Of the outside souls
And dimming lights.

Inn keeper stars in part Cook of heaven’s menu Nocturnal rise.

Scents mix together and The East and West merge Into the common Eastern Scents.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Hours Pass

Hours pass
Faster than grains of sand
My All dwindles down my hand
And I am left openmouthed Watching
Feeling
Feeling the hours pass Faster
Faster than grains of sand

Emmanuel George Cefai
Into a house
Transformed in to a gnome
The people
Go about in silence locked Speak not One syllable:
Looks black Look black and menacing: Sometimes
Rare times
They their pinions clutch
In to a muscle snowball
Look
As they pass here and
There
Look black un to each other Speak not
And time passes Passes slow
In to this slow methodology Of excruciating martyrdom Without dropping of blood Without cries of pain Save for hearts crying
In green all hardening

Emmanuel George Cefai
House Of Bad Smells

House of bad smells
House of nocturnal spells
There is a certain sadness Even speaking of you
The chill of fear lights the spine
As the house lights
And goes and lights again
In the rare winter nights Of shrieks and desperation.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Houses Beaches Flats Apartments

Houses Beaches Flats Apartments

Most
In the nights of winter
Whisper
Whisper
Whisper

And the sea rages in Inside the bay
In winter

Emmanuel George Cefai
How

How the rain jumps
How the rain patters
How the rain rises
In this storm crisis.

Night of rain Genesis of thrill Thrill surfeiting
Genesis of pain
So I
So I

How the rain jumps
How the rain patters
How the rain rises
In this storm crisis

Emmanuel George Cefai
How austere-robed the night Walks with circus-ropes of day
The twilight of a life
The calming of the river
Of Passion that in the red Ocean flows Wherein it tincts and laps the crimson shores.

The night like to a wounded hunter That will not vail his pride His suffering lets flow
The gushing of the pain
The gnashing of the teeth
The night prowls like a hunted beast From tree to tree a black moves suddenly.

The night how like the robe
That fits on the fast-dwindling day
The aching sun
Mortified from its spent glory at mid-day Follows the cycle that engulfs
The day and night and dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Beautiful, How Beautiful The Violin

How beautiful, how beautiful the Violin
How beautiful the Violin sings:
How beautiful the red dusk rings Before the night closes the eyes of day While silver gondolas on purpling waves sail
And in the twilight hang the palaces Mirrored in the beauty of the waters Rippled by the splash of oars, and torn Silent and gentle by the mood of sleep,
How beautiful, how beautiful the Violin

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Bright The Light

How bright the light
Of fire-works this night
The people hied
To the still Port
That as with cannon resounds
How bright the light
Of fire-works this night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Can I Exchange The Peace?

How can I exchange the peace
That feel I under these pines?
How can I
A more welcome coolness this coming September feel?

Below, below
The country falls
The country falls to a vale still green
From all the drunken dews of Spring Though vicious summer heat preserved.

Below the peasant sings
A song that to my ear comes In distant syllables Audible yet unrecognizable:

And here and there
A thin smoke pencil-like Arises from the cottages Sparkled in few among the green:
Therefore how can I Exchange the peace under the pines Or a more welcome coolness feel This approaching September?

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Chill And Eerie

How chill and eerie
to hear the whistle of the train from the bed and the window of the former station house!

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Chill The Song

How chill the song
Of the nightingale to-day!
How eerie-taut and strange Its usual melody!
The night! This night!
Ah! what changes has it wrought
In the sweet nightingale That from our garden-tree Sung so its harmony?
What grief has pierced its heart to-night?
Why in its song
The jarring notes of frost
The warm and winy notes replace?
Or has sweet Cupid hit our nightingale?

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Cool And Fine And Taut

How cool and fine and taut
The random falling of a Spring shower With it a rainbow comes With it a piece of peace Seems to grow wings and fly And manifest the dower
Of serene thought and mind and peaceful living:
To save us somewhat from the dour
And crazy running race of life:
And like an Eastern queen or Merlin old ‘Twill manifest the power Of magic better than witches old On broomsticks flying high, high Over city-houses and towns and villages And magic black and sour.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Dim The Light That Burns

How dim the light that burns
Into the cellar small – and cramped How dim the light that burns
This summer night.
How humid-hot and heavy the air is:
To breathe is difficult
In the tentacles of nocturnal heat
How dim the light that burns
Where La Fornarina stays tonight.
And Cupid needs no arrows more For love so reigns
No arrow of his is needed;
So Cupid looks and spies.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Dim, How Dim, Dance

The last embers
Of the sad light!
The flag adown the pole Slow winds and falls Hour after hour strike
And flee:
How chill
The passing of night
The yawning of
The fading star-light:
Night is as of the little That remains that purifies
The Soul, the Aching Soul.
How dim, how dim, dance
The last embers
Of the sad light!

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Faint The Kiss

How faint the kiss
yet prolonged!

the hill of golden green lawn
smiled

and rustled mighty the wide Ocean sea.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Far The Spring Today, My Friend?

How far is Spring to-day my friend?
'Tis like a land that to reach must Traverse this land, and this, and that.
Before Spring cometh granted Summer goes An Autumn cool must come with it The lonely winds amidst the bosky trees
And in the sheltered woods and peopled woods Leaves must then yellow and sere and fall.
'Twill not be enough - the trees must they Unclothe all garments before Winter’s lust That he may touch with his hand Full every bough and tree and wood Hoary lover! Leaving your icicles Fixed on the boughs and woods that they May shine with every night in the pale moon
When clouds are dreaming far and stay away:
And heaven’s blue dome unattended leave:
Then having suffered long all that surviveth Will go in to the Spring; turn green with it.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Fill The Time Of Day?

The day is long
Long
For those whose laze Shorter
Not so long
For those who work.

For Day is part of Time For day of Motion part be
And in those Time and Motion
There be Spatiality
That needs to be filled.

Work, my Monsignor.
But if you laze,
The result long term
Will be the same:
One thing be different Just one
And Only one Work makes civilizations
Only work, my Monsignor.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Full Of Mourning

How full of mourning
This life be!
Mourning, mourning
Where you see Where the glance
You turn to be!
And the night
Is of mourning the sad
Light!
Sad light!
Sad light!
Sad stars white Yet mourning loud
Mourning, mourning
Roaming streets and alleys Strait
Round and round
Ghost and shroud
Mourning
Mourning!
Full of mourning
This life be!

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Grey, How Grey The Evening Grew

How grey, how grey the evening grew
The sky was cloudless yet its grey Reflected on the stones, the day Seemed in its sweet agony of disease Its half-opened lips to slowly close Slowly, slowly, slowly.

And then of sudden lo! I saw A phantom grey the stairs ascend
The face I saw not, from behind A tall thin form it was:
And as it moved up up the stairs
Its step moved speedily:

And as swift as it came was lost

No sound it made, no voice
It brake: yet in my heart
A throbbing made
That never was before.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Large – How Large

How large – how large
The pale moon smiles:
The pale round moon
How does it smile
And smile.

Its cheek a little less Wan and austere:
And veins – thin veins
Of red do seem to flush
The round moon’s face.

And on its bosom
The dark sea
Bears the moon’s face
All silvery.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Leaden-Eyed The Sky To-Day

How leaden-eyed the sky to-day
Looks at Valletta: Surely, surely unexpected quite
This May.

How gay, how gay
The day must have been How sad, how sad the day
This May.

Ah! so our hopes so gay
They ought to so have flowered
But how sad how sad they lie
This May.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Long

How long
How long
Will the beauty of the violet
Last?

How long
How long
Will the sinews
Of youthful men
Be strong?

How long
How long Will muscle turn As man’s
When he reached out To God
And God Reached out To man
In Michelangelo?

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Long Ago

How long ago
How long ago it seems That a small cloud
That passed by moon
Our hearts thrilled.

How long ago
The bosomed sea Lay still Save for its swishes
In the treacherous inlet:
What throbs I felt
As in and out And out and in Thro’ the small creek
The sea went:
And that dark swish
In the dark night
Our hearts thrilled.

Numbed and frozen we
And our senses:
No longer wake we soon
To see the dawn arise and walk Barefoot and clean Along the seas and rocks Before in to the air Like a sweet mist
She disappears:
How our hearts throbbed
And warm our senses Raced the red blood inside:
And every light and stone and move
Our hearts thrilled.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Long The Night When It Be Night Of Pain!

How long the night when it be Night of Pain!
My Monsignor!

How deep the waters dark in the sad night
My Monsignor!

How far and late the restless Dawn’s away
My Monsignor!

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Low The Ratings

How
Low the ratings
I
Have fallen in How low!
How low!
O age!

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Many

How many a lass and boy, woman, man,
Human walked the streets, cities, country, Smiled, hoped, fretted, enjoyed and wept Poor, rich, old, young, sprightly, crippled,
How many a lass and boy, woman, man.
Ah! all are gone all, all into the ear-like Sump of Time, dews of night and mists Of morn: ah! ah! centuries ago, ago that was!

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Many A Time

How many a time
You mention night! -he saith

To which I say-
My friend, my friend
I mention Night and Day
And Dawn and Dusk
And Eve and Morn
For these will rise and rise
As soon as gone:

And that is why, and that is why
My friend
I mention Night and Day
And Dawn and Dusk
And Eve and Morn
So oft.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Many Dreams And Plans

How many dreams and plans
That are transformed to Smoke:
Degeneration and decline
What fall off from the heights
Towards the end!

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Many Long Bleak Nights

How many long bleak nights
Will follow after you:
The humid air will surfeit with stillness
The sea-waves lie still as the Dead Sea.

Salt will paste your lips; the sweet Of oranges and gourds all liquor-full Will elude you.

The broken pitcher will Lie in the yard where it was broke:
Nobody will care to gather up the pieces.

But look at them yes! Look at them
As relics of the ‘old’ (they say)
As the Parthenon in the sun Or Roman ruins smiling in the favor Of high Italian skies all cloudless-young.

The broken pieces will lie on the ground.
Dawn will rise after dawn; the day will set.
Seasons will follow each other cyclical.
Centuries will pass as years and months and days.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Many Nights The Stars Came Out

How many nights the stars came out And peeped from heaven’s windows in the night And lightened up the bosom of the sea Wherein like twinkling diamonds they shone How many waves around the craggy shores On whom the Fort dilapidated frowns How many rustles kissed the crags In every inch and foot by the sea-shore
And as with every kiss the rustling sea Ebbed slow and gentle in its harmony:
And the pale moon looked on inconstantly
And in and out the sea-currents flowed incessantly:
I cannot say nor can the winds and stars That every night come out:
And peep from heaven’s windows in the night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Many Saturdays We Worked

How many Saturdays we worked,
How many afternoons!

You on the computer, copied, Typed.

I on my computer in the room,
The same room, made.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Many?

How many nights of cold
How many nights of wind
How many nights of frost

How many nights of rains
How many thunder nights
And lightning everywhere.

But ah! more sad my fate
My destiny more perilous
By far more tragedy!

Emmanuel George Cefai
How marble-like the limbs of this white queen Delicacy made its shrine in every part And Beauty veiling made her rest room there:
The stars twinkle in your eyes as in heaven do The seasons conspire how to yield the best Of all the best they have and give to you – Their ceaseless homage by hundred suitors matched.

Yet when the black skinned queen of beauty walks Heaven and earth are stunned and stupefied.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Much The Quantum Of Virtue

How much the quantum of virtue Measured in coins in euros and dollars Or else in topazes and quartzes
I wonder.

How much the quantum of the shout That king Menelek shouted Shouted fore a crowd Of wondering subjects:
I wonder.

How much the quantum of the roar
That comes every time
The seas enter the wild deep valley Of giddying grey linear heights Down down to sea
I wonder.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Much To The Summer

She asked how much to the Summer?

Replied I: Spring is now almost a Month
Old
No longer toddles

Why do so immense heavens
Speak not?

How long to the skies?
She asked

And faded

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Much, How Much

i.

How much, how much
I wish an oak to be:
Seven hundred years and more Would I have been
And still Here would be.

ii.

I would, I would
The coming of the Knights From my high altitude
First L’Isle Adam
Whilst carried in the chaise
As knights hastened to drape the land Wherein he passed and graced And with each other for his honor vied.

iii.

But now, but now
That colored throng is past:
And like a film
Another scene is set:
And in the Port Group crews I see Working here and there
Those carry cannon
Those rock cut
The others fare
In framing a fresh bark:
And from on high Jean La Valette
Looks from a promontory.
And then
And then I saw a fort Burn down under the fire
Of missiles thrown at it And ire
Of the besieger:
A breach in the walls
And then another
And then another
The cannon-ball reft
One after another
All the punctured holes
Into the fort Like gushes of knives
Like the caverns of age
Down oak trees.

And then
And then
I heard a sudden sound
When the fort fell
Below
Below
Below
In the summer heat
The charred bodies putrefied
And smelled.

But then
When the oppressing heat Of summer went
And the frail breezes of September cooled
The trees, and land and seas:
I saw a happy crowd alight
On the bastions
Half-torn with cannon stress
And high on high
They waved the flag of victory.
iv.

And every day that followed
I saw the throng of men Across their life to move And spin:
Like silkworms to cocoons:
And day and night
And night and day
Passed
Passed
Passed
Under the Knights.

And
In the Port
The navy of the Knights Withered and lingered
In the ease of peace Without a war
The grey years passed and turned
And day and night
And night and day
Passed by, passed by.

How many a Knight passed by In gaudy clothes all lover-like Unto his present lady:
How many a prisoner Collapsed amidst the dungeons
Where the sun light Was rare delight
When the door opened:
How many a lady gay I saw Now noble riding in sedans Now thick in winter dress
Now light in summer clothes Is she:
Now quick with child
And all unmarried she!
This passed.
And then French
Came o’er the horizon:
How many a fight and skirmish I Saw in those days:
And how red blood was shed
And people saw I then With knives in them
And cannon-ball
Raise last their eyes
To the fast-dimming skies

The British came
And our island loved In peace and war
With war and peace
We throve:
Yet time will come When separation comes
In every love:
And so
The quiet separation came As is in every love.

And now
And then
Day follows night
And Night the Day
And Dawn and Dusk
And in the Night
The pale moon smiles
And in the greyness
Of the Dusk
The red horizon turns Into a deep mantle of black:
And day will follow night
And night the day
And dawn and dusk
Will come and go:
And we will rise
And toil
In our illusion
And toil
In our bubble
That we ourselves blow:
And toil
Till weary in our illusion
We try to rest
At least we try
We try
To rest.
And new mothers will Hold their new babes
In hand
And weep:
And in the coffin
When time comes
The sexton leads
And the priest chants
And day will follow night
And night the day.

How that They came on stage
And disappeared:
And after them
On the old stage
New faces did appear
And on and on The cycles goes
The circle of life goeth.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Naive

How naive
the poetry of the sun in the evening
how earthy
the scent of the soils
lost in the groveling night how less dense the stars of the night
tonight

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Often Drear

How often drear
Comes Into weather fair
And
That's the genesis,
Growth and development
Of desperation.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Rare And Petrified

How rare and petrified
The eastern jewels color to the eye Maddened in its wonderment:
How rare and petrified.

And yet
And yet
No jewel that I saw No jewel that I touched More warm or sensual is Than the black pearl.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Sad

How sad
How sad
Night plays its game
How sad

The lights grow
Low
The dusk has Fled

The Voice from Heavens Roars
Great words, raw words Thunder and noise
Without a thunder

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Sad, How Sad

How sad how sad
The parting:
How without word
The farewell!

How sad how sad
That without word
Without a tear
The farewell came!

And time will come
And time will pass
As if It had not come or passed
But ah! but ah!
The farewell, the last farewell
Will not pass.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Sick The Plaintive Violin

how sick the plaintive violin even more so when long long-drawn its drawl how plaintive is, how sick:
even when less slow it is drawn the plaintive notes still flow, still sick and in the night, the long dark night still plays the plaintive violin.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How silent the sea-waves the rocks caress
The breeze
That set this evening in the Port
The fair precursor of the Autumn’s cool And welcome hand all crossed Over the forehead starred with sweaty drops That shine all starry in the scorching suns And wither as unwelcome pearls:
Even so with morning dews
That in the first fit of life at dawn
The petal-opening flowers soft bedeck These too will wither with the warmth That from the grass arises vapor-like As the red sun ascends from sea’s rim Where long the sea stretches linear and still:
And orange-like then gold will paint the waves.
Not Raphael seated in some gold-crossed barge Alone amidst the ocean deeps
A fairer picture could he paint Or capture the sweet lull of Ocean’s bosom: Basking and surfeiting plays with the gold rays
Of the fast-rising Sun nearer by far To the vast wilderness of the Ocean deeps That in the midst of all those waters wild
To be lazy dares, will choose to dream.
Then will the song of sirens rise Like a sweet-hissing serpent from the shores
And from the jutting rocks their voices lull
The Ocean already surfeiting to more And more sweet laziness and dreams Fond in the giddiness of their drowsiness: Hist! I hear the siren-call from shore to shore
The echo flies over those wild waves That in their madness like blind lovers respond To the sweet-hissing siren calls of morn:
And no barge passed
And no barge is seen Over that wild expanse of waters wild and raw:
The Ocean full prefers to keep alone
The secrets or its surfeiting Prohibits the sea-waves rolling to shores Its hours of sweet laziness to unfold Or else be seen or spied by human eyes:
But in
in majestic waves and raw and bold Will echoing roll his armies white Wave after wave unto the shores of earth That all expectant wait.
Not when the blinding Sun in midday wrath Over the red desert scalds the redder sand And aches the pilgrim’s feet or wanderer’s
And no oasis in the welcome distance seen And parched are throats but worse Hope still upon some dizzy rock
Its radiant smile will fail to shine:
So like the desert wanderer
The shores of earth expectant the sea-waves To lave their wounds received day by day Await and Hope half-robed will sit On some high eastern rock to watch and wait:
Not when the Ganges flows in all its pride Will larger crowds to cleanse pray
The wounds and ills received and made that day:
How silent the sea-waves weave through the caves That line and grace the opposite shore And in them full rebound with echoes sweet Half-lulled half-heard and unexpected full Into the sweet glooms of those dark caves Tinted from pitch dark by the faint rays That the pale languid moon to them sends As it if in tribute to their Sovran rule:
As when the Caliph held in Arab lands His sway over the eastern lands to Ind
And heard the timbrels were by Oxus’ shores And one by one over the desert sand Wherein the Caliph’s men encamped were Glittering within the sight of palace gates And all the towers red that shimmering stood Melting in the vapors blue and mirage white Of the vast desert and its lonely sands:
And one by one the vassals tribute-bearing Before the Caliph brought their tributes due Carried and cared for from distant lands Where winter snows the dizzy mountains capped.
So the still moon his tributary rays shot Unto the depth and stillness of those echoing caves And in the dark silver fingers gleamed over the still waters that cooled the dome That rocky overhung their sleepy charge.
And in the even a thousand thoughts and more Sweet sentinels guarding the sacred brain Raced through it.
As when in cities fortified the sentinels Unwelcome movements and enemy presence sense In the long distance buried in the dark And folding robes of the oncoming night
And down the city-streets with torches bright Give the sad warning of the coming wrongs:
So did my thoughts overrun all streets
That winding through the brain pass and by-pass Each every nook and zone and site.
A skiff of lone dimension plied the sea
With slow and lapping oars the wavelets danced And all around the night fell on the waves.
Beyond, beyond the cities and the towns Lay dreaming in the night up to the shores
In the dark mantle that the night yclept Into this mantle a thousand lights shone bright Some moved, some not, some white or colored were
And all together moving like a feast of stars
They looked when in the silent dome Of azure heaven the stars celebrate:
No bell from the church steeples rang or sound Of voices human was; but in the distant shores
The sound of lapping waves the mind becalmed.
How skilful the thoughts blended in the night And from the terrace where on the Port I looked An air of sylphs seemed in that night to grace
As if with dancing Graces that still place:
The minutes passed and more and hours
And in the night profound stood I and looked And in my mind the thoughts in thousands teemed
No drowsiness my senses held; only thoughts Came treading in an army with no end Long, long the night and full profound Into that peerless quiet full embalmed lay:
And the hours of sleep I on the terrace passed Looking at the Port, the waves and the dark sea
And in my mind a thousand thoughts full teemed.
How many a night wished I to pass like this And never came!
How plan we with strategy and yet
What comes whenever it comes doth come
By sheer chance and accident (so we human say).
How many a night behind the closed windows I Heard the storm roar and knock to enter in:
And the strong wind with treacherous claws Like a strange monster roared and cruel full:
Awhile in the gelid air the rain drops pattered soon
On the still window-panes and I Could by wavering candle-light the drops espy Sliding into streams and rivers small:
Awhile the clock the hour struck or else the time
And all lay quiet: till from the distant bourn A roar I heard and then the lightning high High and full white into the torrid sky:
Sometimes it hideous shrieked, sometimes me thought The wintry billows on the tempest seas it was;
Sometimes the Night seemed to talk and shout In the same thunder-clap that roared in it.
How pleasant welling in my breast felt I
The teeming thoughts, the vague emotions lulled In to that long and wondrous night:
While the lone skiff moved closer to the shore And lo! Another skiff appeared in the door That to the Port led from distant seas And after that full many another skiff Passed into the shores and in the night:
Sweet Dawn was waking in her bed embalmed
When I went down: and in my look I saw A pleasure I had witnessed not before.
The Night with me and hand in hand it seemed A half-exhausted with numbed pleasures sweet Seemed to retire to its western cave:
Awhile the sea’s vast face turned to more grey And more and more with white it gleamed When Dawn out of her bed arose and walked:
The waters still as in the night they lapped
The dreaming shores: and far away
The Ocean’s breast enchanted immense lay.

How Slow

How slow
What ennui
What ennui

Life goes round
As the donkey
Round the water-mill
Patient and submissive
To destiny Resigned

Then
Of a sudden Feeling in its breast Burn the old ancient Still unquenched
Promethean fire
It rises from Its misery:
Just in the ECG
A sudden line
Arises from the troughs
And spurts.

The night, the dusk
The same
The dawn after dawn
The same
The secret lights Danced on certain tombs
Of Earth bustling wombs
The same
The same
And Evolution be at work And Time and Motion Move forth Irrepressible
Then Reflecting quite
In conservation see what was before:
So be
So be

How slow
What ennui
What ennui

How Spiny The Cactus Raised Itself

how spiny the cactus raised itself
into the desert
how red the sand burnt under the mid-day sun how scorched the scorpion moved across the red sand and in that silence a sudden whirlwind blows a red, red cloud of sand from the dunes rises

how spiny the cactus raised itself
into the tempest:

and yet
and yet the tempest was subdued and fell as happened long ago and now
and still
and spiny the cactus raises itself into the desert
and the red sand burns under the mid-day sun

How The Contrast

How the contrast with what went before never calculated what ill future years held in store

So it has come that we lost eager for life's love-fever seeing this disaster disaster after disaster and in the heavens before there looms more and more

I jotted down a plan of action plan of salvation my hope, my calculation

Yet with all this
day after day
continues this way a vessel that sinks midst waves surrounding the strong vessel grounding

With all this score there be life's horizon immortality suspended and end be in store

How the contrast
with what went before
never calculated
what ill future years held in store

How The Law Makes Us Live Within Its Cage

How the law makes us live within its cage
Even if we do not get inside its cage
We have to be aware all times
Not to get into the cage.

Is that the freedom that allowed To the Individual Sovereign Will?

Then I would go to view
The red dusk wane over the bastions old And sighing will it to take me with it.

How the night as a jealous eaglet prows over the frosty airs and waves of current gelid glows.

How The Night Breathes

How the night breathes
To-night!
The hummock of delight
In this Earth-prison
Hangs
Blotting the Conscious
All and quite Proud the Sub-Conscious erect Waves his wand
All mesmerizing.

How The Night Speaks

How the Night Speaks

Ah! the night speaks; speaks, yes, so said the ancient Anchorite the cave here on its walls is a film of images of all the history of the world

this night

without watching, I dream see the images the sub-conscious glows
burning.
Because the night speaks.

How Silence Speaks

In the pool a hidden hand threw a stone
and it was night long, long past dusk
of red:
and the circles swelled swelled in the pool
without a sound.

Verse and the Tomb Verse and tomb gloom and dread fear and calm An Angel with a sword in his loins stood by all night

The Monument on the Tomb

Marble monuments shone blue and white and trembling azure light for there was moon and there was night.

A Spirit with sad eyes
He watched and Stared vacant
In the ashen night
In the moving wind

A Spirit with tears
In the eyes Silent embraced
With one hand
The monument on the tomb
Then
When the first gray of Dawn Began to smile
Its way in to the Earth And skies
He kissed the monument
The monument on the tomb.
And vanished.

Ashes to Ashes

Ashes to ashes
spoke
The morning was so rote so tired

so bleak and dread

life be so; we humans bend
our heads
so often.

skeletons to skeletons
spoke in rains and tempests their teeth chattering.

their heads of holes
left the moon lit pass
through the drum of night in the distant end of the cemetery louder a little by midnight

subsided by three in the morning
by above flying things chattering

the trees
the moon
the stars
the night

ah! ashes to ashes
speak of black and ashes.

How The Night Sways

How the night sways
How the night sways
How the moon violins

How the flowers bend

How Thick The Veil This Night – This Summer Night

How thick the veil this night – this summer night
The long thick veil of Night!
How wander we Down steps and down
The eerie city streets – at night all desolate
And our paces echo and re-bound Into the shrine of sacred silence Into the night of dark they fade
And fade.

And as We go down
And by the sea
We saw the moon
The languid moon
Leap in to sea!

What suicide!

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Time Runs

How Time runs
When it wants
But then
When it be slow
It will be slow
It will be ticking
Breathing heavily
Into the cesspit
Of used moments Absolute: specific
The seconds and
The minutes.

How Time runs
When it wants
It crosses Bridges slow
Walking
Walking hand in hand With History.

How Time runs
When it wants
But then
When it be slow
It will be slow
It will be ticking
Breathing heavily
The seconds and
The minutes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Weary The Night Trudges On

How weary the night trudges on When summer with its heat Reigns with its humid sweat And restless loss of breath:
And slow, slow, slow
The sweat dropp drips, drips, drips.

How weary the night - how weary trudges on!

Emmanuel George Cefai
How White And Level The Plain

How white and level the plain
That stretches to the sea-ridge
The sea-ridge beyond which The sea roars in and out And laps against the giant rocks
This night.

I startle - the moon’s light Which I thought feeble -- Clearly the plain before me lights
And the dark bosom of the sea Entering and going silver shines
When the moon-rays with the dark waves commix
This night.

No sound save for my steps and the sea’s waves
And here and there a few cool gusts of wind.
No-body save for me - the rest so silent is:
The temples high above in black silhouette Rise like pointed turrets to the sky In silent draped and in dress funereal I walk, I think, I look at the seas, Tears come to my eyes and fall and fall
This night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Wide The Dawn

How wide the Dawn
Is smiling!
How silent-new
The air is breathing!
How raw the sea
Without a wave
Is looking!

And in the night –
Id est last night
How strange
The owl chanteth!
How far, how far Its cry did seem
And yet
It was so near!
How thrilled the tree
Below my lighted window
And in the night
The solemn night
The owl was still a-calling To spirits wild
Perhaps
Or long white ghosts Perhaps!

And in the eyes
Of the pale moon
The lake nearby glistened:
How white
How thin
The rays that fall
In midst of the dark waters!
And from the lake
A soundless sound
Is coming:
For in the waves
And from the waves
There comes a little gurgling
And in the night
In the long night
The owl is speaking, speaking!

Ah! this night – in the night
The people in the house
Are all a-sleeping
I – only I
The vigil, the night-vigil Am making:
And I
And only I Will my reward receive For I
And only I Am seeing For I
And only I Am hearing
And I
And only I Am feeling!

How strange how sere
The feeling!
How from the clear night
The mist of sudden riseth!
And from afar
Past ten long fields
The cemetery is burning
With the pale light Of the swift moon
That fall
On every wall
This long, long night!

It seems
It seems That the cemetery’s open:
And yet
And yet
There is no noise
No sound
But from the yews
A soundless sound
Is coming:
A restless sound Like souls
This night all-aching And restless
Restless
At some thing
I am not hearing!

Ha! We on earth Make prisons
And lodge
Bodies – human bodies in them:
And we on earth
Make cemeteries
And lodge
Bodies – human bodies in them
And the long night
Under the light Of heaven
How waning-blue
And tight
Is coming!

So:
At long last
We fall into a prison
If not the one
In fine to the other
And at the last
And in the last
We enter our last prison:
And in the night
The long and lonely night
The cemetery is shining!

How Wide-Eyed Blue Azure

How wide-eyed blue azure

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Wild, How Wild Your Charmed Eyes

How wild, how wild your charmed eyes
Look over the sea-waves my child
And all your hair’s a-fluttering:
The sea-breeze murmurs full Like to the entering sea in magic nights
When hills and caves and walls and stones Rise move and walk and laugh and talk When the half-moon unseen by human eyes Sheds tears of joy and smiles – wanton lover Too, too wanton lover of the night
This white and silent moon presents its suit To the full sensous Night draped sole In sole transparent mantle dark whereon The moon mischevous lover! Throws Its faint rays discovering the warm breasts And sensous limbs by Jovian gods new-forged Of the lone-coming Night, the sensous Night Drowning slowly in the small bay wherein It swims where shallow waters ride Into the bay, to make love with the rocks That move from their long sleep
The sleep they slept since times archean old When hot and staid from earth they were before they cooled Into the long, long years that after came Into the satyr nights alas! Long gone and now Coming but rare in that cove all unseen unknown
This long, long night
Now finished swimming its sensous limbs Stretches in the moon’s light suitor-admiring And still the silent bay dreams without a stir.
So come, so come this night my child
This magic night, this Merlin night
How wild, how wild your charmed eyes
Look over the sea-waves my child
And all your hair’s a-fluttering
And the sea-breeze now murmurs to the full.

How Will You Help?

How will you help?
so said the Figure grim dressed in a flowing mantle trim
and it was night.

I am a Poet Seer
would you will to hear my song and chant
to-night
and nightingales
forego?

Erect spoke not the Figure grim.
Yet he sate him down
A little distance to hear my chant
and song.

How Yearn I For A Potioned Wine – This Night!

How yearn I for a potioned wine – this night!
How race and run the drops of blood
How race the red, red drops of blood – this night!

How from the face of heaven the clouds Seem swept away by some full-scathing broom How smiling the pale moon!

Ah! methinks that the moon, the modest moon Has in itself somehow sometime infused The red, red drops of Bacchus – lo in it The wanleness cool is turning to a red And on its cheek already ruddying goeth:
And merry looks the moon this merry night.

Never would I have thought the moon to be Votary of Bacchus and his ivied green:
Nor of its conquest by the sweaty arms
Of satyrs fauns and nymphs of Bacchus wild:

And in my cheeks like the wan moon
So will I potion myself with red, red wine Cool from the earth in cooler beakers kept Delicious as the drops of red, red blood Were to Dracula.

Then will I yearn to sleep and drowse and dream.

Emmanuel George Cefai
How Yearn I For A Quiet House

How yearn I for a quiet house
Buried amidst the hills Green with ever-lasting shrubbery In a soft land:
And the sweet scent
That distant pines Aloft on the air send.

How meek and sad
The flowers thrust
Their petal-crowned heads into the wind That winnows and plays lazily:
How meek and sad.

And in the distant lake
The lapping waves I hear Humming along the wire like electricity Transported on sound waves
The water waves from distance Thus transformed as Greek gods of old Of ancient days.

And straight before
The lone and linear plain Unending to the horizon stands
As if with it locked In ever-lasting embrace The embrace of heaven and earth
That will not let go:

And on the long, long plain
The sheated gold of seeds Full with the gladness of rural bounty Where rural gods unseen do seem to pass.

A bird flies along the skies – and chirps

Humming Bees

Woofs and trees
Humming bees
The winter awake
The streets dirty
And in the morning dry Their thirst now slake
For in vast drizzles
The water falls pit-pit-pit
the water falls

Knight in green
Such shiny sheen Even in a dim Noon's light
And in a hazy Trembling starlight!

Ah! who be
Our knight in green?
Who has so much sheen?
In a night
Of clouds thunder and Rain
Sweet dreams subconscious Twangs of pain?
To-night
This bed the night
Of all of this
Tonight!

Ah! in to the Sub-Conscious
You hear such things!

Even I heard ringing
In the distant past Ringing of bells and

Hymn To Minerva

No incense do I have to offer, this
Night!

No palms no wreaths no flowers,
This night!

No prayers of a crowd offered
To-night!

But my lips uttered in fear prayer
To-night!

Wisdom, wisdom I need, I man Of solitude, thrown Alone into the turbulence of earth:
Wisdom I need
To-night!

Ah! bring me to the fount of wisdom!
I saw a white light descend
That I saw not before:
And being Poet-Seer, philosopher,
I knew that was Minerva.

I knew of my salvation in that night.

To you kind goddess, I, with Empty hands
What will I dedicate
By Dawn herself, her beauty?

You ask me how:
How ardent and presumptuous I
To offer Dawn
To offer what is not mine:
Ah! wait!
For I am Poet-Seer, and The Poet-Seer has Earth for him
And to him Earth calls master And calls Lord:
For when his lyre he,
The Poet-Seer strings,
The Earth will in her visceral Tremble and joy as the lyre Wills!

Therefore let me as Poet-Seer Minerva,
offer Earth and Dawn
To you
And the new Day
That Earth be blessed by you,
That Earth embark on a new way,
A better way,
My chant, my verse,
To-night,
Great Minerva hear:
And hearing, grant
My prayer on behalf of Earth:
This Earth I am of,
This Earth I love so, my goddess.

I

I that could see the suffering
I
That had a heart pitying
The healing of the Earth:
I
Who roamed a tiger through The hoarse and barren tufts That sprouted rare
And wild here and there
On that vast plain that stretched And stretched and stretched Horizon thin: where night Kissed it:
Lip to lip:
It stretched, and as I walked Through those long stretches Found I that it stretched And stretched till Night had ended And Dawn came smiling at the edge Where cliff and white fell giddying to deep seas.

I Am A Broken Reed

I am a broken reed
And
The cruel winds blow
More and more

Be drawn Lie broken.

I Am Driven

Driven
I am driven into the corner of asserting:
'Well descent finally heads to extinction so descent and no descent be

Am I a lover of sour grapes sudden grown so?
What I assert nonetheless makes ascendants and descendant pale or else the drunken crowd that danced before Baal
before the final
tragedy.
One or the other.
Just that.
Just that.

I Am Going To The Wars

O! I am going to the wars
I!

And time is fast, my Love.

And Day to its sweet fading Draws

And in its Spring of Beauty
The flower bends and closes.

I!

And will rarely return
I!

For O!
I am going to the wars
I!

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Am Going To The Wars – O!

I am going to the wars now – O!
Where there is blood and toil
And passing over unknown seas And lands –
And rain and mist and glaring of the sun
I’m going to the wars now – O!

I’m going to the wars now – O!
Where night and day and light and dark Together mix – become irrelevant:
Save for the on-ward marching And hoarse chanting of the march songs:
I’m going to the wars now – O!

I’m going to the wars now – O!
Where the red earth is redder made Where drops of red, red blood
The golden corn-sheaves dye Where mothers lose their sons Fathers their wives and children Children their fathers lose:
I’m going to the wars now – O!

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Am Hunger

I am in hunger.
Beware.

My hair that was Elegant and attired
Now Stands on end

Every hair is a Risen bush

Beware.
My hunger eats.

I am childless
That Makes me hungry
Beware
Beware the child.

Do not tell me.
Do not say
That I am envious.

Is not my blood
A red blood
A human blood?

But Dracula
Is now my icon.
Nay,
I do, not imitate.

Civilization beware
Too.
I am another civilization
Now.
The civilization of hunger.
And
Hunger made me so.

But do not that Your silence make me Mad.
Not fierce just.
That’s hunger.

Your silence cuts to My bones more Than the hunger.
Beware the silence.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Am Not Of Them

They are fortunate.
I am not of them.

Few lines
Few lines, my Monsignor

The rest is sad dirge and The rest is just funereal
And drear

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Am Not Wise

I say that I am not wise
I will to be wise so I have to gather always from all fields

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Am The Morning

I am the Morning
And I am the Dawn!

I am the joiner of the open wounds

I am the clouds hovering there I go there I will stay strong enough to stay

I am

I am who likes to say
I am

I am monster, plebeain, saint.

I change from time to time even by second to second at my will
I am.

I am thus easy a Poet Seer

With the emotions I am overwhelmed but with emotions I too overwhelm

I am the Change that Changes and Transforms Changed and Transform the Spirit stays the same but Transformation simultaneous
goes!
I am the passage of time the delirium of the clock-hands madly racing
So many look at my racing
hands
I saw so many faces white Others resigned:
I saw
I am.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Bowed My Head In Front

I bowed my head in front of the greatness of the disabled man riding in his wheel chair Awed felt I as if of olden times I saw an olden king
and bowed my head
and bowed my head

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Breathe And  Pant

I hear the bellows - working
I breathe and pant
and in the streets
there's raining
I say
I hear the bellows working

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Brought My Mother The Walking Aid.

I brought my mother the walking aid.

I saw the dusk upon her face.

Why mother? asked I
Is it not good for you?
I paid for it myself to see you rise from bed.

She replied not; alas I turned away from her flushed ashen
face.

And night had come and deepened.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Cannot Haughty Be

I cannot haughty be.
With my back to the Wall
I can only resign myself
So long
I have been with my back to wall!
I thought
I would find breath to escape
The cutting edge of the guillotine Already I see it dazzling: Descending
Be quick
My head is off.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Carry his body that with my Self I carry
this body moves rests rises stops starts starts again
so many
so many motions.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Chanted

A civilization of the night
I chose
I sang
I chanted more than The civilization of the day
I chanted
*
Throughout a day of roses Sings the streamlet Its banks overflow not
But Humble within their remit Stay

Kind the night violets
Though
Their heads bending
They threw off Secret scents for Those sweet secret times

Non-chalant and dizzy
The Knight from Last Night
Ferrets through the day Likes not the light Prefers the light of Burning stars
That after all Just be burning suns
As our sun of day,
And more.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Closed My Eyes

I closed my eyes – a Poet Seer is want To open his eyes!

But now ill news tread upon the hells
Of ill news

And what I do is but to close my eyes.
Still breathing

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Closed My Eyes.

I closed my eyes.
Above
glittered the silver of the guillotine.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Come To Where You Lie My Mother

I come to where you lie my mother and feel the stones that separate us vibrate, though the sun shines, and a lark from a high tree sings,
I feel, I feel the earth tremble.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Complain I Lament.

I complain.
I lament.
But then let us figure things out.

For verse I left out things.
For song I left out things.

And
the leaving out of these things made me the misery that I am now and the tragedy.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Do Not Will My Verses To The Grave

I do not will my verses to the grave but let them thrive in to the upper world the Earth of all of us where each day there will be a new dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Dreamt

I dreamt
I slept
Yet I saw you my mother
Sleeping

Sleeping in the tomb
Where winter rains be beating And the lark in the chill Of morn arises.

I dreamt of you
A light – an angel light
For after all
All dressed in white
You were – and dreaming

Dreaming the paradise you won Yet for me worrying Yet for me praying.

So when I hear thunder creaking
And lightning flash and rumbling
I think of you – cannot escape –
You in your tomb lying.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Dreamt Wild Dreams, Dreams Without Fear

I dreamt wild dreams, dreams without fear
Where water wild and green Upon the white jagged cliffs Seethed in their rage and tore Whole chunks of rocks grey raw and white.

How high the cliffs, how giddying
They were Dover-like chalky-white and tall Rising from the green sea, the raging sea.

And high above the stormy petrel sailed High, high and traveling Full many kilometers in few lapping How eerie its cry, how hideous
It rang over that frozen sea:
More frozen ‘twas than the green frozen sea.

How wild the wind and uncontrolled How high and white the waves
Here, there, to west, to east, to everywhere
The cold sweat still I feel around me creep:
And rang all hideous the hideous cry
Of the stormy petrel.

Now ‘twas a rage, then whisper, then a sigh.

And then the thunder rolled Its fingers tall irregular Sowed omen and ill in the dark sky That cleft its lips with every thunder-peal With ever thunder-clap Over that tempest green.

How high, how bleak, the stormy petrel flew How dank the rain that fall and cold:
How more dark grew the dusk, more dark:
How high and white the waves
Here, there, to west, to east, to everywhere
The cold sweat still I feel around me creep:
And rang all hideous the hideous cry
Of the stormy petrel.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Feel

I feel
Just
As If
My Mother
were speaking to me.

And I feel
Just
As if God
was speaking
through my mother,
now.
He
Is Speaking
Through
you.

Dear
one,
I Have Nothing Except God,
And
The
Will
And
The Wish
To Pray
To God.

And I
feel
just
as Job Felt
When God Took Everything from him
and
even the animals
licked his wounds.
I Am
Not exaggerating.
I Tell What
I Tell.

And
In
All this agony there is the voice of an angel,
an angel sent by God,
an angel called You Just that,
No less
No less

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Feel Like The Sea-Gull

I feel like the sea-gull
That wanders the ocean-waves calm or tossed With tempests in mid-Ocean or sea-shore:
I am the sea-gull
That with parched throat Cries his piercing cry across the landscape Where sea and sky are only and they meet In my lone call:
I am the sea-gull that protests
And speaks injustice and its pains
And that is why
My throat is parched – yet I am free Free in my flight across the air Flipping around my wings; moving Flying miles and kilometers moving Flying near to land as much as can I For I must bespeak – people must hear me.
My call I know will pierce
And the hearts
That lie now frozen by unjust hands
Will feel the warmth of summer in their innocence Their throats no longer will be parched Nor will they thirst
But by the springs of paradise will slake their thirst:
And they will have justice.
And the earth will flower again, no longer groan Under its burdens
And I
And I, the lonely sea-gull of the ocean-winds Will cry my eerie cry no more My deed done my heart can break
And I
The lonely sea-gull will float Float speechless on the Ocean’s bosom to the skies.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Feel That Time Is Passing.

I feel that time is passing.
I feel that time is slipping.
I see that time is passing.
I see that time is slipping.
Experience
Perception, the one into
The other transforms and then back again
The more, in as direct proportion,
The more preferable.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Feel The Cold And Now I Understand

I feel the cold and now I understand what means to end in cold.

Winter is only beginning now, but hunger adds to the cold

But more low temperatures in the sad soul, the Inner Soul, the deep Inner Soul

Together they conspire, they combine, and already hear I the black veiled figure-woman sing the last fugue of me and the last
verses.

the acerb lemon now grows in the garden where midst the acerb trees there plays the slow sound of the last fugue, the last very last, last verses.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Felt The Trembling

And
I felt the trembling
The trembling of the chill
But more than that
There was
The trembling of the Fear
And
What was yet to come A guillotine saw I
Resigned
And felt deeper and deeper
The trembling of the chill.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Fight By Now All Alone

From the little group
Of singles and childless humans
I fight alone but I fight.

The song
That ascended was sensuous
I needed it
To enhance at least
By a little
That fire that in me
Has eroded in the last years.

There was the forty year old Woman
She too wanted to challenge
The twenty years olds
And the younger.

She succeeded.

And I?

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Figured It

I figured It gone round the corner
But no!
On reaching the corner
I found It waiting waiting me

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Gulped In Water

I gulped in water
As I gulped age.

I felt cool winds
When my feet slowed.

My feet became wet
After long hibernation.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Had Better Not Speak

I had better not speak
to you in these verses.
Better my heart to remain closed and
I
I keep the keys of iron.
The Times pass and yet the Icon of Sadness remains the keyboard clicked in vain.

Bitter the chill winds neighed around the corners of the dilapidated house.

When time has passed and you do not bring it in again then sit and wait Destiny be round the corner

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Have A Desire

I have a desire
A burning desire To fly as a bird fly, fly, fly.

My feet must be unattached
To this ground whereon
I am condemned – rather my feet –
To touch the ground, always.

Even when I sleep
Somehow I’m rooted to the ground Whether I will or not.

But to be bird
Then I have power to transgress What binds me to the ground To break and to let loose
At least for one short ride
For one brief flight.

And then
And then
I will not care so much
What will happen next:
At last
My supreme wish has been granted

I have defied the gods (if so they be) (Excuse to science; excuse to reference frames) That tied me to the ground And won.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Have Been Friend To The Muse

‘I have been friend to the Muse ‘But my son you must do that’

I know, I know my father
I have to be a father, father

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Have Begun

I have begun
A new age, a new methodology Of writing verse, song and poesy.

You have noticed to-day.

Well, well, take note: it is vital.

The subjects are not so different:
For who can escape
The beauties of the night, the dusk,
The winds, the verse and song,
The Bacchanalian wreaths and wine?

Bring me the garland first I want the flowers
Now that the dusk is gone.
Next
Bring the wreath, the laurel wreath
And then the lyre simultaneously.

Let the Muse put the laurel wreath on my head.

Well, if I am ruined for being a Poet
There is at least a laurel wreath That the silent nymphs and the Muse Have donned.

Humans take note: for you ignore.

Till now
The iron of the burning molten fires
Of the sinews of the forges Of the nether earth
Are not obstructing the cool ground of green.

Nor frighten the nymphs and fairies numerous.

For the Dawn is away, and in their numbers
From small numbers at the setting of the dusk One by one, couple by couple,
They increased.
And now they people the green lawns Head under the trees from which hang Like sentenced prisoners from gibbets
The downcast fruits in their nocturnal mode.
The rest is joy and silence.
The leaves rustle, restless
The boughs move and turn.
Restless.
Restless.
For the Dawn is away, and in their numbers
The nymphs and fairies numerous increased And in the mirror of the heavens eyes’ Already shine the prospect of the Dawn.
See! See! The fairies said:
The heavens have turned spies
On us.
Conspiring with Dawn we fear so;
Though
We admire her and love her beauty so Yet her light blinds us to our flight:
Rings as the sentence of the condemnation
To the nether world one by one, couple by couple.

Well, let me, let me, revel in these thoughts
And joys:
Let me be ruined if I am spoiled by these Let me be spoiled and ruined simultaneous.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I have climbed up the mountain of despair Oft – too oft perhaps for me Too many bitter cups of grief I drunk
Too few the days of calm I joyed.

My flower of youth I wasted more Than time and age could
Too many bitter cups of grief I drunk
Too few the days of calm I joyed.

Too many nights of weirdness I had When bad dreams chased all sleep away:
And the black firmament like a cold wall Smiled at me where’er I trod and went Railing and deriding my despair.

Too many storms of green my vessel has Weathered and been buffeted into Too many a water wraith and ghost Saw I in my mountain of despair:

Too many a field with corpses have I dreamed Strewn and divided all irregular:
Too many a stormy sea with corpses I Have dreamed swollen and strewn amidst the wrecks:
Too many a field with crosses in rows decked And yew-clad cemeteries solitaire I dreamed.

Too many a monster new unheard unseen
By previous eyes or ears have I met To many a deed and mishap have I been Nor have been spared a son’s grief and despair
And now my father lies low in earth.

And now it seems that few black days remain
And blacker days on black days follow suit Pointing with every day a-down and down:

My heart now too hard for tears is; my eyes Are dry as desert sands or milked breasts My throat is parched with the last dryness weird.
I have ascended the mountain of despair.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Have Come In The Habit

I have come in the habit-- I have come in the habit of thinking But after that I came in the habit of feeling:
So I married them together - And pregnant with their child
I wrote my poesy.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Have Feet

For suffering

And breath
For its panting

And hands to reach
Clouds
When it be rising
To the high peaks rising

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Have No Words, But Words That Are Grey

I have no words, but words that are grey.

Yes grey, the color is not here Because I am not inspired now.
The Muse has to come and save me.

And here, here, I write, I write still Not just for writing but perhaps Like a wheel turning mechanically from The previous rounds, on its axle;
The last rounds and turns of the wheel May be Before it stops for now.

Yes, I spoke and versified long ago
And not so long ago about Parched throat, dry hill side, Water coming not, dry, dry, Dust of the dry summer, touched By the Moses iron rod a new Spring.
From now
That is still beginning of the Winter That is a rather long way to go.

So I have to hope in the Muse.

And I will do crazy things; yes,
What before I asserted crazy,
Now I do, and feel comfortable
Or at least not the sign of guilt And anguish and desperation:
No, no, no.

There was a time when I looked at a certain sundial to Mark time: a sort of game,
That’s all.
But now my nervousness Gets the better of me and
I
No longer think slow of Time
But with impatience look not On the sundial.
I know Time is Motion and I Know that Time goes round
All the same,
Cutting leaf after leaf from my diary,
My calendar,
And yet, I, parched though
The more yearning for my lyre,
Still Waiting to sing, and write and Versify.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Have Received

I have received
Hate and more than hate.

I that have loved more Than I hated.

My verse now stutters
My verse now hops
And yet I love, somehow.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I have to thank you for your spleen
And for your cruelty above all They strengthened my poetry And made me rise where you will never go.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Have To Write Another Date

It will take work, an extra
Work
But never mind,
The ship is saved

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Hear Bells Ring

When
I hear bells ring Slow and sad
Though it be not dusk
Even
In the sun-bathed streets
I slow my pace
Heave my breath
My eyes wax sad
When
I hear the bells ring

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Hear Not From You.

I hear not
From you.

But Then I see you.

I see your smile
But
Hear your sighing.
And I ask:
Why?

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Hear The Castle Of The Seas

I hear the castle of the seas
Unloaded by the hands Of Neptune’s emissaries:
One stone by one stone
One precious stone by One precious stone
I hear
Is Neptune envious of the castle of the sea?

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Hear The Horn

I hear the horn.
He came for me.

I feign not to hear.
But my hair stands
on end.

A castle and a house
stopped.
It was no dynasty

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Heard

I heard
I heard the burnt desires crackling in the nether fire fire below my feet feet over the cemetery
all over all over the cemetery and the crackling of documents the cutting of chains the groans of liberation freedom
naked running in the dark of light of the wild stars the cunniog night
I heard
I heard the burnt desires

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Heard A Nightingale Cry

I heard a nightingale cry
and that was last night and there was threatening star-light
yet
yet the nightingale cried ominous.

and yet
yet
though the cry was ominous I stood star-struck amidst the frost of that night, a statue of chill erect as the firs and oaks stood I.

and in the ominous song of the nightingale
I saw and heard of new evolution the gale.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Heard A Violin

I heard
A violin as I passed By the end of Saint Paul Street
The violin I heard:
And it was playing
Sad.
And it came from The small and quaint Street
Where there's my heart
Romantic seeping
Through
And into the wines Piping and flowing
Of olden centuries:
A violin
A violin stood Playing sad.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I heard Night stumbling in the air of mists I heard Night scenting Romeo-like to moon
I heard Night stomping with the love-sick stars
I heard Night knocking at the door of dusk
I heard Night pacing on the shores of Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Heard Of Spring

I heard of Spring
And I heard in the night Sang a nightingale
And heard I tears in my eyes

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Heard The Bells Ringing.

I
Heard
The Bells Ringing.

Ringing
From
The cathedral every day
Every night
At quarters.

And they annoyed me not In day
And
At night
And the bells to rest
thrilled me

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Heard The Breath Expire

I heard the breath expire
The Sub-Conscious tells And tells so much!

The houses and all are In haze.

Darkens the face Embers burn low Decreases fire.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I heard the croaking laugh
It was of a green goblin
And the goblin jumped into the night
Beneath the white search-light
Of the burning star-light
Burning, burning in the night.

Make me sleep, make me
In your womb
That yet be a tomb
Where flourish things Where flourishes Beauty
And sadness is least.

I heard the croaking laugh
It was of a green goblin
And the goblin jumped into the night
Beneath the white search-light
Of the burning star-light
Burning, burning in the night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Heard The Ditty Flee And Fleet

over the port, the water golden awhile the Dawn was there
and then the wheels the grating of the wheels of cruel pitiless day
heard I.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Heard The Foot-Steps

I heard
I heard the foot-steps
I heard the foot-steps
Along the hills
And the hills were Green
Though night’s reign was Darkening:
I heard
I heard
The drops giant
Falling
Falling
I heard foot-steps
And they were great
And there was sound
And
I thought it was some giant as of old
But
Then Saw I emerging from a coppice A figure spare and small And great
A Poet Seer

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Heard The Moths Singing

I heard the moths singing Busily singing
For
I was in the cemetery
And
It was a night of solitude Night of internal pain Internal suffering
Gethsemane

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Heard The Nightingale Sing

And Then
And Then

In the deep midnight
   I heard the nightingale sing
       Then stop as she Saw me.

Then a chorus of goblins, of Hedgehogs, clams from sea,
Toads, insects began to sing
Round
Round
Turned the bacchanalian wine
With ivied heads of green:
And on their tiptoes
nymphs danced daintily

And then heard I
   The speech of the wise-owl
       She thought I understood not But ah! A Poet Seer and philosopher
                I understood.
                I heard.
                I went to home and wrote.
That was philosophy, new thought.
Ideas all the Earth needs Not the object-things, materially.

Then a chorus of goblins, of Hedgehogs, clams from sea,
Toads, insects began to sing
Round
Round
Turned the bacchanalian wine
With ivied heads of green:
And on their tiptoes
nymphs danced daintily

Shone the moon that night
Her orbs on the Ocean seas And immense liquid reigns That girdle Mother Earth
Before the dawn
In to the deep of night Far, far away
From the ledges of Earth From towns that sleep and Dream not beauty but Sub-conscious wrath
As the Inner Soul to clean herself And mend the wounds of faded day Attempts.

Then a chorus of goblins, of Hedgehogs, clams from sea,
Toads, insects began to sing
Round
Round
Turned the bacchanalian wine
With ivied heads of green:
And on their tiptoes
nymphs danced all daintily

there was a man
human he wandered through the streets some papers in hand a pen of ink he glared he stared as yet he did not sing.
The time must come at last Murmured this man
The time must come I sing
But more vital than that That all that on Earth be Remembered always be
And all
Not just the few
When Hand to hand
The people joined Shoulder to shoulder
They march
Under the Tree of Liberty Where human rights no restriction see Nor civil liberties any frowning know
And Knowledge amongst All shared equally
And Genius too:
Genius for All, of All, in All.
A new order of All
A new civilization
A new Immortality

Emmanuel George Cefai
I heard the note of Spring
I heard the note of dusk I saw a lark fly to the night disappear in the stars bewildered.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I heard the thunder
I was in the bed sheets
One night's thrill
Carried a life in a fist
I took it
And drunk
The rains made more
The merriment
As in a Scottish jig
They beat the panes
Whilst
Winds assailed the Roof
Whilst
Winds assailed the Doors.
I heard the thunder
I was in the bed sheets
One night's thrill
Carried a life in a fist

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Heard Them Read My Poems

I heard them read my poems, and I Wondered

Then when those lines I had written I remembered

My heart told me for from there
The verses came

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Heard These Verses In A Dream

I heard these verses in a dream I slept I heard these verses with my closed eyes
I heard these verses with a heart that wept

I having suspended an Immortality
I had passionately so passionately presented Now to dust and to bones must turn At least as temporarily.

Country my country possess not My dust and bones wide be the earth And let them elsewhere be.

My spirit will not hover over this
Earth
I will to hover over seas and oceans Glaciers and snow-capped mountains There my Spirit wills to draw The oxygen of the heavens.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Hug

I hug these verses
These verses that I leave These last farewells

Dry, dry
The tear in my eyes.

Open the case
And play the violin
The farewell.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I kissed your hand
And
Since that time
I went up a hill
I climbed and Climbed Restless yet
In joy
I sang and sang
And new joy Was born to
The Earth!

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Know That I Must Not Lose That Thrall

I know that I must not lose that thrall
Though
But few days ago I entered upon another year
The New 2011:
I must continue.

Since years before has my Muse grown?
Has she fonder become?
More mad for me?
For any honey from lips?
For any depth in my utterances?
For any profundity of thought?
For the long line of might and nobleness?
For all the rest I do not remember to confess?

Ah! Homer with your lines of nobleness
You showed me a key, just nobleness:
The words once the breast carries nobleness,
The words, I say, will flow
With the very auto-sound of the Voice That mighty rolls against the Ocean shores Of the hammer-beating brain of a Poet-Seer.

Here, these tombs, this grave-yard, Remnant and symbol of civilization Up to now:
O! I yearn for yet another Civilization where we will not need Tombs graveyards and cemeteries For the things that move and live.

Here, here, here, bless me,
Minerva my mind enlighten,
My heart already in Immortality be,
And hangs upon the very clouds Of great Olympus.
There reached I.

But reaching those summit heights
I know that immense must be The aid to shore up in that high state: Nay, higher must I go,
Or others after me
Were I to fall to reach Immortality.
Yet
The flame is lighted, and I lighted it.
The deed is done, I did it, History speaks.
Keep me this way, give me more nobleness Keep me this way, and on this road I travel.
Help me discover more, and in ever-increase the more unravel.
The summit heights I reached,
And far from falling I must higher go.
That is my calling.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Lit A Candle Flame So

I lit a candle flame so humble
over the place where the bones of my mother be:
so humble
that no one touched the flame always dim yet Perservering

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Lit The Fire

Ah! I lit the fire Lit the fire of Immortality
But save you not.

My cousin,
You had to suffer
And then you lost
The bus of Immortality.

The restless Soul
Now gnaws at me
My Inner Soul:
Yet tells me
’Worry not; do not Worry; see
A palace celestial Before me dangling See I’

Yet still Continues my discomfort.

For
Ah! I lit the fire
Lit the fire of Immortality
But saved you not.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I looked again at the Hanging Man.
And he had a sardonic smile
This time.
The sardonic smile was on his lips.
And I started thinking.
And after some time I too smiled
Sardonically.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I looked in the mirror in the night
And let the moon shine on half my face Behind me the black statue rose Out of the dark no longer out of mist
And I could see my soul
And I could hear my soul
Into the long night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Looked Once

From where I looked I looked
Once -
Just once -
Not more
Not more
No
No
For I viewed the quarreling Stenches of mists and Gases
In the struggle of chaos
Chance and probability Beginning of structure Poetry and verse
Not finished, open mouthed

Emmanuel George Cefai
I looked over the sea nocturnal
And heard a song
A song coming from the sea
Over the waves it came Came right to my heart
In those dark waters and in those dark skies
I heard the song and my heart Enchanted with it and with my eyes Blood coursed the heart, my heart And the song came, still flowed From over the waves in the dark night

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Looked Straight In To The Eyes Of Twilight

Looked hard and Looked insistent as a lens:
For
The twilight was not a blinding Sun
Yet
Blinded still my enmeshed eyes
With sleeping beauty.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I looked, I looked into the seas
From the giddying height Of rocks down falling to the seas:
And speechless the moon shone
Without a word.

And in this din of silence I
A candle lit to see
The wild and eerie motions of it While the winds moved Across that sordid plain at night
Without a word.

And flickered the candle-flame
Like a wavering heart-beat Like my life
Atwixt hope and despair
Atwixt joy and grief Ennui and the glory of the happy:
Like a loose woman in the throes Of indecision guilt and shame
So looked I on the plain that night
Without a word.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Met Adam On The Road

I Met Adam
On
The Road
His Face
Was Red
Deep
Red
He Woke
From Slumber
Of
So Many centuries
He told Me.
And I
Fell Dizzy

When Woke
I Adam
Had Left
I
Had Dazed
Sub-consciousness

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Must Feel My Heart Burning

I must feel my heart burning Burning again
As it did in the night of anguish
When Night in his gaudy car Put out one by one the twinkling stars
And no moon smiled but clouds:
And there lay darkness on the firmament
Then will my heart burn again in anguish
And beat the thrill of fear and despondency
And there lies darkness on the firmament.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Must Feel The Pulse Of The Day

I must feel the pulse of the day
Panting in the stark heat of mid-day Sweaty in the Mediterranean sun Burning in the heat blinding At one and two o’clock at afternoon Pulsating slow slower, slower
As the sun gets below
The city bastions treed with olives
And yews and cinnamon and oaks
As the long night prepares his horses and his car Wherein he will light soon to go his round Round the azure heavens drawing after him His mantle dark-transparent where he pass:
And one by one the stars of the long night
With his experienced stewardship he lights.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I must return
Repentant
To the Poet Seer who long ago
Brought that inspired warmth
In my red heart

And then
For then
The parched throat
Began to sing
The blank mind
To think
The lyre hoarse Became as sweet
And versified.

So
So I must return
Repentant
To the Poet Seer who long ago
Brought that inspired warmth
In my red heart

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Need A Talisman

I need
I need a talisman
Here on my way to ever-increase of literature, science, thought sciences social and all the parameters that civilizations brought.
And
then let me work, work, work, till my eyes auto-close in silent victory.
I need
I need a talisman

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Now Move, I Now Move –

I now move, I now move –
The walls murmur
The leaves whisper:
The night will be here
See
The sunset reddening
Is so fast fading:
Hesperus is ascending
The brain is whirling:
But then
That is the sign of inspiration Go, go, to the rooms of books and manuscripts:
There the computer will be waiting For your fast fingers on the key board drumming:
Your brain with wave: currents lighting
I now move, I now move –
The walls murmur
The leaves whisper:
The night will be here

Emmanuel George Cefai
I On Earth Groan

Hear!
Olympus hear!
From my literature
My science
My all
My civilization
See the groan
The continual groan!

The centuries pass
And
The ages count
Yet
Continual the groan

And
The groan increases
As I more aware Become
My eyes be opened My leaves hide
No longer my nudity:
As
The Conscious rivals the Sub-Conscious
As
The Sub-Conscious its Comeback makes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I opened the casements of my house Onto the wild, wild sea
The billows were on it austere and free
The sea-wind with every house-corner neighed
And with the bending palms in the garden played At dice or in the games of life at will
And still the casements opened and opened As if by magic trance or guided else
By a thousand small invisible goblin-hands That from the sea-main seemed to fly and come Over the billows austere and free
As the sea-wind with every house-corner neighed
And with the bending palms in the garden played Beyond, beyond the vista low and large A plain of beach sand lapped by the waves And here and there an oasis of sweet palms That bent their olive heads in the winds’ waffling And coming and going over the sea.
Where the white billows raged saliva-like Or like bent god-thrones cool and flexible In that long windy plain, in that salt sea Upon the which my magic casements opened That day, that long and windy day of life
The sea-wind with every house-corner neighed
And with the bending palms in the garden played
And that was long ago, not days or months, But years, whole years and now my hair Is turning fast to white and my breath shorter goes Than it was then that long and windy day
The sea-cliff raged all white like the salt sea And hid unseen the waves in the inlet small All hidden from the eyes of curious men Waxed green and green – ah! it is so to-day
And still Long windy days come oft and come as go:
And the sea-wind with every house-corners neighs
And with the bending palms in the garden plays.
Emmanuel George Cefai
I Own The Sea

I own the sea
for
I am a Poet Seer
I own the sea-waves when they spume
in the long nights the winds hum round
and round
over the houses and the steeples pointed with sound

things fall and clank and in the fracas of dilapidation
the sound
goes round and round the whistling gale still runs.

Ah! my Soul be still in my body
today:
in the warmth of viscera
and the rest
It peeps its head sometimes feels the gritty cold draws back.

the waters
they still run over the
winds
the lazy leaves inane and sleepy-drear... they get the winds to carry them round
and round
they fall unto the winds to carry them they fall

For I own the sea
for
I am a Poet Seer
I own the sea-waves when they spume
in the long nights
the winds hum round
and round
over the houses and the steeples pointed
with sound

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Paid The Price

I paid the price
a heavy price
and I knew I had to pay that price.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Passed Zephyr By

I passed Zephyr by Since that I was in poesy:
And those are allowed
That sacrifice on the altars to the Muse.

Heifers and sheep and cattle Roasting
On the altars of the shrines Fireworks rotating
In the nocturnal heavens Blazing.

In towns and cities
As the globe turns Lights flicker and firm Hold sway
Till
Of a sudden Candle-like be blown By Dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Poet Seer Of The Parched Throat

And I
I Poet Seer of the Parched throat
Poet Seer of the dry sides
And dusty hilly sides Under the hammering summer heat Bring me
Bring me
And
Then
All suddenly
The heavens opened
The Voice of the Velvet Came out
And said:
Let there be song
And Chanted the Poet Seer
And his hand wrought of verse
Was born
The genesis
Of suffering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I prefer to work but if star-gazing
You allow me to call work
That this will feature prominent Amongst my work.
We humans
We
We make the day for ourselves Rape her the day for our use Work satisfaction and Survival:
Wound her in her sublimity of silence Despise her then when towards The waning sunset’s rising We note that we are losing
Her
We suddenly run to her to Fetch her
And mourn her.
Beg her Beg her come back ‘Come back! ’
We
Shed crocodile tears.
Too.
So much
So much for us, we,
We humans.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Prepared The Game

that we
a group of Poet Seers had to play:
just a contest
of spontaneous poems,
verse and song.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Procrastinate

yes another time

I procrastinate

stress
flies temporarily

yet procrastination brings its punishment
with it

I failed
Now I resigned suffer

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Received A Call

From a violet
As I was passing
I received a call
A sound
A sigh

To make her will
The ageing violet Spoke sad:
'Alone am I
Without a family
And my spine to The earth it bends
In aged suffering'

'What can you bequeath Old violet? '
I bequeath beauty
I bequeath myself
Or rather what remains Even that little
Be enough
Though
Not money, not power Yet beauty I bequeath Unto the Earth
That gave it me:
Thus too my conscience Quiet I leave' Spoke not more
The rambling violet
And bent its head
And moved not.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Remember Not.

I remember not.
But I had a thought Would change Earth and democracy.
Thus I wander round Restless bent and bound

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Roamed With Anger Out Of The House

I roamed with anger out of the house.
My bosom filled with rage
My eyes with pride
My head with stubbornness.

And then
I saw the dawn arise – for it was dawn
At the beginning – and the sea was fresh Still and naked from the nocturnal cloth That covered it – now it lay Listless as in a bed half-wake, half-sleeping:
I saw the rays - the rays of light increase And turn to more yellow, more golden-fringed And from the tree – the tree that looks Down from the bastions – a small bird chirped A startling song – perhaps a lay of love Perhaps a dirge – perhaps an elegy.
I walked along the road that overlooks
The city bastions – long and old And ancient the bastions with a kindly eye Looked on the shore below and the over-lapping waves
I drank the wine of morn  and of the dawn Refreshing my throat from the old bastions And looked upon the first sail-boats Issuing from the rooms beneath the bastions Dragged to the shore -

And then
And then
I threw the garb of my anger away -
And in my eye
There shone the happiness of the rising day
And forgiving forgetfulness.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Sauntered High

Ah!

There was a time
When I sauntered
High
With every leap of joy
The heart

But That's Decades
Ago.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw

I saw
That floating in the so-called garbage Adown the dirty river waters went Heads of skeletons, large,
Small,
Unequal in size and shape:
I saw

I said: This must be the skull of Human;
This must be the skull of Cat;
This must be the skull of Squirrel
This must be the skull of Rat.

Down the slimy bank an aged hedgehog On its unclean and sympathetic feet Went slow plodding sinking
Now and then
On the dirty mud-banks floating
By half in the brimming waters
When the river rose its banks a little.

Then
Seeing me the Hedgehog stopped:
Its tiny eyes
Looked red at me and stared balefully At first
Then
In chronological order Fear Seized upon them and transfixed
For a moment Hedgehog and its eyes:
As if glued in that dreary atmosphere.

Yet
Fear has its reprieve, and we must seize it:
As soon as the reprieve of Fear came Fast turned the Hedgehog its back to me
And in the glooming bushes disappeared Amidst the rustling of animals quarreling
The flying of a feather and a tuft of hair
And then silence back again

Meanwhile
The river flowed as dreary as before Styx-like though not in any nether world But in the world of all of us it flowed.

I saw
That floating in the so-called garbage
Adown the dirty river waters went Heads of skeletons, large,
Small,
Unequal in size and shape:
I saw

And the stars fell slow and by little And their falling only I saw, only I.

And that is near to the Dawn, said I
Though
Dreary and dirty the river flowed as before Dreary and dirty.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw A Figure Moving On The Waves

I saw a figure moving on the waves
I felt the Earth tremble
I felt Mother Earth move
I saw the moon move with the figure I saw the moon throwing light As spot-light on the figure:
And I knew not the figure But only in the distance saw.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw A Figure Small

Erect
Face upwards

I saw it was a skeleton.

They opened the grave
They opened the tomb

I saw
Thoughts burning Fire on them
Running.

I saw a Poet Seer
With hands up to his hair
Running

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw A Flower Yet A Queen Of Pain

I saw a Flower yet a Queen of Pain
Flourish by the edge of a street
Most hidden in an asphalt plain.

Ah! verse Ah! verse experiment My Monsignor: how many
The twists and turns!

Like Midas the Poet-Seer touches Things that be not gold, yet gold At the mere touch they light.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw A Sea Gull Snorkeling

I saw a sea gull snorkeling
I saw a mountain grow Feet of rock flexible
And walk
Over the snows

I saw the rain gather In the clouds slow
And the clouds darken Patience! Patience!

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw Emotions

in the damp of night when mists were coursing
but then at Dawn's touch I saw them petrified
in beauty.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw Fear With A Face Of Green

I saw Fear with a face of green Expressionless without a human sheen.

I saw Anxiety with a pointed face Teeth ready to pierce with a brace.

And more saw I, saw in the human race
So much in humans you will trace.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw Her

I saw with a Taper in her Hand.

I saw
Her.

The time was Wheeling Fast
And crude
And ruthless.

Come!

The viper be at large.
The swans are wanton
And
In any case
They be asleep
Now
At midnight.

I
Heard
Her Lisping
Lisping Dreamingly: ‘Dream Dream Dream
Mists
Mists
Mists Vapors
Of Satanic
Red
White
Light
Of Savior

Wearing Spectacles Long-sighted
Yet
Short-sighted.
Time

As Red
As A

Already
Already

Optrem! Optrem! De vi large

Cuccuruilli de satu preilli

Look! The Dawn is waiting Venus already smiles
Her statue’s moving
As moon-shining snow
Melting:
Look! The Dawn is waiting.
Rise!
Rise!
There a new day, new morn!
Smile, my Monsignor, the rays Are emanating.
Optrem! Optrem! De vi large Si fires teli sorti
Cuccuruilli de satu preilli
Good-bye! Good-bye!

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw Him Clasp The Music

I saw him clasp the music
the music book, the music papers
though he fell, he slowly fell
and to the ground
alone
he lay, moved not.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I saw him passing through the square
As I to confess yet again myself I bore Through the humid frost of the morn air:
Him – the enemy?
So I assert – forgive me!
The bells began to sound merrily Heavy their clangor; hard the metal Head struck the old aged bronze And the sound came With every step I saw it now all change
And the next moment saw it just the same.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw Icicles Hang Frozen

I saw icicles hang frozen
And in them I willed Time To hang.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw In A Cape Dressed night I saw in a cape dressed night I saw as solitary walked I in the solitary streets above.

on the beach
the winds passed through gargling in the copses
full full of trees and jungle wealth
bending palms and figures that sly pass pass by stealth.

and the night
pacing furious pacing, pacing in the beach foot prints giant on the sands
and the night smokes cigarettes
on the beach

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw Men With Masks

I saw men with masks rotate
and gyrate:
the men
with the masks:
for the masks
hide any brazeness any shame
and the rest of feeling is drowned the masks are a-emotional
yet as behind as the sub-conscious
behind
the conscious
hides
so behind the masks hides lust
and the rest

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw On The Carnival Float

I saw on the carnival float
In the frost and the chill Flesh and beauty of girls
Dancing
And I saw there
The skeletons of today Hidden under the flesh
Yet
Just
The successors of the skeletons
Of centuries past.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw Reason Itself Walking

I saw reason itself walking I witnessed a star walking in Hastings Gardens and at the small fount drinking how shrank and zoomed the star to fit in that night scene full surprised and stunned from behind a tall oak and still bushes watched I the star view drink and on its little feet for purpose grown she danced the night till rise of Dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw The Coin Of Sorrow Tricky Joker!

I saw the coin of sorrow tricky joker!
On one side it had joy, a wise
Advert yet tricky slippery!

Like gad flies I saw so many humans View the glistening side and fly With open arms to the joy side.

I saw them sticking there.
A little after they had scented
The aromas of honey and began To suck they found their glued Feet self-imprisoned them on that Treacherous ground.

‘At least, ’ one of them so himself Consoled at all his sorry state ‘at least I have drawn aromas Heavenly. I was in paradise but Paid for it. How soon! How soon Alas! Alas! ’ He stopped for Through his brain some thoughts Passed ripping that he was just Prating.
And there he was stuck in the glue With feet that could not move Just dark
Just dark
Just dark in his eyes lights.
He stretched his hand
So far he did to shield His fearing eyes away from Blinding light.
To shield.
To shield.
Fear.
Fear.
Fear.
I saw the coin of sorrow tricky joker!
On one side it had joy, a wise
Advert yet tricky slippery!

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw The Dawn Combing Her Hair

I saw the Dawn combing her hair
She had just emerged from her eastern lair.

Sweet the birds sang; the waters plied
The bays and coves with diverse colors dyed.

Sweet verse must always please; it rings
And then emotions in the heart it brings.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw The Dusk Grinding

I saw the dusk grinding grinding the twilight of
the dusk
to the dark mantle of a night whose mantle be a mantle fringed with gold and silver alternating:
I saw the dusk grinding.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw The Edifice

I saw the edifice
the temple falling the columns bending the people waving frantic running ants emotions stifled in panic's horror

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw The Figure Sit

I saw the Figure sit

and in my heart a kindred Fire
felt

Spoke not the Figure Sad and haughty

Spoke not yet saw I Van Gogh.

There was his face sadness enthroned and wounds.

I too Sate by
in the distance.

We sate and spoke
not.

Yet we spoke much and often,
we,
the kindred spirits
in the tragedy of Earth.

And shone
the glimmering stars
on us sitting

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw The Glow, It Came Not

I saw the glow, it came not
From a glow-worm, a will-of-the-wisp, But from a flame Minerva shot to me.
And before me saw I A Human Hanging from an Olive Tree.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw The Lost World

I saw the lost world that I asserted and it was turning blue and it was sea and land just as our Earth
the lost world.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw The Night Walk In Sandals

I saw the Night walk in sandals by the Shore.

The foot-prints of Night were in the sand And star and moon light.

And I walk after foot-print after foot-print
One after the other.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I saw the nightingales for the election of the night of magic and on the night of spell
I saw the nightingales for the election on the fateful night
I saw
I heard
I felt

Emmanuel George Cefai
I saw the old tree bent
And haggard
I wept with it – for it
I saw a mirror my me in it.
Except
That more bent and more haggard Slow trudged I my feet here On the unwelcome Earth a Poet Seer.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw The Sand Well Up

I saw the sand well up
In the ghost marsh
Not like other marshes Towers of the sub-conscious sparse and random
there soared up at intervals non-regular the airs and heavens
above were filled with the drones of air planes flying
flying flying
And:
For beneath you would hear The organs of the Earth
Playing
Slow and subdued yet Hearing

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw The Tears In His Eyes

I saw the tears in his eyes
He pointed to a child
And said:
'This all I have!'
And he had Tears in his eyes
And
I understood him.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I saw the woods tremble first in the gale then tremble shivering in the lost rain

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw Them In The House

I
saw
them
in
the house three they were
and moved one here
in this room
one
the other
the third another
all
silent mute
yes
that was the key word
they each other
passed
so many times continual
and they spoke
not
nor to each other looked but passed each other silent mute as if the other.... that house was like that ah! if we on Earth be as that too! parallel trains moving parallel not hitting each other ignoring the other each moving straight
into
his path
and not more
not more
not
more

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw Thoughts Old And New

I saw thoughts old and new Folding and unfolding
In the wigwam before me.

Saline mists and marshes
That boil honey Scent and pass

Fragments here and there Verses of peaks
Yet fragments collected

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw You

I saw you
And Touched your hand
That made A fire
A new fire
A revolutionary fire
In me rise Born Genesis
More than the arcane
Promethean fire!

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw Your Lips Mother

And they were red:
And no breath
But a white face
Not smiling
But somewhat angered
At this Earth
Heap, heap, the leaves
That fell Touched by chill’s hands
The frost
And sere
Heap, heap, cover
And warm
The chill-ailing bier
And from the ground
Sweet incense-mist Arises without sound:
O mother my mother
I saw tears in your eyes
And they not liquid
Were

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Saw, I Saw The Figures

I saw
I saw the Figures
With the thin-slit eyes
I saw the Figures
Grey dark
Through the blue snows
Under the moon light
The dark azure skies:
I saw
I saw the Figures.
There was
An out of place scent
Of formalin
That we, we humans in our hospitals
lock and scent.
There was a scent of Flowers dreaming
In the Sub-Conscious lost With heads all bending
As drunken humans:
There was a scent of
Humans
There was a heart as big A heart that climbed mountains Whose hands pointed Chiefly to the peaks and After scaled them:
These were the humans
These too were humans.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I See Before Me A Carnival-How Many Images!

I see before me a carnival-how many images!
The throng in festive mood-though faces pale And sad and wrinkled I see too!

Here the masque cometh-here the yew Tall lank and pining -from what cemetery Did you unroot it?
A sadness in the carnival it bringeth
That after joy come tears – it showeth!

Here cometh look he cometh Morpheus Ah! how need I your aching medicine
To cool my heated forehead and in sleep Cloth my reluctant limbs, and dreams.

And then wise Bacchus comes all ruddy-faced And in his hand a flagon hot he bears High he lifts up his cheeks the redder turn And from his mouth the winy aromas come:
And in his voice he tries to speak and fails Better so!
And in his train the gaudy carnival Of fauns and satyrs and dryads come All kiss and drink in merriment
And in their hands the flagons turn and rise.

Along, along the masques in merriment go
And one by one they pass the merry carnival For so is life it reigns cyclical:
Now up now down now funeral then carnival
And we continue to walk and eat and talk And ride and sleep and love and hate A hundred things we are and do and yet We find the sand through our fingers passed And in the glass we see the sands of years How did they pass we say?
But there they are.

But now let all these musings go!
The carnival still goes in merriment
And now with Bacchus I will dance and go Let night come or whatever be let it!

Emmanuel George Cefai
I see the edge draw near.

But dusk draws near too:
We are as in a race.

Our chariots are our wills
And
More our patience respective.

I reach the edge.
I win not
For it be night
Meantime.
And I do not see the twilight of The sparkling seas
Lost the fading day
The coming down
Of the day’s curtain
The rising of the night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I see the jaws of horror
And they are open Thunder and lightning
Rains and rare snow
That falls to-night
One of a thousand nights
And more
And in the distance
Looms frowning and large The thunder-cloud dense and Mists of time and choices
That I regret

Emmanuel George Cefai
I See Your Look, Your Look Of Suffering

I see your look, I see your look of suffering We paint buildings, their windows and doors In different colors within the same building (If you like) Colors that cry and stare and grin Windows that talk Doors that seem to walk
And then unfold
The thin mirage on nearer inspection.
Your face is not painted No color cries on it Yet it speaks more Than windows and than doors we paint.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I See, I See, I Have The Smell

I see, I see, I have the smell
Of plain prose so-called yet Am still in the rythm
Of verse and song:
Still
In the thunder of the Muse
Still Drowned like vinegar
Into the wine of Morpheus
But
But
But
I stop my vein is ended.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Set My Hand

Of many things
That I set my hand
And failed
And
Had a broken heart
That wept

Of all Those things
Of all
My Love,
Was you.

And now the Ages
Conspire fast
That in my disappointments
I founder wild and disappointed
Last
And
Naked lie atop my pyre!

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Shall Be Clown

I shall be clown
I know
I shall be clown

Bring me the red nose artificial.

I am humbled.
My aura falls.
But I am a clown.

And
I hear a loud noise Continuous and increasing noise.

I hear the chains falling falling.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Shall Not Hear Anymore

I shall not hear anymore
The wind, the sea, the gale,
The laughing breeze, the chirping vale.
I shall not hear anymore.

This night,
this night of stealth
My guilt will overflow
And rise above the tank
And overflow.

And in the sea
The dark and resting sea Will restless be.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Shall Not Sing Unless

I shall not sing unless My will to full agrees without constraint:
From the full assuredness of liberty And freedom like a bird chirping merrily Unbounded in its flying through the sky:
Then sing I as I sing without knowing Where my song came from, nor what it means:
Save that my heart rolls, my blood rolls on Without a stop in the full river flow In freedom like a bird chirping merrily Unbounded in its flying through the sky
And then will sing I my canto optional Where think I that I sing what will I My grief, my bursting heart, my agony
The anchors of my liberty as I sing:
My sovereign masters yet in this my liberty:
I sing with freedom chained to my emotions.
Yet how can I disavow these my sweet masters?

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Shouted In The Night

I Shouted
In
The Night
'What
Are You Doing?'
But
He Replied
Not
I Looked Again
And Looked Again
And Then
Saw Him
Not.
Ah!
It
Was a Shroud
It
Was A Ghost!
The Night
Its
Time
Its Happy Hunting ground
And Allies
He
Has
In Morpheus
The hazy
And Mnemosyne
The sweet

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Smell

I smell
I scent the burning embers
the embers of love that was but ah! such short duration a violet of beauty for a day that basked in the glory of the mid-day sun the drunk joyed in the ecstasy of love that rested and lazed after ecstasy then pined its eyes to the orange sunset and the dwindling dusk
I smell
I scent the burning embers
the embers of love that was
but ah! such short duration

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Soared As The Eagle

I soared as the eagle soars
I worked as the workaholic till midnight and past and all the same am in oblivion as if I had been lazy.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I sought help my succession so to make Before the withering hand of frosty Time Could on my last warm drops descend:
But alack! Scare help if any found:
At which in protest turned I in full spite To a black jewel common in the day My fair black devil, jewel of ebony Whom others shunned or else
With soft calumnious tongue did they descant Or jibe at; or shake their heads or fists
So I across the wintry landscape barren found In my poor nakedness and solitaire Not helped by all; my refuge did I find In one black jewel common in the day But when the night under its drapes unfolds Its sleepy antlers of withering Morpheus
The jewel black uncommon shines and lights
And all the stars and heavens at this rejoice.
At which condemned by earth
I consolation find in the welcome stars of night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Speak

I speak
I spoke With silence
The first Most powerful Tool I found
I used!

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Spoke

I spoke
I suffered
I wrote
I versified
I sung.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Stayed Between The Earth And Song

I stayed between the earth and song
For song
Made rise up from the earth
What we term as levitation:
And in it found I
Of all my senses the ecstasy and restoration.

O rivers that transform to leaves Crystals of night dews that In the first spring heat turn After Dawn has passed to ice-like eyes Peering and sticking on the green.

O! poetry is heat. Verse and song Are the warmth of Spring in The midst of the heaviest winter Storm
The tempest
Railing on the trembling woods
But verse and song will not tremble Will not tremble with chill and frost.

In the hours before Dawn
The Earth nursed herself, licked Her wounds that it received in day:
So
Verse and song heal:
It is like going down the Ganges to The pilgrim – then
And so the Poet-Seer is pilgrim too.

On the empty shores as the night nears Or before Dawn spreads her wings Fairy-like to clean the frigidity
Of Night:
Before Dawn spreads her wings On the empty shores there are Not laden golden cargoes, fruits Glimmering and shining, cut From the trees of Eden-on-Earth.
Then
Will the song of the Poet-Seer Turn its head here and there Like the snake hearing music:
Dancing to the fakir
Like the head of the sperm Burning bullet-like to its destination.

And Venus, Venus, well is Waiting to be re-born everyday
Now
It has become with her a fashion
She will not dropp it
She will continue in it:
And
She will rise as from a shell in the Dawn
And from the voluptuous Oceans
It has become her fashion.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Suffer

I suffer
when I see the firs and oaks in Hastings Gardens open to the blasts of so many storms.

There
even the crackling of a thunder fear spreads.

And
in the lightning shines and then goes dark again the monument in the garden
yet in serene nights of moon kindly and pitying plays the moon-light.

Even in dread are Hastings Gardens
beautiful.

Even in wildest storms and gales are Hastings Gardens magnificent

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Suffer Pain

I suffer pain
Because I suffer pain Because I suffered and In the shortness of time
That then remains
Will be more suffering

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Sung

I sung little today
Little, my Monsignor.

Few Sundays like this I remember.

I sung little today
Little, my Monsignor.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Suspended Immortality

I suspended Immortality
Seeing
That my mother in the tomb
Now rests:
Call me egoist; my sorrow
Is anger now for humanity.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I That Complained Of So Long Winter Frost

I that complained so long of winter frost
And yearned for summer’s heat a year ago Now yearn for cooler autumn winds And houses still that light
Out of the dark at mid-night;
Night adventures amidst the peopled woods Or by the raging shores abandoned full:
And then let winter rains pour down And from the eaves let frozen icicles hang.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I that dwell, into the shafts and arrows
Of enemies from all sides Enjoy each red dusk as if were the last:
Pine at the trembling night-stars Tremble like them, tears in my eyes Await nor presume yet another morrow Prepare
For a night of bad dreaming and full sorrow
I left Hope waiting for me:
I had calculated
That Hope would not be at the appointed place But lo! With the first lights I rose,
And Hope I saw and met and hand in hand We went:
it was
The day, and was the risen Dawn.

Into the Hypnosis where my eyes close Though breathe I, I be indifferent
But care for what I dream and what I feel:
For the experience and for emotive steel Into the Hypnosis sink I: Willingly.

Time is a pirate: so I slandered it:
But it smiled; and recoiled not
At my words:
Though I recoil and planning to retract
The words that I had uttered in Hypnosis
Yet Time, ah! Time’s so cunning Knew well that under the Hypnosis
I uttered well, and wished that
All civilization would be in Hypnosis
That is from king and president to power less Tycoon to relative poor: see!
All is relative on these tongues of earth
That from the Sun-circulating Oceans project:
Time is a pirate
Time is a pirate, emboldened I,
Uttered again, Time is a Pirate.

Once struck so many times in a decade
And just a little more of Time:
I took my hammer so to strike again
As I had struck before the decade

Emmanuel George Cefai
I That Have Thrown To The Airs

I
I that have thrown to the airs
So much of time
Now on the threshold sit
The cliff edge
Martyrdom and farewell.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I That Wanted The Night To Be More Long

I that wanted the night to be more long
Had to dress up with the first rays of dawn A hag saw me coming out And o’er the port
The freshness of the Dawn passed in a mist.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I that weep like a child as I walk solitary Along the streets not knowing where I go:
I that burdened am with grief and fear
And feel my step tremble at the touch Of every touch with the street gratings:
I that smile without an envy in my heart
I that met my enemy and waved:
No knowing how to bear my green malice Trying to learn but failing miserable:
I wanted to be green but failed exam.
I am think Become or soon to come
The buffoon of the town, perhaps the world:
And yet, I am a Poet – I know, I know, I know.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I That Willed

I
I that willed the dark cold on the roof
yet when confronted to go up to the roof albeit under a half-starred
night
I went not.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Threw The Scarf About My Face

I threw the scarf about my face
Feeling the chill and yet More frosty-chill the air hedged about me:
My verses leapt like to green sea-waves Tossed hapless and merciless in the storm Their guilt stood written on their face Their failures in the tunica glared That scarlet am I condemned to wear That I with my sins be undistinguished full:
The pain of humiliation rises more Than stench of rotting flesh burning and burnt
The blood leaps forth in every tissue That faces burning like to every house That still non-burnt lies while the Great Fire
The tainted city ravages: and frosty-chill
The air hedged about me all hostile-red And like to green sea-waves my verses leapt.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Told You

I told you
That
They were the sons and daughters Of the old race
That was a master race
In so-called terminology not to Mention
That master race was now Reflected in the mirror of its Descendants: Quite Quite
With bowed head shaven Bearded and white haired They ate black bread against The white of snow and blizzard howls

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Took Her Hand To Shake It

I took her hand to shake it.
She took my hand and shook it.
'Twas love, but it was cold.

'Twas love, yet still alive, but old.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Tremble In The Woods

I tremble in the woods
I tremble in the bed
I tremble as I walk
I tremble as I shiver
And the rain falls

Emmanuel George Cefai
I tried to open wide the book of night
To look into its eyes - like a lover That pretended of his love confession as of right And so to Hastings Gardens went I in the night.
Wide, wide before the long night stood No corner stopped my glance no space Its boundary showed and manifested
To my glance long tall continous lay the night In its mischievous slumbering Wherein it dreamt dreams I know not Nor thereof heard the silent trees bespeak.
How many nights before me came How many, many nights
And they were certes here like this night
As I look from the bastions to the sea
And fancy its silver bosom dance and gleam
In the moon’s amorous light to-night:
So gleamed the light on the sea-waves
When the French besieged and held Our noble city: how many a lover Stood looking on the sea and at his love
As mid-night in his satined robes tiptoed:
Rippling stood the waves and waters wild
And fancy its silver bosom dance and gleam
In the moon’s amorous light:
For years and years the welcome Briton stood Perhaps here where stay I and his foot Could be heard pace all sentinel
Into the dark glooms of silent night From casements near opening on the seas
And houses nearby in dreaming bent Through the long night, the long and weary night That was of many nights that were
And will be of many nights that will
And when I stay not on the bastions and Feel not the sea-breeze my face cool Night after night will come and children small Few years born will come and go:
And after children small will come again Night after night will come and speak Unto the rocks that front the sea And playing with lapping sea-waves all the night Unheard, unseen, unnoticed in the times
And in the flight of years and centuries full lost
And when night comes and still the sea Will shine – its silver bosom dance and gleam
In the moon’s amorous light.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I trudged so lonely
the fires
that flared as sentinels all around burnt my feet:
yet
I felt not burning but a hunger in the Soul and a thirst
a thirst and parching:
with bend head and resigned
I trudged
the war is lost
the war is lost all battles lost kept I saying Awhile
I trudged so lonely
the fires
that flared
as sentinels all around burnt my feet

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Wait This Spring More Expectantly

I wait this Spring more expectantly
More than another year anxiously.

I wait the boughs, the fruit bursting
And honey from sweet flowers flowing.

Only grave doubt, with face of gloom Makes me fear instead of Spring, a doom.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Wait, I Wait, I Wait

I wait, I wait, I wait

So long as Patience be granted, let us take it

And when Patience goes and be not granted, then let us make it!

Emmanuel George Cefai
I wandered in the twilight, the twilight zone Like an errant cavalier wander I Where I should not have wandered.

But now
But now
Now that in the twilight zone I wandered Between one page and another of the book Without turning a new leaf and yet Having finished the present page With nothing to do.

Like a caged bird am I. - And yet There is a pleasure in the new ennui
I never felt before.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Was At Hastings Gardens And I Saw

I was at Hastings Gardens and I saw High, high above and stretching through the stars
The giant Night crawling inexorably
The sea ebbed and flowed all quietly While giant Night crawled inexorably Across the marbled blue of heaven’s dome.

I was at Hastings Gardens and I saw Nigh, nigh around, around me turn and churn
A mist full-hovering around and like a net Incorporating all it met: grey like a phantom Stood the Night
Like a grey thief in phantom’s garbs full dressed.

I was at Hastings Gardens and I saw
A sickle huge scar heaven’s face
And spreading horror like a scimitar Amidst the nebulae amidst the stars
And of a sudden me thought that I heard A cry pervasive high across the skies Lo cometh Night make way, make way I looked in motion saw the sickle huge Like clouds spreading over heaven’s whole Is it the Night? Is it The Night?
Is Night a moving sickle in heaven’s face?
No reply to me came; and from the ravelin
Two old oaks whispering in the night I heard.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Was Beautiful

I was beautiful Relatively
I was strong Relatively

Now
I loiter
Miserably

A willing ghost Willing shroud
That pains
To be.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Was Forged Well And Primeval

I was forged well and primeval
Of the salt of the universe And then of earth when it formed full I was forged for
I was there when the rivers rose Down the jagged valleys opened just And from there to the Ocean did they flow Unbound, azure and cool and deep and wild.
I was there when the sun Bolstered itself up from gassy flames:
I was there when the mounts That rise above this earth arose
I was there I was primeval I was ancient I was basic
I was there.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Was Hit By An Arrow

I was hit by an arrow and they seeing me thus hit a hundred and more arrows hit me:
winter darkness
storms of delight frenzy of gales
I was hit by an arrow

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Was In The Forest

I
Was
In
The Forest
And
The Forest Serpents
Round
Me Hovered Glided
For
They
Had Made Friends
With me
But Then
On
The Horizon
Thunder
Roared
And Lightning Flashed:
And Then
The Serpents Became Flowers
Giant
With Giant Petals Opening
Ah!
What
The
Work of beauty!
What the work of Magic!
Through
That
We Redeem Ourselves
Let
We
Be Poor
But
Be
So!

Emmanuel George Cefai
I watched and watched into the summit night and heard the beating beating of the heart of night

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Weep I Weep - For The Lost Poem!

I weep I weep - for the lost poem!
I wrote it in the night
I wrote it in despair
When to my beating mind
There was no light.

I lament for the lost poem!
Was it torn? If no, where lies it?
I wrote it in despair
And now like a lost sheep
I fetch it.

How time passes!
How the black hair
To more graying hair Will turn!

And in the meantime
My poem my lost poem
I rue.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Who By The Train Station

I who by the train station live
I hear the train always even in the night
I sleep with it.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Who Suffered So Much

I
who suffered so much and have to suffer
still in these emotions dress and armory
I will not shake off:
but with wander
round the earth
with bent head and sad
Poet Seer

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Will Attempt

I will attempt
To negotiate with the enemy.
The soul has been So torn
So dreary
I often, so often sing
Of this and solely this.
Excuse me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Will Call To The Night

I will call to the night
To witness me!
Hear the clouds blow
As the winds blow

The fire
That in the fireplace of Arcane desire Still dimly burns

The wild hooting of Caves
The bright occasional Opening of heavens!

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Will Distance Me From The Town

I will distance me from the town
Out into the country will I walk:
Not losing sights on my town:
And walk in fields
And barefoot in my will Could I walk:

I will enjoy the pleasant summer walk Though in the Spring I preferred it:
The city walls scarce had disappeared Than I the taste of open freedom hath And with more brisk pace my walk made.

Upon a field there lay of flowers various beds
Each one its site maintaining in divided piece With its nigh neighbor; no frontier wars They waged or feelings ill they hath;
But in the silent perfumes of the day They with fair deserving peace enjoyed.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Will Leave The Room Where You Lie Sick

I will leave the room where you lie sick Lie a pest room though it be not pest But the brain fails under the term Of years and the grueling of anxieties:
Statues will fall and break to smithereens
The moon the night will look and wane
And sad.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Will Make The Sign Of The Cross.

I will make the sign of the Cross.
Look in to the sea giddying.
I will not leap, but look,
Still fear grips, though I look
Only.
Veld veld veld
Vald vald vald
The green dews shine in the green Humid grass
So low, so law
It is a pity you upon it pass just Like it was a living mattress just Like a living carpet.
Then: what is living and what not?
Why bi-partition when all be relative?

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Will My Verse To Be Slow And Few

This month
That next month a little more they be My breath I will be in them
And they will speak my breath
My breath of final desperation
Speak.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Will Not

Verses be like that I will not enthusiastic:
though brimming as the boiling ales and wines in mugs and pitchers in bacchanalian nights yet at the end the Abrupt reigns I will it so
I the Poet-Seer,
Abrupt

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Will Not Know What The Next Line Is

I will not know what the next line is What will it be, what thought, what imagery, But leave myself a-floating on the mere As Moses as a babe was left to float

Destiny with anxious eyes watched all unseen

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Will Not Let You Down

I will not let
You
Down
Another
Time.

I speak to
You Heavens and
Stars.

For I will sing
And versify.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Will Not Say

I will not say
A word
But dreaming.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Will Reply You In Verse

I will reply you in verse for your wise words of thanks for my verse.

that way
you will appreciate better my fellow Poet Seer.

the date of destiny
be not far from me;
accept these verses, friend,
before my stage-end.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Will Rest Me Here

I will rest me here. Let the wind Neigh, the tempest carry Before them the heaven-clouds
And all is frowning.

Your smile, yellow-haired siren Comes in to the background:
The night below as resting on The bosom of the sea where The moon rays play and swell.

And I, I am Poet Seer of Night.
Ghosts and Shrouds abound Pass by me, nonchalantly,
And rattle their airy skeletons
With no sound.

So many times of these Things
You sing and versify
You say
Yes
Yes
I retort and then fall mute
Again.

I let the around do the rest,
The rest of the speaking.
On the edge
Thought of brain-mind Brims and shines Brilliant as a light house
Yes
Yes
I retort and then fall mute
Again
The clouds are still there.

The curse will not go,
Should not.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Will Search

I will search yet
Tomorrow
I will not give up:
My heart throbs
Hammering
And Insisting:
O Destiny let me be
The herald of the Unfortunate
The childless and The single Break
The code
That for them Destiny lays:
Destiny determined be
And
By a greater determination Must conquered be.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Will Seek You Though Married

I will seek you though married
And see if you will give me More than your sweet look:
I will
On part take all that be given me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Will Sleep More

I will sleep more
Just a little
Just A little
More:
For
There be days of storm
And
Days of storm to
Come
And days of storm That fold
And take us Carry inside them
As the wave giant
The hapless vessel
Or
The eagle her prey:
So
Let me
Let me.
I will sleep more
Just a little
Just A little
More:
For
There be days of storm
And
Days of storm to
Come

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Will Versify This Night

I will versify this night
For night
Is a seed-bed of versification Just as the hummock is Shaped
For rest.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Wish For Fog Yesterday: Long Through

I wish for Fog yesterday: long through the year this wish in my Sub-Conscious hid
but now with the guillotine falling on the Old Year's head it rose restless and restless in the Deep Soul it rose like to an Egyptian snake of magic dazzling spells could I resist?
Wanted I to resist?
And in the mist I had the Fog I yearned for though little the mist over the cold port in the cold early hours of New Day Soon at the first touches of the Sun dispelled.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Wish You To Excuse Me

I wish you to excuse me

for not paying much attention to you - but I felt the pain of that rudeness you just as you same amount as you and I suffered as you suffered and more forgive me, forgive me, implore.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Wonder That Fragment By Fragment

I wonder that fragment by fragment
We arrived in the relatively short Space of three days (that’s a human calculation dear)
At these lines, at these thoughts:
See, you can now Look the immense Ocean in the eyes And feel no longer humble all against The sundry majesties of its immensity.
And
This fragment by fragment, humble to humble, Made me raise my head, though,
By slow degrees, yet there, my head arose Though it remained as humble.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Wonder, Wonder How The Stars, The Silent Stars

I wonder, wonder how the stars, the silent stars
Open their casements on the sea to look Without a rustle, without a noise, without
A break in heaven’s silent face at night.
I wonder how the Night aloft his car With trembling hands of fondness light All everyone by one and one by one The giddying stars all diademed at night:
Without a rustle, without a noise, without
A break in heaven’s silent face at night.
I wonder how the Night alighting stars Lifts gently each by each imperceptible And breaks none in placing back again Like diadems of east in their due niche:
Without a rustle, without a noise, without
A break in heaven’s silent face at night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Would

I would
The quiet of the night distil
Into one sad drop
And being precious so I will not let it go
But treasure it in a phial Wherein one dropp by itself will stay.

And then
When morning dews will fall
When dawn will call
In a new morn and day
I will drink my precious drop
And sleep again.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Would Be Light

I would be the light
The mysterious light
That every night Flashes from Bighi hill
Into the quiet
Into the nocturnal hush Of flowers plants and bushes
The hush of sea-waves lapping
The rocks below the fort Below Bighi hill

You cannot reach me then But ever-mischievous And all-evading will I be And gurgle with the wind
The neighing wind
Of Bighi hill

Night after night
Will I be there
And even winter frost
Will not deter me
Nor the blinding rain
That in the midnight falls
The gurgling waters angry at their fall
All going down
Down Bighi hill.

Companionless will I not be
And sport with ghosts and goblins wild Awhile I flash a light
And go
And then I sport again
Into the quiet disappearing
And then
And then
To re-appear and to play again
In the sportive cycle.
And in the night
And in the night I hear The chants of olden ghosts
As they march down
With candle in their hand
Down Bighi hill.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Would Not Count

I would not count
The stars in your eyes because your eyes are two though in each be more than one star
I will then count
again and again
the stars
all over again.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Would Not Weep

I would not weep
Tears were far away albeit long due in quantity.

I sate me
amidst the green rushes a spring passed by
singing.

And I felt to laze here Say 'Stop' aloud
'Adieux! ' to Earth and stay amongst the rushes

Emmanuel George Cefai
I wrote quite some verse and song
And in this relative wealth In this my sole kingdom with The fruits of science and the fruits Of thoughts – kingdoms too:
I knew that apart from these I needed no other kingdom –
Sequitur
From the Principle of Necessary Wealth.
Sequitur.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Yearn For Wisdom To Sit With This Beauty.

I yearn for wisdom to sit with this beauty.
If wisdom sits with Beauty, see My Monsignor, for yourself.
See the above description to it Add thought, my Monsignor.
The static description then In to the forges of thought becomes Livelier by the second, that’s what is wanted

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Yearn, I Yearn To See

I yearn, I yearn to see
The first sere yellow leaf Falling from the tree
That greened so much this summer.

Sick with green
And mellow wantonness
And surfeiting I wish:
The first sere yellow leaf
To fall as soon.

For the first clap of thunder
I yearn so to hear:
And wish
That I am looking from the bastions old Of Rabat or Mdina on the fields:

Then will I see (I hope) Before me run the fingers of the light
And in the pleasure of that moment
My mind will pay anything for that photograph:
And will retain it for an easy recall.

And I want to hear the sea Entering in between the clefts That high and strange and bleak
This waning eve
In flat Mtahleb.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I Yearned For Bucketfuls Of Scorn

I yearned for bucketfuls of scorn
For These had sowed I
I passed more than one night
With hands behind my head
On the pillow
With open eyes the dark ferreting Shadow grey on shadow grey was Moving on the walls.
Fear abandoned me for an Occasional thrill of joy
And then an interregnum of
Drear
And then again the cycle began Again.
I
That had seen so many a wave Arise cold, drench my face Place mists before my eyes Fear in my heart and thrill Of indifferent little things:
Now fear abandoned me
There only be A skeleton with no eye balls staring Vacantly
And
All around me dark and drear, and drear and
Dark
Again and yet again Thoughts flow, the night passes Inexorably, the chimes strike Menacing and destiny-like Alarms were they of all the Time
That flew?
The Motion that around me grew?
Under the blankets warm temporary For the night I looked at the ceiling
With open eyes and wide
And thinking, thinking:
Yet I grumbled not for all this Sleeplessness.
The graves in the dark hidden
One on the other loaded Open their jaws and lids
And yawned not frightening.
All was so indifferent in that Drear dark midst the warm Temporary blankets.
Open the lid of destiny, Time
And hours pass and strike Ominously and irreversibly
The night from thick deep be Transformed to a thin disc The Dawn is near Yet for me in all this indifference
There be no difference
In the first twinges of the light
And white.
I turn around and sleep
So suddenly!
Morpheus waited for its trick
Till Dawn
At Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I, The Poet Seer Am In The Cemetery.

Slow
Slow Breeze of the cursing
Night:
I, the Poet Seer
Am in the cemetery.

Yawning and Creaking
From here
From there
It be past midnight
In such deep Everywhere.

For Slow
Slow Breeze of the cursing
Night:
I, the Poet Seer
Am in the cemetery.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I, The Poet-Seer

I, the Poet-Seer
To you I brought
The world
I brought it in my hands
I brought it.
See
Here is not Earth
But another land
The sign
To leave the Earth
And
Yet
Need not passports
For
You will still Be here on Earth
Still here.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I.

I.
I that saw land upon the littered sky
The heavens, the embittered, disappointment
After disappointment – a photocopy
Of all my life –
I
Saw, I knew and I experienced.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ice That Floats

green goblin gloats
and skeletons toast

the night skies are red and the white stars are bled a white sun of moon instead

ice that floats
green goblin gloats
and skeletons toast

Emmanuel George Cefai
Idyllic

Idyllic
the drear
the sounds

idyllic
the dusk
the night

idyllic
the starless night the stealth of dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai
If Ages Are Long, Ages That Come

If ages are long, ages that come will come,
then you will have in as proportion direct the ways and mode for your works to be appreciated:
in the last after so many others though not just at last the Justice in the heavens
will do what for centuries neglected was
and fame will be yours and more by right than as of humans who fast shot to fame
but ah!
the aches you will feel and worse than that the loss of time civilization will have made herself.

Emmanuel George Cefai
If I Could Catch A Poem Like A Butterfly

If I could catch a poem like a butterfly
That unwary on the honeyed flower sucks Then I will be a child again
And once again
I will to Rundle Gardens go
And there catch butterflies.

Emmanuel George Cefai
If I Do Not Get The Lines

If I do not get the lines
Then, what happens?
Let be: for if you are not in The mood of singing, sing not, Nor write word, nor verse.
Sooner of later Time will Like a maturing Sun of the Spring fruits Like an alarm watch Dictate
A new time for new words and verse and song
Then
You will rise from drowsy sleep
And transcribe from the sleep into new verse.

Emmanuel George Cefai
If I Were To Be Old, As Old As The Grey Hills

If I were to be old, as old as the grey hills
That every even line the red of dusk Then many more a line of the Muse’s inspiring Would I on my harp with my pen sing.

Old as the trees as those that grave-yards line Or brave the winds aloft some mossy hill Or rising buried above some olive dale In Greece or southern lands of content warm.

And therefore will I pray that be I be as old As the sea-waves that make Ocean resound On the sea-shores of distant desert lands:

Then will I sing my heart and the long tide
Of my emotions rise with the sea-waves
And Father Ocean chant every accent.

Emmanuel George Cefai
If in the long, long lost annals of Time
I will lie forgotten and unknown
Let these verses be my testimony
Let these verses be my legacy Let these verses my last will lie Into of Life and Time the Comedy:
Then, said the Muse: reproduce Not just in verse and song, but In flesh and blood, to re-incarnate Successors in your noble trade
And in that traffic I will aid
As I have aided you, your children too.

Emmanuel George Cefai
If Masked Faces

If masked faces
And semi-masked
An hour ago
Were already On the warpath of Nocturnal Beauty
They will be running Now around
More numerous
More mysterious Wilder

Emmanuel George Cefai
If rage of tempests let me sing and versify for in the centuries past this was and so will be

Before the Dawn the tempest comes and goes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
If Then We Have Become

If then we have become a land of night troubadors
just that
and routine silence in the day or hoarse cymbals that sound most just only sound
then where be our Inner Soul:
where my people, you have eyes but you not weep you have faces but do not blush your have hands yet do not wring.

Emmanuel George Cefai
If what I ever said my people or My countrymen
Or people of the earth then Speaking out of love continuing I to speak out of love continue and Therefore for you from you All pardons and forgiveness beg I and All recantations of my words make I
That
I may not ever be said to hurt
However minimal
But one single Individual Sovereign Will Just one, my Monsignor,
And commit sacrilege.

Emmanuel George Cefai
If You Cut Faith With Your Progressive Scissors

If you cut faith with your progressive scissors suddenly you will find the waters of the tap of evolution stopped:
and you will have either to shed your pride repenting or live in the hypocritical

Emmanuel George Cefai
If You Do Not Versify In The Level

If you do not versify in the level
If you do feel your hand
Reach to the high peaks
Where at least the clouds soar
Or better
Higher than the clouds:
Then retire speak not, write not
And think and wait.

Emmanuel George Cefai
If You Feel That You Be Not

If you feel that you be not Liquid in your verses
Then silent be and walk
And read other verse and poetry

That will be your task by the Mechanics that no mechanics be For everything is set loose and free
In all, and so in verse and poetry.

So if you feel that you be not Liquid in your verses
Then silent be and walk
And read other verse and poetry

Emmanuel George Cefai
If You Forget

If you forget Then it will better
If you were In things of Earth
And Roamed
Listless and stunned Around the graves
The tombs and Cemeteries
If you forget

Emmanuel George Cefai
you are frightened, Ilya,
small child of blue eyes mirror of heavens provided
that you open your eyes:
then you see
heavens and the Earth
alternating in competition a beast with flesh of prey still in its mouth still bleeding with blood dripping.....

round about the day
there rotate the divisions of the cemetery and the smell of burning...

you are frightened, Ilya,
small child of blue eyes
mirror of heavens provided
that
you open your eyes:
then you see
heavens and the Earth
alternating in competition.

let us say
'they agreed'
and from the union
great verse and song breed.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Immensities Of Silence

I will close my eyes
Bend
My brain and sinews to the Wet heavens and parched Immensities of silence.

Hold!
The giant temples ring
With little bells
And with red domes and Pointed steeples Gothic
The womb of the heavens Adorn.

For that be Beauty.
Ah! my Monsignor!
Let the violin play Quick, fast, sinewed Play!
Ah!
I will close my eyes
Bend
My brain and sinews to the Wet heavens and parched Immensities of silence.

Immortality

Of old of centuries old
How many men
Lasses and youths Women.

The cemeteries be full Too much
Too much
The awe of silence!

And I decided then
That the best road
In
my wavering uncertainty
was
Immortality

Emmanuel George Cefai
Impassioned State

In such impassioned State
I am, I thrive
After the fire that Your kisses made
My heart it burns
My heart it glows
From every touch
Our lips made so
And five six kisses Parents are to ten
And more
These in turn Set faces red and Hearts that throb Kisses increase Exponential and Manifold
An aged man bent Passes by and Smiles and each Blessing be To these our kisses
That time and Motion
Therefore Ageing for now
stop

but for a petty pique ah! greater pain when such greatness falls solely just for pique:

The Poet Seer
Roams.

From the trees
In the morning

Shadows flourish
Look
That's a ghost
There
A shroud

In A Soft Winnowing

In a soft winnowing
The wind of dusk Neighed round
The ancient houses

Flustered red in face Those dreamy piles of Surfeited in the winds' caress.

Swallowed in the aegis of the seas
And liquid sovereignties Prose at the level, at that time Prose became verse

In All Of Us

In all of us
To all of us
A tunnel
Dark and long
To all of us
Along the tunnel to move
To all of us
The number of units
To reach the end
Where the Dim Blinding Light Shines glimmering.
Ay!
We,
We humans think
That we will not ever Reach the end of the tunnel
And trudge in the dark Happily and blind
As drunken humans
In youth
And
On the wings of youth Oblivious to the swords impending On our heads:
In most of us
And
To most of us
That in the feast of youth Be reveling:
We
Turn blind all eyes
And joy and joy and feast
More than bacchanalians
Nocturnal:
But ay!
The end of the tunnel
Is a length
Relative to each of us But ay! The end
Not just so relative We always (Immortality suspended)
Grove
Into the Dim Blinding Light
Then
We know
That Time and Age are
Come:
The Call is made:
And to turn back
Too late.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In An Argentinean Plain

In an Argentinean plain
In Patagonia saw I
Old bearded Prometheus
Amidst that beauty of the wild Those arcane stones of Periods geological Not just of centuries
And the high winds That over the plains swept From the echoing distant of The Ocean roar:
There was a night-moon
That was beginning To shine as on a British moor But here there was rock
Just rock all way the eye Took.
And here the wind neighed
Its own sad tune heart-broken Particular
Its distinct accent and its Trademark seal, it sung.
Roamed listless and Without direction the Old and bearded man Now half bent in the Winds of the wild beauties Raw be beautiful though Raw be wild.

And

Thus

In an Argentinean plain
In Patagonia saw I
Old bearded Prometheus
Amidst that beauty of the wild

Emmanuel George Cefai
In Black Hoods

In black hoods
Racing the high woods
Hill and dale
in hand mugs of ale
of ghost and shroud
the crowd
lamented all aloud.

O bring no thunder
Let in Art be no blunder But what asserted be Is part of that vast Ocean Sea That civilization be.

The Olympian gods, a thinker From the heavens descending With bright Minerva wending
The woods below,
The hamlet to the right
The other to the left
And river and stream
Flowing.

Hear the numbers flow
And the music-notes blow
The fugue nocturnal of
The lover-Night
The fugue nocturnal of
The star-crossed-light
The fugue nocturnal of Nymph and faun and Satyr, night of the Dramatists

In black hoods
Racing the high woods
Hill and dale
in hand mugs of ale
of ghost and shroud
the crowd
lamented all aloud

Emmanuel George Cefai

a lively dawn for winter

Emmanuel George Cefai

the timbre of desperation

Emmanuel George Cefai
In Drear

In drear

I be so consigned to drear
to drear that I still sing that I still versify though I be drear of drear

Emmanuel George Cefai
In Freedom Together Danced

Night when dance Cuts its chains
And Beauty further Does
In freedom Together danced
Sacred and Sacrilege:
And Beauty
In new civilization
nocturnal!

Emmanuel George Cefai
In Front

In front
a rainbow flew
a curiosity trammeling grew and as a lager a tempest brewed

the sea, the sun, stars, night even if lackluster, same Dawn, arising day of relative gladdening, then drunken mid-day in its ecstasies
then
then
then

in front
a rainbow flew
a curiosity trammeling grew
and as a lager a tempest brewed

Emmanuel George Cefai
In Front Of Me The Rear

In front of me the rear
Of Time was running
After all
Time and Motion together
Be
And I was running after:
But ah! at the coast to a Bay they wheeled their way And leapt in to the sea I Could not swim!

Emmanuel George Cefai
In Front Of The Castles

In front
In front of the castles
We figures of the night Must dance surrounded By fading mists
And burning Wide-mouth as In a pit below

Emmanuel George Cefai
In Hall Of The Frozen Icicles

These drop deep one by one
The key turns round and Grates that opens the cemetery gate.

In we go, with shadows grey
And black
Around us in front after us

We are in waiting for the midnight bus
We are in waiting for the calm of night
And then the orgy of marches of night

Emmanuel George Cefai
In Hastings Gardens

beauty makes her throne her shrine but an important school for those who yearn
the mechanics of beauty production to learn:
beauty on her throne
mistress of schooling and the Earth will kneel and hear:
take in note on note, Idea on Idea,
and in all this Hastings Gardens being so tiny beauty zoomed her Principles to fit in size.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In Its Throes

In its throes
The day my mother
Is like to your day

When Blind your eyes Closed earth to you

Yet your Spirit fought
And had
The prophet glimpses of Immortality.

We Hear on this ordinary earth
A planet as of planets
A star as of stars
Of constellations ever-growing
We Dwindle and evolve
Evolve and dwindle.

We Shine dim yet we pride
On our brilliance.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In Laziness Begot

Of verses
In laziness begot offspring of such conduct
things round evolve
and turn
but then your hurl thoughts from the Tarpeian rock of your brain that ticks:
it has gone back back to its Geological Period old where ticking as the hammer so many times was its mold:
pressures and lakes and cataclysms openings earth
closing and movements and temperatures of fire flying through the burning boughs of giant trees.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In Me

The waters of great Oceans Have flown
In Me
In little me
In humble me
Revolutions in science and in poetry, Revolutions in drama and philosophy, Revolutions in economics, anthropology,
And no less in education and sociology Revolutions in lyric in verse and in Song
Almost
From line to line
From word to word
A change of direction
A change of style.

In Me
I gathered the sufferings Of the Pained
In Me
My little me
My humble me
There was re-writ
Yet once again
Principle by principle and Also Word by word
The triumph of new evolution

Yet beware!
My Monsignor, evolutions
To other revolutions be The genesis
As soon as They discovered and write
Be
And so be it with Me Cast all dogma
And let Others re-write me
All that Matured and grew Civilized
In Me!

Emmanuel George Cefai
In My Brain Was A Verse

In my brain was a verse
And it was aged
And it was wild.

It had large eyes
A heaven blue.

I rose and rose
In heavens listlessly.

It was all I had
The rest left below.

From where I was Saw I planets and suns swim.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In My Life

Emmanuel George Cefai
In My Thoughts There Be A Whirligig

is it joy?
I feel not sorrow
I was yet sorrowful and writing verse and singing

song

Emmanuel George Cefai
In Neptune’s Kingdom There Was A Crisis

In Neptune’s kingdom there was a Crisis
Not storm or tempest but The waters lowered
Shrunk all over Earth
The liquid reign of the Seas and Oceans Grew as in proportion inverse
Land
Neptune each dawn watched With baleful eyes
The shrinking of his kingdom
And humans grumbled all the same For waters they preferred and The waters needed:
Despite storms, tempests and the Rest
The drought of waters they Mourned as and with Neptune himself.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In Our Lives

In our lives
we must dream more
for Imagination mostly from dreaming comes then Discovery and Invention.
in our lives.
even at the cost of laziness
preferable to sleep;
a little more the better;
for in sleep lies the original root of new civilizations
and discovery and invention in to new evolutions;
the Sub-Conscious must not be allowed to creep alone and suffering through the doors of sleep when tiredness wins;
but open
all the doors to it.
That way new life begins, and continues new only in as direct proportion to ever-increasing evolutional.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In Porto Ercole

A man told me
He saw a restless Ghost in white
And it was night
And the ghost
Had a small palette
And
Painted restless
Till the Dawn
Faded the curtain of night

Emmanuel George Cefai
In Prose

Without turning Words as from their prose position
The Poet Seer
His deftness all the same He showed:
In his verse and his song.
That’s prose
That speaks the same As sweet
As poetry

Emmanuel George Cefai
In prose one after the other the chapters grow their clustering and totality is the whole

so with all civilization
so:
from the low to the high,
the single to the multiple, then back in synthesis

In prose one after the other the chapters grow
their clustering and totality is the whole

Emmanuel George Cefai
In Sheep Street

In Sheep Street
The houses small and Grumpy
In Sheep Street
The houses
Cry at night
For they be pained
To view the woes of Earth
Of day
As in a film That’s magic!
There’s magic in Sheep Street
And
Round the old, old, ancient Town
It spreads, corner to Corner, Round and round, mist or no
mist
And then you sleep, my Monsignor
At Dawn
Or little later I Seeing the break of yet another day Will hie to you Full of things and of tales In Sheep Street, my Monsignor!

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Drear Of The Nights

In the
drear
of the nights in that land where snow falls
and falls
and falls
where the winds blow and blow and
blow:
in that land that be not an island
and
not where I live o! let me hear the sound of the stillness the quiet
of
still the earthquake vibrating
of solitude
and look to the heavens
and look up the mountains and peaks
capped with snow:
in the stillness of Soul, the deep Inner Soul
at last king and alone
alone in the kingdom of winds and
of snow
the secret nest of beauty
the call of rest:
and to close the books of work
and the books of strife and leave
to the heavens
the rest!

Emmanuel George Cefai
In the aerial spheres
And spaces
Large giant airy Figures
Together whispered
Round a magic table
Of ebony and ivory.

Loud were their whisperings!
As Through loudhailers
They spread to all directions
And Eyed the immensities of the heavens

Below
Below
Solitary and pensive
A Poet Seer of furrowed brow Chin in hand Passed by Meditating.

Emmanuel George Cefai
from whence they emerged the men of the West have re-entered
confused:
to their aid they call the men from the other lands fear the their toppling dynasties built on the sands of what they term democracies
and yet with all this in the Age of Frost are re-entering

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Ages Yet To Come

In the ages yet to come though frosty oblivion with his cruel hands hang over me
yet
there will ages when people will hear my voice and my works read my Principles regard and follow fired by them to engineer life and the whole of civilization grow and leave ignorance relative in sorrow but ah! that will be long I deem that will be long!
My dust will tremble and quake for so long before!

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Air

In the air
There is a humming-top
That slowly hums
And breaks the silence.

In the air to-night
There is a whiff of salt Coming from the restless sea
And a humming
That breaks the silence.

A coppice small of olden trees Watched down
And dreamed and dreamed:
The sea below shone silvery
And the moon smiled.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Airs

In the airs
There’s a depth
A depth that goes Deeper than a giant Sump:
A depth of pain
A depth of Suffering
Yet Vast depth of Beauty proportionate

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Alternative Civilizations

In the alternative civilizations Let there be place for Mona Lisa, The Red Squares, domes and Church, styles in every-increase Old and new, fresh and fading

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Bark

Under the tree
There’s too much
Whispering.

In the bark From night
At dawn
Hid spirits, fauns, Satyrs, naiads.

No wonder
The whispering!

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Blue

In the blue
of
the lake saw I salmon and trouth,
but
that was
not where I live that was not an island that was a lake hedged and wedged in the mountains
the blue and snow
mountains ice-capped to the blue and cloud fleecy
above:
ah! reaching to
heavens
we humans have hands
we
must reach
to
the heavens long hands
long hands!
In The Blue Mist

In the blue mist
The sacred rose - how red it shone!
And as the red Met with the blue What lightning flash it made!

And in the night
And in the night
What lightning do they make!

Without a roar, without a sound
The sacred rose and the blue mist
What lightning do they make!

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Bosky Wood

In the bosky wood the feast of spring is far now:
now too far winter has just begun and long days of frost await and tempests threaten nights cold the streets; rain the blinding of the stars;
mists rising to strange lights.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Brown Battlefield

In
The Brown Battlefield
Where
The Red
Of
The Blood Turns Brown

Where Hangs
Lifted Crown
A Crown
Of Thorns
And Roses?

Ah!
Thought
How Snake-like Hither
And Thither
It Slides!

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Calvary Of Crucifixes

In the Calvary of crucifixes
the crucifixes one by one so near to each other
on the blood stained field
that seeped in oozing red:
neighed the wind on the plain and the frost tore particles from soil and snow and earth and they moved not but here and there a groan rose to the heavens there in that scene of horrid revelry A figure black-draped sate on a low fence and grim grinned with pleasure devilish
in the Calvary of crucifixes
the crucifixes one by one
so near to each other
on the blood stained field
that seeped in oozing red.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Car We Drove

In
The Car
We Drove
And Drove
And
It
Was Night
Flew
By
The Houses
And
The Shops Lighted Lights
And Restaurants
And Entertainment Flew Flew
But
We Drove
On
And
On
We
Heard
The tapping on the Pane
We
Saw Arrogantly
The Car door opened Half forcefully:
And
In
The strange Shadow-Man
Went Told Us
To Drive
And Soon
In
The Back Seat
We Had
A rattling skeleton

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Cemetery

there is a liquid city
but only at night
lights up at night lights up by dark
just dark
for the residents need not light no, nor the night stars nor the wild neighing of the winds nor the dark blizzards of the rains no, nor any thunder nor any storms and tempests seasons be indifferent:
the residents pass by each other speak and communicate yet not a word passes [sometimes whispers only] but these hiss over the ground and are lost in the dark above the ground and in the face of the sprightly night-stars and in the light of the sprightly night-stars
for
in the cemetery
there is a liquid city
but only at night
lights up at night
lights up by dark
just dark
that

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Cemetery Of The Heart

once the heart be a town there are strewn tombs under the snow
gleaming
gleaming in their sadness

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Charred Hands

In the charred hands with the stress of life I bear beauty too amidst these thorns
of life

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Chronicles Of Valletta

In the chronicles of Valletta
There are so many old, old Antique crunchy parchments.

Volume after volume, you Open and in the musty scents History flows tragic.

Of woes and tears and disputes
And fears and wars and peace And ancient Christmas Eves

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Cocoon

In the cocoon
there waited pondering a naked philosopher

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Cold Shroud

In the cold shroud
You lay
But now the birds
The Spring
Dance, sing!
Mother, mother!
I saw your Spirit yesterday
And it crossed proud and Head held high
On a sweet knoll by Kuljat hill
And it was dusk
And it was before night
And was before the stars
And was before the moon.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Cold Snows

In the cold
snows
there
let me trudge
trudge feeling the crisp snow breaking breaking under my feet
breaking!

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Competition

In the competition
Between one and the other
I was wedged:
And I found myself again
In the trembling before the examinations.
And I was young again.
But I had Fear.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In the concentration camp of Time
We all froze:
The hoar of the north gale blew Merciless
Pitiless:
Under its gelid hand-scepter thawed
All our younger enthusiasm and our sex:
Our eyes nigh to blind
With the somber blizzard of dread The neighing of the blizzard turned More violent to howling:
Before us
Lay a thousand corpses yet in blood That stained the snow
The white snow.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Coppice

In the coppice
A mist of ancient oxygen
With it combination Followed on the heels other Combination

In the coppice
The breeding ground
The nest
Of Shifting and rattling

In the coppice
The fire of the angered Souls Burns dim,
Then grows
And spreads growing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Corners Of Earth

In the corners of earth
the threshold wind blew stalks and hay
in the corners of earth
the wind sang songs of the fame of the Poet Seer that the Earth ignored

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Court

Here, here, in the Court
I feel a drear
Things mechanical

Invention stays away.
Inspiration shuns.
Black-coated figures
As in a mourning
No! they are fighting
Not swords or cannons Not nuclear or .....
No
No; they speak out Arrows.

Here
I feel extremes
I see some light Dim light
However.
Around a table
Small groups discussing.
For Here, here, in the Court
I feel a drear
Things mechanical Wheels, cogs that Turn around And round and
Round
And I in them Turn round and
round

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Creepy Hollow

In the creepy hollow
Down
By the gorges at Night
Came and went
Lights Lights of Magic Cunning lights Opening in the Sight
Of goblins satyrs
Fauns and nymphs
Who thus discovered
Stop
Then start
Again

Even so
Even so
To me
Now
These beauties remain Single
To surprise
And
To gladden where Sadness so often Gnaws at the fabric nay
Of life herself:
And scents to stinking Turn
Even so
Even so

In the creepy hollow
Down
By the gorges at Night
Came and went Lights Lights of
Magic

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Dark Delirium Of Life

In the dark delirium of life the proposition goes walking as the child on its trembling toes a star that mischievous wandered from the track of other stars and found itself into a frozen reign and frost so hard that even for a star it willed to go.

torches bear and chant if we would reach that density where with every word we press the more and
more the trammels the emotions the destiny more, more and more
pitiless
into one drop single synthesized:
that is the monad that the nearest to the ever-growing whole contains.

But ah! ah yet! alas! the mass universe at the Rim continuous expands:
such that however we expand ever-increase the monad sole synthesized the whole will not contain but only nearest thereto distil:
and even so to keep that running level you must run ever-continuous yet to stay even if always behind Evolution's swift ever-increasing leading
feet.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Deep Freeze Lay Beauty Decked With Roses.

In the deep freeze lay beauty decked with roses.

in icicles the first warmth of life rose and throbbed in throbbing leaves of life the frost made every life-throb shorter, shorter, shorter

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Deep Torrents Looked He

In the deep torrents looked he
The cavalier
The love-torn cavalier
From the high window
That thin as a small slit In those heavy walls looked On the roaring cascades below

Somehow
Somehow
He crept
Out of that slit
That window of thinness
And
Looking at the heavens
He saw them frown.

Then with word
But with resolute thought Into the eddying torrent Leapt
The torrent seized the prey As hungry hawks or beasts of prey or vultures Red the torrent raged
For a few minutes
Then Commixed again to Its former seething white Returned.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Deep Vale

In the deep vale
Lay Dawn
Panting from the seas Yet bright as when She trod over the waves
Her eyes with beauty Scanned.

An Artist with Palette
In to the depth of Vale Descended he Advised nocturnally.

But ah! as soon
As Dawn saw him Still on the edge
The cliff edge
She into a sweet scent
A mist
White, turquoise, red
And azure-twilight Turned
And
When the Artist turned Into the depth of vale
Around
He saw not Dawn
But heard a woman's Laugh
Mischievous and gay
As pleasant as new day

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Deep Valley

In the deep valley
Deep, deep down inside the valley
On a perched ledge
The violet flower lay enjoying the sweet breeze
And Autumn cool eyed her with love-looks:

And then a bee
Eyeing the violet
Settled on the violet Amidst the aromas of the flower Mixing their pollen
And it spoke to it:

And so the conversation went Slow and ageless till the night
In his uplifted car was wont to light
All one by one the stars
Those silent angels of the night:

And still
The violet lay enjoying the sweet breeze
And autumn cool eyed her with love-looks.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Desert

In the desert
I hear Voices
Voices calling far
And fast
Then fading.

I heard the Voice of Power
As a snake Turned down
Luring me with a flute And on its head it bore a Golden crown.

I heard the Voice of Glory
And I saw Merlin-like a hand that drew A curtain where A battlefield with groans Lay and seeping blood and Clay.

I heard the Voice of Fear On top of these Around me
As a snake I felt it draw Yet it was just a Wind That blows the desert sands.

I heard the voice of Suffering
And Pain
I saw a scholar work
In a poor attic in the night
In the scarce moon-light
My eyes I closed:
I saw
His discoveries
And knew that through Suffering and Pain
You cross the immense main
On which other side instead Of Power, Glory, Fear
Lie
Civilizations one on one.
I heard the voice of Suffering
And Pain.
I heard.
I felt.
I pained

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Dusk

In the dusk
The beetle whose wing ply
Without a noise
Flows slow and stately
Yet Secure and sad
Amidst the musk of particles That float in the dusk airs Amidst the vibration and The tintinabulum of discordant Chores of notes:
Whigs
That fly alone across The cemeteries at night
Romantic cloaks and masks
Of olden centuries
And
All be drear
Drear
Drear

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Dust Of Stars

In the dust of stars
we sit and breathe.

in the dust of stars
we grow

from the dust of stars our star was formed once formed from the dust of stars

our Earth
from its own dust and liquid love boiled
to make us

Genesis of beauty from beauty

Process that in chain begins

Chain that successions ties

And what be power to successions?

And what be wealth to successions?

the genesis of one is the genesis of the next: that way succession goes that way the Earth in throes though in pain and suffering yet brings forth from it all!

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Egocentric Night

In the egocentric night
The stars gather around Silent without sound

The nightingales are there
There on the boughs
Their boughs
But stopped
And silent is their song.

Even
The gurgling streamlet
I hear not
Nor the wise owls
On their home boughs
Ruffling feathers:
The Hedgehog moves Stealthy and all still And stops
And hears Then moves again
A little
Then repeats.

The night be sleeping?
No it watches all awake with open eyes
And the wide immense heavens Scours the night,
Deep night.

For the night, this night Egocentric be
Even
The gurgling streamlet
I hear not
Nor the wise owls
On their home boughs
Ruffling feathers:
The Hedgehog moves Stealthy and all still
This night

Emmanuel George Cefai
In the evening mist in the land Where valleys meet the rivers and the streams Where green darkens on the sides of hills
As soon the red dusk with stealthy step Ascends now one hill, now this, now that The evening mist arises from the depths Of valleys where they meet The rivers and the streams sad, quiet, still.
And in the evening mist
And from the evening mist
A statue black arises from the mist
And all around
The valleys meet the rivers and the streams
As soon as the red dusk with stealthy step Ascends the hills, the sleeping hills.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Fixation Of Dim Lights

the queue of humming flies around the pale orange of the night romantic lamps in the old Valletta streets
after mid-night
slide slowly and slide fast
one after one shadow after shadow
ghost and shroud

Emmanuel George Cefai
In the funereal parade
The march goes on and on.

The sunset has switched off
The red dusk is now gone.

And night rules sovereign Started the parade at dusk

And it continued in to night
And yellow-black in the moon’s light.

Ghost after ghost, shroud after Shroud, all wail aloud.

The towns, the port, the sea sleep
The old Valletta forts sobbing weep.

One after one in chains bound
The ghosts and shrouds without a sound

March, march, on goes the night Humans asleep or lovers out of sight.

And solemn the airy-fairy band plays Funereal dirges and elegiac lays.

One after one in chains bound
The ghosts and shrouds without a sound

Silence! Silence! Long is the way And far the Dawn and the new day.

The march continues though the wind Rain and tempest rise and rattle round.

And till the Dawn
The march goes on and on.
The sunset has switched off
The red dusk is now gone.

And night rules sovereign

Till the Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Funnels Of Deep

In the funnels of deep
Thoughts
In to the depths of dense Fogs
In to the thickness of Frozen oceans
Let me sing
A swan song.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Garage Of Time

In the Garage of Time
Time ticking
Ticking Slow and austere Collects
All
The many failures
And
The little successes
All
All
They will see them
All
When they unlock them.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Ghastly Night

I sleep not and therefore I dream not:
though a twilight film passes over the hazy eyes:
the vision that replaces dreams dreary and rude and cold and chill of frost
for now

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Glacier The Emotions Lay.

In the glacier the emotions lay.

Winds swept over the plain of sickness.

Pitiless through a whole night raged they.

And with them my agony proportional.

Then as dawn came Delirium did the job and cut the chains.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Gold Drear Of The Heavens

In the gold drear of the heavens
Spirits flew serenely and mute Singing undertones silently.

O moon of twilight colors
On seeing this; the humans sleep See, the village streets are still

And gurgles low a water-mill.
Night and its retinue will hold Unobstructed their winter night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Green White-Washed Room

In the green white-washed room
The light green darker turns in the dim light Of the dim lightning bulb.

My unhappiness can only increase In that dim dreariness:
Therefore let them marry.

I am resigned.
I am confined to unhappiness
More than a crippled inmate.

And the dreariness blows Hoary and cold and frosty in my soul
Like a desired catarrh.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Groves Of Sadness

In the groves of sadness moved I

in to the walls of the Ages drove I with my brain my only

I dream Dawn dream life
I dream the windows half-open I dream night
I dream sunset
To pine and to cry:

Yes,
when the lemon of life you press and press the bitter tears
that fall
from the lemon of pining
remain

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Hazy Mists

In the hazy mists
To-night
The hazy shadows
Move
And thrive.

See, see, how many!
How ghastly with Face strained
Yet serene in the ages See, see, how many!

Long is the night
And Shrouds and ghosts
People Earth, our Earth
Under the wan starlight And so will so
Remain
Till Dawn strikes by the main.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Heart Of Buildings

In the heart of buildings and Of palaces
Dwelt the Great Spirit Soul
I saw it
I saw it yester week Walking it was Hand in hand
With old Valletta.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Heavens There Is A Cross

In the heavens there is a cross
A cross of stars
One after the other
In a rosary
Bead after bead
Star after star
Shy lone and mute
And the weak moon
Well,
Well the weak moon
Yawns the night away.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The High Citadel Of Fear

In the high citadel of Fear
A million subjects knelt before The bronze throne of Fear.

Tentacles from that throne of Fear How they moved like fork-tongued snakes And increased Fear to previous Fear!

The waters gelid flowed and thawed Before the frost at sunset visited:
For early were they touched by Fear.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In the island of the pelican, the gods Throw dice as they play.
Here and there they see
The motion of chance
And probability.

Quiet on the island but for The rustling of the trees
Those high
High Inhabitants inland from
The sandy shores.

And the white sand
That blue against the dark of Sky and heaven
Post red dusk glimmers Glimmers as the waves Tiny, fractional, growing, Sub-dividing
Restless.

Our eyes are enmeshed yet not blind except by Beauty the which more sight gives reveals more of her reign part by part all following in train where suffering reaches a point and earthly pain.
O therefore come! the time be come!
To other sites we go let Beauty lead!
And below us the Earth turns predominant azure.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Long City

In the long city
There’s a wall of ivy
And meandering boughs
And sprig lets Flourishing.

Around on the lawn Roam the cats and Mice.

Holy the scents
Rises
The heavens open
Now
Then close
Then again
Open.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Long Hall

In the long hall
a long table tall and elongated yet wide the widening not conspicuous because tall indeed the table:
in the long hall
the cries of skeletons
and ghosts and shrouds raising their mugs of wine and ales boiling and steaming shrieking with their teeth rattling not now mourning
there were so many by the thousand you would count and the more you viewed more increased the amount of tipsy ghosts and shrouds and skeletons
of the Long Table.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Long Night

In the long night
The long, long night
How bright
The light of passion shines!

The summer heat
How obstinate
It is:
Yet in the night
The long, long night
How bright
The light of passion shines!

And winter frost
And neighing wind
Behind the window panes
And doors:
And the shrill call
Of nightingales
In Spring:
No difference will make:
For
In the long, long night
How bright
The light of passion shines!

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Long Night I Go Out In Despair

In the long night I go out in despair
And sit on this knoll lighted by The moon face in my hands.

Before me stretches a low hill beyond A plain: the hill obscures and hides
The plain that lies after it.

I saw knives flying slow in the night air
I saw hands red with blood and white despair
I saw red dusk pacing the night in his lair.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Long Night The Spirits

In the long night
The spirits of night roam
And meeting with Processions of ghosts and shrouds
In their hind and back march Along with them Till Dawn – that is – till Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Long Night, The Sea

In the long night, the sea
Sleeps
And the immense Ocean Gleams
And the wide moon on the Bosom of both Shines
Waiting for the Dawn to rise.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Long Temple

In the long temple
there rose from every side white fleecy clouds of blinding white and sandals golden on that sacred aisle long, long, and slow the paces made their way vertical that horizontal to the heavens led

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Long Town

In the long town
The streets be long
The streets be cavalier
The home of long knights

Home of the long swords Arrows in the night
I want to be Where the sun has slept With the straight waters on The horizon line.

Where the long nights
Are nights of peace
Where the long nights
Are places where enemies sleep
And war no longer on each other.
I want.
I want to be.

For in the silent nights
Many a spirit roams Secret but gallantly As fast as the long Swords at night
That as arrows be.

The verses drip, drip Slowly yet
They drip a peace,
A sunset long gone
That is still as yet
On grips of Earth
Where the long nights
Be nights of peace.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Long, Long Night

In the long, long night
there are no tepid sun rays no comforting from cold but blasts of cold for scabbard of the quilt.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Marches

In the marches there’s solitude
In the marches sickness thrives In the marches foul mists stink In the marches Dawn escapes

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Meadows Of The Night

In the meadows of the Night Solitary a Glow-worm bright Walked slow weary
In star-light.

Ah! the silence
Quiet
Romance
And the moon rays
On the sea-bosom
Restless dance!

And no seagull in the skies
And
No lark flutters on high
Yet
Wise the owl garrulous
And
The nightingales their love Pour.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Mechanics Of Adjustment

I saw Tyranny pull out a red card And ban off Pity

Yet Adjustment still remained Patient and waiting
As a lamb suffering

Till that Tyranny so angry Waxed that its Patience
Its very head, the head of Tyranny devoured.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Menu That Dawn Brought With Her

In the menu that Dawn brought with her For to-day New Year's Day there was the special and the not so special: Special rang the tunes of the church bells different from other holidays:
overdue after all!
New Year's Day!
But the old city dressed as it had dressed
the day before
and the day before that
and before that for centuries old in the memories of ancient times:
and the people
who survived into the New Year survived either as flesh or blood or else as ghosts
the former in the morning streets
the latter in the Night swarmed to the old town in hordes and shrouds
and there rose high a long sad lament an All in One, and One in All
to the sad heavens and stars.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In the midst of life there wavers a restless vividness:
and it be the spinal chord life's seal of sharpness.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Morning,

In the morning,
now,
that mistress Dawn has come to reign and went
now
there's bustling to make up for the old silence of the dreary night when beauty issues forth when humans sleep when the old ancient houses one eye closed the other open look when gardens dream, when the fields glisten white in the white rays of the white moon and the old chapel bell old, yes, old,
rings frothy and swift and distant
in the night

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The New City

In the new city
all houses of metals frontages glistened to the certain purposes of the night
and the night stars

and
in the new city about midnight
they heard the clanking of metal armors skeletons on high rattling and banging.

day after day
week after week month after month
season after season

not even the festivities and games
'Panem et Circenses' Bread and Games
no,
they were powerless
no opium of the people
here.
the inhabitants were aware of the two sides of the Coin:
so they shunned the traps

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Night

In the night
grew of chill delight and of trembling stars the sight and of spirits and ghosts and
shrouds
the processions of the night
solitary
silent

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Night How I Long

In the night how long I to Hastings go not just garden
but
the streets
the surrounding streets the wide ones
the strait, alleys, the quaint houses
snoring high,
awhile strike
the street asphalt
one after the other
I hear pace on pace my paces distant dogs are set to bark but bark not!
enchanted lie in the spell nocturnal quite of a Poet Seer who by steals his way his silent way!

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Night I Lay

in the night
I lay on a rare
night
looking face upwards
to the ceiling dark tempered by a small night light.

Of you, my love thought I lying face upwards

your face before
me came and I saw your pining eyes ah! those times
we kissed together in the hummock of love (as Mars used to catch Venus in her ecstasy)
so
we together caught each other in our own ecstasy
and slow murmured words between one bunch of kisses and another oxygen of love oxygen of the new life infused into new love

for
in the night
I lay on a rare
night
looking face upwards
to the ceiling dark
tempered by a small
night light.

In The Night I Signed The Contract

In the night
I Signed
The Contract
With
The Fury of Pointed Wings Giant
Bat
And Weird
Of
A Wide
Night
Shouted the Fates
They Broke the strange silence
They Transmitted Fear Shuddering
Chill Rattling
Of Waters Particles
That Subdivide Flying
Crying
'Jo! '
On Hitting Diamonds
Of Eyes
White
Of Fish
Stars
of Night
Burning
White
Stars
Shouted the Shades
Shouted the Fates

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Night In

The desert
To the tune of flute Danced the snake
And
With it danced
The mists
Trembled
The shivering
Blue mountains.
Shivering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Night There Flow The Bats

In the night
there flow the bats
fearless
over the cemetery.

over the graves and dreaming tombs
over the creaking and the yawning openings
the rise of figures dark the shuttering of light that comes and goes

figures
that stand erect and white or shadowy pace their restless vigor
round the cemeteries ghost to ghost meeting:
shroud to shroud:
the lemon the Sub-Conscious squeezed
such ah! that these remain as long as they will
before the Dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Night Walked I With Cold Feet

In the night walked I with cold feet since That I was a ghost
Now.

The elms and firs and oaks tall and lank Stood up sentinels and Witnesses.

Amongst the tombs passed I and heard Groans whispers talking Heads bent and some in caps Turbaned and white
In the night’s quiet silence

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Night You Smile

In the night
You smile
Frown in the day.

You be wise, too
Though
Not so sympathetic quite

For wisdom and popularity And sympathy
But rarely hand in hand

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Night’s Silence

In the night’s silence
Let
The stars fade

In the night’s silence
Let
The moon glide

In the night’s silence
Let
A star be detached Move in the heavens
As a jet light

Immortality

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Notepad

In the notepad
verses went in out of the heart
one after the other
sweet succession in this Earth of suffering

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Novels

In the novels
Characters who sing
And versify.

Prose mixed with Verse
And song
That flies.

Novels brimful of verse
At frequent intervals.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Old Wilderness

In the old wilderness
hidden from the dust of country roads and lanes hidden from the tracing of the moon hidden, hidden in night's curtain

still partly hidden when the Dawn is risen

when the sea-waves knock at the doors of the white cliffs in chameleon mazes hidden.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Parade Of Beauties That

In the parade of beauties that
On occasion in high Olympus made March one after one
The diadems, topazes, quartzes,
All from the Orient glittering,
On their tiny feet all walking,
One after one, then next
The seasons: Winter first,
For after all the years begin With it; then Spring the wonderful For in it each year first Rise from the torpor that it started With; then Summer like a mid-day Navel of the rising day; zenith Of wine and song and warm carousal;
Then Autumn starts decline but gently so For in its cool the start of all woes Hide; the year has downward gone
Like the day that after red dusk fades.
These one after the other marched Ordered and disciplined as in drill Military though all beautiful.
Then after them with ruddy face Came Ceres marching on a throne Not golden nor silver but adorned With hundreds of exotic fruits and Dainties; born on the hands as Not of slaves, but on the hands Of thin fairies; then the Graces.
They marched too with a stately step They too one after the other went But close and hand to hand.
With them rustled along swift and Silent their transparent robes And veils made of the mists of Summit mounts and wrought In vales of hidden beauties brought Between the clefts of giddying mountains Where the snows all white into the Heavens azure tremble and gleam.
After these came the Wild Vales Whose sides with flowers full Rivulets and springs ran through The cleft below which on giant feet
The vales marched after their peers Though higher as the oak and the Tall fir over the lowly shrub tower.
As buffer these lofty vales noble marched.
For after them one by one, some Solemn, some gay, some merry, some With a look of frowning or of gloom Came the months of each year: all Followed each other like siblings tall And giant in that vast parade.
First January: for it held in hand
The keys with which the year opened.
The look of January was indifferent For being first to usher the year?s case Impartial and all sides desired to look.
Then came February: and after him
A large sound followed other sounds Each larger as they more approached And the more neared: these the sounds Of thundering and with them rustling
Of the trees blown by unleashed Zephyr Gales wind and rain followed in train;
Yet for all this February had a face Ruddy and red and merry all the while.
Then after came March: in his eye There was rare intelligence that In its eyes clear and large glistened Noble it marched: for it were born On this Mother Earth great noble minds And of all months he bore with due And greatest pride the task of carrying Such wealth of intellect from Earth Back to inhabitants of Mother Earth returned.

In The Pool

In the pool
Face upwards
Lay.

On the face Shone
The kindly moon.

And
The night stars
Full competition

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Post Dusk Air

In the post dusk air
There is a humming Hear by the beach of sand
That trembling
Looks at the darkening ocean line
And
Hears vibrating one after one Nocturnal Ocean roars.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Procession

In the procession of events of history power, glory and garbage each other follow with the rest of each cycle.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Pulse Of Night I Heard The

In the pulse of night I heard the beating, beating, beating  of the current waves, beating, beating

So feverish, so vexed, so loaded with the trammels of boiling blood of throbbing brains and delirium pulses.

in the pulse of night I heard the
beating, beating, beating  of
the current waves, beating, beating

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Ramps Of Twilight

In the ramps of twilight
Over the airy rocks
Of port Valletta
Holders and conservers
Of centuries
The centuries as in a spring Wound up Compressed and Patient
Look at us smiling
Ironically
With the smile of the mystery
The Sphinx smile
In the ramps of twilight
The rolled centuries Patiently

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Red Painted Manor

In the red painted manor
The bees drone slow
And tasty is their Honey.

At night
Not far off
The sound of carousing
Of the bacchanalian lot

The weary hours Pass and Strike
And the red painted manor’s face Resorts
To ancient shadows grey
Restless
To and fro.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Sad Waters The Poet-Seer

In the sad waters the Poet-Seer
looked looked wan and
pining:
in the sad waters looked
the Poet-Seer,
the silent Poet-Seer of pining eyes
without a word
without a syllable

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Sadness Of The Night

In the sadness of the night
When before the eyes
All be black

And the soul is down
And down
And the Spirit-Soul
All depressed

There comes a small Dim of light
A sweet glow-worm of the night

What a breath
What oxygen!
All this be the Muse and verse

And I sing
And my sadness of the night Fades with this Fades with this.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Shade Of A Long Winter Yet To Come

In the shade of a long winter yet to come
I am standing now:
But
Let me not forget that I was born In Winter too: but on the fringe Of it with the Spring:
A case of enjoying both worlds?
Or that the Spring And Winter together conspired that and such In my first few days I would be of Winter
But then Spring made its best to gladden me Began another season in the world Parallel to my new life, and to it proportionate.

Tele keli bere mesret Ha! Yes these words, this language:
I project
And what I project in chronology
That is in order chronological
I then assert:
Thoughts, notes, verses, songs are given

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Sixth Floor Flat

In the sixth floor flat
That looks upon the Port I from my balcony saw
The light – the neon light in the room
And inside a lady draped in white

She seemed so clear
And near
And yet so far away.

She seemed to talk
I know not to whom She seemed to move
About the room
And talk
I know not what:

And then
And then
As if she saw
She drew the curtains –
Still the light Sprung from above.

Then a few minutes went
And then the lights went out.

How strange this night, how strange.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Skull

in the skull
there was green and
dust
there was the rust of ageing
time
and inside motion that was the skull

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Small Street

This night
In the small street
Joining Saint Paul Street
To yet another street
The stairs antique Romantic first Then the hard surfaced Unasphalted way Along that romantic way

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Small Womb Of A Forest

In the small womb of a forest
Orpheus played.
Around him strayed
And looked in wonderment
Animals and plants.
And mid-way through A Poet-Seer came hobbling on Hobbling to Orpheus
But more to music.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Stacks Of Timber

In the stacks of timber
there floated and there flirted in the wood spirits satyrs goblins all giggling and all playing
just
in the stacks of timber

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Station

In the station
the train whistles
in the station
I slept in the house that I made from the station house

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Station When The Rain Comes

In the station
when the rain comes I think of Gothic churches and wish to lay awake
the night

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Strange Winter Wind

In the strange winter wind
I heard strange winter sounds Not sounds of rain pattering Nor thunder in the distance Nor the swish of lightning
No, no, but strange, strange sound
I saw and heard

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Stream

In the stream
There were waves
Only current waves
Not waves
Not salty
But electricity.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Sub-Conscious

In the Sub-Conscious
I did things
That with strict slow Mechanics I Did nt do:
But with quantum physics
And more
I did.
Therefore. My Monsignor, Look to the Sub-Conscious
In that fount and well
There be resources
Of learning and all Civilizations yet to see Learning yet to hear Experience yet to taste.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Sub-Conscious Woof

In the sub-conscious woof
Sewn
By trembling hands Fostered
By the nocturnal knights That pace
Around
Around
The spell-bound monastery.

There be a pale Imagery
That was born In the genesis Of twilight; with it Parallel-simultaneous
With it
Spell bound and smelling Of myrrh and camphor Magic scents Oriental Tasty.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Sun Of Psychopaths

In the sun of psychopaths
There was blood and it
Was Word
Written on the streets.

At last
The sun of waters that had Been since dawn
Found
A cloud to disappear.

Clouds and blood
So Prominent in history and Its execution.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Sweet Clay

In the sweet clay
the bones dissolved to energy
slowly
slowly

from the grave there rose a distinct smell not sweet nor ugly not stinking nor scenting but a smell indifferent yet powerful

in the sweet clay
the bones dissolved to energy
slowly
slowly

Emmanuel George Cefai
In the sweet clay 2
from the sweet clay
there emanates energy
and roams about

I saw energy roam
though it was morning
little before dawn
I saw energy roaming

in the sweet clay
from the sweet clay
there emanates energy
and roams about

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Thunder That Was Yesterday

In the thunder that was yesterday the fingers lighted and the waters moved against the misty window glasses there was no toasting but only dreams and snoring

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Till Of The Bank Of Life

In the till of the Bank of life
I heard the coins fall down I heard the scents going up pace after pace along and up the stairs till they came to me.
Then the door opened and I saw Life face to face without a mask.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Tomb Of Day

There shone the last bundle of rays
For Earth already was red in cheek And dusk was inside her temple sleek.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Town

In the town
there is the frost rare frost on a rare year and the people hurry cough
with mists of cold that they had not before

in the town
the waters freeze but slow freeze and in the depth
above
shine frowning the dark skies the iron heavens

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Town Of The Intellect

In the town of the Intellect
The grey shades moved To and fro
Restless
Pace after pace
With fingers of the hands Moving and questioning Body-language
Furrowed brows
Discussion on discussion Vexed
For long hours
Then days
Yet
Always persistent:
To the main square
You see them gathering
Till
One day one suddenly:
'Eureka!
Eureka!
Eureka!
Cried with a hoarse Voice
And
All around him turned
And
All around him clustered
And
All around the frowns Were smiles
And
All around him heard
And
All around him knew
And
All around him understood
'Eureka!
Eureka!
Eureka! '
In The Town The Rare Town

In the town
The rare town
There’s roots that sprout From night-dews at the Dawn.

In the town
Rare
But steadfast pour Rains of rose drops Soft and immature
And Young
And Soft rose drops

In the town
There’s honey
That seeps through The walls and Crevices
And peaks of mists
And clouds to reach
By long hands of Poet-Seers.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Trembling Light

The twilight
Faded
In the arms of night
For love of dusk

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Trick Sleep

In the trick sleep
Of the giant
After eating
A fast heavy Meal
-ah! that was Necessary
For the giant Had roamed in Hunger on The plane
Languished in the caves
For days and days
And days
At night
With hunger
He heard trembling
With chill of hunger In cave on
The plain
The shrieking waters
Flow
In the small cleft
Below
How hideous the Water wraiths Unwelcome under The welcome and pitying
Moon.
But now
But now
The giant slept Slept as small children sleep Fell into the sweet trap
Of Morpheus
In to the hummock of Mnemosyne Eyes closed
In chains of the Sub-Conscious yet Free with no chains
In The Turn Of Times

In the turn of times and in The turn of centuries
The burning furnaces of Love and hatred and Malice
Together lived and Loved and warred  made Peace and stayed

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Twilight I Saw My Life

In the twilight I saw my Life
Swimming slow
Dejected amidst untidy waters
On the shore
Green goblins laughed; a pout
Of steam issued from earth;
Careless the brambles
Here and there cut the feet
With blood - hear me, hear me - Night will soon come
The minutes pass and When the minutes pass the seconds Vital become
And when the seconds pass Nanoseconds flourish - hear, Hear human, the first stars Already are out
They smile but wryly
For there is now a fading Beauty of the dusk - hours Have flown - now important Minutes and heavy seconds -
And I
I Poet Seer with the first Drops of tears glistening
In my eyes of pain
Bend
My
Head

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Walk Of Us On This Thorny Earth

In the walk of us on this thorny earth
The plains hurt us
The hills giddy us
The vales annoy us
The streams deafen us
The cascades deafen us
The light blinds us
The thunder shakes us
The night numbs us
The seasons age us
The Dawn wakes us!

On this black Earth that hits
Our naked feet with thorns
That hits our naked feet with jutting rocks
This Earth is raw, yes, raw
And savage
But She be sincere:
And in that sincerity she hurts us
Thereby she teaches us and points
How suffering must be to save us Somewhat.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The War Zone

In the war zone
The gas flows like a mist

Wear the mask, human,
Your breath is short.

And in the heavens there be Already a frown.

The clouds gather and the vultures
Too.

Circle lower the black bats with Eerie crying.

Time with a sickle cuts the mass
Where motion passes.
The snow dries and becomes Glaciers of desperation Crystallized from human blood
And stress.

And in the war zone
There is silence and clangor
All simultaneous:
Quiet and restlessness
In the war zone.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Waters Beauty Glides

In the waters
Beauty glides
In the waters
Draws in tides
In the waters
Lengthwise hides
In the waters
Hoots in caves
In the waters
Gurgling raves
In the waters
Beauty thrives
In the waters
Beauty hides!

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Waters Shone A Wave

And
In the waters shone a wave

A single wave
All dark around and Groping.

Even so
My Inner Soul, today.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In The Womb Of Sadness

In the womb of sadness
The night stars yell

Their yelling is a humming
Of sadness

And the womb of the heavens
Trembles

And the might of the winds Ceases

And the your eyes mother Stare
Stare
Into the vacuum night

And I see eyes
And yet
The holes where the eyes
Were Skeleton

Skeleton of love
Where my love made Its seat Where my love is My wound:

And the womb of the heavens
Trembles

And the might of the winds Ceases

And then your eyes mother Stare
Stare
Into the vacuum night
Emmanuel George Cefai
In the wonders of spell
The hand of History traced
The hand of History wrote
On the stone walls
On the stone walls

There was a goblin pelted
By sweet scented fruits Right by the bastions:
He saw not the hands that Pelted
But pleasure took
And it was night of stars

And the bosom of the seas Went in and out moved in Moved out
And I saw Hamlet on the bastions trail And I saw Mac duff at the other end And in between stood blood and Soil and dust
Removed from the small fields That shook
As rattling ghosts and skeletons Passed by
For it was night
Deep night
Nigh to mid-night’s orgies
And the bosom of the seas
Went in and out moved in Moved out

O how Beauty
Sits on the sea-bosom and on the Ocean-bosom Plays the silver of the moon light Tiptoes on the sea-bosom fairy-like Transparent shadows crossing Each other’s paths and routes
And in that waning quietness Surfeiting themselves to full excess Of fading,
Fading
Fading.

Beauty that trespasses
In each place and in Each site
That it likes
That it likes
Who will resist her touch Her scent her look
And all the rest?

Out of the raw be born and has The genesis of the mellow Out of the rough smell and Taste
The sweet and attar taste of Heavenly gourds
A paradise that breaks before
The enmeshed eyes
Without waiting for Dawn to come
At night
At night

There were white bones, not many,
Few
Strewn on the grass whose eyes Tiny Tiny eyes
Still shone with the just fallen Night-dews since the dusk Had surfeited.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In Them The Shrouds Ideas Carry.

In them the Shrouds Ideas carry.

Vessels of Ideas too are Ghosts.

Within energy rather than mass these Ideas encapsulated are.

And for that the Ideas are the more flexible.

And in the night processions with the Ghost and Shroud participants Ideas are carried too

Emmanuel George Cefai
In This Book Of Verse

In this book of verse
that be lyric and sweet melody in this book the Satyr reads the Sphinx smiles and the slipper ghost tells its beads

yet
in here you will find the blue print for all the verse
that you will need for the plays but ah! still you have to labor so and so many of days!

Emmanuel George Cefai
In This Dark Wave Less Sea

In this dark wave less sea
Where witches all unseen Hold court to-night
Be kind to let me drown.

And when she for me asks Tell her that now here I lies Here to my grave premature
Where witches all unseen
Hold court to-night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In This Wilderness

In this wilderness of Celestial smelling Thyme
The blue worlds
Turn
The globes of seas
And land
Wake partly healed
Lacerated
By fading of a day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In This Year Of Thorns I Inculcated

In this Year of Thorns I inculcated
My verses all the same so far As they will let me fore my martyrdom:
My heart awaits but not with joy Like an expectant mother a beginning But trembles and quakes for an unwanted ending:
Now that the unlucky (so I was brought up) Thirteen minutes to eight in the morning Have fleeted by without my noticing
Now
I plan and I calculate my verses all the same Nor less high to the heavens goes my song.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In To A Trough

In to a trough
Between dark sides of hills Trembled a village
In the mists changed Continual
As the chameleon changes:
And
The bats flew in clusters
Of five to ten Screeching alternate.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In To A Vexed State Confused And Proud

In to a vexed state confused and proud proud and confused I lie yet sing not rhyme no but in blank verse my emotions pen in words dense and terse that I have to think, to think, to think and more I think, the more to think and brow grows more and more furrowed puzzled my thought, yet in that confusion as rattling and shifting of genes be born thoughts sublime yet newly synthesized

Emmanuel George Cefai
In To Another Month

In to another month
the cloud of drear
moves the skies are leaden still
still out of sadness joy begotten be

Emmanuel George Cefai
In To Small Syllables

In to small syllables
And Interjaculations
The cry of protest Rang
I marched the night
By the low and cold
Hills
The faded light
The wise moon light
The wise drawl of wise Owls
And sundry nymphs this
Night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In To The Armory Of Water

the surfaces glistened

pink fish and red nibbled to the surface nibbled their way
upwards
turned the wheels of day

Emmanuel George Cefai
In To The Depths Of Mists

Deep
Deep
In to the depths of mists Sub-conscious yet alert:
Dreaming
Dreaming
And yet not a word
And yet not a thought But sadness
Sweet sadness.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In To The Desert

In to the desert
Moses led his men
and so we must go to the desert to know the wisdom
of suffering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In To The Drowning River

In to the drowning river with its furious cascades let me fall now
from the giddying heights
let me fall now:
and then as dusk evaporates in the hazy trembling initial twilight changed to chameleon colors:
then let me drown at the fringe of
night
just as water-wraiths out of
the sea
leap waist-full to the skies half sea half out of sea ' so be I
but I drown slowly, slowly down to the full liquid bloom the benighted sea kingdom of drowsy Neptune:
the night
this night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In To The Earth’s Roots

In to the earth’s roots
The roots of the old Tree Delved Delved
And Woke dawn in the womb
Of falling night
And the falling stars
The calm sea-bosom
Plain.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In To The Giggles Of Dawn

In to the giggles of Dawn
just a single moan Dawn woth pleasure and pain

there was a palm of green that had withered in the relative cold of the previous cruel night

but now
into the relative dawn the relative palm of green withered not, nor shook.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In To The Gothic Shade

In to the gothic shade
two ghosts and one shroud were sitting in council I heard their whispering
and their plans for the night
that night
and I saw that in their plans
there was no treason and for their whispering and found not reason

Emmanuel George Cefai
In To The Heavens Look

In to the heavens look I And look and stare
And look
And tears in my eyes
My mother
Not a word
Not a word

Emmanuel George Cefai
In To The Homely

In to the homely
Into the somber
Into the subconscious
Into the upturned
Conscious
Into the deeds of old Into the ancient times
And ancient ghosts
Sing I
And ghosts and restless Souls and shrouds.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In To The Long Lost Ages Of Time

In to the long lost ages of time
And centuries
The Ego-Guilt walks slow Prowling:
In to the sub-conscious

Dreaming

Emmanuel George Cefai
In To The Monastery Of Life

And
In to the monastery of life Sink together
Beauty, All and Thought

Emmanuel George Cefai
In To The Night The Dawn Awake

for the last part when after midnight the night deepened;
to the fore the charismatic man a charismatic train clinical, and pretty and attractive:
the winds and tempests howled and yet he smiled;
intelligence and coolness of temper hard to beat;
though winter be hard and deep severe and large and more in to the night the dawn awake
for the last part when after midnight the night deepened

the Hedgehog's color

Emmanuel George Cefai
In To The Revolution Of Things

In to the revolution
Of things
There be A joy that rings
A hedge That travels
Approximately linear Across the flow of The white moon rays
And
The glow
Of white stars of a faded
Day.
How the night rings
Water
In the pail of freedom
Drop after drop
Sensuous in beauty
Flourish and crop
And twilight dons Dress and cap and all
For glaring in the waters
At sweet dusk:
Sink
Down with fading day
In the still waters

Emmanuel George Cefai
In To The Skies

In to the skies
Give me wings my destiny
And let me leave one dusk
One early night

To leave this Earth
To be as of the sky
And of the soaring in the heavens immense To be this

To be in my home in a cave
In Patagonia or in Cefalu
To be home at last
In the least!

In To The Slow Night The Rasping

In to the slow night the rasping billows fended off the clouds of rage and
frowning

speak not of storms and tempests nor of calm; but night be what it be the houses dream as for centuries the windmills gone that turned before the ancient houses in ancient

centuries

rather the night prolong before onset of Dawn.

in to the slow night the rasping
billows fended off the clouds of

In To The Snows I Trudged In Purpose - Wishing

And I wished that a vein of me would burst.

And die those snows with drop on drop of blood, my blood.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In To The Sword Of Destiny

In to the sword of destiny
you throw me merciless:
ah! there is no pity
even if a Poet Seer!
destiny has favorites
power and glory
but wait! in short term
only.
For touched and goaded by Justice continually Destiny long term his ancient friends discards power and glory and what in his frosty hand of oblivion lay he warms to fame and makes for unknown humans a new shrine and a new name.

In To The Tapestries Of Thought

In to the tapestries of Thought
The brain
Roams meandering

Child not yet a Youth
Yet
Of puberty in throes.

And
In the throes of Beauty.

Moves with learning
And sacrifice.

Makes and dreams
More and more Beauty incarnate Ever-increase incarnate Evolution.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In To The Womb Of Earth The Leaves

In to the womb of earth the leaves
Fell sere and in the twilight Pink-dark in time and breath Lay with little motion.

Let us assert – what relevance
If snow and frost assail:
The leaves already sere and In the their twilight were.

So with me, now the storms of Life if they come then let:
Stretched crucifix-martyred I Look bleak into the mourning sky.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In to the womb of Time Met Motion and Phenomenon
And grinning they said Sphinx-like: ‘Let us transform, inter-transform And make; for after all That is what we will do
That is what the mass universe dictates’
And they called with them Dawn
And then Dawn called on the Red Dusk
And then invited they Night and Noon and Day And seeing their concourse grow Winter, Autumn, Spring, Summer
With them
Included they.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In Transformation

Things
In experiment

In transformation
Things

Amidst the drear Received some
Light

As a blind man or so My hand rose to the Light

As the man thirsty
For some water cool
In the red deserts Stretching immensely.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In Twilight

In twilight
Though
Over the bastions
There was a short chill Beginning
Yet
Here in the waters
There's a warmth
Coming
From the Geyser of the Centuries Humans go away!
You carry a century
More or less Unless Otherwise engineered And that's
As now suspended!

Emmanuel George Cefai
In utter suffocation
At the joy of his rehabilitation
From the down-fall he had experienced From the summit heights that he had Fallen:
Oh yes, he had a right to joy:
In utter suffocation, the suffocation of Ecstasy:
At his rehabilitation.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In Valletta The Sun Shines

In Valletta
the sun shines and it be afternoon.

In Valletta
I walk slow and think heavily.

In Valletta
I see a father hold the hands of his boy the young blond boy

In Valletta
I heard the violin-player
play
play
in to the light of sun

And
there were words not music just
for me.

And I walked, trudged, walked sadly sadly.

And
continued playing the sad
violin
And I felt sad
and sad
though no sun was setting though people were walking
everywhere.
In Venice now the night has not come Nor its refreshing breeze flown Over the waves half-darkling in the light Of the wan silent moon: half-sparkling By under-currents slow or goblins blown:
The bridges and canals are mute and still.
And speak not though each other front:
But with the first brushes that tinct
The ailing face of day with dusky rouge
The first words, the first dialogues They hear between bridge and bridge Between canal and other in the fall Of the red sun towards the frail east Where its awry its glance to weep At losing its high crown momentarily:
They hear they saw bridge speak to bridge,
Canal to bridge, canal to canal,
In those dark nights at Venice: and the sounds Of their speech secret hides and with The murmur of the waves bathing and mixing
In their sweet singing beneath the silent stars Fortunate who understand: I understand not But only hear
The murmur of the waves bathing and mixing
In those dark nights at Venice And afar
The languid strains of the strung violins.

In Your Heart

In your heart

Emmanuel George Cefai
Incandescent Night

through the long and incandescent
night

the fire of the stars kept stoking
parallel-simultaneous to the mourning of wind and shroud

there be so much
of suffering
here, there,
everywhere
and not a breeze of joy no, not one breeze
of joy.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Incarnate

If I lose more incarnate
Children
To children that be ghosts Loiter, move, suffer
Do the rest
As ghosts
Then my descent will be A descent of ghosts
Since that matter: energy
Be not destroyed
But my sperm
Though not in descent
Appearing
Descends the same in things
Around
The Earth
That Earth that carries in Its plenteous womb
What cannot be destroyed
The Earth, our mother
Earth.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Incense Sweet

Incense sweet
Amidst the drear and gloom
Amidst the pining doom
Amidst the reign of sadness

A human that with sadness be Laden more unfortunate he Than Ixion or the donkey at the Watermill.

I am of those few humans.
Yet from that sadness Spring the seeds of sweet poetry.

In verse and song therefore Let me take shelter from The tempests of the soul
The rains and blizzards.

Incense sweet
Amidst the drear and gloom
Amidst the pining doom
Amidst the reign of sadness

Emmanuel George Cefai
Inner Soul The Fort Of Inner Strength

Inner Soul the fort of inner strength and Yet receptor of all pains and woes Notices of sufferings and unhappy tidings.

Yet sufferings and unhappy tidings make In as direct proportion the building of Your fortitude that then infinite shines.

Thought Action unite; with them the All.
The Inner Soul is then a universe No less than the mass universe.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Inner Temples

In the inner temples
The crowds gathered Clustered
Together
For they felt the earth quake.

What fervent lamentations Prayers
On fire Hearts of ash
Amongst the ashes
Repentant

Were these not the hearts That but three hours ago Round the golden calves Danced and Caroused tonight?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Innocent Eyes

Before me so often
I see the glance of innocent eyes I do care to whom
The innocent eyes belong:
Only I see
The eyes innocent and quasi-immotile
Look
Look Staring Vacant
Before them
And
I care not to whom they belong Innocent eyes

Emmanuel George Cefai
Insatiable Clown

Insatiable clown
With red nose
You steal with stealthy step Along the hedges in the
Night
Under the stars under the white All grey all shade all dark
In Hastings Gardens.

And
I heard your lament
A little after you looked Intent with lifted head Toward your Moon-Goddess Had tears in your eyes Then said
Heard I:
’Woe is this world, all woe, all ashes Black, shadows, tears
I will to laugh but cannot Laugh,
What clown am I?
Am I the rumored fool?
Am I the only wise?
The others of the earthly band Upholders materially
All do and laugh and stand And sound
More than empty vessels in a desert of sand When iron chills of night fall on that land:
And distant-hoarse the jackals and bats cry
And shadows roam, restless, and pry.
I must laugh I know, but the world now Is not of clowns, alas! would that it be That all had clown in blood and laughter be!’

So plained the clown
Yet
Still the Moon Goddess Spoke not
Only
Shed a tear.

Look! The night flees
As the clouds speed away
So Dawn approaches Fast with the new day:
And the clown hied away
With stealthier step
And pace
Like as to witch with broom Over the seas
Over the waters wild
At night
That night
For wise he was Then laughed
A great laugh
And went to other lands.

Inspirational Thinker Of The Moons

Inspirational thinker of the moons gazer of skies and heavens lover of the immense in the immense lost but in thought thinker of the bird's eye's view
and thence thinker of the God-like view presenter of the Dawn on a loud-hailer cast on stranded beaches
while the Dawn rustles in rustles in with waves fired by Father Ocean.
The first bird sings.
A lone lark in the skies sings and then stops.
A snake from high crags drops.
And it is morning.

Instead Of Lording

there was the Night
today
instead of lording
it covered in satin over the floor of heavens
weeping
today
tonight
the Night with bent head passed and spoke not word.

He was there just just to be present he felt
a cog in the wheel part of the Cycle on him imposed too by the mass universe
after all, he,
the mass universe together with his ardent Principles of all was master... so to say...

for himself that mass universe was bound in the chains of its own Principles and these in turn in chains of chains of chains

Emmanuel George Cefai
Into A Small Band

Into a small band
We clustered together in the stand Where the Muse put us:
I, the fortunate,
To make my way amidst so august company
Is there a need as yet
For another ten years, eleven years?
I will move slow at first, through The first years.
I need not hurry: copy the decade
That went before.
Not in a flurry to sing and versify.
In English
Before two thousand and four what Had I sung?
But see! What I collected
From the fields of poesy and song:
Though
Desperation upon desperation throng Into my eyes yet I hold on And sit successor to thousands of lines.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Into Deep Light

Into deep light
The blue light of the Subconscious sensual Night sensuous sleeps.

In its hummock of pleasure
The moon shines
The stars hum lullabies

The dawn withdraws her potency That dear night sleep And sleep subconscious sensual full.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Into desiccated tomatoes I delved After opening the jar:
I feared the smell of salt and vinegar Yet as if drowsed by them
I fell in to them eating:
You see, my Monsignor, how we,
We humans, change mood all at once
Now we were calculating going north Then a smell, a warm smell alters us, Our face colors and our brain flashes
And therein we change our direction Trudge south, not north, order I My steps and feet, body follow suit.
And in Politics that’s quite cute A Principle I would say would constitute.
Open Politician, . open your ears
The heavens still frown, though the rain clears.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Into Muddied Seas

Into muddied seas
Toads and shrunk ghosts Together swam slow.

Cockroaches by the million Over the red sea-bosom Into the Ocean were a giant drop.

Away, little away, swam reeds
And rushes and sodden grasses
A la Sargasso, in the water horrors

Roadways or the soil Of fields.

Poles! Poles and fields!

Into The Coffin Laid Her They

Into the coffin laid her
They

Close her eyes yet
To the high heavens immense She looked

White her dress Unmoving save with a soft Sad winnowing wind's caress

Into the coffin

Yet not on Earth
They laid her

Where restlessness of life Finds the plain unmoving level In the face of the Earth
To the face of the Earth
At last

At last!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Into The Grit

Into the grit
Of chagrin and of hate and envy
And harm all unified
I put my face and bold
I faced the chill that came The frost that settled on my hands And skin like dread bacteria:
But to Mass I went; there I felt Peace coming into my heart
That I had not had so long before.
And now I need it more than more And more than ever needed it before.
Let us see what harm there be in store
The New Year just begins; at least We the onslaught survived of the last Year.

Into The Night

Into the night
In to the night
They marched
And marched
Their steps on cobble-stones were heard And faded soon as went.

How large the oarless barge
And pilot-less it roams
Over the silvern sea this night!

How calm and bright
The silvern waves glisten and light With every lap, with every wave
This night!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Into The Night 2

Into the night
The light that looked a sun
Now fainter goes
And fades:
The hooting of the car
As from the tunnel it passeth
And in the long long tunnel
The sound of the loud horns
Is sucked by the dark tunnel of the night
And where the Night passeth Is marked by dewy paces in the morn Glistening in the eternal dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Into The Night, The Winter Night

Into the night, the winter night
The ghost went shuddering.

For it was cold, for it was frost
The moon was hid and from view almost lost.

Step after step, the stairs he went Silent and with hooded head bent

As the wild wind nocturnal sang As loud a thunder peal in distance rang.

With other ghosts and shrouds met he Some went in to the town, some by the sea.

No one spoke to other, saluted silent
All to all, and then walked with head bent.

Ah! this world is of a level higher Than our world much left to desire.

With punctuated histories move we Rowdy and talk words that not high be

As talk the ghosts and shrouds in silence Without words, and with head bent.

Shrill round the church spire the wind Rang twisted chill and frost-unkind.
And in some houses chimneys still Smokeless and mute in that stark chill

Trembled the fir in Hastings Garden Hoarse passed by the night’s warden

The bat that with a muted cry
Over the dreamy houses swift he fly.

The quiet waves to rise and roar began
And in them blood of tempest ran.

Trembled the old church bells that night Below the stars quite hidden from sight

Of some lone Poet Seer who could not sleep
And so he wandered lone and weep:

Hour after hour pass, at last of gray
The Dawn ends this beauty for a new day.

Into The Shipwreck By Time Presented

Into the shipwreck by Time presented I see fragment with fragment of My verse and song
Floating on the green waves and Eddying in the turbid sump
Of the green tempest in this cruel age.
See, see, amongst the bits Of wood that came From the old vessel, aged, that was Younger, much young And stronger
Ten years, eleven years ago:
Beginning of a century; beginning of a Millennium:
Then
The waters quiet were but now
The tempests rage as when in Galilee Out of the calm in sudden rose
The tempests when Jesus slept.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Into The Trough, The Time-Warp

Into the trough, the time-warp
Of seven hundred years ago and more I wanted to be blown:
And dusk, and dawn and day and night Faded in the even humming of energy Into that derelict pitch of dark Genesis of energy
More than a million Springs.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Into The Warping Mug Of Beer

Into the warping mug of beer
That from the heavens dropped

And I heard the thundering

Large immense pieces of the heavens immense Ripped apart over the sailing clouds
The heavens immense were breaking.

Is It The Time To Give Up, Yield My Friend?

Is it the time to give up, yield my friend?
I ask myself, I look at the high heavens.

They throw no answer, remain mute
And silent in their sordid majesty.

Day after day, pass, power, wealth, Pass, the rest will pass.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Is That The Leaven Of The Bread?

Is that the leaven of the bread?
I smelt the baking, noon was nearing.
I make a resolution that I will keep.
You say the New Year made change?
I versified for years now, still I versify.
Bring me wine by mid-day:
I will still sing the lazy afternoon.
But when the orange streaks of The declining sunset come I will cease.
I must prepare to pine at the red dusk
That will soon follow on the heels.
Of sunset; twilight waves purpling, Purpling, in the silent sea of a more silent day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Is The Griding Of The Dusk

Is the gridding of the dusk the equivalent: identity of freshness of the dawn the pining eyes of sunset the wild cold night of frost?

The Dilapidated Sites
The knight Delights, Comes Especially
In
The Nights
Rarer
On Rare
dusks:
the
night
his ride
his haunt favorite
as
the

It Is Too Long

It is too long Too long
The dusk today
To fade and go Too long
Or rather I
I Am so impatient
For the beauties of dark
Night?

Emmanuel George Cefai
It Trickles

It trickles
It trickles
It trickles red
This night

How weary
The light
This night

How still How still
And red
The night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
It Was Dark

I saw a skeleton Put off the light
the white aura went I saw the shadow of the skeleton
It was dark
And it was night

Emmanuel George Cefai
It Was Night.

It was night.
And monsters rose from The dark waves.
And monsters rose in the Dim moon.
Monsters? What monsters!
Figures of dark, in dark Enveloped:
The dark waves rose
The figures of dark silent Ferreted through the waves
And it was night

Emmanuel George Cefai
It Will Be Christmas

A few more Days
It will be Christmas
If Ever we get to it

Let me put
The incense in the Shrine
Before the altars
Of
Chance and Probability

Let me pray my gods
As my faith taught
Me
My beloved mother
Amalia.

Through thick
Through thin
We Maneuver a way
In to the trammels
And
The intestines of the Conscious rages.

Let the days pass.
Let the sand
Slip.
Yes, it's age.
Let
Let, my Monsignor.

Jar Of Spices

Night is a jar of spices carried from exotic Orient but extracted from hidden caves
extracted from caves of secret where bay be desolate and the face of the heavens becomes red as it kisses the breasts of the sea becomes the face of the heavens covered in spume salty to counter-balance the sweet honey of the kisses
but it counter-balances not silence spices of the orient balm Night-nurse of Earth-wounds silhouettes dark and hospitals in mid-heavens

The honies in the air Towards the heavens rose As in the helix of a DNA Sweet and silent, they.

'Ve have to buy the pills Today.' He said
And in his pockets fetched And found not Then his neck he stretched
Erect.

The house be silent
Not once a child's cry Or a child's laugh But drear and
Drear
And drear.

And the jars still Scent in the night
The quiet night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Jewel In Coffin

Jewel in coffin
thunder captured in a secret tomb.

I write will not write much.
Age is catching up.

The dawns too are getting drear
even last spring.

Jewel Of The Cemetery

Jewel of the cemetery Hidden amongst
So many tombs and Graves
And cemetery paths

Emmanuel George Cefai
Jewelry Of The Heavens

Jewelry of the heavens
stars of night.

I that have suffered and suffered for
suffering.

Suffered in ever-increase.

Have a full glass full glass to the Rim.

those that are low they are prone to be discarded
and dark faced oblivion waits them.

already the folds of the oblivion's mantle
close around me.

And
I hear my own self-cries of anguish despair of suffering of suffering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
jewels of the night
you have to shine bright to cut across the razor the dark
this night.

The pendent earrings you have Shine in the growing dark:
The flames are leaping And shadows flickering
This night.

And you
And you
Sweet jewel of the night
Sweet dark jewel
Whenever you smile
Your teeth shine in the night

So bright
So bright.

Emmanuel George Cefai
jewels of the Orient

The human held the Christmas glass in hand.

Half-drunk in that day of celebration he was dark sad and blue faced.

And darker was the Poet Seer.

Though Christmas bells and tunes tolled in streets

Emmanuel George Cefai
Joker

There was the Joker
he was too a Poet Seer he smiled
he grinned with a mischievous smile the waters in his soul
they were they ran the night
and whistled with clouds and the short winds.

at least
I will today arrive whistling through my teeth
inside
the winds and rains outside
today
got a little mixed with snow... but I am here for I be the Joker
I own the seas
I speak to the immense heavens I can even make them laugh or
weep
For then
I am the Poet Seer
I own a lot.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Jolly Friar

The Jolly Friar
You see him
As in a mist Yet he smiles Cracks Jokes
And laughs,
The jolly friar.

Not on all nights
They saw him But on many
Nights
Night bound humans
By the monastery grounds
The jolly friar
They saw.

And
One human Asserts that at Dawn
Just minutes before
Of sudden he saw
The face of the Jolly Friar become wan
And
More: Him he saw dissolve
The jolly friar
Little by little
And the grass remain
Where he stood joking.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Jostled Here And There

Jostled here and there
A white thing
In the night of seas Cold liquids
Acid and acerb:
Was it a bone
Of skeleton?

Joy Flees

Ask humans:
They will tell you How joy flees.

It has wings
So many Mischievous little Sprite
So many!

And
It rare comes at night
After the dusk Where to Does it fly?

So far?

So hidden?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Joy Humans!

Joy humans!

So shouted the sardonic Poet Seer.

For all the city invaded by Ghosts and Shrouds intrepid and irresistible.

Though it was past the dawn.

Though it was morning.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Joy Of Beauty's Sap.

With flowers in My hair
With me
Magic I had
And magic wings
Of mist.

I skimmed me
On the waves
I closed my eyes
And joyed
The joy of Beauty's sap.

As the bee sucks Nocturnal beauty I Suck in that chilly bay Tiptoed on frosty sea.

Emmanuel George Cefai

Alone and weeping

Stress walking hurriedly.

I am weeping Losing all.

Enemies with cigars Laughing pass by.

Here,
Here on Earth, my Monsignor.

Jungle Of Woods

Jungle of woods
Trees
That light
In the sway of the night
Humming slowly.

A top on Earth rises and Falls.

The woods hum slowly back
Yet
Only the errant Poet Seer,
The I,
Hears.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Jungle Of Fear

Jungle of fear, calm called

But fear increases so That I must decide to Go.

I want not fear.

I want not suffering.

Out of this Earth, out Of Fear, out
Of suffering.

Just Lights

In the sweet kiss, one just lights!
The others follow, burning more than the wild stars of night!

One upon one, the body blind to blinder grows, the eyes see and be in haze all simultaneously!

The first shame in the first sweet kiss; then shame with each other kiss undresses all!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Just One Bell Rung

for it was mid-night past for the people slept and the old ancient town!

Keyboard

before the computer keyboard I type and before I type even seconds before the feelings transmute and into notes and thoughts thoughts and notes ejaculate:
verse be born and I chant
and I sing:
then will the heavens dance and the wide Ocean depths rejoice under the glorious Sun.

Emmanuel George Cefai
King Henry The Eighth

King Henry the Eight
Was touched by the Muse
And wrote:

And I Am touched by the Muse as well And write:

So I and a king Are brothers Intellectual brothers!

Emmanuel George Cefai
King Of Jokers

The king is colorful
So the king is attractive
The king
Is popular
Where king are not so much
But ah!
This king is poor
This king bears not Glory
Nor power
No the arrows of envy
Attach not to him
And
He is spared them.

This my Monsignor
Is a king of hearts
For hearts love him
And
He possesses
The most important Power
And the most important Glory
The locks of the heart
All time, all places.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Kissed Bunch After Bunch

Since that we met
The last
And kissed bunch after Bunch
Of kisses
Wanted time not to pass
Our souls melted
In the embrace you Told me
'Embrace me'
Slow and sensuous
And
In the embrace Kisses multiplied
In the blindness of love
In the sway of the passions
Warm breath
My hand on your back caressing...
We whispered
We whispered wild words
You closed your eyes
I was on the watch
For seeing you close them:
To assure that my kisses were Burning you as I Was burning.
For
In the embrace Kisses multiplied
In the blindness of love
In the sway of the passions
Warm breath
My hand on your back caressing...
We whispered
We whispered wild words
We sighed and again sighed
A small tear from your eye
A joy
Pleasures and sighs

That humans yearn beyond the starless grave.
In that tumult in the City of Love
My love
My love
My sighing.

Kite

A kite of beauty in a Foreign land

A kite of beauty in a Foreign heaven

A kite of beauty of sweet Vapors made

A kite of beauty hovering
Over the town

A kite of beauty out of horrors
Born
And suffering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Knight Green

Knight
Knight green
In armor green Knight
Of the descending Order
Order of the light
The torch
The hammer
Where emotions
Too Feel free to Intertransform
Capture
Beauty

Emmanuel George Cefai
Knight Of The Rivola Dance

Knight of the Rivola Dance
You
In you heavy armor
Dance Awhile the Poet Seer in The regal hall
Erect and high Sings for his majesty.

New dance from New song and Verses -
The Rivola Dance!

Dance
With minimum of ethics
But
Much of metaphysics
The Rivola Dance!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Labor In The Pens Of Music

We
We humans must Labor in the pens of Music
In the sweat of the Muse
In the dripping honeys
Of the altered verses:
The town
Has slept
And it be time to versify And chant
We Always chant this way
My Monsignor
As long as I sing Poet Seer
I will sing thus each day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lady Blue

I am of night.
At day you will Not find me

At day you will Not see me.

I am veils
And not more.

But I am otherwise.

I am sometimes
A skeleton

I am sometimes A bride in
White.

My eyes are holes
In part, only.

I am sadness Densified.

I am the union
That joins so many Things
Not all similar
So
There’s such rattling There’s such shifting There’s such shifting and rattling.
Transformation and change Pull down
The curtain of Evolution.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lady Of Dagger Eyes

Where do the women learn Those arts and tricks
They have about them
To lure and catch most men?

What good teachers
Their mothers must have been?
How
From generation to generation They speak and between Them whisper?

Therefore
Lady of dagger-eyes
You need not press
Not press further Your captive man-fish
Now lies on the shore Let him breathe
Breathe again
With your sweet warm Lips and body:
For you
Forgetting safety Risking all
Out of the waters to The beach sand near you
The man-fish rose
And came.
At your alluring.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lady Of Smiles

Ah! lady of Smiles Sweet tongue
To catch and hook
But then
When the man-fish Approaches further
Wild
She withdraws
Withdraws ever Cunning
Cunning
Lady of Smiles!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lady Of White

Lady of white Mounts and pinnacles
And snows
Yet black Black Towering Arrow-straight Towards the weak Sun rays:
In my heart
I felt Spanish
And in my brain
While singing English

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lake Swans

I will not go here.
the lake swans
here
move and ponder in drear of life just view them and you will touch drear even in their long slow moving necks!

I wrote letters to you
e-mails
gather them together it be not difficult
and you will have a Bible of politics keep them
secret for drear and humidity
of Earth
will turn around them as a lustful snake.

because it burns and the heart aches and the breasts are pierced.
the night tiptoes there sweet thief!
ah! cut them these chains
of Earth
that I wander the Earth as chainless animals
I will in greater peril
be?
For liberation from the normal drear
I will exchange peril and safety

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lament Not More

Lament not more
You see the carpenter Has finished my store.

Next they will store me
In what the carpenter Prepared.

I suspended Immortality
And down with slow steps Go the stairs, prepared.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lamenting Ghosts

Lamenting shrouds!
Lamenting ghosts!
Groaning skeletons!
This be the night!
Hark! Hear!
Before you opens
A way of light
Halo, starlight!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lamp-Light

when I go light a lamp-light
I will be there the symbol
the lamp-light and keep it
lamp-light burning burning always

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lamp-Light Over The Field

pay attention! over that field
there be thistles!

Attention!

Lamp-light and fire burning in the corner

In vain call Dawn
she's too far!

the shepherds sing

put bottles of wines to mouth and drink sleep
and dreams.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lamps In The Night Clank And Clank

As the lamps in the night
Clank and clank
As the lamps in the night
As a pendulum move
From a side to a side.

So we Our thoughts Fail.
Our love temperature
Rises.

And you close your eyes
And
After little I too close my eyes Ah! lovers be we Get caught
In the throes Both
Be blind.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lamps That Rattle

Lamps
Lamps that rattle
In the night
In the cold wind
In the frost
That house frontage faces Peels.
And in this sad funereal Dirge of still Rattle the lamps.
The feast is over.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Land Beyond And Far

There be a Land, a land beyond
And far

And in that Land I will rise and
Go.

And in that Land I will to do What I have not done as yet.

Even a small fraction to correct Mistakes of the past.

For mistakes are of the past; the Land Future Be.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Land Of The Troubadors

Land of the troubadors
but at night
at night
at night only in old Mtáhleb and in the first minutes of every dawn - and then not more
not more just silence and parched plain, garigue exceptional.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Land That Shuddered

Land that shuddered
In the cold Whirlwinds passing
The hay and stubble bending Clumped here and there With the blowing of winds

Here frost has made its homeland Here at night the bats Instead of flying Crawl along the bushes.

Waving yew trees
Scent of mellow pines Maturing
Maturing slow:
Herald a cemetery Where animals be
Not a humanity!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Landscape Raw

Landscape raw and Plains furrowed by the flow of Ancient rivulets and ancient streams They have dried
No longer
Over the sea-cliff ride
And then falling immense Depths
No longer
Slide

The night dews the supreme and Sacrificial thirst
Only bless.

Bless, not cure -
In the thirsty rock
There grows the ancient song That song Which pains the heart with Its contagious pain Xerophytes and cacti rise
To demonstrate Prevalent thirst and Prevalent suffering:
Ancient and raw
The way ahead
To evolution-future
After all
In pain of martyrs
And such sufferings.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Language

The language changes
So
The civilization changes

The harp is not broken
The veils are still Yet the harp plays.

The waters soar Outside the tempest Growls.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Language Of The Heavens

The language of the heavens
It hung down
From the carpet of the skies

No flying carpet Eastern
But soaked with blood
Still dripping
Still dripping....

The moon looked behind

Emmanuel George Cefai
Languishing

Languishing
languishing at times
verse and song
be languishing

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lank Ghosts

In the reign of horror
Lank ghosts
Tall and elongated Roam about
With sweat on their Bones
That burn of August temperatures For here in the night
They shut off the star light Bay as the moon in dreams And sleepless count the beams Creaking slow and dark
In the dim room mark Dark elongated lines loud
In silence and in silhouettes proud The verses roam about around And humming chants abound Heard only by sleepless Poet Seers
The rest sleep; drowse; in meres Of the Sub-Conscious sink, where swim
As in a new Styx crocodiles at the rim
The very rim of bank over flown.........

Emmanuel George Cefai
Large Echoes

Large echoes
Of echoing caves and Caverns
Sentinels of night
Waiting with throbbing heart
For the red dusk
To signal night for you

Ah! night dark night covers From human ears so often Your jocose laughs
Of the old ancient giants
And
Of the waning fires
Of
The soft heavens.

Be not cruel, night
The earth needs pity
Hear!
The caves and caverns
Are echoing
Like playing lambs Frisking
And Bellowing: Would be
The same for humans,
Us!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Large Scale Celestial

From large-scale celestial
To
The tiny

From the little that They had
They hit

You call it 'mean'
my Monsignor
Yet so is it.

I must see where They lurked
From Night till
Dawn.

Yesterday I heard
Their whispering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Last Days Better Be Known

the last days better to be known the condemned have an advantage here
albeit in the mass universe
relative even advantage some percentage has of disadvantage:
here
in the freedom relative fear abandoned not its throne nor kingdom

Emmanuel George Cefai
Last Embers

but when the last embers remain with them hope will be dim and sad and heart-broken and weak

the fate of hope is as of the embers

their fates and their destinies are directly proportional and the fading of the last embers will be directly proportional to fading of last hope proportional

Emmanuel George Cefai
Last Few Stars

Last Few Stars
Trembling
Pale-faced
As
With Guilt
Though
Not Guilty
Shrouds
And Ghosts Disappearing Thin Air
With Night Magic Loaded Castles
Old
And Frights
Night
Was Deep
But Depth
Is Passing
And
The Dawn be fast approaching White on the horizon looming Night and day, light and dark All separating Artists with palette awaiting Photographers
With their lenses ready Ah! Dawn what be Earth Without you!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Last Night

Last night
I roamed confounded Raising up and down
The pendulum of Thought Was rattling
From one side
To the other side.

That was parallel
To rattling
That was parallel
To shifting
That was parallel
To rattling and shifting Of the genes

O! We are imprisoned Tied in chains
We must not cut To all this Rattling
Shifting
Both, my Monsignor!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Last Notes, Last Notes

Last notes, last notes
The music began to tell More the words told Once!
Once!

Rose Stunned the Word
At this challenger:
But
It saw that it fitted
It
And stretched the hand

And
The last notes
The last notes surprised Took the hand Became one
With the Words they Survived
No longer
No longer
Last notes! Last notes!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Last Of Cash

The last of cash
I willed so
But the cemetery
Called
But the cemetery
Called me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Last Submission

Last submission of
The moon
To the night
The time is closing
The ages turning Sing, sing
Fairy of the mounts
The snows is shadowed
By dark shadows
Of heavens and clouds
And freedom wild.

Ay! Freedom wild Walks not hand in hand With rules
Yet
Be yearned for
So much
By Individual Souls.

Nobility
To the Inner Soul Arrives
After the suffering
And the pain
Before
And without need Of a white dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai
Last Week

Last week last sonata
the dried leaves the wind making them
fly over in the long aisle between the
trees
of the public garden

Emmanuel George Cefai
Later Years

A visit in later years will it reveal the gap?
The brain?
Emotions?
Ageing?
Xemxija I had not visited these last five years and visiting this time rekindled in the brain
my yearning for it, Simar, the trees, the birds, the quiet whispering, the forest small, the quiet on Earth in such a troubled Earth
A visit in later years

Emmanuel George Cefai
Laugh Joker!

Another
Day Laugh
Joker!
And
In Your Laugh
is wisdom
of
the
heavens
Circle the bats around Under the heavens’ eyes Circle, circle:
Time down
The sand-glass runs
The red bull in the Yard
Where it had stood For hours
Be longer there
Another
Day
Another
Day

Emmanuel George Cefai
Laws Of The Soul

Wisdom
A Kingdom Laws
Of
The Soul
Written
In Stone
And Blood
In
The Heart: That Must Be Wisdom.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lay Me Here

Lay me here
Here I have stopped to sing
Many a night

Had tears in my eyes Watching white stars
Many a night

Waited patient
For the coming dawn
Many a night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Leaned Against The Tree Bark

I will rest here the while he leaned against the tree bark as in ecstasy he slept and forgot that he was with chains there was thought and there was melody there was subconscious he was at last free! and he murmured in his sleep
I will rest here
I will rest here
I will rest here

Emmanuel George Cefai
Leaves And Humans

Leaves and humans: both turn sere irrespective Of power wealth and all the rest

Emmanuel George Cefai
Left Behind

morning
star left behind lingering the Spirit of the Night is gone
I saw it turn to mist enter a monumental tomb.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Left Standing

Please could you kindly....

The door slammed

A Poet Seer was left Standing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let chance and probability Guide your hands Poet Seers in verse and song:
It be like swimming Loosen, let loose yourself
On the waters
And then you float
The same you let loose Yourself on chance and Probability, the words,
The thoughts, emotions,
All they brew rattle and throw.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let Human Rise

Let human rise
and opening their eyes
and eating the apple the prohibited apple be rebels to the skies:
but wait
but wait with respect treat the skies above us they be and we will their voices to
hear hear loud and rebounding
and see to it that from heavens to us wise and wisdom will fall

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let In The Wind

You will let in the wind
That blows now.
Before
Even though it was Dawn
The wind was still.
Furled all the sails and All the boats and ships Stranded in immortality
On the sea bosoms lay.
Yet
Even before noon
Though we had waited long
Long
The wind came in at last Cast off our unmasked frowns Began the day at last With labor and with sweat
Let in the wind,
More,
Let in

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let It Pass

Let it pass
That today on the earth
Beyond the closing throes of afternoon
I roam.

Let it pass
That to-day I will be closer to the stars And to the heavens where My mother often visits now.

Let it pass
That I and mother meet Meet in the heavens post-afternoon Amidst the smell of mists and Formalin.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let It Play

The Wind Let It Play Whilst I Sip The Wine I Love The Interplay Of Wind And Wine But I Miss The Whispering Of Ghosts And Shrouds

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let Me

Let me
Be another Prometheus who slept Dreamt the sweet dreams of the gods As he desired
As he had willed
He fell then asleep from hidden Morpheus
And over his brain and closed eyes Made her palm Mnemosyne:
Let me
Let me
Let me another Prometheus be Who swept in the sweet lap of the gods
And in the dream there came The messengers of the Gods and they Tied him Softly
Softly
With chains of roses sweet that with Minutes transformed Into iron-clad chains of measures grim.

Strawberry mornings, deep in to The glades where mists are Warring; raspberry chants of Birds just dawn-awaken;
Nymphs with scant of dress
Yet beauty in increasing:
Scents that arise from jars of Cassia and of night jaws still Fresh in the dawning.
Glades whose brains are high
Over the snow-topped mountains Vales where rapid streamlets
Glancing.
And in the early morn small figures
Shadowy and grey all dancing.
Sing! Sing! Loosen your tongue
Poet Seer the wine is here Sip and be not parched: 'tis morning.

II

Across the sacred mountain that
There was Planted by the hands of Jove himself In a secret desolate spot of Earth Where human institutions feared Ascent
Here in sleep
The gods by divine hands and aerial Flight Transported hummock-like Sleeping Prometheus Asleep still Still in his desires burning
Still.

Strawberry mornings, deep in to
The glades where mists are Warring; raspberry chants of Birds just dawn-awaken;
Nymphs with scant of dress
Yet beauty in increasing:
Scents that arise from jars of Cassia and of night jaws still
Fresh in the dawning.
Glades whose brains are high
Over the snow-topped mountains
Vales where rapid streamlets
Glancing.
And in the early morn small figures
Shadowy and grey all dancing.
Sing! Sing! Loosen your tongue
Poet Seer the wine is here
Sip and be not parched: 'tis morning.

III

In the cold blizzards of gales With snow particles combined Prometheus the hot asleep Outside the cold raw and savage
Sings
Inside the warmth, the passion,
The desires,
The tearing to and fro,
Mixing of human and divine Sacred ire.

Strawberry mornings, deep in to
The glades where mists are Warring; raspberry chants of Birds just dawn-awaken;
Nymphs with scant of dress
Yet beauty in increasing:
Scents that arise from jars of Cassia and of night jaws still
Fresh in the dawning.
Glades whose brains are high
Over the snow-topped mountains
Vales where rapid streamlets
Glancing.
And in the early morn small figures
Shadowy and grey all dancing.
Sing! Sing! Loosen your tongue
Poet Seer the wine is here
Sip and be not parched: ‘tis morning.

IV

Ahi!
Ahi! Our emotions are the emotions
Of the divine too
And the divine to human emotions Transform as easily:
The twilight beauty of the stunned seas
And gargling waters of red dusk
As easy string Into the emotions of Minerva as She white-toga reclining over The bastions sings Overlooking the scented seas and Magic winds.

Strawberry mornings, deep in to
The glades where mists are Warring; raspberry chants of Birds just dawn-awaken;
Nymphs with scant of dress
Yet beauty in increasing:
Scents that arise from jars of Cassia and of night jaws still
Fresh in the dawning.
Glades whose brains are high
Over the snow-topped mountains
Vales where rapid streamlets
Glancing.
And in the early morn small figures
Shadowy and grey all dancing.
Sing! Sing! Loosen your tongue
Poet Seer the wine is here
Sip and be not parched: 'tis morning.

A man in chains and yet in dreams
He free Wanders through out the gardens
That Beauty set
For him
Wanders amazed with eyes as Innocent
As child's returning swift Unto the ancestral halls where First his brain begins.

Strawberry mornings, deep in to
The glades where mists are Warring; raspberry chants of Birds just dawn-awaken;
Nymphs with scant of dress
Yet beauty in increasing:
Scents that arise from jars of Cassia and of night jaws still

And in the early morn small figures
Shadowy and grey all dancing.
Sing! Sing! Loosen your tongue
Poet Seer the wine is here
Sip and be not parched: ‘tis morning.

VI

A man whose looks into the magic Dream
Imperial over the swards below
Look
A man whose brains in their Conscious knowledge
Of all around Feed and transform into Sub-conscious to the ground Where million angels in blue Habits
Donned
Sing in clusters of white choirs
All around.

Strawberry mornings, deep in to
The glades where mists are Warring; raspberry chants of Birds just dawn-awaken;
Nymphs with scant of dress
Yet beauty in increasing:
Scents that arise from jars of Cassia and of night jaws still Fresh in the dawning.

Beauty wrecks so Beauty works so I hear the scent
As sweetest music notes
In some Venetian street Benighted full:
Where sings a violin
I smell the sounds
The notes of turbulent passion Borne
Distilled into a sperm-jar in The clouds
That round about enclose Their arms
And turn and freeze.

Strawberry mornings, deep in to The glades where mists are Warring; raspberry chants of Birds just dawn-awaken;
Nymphs with scant of dress
Yet beauty in increasing:
Scents that arise from jars of Cassia and of night jaws still
Fresh in the dawning.

Sing! Sing! Loosen your tongue
Poet Seer the wine is here
Sip and be not parched: ‘tis morning.

VIII

Not few, yet not so many
The chosen messengers
That Beauty chooses for her Tasks:
That Beauty for her missions Sends:
Not as stars that so numerous Line
In the nocturnal lights of dark Their visage white

Strawberry mornings, deep in to
The glades where mists are Warring; raspberry chants of Birds just dawn-awaken;
Nymphs with scant of dress
Yet beauty in increasing:
Scents that arise from jars of

IX

Youth’s beauty in the ages of The old
As clouds of fire long Remained
Amidst the clouds of snow
And raging gales:
And chill
And frost
By slow degrees it turned to Tempest tossed.

Strawberry mornings, deep in to
The glades where mists are Warring; raspberry chants of Birds just dawn-awaken;
Nymphs with scant of dress
Yet beauty in increasing:
Scents that arise from jars of Cassia and of night jaws still

And in the early morn small figures
Shadowy and grey all dancing.
Sing! Sing! Loosen your tongue
Poet Seer the wine is here
Sip and be not parched: ‘tis morning.

X

So let
So let Prometheus sleep
See! The gods to lower Earth
From the supernal spheres
They carry him aback Dawn is fast already on her wings
And within hours few Returns to sing.

Strawberry mornings, deep in to
The glades where mists are Warring; raspberry chants of Birds just dawn-awaken;
Nymphs with scant of dress
Yet beauty in increasing:
Scents that arise from jars of Cassia and of night jaws still
Fresh in the dawning.
Glades whose brains are high

Glancing.
And in the early morn small figures
Shadowy and grey all dancing.
Sing! Sing! Loosen your tongue
Poet Seer the wine is here
Sip and be not parched: `tis morning.

XI

So
Woke Prometheus.
No chains but just the dream
That by his side smiled Erect stood
A statue of Beauty
The new Dawn.

Strawberry mornings, deep in to
The glades where mists are Warring; raspberry chants of Birds just dawn-awaken;
Nymphs with scant of dress
Yet beauty in increasing:
Scents that arise from jars of Cassia and of night jaws still

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let Me Chant

O! let me chant
And let me sing
Let verses flow!
I have not drunken Wines
At Bacchus' feasts
But
I have drunken Love
Her warmth and glow
Of heart
That in the Spring Increase.
And
In all this Sweet loved one
You
Be that
That controls all
And therefore
O! let me chant
And let me sing
Let verses flow!
I have not drunken Wines
At Bacchus' feasts
But
I have drunken Love
Her warmth and glow

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let Me Meet The Shade

O
Let me meet the shade of Homer walking in the cemetery
The ghost of Tasso under the Yew trees
And Shakespeare by the corner Where aggregate the martyr ghosts
And skeletons:
Yet
At this to arrive Unto a mist of energy I will fade

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let Me Sleep

‘Let me sleep
Let me sleep
For dreams be as of me.
For the will yearns
For images rather Than thoughts
For thoughts most
Are cares; most be Woes’

‘Let the life
All around be a dream Reduce its physicality Reduce to the soft
Of the dream
Transform the mass
To the current and soft To the sleep
To the yearning,
The dream.’

‘Let me sleep
Let me sleep
For dreams be as of me.
For the will yearns
For images rather Than thoughts
For thoughts most
Are cares; most be Woes’

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let Me Sleep Again

Let me sleep again though I have woken
Just

But the spirit is so lost and beaten

That I will sleep again and try to lose My drear tiredness and conscious sadness.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let Me Speak

Let me speak
And speak as the winds speak When Zephyr his bag unwinds full
And more:
And let my words he heard
By ears of the people through the world:
Humans hear!
You, each one has right
To make laws individually That's part of your personality:
Though
For a balance to be struck between The All and One
Eleven conditions have to be satisfied Before that your proposed law be law

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let Me Thrive On A Handful Of Mists

Let me thrive on a handful of mists
For these be magic mists Enough food air and all
For a Poet Seer.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let My Soul Be Awhile

Let my Soul be awhile
Even for one night
On the Aegean.

There
It will hear the rolling Sea-wave and the hoary
Coves
The Ocean surf rolling
As did Grecian noble souls of Long ago
Who long ago
Heard Beauty in sad language
Tell
This Earth's and life Sad tale.

And
In that solemn quiet of New nobility
My soul will fill itself
With such nobility
By
The water incoming caves
And echoing coves
Nobility
That will be richer by far Than a whole empery!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let Not Dogmatic Be.

Few lines!
Few lines!

But this Let
Not Dogmatic
Be.

Even
The Nights
Be
The Same Night
After Night.

Outside
I
Heard
A sound
And Then
The Same Old silence.

Crafty
Sweet Sounds
No Longer Play
Last Played
And
It
Was Dusk
Red
Dusk
Not more
Then
Not more.

I heard the waters
Gurgle
The oars ply
The magic vessel Shoot Ferret dark waves
And fade

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let Style Flow

Let style flow
From the deepest roots
Of rawness of emotions.

The hand of a Poet Seer
Will
Then do what heart dictates Effortless.

Serene flow lines of gloom
Above
Hangs guillotine of doom

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let The Chill Form A Veil

Let the chill form a veil
To-night
Let the frost beat its wings
Into a mist to-night Let the dark form a circle Where ghosts and shrouds Float
To-night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let The Dawn

Let the dawn be the one that ends of the cold night the indifference and to the Earth
bring the joys of a new day's living!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let The Rains Come Even In Summer

let the rains come even in summer
but in the winter rains be more beautiful
more romantic more nocturnal
when by vesper-dusk the airs be frosted and the chill
makes red noses run:
and
in the distant hills roar the wise thunder and the flashes of lightning what beauty be they manifest.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let The Words Speak

Let the words speak
When the heart speaks
As the heart speaks
Then
Your verse will speak Even when the immense heavens not.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let Us From Now

Let us from now
more to emotions our verse and song not that in the past our verse and song ignored emotions

but let there be a universe of emotions lying for us waiting for its depiction

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let Us Go On

Let us go on.
The road is long and we,
Have been long trudging, trudging.
In the trenches we knew war and warfare
We saw blood mix with dust and clay.

But let us go on.
The trenches have been dug, and long We can trudge more – hoping, Hoping.

If we trudge longer we will better do.
The world needs our industry, not our laziness.
So let us trudge though Falтер we here and there in to The bogs and quagmires.

We will not fear more now that we lose what?
Though existence be everywhere all time:
.
For at this juncture what is there to lose?
Our cowardice perhaps?
We have sung and chanted, verse has been.
We have seen blood shed and we have seen guns
We have heard the rattling of machine guns
The bombs whistling through the air
And missiles whizzing in the leaden skies.
So what lose we?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let Us Ride Together

Let us ride together
Without a word
We ride the night Magic carpet
Fluttering soundless
On seas and pecans
Towns and dreaming Country:
Then Let us spot the Dawn
Afar
When it be still Away
And then Fly high
High Higher
Into the summit skies
The heavens
Mute and without word Smiling as yet
Together,
Mother.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let Us Speak Happy Things Of Those Who Passed.

Let us speak happy things of those who passed.

They left us on the upper earth.

Now we have to revere them as we too Prepare to meet them.

They be life energies now and we will be too

And we will meet perhaps in Elysium as Shades.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let We Be In A Fairy-Tale

a fairy-tale that
we make for ourselves:
what better fairy tale?
what sweeter fairy tale?
fairy tale, fairy tale let the unhappy and the drear be in a mirror on one side and on the other side place
the fairy tale your fairy tale and that be verse and song and that be life in a fairy tale

Emmanuel George Cefai
Let We Walk Through The City

Let we walk through the city
The streets
Still arte wet from Yesterday’s thunder-storm
And Dawn is repairing
The wounds of Earth.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lethargy

Lethargy, tiredness, but fear no,
This night to Dracula’s den we go!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lethe Take Me

To Lethe take me
There by its banks
To forget so much
I need

To see a boat Ferrying from Side to side Pendulum of horror!

And mists that glide
And as they glide
The more dense
And incandescent!
Ah! in this site leave
Me
Pass ever my subconscious Thought and dreams
And breathing!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Letter Of The Heavens

The letter of the heavens
Sealed I.

I let it from my hands
To the high heavens.

So my messages to the High heavens and a sigh.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Level Upon Level

level upon level of
trees winding gorges between Earth and Heaven wondrous sight that unfurled in the Dawn I passed a restless night.

strategy
wall upon strategy
wall
the air I heard is sweet
tonight.

for I I am forged to hear in the caves of my Soul
all these whisperings
these accomplices in my ear tell
then my heart writes on its own Tables speaks with brain
and wane the city lights the waters of blue dams
all
all between earth and heaven
mazed Ladder to the edge
of
the heavens immense
and from the heavens immense ladder to the earth glowing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lever Of The Night

Lever of the night
Comet tracing
White Twilight mixed With colors
Into white
That floats
Jet-like Across the heavens’ night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Leviathan Of Sound

leviathan of sound
stretched long and in afternoon
lazing:
the beating of the veins the squatting of the
waters
that overflew the river yesterday dark in dark anthem of anthem
song whispered in the night amidst the trees
a figure his Soul whispering
today
the Dawn brought him away and there remains the watching of a day
new light in the horizon clear waters from the rain
gathered slime fresh with tiny animals:
so go the verses

Emmanuel George Cefai
Life Bends

Life bends, but we, we two You and I on the roof-turret feel the red dusk winds.
Zephyr winked at the red dusk; let off the winds.
the stars became aggressive from the very moment that they were lighted by Night in his regal car
to-night:
a little far away
under the look of those who from their households
want to look, a cemetery small lies and the tombs and graves and monuments and phosphor lights and glow-worms and shades that pass here and there restless as in life
a restlessness transmitted from the generation to the next and so on
and so on:
the trembling continues and the angst

Emmanuel George Cefai
Life Has Been Cruel

what lose I now that life has been so cruel?

The cruelty of life?

The pains of ageing?

The sufferings of the Solitary Soul?

What lose, my Monsignor?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Life Is A Flame And I

Life is a flame and I
Lit another flame by dreaming (Or was it more than dreaming?)
When I lit the flame of Immortality Placed it before the Human And the Human delighted at it Just as a Baby he chuckled.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Life Is A Vessel With Every Breath

And it be for us whether each breath breeds a New Idea or more.

See, the Great though passed breathed Ideas,
New Ideas - literally

See the Great they lie in state but not in state necessarily

And with their life and breath New Ideas.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Life Was In My Hands

Life was in my hands
But
Thus compressed
I let it off.

Life was crunched
The nights more still And curious grew

Dusk
Became shorter.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Light

‘Light! Light!
Shouted the multitude
Look at the mountain Expected the thunder.

‘Light! Light! ’

Tottering a ball of fire Rapid down a Mountain gorge
Yet no thunder.

Stopped
Their prayers the multitude
And Began
To lament the multitude

But
The Light in the Heavens
That be Light of all Lights
It spoke suddenly:
Disperse multitude
For the heavens be not pleased
And
The heavens will to be rain fire
Soon
Not thunder
And dispersed all lamenting
The multitude

Emmanuel George Cefai
Light Blinding In The Distance

Light blinding in the distance
the background
queues of drones humming all over the distance covering
how much, how much we declined in the nights dark wet winter nights of the past fifteen years too many years were lost already:
another fifteen years completed the falling of the guillotine on my head breathing.

Emmanuel George Cefai Light Into Fire

light
into fire
lights!
lights!
along
the waves floats wild desire current
of
the
All
I
saw it
in
the haze
of Dawn
and early morning driving driving
and leaping towards
the end
of fire
I
saw
it
I saw it.
I
felt
it

Emmanuel George Cefai
Light Of The Night

Light of the night
Window of delight
Who tempests quells
Who violent waves calms
Light of the night
Window of delight

Emmanuel George Cefai
Light Up The Clouds

light up the clouds

an extinct dinosaur
trembles
rises and quick over the plain barren disappears

the night grumbles

the heavens echo

there's chorus gruesome in the earth
and heavens!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Light!
Light!
I on my bed
The tremors of an earthquake
Feel
The Angel
cried
cried

Emmanuel George Cefai Lighthouse

night light, the lighthouse
turns

the frost erodes house walls
outside

outside a bat flies confused and thrilled

above the moon, the clouds, and background heavens

such scenes as these
my Monsignor are for the Soul, the Inner Soul!

Emmanuel George Cefai

Lighthouse That Turns - Make Joy

Lighthouse that turns - make joy
to the heart of a Poet Seer warm the heart of an ageing Poet Seer when a Poet Seer should not age
no, not age,
round him swarm of their accord
the Principles that from the genesis at Immortality arrived.

Lighthouse that turns light that dimly burns fairy that Grace-like turns and turns and turns in to the looking glass of Earth, the glaciers, out there below, the immense strand of ice, Antarctica

Lighthouse that turns - make joy
to the heart of a Poet Seer
warm the heart of an ageing Poet Seer when a Poet Seer should not age
no, not age,
round him swarm of their accord
the Principles that from the genesis
at Immortality arrived.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lightly, Lightly

Lightly, lightly
I feel them bear me
And in my face
I feel the breezes blow

From the dark edge
Of the vast ocean-night
A small light shines
And glows.

And in the hidden deep
There is the after-glow
Of the warm mid-day glory of the sun.

The time is come, the time is come, my friend.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Like A Silver Snake It Glided

Like a silver snake it glided
Yes
That was my verse yesterday
And so will I today.

Through magic herbs and green
It glided
Silver yet to rainbow colors Chameleon-like changing sheen

Like a silver snake it glided
Yes
That was my verse yesterday
And so will I today.

In the deserted hall went I
And with me my harp carried Sate I

There of a sudden strung
By chance and probability My lyre

And then my voice that had not spoken
Long
Then my voice sung
And then my song that had not sung
Long
Then my song sung.

Ring
Rains that fall to-night
The stars have hid themselves Mischievous elves! Behind the Laden clouds. And over the hill Fires intermittent lightning Loud.
String
The chords Poet-Seer of the sad heart And of the pining eyes: Your life is broken yet not The chords of your harp Your lyre: Sadness, desperation, all ill Revolves around you Presses As mill-stones press Yet still you breathe in misery. Sing
Then Poet-Seer the heavens Are not against you. Loud heard I the Voice; it was A noble Voice and ancient And your breast heaved in Its miseries unfortunate. And From behind the hill Where lightning roared Hours, just hours The Dawn comes jubilant And it be day, new day.

In the nitrous clouds I smelt the scent of grass That was not lead The color was of green And sweet the scent was The scent of grass: For Dawn had just been born And a new day, At last.
Throughout the way
I labored on the plain Harsh pointed rocks
And often thorns and Prickly plants yet on
And on and on
I trudged:
Fear by my side was
And Desperation to my other side In to my ear whispered small
So
On and on and on Trudged
And trudged I.

I wrote on the old rocks
That had been long of Old geology when The earth with dinosaurs Teemed:
Humans were not:
As yet
As yet

In to the asylum of the brain
I built a niche as fast
As beautiful as secure As a cell, as a room small And demure:
And in that universe I placed
The mass universe.
The whole mass universe.

Lake
That as a mirror in the lights That as a twilight reflect Change
From minute to minute Second to second
At will
In the mild winter chill Tell me
Tell me
What be in you
What tales you hold
And then
When you come whispering
Into my eager hearing
Then
Let your words fall as hard rocks That their old beauty will Noble emerge.

Ancient pilgrims of the nobility
That fades,
Fades slowly
In to the glooms of the night
After Each sweet red dusk
And blinding twilight Calm
Serene
Where sirens on the rock do chant
And sing the lay of love lost Of vessels on green tempests tossed Tale after tale in words silvery:
Whilst the glad moon arrives
And from the benighted sky Bewitched it smile.
Ancient pilgrims of the nobility
That fades,
Fades slowly
In to the glooms of the night

Verse and song
That starts with flow
As the wide Amazon flows
In its wide mouth:
Yet
Suddenly it narrows
Verse and song
Still sweet
The harp, the lyre sings
And Fast and wild
And made
The fingers of Poet Seer
On the yielding lyre sing:
Verse and song
That starts with flow
As the wide Amazon flows
In its wide mouth:

Wave after wave
The seas ride through the glooms
Of yet another night:
And
In that mid-sea screams
And yells of fear
And desperation arrive:
For there
No human hears No human be.

Let beauty form a web Let beauty form a sky Let beauty as dusk pine Let beauty brim as wine Let beauty foam as ale Let beauty turn all pale Let beauty fall all still And mute at touch of chill Let beauty speak a Voice In the high heavens rise
Be a Poet Seer’s great prize:
Let beauty drink the air
From gardens and fields fair Let beauty scent as green
In the dusk red pining sheen Let beauty decrease age Yet leave us wise and sage:
Let beauty flow with seed
Of life and more life breed Let beauty show her wonder And surprise all as thunder Let beauty ride the sea
The Oceans wide and free Let beauty roll on shores
As waves and boats on oars Let beauty poor be
And shine more in her misery:
Let beauty open her heart
And you will see her art Let beauty talk and think In fear you will not sink Nor ruled by desperation
But these transform to inspiration Let beauty be seasons, earth, skies
And all that with herself vies And see that this reaching Your verse you end with singing.

Hard the words
As a hammer:
The forge of verse
Is burning
Yet
Yet Hard the words
Fall
As a hammer falls.

If words fall hard in verse then beauty reigns And then let words come out hard
From the ever-heating forge of the heart.

This mode verse will not need much Art Nor need to study rules or follow them
For all comes from the heart.

And for her tiara beauty will choose Her hard, hard words; her senses lose In the sweet honeyed words that fall as hard.

There
There Evolution goes:
there
The modern style
That was most recent lies Lies panting in its throes:
And Evolution grows
And verse and song
Do grow:
There
There Evolution goes.

Out, out in to the starry skies
And in to the studded woods Woods studded with night dews
That shine
Each by each as a new star.

See, see long is the night
And far, too far,
Of the new Dawn the sight
And of her handmaidens
The smiling light.

Together huddled we
In hiding from fear and misery
In to an eastern cave
Unknown
And mute and still and hid:
We, all of us, all humanity.
And in the old and ancient nights
Shrouds and ghosts and shadows
Will walk the tree studded woods
So will they to-night
In the vast studded star light.

And in the coming months and years With magic wand willed I That flowers with the stars Girdle the noble and night sky:
And Dawn with twilight color rise Albeit her youth as ancient as be wise.

The night dews will carry a brine
A small percentage Potent yet, potent to full,
That in its potency magic be
And to mists will transform That go Around the studded woods that Paler grow
In to the light of stars that slow Smile on our troubled earth till Each now morrow.

Let this be, let this be,
With Voice of Poet Seer
I
Command, my lyre string To adorn and sing
My command with verse sweet And song and music full to meet.

Count of the wood, old oak That by a coppice of firs Surrounded be Show, show this starry night
The art and wonder of beauty
But more
More than all her open heart.

Verse rise as mist and round
The dreamy eyes of the wise Owl abound:
Turn round and round
The dreamy owl and wise Without disturbing sound.

And then the scenes of the play
As with the hours of the night
They too one by one, one After one advance; in sight Looms sad yet sweet
The end of scenes.

Out, out in to the starry skies
And in to the studded woods
Woods studded with night dews
That shine
Each by each as a new star.

Echoes that bound and Rebound
Echoes of magic sound Echoes this night
Echoes of starry light,
Night dews
And mists that rise:
Echoes that old Earth heal Echoes that beauty steal
From the sweet moon
That smiles;
Echoes that the hours count
One after one till on the hill
The early wonder of the Dawn will mount.
In February
Dark, hidden, dagger, cloak, February be dark, I fear,
I fear
Yet
Yet another month and more Will soon appear.

How
How people move in the streets
To-day
And how they dress in Sunday:
In working days more modest These people dress Yet are beautiful no less.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Like A Squid

Like a squid
The defeated loser
No sooner the Night passed Then strength
Restored he started Back to rise
But more Than strength restored
It was
The clarity of mind restored.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Like football in verse keep the ball Low on the ground, low, low, low.

Then in more than a language will
The meaning of the verse light.

And then the heavens will light –
And after reign of Night at Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Like Manna  In The Desert

Like manna
in the desert as in the days of Moses so the heavens
rain
the night dews
to refresh
the sick Earth:
but ah!
not enough!
the heavens must
must send down to Earth their wisdom and
words
the heart of the child
the brain of the wise

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lily

Lily of the woods
Burnt before dusk
When the monk
Said his vespers.

The night was round bellied
And Wore a cassock of blue Vesper lined with dusk of
Red.

It was winter and
It was about seven.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Line And Verses

Of lines and verses you become more master with more and more work and sacrifice.

No magic formulae
I
As Poet Seer have used.

But many times I suffered But many times I cried
But many times experienced But many times in pain But many times felt life for me futile and vain.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lines Must Be Free

Lines must be free
The lark in the dawn's morning Shows

Observe and obey
Be free

And more in verse and song.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lip To Lip We Meet Not Each Day!

Lip to lip
We meet not each day!

So when we meet
Our eager love Makes us wish
Desire
That no time Goes away

And that Earth Be what be
So long As lie we
lip to lip.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lips Touch

your eyes when your lips touched with the first kiss how more than the seconds before gleam!

Your eyes how through the immense heavens burn and light in our sweet kisses in the depth of night!

ah! ah! ah! so many sounds that young children make all of one sweet and single kiss born burning!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lips Yearning Desperate

sweet lips yearning desperate for my rim of my lips to play together tangos of love and mellow dances lip on lip the currents pass through the sweet rims
of you
of me
and together mix into one wave of passion
great:
overpowering
the servant senses in a dream of sweet lips and kissing
then embracing into each other's arms into each other falling
falling
falling
falling

Emmanuel George Cefai
Listeing Of Dawn

Listeing
Of Dawn
The Name
Was
On My Lips
When
On
The Sea Shore
Beauty Fainted
Me

Emmanuel George Cefai
Listless

With hair unkempt
The Poet Seer Wandered Wandered through the streets
Though it was night
Though chill sweet fell Though in his heart Verses sprouted forth Songs flowered
And
Thoughts of the cellars Of the brain
Listless
And unkempt Poet Seer pilgrim the wanderer.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Little Lost And Little Gained

Little lost and Little gained
The clock ceased
And now remain
The last moments
Open the grave
Throw the broken chains away
That tied him to Earth They’re gone
And there now no conscious joy Pride or glory
But a hole
That deep withers in the ground Resting place, home, altar Found.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lizard Eyes

How large
How large rolled
The lizard eyes Thus freed from the Excruciating rays of sun
Now
Sunset too
Had gone
And the red dusk
Climbed fast his reign With easy feet and
The Night on his car Already lighted had First eyes of stars!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lone Star In The Night

In the night the lone star That this night will
By casting of the lots Between the stars
Will bear the flag of the night Moon and stars:
It was chosen right before This Dawn
And now Prepares her toiletries and image
For night

Emmanuel George Cefai Lonely
lonely
lone focus of the night

toxic anorexic the sea waves have become and there is sadness everywhere a silence as of guilt extreme a day that passed just another day

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lonely Bell

Bell that lonely rings and Simultaneous walks
Into the countryside
Over the arid plain Towards the cliff edge
Where the sea meets land
And Then beyond
Beyond
Wafted on the wind
Beyond the bell of vespers!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lonely Goat

a lonely goat over the plain wandering

the night
dark

thunder

a lightning strikes an odd famhouse

sounds of broken stones and panes

lonely figure white passes swift over the plain.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Long Ago

Long ago it was.
I remember the day
The winds howling
And the rains falling.

And you, and you
My mother
You still came to help Despite your tottering Despite
Your frailness.

I remember, I remember How in a the old
And humble coat
You came to help me Braving the storms
With the love of a mother.

I will not ever recompense
With the love of a son.

Back home we Closed outside
The waters winds and Storms
The sun then shone.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Long Be The Snow And Tall And Raw

Long be the snow and tall and raw and stretching over glades and mountain juts and scenting everywhere the scent of liberty:

I saw laws fall before the mountains' snows

And I saw glorious the Individual Sovereign Will.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Long Be The Snows And Broad And Tall

Long be the snows and broad and tall and in their numbness I beseeched the Muse to warm me that my verse and song be not unnerved

Emmanuel George Cefai
Long Dull Nights Of Cold

Long dull nights of cold Frost to the bone
Thunder of light
Wide lightning
Severe storms
That in the long, long
Waters
Shine over port and Spiral mists
That up to the heavens
Go
Yes
Yes
Yes
In those long dull nights of cold Frost to the bone
Thunder of light
Wide lightning
Severe storms

Emmanuel George Cefai
Long Have I Not Been To Hastings Gardens

Long
have I not been to Hastings Gardens
there be seen
in the night
the fauns and nymphs trembling firs and trembling owls nervous oaks branches rustling jostled here jostled there
and
the amorous nightingales
sing, sing, sing,
not noticing!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Long Necked Swan

Long necked swan
That silent in the small lake Thrives
And swims white
In to the marmoreal liquid wealth Let the night come
That you may sing
As nightingales

Emmanuel George Cefai
Long Night

In
The Long
Night
A Small Mercenary
Light
Dim
Yet Beautiful
Fading
To
The Dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai
Long Night Parapets Glow

in
the long
night
the parapets
that glow
they have been touched by the Spirit of the Night received
his glossy breathing
that
was
as blood
in their arteries throbbed
throbbed pulsating topazes
and nights
eyes gleaming
over Tigris
and Eurphrates
they flow
they flow
and Night rides on a secret raft:
dusk
from behind
a large palm-tree donned
a secret hood
to watch
and look smiling
rest
in his eyes feasting looking looking intent on the river bosom the silver of the moon carrying
and from a turret not afar
rose a sweet sound
a Voice
that sang
and sang outdid the nearest nightingale
and sang until the Dawn
then ceased, delighting.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Long Nights Long Centuries

long, long the nights!
long, long the centuries!
long whirl the Times of Earth the rapid motions:
long, long the centuries
round and round they fade slowly around they shun the grave and tomb
For them!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Long Streets, Yet Strait Of The Medieval Town

long streets, yet strait of the medieval town the dawn has climbed the village hill ten minutes ago and more the cock has crowed before and with him all the hens are risen:

the running of dogs unwholesome urine and smells and liquids along the village streets the opening of the doors the creaking of open casements the first shouts of the green-vendors the passing bell of the sexton the church-bells ringing for first mass it’s five in the morning quite!

They say—they say they found a child In the window of the small nunnery Who the mother? Who the father?
The village gossipers are fresh this morn
And the new-born gives its first cries to-day As sisters admire it in the small nunnery.
Now it’s more than five, it’s near to six this morn!

Long streets, yet strait of the medieval town
I want to capture your heart That heart I want so much And once captured it
I will unlock it in my treasure-chest
And thus confined will not go:

But every morn
Long streets, yet strait of the medieval town
I will dream of you.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Long The Night

Long the night
Long
Long

Yawning sights
Trembling stars Dimming
Dimming

Emmanuel George Cefai
Long Winter Nights

In the long winter nights
How the clouds loud obscure The trembling star lights And their mantles white?

Long, long the centuries pass And winter nights will still Be long and hold their sway Over the Earth and humans.

For there be Beauty in the Winter nights; for there Be Beauty in the winter storms
For there be Beauty in the Reign of sleep; for there Be Beauty in the reign of dreams.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Long Years

the years have been of lead, and long

and now the noose be tightening, and exponentially

there be a breaking point and now be reached

there be sudden lines that's cut
and now

the time already has come for the cut, and cut and passed.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Long Years Of Drear

Long years of drear
Behind a desk of dusk
But worst
The toll of life!

I saw hedgehogs
Crossing
Streets without cars Animal after animal Walked in the streets With humans
Not afraid
But one with one No hoots! No cars!

Along Rivers did not flow
But in the night
The gardens
Serenade
Then the night mysteries Into one ball
Gather in deepening
Night
Hours next to Dawn!

Emmanuel George Cefai
In the long, long line
There were trudging
All trudging
Trudging
High ghosts and Shrouds
Hedgehogs still As guilt Squirrels and Bushy tails Waters that turned Gyrations
Danced
Lizards and insects
That erect
On their feet walked:
All
Trudging
Trudging
Trudging
Behind the Torch of Light
That a tall skeleton bore Before them in the Night:
So many Marches will the nights
As these See in the cemeteries
So many
So many
And they will end at Dawns Of Dawns
So many
So many
And
The Sub-Conscious with The Conscious edge Edges of cliff
Earth with heaven
Long, Long The Nights Will Thrive

Long, long the nights will thrive
And shine
For centuries more
So I desire them
So let it be:
And in the cemeteries of sites
Where
We have not yet reached or Else renounced to Immortality
The Inner Souls as Psyche’ will Still linger in the lights Of centuries yet of nights.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Look

Look
look at the fat grey rats that shade in black
look how they plod round the graves round the tombs and monuments that we humans make
look those fat grey rats be the problem of us, humanity those rats the problems of us, we make or that get on us without of Will at work:
look
look at the fat grey rats that shade
in black
look
how they plod round the graves
round the tombs and monuments that we humans make
look

Emmanuel George Cefai
Look At My Verse

Look at my verse, my Monsignor!

Now it winds round a circle
Round
Now straight as arrow
Flies
Now in the limelight
Thrives
But mostly in sweet humility
Hides
In fields and country Where few feet come.

Look, read, my Monsignor!
If you will to be, there be Propensity to be!
And
You will be Poet Seer
Too, my Monsignor!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Look At The Seas

look
look at the seas
how they be green my love
look at the waves that go round
there look at the fort the other side
the height of rising waves the anger of the sea the trammels of the earth
our earth

the low-lying verses
are
in the last minutes saved by a brilliant goal redeemed;
see! look! hear!

the trees they whisper I a Poet Seer their words and language understood
hear
them understood
them
speak
of night to cover earth a day to come I heard them whispering but heard not the date
yet
that would not be the day of wrath
that day, my Monsignor?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Look At The Verse And Song

Look at the verse and song and though all be one poesy
yet each verse and song will also as one poem stand

Emmanuel George Cefai
Look One By One

Look one by one the Assertions he made Even
if one Assertion that puts him in the Book of Civilization

Emmanuel George Cefai
Look! Look At The Ideas

Look! look at the Ideas
look at the body
cry not weep not but joy with the Ideas that remain with us on the upper earth the body transforms transforms into the nether earth where it will rest given that and till Immortality be suspended.
look! look at the Ideas
look not at the body
cry not weep not but joy

Emmanuel George Cefai
Looking at the Moon

Looking at the Moon
I noticed a giant tear.

Slow imperceptible and silent formed the giant tear.

Ah! children of the Night there holy music and sacred organs play in palsied monasteries.

I saw a hedgehog on its feet
arise
tall as it would look at the moon with tears in his little eyes.

I saw a desperate ghost of bones
and bones hidden in a shroud together hold their fists up at the moon.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lord Of Grief

I am
The Lord of Grief.

Grief
Makes noble.

Grief
Makes strong.

Grief
Built me.

I made Little steps
It was towards the end.
It was not enough.
Not just enough.

I will eat
Fire
If I catch
That inveterate desire That gives me what I want.

I want.
I want.

My hunger insatiable
And irresistible.

Will the heavens
Light the miraculous fire?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lose Not A Sheep

My hint be dropped.
Look!
Lose not a sheep
much less the wise Lemore.
All humans on this earth are for the taking.
All humans on this earth Are for the taking All humans every one of us has something to give that is unique to him:
that is his
that makes him genius or on road to genius Let all humanity rise all continents and races
All states, colors and faces As one we will together be wisdom ever-increasing continuous in Evolution.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lost
lost in the drunkenness of the temporal power
lost in the sad waters of pining
lost in the Oceans where discoveries are to be made wait to be made in waters!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lost In The Times

lost in the centuries
more or less oblivion makes its triumph over us humans
all relative

Lost star Lost from the other stars
From the flock
Lost
Yet rebel too
So I
As you lost rebel star Am rebel and lost too

Love Children Not Glory

Love Children
Not Glory
Not Wealth
Not
Following the banner
Of these and their Kin
No! I made that.
And see How I suffer
Now.
See
I Choke
And My Verse
Be Dim.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Love Made Its Nest

Since that in breast
Love made its nest
Only what be fine Or nearest
I sing

And
The heavens
Hear and ring!

And we
And we two
In love's ecstasy
We pine
And
We fade
And grow stronger
And strong
The more deep
That the night
Goes along.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Love Malice Hate And Song

Love
Malice
Hate and song
Hater and knife Lover and kiss
So many colors
In this world of ours!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Love Of Country

For love of country: here,
This pulse throbs.

The heart-blood reddens.

The bosom heavens.

Dark thoughts fire across
The brain soils.

Motherland, mother of Mothers, fathers, all.

Blood for country shed.

Nobility noble most when Bled

Emmanuel George Cefai
Love That Asian Eyes

Love that Asian eyes
has

love that came from far and thus deserves
the more

love that mother Earth made for breeding love how beauty enthrones herself in children!

In children, our children!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Love, Love, Need Not You Pine Your Eyes

Love, love, need not you pine your eyes Need not, look in to the Orient shades
The strange shades of Gods moving Above in Olympus barely hidden By the clouds; love, love, need not You pine except with Bighi lights Red, red lights that come and go:
Love, love, you need not pine your eyes:
Just let the ancient bastions do that, quite.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Love, Well Give It Worth

And more than worth Give it value,
The same
As religious value,
That nobility, not less.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Love-Locks

Love-locks
love-locks of the Muse see you
I
so many times!
many times!
Yet to-night so beautiful.
Yet to-night so beautiful.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Love's Excrements

Love’s excrements
Are beauty still
And their place
In a shrine
A temple and A monument of Ivory by itself Was is
Will be

Emmanuel George Cefai
Luck

of luck little have had I: labored always labor now labor will in continuity:
but then which is luck?
what be labor?
Ah! the two are equivalent intertransformable:
we must use our brains too
and the more we use the brains
then
in as proportion direct labor, luck, propense to same

Emmanuel George Cefai
Luck Roaming

There was luck roaming.

When I see it, it must seize
It.

But is not luck
The extension mere of Chance and probability?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Lunar With The Nocturnal Goes

Lunar with the nocturnal goes
And both with
The revolution of the Earth round Sun
The turning round and round of such A proud peacock:
Imagine a peacock being turned On his axis round and round and round What humiliation!
Yet Earth calls it revolution!
And after all it gives us Night and Day
And in between the joys of dusk and dawn Afternoon and sunset and the rest.

Lure

the lure the cries of elfin mouths half full of raspberries eaten at night as dusk fell away
and one by one
in the heavens
the stars rose and smiled
and slow and cute
ascended weary moon.
monks of the southern core in a football ground
full of hooded monks
at night
blood that gurgling down the wall became frigid in the night temperatures:
snow cleansed with blood drops myrtle of sun happening and clankings
of the sovereign night:
too night
too night
the woods light the heavens were caught snoring by a roaming astronomer nocturnal waters frozen freeze again after de-freezing:
and the screams of dark herald the curtain's fall the arc of golden rays of lights blinding.

Lyre Strings

A song!
A dirge!
An elegy!
Through all Breathes lyric
Through all
The lyre strings
The fingers of a Noble Poet Seer Play wildly.
The verses come.
And then the Poet Seer
Sings
As in Greece of old
As troubadours and more As great Petrarca when he
Of his Laura thought And wrought
Singing
As Dante in sad exile Milton in sad blindness Shakespeare in the throes
Of suffering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Magic Of The Wand

The magic of the wand Ah! the wand of the Master Of the Harmonic Orchestra
He waves; they play
And music sweet be born.

So
So when a Poet-Seer
He will to sing
And sings.

So
When the Night towards The close
Of its short reign Prepares the hand-over for Advent of Dawn.

Magic Tongue

Ah! magic tongue
Of Poet Seer
You go along
As streams at night!

Fast,

Though dark
With gold are fringed
And Happy knights
There from dangle
This night
Tonight!

Magic Word!

Haunting
Haunting
Magic word!
Light of beauty Comes and goes Flashes
Lights Alights
And Goes
In the summer heat
It flies
And in winter storms
What throes!
Parched throats
That sing not songs
Of a sudden haunted
Be
Of a sudden all alight
Of a sudden
Verse and song
Wines and throngs Fairies nymphs and other wild White shining fairy child To the Earth it shall bring Happiness that everywhere it Ring.
Haunting
Haunting

Man, Poet-Seer How Long

Man, Poet-Seer how long
How long Will you bear
The brunt an angst
That Earth has placed on you?

How long
Will you suffer?

How long Will your eyes be dry with The flood of tears
That salty flowed day and Night?

How long
Will your dry sides Burn and suffer in the Afternoon suns of sad tragedies?

How long
Tell me, sad-eyed Poet-Seer Will you Suffering to Beauty turn Immolating yourself?

How long?
How long?

How long Before you cut the pains
And look on dawns,
New dawns?

Slow ascends
In shadows quick and Agile the low hills
And higher rocks
And on its face
The red blushing it paints
Three hours hence
And close To midnight slumbers
Far
The old Night:
Then
The dance begins Rotating round and
Round
The Masks of Ghosts
And Shrouds.

Master, I Need Not Explain Why We Are Met

Master, I need not explain why we are met Why fortune or plan brought us together This moon-clad night.

All of us shall our modes of drama and of plays Discuss to-night.

I for my part am always for experiment Move as the universe moves continually Reform, recast, re-build, re-phrase, re-plan And hundred other modes of advancement And full experiment and more:
Plays must not be still as stagnant waters But always fresh and running.

Though life and matter: energy
All underneath conserve Their ancient arcane patterns.

Move!
Silent in the silence
Of the night
To-night!

As ants run:
Over the ridges multiple Into the earth open gaping They’re falling
Falling
Falling.

Medieval Comes Today

In the city
There’s festival in the Night
The people flock in Crowds
And jesters, soldiers, Kings, actors all
In medieval costume Thrive

So does medieval Music
Loud
On
The Loudhailers loud
There’s a Voice
That shouts high
Aloud

In every street
A replication
And
A reproduction
For
The medieval has Come today
For the medieval has Come to town
And
The ghosts and shrouds
Of old
Hidden on roofs
Run and look below
In part overjoyed
To see so many crowds Enjoy so much of past:
In part
Wishing to join the revelry
The past walking
Now
This night
This very night of us
In old Valletta

Mellow Verse

If you had looked for mellow verse
And beauty carried on a golden plate Always, always,
Then look not here.

Read my lines you will find beauty.
Read my lines you will find horror Read my endings in the verses
You will stand up abrupt; start thinking
I will not to shock, but, yes,
To make all thinking.

And in my lines you will find the Hoar

And in my lines you will find the raw

And in my lines unpolished you will find The harsh

Menelek Menelek Epiphaphon

Menelek menelek epiphaphon
These the words that came to me
In to the language that I want To father in this day and to make grow: Piron piron didan et semenek
These the next words
I totter like a child half-listlessly Not knowing where they came from Not caring where they came from
Not knowing what the thought
The meaning and the world adjoined to them:
Save their sweet rhythm full agreeable.
Ah! it is better so better so! – this, this new world
That I bring home to me for me with me Will save me from the world Of kings and presidents, of millionaires, Of prisoners and soldiers and laborers Priests, dancers, white-collar workers And the rest, the rest – the list ever grows: Miman jikan tahildahan Meantime like a child I glee
In the next line of words in my new language – My new world distinct-different From the world of all of us, this sour world Of restless ease –
But meantime like a child I glee in my new words
Not caring where they came from
Not knowing what the thought
The meaning and the world adjoined to them:
Save their sweet rhythm full agreeable.

But now the shades
Of yester night's storm Darken the face of the lawn

Storms, so many in my life Have been.

My face so many times Aghast.

And all for just foundering,
Slow foundering.

Waning less slow than day,
But then
Not restored as another day.

Merry Is The Womb

Merry is the womb
It feels the Spring air though In winter on the fringe Was I born of sweet Spring:
Merry is the womb
For prophet be unto itself
And it joys modest in The Future’s self: see Motion view Motion that will come The Brain and Thought run more Than the Physical: though both Are same trains yet not parallel:
The one before the other runs Both at the same place arrive:
So one that arrives first Makes prophecy to the other of What is saw which will then Be what the last arriving train will see:
See, see, the Ghost in the Machine, Descartes’ criticisms, all dispelled
And the solution in a few verses compressed.

O Orient you must to-night work
Work what you should before arises
The coming of the Dawn day’s genesis:
Come close your eyes
Taste of the wine
Drink deep: for deep
The pitcher has cooled in the earth:
Come, close your eyes and Sleep.
Ninny nanny, sing a ditty!
Come Orient close your eyes and Taste of wine!
Put round your head the Bacchanalian ivy,
The green that sparkles so in the moon’s light!
O Orient!
Small bells, my Monsignor, that in the Time
Of the Waning Day,
That in the Time of the Pining Day,
From the small chapel top, there,
Lost in the country-side and plain Amidst the zigzag of country roads
Wandering hither and thither
By chance into each other reciprocal
The better to blind the traveler:
Confusion will you say?
Utter, small bells, those notes wild That I heard yesterday at vespers as The red dusk fell into the sea
Accompanying the previous Sun
That dipped:
Small bells, arise on magic nights
On spells of witches on brooms flying Violet lights, transforming continually Quantum physics, patches of the tiny Amidst those immense plains of desert hope:
And in that night of cold and winter storm
Far, far away hidden in a cave shivering Lay half-hidden the fair Dawn awaiting.

Tere weri serim kele Ghali vreris heri sepre
They rhyme – those words
Those words of a tongue of tongues
So many tongues – all with a right

Messenger Of Peace

The winds are silent
From
The gale came out
The messenger of peace

The mountains dream
In snow Manifesting that even In the frigid zones
There be the warmth
Of the sub-conscious.

The rocks have eyes
And hair disheveled
So the winds chiseled them.
The Inner Souls
There hove chanting.
And
There you can hear A Human Poet-Seer
Resting in silence.

Midst Of The Gale

In the midst of the gale
Turn I
Round and round
As
The weather vane
And
As
The weather cock
Turn I.

In the midst of the gale
I feel as The reed
That is moved here
There
As the wind commands Wants
Moved here Moved there
In the midst of the gale

In the midst of the gale
I feel pain
But Most not of Turning Around and around
But Solitude and Loneliness
A soul that burns
Low
A pulse that Ticks slow
A heart that Throbs not.

Not hungry.

Not hungry except for The hunger of curiosity

Emmanuel George Cefai
Mind What You Say, My Monsignor:

Mind what you say, my Monsignor:
If you pass in vicinity of the port Of old Valletta you will find A hefty flight of ancient steps You light on them but The ancient bastion wall Faces you in your travail:
A fairy magnet in the wall elevates You and your feet tarry not Nor hurry nor will complain of Tiredness:
The last time that I passed I heard With my own ears whispers Step to step,
A hubbub of whispers – rather than voices
But still
I could hear the talking steps:
I heard them random as I moved my way Up to the street and heard Some sing a ditty, some tell Of ancient knights and duels there And of the unfortunates who fell
There and blood-stained those city steps:
Many a tale I heard telegraphically For so they spoke and I was on my way
And two or three times only stopped to overhear.
So what I heard I heard most in passing.
Ah! These steps are as humans: so My Monsignor should you pass there Beware of what you say – the steps overhear!

They are to eaten!

There be no forbidden fruit
Here!
But only work and sacrifice
And Trudging
Trudging
On, on, on.

Mister Sociology

Mister Sociology – he Had one line, one Verse in head
The rest was blank.

He made a calculation
To himself
He made a calculation
With himself

Said: ‘What if I continue?
If not continue, then I Have surely no verse
And even the first verse
I will forget.’

So for continuing
He opted Long he looked At the heavens
Blank and yet
In earnest.

Then of a sudden
As a torrent unblocked Waters burst forth violent
So did the verse
So did the song
Mister Sociology.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Mistress After Mistress

the Poet-Seer at last found, indulged in and made his children.

From each the gift was children.

That was what he sought, he,
who they laughed at because he had said
'Poems are my children'

Now he wanted to reply and fire back.

He,
Reproduced just conventionally
though he would settle matters more intelligently by cloning:
look - he was a scientist too
the Poet Seer.
The revolutionary,
his hunger for children more than the parched man for water in the desert the Poet-Seer abandoned all for just conventionality for right of reply for firing back for children.

Emmanuel George Cefai
'Mistress' they call her
'mistress' they called her
but is not in the mass universe all relative?
And is not mistress in the mass universe?

The Poet Seer rose above the rest for so he made himself

All others could but they preferred to stay below the deck not front the waves.

The Poet Seer arose and felt the spume war on his face, the tempest whistle and the vessel turn
hideous:
yet on the deck he stood above the rest.

And of the rest all, all, were as able if they so willed to stand on deck front the ire of storm and tempest spume of face as he.

Yet he, the Poet Seer did this.

And 'mistress' is a term just relative.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Mists

Mists
Mists of the frozen depths
And densities
Of liquid masses:
See
See the Port awakes and it be Dawn
And the first sun rays light and smile And on the calm sea-bosom play Yet in this serenity
The mists of the frozen depths Over the stolen waters hover, hover In horrid drear.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Mists And A Requiem

In the high mists
A story unfolds
Then closes Secret and Morose:
A figure black In mourning
Hangs
On the notes sad Successive of a Requiem.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Mists Be Coming

Another night, another day
And mists be coming Mists! A figure so much
In these years of late
With the sub-conscious
In as direct proportion
Coming.

Deep
Deep
The sun light buried In the dark waters
Long, long ago

Now silver, some silver Lights the sea-bosom:
Rays
To music notes transformed
In to the halls of Neptune.

With cones on their heads
The beady Spirits rise
Out of the waters.

Ah! my Monsignor
Another night, another day
And mists be coming Mists! A figure so much
In these years of late
With the sub-conscious
In as direct proportion
Coming.
Ah! my Monsignor!

mists of ageing
yet there's comfort the brain turned from doing to dreaming from the fire of youth to sobering thought after thought
and to thought after thought of graves and of tombs and of cemeteries

Mix The Ancient And The Draft

Mix the ancient and the draft
With the new:
O to attain perfection – the gaze
Upwards
Of the Man, the Human,
Then
How much more so the Artist!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Moans Of The Wind

moans of the wind
groans of the wind laments of the wind.

few minutes ago of them was no sound but now they be around.

dream, houses, dream the winds around they press their tickling now abound.

ah! life be full,
full of woes and gusts of storm wind!

in the midst dance we polka and tango, and the Dance of the Naked Ghost

Modern City

Modern City modern spelling modern words modern humans with chains cut though bits are still hanging on the hands the towns are sexy the cities are modern forget meanwhile that modern becomes aged becomes ancient
and soon
so Madam Evolution decrees:
and
we,
we humans obey it be our destiny it be irresistible it be irreversible

Emmanuel George Cefai
Momentum

momentum of the day still beating though the dusk be past.

though on its pillow Earth lays and the stars shine

Emmanuel George Cefai
Monarch Of Thunder

monarch of thunder
with a wide large laugh in the heavens rending them asunder

the waters dance
when they pay heed that dusk has passed no eyes espy.

and then the mists viewing the dance of the waters imitate.

Monk

Monk
that in the night must hammer shroud and shriven
dried and parched by the watch clock placed a skeleton dressed to hammer Age's time.

ah! how many rains
and tempests
and ice-frost and sheets of gales knocked on you skeleton-monk!

lights have come and lights have gone
thunder
lightning flashes blinding ages ages stealthy
passing as the grains of sand seep through:
trembling fingers in
deep night
when the white stars still in sight
before fleeing at Dawn's light.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Monologue Of Night-Lamp

Clank,
clank,
this night how slow
it passes as the other
nights
yet
how
I yearn for every second
not
to pass pray Motion to stop to cease at last.

How many nights!
I looked
I saw
I heard whispers murder conspiracy
love sex figures hurrying down
and
disappearing.
How many nights!

Centuries brought that to
me.

And centuries still remain to me
despite my rust.
Clank,
clank,
this night how slow
it passes
as the other
nights
yet
how
I yearn for every second
not
to pass
pray Motion to stop.

The night lamp Sad from Time of dusk
And
Of
The fading day
Now speaks
To wit
Now speaks
This way:
'Bring me my fellow night-lamps
That Together
Reflecting
In the haze of waters
Nocturnal Gathering
Bring me
Bring me my fellow night lamps!
The day has been dreary
As days
Are wont to be
And now
That Night
Has Come
With Beauty
Out:
Now
Bring us together
That reflected together
We dance on the sea!
See! Hear!
I scent the sea nocturnal Mourning
Protesting
For us on its bosom Light! Light the other lamps
In
The Romantic
City!
The towers of Light
And Colored fireworks Split silent
Across
The Dark Skies
And
Dark Silhouettes:
A small crowd Claps
Joy the waters
Yet
The Display on Them
Is
Of
The night lamps
Moving
Moving
Humans
Just the best!
Fireworks colored
Above
Below
The reflected night-lamps
What color
In the city springs
What
Troubadour of beauty
Silent
Sings
In the romantic City!
Emmanuel George Cefai
Monologue Of Dusk

I am the colored cock that chants and dances
I be the rain that clouds will not conceive I be the soil down-trodden yet earth-moving
I be the raincoat of the sudden lightning
I be the doors that creak in haunted houses
I be the bridge that groans in the still night
I be the waters of the Port still dancing
I be the earth that rises as the dolphins
I be the waters that roll by the kerb in tempest
I be the Soul that wants to grow and feels restricted
I am the heart that wants to burst yet hardens I the dusk the Alpha and Omega and yet pointing towards the end of woeful day

Let me speak: I am in monologue; let me my heart open: its chambers are open let my brain open: its chambers too be open

When I
speak
I
have power
to roar
as thunder roars
yet
you
see
with me
I
You be supreme, sir, in your caution Kind! Kind! the table be laid the bastion swarthy:
the flames and torches burn below the drawbridge heighten
it be soon night see! a first star on the horizon of immense heavens.

The Night thought me with kind and flowered words to be explanatory:
for see the humans be keen and awaiting the Humans need the Dawn yet did you ever spot the beaches of the lines of the long coasts lined with humans waiting?
Humans be in the realms or Morpheus Or just beginning about their business?

I am the start of a civilization
That many called decadent
I say no:
I like absinthe and my Eyes sparkle at it
As gulp after gulp I sip it.

I lay siege to the bastions
But at night only
I am the Soul of palms
And trees and branches That in the gardens wave In the night odors and in The night winds

I be Modigliani
I love him
But then in me there be a bit of Titian
There be in me a bit of Rembrandt There be in me the dark of Caravaggio And Goya:
Ay! In me there is Cellini’s sculpture
I cover the Medusa in my redness
I have the cry of Michelangelo
When he stroke David saying
‘Speak’
I have the gentle Raphael’s brilliance
There be so much in me
There be so many
And there will be Civilization only will list all them.

There be in me mixture on Mixture
There be in me Beauty and Horror
There be in me mystery and Knowledge
I open doors
And then I close them.

I am the cobra of the wise contortion
I speak and am I silent No words fall no, not syllables even from my mouth
yet partially beauty blinds me.
I am the wisdom of Semiramis
I have curiosity as Paracelsus
I feast on my own daintiness as Narcissus
I accept challenge as Hercules
I am a robber to distribute as Robin Hood I am the stealer of the heaven's jewels then I carry them to humans as Prometheus

I am
I am
I am fount of beauty
I am a fount of wisdom
yet
in me you will suck damp sadness.

I am the Chorus of decline
I am the Mourner at
The end of Day
I mourn each Day
Now that's second habit:
To me
By memory I do it:
Yet in my heart I feel
The pangs for the day's going.

I am a Ray
I am Despair
And simultaneously
The Hope
I am a rock
As the One that Moses Touched with the iron rod And waters gushed forth.
I am the edge
I be the horizon
I be the waning
yet also beginning close of reign genesis of another next to next athletic racer who will pass the baton.

I am the colored cock that chants and dances
I be the rain that clouds will not conceive
I be the soil down-trodwen yet earth-moving
I be the raincoat of the sudden lightning
I be the doors that creak in haunted houses
I be the bridge that groans in the still night
I be the waters of the Port still dancing
I be the earth that rises as the dolphins
I be the waters that roll by the kerb in tempest
I be the Soul that wants to grow and feels restricted
I am the heart that wants to burst yet hardens
I the dusk the Alpha and Omega and yet pointing
towards the end of woeful day

I am Don Quixote who fight the windmills
I look with glorious eye on sea and isthmus I am Columbus and a bit of Cortez
I be Cook and some Magellan:
I be so many, so much, yet
One,
In whom shines the All,
The All in One,
The One in All on all days.

I am the Dusk mighty and humble.

I am the Dusk who spoke and who now ceases.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Monsieur

The same if you speak or sing
In fragment or in whole I will applaud For in the work I look to the word And the word speaks has might More than the sword.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Monsignor

From all the verses
A Head Verse stood out
So often
So often
That Though the other verses Were dim lights
Yet
The Head Verse so shone Towards the Perfect
That
In its summit light
All verses revived,
Took heart, and lighted
Then
My Monsignor if that a Poet Seer
Does
Then he has done enough
The job be done
Be done, my Monsignor.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Monsignor My Verse

Examine My Monsignor my verse
As it goes out, profuse.

You say my Monsignor 'But quality not quantity! '

I say
'Let there be both'
Said the heavens:
'Let there be both'

Emmanuel George Cefai
Monsignor On His Desk

My Monsignor on his desk Sate him
Now and then being Of summer heat
The flies assaulted him Bang! a newspaper came down Then silence again
And scribbling
The sound of the pen Scribbling over the papers
My Monsignor ate fast
And junk Ate in his stress and Hurry
Wanted so much from life!
And life nagged him Because life nags
And nags the most whom She sees wants the most:
With her
There's no meritocracy
No deserving:
My Monsignor dug
His teeth in a dessert fruit Dropped a few juice drops Over the inked manuscript No worry!
The drops were little and Fell in non strategic Positions.
My Monsignor continued
To write and write For he knew that he
Was
By far the greatest of the Oblivion Troupe
Fortune won him no honors
No not even one Yet still continued he
In his writing, writing Flow, flow, flow,
Generous and irresistibly

Emmanuel George Cefai
Monsignor Said

Said my Monsignor:
'Verses medicine be'

Said I:
'You must make them so'

My Monsignor
'I calculate therefore I will'

Emmanuel George Cefai
Monsignor You See?

You see, my Monsignor
The transferring bit by bit Part by part
Of civilization from the Realm of the Conscious:
The Sub-Conscious in as direct
Proportion grows.

You see, my Monsignor,
Our constancy with dusk
And night and stars
And moon, and dark,
Silhouettes and caves,
And coves and caverns
Echoing:
With satyrs, fauns,
Graces and nymphs,
Mists, magic and beauty
Separate and combined
And all the rest:
Read my lines
Chant my verse and Know the list –
You see, my Monsignor.

You do not speak, my Monsignor But hear always Attentive in the ear:
Think so profound
Dream in the sub-conscious Smile at the civilization
Alternative
My Monsignor.

Three legged horse
In the entrance
Exposed to the glances
Of all
Challenging the Thoughts of so many.

Intelligent horse
You have been attached And your liberty be At stake:
There
Not admiration Counts.

Simultaneously
You be quiet
And small
From the zooming lenses
From distances Intelligent three-legged horse At the entry of such A proud city.

More Of Life

'And then of a sudden we know not
More of life
Nor where he went or else'

Ah! let Oblivion be The breeder of life-times multiple For those that have a blank in life.

For in that blank
Though at first sight
One deems otherwise there be Advantages.

More Passion, More Aggressive

More passion, more aggressive Passion
Into the lines of verse and song
Waves
That oar restless and violent
As in wild tempests and gales That rage in winter nights Over ancient Valletta.

Emmanuel George Cefai
More Than A Year

More than a year
More than a year
Has passed:
And I had then fore hoped
The birth of my small child:
Vain hope! Time passed-she went And came not
With her
Our small child dissolved.

But now
But now
My black queen of the south
The waning embers re-kindled has I will not let Time pass
I must not let Time pass
To make my young small child.

The sands still fall through my empty hands.

down
the stairs went
the stairs went.
The airs around Flutter in the mud of Boreal winds high-flying Under the personal command Of Zephyr in the heavens:
Fell
On Earth in the dark room
The chess Queen on the chess Table suddenly:
Yet
There were some players
Round
The chess-table before:
The chess board
Ah! in that room
there was the cold
of who had crossed the threshold over Earth’s edges:
and the threshold was now
passed
was in the distance
For Those
Were skeletons with little teeth
And
Yet they rattled.
One was with spectacles
That glistened as he planned Strategic moves to win
But now
But now
The chess table was deserted

In the hours of Loss
A wind of hope It brings
It blows!

Motherland, Woman Of Beauty

Of us, of us all,
Mother, motherland
Woman of beauty
To you our hearts Belong.

A woman
A mother
This be our land
We have her blood
And
These in our veins run
The blood runs
The blood runs

Of us, of us all,
Mother, motherland
Woman of beauty
To you our hearts
Belong.

Law and right Over the might We had
But we evolved
Bold Auto-discipline
No need of courts
No need of laws
And Individuals rise
And conflict not:
For they evolved in Auto-discipline.

Of us, of us all,
Mother, motherland
Woman of beauty
To you our hearts
Belong.
From north of flakes
To south of sun
From east of space
To west to learn
We our mother
Love
And our blood give
For you.

Of us, of us all,
Mother, motherland
Woman of beauty
To you our hearts
Belong.

Generation after generation
We suffer
We grow
We fight for freedom
We fight for right
We fight for day
For you our mother
Woman so beautiful.

Of us, of us all,
Mother, motherland
Woman of beauty
To you our hearts
Belong.

Mount Your Courage

At the end
Mount your courage
What will I lose
But gain?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Mountain Of Ennui

This is a man of these days (only I, Just I, the Poet Seer)
Who speaks:

I am on the top of the Mountain of ennui.

I want all
Yet
I want none

I want to fly
I want to crawl

I want my Soul away
No, not even sold,
I want desperation to go
By yielding to it.

I want to feel all Melting round me to the Skeleton
Leaving just the skeleton

My brain hammers
Hammers
It is I the Poet Seer
The modern man who speaks
And no other.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Mountainous River With Roots

Of mountains in the midst
Or at the sides
Thus the fumes and the mists
That rose from wave currents
In my brain:
Mirrors that image the Sub-Conscious
As they mirror the Conscious faithfully.
Dreaming of dreaming yet Perceiving in the Sub-Conscious After taking leave of Conscious hardness Perception the same train Experience in the same direction yet Now walking to one side
Then to the other
This in the Sub-Conscious reign
Whereas in the Conscious Straight and linear it walks Mountainous river with roots
Of mountains in the midst
Or at the sides
Thus the fumes and the mists
That rose from wave currents

Emmanuel George Cefai
Mourn. Mourn Low, Not Loud.

Mourn. mourn low, not loud.

For loud mourning be of shortness of duration
In as direct proportion.

The dawn, the dusk, the moon, the stars, the night will wreak their hands without word
without a syllable
staring aghast
just
just

Emmanuel George Cefai
Mourning

Soul of the clouds Nocturnal and Mourning.

Skeleton yet Wearing spectacles
The same black spectacles
You wore Before an inhabitant of This cemetery
You came.

In the summer
You hear
The chants of the ghosts
And more shrill
The crickets and the Grasshoppers woken
Chant.

I asked you.
You still Will choose Between Immortality and Here
To be inhabitant of This cemetery

Emmanuel George Cefai
Mourning Days

One day will be a mourning day
And then that will the first Of all the mourning days that Follow suit:
And there will be so many Mourning days
Were you to view my life

‘First let me pessimistic Sour; but then hear my words
There are burning swords Increasing one by one with Age and time:
And it be for you to see
Them
For old age so many Cunning pitfalls has and makes’

Music Begins In The Heavens, Only I,

Music begins in the heavens, only I,
The only human am I.
Is that why?
Is that the dream of the heavens?
Is this the ecstasy of the aesthetic?
Is this the dream of greatness?
Is this the palm of ruthlessness?
Is the tradition of civilization?
Is this the train of Evolution?
A rolling stone, just a rolling stone.

Musing, Musing, The Old Lad

Musing, musing, the old lad musing over the bastions as the sun went down
and he noticed not the dusk the beauty of its redness then the night stars the curtain of the night but musing, musing, the old lad musing

Emmanuel George Cefai
Mute Cries

Land of frozen icicles Nights of thundering

The teeth tremble together

The muscles of the head

And
We are going,
Going.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Black Queen Of The South

my black queen of the south sent me a postcard showing her city by the sea long white beaches roaring waves and surfing white of enraged seas then calming to soft billowing winds the quaint cathedral the streets winding and sad the cobbled squares the houses thick and strong and colored to the mood:
here
here
let me come to stay, dance with the wind.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Blood

My blood be thicker than The waters,
Yes,
I suffer
My brain wanders.

The waters gurgle
Down
And so when wounded be
The heart
Gurgles my blood
Down the rocks and Ledges of my Soul.

O! hills whose beauty Best Shines in the dawn
And then at dusk Shine with the night stars
When I wander by Broken-hearted lie
On the moon-lit green grass Scent the distant myrtles and The magic herbs
Hear
The great grating of waves
Coming
Far, far from the Ocean Sea Raging mild in its immensity!

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Brain Is Faded

My brain is faded
Months ago
It received
The shock to fading
And now
And now
It fades
It's faded.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Broken Heart Transcends

My broken heart Transcends
At last
The limits of the time
On verse and song Wild and raw
My verses trace Listless and Nonchalant
The bursting of the usual dam Cyclical
I wrought.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Candle In The Night I Lit

My candle in the night I lit
How eerie wild the winds Roared on the plain and shores
The foaming waves now white now green How leapt they in the dark As in and out and out and in They went.

How light and here and there My candle flickered Round the winds howled Like madmen in the night
And I
And I
Like a ghost looked Bearing a candle-light
In that abandoned land
That night.

And howled the winds
That night.
My candle flickered tapering
The white seas surged
The waves rose hundred yards
And more.
And in the night
That sordid plain I trembling felt Beneath my feet:
And here and there
In the distant fields
A few farmhouses lights Went off and on and on and off
This night

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Computer Writes On Its Monitor

My computer writes on its monitor Lines I dictate I do not know from where: Really I do not know They simply flow.

And
When my hands come off the key-board
The ticking of the typing stops:
One tick per figure that is – there was.
And now
And now
There is no ticking
My fingers do not run across the board
And I
Only I
Stare vacant at the monitor

And all is silence.

My sighs to the heavens
My yearnings to the heavens
My mask to the heavens
My soul to the heavens
And
verses to Earth
My Monsignor.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Hand

My hand peels off
The waters run
A withered glove falls
In the mud of Earth

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Heart Got Broken.

My heart got broken.

Like a glass the level Rose and rose.

At last it reached the Rim
The chains were cut
The heart lay broken.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Heart Is Broken

My heart is broken
And your deepening Sickness now Extends to the brain
The wavering flame Grow dimmer see I
And
My broken heart
Is broken as by sub-division.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Heart Is Rent

how I wasted all
I will not say
My head is bent
My heart is rent

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Heart My People My Countrymen Is For You

And you need not reciprocate

My love requires no reciprocation and Boundless be.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Heart That Was Down

A word
Just a word from you
And
My heart that was down
Rose up in flames
So is your power, love.

A wink
From your lovely eyes Set my tired body Inflamed with strength
That love gives so.

A kiss Inflames more than A word
A wink: A kiss
A wink
A word!

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Love

My love our love
I, we,
too are rare grow frost
glimmer in the white of frost
I, we too fade at the touch of sun as frost
we fade
fade.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Mistress Has A Twinkle In Her Eyes

My mistress has a twinkle in her eyes
What a mischievous twinkle!
The day has just been born Enjoying still its liberty From the sun’s oppressive heat My mistress rises and puts on The sandals on her feet
And then into the garden goes And starts to sing a lay A lay of love I think – as yesterday Did our nightingale!

Emmanuel George Cefai
My mistress sweet how capriciously
She looks on me:
Her eyes twinkle and shine
This morn mischievously:
How her legs move
And from beneath her dress
Her limbs enchant:
She into the gardens goes
And by the fresh fountain stands And fresher looks she Than trees and water and morn
And then - and then Looks she up to the heavens - mysteriously!

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Monsignor

Let me my Monsignor not chant or sing
about what the speaking yew sings and speaks and whispers
the speaking yew in the cemetry.

Graves, tombs, graves,
monuments, tombs, graves,
creaking, groans, moving shadows and lights, shades, grey, lights
and then dark, dark, dark ashen dark and ashes

Moving dresses, of flesh empty,
lighting,
for it be midnight in the cemeteries
sub-conscious the Poet Seer dreams
dreams
and tosses in his bed.
It's mid night and
about.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Monsignor Do Not Sing

My Monsignor
My Monsignor do not sing
To-night

Your deed I praise
But Time is not

Yet
What you do not do today My Monsignor left’s will There be another morrow.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Monsignor, How Can You Flee?

My Monsignor, how can you flee
the stars, the night, the dawn, the dusk, the seasons, weather, animals, plants, nymphs, fauns,
and all the rest?
This be the life alternative to the rote annoyant life that the conscious presents before our eyes that the Earth tempts us
towards power, glory, wealth and all the rest.
My Monsignor, how can you flee
the Alternative World?
After all nearly half of life's hours all be constrained to sleep.
For that be the reign of the Sub-Conscious.
And
the reign of the Sub-Conscious must not be denied.
If so, will not Earth remain only with tragedy upon tragedy on its hands?
Night heals the Earth from the day's wounds.
Sleep heals the body and its woes from daily tragedies.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Monsignor, You See!

You see! You see!
My Monsignor we Have to revert things:
Of light there be In the stars as the suns
And
Let all plants rise equally Erect and point
And hold their hands
As to the Sun and its light
Now
So
Will they do daily to Starlight.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Mother

My mother
Bring to my mind light
To my heart warmth
To my health breath
To my life love
To my body strength
To my thoughts the new Bring to me
My mother

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Mother How You Have Tried

My Mother how you have tried
Me
How bent with sufferings
I pain in trauma after trauma.
Nights come and with your Prayers I have slept to other Days
But now
But now the glass is full,
My Mother, Amalia to-night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Mother The Snow In Other Lands

My mother.
The snow in other lands congealed
And in our country blew the unkind
Winds
And blizzard small for a Mediterranean land:
Yes, my mother
The time you in the hospital bed
Lay.
I remember.
I remember your face was not white And strong your voice resounded Clear the mind bent with ageing years But more and more bent with Treacherous and vindictive hands.
But it was winter, yet
Yet
And the fresh wind of Spring Loved you too much to let you go But ah! cruel Winter nails determined Were to set you down and set.
And in my Poet Seer's prerogative See I treacherous and murderous hands Throttle your life: they were Winter hands, chill, frost and red.
And at last midst the cries for The last mercy
That spirit indomitable At last spoke not
At last said not a word
No, not a word.
Your seeing another Spring was over And lay
Your head and your face now not Red and flushed in blood but Growing white Yet beautiful Beautiful on the bed and Cried I 'Mother!
Mother speak!'
And you spoke not, nor moved But your face only spoke And still was beautiful as in your Younger years when flushed In blood spoke the spirit indomitable.
How white and grey yet beautiful Your hair, your last hair that grew!
How many tales
How many sufferings each hair Spoke in its mute silence funereal:
I saw you, I saw you, mother.
And Spring mourned for you For it was not so afar
No not a month away
Yet cruel Winter made you away Stole you from the Spring that Would have given red again And flush of life in your pale face That now speaks not. In vain ‘Mother! My mother speak!’
I cry and weep and then Fall silent
In that reverent place of sacredness Where you lay mute and silent:
In vain
In vain
In vain.
What followed then is in my dreams
My dream of life when
Before
I dreamt not the dream of horror:
No, no, away! The bier entering The church, I at the church-door Trembling on my feet Then following:
The Mass, and then
The last traveling down
Of the bier to the hearse,
The driving to the cemetery,
The cool wind, the rain-threatening
Clouds:
The shock, the cry, when open Yet for once, a last once The coffin lid and I Saw not the face
That was flushed in red But yellow-pale, devoid Of flush of blood
And
Of the spirit indomitable:
And then Came the first even That you lay under the cold stones In sad Addolorata:
There was a bird that stood
All night silent and mute Braving the chill and when The first white lines of Dawn Lit by degrees the heavens slow Then the bird on the cold stones Flew down:
There
There for minutes it stood Then flew into the skies
The immense skies to disappear
There.
And that was all for then.
But now the pain remains:
The nights of sweat and pain Are there
Have not decreased:
Yet in that pain there be a Strange sweet pain in it:
And here I am
In that strange sweet pain Where days and weeks and Months and later
Years will into the open cave
Of Life the rock of old oblivion Roll.
Then will centuries past now
There will a pilgrim gray and old A Shroud and bent a Ghost
Will come
And by the cold stones where you
Lie
That is your fragment-bones Rest from his travels and
There
Stretch him too above those stones
And in his hand will hold A manuscript typed of Immortality:
And resting still his hand will
Let
The manuscript fall by him:
The pilgrim gray, the Shroud,
The Ghost, the Son that came from Foreign lands.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Mother!

My Mother!
They say it is your day
And I
I Suffer as a son Alone in solitude
In pain
My Mother!

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Nose

My nose infected with the chill and frost of Christmas Eve.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Only Consolation

Verses now my only consolation and Dim light!

I thought that others would be who Gladden me.

I have raw solitary words and just A broken heart, now, just

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Roof

The earth
The earth
My roof loves
The heavens above.

Yet it has A cunning fear

The roof’s under
The heavens above.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Skin

I
Will
To Come
Of
My Skin
If
I
Hear Power
And Glory
Fall
Around
Me
Hear
The Clanking
Joy
Of Falling Chains
Through
The High
Heavens
Falling
Falling
Falling

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Sorrows Have Led Me To This

My sorrows have led me to this See, how I suffer
See, how I tremble
How my poor remaining Little strength
Faded away and oared away Far, far over the Ocean waves Where billows and liquid bosom Aim in them the mirror of the day
The wound is made
The wound will close not The harm be done
The suffering before I had To increase be bound
And I must suffer, suffer
In silence, without word and sound.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Sorrows To Continue.

My sorrows to continue.
After an hour and more Of waiting
My patience broke the Chains of resistance.
In to the hands
Of old usual misfortune
I resigned myself and Sung not.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Soul

My Soul wills to a ghost and Shroud.

Whatever time, whatever history.

My Soul is in this not to be Stopped.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Soul Be Stranded

My soul be stranded
And
My suffering increases.

The last drops
Of energy Come through
Now

Just desperation on Desperation:
Clenched rattling teeth
And a field fruitless Trees grown yet fruitless Brain brilliant Waning
Waning
Waning

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Soul Roams

In
The Civilization
Of
A Town
My Soul Roams
On A Bicycle
And I
Saw
Other Souls
Roaming.

I
Saw
The Wonders
Of Small Alleys Strait
The Fall
Of Dusk
On Them
The Crying bats

And Then
The Gardens Occasional Owl Screech Amorous Songs
Of Burning
Nightingales!

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Soul, My Inner Soul

The wind is in the yard
It plays, goes round,
Makes growling, sound.

Even so
My Soul, my Inner Soul
I feel restless
Going round and round
To find a peace
That transforms more
To a sad restlessness And sore
Even so
Even so

For
The wind is in the yard
It plays, goes round,
Makes growling, sound.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Stomach Aches

My stomach aches
With misfortune
And tidings
That follow quick.

In succession
Medusas fly
Across the threatening skies Threatening.

Pacific peaceful the houses Fringe of the ancient Town sleep to-night Before thunder and lightning

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Stomach Is Tired

My stomach tired is
Today.

Eat not further.

No not enough:
You must fast
Further.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Store Of Books

My store of books
Give me
Yield me
Before I will go
For I go now
And I will go long
And I will go long
In time and in place Give me
Give me

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Sweet Mistress This Early Morn

My sweet mistress this early morn
Is woken up as fresh as dawn With clean feet cleaner made By the first washing as she rose She on her sandals puts:
And the loose white robes Flutter about her in the soft wind A morn has been born again
How the earth smiles!

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Temple

To my temple
The herd tomorrow
The herd in my brain
I raise
Call Fate
Tell it
'Be what be'

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Thoughts Were Wrestling, Not Just

My thoughts were wrestling, not just

To become Olympic champions Or win silver or bronze Or loud acclaim of the Populace:
No, my thoughts were just,
Just wrestling.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Throat Sings Not More

There will soon come a time when my throat sings not more nor my chant verse or verse bring forth.

No, soon.

Already the dryness in my Soul already the desert parchedness in my mouth.

The time is come as comes for other things

Always unfortunate, working suffering

Out of the sweet waters of life I drank but little Others drank to almost surfeiting.

there will soon come a time when my throat sings not more nor my chant verse or verse bring forth.
My Tongue Craves Water

water
water
water
my tongue craves water and waters in me
thrive
cool and washing
the dust
that gathered there these thirty years or so.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Whitening Hair Now

My whitening hair now
Will be whiter still.

There are no wrinkles but Stress more than ageing Will bring them on.

And sickness already there Will start festering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
My Wise Friend

You
My wise friend
So much
Of my hidden angst
So much of hidden
Thought
Uncovered quite.

For
In you
Burns the same Fire that burnt Inside the Poet Seer
When
In the love of the Muse
He writ verse and chanted Songs.

Yes
You were there
Yes
My friend
Yes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Nail Hit On The Head

Nail Hit
On
The Head
So Much
On Earth
A Heavy Hitting Sent it flying to the Heavens
There
It became a star
Of love
A brilliant star.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Naked
naked in dawn:
but the lyric gave me courage and shame was relative and minimal

what counted was the verse abd song
the lyre
the insatiable desire, unquenched fire

and though I felt another red dusk coming
yet in the distance rolled its thunder-clouds and the wild wistful glances of night stars

Emmanuel George Cefai
Naked And Terse

Naked
Naked
And Terse
One Upon
One
The Verse Changes
Here
And\there
By Willed
And Calculated Experiment
in chance
and\probability.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Naked Feet

with naked feet
I moved over the nails the burning charcoal

resignation made my fortitude

the will to suffer
danced
sensuous a snake

Emmanuel George Cefai
Naked Storm

The naked storm is The wild storm.

Naked and raw Naked and wild
In its raw drear

Wild and sad
That be beauty
In a fading world
And day fading.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Naked Tree

Naked tree of suffering Ghost of closed winters And suffering houses.

For
All passes
All passes
All passes

That’s motion my Monsignor:
And in the mass universe
The wheels move on Ruthless as tanks over people
And more.

The sea bubbling with anger Almost in storm
The black boat’s waiting
See
The other shore is a city

The brain presides the Intelligent confusion
For there be shifting,
Rattling
Shifting and rattling.

Multitudes arise with silver
Voices
That be over the sea bowels
And the water surfaces
And the cross clouds all wintry.

For
All passes
All passes
All passes
Nameless, Formless, Shapeless

Nameless, formless, shapeless
A fog in the brain
A mist in the eyes
Yet in the heart what vulcan flames From the interior magma rise and leap!

So poetry is born, my poetry
So my lines arise
The genealogy of my lines lies in the fog and mist
And in the leap-flames in the heart!

By spurts, and then after the spurt An interval of dejection Fog and mist and blank
And then of sudden
The light shines at the end of a tunnel
The heart-pump leaps Fanned by the bellows of the interior magma That rises and leaps, that pumps and leaps!

So the flower unwinds itself
From its night-cover:
When the dews and the cold drops
Of the oncoming night its veins will freeze And fast its leaves and petals curl.

So the flower arises from the seed
So the flower arises on its stem
So the stem arises through the soil

Fog and mist and blank
And a heart that bellows
And fans its pump When numbed and frozen seems
The blue petal of day at touch of dusk.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Narcissus Into The Waters Looked And Saw

Narcissus into the waters looked and saw
His beauty dangling like the apple of Eve And serpent-like it wound herself around The supple body.
I-I-too into the waters look and gaze
For some sweet silent silver voice all wandering From water, bush or tree or air - wher’er it be-

That might I find whether my black queen Keepeth her troth to me or betrays me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Nearly All Halts Now

Nearly all halts now.
There were things
That remained till
The Dusk.

But when Dusk went They fled with it Carrying the keys with
Them
Of a day that waned.

There were faces
In a half mask
They roamed about Some hour ago

Emmanuel George Cefai
Neon Lights

walking with a candle

but the neon lights of the electric tube are turned on in the white room philosophers and I smoke cigars unwanted

but crowned
on us
by stress

Emmanuel George Cefai
Neptune The Green

Looking glass
Neptune the Green
Liquid waters
Channels of breathing Collars of wisdom
Tales of falling stars
'They said they saw Them, ' said he
I
Poet Seer listened in wonderment.
The fig tree wept
In the parched martyrdom
The old oak bent Under her thirst Looking glass
Neptune the Green
Liquid waters
Channels of breathing

Emmanuel George Cefai
Net And Web

Through
The net and web
Of Soul emotions
He peered
With a magnifying glass
The Monsignor to view
In detail
The Inner Soul
But he remained Dissatisfied Discovered not What he had wanted
Now
For the emotions
He would not see My Monsignor emotions
You have to feel and to experience!
In this
The largest lens or telescope Be vain.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Neurosis Round Me

From the neurosis round me
I
Heard the stench of Acrid acids
Like piss Ascending
Step
By Step -
I put on the poetic Gas-mask:
As the stench passed A gas
The berries Turned their faces black Contagious neuroses fluttering
In the airs.
The earth is neutral-silent
For
From the neurosis round me
I
Heard the stench of Acrid acids
Like piss

Emmanuel George Cefai
New Civilization

In to this new civilization of the Sub-Conscious

There be so many things, events and Histories

That you will calculate whether the balance Of occurrences nods
In favor of conscious or sub-conscious living

Emmanuel George Cefai
New Sentiment

I heard new sentiment.

My Monsignor, I want to Surfeit.

I just saw the Dawn.

My eyes are dazzled
My Monsignor

Emmanuel George Cefai
New Style

New style
Midnight dancing
New child
Midnight dews
Hourly showers
Falling as silver dowers
The whole night till the Dawn
And then
On the green till the edge
Of cliff and sea-beach sparkles
A million and more eyes,
Tiny eyes, welcoming the Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
New Year's Day

I woke.
Rain was falling slow
Yet of most drear.

Yet it was New Year.
Look said Time:
‘What dress I brought you! ’

Said I:
‘Now it is unwanted Dress’

Time stood erect
And spoke not.

‘Then I will go, ’ said
Time.

‘Pray, pray for me Sir, ’
I replied.

‘I will, you need, ’ was The reply.

Thus for New Year’s Day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Next Step

Next step Next stop I go to the guillotine.
I know.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Nibbles At Life

Age nibbles
Nibbles at life
Ah! Youth when it was How sweet was
Of sweet beauty
The brain thought
And of beauty
The brain wrought!
Yet now there be a fast change Sickled Death lies in the range!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Nibbling Age And Time

Of nibbling age and time
Into the documents of verses
And
In to the heart
That pumps the verses.

Come! come!
Civilizations be as waves.
Peaks and troughs

For
In the offing Years to come
Other civilization is just To breed more powerful:
For
After all, that justice is.

O! let the winds spread out my
Call
To Earth's four corners!

All equal be, yet all Must sacrifice and pain
To reach the peaks:
Arise peoples who never rose Or rose far long ago
In distant centurial times Arise peoples and greater civilizations Make
In all the corners of our mother Earth!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night And Dark And Horror

Of night and dark and Horror
And motions phenomena
And ghosts
Of the sub-conscious Yearn I.

And
In this dark world Living Indifferent to me
Power and glory
Restriction and liberty

But
Only when dusk comes It comes a-glittering
In its sultry garb fluttering In the winds of the Times Indifferent

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night And Day, Night And Moon

Night and day, night and moon Night in so many Couplings!

Hypnosis
The way to the grove
Where sadness pines.

And
The long nights are now Long July summer nights
Of love and sweat.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night And Heavens

Night and heavens
blood and soil mixtures nocturnal spells
spells
and mists abound above and all around

there is a water gurgling
gurgling
in the night
but then I found not stream nor fount
no other source:
the water stopped
suddenly my patience waited and I was rewarded.

night and heavens
blood and soil mixtures nocturnal spells
spells
and mists abound
above and all around

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Birds And Night

Night birds and night
Vultures
Skies with patches Dark patches Blue patches Near to the moon
Azure

Witches that fly Ah! but rare
Sometimes in centuries
And Goblins green
And turtles giant Plodding to the sea
The beckoning waters of the dark
Sub-conscious.
Temple and shrine of awe
And deafening horrors.

O! I seek night
And sing of night
Time only time alas!
For Earth as whole
To be in little peace
And quiet
At least enforced
By tired brains and Tired limbs
And Tired eyes

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night By Passed

Night is by-passed
The rivers overflow
Scent the trees of the Rhine
The castles light.

Owls of wisdom fly Across the heavens
With bats and glow-worms in multitudes together make global camp fires

Thought creeps along
The ground slyly
And stealthy notes
And ponders quietly

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Close Thief

Night
Close Thief
Tonight
Not Holy Beads
But Daggers
Flashing
In
The Red
light
of
the red stars
for this
night
Where be the beauties
That
The Night Smuggled?
The Pilot
Danced
In
The Night
Loud
Was
The Music
Before
The Kamikaze: Loud
The Ghosts
Were Listless
Silent Dawn was cowed
And days held their breath

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night come and like a cloud of mist Envelop this our Earth that all
All of us with my mother and with me Perish in the folds mists of Mnemosyne.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Droned As The Moth

Night droned as the moth
below the heavens round the firs and oak and rare owls hidden in the wind-trembling boughs and leaves in Hastings Gardens.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Dwell To-Night

Night dwells to-night in a sweet hummock.

half a moon and the night stretches
round.

and the time passes
and the time passes
but in the Sub-Conscious age will to fading be propense.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Escaped Though

Night escaped though the satyrs were still in their revels
though
the nymphs were still a-dancing:
for its long nose
smelt the coming of the Dawn
as was in her cave
just waking.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Escaped Though The Satyrs Were

Night escaped though
the satyrs were still in their revels
though
the nymphs were still a-dancing:
for its long nose
smelt
the coming of the Dawn
as was in her cave
just waking.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Feast That Passes

To-night
the people throng in thousands
to old Valletta.

Laughs, jokes, children laughing and running,
people clapping at the music and fireworks wondering.

For me
sadness be my companion.

And pining eyes from dusk broken sobs
into the night.
What be the fierce night stars
for me?

Yet
To-night
the people throng
in thousands
to old Valletta.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Fly

In the night I
As to the night fly
As to the night bat Circle I
Round and round
Without a sound
Save of the clapping
Wings
Save of the humming.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Follows Frost

Night follows frost
The frost slender goes A Monsignor amidst
The trembling trees:
He sees them trembling Feels sadistic and other Pleasures
In their each vibration.

Slender Time passes
Stealthy
As with motion Sound of lightning Speed of it and more Velocity:
All robber-like
All secret-stealthy.

In the old annals of Ever-old Time and times
The watermill of lust
Goes round and round
In the reproducing sound
Of things and cycles:
As with motion who Will keep it As with thunder who Will silence it:
As with lightning who Will keep it from dimming
Slow
Slow and fading?
Speak! Speak!
Your words are history.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Grows

night grows
out of the forges of rotating Earth night out of the smokes and mists

of Earth

night walked hand in hand with
the Sub-Conscious

ah! they need strike no deal that already be

night grows
night grows out of the forges of the mists cauldron it grows
in magic grows

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Has Come Under The Trees

Night has come under the Trees
Waiting Waiting nervous and Impatient
His love for to-night
The moon.

Below
Below the bastions
Lengthen their shadows
To black cloths
Of mourning funereal Since
The red dusk
Flourished over the port

The water stiff Lawyers of the open port Sit still and mute Furrowed by the silver Linearity of the moon’s
Light.

Nocturnal a bell
Rings
In Fort Saint Angelo:
But ah!
The service be
Only
Only for the locale
Ghosts and shrouds.

Yet in the night
The skies trembled
Tremble
With the halo stars
That peep and manifest Their angst nocturnal
To the hidden breeze
Of wild Aeolus.

From the sparse caves
The siren hoots Flourish
And echo around the port
Only
For ears of fairies Nymphs and Inhabitants general of the night
And Poet Seers.

Kronos stits on a wall
Of rubble dilapidated
From the fort of old Old, old Saint Angelo: Mourning the centuries
That went.

For what you did Is stifled:
That is the foot print
Of the grave
The tomb:
Whatever you did
And were or else Stifled silent and Mute under the moss
Of stones that sweat
With magic mists of night.

The Sphinx is restless:
But even she Yet even She Is here hidden well Behind a well of wishes
In the fort down
Down
Abysmal to the depths of The port sea.
‘Tele, tele, tele.’
Said the old hag.
And it was night
And dawn asleep Was far Far from blessing earth Hours had to pass
For yet another dawn
And stars to fall
Sudden and white faced to the sea.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Has Its Cloak, My Mother

Night has its cloak, my mother
And the stars.

Your eyes are stars, my mother,
And they shine.

But you speak not, my mother,
You speak not tonight.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night I Saw Bent

Night I saw bent
For
It was carrying
Beauty
To leave her For the Dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night In A Zinc Garb

Night
In A Zinc Garb Paces Giant Paces Across
The Accommodating heavens.
Old
And Wan
Age Brings Relentless
You Drink
The Potion
Of Love
And Waters Salty
In
The Closing
Day
The Night
Sets up
Its tent for reigning.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Lamp

The night lamp in the street
It beckons.

Cannot you hear it
Clanking?

Clank-clank-clank: ah!
Its familiar sadness!

Its drawling sounds and Notes Jarring and Mellow

The night lamp in the street
It beckons
Till they put it off En masse with other night lamps Switch off the heart of night For the calm dawn is on.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Lamps

Rattled
Rattled the winds
In to that windy
Night
Rattled
The Night-lamps.

Sad stretched
The steps Of street and Centuries.

Around
The shrouds
Hand in hand
Danced
Medieval round

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Lampshade

How many verses heard you?

You saw me write
You saw me sing
Versify
Turn back
See if I closed the door.

And Then late in night
When the Muse sleeps
I turn you off
Simultaneously.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Like To A Butterfly

Night like To a butterfly
It open wings
Then closes
Them.

Ah! Beauty thrives
In quarters
Such Though dark

In the old fort With ghosts
With shrouds
And
Ancient knights!

Ah! fairy waters
And Lust of night
Between the towns
The waters glide
To-night!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night My Favorite Cloth

Night my favorite cloth
Black has become of me Dark has become face Furtive my glance
Dawn the signal
For my hiding place

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Of Dirage

Of night a dirge how sweet For even Venus from Her lordly cave Opens her haunting eyes
And sings to meet:
Sad voices and sad words!
In them Beauty lurks
And makes her palaces:
And Art and Artistry
There their tricks play and Ply
In silence-mute without a word
To say
In deepest night till the full Break of day!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Of Love

the night of love

it falls

in the palace ancient and dilapidated a certain portrait rattles
and the figures move but in the dark
in the garden
a swan sadly sings

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Of The Roses

Night of the roses
But where are they?
Their scent only Betrays them.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Of The Small

Night of the small
night of the small came the chant the African chant
there's a writing and it's on the wall
there
is a chant
a black chant wide
open mouths
singing
singing and the wreaths of the night are thrown by the stars and flow on the bosoms of seas and liquids and oceans.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Of Trees

Night of trees
Walking up the Roads of cemeteries.

Enrooting them
Out from their place
They the night of trees

Upwards
Walking, walking,
Walking,
Red
A crucifix of blood
And Flesh Bleeding Bleeding

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Of Wonders

the night it wonders wonders past midnight searching along the floors of bones

the moon helps and the bones blare
white.

the trumpets of delight they sing slow humming slow to rhythm of the night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Of Yellow Moon

Night of yellow moon night of yellow harvest corn sheaves of gold moon white not white but as of shining
gold.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Passes Here Deliberate

Night passes here Deliberate
In this street
But different time
In days different:
A violin when he Passes
Plays
As from the skies.
Task done.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Peeps Down The Balustrades

Of the stars.

In the hospital the light goes out Of the windows one by one.

And dream spreads its wings
On the miserable.

And the vultures of sadness too
Go to their bed.

And Dawn yawns and sleeps again Before waking.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Remains Now.

Night remains now.
I wait for it to come.
Now Dusk the Red has Faded too.

So
The gay flowers
And
The trees bend
And
Are swayed by the breeze.

So
We
So
We, my Monsignor
We too,
Are faded

Emmanuel George Cefai Night rode on the waves with Ghosts and shrouds:
Ah! I am angry
I suspend Immortality
And ghosts and shrouds that were Said: ‘Justice has been done! ’
We that did not reach Immortality Now that is suspended
We
We will be equal with the breathing
Humans
They too we will as ghosts and shrouds
They too must march like us in the long nights
They too must march with us in the long nights And mourn like baying wolves to the sad moon’.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Sleeps

The night sleeps
Now
Though it rules
Still!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night So Lovely

I heard the siren song
I felt the lap of
Waves
I saw a ghost float all alone
On the cold waters
Night so lovely
I heard the siren sing
And
Sweet-gold the siren
Sang.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Star That Near Hangs This Night

Night-star that near hangs this night What message will you give?
Or want to give?

Or like a lover shine
To break my heart?

Or ill tidings forbears Or joy?

You speak not but still smile.
My heart forebodes and feels but does not speak.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night They Say With Its Black Hides

Night they say with its black hides
Most roaring tempests hideous seas and crags That front the hailing wind around their juts And trees the wind entwines aloud with frost: Though tempests roar and seas tear themselves Yet the dark mantle hides and paints a calm With artist hand the better to hoodwink
The fears of our hearts and races pale:
Yet even night to hoodwink and full cover
My frenzied breath and my full throbbing heart And my hoar lover’s fate, fails.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Verse

Verses this night
Come dim
As dim as night
As black as dark
As strait as alleys
As humid as the street-cobbles
As quiet as the sleeping houses
As trembling as the night-lamps
As hot as lovers’ kisses As sweet as the embraces As lovely-eyed as the moon
As wise as the benighted owls
As honeyed as the nightingales
As happy as nocturnal boughs As slippery as the rain besotted kerb As fast as lightning
As dreamy as the clouds
As tired as the sleepers As trembling as wall shadows Come dim
This night
The verses

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Walk Slow

Night walk slow
That in the immense heavens
You will not hit stars that will Fall
Trembling
trembling
Trembling out of place

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Walked Away

Night
Walked
Away Seeing
That Midnight
Had Been
So
Deep
It
Passed
Few Minutes Whistling
And Relaxing
The Blood Boiled
In
The

Soon
As born
The Offspring.'
He opened his mouth
And snored
For the Sub-Conscious wrath Had taken over
As
To
Bomb
It Fluttered
All Fluttered
The Eggs
Were Beaten
Liquid
Yellow-gold
That mattered,
The sun grew jealous
'Let me get my day, '
It stuttered,
And Anon Dawn
Opened her wings
And flew serene Over such spaces
To reach Mother Earth
And the new day
A sighed for new way.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Walks Tiptoes

Night walks tiptoes
Night walks on waters Night walks on forts Night embraces Shrouds and ghosts
Fears them not Loves them as his:
Flees from the Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Was Plucky

Night was plucky
Night was saucy
and her myriad of retainers
all before onset of the Dawn
before close curtain of his reign
all advised and all he warned
all
to safety they hied who at once, who delayed then fled, yet all went and captured
safety.
And
thus sheltered lived on
yet for another day to return.
And
with every new night new day all this palinode turned and
turned

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night Wraith

Scream of the night wraith
It rose and fell.

From its arising Long and stiff I tell.

But
My Monsignor the night-wraith Changes with ease of light.

The night wraith runs Into myriads of transformations.

Key-notes on the piano of beauty

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night-Clad

I Night-clad night-clad in the robes spare and light that the Muse gave
me
when the red dusk brazen
red with his eyes of pining
lust
made love-looks to my sweet Muse
in this dressing magic
I feel the spells
I feel the mists
I
I sing as
the nightingales
I that sing of peace not war
I
that sing
of people's power
I
that sing
of whittling down Institution laws to
where individual humans wait to receive what after all be their birth right to this day!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night-Dews

Night-dews that fall
As fall Desert rains in the Immense chill
Extending its wide Frontiers with the night Dripping
Night-dews
Dripping
Dripping

Emmanuel George Cefai
Nightfall

with dark face bruised in part by sizzling dusk
as it retreated
for it considered that the night had it defeated:
wanton its reign I must not wait longer
I must not wait
longer

Nights Be Strong In Pity

Let nights be strong In pity

Let nights be strong In beauty

Let nights be strong In mercy

Let nights be strong In stars

Let nights be strong In storms
When winter calls

Let nights be strong and ravishing

Let nights be as of Dreams

Let nights be as of
Sub-Conscious

Let nights be strong

Emmanuel George Cefai
Nights Of Terror

long nights of terror there were no terrorists save ourselves, the victims.

the horse in bronze rose on stone block rose facing weather and gales and soon
some storm.

I that face tempests
everyday almost
I pray that I find the key that unlocks so many locked doors that bar themselves to me.
I that face tempests.
I
Poet Seer.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Night-Wind

The sentinels in the streets
Blow their noses.

Nearly mid-night.

The light of torches manifest
The distant century
And the distant time.

Houses and humans sleep.

Wise owls Eye with red eyes
The pikes moving
Of moving sentinels
To and fro Contemplate and Calculate
On the cyclicalities of life
of Earth.
Irrespective of new dawns Irrespective
Of Venuses coming out
From the eye-dazzling Seashells.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Nine

Nine.
Nine years.
Nine years, my father.
It was long ago.
Was it?
The time - how it flees!

My memories stay, however, father.

Now my emotions more saturated are Less violent, less original, less raw But still there.

Every eighteenth of June How it comes every year - Every year I wait it
And then it goes:
And I will again for the next year:
And time,
Time passes and I do not know (it seems)

And the vulcan of my emotions Less violent, less original, less raw
Is still there.

Ah! father when emotions sublimated are
And yet are still there How cold and warm at once
The heart feels simultaneously!

And memories do not pass.
Within them encapsulate
The emotions original, violent and raw.

And I still weep now inwardly And tears from eyes have disappeared My iron forehead Still and yet
Keeps its memories nine years aback and more.
Nine.
Nine years.
Nine years, my father.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Nipped In The Bud

But still the violet harbors in its safe port albeit reduced the beauty that be of it!

Emmanuel George Cefai
No Longer Your Words

No longer
No longer your words Praise me Lift me
In my discontent
And shrouding chill
No longer
No longer
But in the shroud of suffering
Have entered I
As a cocoon
That be too as a tomb
A cemetery of thoughts Buried
Before birth in womb
For
The flesh that carried them
And the blood that nurtured them
Went
Went

Emmanuel George Cefai
No Minstrel Sings The Songs And Lays

No minstrel sings the songs and lays
As happened in the ancient days
And in the palace halls roam Mute and bleak faced ghosts and shrouds:
Ah ancient times! And ancient days!
Histories changes, humans, and ways.
The violin that played lies on the floor
As does the lute the harp and the sweet Flute that mellowed many ancient hearts:
But that was ancient, that was Long, long ago: the centuries fly Destiny will cover with forgetfulness Not always with a full success But often buries in ignominy
So many as their destiny.

Emmanuel George Cefai
No Moon Was On That Sea

No moon was on that sea
But slimy toads that swam
All green-bronze and dirty
On that thick bosomed sea:
A pilgrim with a beard Alone walked on the sea
The waves to him obeyed Though humble dressed was he:
And here and there fish Arose to the surface
That moved not:
In that desert sea Where no land near was Where no land seen was Even
Even in the distant leagues:
No moon was on that sea
But slimy toads that swam
All green-bronze and dirty
On that thick bosomed sea:
No moon, no sound, all mute And the Sub-Conscious was
And the Sub-Conscious be And the Sub-Conscious will be On that sea.
No even wind, no moon light
No but dark night
No issuing of star light
Not even paddling of a wave But silence
Silence
Silence
On that dreary dirty sea
No wind, no moon, no sound.

Emmanuel George Cefai
No Person Laugh

Ha! Ha!
He turned around
And no person laugh
He saw
‘That was the voice of woman’
Said he.
‘The room is empty but For the Red Duchess’ portrait.
But that’s paint.’

He turned.

‘Ha! Ha!’

He turned around a-suddenly
And saw
The settling lips
Of the Red Duchess

Emmanuel George Cefai
No Sea

No sea,
no sun,
no dusk,
no dawn,
only I grope my way
along!
only I sing verse
along!
for though half-blind
my fire lights my fire burns
my heart!

Emmanuel George Cefai
No Verses

Some days now there be no verses.
Age
Is Mowing
Now.

Yet the flame of life though dim Flickers again and again.
Verses
Come
Out.
The Flame
Of Life
Be Still
Not Quenched.

The eyes see dim so often:
Yet Remains
Though Blurred
Sometimes
The Vision

Emmanuel George Cefai
No Wonder

No wonder
That the curtains of the heavens Be rent
No wonder

No wonder
That the rains rain blood
And Rain in the steaming Heat of a dark summer
No wonder

No wonder
Last night
The winds dropped blood
And Dropped
Blood
Slow
Slow
Slow

Broken-hearted,
Yes,

And Slow
Slow
Slow
Played the chord
Of the sad violin

Emmanuel George Cefai
No, Not So Empty Hands

No,
Not empty hands
From life, my Monsignor Something
However minimal
Remains.

What circumstances Whatever
Whatever times and Places
Motions and happenings.

Something
However minimal
Remains.
No, not empty hands
Some grain of sand
Remains
Some part remains
No, despair not
My Monsignor.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Noble Bells

Noon.
The noble bells
Have rung.

Time
Ah! it flies
With Motion
With Motion
Elopes
And laughs
At scandal's whispering.

Day still has to go.
One wondrous sight
After the other
Still
Has to tread:
The afternoon
Sunset and dusk
And then the glories of the star-clad night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Noble Lyre That In The Night

Noble lyre that in the night
With wind-fluttering toga Launches in the dark
The attire of glory
In those sober hours
As hour after hour
The old cathedral strikes Beneath the white and jutting Spires
In old Valletta.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Nocturnal Laboratory

In the nocturnal laboratory
The animals of the wood Work
Work as cogs in a System of wheels
Radio gaga
They work
They work
They work
Each his part Each his bit
Each the toil:
Yet they do it Voluntarily
In the night laboratory

The night laboratory
In the thick of the woods
Hides
Forms of mists at dusk Strengthens and Massifies
Then lo! By the arising Of the Dawn
With spells and magic Rare and mighty
It dissolves as it rose
The night laboratory

And
With it
Into the heavens
Rise the animals and Their works
The machines and the products
The discoveries one
After the other Medicine on medicine
New and revolutionary Disease ageing and Death Turn pale
Before the night laboratory
Yet
Powerless
They clench their teeth Despairing.

For
In the nocturnal laboratory
The animals of the wood Work
Work as cogs in a System of wheels
Radio gaga
They work
They work
They work
Each his part Each his bit
Each the toil:
Yet they do it Voluntarily
In the night laboratory

Emmanuel George Cefai
Nocturnal The Bees Hum Today

Nocturnal the bees hum today whence in the brazen sun they hummed all drunken yesterday:
yet
today
subdued and still, their hum, though audible
nocturnal the bees hum today.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Nocturnal Through The Maze Of Thicket Thorns

Nocturnal through the maze of thicket thorns nocturnal looking at the maze of wandering stars nocturnal silhouettes of the castles still nocturnal waters gurgle as they dream nocturnal skiffs monotonous machines in the night still nocturnal church bells distant, near ring
then stop
and all is still

Emmanuel George Cefai
Nocturne

The voice is sad
And more sad the song.

Every now and then There's the violin
Plays down depressed.

Silence everywhere and Everywhere
A grave.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Nocturne I

Nocturne I

Delve

delve deep

plain and hill all weep
without a sound

the caves and coves by a secret code, echo each to each the sea rises high as does the storm

tonight

Emmanuel George Cefai
Nocturne II

in the registered memory let me encased that way I hope oblivion to eject.

in the harsh caves waters danced by chance and probability.

yet there be so many rocks all open-mouthed to the night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Nocturne III

slow-moving the night treads with transparent veils over dark abysses.

in those dark abysses reign thought desires, will
- a whole brood

Prometheus risen plays a sweet resounding violin

Sweat
In the hot summer sun
At noon
Most of them
Thrust their pink Tongues out Graphic show of Suffering!

And close my eyes
For my eyes will not close
This night
Too deep vexatious thoughts Too deep, too sad,
The reel of images Too horrid

This be for you
And you
And you
And you
Too
For all of us, my Monsignor

Emmanuel George Cefai
Not Always Rhythm.

Not always rhythm.
No not always.
I versify not of prose Merely
I let
The emotions speak and Write.
And the emotions so Often write and Speak, all raw,
Full raw.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Not Always Routine

Not always routine
Not always melodious Not always Beautiful: Beauty reigns
Yet
There be moments
When less beauty be A greater be to the sad of hearts:
Not always Beauty reigns
Not always

Emmanuel George Cefai
Not Consolation From Stars

This night
The nightingales sings
Not
This night
The nightingale be one Of sorrow
And
The broken heart
Not consolation from Stars and moon
No, no consolation

Emmanuel George Cefai
Not Content

Not content Ever sad
Never not frowning, no

The Poet Seer trudged on and on For after all this world is place for trudging Trudging, trudging, trudging

And this Earth is a place for suffering, Suffering, suffering, suffering

Emmanuel George Cefai
Not Content With First Verse

From the next vintage
He made and prepared New offspring plays
And
So walked a playwright

Emmanuel George Cefai
Not Count Of Poems

Today
Not count of poems
But
Count of verse
And Cow-smells all Around me
Lurked Laughing
Laughing
Laughing
Smiling

Emmanuel George Cefai
Not Happy

No joy
Every day
Moving towards The womb of life
Growing
The laughing babe:
No, no,
Every day
Moving Towards the wasting Dumping
In the junk-yard
Where drear and horror Reign
All Uncontested and Sovereign.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Not Long

Not long
Not long
The verse is like lightning
The chant as thunder
Roars
Thunder that grumbles
Loud
Then stops.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Not Many.

Not many.
Few verses speak
Aloud.
Not many.
Not many

Even if the verses Bring not forth flowing song Continue Poet-Seer: Continue

Calculation after calculation
Before the advent of Immortality
A skeleton in the coffin
Made Face upwards
Ever

You see.
The verse just sung manifests
One reason why we need
Immortality.

On the feast-day
The church all lit.
Full of parishioners Gilt and lighted
The festive statue.
Transfixed
I saw the church Filled
By as many skeletons
As were parishioners Proposal made.
Proposal to do.
So many made.
And see Where we are heading to.

Storm and water.
Storm and fire
Storm and sound
Lightning
Thunder
Storm of restlessness Human.

What must care I
For Fame?
Just I reply: Continue verse
And song
Experiment; diversify Evolve along
And care not No, care not.

Waters flow Somewhat like Currents
Currents of the brain Hectic in trading Intellectually

Wealth counts, but here.
In the skies
I soared by the Prerogative
Of Poet-Seer.
Not more.
Not else.
Not power.
Not wealth.

A broken heart.
A vessel in the midst
Of the green jaws of tempest.
I.
Now.

Break the jaws of the liquid tempest
See
Just look and see
The island of rest beckons
With the Dawn.

Desperate I made the move.
For what do
When desperation
Only remains?

I need courage.
Fear rules me
Now
More than ever.
Help!

I saw the jaws of Fear
Open.
Yet so great my fear
That I feared not

One word.
One verse.
One poem.
One song.
One feeling.
I saw dusk stealing Defeated
The poor thing
Had any alternative?

Even dusk fears
For when haughty Night
First stars alight
Dusk disappears.

At the end of the tunnel, dim light.
At the end of the tunnel, fading Fading sound of a train.

Grimy walls, dark in the tunnel.
From beginning to end, However you trudge on and on and on.

Ah! that be life my Monsignor!
I make equivalent the dark tunnel With life, dark, dim light at the end.

The winds are rife
The trees strive Garden trembling
Deluges falling

I read my drama.
My own verses.
Some.
As I scanned
My eye fell
Here and there.
And I wrote more.
The Will unlimited Looks over The panorama
Looks
Looks right above
At the immense heavens
To be as immense
The Immense Will
And
Not limited.

Scour, scour my Monsignor!
You will see drear
The more you scour Feverish as the miser for the pelf
You search and dig
For fading happiness.

Despair my Monsignor!
That way you will desire Not, and never ever.
That way
You will draw happiness from her lair.

One emotion is enough – let Time stop now!

In my hand
I took a skeleton head
I looked and looked
So that Might I will Immortality
So that I might think
Deep
Deep Deeper
I know.
I write verse.
I then look.
I see the verse
I have just written in the skies.

Write here.
Here.
Here, my Poet Seer
Here
Then
Then look at the heavens
Immense
See
See what you wrote Writ
In the face of them,
The heavens immense!

Chest of dreams.
But I lost the key.
I know.
I know the tempests.
I know the roaring winds.
The trembling trees.
The screaming gardens.
The shivering hands.
The trembling brain.
I know what suffering
To find the key.

Coasts that fume with waves Rocks with spume Waves of green.
Centuries that whirl.
Times that stop,
Then sprint,
Intermittent.
Ah! the human breast
Emotions
Heave Restlessness!

Thoughts.
Desperation.
Union of thoughts and desperation.
Then heaving of emotions.
Storms and tempests.
Then quiet.
Immortality suspended
Red-carded by the Referee of Life himself.
Skeleton in a coffin Looking upwards.

Where?
Where was the black milk of yesterday?
We drunk of it and tasted
That we drunk more.

The stars – well part of them
Had fallen in the cup Where the black of misery Sopped them all
And then we drunk all.

Where?
Where was the black milk of yesterday?
We drunk of it and tasted
That we drunk more

In to the heavens
A red cow flew
And flowers after grew
In to the heavens
Started falling night dew
And more and more it grew

In to the heavens
The black of drear and misery Mirrored our lot of now, we.

Await the Dawn.
In desperation await the Dawn.
Is there alternative?

If so, assert to me.

Desperation here Desperation there
What alternative but Dawn?

My brain hammers
Yet it be weak and vague Thoughts stammer.

Even the Voice from the heavens Says:
Await! Await the Dawn!

The night is bleak.
How many nights
These centuries past were bleak.

So after all
This be one bleak night
Of all those centuries.

The palms over the bastions Are downcast; with bent heads
They care not for next Dawn
When it comes.

This night my mother
In hospital
Wanes.

This night I in my house Away from my mother Wane.

For this night my mother
In hospital
Wanes.

Dim candle, Light that wanes
Heart sad.

Broken voice, Hoarse throat Harsh words.

Deep Soul Penetrated to blood Ruthless clinical.

Not Melodious But With Wise

Not melodious but with wise Words full:
Passion not melodramatic
But raw and cutting
Not Particularly of rhyming
Yet
In the heart melodious rung
After for more than once it had been sung

Emmanuel George Cefai
Not Mid-Night Horrors

Not mid-night horrors only
No
But horrors of a Dawn That’s woken.

The dusk on the horizon Looms alone and Distant.

When time is time of
Dawn

And the sea-horizon is Grey-green on the fringe Between heaven and waters

The ghosts and monsters
Of three centuries ago
Are distant baying

Not One Poem

Not one poem
Not one poem only
But
In the turn of time
I yearn to sing more
About
The poets and the scientists And philosophers and more unknown
Whose work with cobwebs of Oblivion
Goes:
these under the cruel shutting of the tomb-slabs
lie
forgotten in oblivion yet the worst be that the Earth has disowned their works
themselves
as disowned children without legitim:
these too were and be children of the Earth who wants them not

Not Sweeping Endings

Not sweeping endings
no! but abrupt cliff edges sits gloomy in her joy and joying in her gloom each day

Notepad of verses.
Though it be summer of next Christmas think I if I be and of the bells that ring ring for a peace that's long coming:
at last the least and last few days of careless happiness.
For happiness has to be careless to be happiness.

Now Aged, Now Aged, I Crumble Midst The Snows

Now aged, now aged, I crumble midst the
snows

and the winds cruel rage around me laughing at my weakness

and a hundred harps around string horrible sounds.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Now Here's An End!

Now here's an end!
That supreme pain that was Our fear for so many years
Is come
It will pass too Over my head and The guillotine that fell on it:
It will pass too.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Now Horror Looks Me In The Face

Now Horror looks me in the face
My grim and emaciated face Where is the proud Poet Seer?

Demoralized and humbled
I to sing try and fall Till a verse falls from heaven.

And it be the Muse that comes A little light, a dim little night O! in this horror-laden night!

Now June Begins.

Now June begins. Rain from May's Last night poured in.
Slow and pattering
And sad.
O mother! You slept while The rains were drizzling!
But then
You have been sleeping slow.
The end is coming.
Call me not.
Call me not.
I will be coming.
Now another new month and The guillotine falls more
And more.
Another month, another small Survival,
Yet no joy it has brought, but Pain
Pain more intense and
Suffering.
My mother, worry not,
I will be coming.

Life counts hour by the hour

I made, I remember.
And my guilt as a knife pierces me
With each remembrance.

Now My Play Is Towards Its Last Act

Now my play is towards its last Act
The last scene of the Act penultimate Is ending:
The next scene that will be in the Next Act:
Long, long age has been a-drumming Quiet, hidden and imperceptible
Now
Age sits to watch the conclusions:
So it wills
Though my desperate brain Thought after thought till now In vain evolves
Escape its clutches:
Now my play is towards its last Act
The last scene of the Act penultimate Is ending:

Emmanuel George Cefai
Now Night in his palace stands As on a throne embraced by the clouds Now the dusk red Turns to increasing dark and black:
And day changes its skin to dark Come dark that I May to my black queen yet again
And Night will envelope
Our love again.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Now No Winds Blow.

Now no winds blow. Throughout the night only the drear hovered around me. Not enough to render me sleepless.

Iron screw that to bronze turned. Wood that in the moon-light walked a meter.

River that blows with scents and flowers. Eau de perfume, child of the Rhine.

Now The Verse Makes The Song

Now the verse makes the song Majestic noble somewhat long
Now the verse makes the song Fast speedy and somewhat short Full freedom to the verse!
Full freedom to the song!
A group of youthful Poet-Seers With mugs of ale in hand
On a silver sea on a satin barge Sailed on the sea-waves
And on the beauty of the verses.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Now Though, It’s Summer Already You

Now though it’s summer already you Seem to be thinking, thinking of winter And of its gelid snows, its frosty touch Its numbing of your feelings
And your love
Else how has your passion cooled?
How has your skin that burned and moved In wave after wave
Now motionless and rude
No longer burns under the loving touch?

Your look
Has now assumed
The aegis of indifference beneath your mask:
Your eyes
No longer throw dark brands of fire Your lips
No longer posed and desirous But flaccid and uninterested

Ah! my queen
You play your game and think That I have not a card

No! No! at least a card I have – you do not know.

For if Your burning touch no longer comes Nor your delirious breath Nor fire from your nostrils come Nor your lips desirous of sweet kisses are Nor your arms for my embraces yearn Then you will quench the fire Slowly but surely
The fire that burns in me will of itself Burn itself to ashes that remain
And these can only rise
If you my black queen of the south Will your heat renew and double it Then - only then My ashes will be warm and heat again Rise like the phoenix.

Emmanuel George Cefai
O effigy of pride! You human are!
In every limb and bone, there, there,
As you walk, there’s pride, emerges
It.
In the silent dark the silent night With bowed head lights up such A myriad of burning stars that Humility’s valor and practicality demonstrate.

Emmanuel George Cefai
O Eyes Hollow Here And There, And

O eyes hollow here and there, and Then occasionally filled with dust
Of crumbling bastions hit by millions Of gusts over the ancient centuries Past; o eyes hollow here and there, Though hollow,
You weep all the same and red,
Though the color is to fairies disclosed
And not to humans yet still the pearls Drop from the sides of the walls Crumbling with age and disappointed At seeing the city inhabitants And hearing the laments of shrouds and ghosts:
O eyes hollow here and there, and Then occasionally filled with dust.

O For The Cemetery Of Sadness

O for the cemetery of sadness
It is as yet as of the breathing
The flowers there grow wild And care not ever:

O For The Thrill Of Seeing Last!

O for the thrill of seeing last!

To see last without calculating last.

Let that be the foundations for the flashback imagery.

Emmanuel George Cefai
O Game Of Tears

Rising soul of fears Condemnation for years
A pain
That echoed forty years Or so:
Even so
With me too
The tears have been mine
Too much, too more,
And
yet
Not one fair dawn Arises in my home.

Emmanuel George Cefai
O History Is At Present In The Grave.

O history is at present in the grave.

We buried her, but it will transcend
The grave-stones and the bier.

And any way its ghost will not shy
Of haunting us again and again and again

There is so large a queue I see so many Many heads royal, wealthy, poor, Desperate, emarginated:
All under lock and key
Out of the trammels of human history:
Human, I say, human history.

Emmanuel George Cefai
O How Wish I To Go

O how wish I to go
Go to the land Where season does not follow Another season
Where dusk and night and dawn
No longer separate
Or rule between them the realm of day:

And in the dark unfathomable night
My soul will sail and feel and speak not word.

Emmanuel George Cefai
O Let Me Find The Courage Of The Man,

O let me find the courage of the man,
The grown-up, the Adult, the antithesis Of the Child in Heart and in Soul:
More Heart less Soul the Adult More Soul Less Heart the Child:
Were I to do a bad thing
I would feel Adult and I would feel Man, See the swaddling clothes of Child Behind me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
O Let Me Tell You,

‘O let me tell you, ’
Said the old white beard
And he sighed
And he groaned
Then continuing said ‘when yonder buildings Were just a green field’

‘I knew them in my youth I knew them in boyhood
And in my old age
I only view the stones and Cement
Bury the view that once I Sat upon’

‘Yon, yon there was an oak Old oak with boughs
And branches furnished all For housing of wise owls Aged and younger nightingales Who sang all seasons maturely in the
Nights’

‘How many glimpses of White come and go saw I as in the dark of night
the ghosts and shrouds
played round the oak:
fearless the friendly owls continued still and fearless sang all night the nightingales’
'But ah! times change
As the Latin assert:
O times! O customs!
Before more in the eyes
Of the owners as a field
A pride of land it was But then came times
When sound of coins Dross papers and dross Wealth the brain and will That was before blinded'

'No longer the tree that majestic loomed; no longer friendly round played
ghosts and shrouds
and in full sight of all the other trees.
No longer now.
The owls have aged and Gone their young ones Flew and the same fate Followed the nightingales'

'Now only the winds neighs
And this
On wintry days of hoar Mostly and generally:
Its sad heart emptying
And this sad tale
In its rough language telling.
Now only the wind,
Now only the wind neighs'

Emmanuel George Cefai
O Orient You Must To-Night Work

O Orient you must to-night work
Work what you should before arises
The coming of the Dawn day’s genesis:
Come close your eyes
Taste of the wine
Drink deep: for deep
The pitcher has cooled in the earth:
Come, close your eyes and Sleep.
Ninny nanny, sing a ditty!
Come Orient close your eyes and Taste of wine!
Put round your head the Bacchanalian ivy,
The green that sparkles so in the moon’s light!
O Orient!

Emmanuel George Cefai
O Said I To Myself To-Day

O said I to myself to-day
As I was walking below the arches Of Saint John’s Square in old Valletta
The air was lean; the clouds were mean And frowning as I passed By the shops, the restaurant, the shoe shops,
The clothes shops and the rest:
Then up to Zachary Street and more shops,
O I said to myself under the arches
If why so-called living things are as of sexes Why females are as females, males as males
A book of Principles will open before me:
Let me explore and think and find Principles.
No sooner said than done.
On the damp earth made slippery by the rain That slant-wise under the arches too had wetted
I was about to slip; O! my back Have I broken my spine? Fear, fear, fear.
And in the trembling of that Fear saw I
The fading – for the moment – of my thinking.

O Saint John the Cathedral!
The night in the square I!
How wish to terrify!
Below the trees that cut Now grow again
To be the home of the past homeless birds:
Temporary their exile from their berths.
So with us, . Humans.
Pain, suffering, imprisonment, auctions, Courts, Marshals, police, hand-cuffs, cells, grating of iron,
The judges’ sentence, and the rest of paraphernalia Are just the same as temporary in proportion direct As cigars, automobiles of luxury, sedans, halls, Palaces, lands, flats, projects, et ceatera, et caetera,
And as the high-dressed tail-coated presidents Of States of courts, prime minister, ministers, Cabinets and councils, tycoons and politicians, Well need I continue with the list?
It is not worth such trouble being Only so temporary.
Easy, my friend Obvious, my friend, Doctor Watson Said Sherlock Holmes Easy.
Easy Obvious.

I.
I that saw land upon the littered sky
The heavens, the embittered, disappointment
After disappointment – a photocopy
Of all my life –

Saw, I knew and I experienced.

Four thousand days or rather
Three thousand days – ten years:
My mother is already eighty-seven
And she is well nigh blind:
And she decays now day by day:
What will be in four thousand days
And three thousand days or more Or less?

*

Then in the north sang the wind
Then from the north came the chill
And then the rain that formed a little rill
And splashed with rain-drops the dreamy window-sill
Yes dreamy! The housed dreamt and slept
When before their pining eyes wept
At the red dusk’s fall and passing
At the night unwelcome coming
At the grow popularity of night
As star by star he cunning light:
Then in the north sang the wind
Then from the north came the chill
And the rain formed (see above) a little rill.

Come through the fog that hangs!
Chilly ghost of the reel of the future;
Cut my hair now before it grows not
Cut it you will hold it
In a reliquary of forgotten humans:
Who strived not to be forgotten:
Who wrote, who thought, who asserted.
Come through the fog that hangs!
The clock of age is to be reverted as by magic.
Magic will be the mechanics by which the clock of age be reverted

The pulpit violet opens its mouth
That its petals (in as direct proportion) :
To-night I will recall some of Tolkien’s Characters – o! call Kafka to the meeting:
Add, me to them and from our meeting
Let new forms and new characters arise
The profane crowd needs them; yes Now more than ever; the rate of Balance will be as directly proportional Between the materialistic down
Down-to-earth characters and the magic characters:
All be that is asserted; so all characters Magic and materialistic be
But the magic ones prefer we
We, Humans who dare to dream, and save ourselves
At the last moment.
You must be stronger that is more Machiavellian
To win this political chess in a democracy
Where the incumbent has the upper hand:
And is unashamed to use the upper hand:
You must never hesitate in the circumstances
To use the dirtiest of tricks, one after one, ever-increase.

Gilded dwell
Amidst the blue lights
Of the winter night:
Of the moon light
Of the star light
To us
These be given to joy
The Earth’s toy
To us her children:
A heart that joys
More than it grieves:
A heart that pines
At the red dusk
That ecstasies at the new Dawn.

Whither do you go lone star that strays
From your path towards the arch
Of dark that surrounds you?

Why stray you from the company of peers
And kin of stars this night that so Serene looks over the earthly scene?

You will not speak; you will not tell;
But give me the key to your heart
That I may know. I will not tell.
Over the silver waters, relax you
Just as Moses flowed
Over the Nile unawares a young child.

And Destiny took care and still
It makes the Moses case not just
The single exception.

But more, more Destiny knocks at the door
With joyous tidings for those who Expect it not, the more for them to joy.

*

Waters that rise
Though there be no fountain
But as magic surprise
And dances the snowy mountain.

*

Blue light that from the wild dark Escapes into the moon light Strays into the path of flying insects Round the neon lights:
And shuns the path
Out of respect
Where ghosts and shrouds lament

*

New style
Midnight dancing
New child
Midnight dews
Hourly showers
Falling as silver dowers
The whole night till the Dawn
And then
On the green till the edge
Of cliff and sea-beach sparkles
A million and more eyes,
Tiny eyes, welcoming the Dawn.

O That I Dream, And Dream Abstruse Today

O that I dream, and dream abstruse to-day
Dream full abstruse to cut the chains Of this attachment to conventionality:
Day follows routine of the day Night follows day, next day follows
The wheel turns on; the sands fall down
The time-glass full becomes; years pass;
And our hands are empty.

O that I dream, and dream abstruse to-day
At last my vexed brain in the vexations Of abstruse dreams and dreaming will Find its old self its will its youth, past.
No subject is proposed; goblins Fauns, satyrs, all welcome are As the Three Graces; beauties white And the white northern snows I want And more the goddesses of ebony
From weltering wealds in tropic lushness lost:
These all I want and love and all commixed
In one abstruse idiom; like a potion Everything is mixed and simultaneously
There is a taste of everything
The abstruse film at one time concentrates
And the scene is ‘diurnal’ ‘normal’ nay:
Then the ribbons of the film are raveled
And images whirl one into the other mixed And climb I the high mount of the abstruse:
And in those intervals
My brain its lease of vital oxygen gets In its gasp, and asphyxia intellectual:
The night slumbers on touched by the wand
Of Morpheus.
At one time then the ribbons of the film Seem to be unraveled by themselves (Or by a hand invisible else unseen In that morphean madness) such the brain Mutters itself away as do the lips Giving strange words in language unknown:

I dream
Of ancient towns, of alleys strait,
Of waters raging opening their white jaws Of green-faced storms; green seas; then A green giant lizard on the shore With horrid rolling eyes of red So large, I say, so large; and then Seeing me so small Gulliver-like I yield to my arcane instinct and flee.
Then on the roof I stand in the dark night
And horrid the wild winds about me whirl Their eerie cries how frightening to me
I seem to hear now that am awake:
And then, and then, the shadows grey and taut That like a robber going down on the wall Went down the stone-stairs and in the dark Was lost, into the night it went.

O that I dream, I dream abstruse to-day.

O That The Flow Of Time

O that the flow of time
Could be transfixed
As Lot in to a statue!

Then I would stop the clock Full many a decade ago
To repair my errors.

Emmanuel George Cefai
O To Be Haunted!

O to be haunted!
What a favor sir!
You
Will have fortune viewing
The night tremble at Your feet
As a sick pet!

How haunting has Chosen the night for Her playgrounds favorite?

Haunting be beauty
And the night choose beauty Chose haunting,
That's it, my Monsignor.

O To End Verse In Fragment!

O to end verse in fragment!
You will object, I not.

Emmanuel George Cefai
O With These Thoughts, You Query,

O with these thoughts, you query,
And you say,
Why do you dwell, why?
The spell of martyrdom is on you.
That you can view
By looking in the mirror of last year.
There
You will see reflected the New Year.
Enemies – excuse me for the word to-day –
The same as the last Year will bear.

Emmanuel George Cefai
O Wound That Red Opens And Gapes.

O wound that red opens and gapes.
Still restless as a wild tsunami.

The red flesh still beats, beats, beats.
The heavens roll their eyes.

The ruins of the ancient temples
The bastions and salty stones shudder.

The red eyes of the Poet Seer circle Around the dark or erudition.

Mute the painting sits and gapes.
Dawn hides behind the curtains.

Emmanuel George Cefai
O Yearn I To Distance Me Away

O yearn I to distance me away
From the city:
And into the green open bosky land to roam and roam.
And therefore let me sing

Of the enchanted bough that bent itself
To reach to rabbits brawny that around it played;

Of the old oak that in the midst of night Spoke and conversed with the nightingale That on its high bough sate and sang and sang.

Of the yew tree that midst the silent walks More silent made at night in cemeteries From its lone place unearthed and with silent steps Moved its trunk all-leg-like through the paths That are the streets on which the graves do lie While the pale moon like a search-light still Threw its pale rays across the silent slabs.

Of the green hill that in the thick of night With bosom black against the azure sky Linear and ascending high Was peopled with animals queer and strange That in dark hours find their liberty.

Of goblins green that clambered through the vales
Of fauns that climb the citadel’s high walls;
Of satyrs colored that in some hidden vale Dance on the mead as the Three Graces do When dawn sheds its first rays on sleeping trees

Of nymphs that silent dance in hidden coves Their foot-print tiny in the red sands sinking While the great Ocean letting his waves in Runs over the small foot-prints hiding them From curious eyes and minds that morrow brings.
Whilst the great Ocean’s mighty waves resound Echoing from arm to arm of bay with sounds rebound.
Of these, of these, and more I sing and let me sing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
O! for the first red lines of dusk
Than for the glory of the mid-day sun For the small-wafting wind among the trees Than for the gusts of restless winter frost:
For the sweet gurgling of the friendly stream Than for the current of the river strong:
For the sweet pain, the sweet remorse,
The stolen eye-glance from black eyes Like arrows vying furtively:
The sweetness of the ending day
The switching off of chirping birds
As one by one the city-lights afar Light up all linear in the hazy dusk And day now on her pillow rests her head.
O! for the first red lines of dusk!

Emmanuel George Cefai
O! I Need Verse, I Need Song

O! I need verse, I need song
To warm from the frost and the chill That I came from:
Outside
Outside
Ah! The heart warms inside, but More in the thrall and ecstasy Of word sculpted on other word Michelangelo-like but not in marble:
And then
The fragments gathered like a broken china Gathered, and gathered with love And dedication new A song, a poem, and a joy new constitute.

Emmanuel George Cefai
O! Let Me Gather These Mellow Lines

O! let me gather these mellow lines for they matured in weeping and despair, in long, long nights of sleepless restlessness, in reddening dusk of pining, in sunsets orange and waning,
o! let me gather these mellow lines.

Emmanuel George Cefai
O! The Seed Is Not Yet Ripe

O! the seed is not yet ripe
the grass is growing and the fields are greening:
but as yet winter slow is going and with soft tiptoeing slow, alas too slow the Spring
is coming.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The skies
O! the skies were in his eyes
And
The heavens were in his face
And
The authority of his face
Was the authority of the heavens.

His voice was loud as was The thunder of roaring crowds and The thunder of busting heavens
The thunder of clouds at their wild In vast Patagonia.

His heart was as the Ocean for it was Quiet in its restlessness.

And his feet were the glaciers and mountains
And canyons of earth
For they were giant symbols too

And he Knew that the times had for him come To lead with that sparkle in magnanimous eyes That paradise that was lost in heavens and skies That faded but was in the dark of the night That came yet again and again with the light of the Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
O! When In The Levitation Of Ecstasy

O! when in levitation of the ecstasy Of song and verse and sheer poesy
I rise, I will rise to The heights of the heavens
Immense
Immense
High and dwelling before The altars of the Olympian gods where Incense-laden bearers torches bear.

O! intensity! Intensity in All, Intensity is All And is the One in Evolution, Evolution Whittling its pride to the One, Evolution to Evolution, One to One,
Those
Those, the transformations
The transpositions.

Cupid will be lactated by his jealous mother:
Though
He has grown enough: already She taught the Art of the Quiver The Art of the Arrow, the cunning
The ecstasy of love, its net.

Imprinted in the sands are the traces Of the giant feet where on the Long, long, long sand of beach, Deserted, far from the Human towns And villages:
Jove lighting down on Earth,
Came down, like an Eagle,
But not an eagle of war, but of Peace.

Inspecting as in a film
The events of History he rose Disgusted from the airy hall
That was no hall and had no roof at all:
Jupiter arose and back to Olympus sped.
You see, my Monsignor, you see How I sing, versify and chant:
You that have heard me now
For many a long hour can Your judgment pass on my methodology
Nay
You can start yourself, set up Yourself as a Poet-Seer.

Then
There will two Voices rise silver Through the mists and clouds Where Venus dwells half in Between the Earth and great Olympus:
There
Let us both, my Monsignor,
Lull the fair beauty goddess by her trick,
Her own property, Beauty, lying Her to rest
In her golden hummock between Earth And great Olympus.

Oak

An old oak And old sight
A pity
A lost pride

Emmanuel George Cefai
Oak Of Root On Root

Oak of root on root old and ancient-edged flattering of age of centuries
waters
that you look in pond in the public garden from drear clear turned to crystal clarity

Emmanuel George Cefai
Oars In The Water

Oars in the night
Oars in the water
In cunning stealth
The waters delved they
From the banks
On either side
A march of sighs
And groans.
And it was night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Oblivion

Oblivion cunning
Amongst the graves
He roams
Smiling
Day and night
His was work be easy
For
In the hum-drum drear
Of days
All days
Day after day
He oversees that Just things remain Unnoticed or at war
His net be wide
A few escape it To his dismay
But Then he sees Vast crowds inside
Feels satisfaction

Emmanuel George Cefai
Obstinate Poet Seer

Obstinate Poet Seer
I speak to you
You do not answer
Nor look the way
My words come.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ocean Ablaze

Ocean ablaze

Though it be winter

Though it be night

The music sings

The violins play in the Heavens Where lyres compose Verses divine and Sacred

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ocean Rustling

The ocean how
It
Is Rustling:
The ear of The lighthouse
Is half deaf
With giant Screaming

Emmanuel George Cefai
Oceans Seething

A sea of seething Oceans seething
Only land quiet
The rest is bubbling
The rest evolution

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ode To Dawn

‘Dawn climbing yon eastern hill’ ‘Dawn with a crown and scepter walked’ ‘Dawn climbing the hill of Fiesole’

All these describe Your genesis of life
And ushering of day Good news
Dispelling solitude
And black despair.

For you
the Graces will out of the hidden lair arise before they could with sleepy eyes
and still by sweet Morpheus potioned moving listlessly and talking prattle and chatting like small girls coming out of the lecture room

Sweet Dawn reminder of the way
The cycles of life
Will come and go:
As Night hath closed the day Another leaf you open Another day
And so the cycle starts again.

In you
The scars that Earth Hath gotten in the day
That went before
Are as in ablution solved
In you sweet river
In your waters fresh
As the Indian in Ganges His cleansing makes;
As the Greek fauns and elves
That in waters sacred laved And turned to reeds and grass And then all back again
At will transforming them.

You too
You too
Sweet Ode to-day Hath marked
A new Beginning in my poesy:
In line with your namesake

And where Sweet Dawn has trod
This early morning day
I will let flowers grow
Out of the dewy grass:
And violets appear Where soil bare soil before Was in the night before When Philomel last Rang out her lay With grace and harmony
To the admiring moon
That gladly shone
Its languid rays to where Our nightingale sang:

And I
And I
My lyre will take My hands are strong
My hands are fresh
And flows in my mind
The river of Poesy:
And o’er my brow
The Muse now kisses me.
And with me here
On this small hill
That overlooks my town Fair Botticelli
On his canvas paints:
And birds ring out into the sky
And waters gurgle in the flossy mill And sheep and cows and

The Muse now kisses me
And here I see The Graces coming too
And so Together we Will make new life again
In Dawn
In my sweet poesy
This Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ode To Gloom

Sometimes, sometimes
The depth of gloom Descends so far
Far
As to reach hell,
The entrails of the earth
Far point from hope Where the long night Reigns all day
And
Where the stars
Will never twinkle
Nor the moon
Its friendly languid rays will shine.

How many times
I lay
Thus pained and sacrificed
Like to the sacrificial lamb in gloom:
No friendly welcome lighthouse lit
The dark motionless sea
No breeze cooled
The leaden humidity around my soul
No oasis
Appeared; desert sands Stretched ever-increasing and wide Red burning raw and parched and hostile
And the stars
Never did twinkle in the frosty nights
Nor the moon
Its friendly languid rays shine.

But in gloom spirit works
My spirit remains Full and unconquered, suffering Yet vanquished not Blind with pain
Yet stubborn in resistance Leaden in humidity
Yet working, toiling, toiling...

Across the parched sands
I moved I pained I suffered
And then
And then
I saw an oasis
I saw my works
Bloom in full spring Surrounded by the winter wraiths:
And I thanked gloom:
Gloom, the fuel of my works.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Odoriferous Bushes

Odoriferous bushes
Touched first by night-dews Then fomented by the dawn.

With flushed face you fronted
The first sun rays
The sorrows of each new day

The tragedies round the earth Reserved for that day’s fill:
Then
In the night the many wounds
The many tragedies
Of Earth are nursed – Wounds closed and Stitched hastily –
Only to be re-opened Each fresh day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of Frost That Bites My Hands

Of frost that bites my hands
Sing I:
But worse, more deep,
More sorrowful,
The frost that gnaws the Inner Soul,
The frost that harms more, more Than frost that bites my hands.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of All That Verse Has Given Me

Of all that verse has given me
There is the sweetness of The bitter.

The sad of life that turned To desperate.

The eyes bent downwards to
The earth
As the red dusk departed From earth's field
And twilight waters fast Transformed to a deep black.

The tragedy is done!

To perish
In the lone night
As practicable
I go to the cemetery
Direct
This night
To meet the new inhabitants And peers.

Desperation is bitter but Resignation sweet.

Desperation looks down Resignation humbly Raises again from the fall
Its eyes to the skies.

Desperation is confusion In brain at most.

Resignation starts
Restoring ideas of clarity
A clear eyed dawn
After the hacking night.

Desperation hacks wild at Serenity.

Resignation starts humbly Serenity.

I know it.

I know it,
All, my Monsignor,
You have to learnt it.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of All The Nights

Of all the nights
This year
This night

The dark pit Opens
Sump of a decrepit Sunset
Gathering orange
Clouds.

The lone chapel
Bell rings Tolls Vespers done
The clouds soar
Slow
Beginning of a storm Narrow roads Country and Winding Stars eyes
Of the night
That weeps:
Waters
Twilight and Muddy now
But Clean
In the Moon's light.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of and Regarding The Necessity Of Lust

Of and regarding the necessity of lust it be hard to debate considering decreasing populations
of late:
and necessity
be the rule of the thumb
the rule of the laws why are made the laws
how are made the laws when are made the laws
and lust is supreme
and from it servants and slaves carry it on it’s throne:
on its sedan of gold and humans with small cloth hiding their loins with bare muscled thighs bend and rise
and dance
the dance of the lust and the dance of the rest as they bear triumphant and obedient King Lust and the Rest King Lust and his train
for King Lust knows that it
be a strong necessity necessity of State
and more
and with that necessity being so biological the laws write as it
wills
the King of the Laws
and at the same time at peace with Individual Sovereign Wills.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of Beauty Yet Another Song

Of Beauty yet another song
Sing I
So many songs
Sung I
Yet of Beauty
I never wear
Never tire
To sing a song.

Look! There goes
The elfin throng
Hand in hand
Among
With the muster of Ghosts and shrouds
Along:
Look! You must sing!
It be past mid-night
And the night declines Steal with fast feet
The slippery hours.

Of Beauty yet another song
Sing I
So many songs
Sung I
Yet of Beauty
I never wear
Never tire
To sing a song.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of Desperation Sung I

Of desperation sung I
For would I otherwise?
Before me fall
I saw the walls of fort by fort Fort after fort
And now
The night is come where desperation only reigns.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of Desperation You Now See The Face

Of desperation you now see the face
That face be my face too
That desperation

You see what remains?
My Monsignor, only desperation.

I will meet thirty, forty people before I go.
And I will show them some thing in the least I will show them my desperation and my face.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of Emotion In Sleep

Of emotion in sleep
ah! look at the watch and temperature of
the sub-conscious

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of Fauns  Of Satyrs

Of Fauns
Of Satyrs
of Nymphs of dancing Graces of dancing Nymphs
so many!
so many!
The Spirit-World the crown
of the Sub-Conscious be!
let us join let think
and let us sigh!
Wear green round our heads
drink
from pitchers of the night
where in the cool glades hidden and coiled round
cuddled in chill the Rats Toads Hedgehogs
sleep:
of Fauns
of Satyrs
of Nymphs
of dancing Graces
of dancing Nymphs
so many!
so many!
The Spirit-World the crown
of the Sub-Conscious be!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of Fear Experience Has Given Plenty

Of fear experience has given plenty the glass of injustice Destiny with cruel pitiless clinical hands forced me to drink - ay!
drink to the last drop and more:
I was prepared after you my
mother
to you too they presented the chalice of poisoned injustice and calumny
and every thing they could hurl at a martyr's head:
you
went away a martyr,
though they feigned you made a restful end that I who raved and raged for my loss was a villian of whom they too sought and seek still the end ay! that is injustice upon injustice upon injustice the weary heart how much it can be loaded at last the strings will break too much, too much the heart be loaded another martyr will like his mother fall and join her in the Elysium where she dwells.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of Horror Do We

Of horror do we ever have enough?
Life has thrills
one be horror.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of Jewels Of The Night

Of jewels of the Night
Stars
Night-dews Flying veils of Nymphs
Goblins with long Green ears
Palms that wave Firs and oaks
That slightly move
The wind at night
By the song of the lover nightingales Impressed and sealed Lured over bastions Lured over twilight seas Decadent houses hotels villas Lured
To the centuries of old Romantic
Lured to the sub-conscious Lured
To the night lights
Suns minor that come
At night and go
At will Rather than as by Dawn
In parts
Where spells hold their sway:
In these
In Finland
There was a silence
From this orchestra
There
Was a silence and it was At once
A sudden silence
The night
Stepped slow down
Piss-smelling steps Right going down from The bastions at their heights
To plains and vales
Below
Hewn in the rocks of Brazen centuries
Wild
With the greatness of night
The walking of the dawn
The Finland sadness Violin that strings
Not just in Venice
But in less warm lands
And climes
Of snows and ruffling winds Finnish plains and Finnish woods
Where the wind plays the Orchestra of plural violins:
These be the facts
These the spells
Of so many hazy nights
In to the mazy ways
Of centuries
Of centuries.
The rocks of history Hewn
With hammers and picks
Of centuries
Brimming
With the restless clapping Of the wings of Time
Sucking
The honeys of long nights
But that was long ago
But that was long ago
But that was long ago.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of Pain

Of Pain
You must use your brain Decrease it:
Whatever the circumstance Let pain you will decrease Decrease.

Thoughts so often blur
The pangs of pain
Together Pain and Thought
So often war
So often compete For be not Pain and Thought competitors?

Therefore my Monsignor Let Pain be lessened everywhere Save where The pain works of high intellect Brings forth.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of Skeleton And Bones

Of skeleton and bones
Now think I:
Mother you were A fount of energy Sick but not distressed Down but wall of courage
Yet
Now
Now
Skeleton and bones
Now think I

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of The Old Church

Of the old church
foundations weep.

For they knew not happiness and knew only hard work
and pining eyes.

Verse so often be so.

Yet of all verse speak out the Inner Soul more than other things.

Even the Inner Soul in its pristine strength and glories of the old and heavens wide will bend and remain so.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of Things That Happened That Again

Of things that happened that again will happen
phenomena

in the cemetery every night the school of ghosts and shrouds opens its doors

the school of ghosts and shrouds is moveable, not fixed not rooted to the ground as our human buildings be.

For it has not fear from falling, nor needs aid in not tumbling.

Last night attentive spy I heard the chants Gregorian of the singers and saw that not only we humans sing yet there was a shrill eeriness in those voices a-angelic yet that brought to brain multitudes of thought and if last night that phenomenon happened, why not on other nights for those who watch?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of This That According

Of this that according to old science and
civilization
is to be 'proved'
by building on 'that' and then 'that' will be built on another 'that'
and so on
and so on
till be reached that level where there will a last 'that' in the finity of 'thats'
and the last 'that'?
that will just assertion
just.
therefore we come full circle and all in all, all rests on and be assertion

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of Thought Deep Now

Of thought deep now
I Am void and my brain Ticking through the day Needs rest, quiet rest
To begin yet
Yet another day
Another dawn that looks
A fresh dawn yet
In
Its first growing seed Carries with it, in it
The sunset, red dusk, Gloom
And Night and trembling winter tombs: Await! Await!
The trembling skies with trembling stars Are loaded
But the frost and the chill augment The gloom
That be our destiny
Of mask the joy
Joy be a mask, not more Below the doom
Of misery and gloom.
Noble the verses remain
And the more sad
More noble grow and shine
But still the night Dark in the background Shines ominous: the doom
Of all of us that joy at times Rare, medium, many Yet to a path we come where Before us we behold the wraiths
The shrieking bats, rivers Worse than Styx and hideous shrouds And grey, grey shadows pacing Restless here and there:
And
In this torpid scenery and time Let me in the arms of Morpheus
Fall:
My mask will fall and so I will the other masks to fall
And in the gloom that rises still Mist-like around me cowering
The silent spirit with damp hand
Skeletal:
I find in sleep the doom
Of my days, the film
Of all that passed, the close,
The falling of the curtains End of scenes, the drama ends
And I will speak no more No, nor more sing

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of Words In The Important Occasion

Of words
In the important Occasion
I grew chary
Of thoughts and what
To say
I grew scary Near to dumb
And Rooted to the ground
I left the place
Without a sound.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Oh For The Forte Of The Notes

from the piano of the heavens
the heavens wanted that the heavens and the firs
the gardens were in accord.

animals preferred, certain animals,
pREFERRED
to hold the funeral of friends and relatives at night

chants rose, now higher, higher wafted on the winds higher, higher,
the funerals were there, the cemeteries not only, the gardens everywhere yet
all silent spots

I saw the night walk over the clouds towards the city-gates of his own City.

O for the forte of the notes
from the piano of the heavens
the heavens wanted that
the heavens and the firs
the gardens were in accord.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Oh My Judgment

Oh my judgment
I must not pass judgment as otherwise some one else claiming equal rights willing full right of the Individual Sovereign Will judge me and that's peer review!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Old

'Old' what is old?
Old be relative
As
All in the mass universe
And Young be just As relative

Emmanuel George Cefai
Old Age

Whereon work I Old age with me blares all round
and at the door ringing the bell A figure with a scythe
humming.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Old Fig Tree

Do you remember beneath
The bastions
Beneath the old fig tree?

I and you
Together huddled
As the dusk went out
And Night on his car Lighted star by star.

Do your remember Hours that passed
And months and years!
Those were ten and five years
Those fifteen elapsed Years!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Old Humble Breeze

Old humble breeze
That withers slow
As you trudge on
And on
The towns approach
And leaves
The open country sides
And
In the town
Around
The houses neighs
Around
The corners
Singles out chimneys
And their tops:
Old humble breeze
That withers slow
As you trudge on
And on.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Old Humble Breeze That Withers Slow

Old humble breeze
That withers slow
As you trudge on
And on
The towns approach
And leaves
The open country sides
And
In the town
Around
The houses neighs
Around
The corners
Singles out chimneys
And their tops:
Old humble breeze
That withers slow
As you trudge on
And on.

Old Man Figure

Old man
Figure
I saw you on the cliff
Before
The break of day
Before
The smiles of Dawn
I Saw you
I saw you Standing Standing
In
The Frost
Of Chill airs
And Clouds
Where Hope
Was Ever-dim - now
The smiles of Dawn
Are passed too and Returns
The drear of day
Again
I see you move
Then
Go Walk
Slow
Then Beyond and Under
A ridge-line of rock Fade.
So fade we
Too
It be a matter Of time,
Yes,
A matter of time, my Monsignor

Emmanuel George Cefai
Old Man Figure I Saw You On The Cliff

Emmanuel George Cefai
Old Monastery

on the night clouds, driven, lugubrious
the goblins!

from earth as with wings Minerva raised them

old monastery of miracles preached miracles are as of us all and monasteries our thrill of night come! climb the hill and view the monastery in its splendor old-arcane

song of the boiling blood, white handkerchiefs in the frost airs and mists wave till the Dawn chases them.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Old Oak

Like an old oak I go down
My boughs Bend
And
together towards earth descend.

Age Brought me
Here
Age Brought me to this My voice
That once was loud and Clear
Filled the buildings
Country streets
Where it went
Now
As the dimmest light Draws syllables.

Trees
Have seed in them
And I
Had seed unutilized
And now
That I regret
Those days
My seed is sere;
My seed be old.

Like as to as Old house
Like as to a rusting
Bell
Like to a flower in Its prime
That bends and fades
Like a fair maid
That maddened all
With beauty
Now
An old grey woman-pilgrim Walking-stick.

Like an old oak
I go down
My boughs
Bend
And
together towards earth
descend.

Old Romance Rages

In the old musty pages
Old romance rages

In the old musty pages
Hid in between the lines Often
Wisdom of wisest sages.

In the old musty pages
Dream folded up
The Ages

Old Skeletons

The old skeletons they train
The new younger ones
In drill and military discipline
For marches of the night Deep midnight

Emmanuel George Cefai
Old Stones

rumbled the old stones over the cart rolled the wheels over the cart ruts fell right before midnight the moon that had risen over Santi and Mtahleb in arms of Gnejna.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Old Valletta

I saw him
Going up
The ancient turrets
And
The ancient parvis
In the ancient fort
By old Valletta

Knight in green
He roamed Disconsolate
Without a word
In silence
He lamented yet
Went through the world.

This night of nights
I saw him going up
Again
Again
For
I saw him
Going up
The ancient turrets
And
The ancient parvis
In the ancient fort
By old Valletta

Emmanuel George Cefai
Old Wisdom

old wisdom ruled the Earth in ancient days and we must not boast too much of our ways for though we have wisdom too and more yet both ancient and now in wisdom be all relative

Emmanuel George Cefai
Old Wood

Old Wood silent
In the folds of the Night you dream.

Feel
Solitary but at night
The dreaming city-town
Makes company.

Here there no laws
Save
Those that Beauty enacts
When Minerva to her side
Descends
For a the high heavens
For a good measure,
Old wood.

Emmanuel George Cefai
On A Clear Night

Ran Ran
The hounds
I saw them on a clear night Running black small from Star to star Increasing speed as Fear pursued them
Their survival instinct as Proportionate to Their ever-increase of speed
The hounds
I saw them
I
I
I

Emmanuel George Cefai
On A Lower Hill.

I Found Him Suckling
On A Lower Hill.

Dawn
And Dusk Both Retiring Under
The Same Coppice Whispered
Together
Close

And Lanky
On
The Seas
The Hammer
Beat
Of Freedom Screaming
Full
'Free me!
Free me! '
Time
Was Passing;
Age
Was Following

Emmanuel George Cefai
On An Island

On an island the waters wave
And go.

And in the night the palms
Through their reeds Flute sounds low
And humming over
The sacred hills and low.

On the island
Not far from the sea
Most places gone
On a sacred island.

Fear not!
The mists are friendly
And the chill
Just haunting.

Temples for centuries
Have long arisen Rains, chill, winds On them all
They battled wild
And raw.

Yet
On the island be sweet Recompense:
Soft spring, wild Summers on the go
Temples for centuries.

Emmanuel George Cefai
On And On The Vessel Skimmed

On and on the vessel skimmed silent through the night waves
and by and past flew lands

till in the open seas where the moon passage formed on bosom of the waves the vessel skimmed and sailed that night ah! that night that night was one of spell there was more magic than one should tell alone and without hands the vessel plied the waves only voices heard were of shrouds ghost and slaves that in the past gone by the vessel plied the waves

by now the slaves were shrouds
and
on and on the vessel skimmed
silent through the night waves
and by and past flew lands

Emmanuel George Cefai
On Every Front I Lose, My Armies Lose

On every front I lose, my armies lose.
Yet when the dusk begins its reign I take up the lute and seeing which The Muse kisses me and I Sing what coins and power cannot sing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
On March We On March

On march we on march Will it be otherwise when With every step unfolds the new In Beauty's reign?
When calm and quiet smoke Arise around us
Calming our eyes and our brains?
Lo! Where are below cut and Gone Abandoned those that tied us
The earth's chains.

Now thus unbound
As great Prometheus strong around With dainty nymphs other nymphs Reproduce
A gentle kiss - enough!
A fairy born! A nymph!
No complications as in lower Earth But Beauty surfeits herself Continual in giving birth.
Thus Beauty more of Beauty grows Reproduces and her reign she spreads Everywhere, every time the target

Emmanuel George Cefai
On One Shortcoming

On one shortcoming
The structure fell
As it was done Throughout
All in and in and
Out and out.
And he would not Find tears to weep.

Emmanuel George Cefai
On poetry am I drunk
as with the bee
that flower to flower sucks and nectar
finds.
But drunkenness is finite.
So when finity of it be near let the Olympians conspire give way to my desire make me drunk again that I am sing continue in my verse forget all else:
Drunken I view the Earth be full so full of injustices!
and I as drunk
the Earth as topsy turvy see!
Earth does the same to me!
We disagree!
Yet somehow we go on:
As a bee I suck on my beloved drinking
my verse and song
and sing with clear tongue
and chant:
for
On poetry am I drunk
as with the bee
that flower to
flower
sucks and nectar
finds.
On Pretty Toes

On pretty toes
On pretty woes
She dances
The Muse dances

And there's a Sweet sounding
Of notes
From Hastings Gardens
Coming.

Though it be night
Continues subdued the Music
Continuous
On her pretty toes
The Muse a-dancing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
On Rare Night, Not All,

On rare night, not all,
Not all nights,
There be a cunning Shroud That stealthy paces and paces With footsteps in the sand At the beaches of Porto Ercole
And the stars are above
And the town dreams and sleeps
And it be night
Precisely mid-night striking

Emmanuel George Cefai
On The Bastions

I breathed a plume
You moved not
I on the bastions
Rose
Head downwards
Suddenly you rose Joking

Emmanuel George Cefai
On The Dull Humus Sate A

On the dull humus sate a Butterfly
With wings spotted, outstretched with childish look in its small
eyes
and sunset was in one eye dusk in the night
yet on its forehead amidst its wise antennae of sensivity it lodged the night expectant to come forth as pregnant mother to a destined birth
the stars already were servants-in-waiting the droll waters were slow, slower
gurgling:
and one by one farmhouse on plain destitute and dreamy town came off the sordid
lights.

Emmanuel George Cefai
On The Grey Walls The Doomed Walls

On the grey walls
The doomed walls
The shadows danced
How rapid the shadows
Flew!
And in the background
An eerie music played

Emmanuel George Cefai
On The Heath

On the heath the figures tall as pencils stand together stand and smoke arises sacrificial smokes

a hand
grows out of the moon
and comes towards then stops

rises
rises higher the smoke
ah! that was in the turn of time
in ages of the centuries that were long
long ago
slow yet irreversible
they faded.
slow and irreversible
ah! that was in the turn of time
in ages of the centuries
that were long
long ago
for age wins wins so often, my monsignor, so wearying.

Emmanuel George Cefai
On The Heath He Stood

On
The Heath
He Stood
Turning
Round
And Round
From Distances
The Cry
Of
The Bleat
Of Sheep
A Rare Cry
Of Wolf
A Sudden Rustling
In
The Hedge
Then Silence
Just
The Nearby
Springlet water
Gurgling
Silence
Silence
Silence
Emmanuel George Cefai
On The Hill That Is The One

On the hill that is the one
That at red dusk glimmers With a strawberry light that comes and
Goes
We on that hill were climbing in The afternoon already
To be there by the dusk and ready.
For we wanted
To view below us the red dusk Play with the wide-blue-eyed seas and Waters below us
And there came twilight next and Blinding colors in a short mist Curtain that went and fell as Fast as it had come.

Emmanuel George Cefai
On The Myrtle Of The Dais

On the myrtle of the dais Marble and gold intertwined And mixed site specific And not
The beauties of the night
Of the last night Fled with running feet Of rapid stealth and Sliding.

Where be the cross that Hovered azure and blue
And yet deeper blue According to the times
In the high trees tree-high?

That was of cemetery
And we must, we must,
Harp on cemeteries,
For there so much of time
And destiny
Of so many humans
Passed
Even though
Admit we Immortality

Emmanuel George Cefai
On The Plain Of Sacrifice

On the plain of sacrifice
The Angels from all Sides
With golden trumpets Sang harmonious melodies
Nocturnal
Sweet as Dawn to come Harbingers of the Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
On the port sand he stretched saw the earth giddyinbg round saw the sun turning round and round stretched there and stirred and then moved not and that was that
at Porto Ercole
the Artist unfortunate

Emmanuel George Cefai
On The Red

shots on the red

Emmanuel George Cefai
On The Reversal Of Destiny

On the Reversal of Destiny

Yes
That be the title of these Verses
This song.

You reverse
In a supreme reversion Through Immortality

And you
Are at a loss
When you suspend Immortality

Emmanuel George Cefai
On The Warpath

On the warpath
Yet reason Stirs
Still.

Organization
Still Lurks Minority percentage
Even
In the clouds flying
In the air
The spume on the rocks
The white-foaming Mouth-waves

Thought meanders
Here and there Snake
Of revolution Not to be Stopped.
Too late
Too late Master Time and Evolution
Have taken over
Now.

Emmanuel George Cefai
On The Waters Glimmering

I

On the waters glimmering
the red toed nymphs are treading
slowly
slowly
slowly though night be yet beckoning

II

O to be Beauty and to give of Beauty be a noble task:
and Beauty in the night quite equally shines smiling and as splendidly as in the first splendid lights that Dawn with her bring when over sea and shore and land alights

Small songs be these small verses
the Lyre strings
the Poet Seer sings and chants where there was silence
before but soon Silence reigns back on All and no sound rings.

IV

I saw you go helter-skelter round the corner of the house where alien be all sound and silence silver rides
where together Dawn and Dusk abide.

V

And
tingling are the bells
to-day
I heard them when begun they on the sad air to float continued since
yet before noon the bells had ceased
and ceased again

VI

Sundry notes sundry verses sundry sounds
all all go round and round terse and lyrical wine of the Soul and breeder of more Inner Souls nobility herself
walking

VIII

Verse I have been friend to you
Verse
Long have I suffered Long, long, to make you long suffering Soul that with long hours parched suddenly flames
alights
the Poet Seer the Lyre strings and verse and song begin

IX

Not in the halls of emperor and king Nor in the sombre majesty that gilt cathedrals adorns No, nor in the palaces of nobility
No, no.
But on a humble hill the Poet-Seer since early dawn awaking night star-gazing, tired sings.

X

Notes
Notes that come
and
with them
the sprinkling of thoughts random as yet as lyrical:
chance and probability their mechanics methodical.

XI

Sweet silence
sweet in the long, long hours where silence silver reigns in the glooms
of waning dusks and tombs not marble gilt but humble:
to his roots
the human turns tired and bent sick of glories and now the brain of cemeteries dream
and rest
rest blessing of the Earth
and body turning towards the Earth from which arose
to close!
the book to close!
the tale and yarn to end
at last!

Emmanuel George Cefai
On The Waters Looked The Sick-Room

On the waters looked the sick-room with three others old yet breathing
still face upwards you lay mother all unmoving

Emmanuel George Cefai
On The Wings Of The Night

On the wings of the Night
Flew a lonely fairy:
Weeping, weeping.

Below scoured the bats in circles round
Without a sound.

I saw the fairy
‘My mother, o my mother’

Emmanuel George Cefai
On This Black Earth That Hits

On this black Earth that hits
Our naked feet with thorns
That hits our naked feet with jutting rocks
This Earth is raw, yes, raw
And savage
But She be sincere:
And in that sincerity she hurts us
Thereby she teaches us and points
How suffering must be to save us
Somewhat.

Emmanuel George Cefai
On This Land

Though
On this land
The discovery was made History remained as Silent and Tight-lipped
As the old ramparts

Emmanuel George Cefai
On Toes And Tenterhooks

On toes and tenterhooks up on my toes stand I waiting the wings of destiny to wing their dark way by:
scented the waters
flow.
As by the Rhine I by the scents that exude in the night
I
am elated.
Though be I on toes and tenterhooks.

Emmanuel George Cefai
On Top

On top
On top of the hill side
To reach
You have to pass Lawn after lawn of Beauty
Snow white Snow but warm Breathing quiet first Then with more heaving Breasts:
And more and more Passion lights and blindfolds
The paces towards the Desired heights More frantic become
And then
On reaching the heights
A panorama below
Giddying and ravishing
And quieter the breathing
Goes Quieter.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Once Gone

Once gone Gone Gone just No way back

Emmanuel George Cefai
Once struck so many times in a decade
And just a little more of Time:
I took my hammer so to strike again
As I had struck before the decade past:
Now Time was past and so its motion:
Relative motion that is: mind my words.
I struck again and saw that notes
As sweet or sour or as dreary came From the rock that I struck at the beginning Of yet another presumed and wished for Decade: and I was winning.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Once That Dawn Her Reign

Once that Dawn her reign begins Once that black Night her reign ends
Once that shrouds and ghosts over fields cemeteries flee as an army in disarray Once that happens the Sub-Conscious turns pale-faced in a cloak turns fugitive and the Conscious troubles start

Emmanuel George Cefai
One Day

The verses once
One day
Will come to a halt.

Next day
And the day
After
And
The week after
And
The month after
And
The years after The Halting will be A Frozen Statue.

The tongue of the Poet Seer First dilapidates with age Extreme
Then falls and breaks.

Emmanuel George Cefai
One Day, One Day Will Come

One day,
One day
One day will come
One day
One day will rise
As the dawn will rise
One day will grow
As the dawn will grow
One day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
One Hundred

A day
One hundred one thousand ten thousand
ah!
the cunning philosopher with the Poet Seer they distilled
All, the All in one big single
drop!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thinking in one language translating to
another in the laboratory of
the brain
I made new verse
I made some new history

Emmanuel George Cefai
One Law After The Other

One law after the other
Each crossing the other
That
What one law does not cover
Then Another crossing it Will cover

Emmanuel George Cefai
One long career, year after Year, Climbing a mountain of
Snows
Height calculated in the Blue heavens and threatening White of clouds
But ever, ever
From ledge to the other You go ever-increase
You think you reached the top
And Calculations burst atop
Just
Year after year
Colorful yet at the expense of Confusion, battles, envy, malice Arrows, courts, causes –
And the rest in the category.
A vessel tossed here and
There
Now up
Now down
Yet ever surviving the sinking Despite the time
The ageing
One long career, year after Year, Climbing a mountain of
Snows

Emmanuel George Cefai
One Step

one after one step after step the Figure tall
ascended how hurried it that Figure tall
as it
the steps ascended!
the dusk by hour was now past and night-torches were burning:
hurried the Figure up and up the secret staircase in hand its bore a precious phial secure in holding it
one after one
step after step
the Figure tall
ascended
how hurried it
that Figure tall
as it
the steps ascended!
And
that was long ago Gone be the Figure in the womb of Time gone are the steps in castle dilapidated shunned by those who know
and ruin in danger of falling always creaking of doors groans at night screams they heard of murder:
all went away
into the night and left the Castle
silent.
And
and that Figure tall the Figure that ascended:
ah! it went in to the womb of Time its groans and creaks
remain
out in the centuries!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Only The Moon Knows

The rest are sleeping
Do not want to know Yet it be not their fault
In any way
But Morpheus.

He touches with His wand
And People sleep:
For Those suffering
It be a Benefit.

The rest are sleeping
Do not want to know
Yet it be not their fault
In any way
But Morpheus.

Open Your Jaws Mists

Open
Open your jaws mists That hide beneath
Them
Ghosts and shrouds:
And in the opened jaws Pop skeletons and Skeleton eyes
And skeleton hands
And march of skeleton feet.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Opiate Sleep

Opiate sleep, open mouth
Of snoring in peace
This be the man that Mirrors Prometheus...

Nor worries vex him Nor troubles assault
Nor fear in his liver Or his face
This be sleeping Prometheus...
Mirror

Opiate sleep open mouth
Of snoring in peace
This be the man that Mirrors Prometheus...

Emmanuel George Cefai
Orange

The Orange has Children Too

Yes, my Monsignor
Oranges have children oranges
But not so noisy.

Monuments of almost-immotility
And of slow feelings
The oranges have children
Too.

I saw them hanging ready For the taking
Or else for the rotting
And the seed-ejection

But
When they reproduce
On a large scale Miniature of
The common ancestor tree
Of knowledge and of thought And Principles and wisdom
Then
They will hide in moon-less
Nights.

They will think always.
I walked by casually And did not hear Their brains thinking Beating
With the warmth
Of the day’s dreariness
Of the heart beat of it In its wild restlessness

Ah! for the orange Albeit slow what multiplication!
Yes, my Monsignor
Oranges have children oranges
But not so noisy
To us lecturers and Examples
My monsignor.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Oranges

Oranges
That on the tree
Where the cricket
And
The grasshopper
Melt
The boughs and leaves
And fruit
At night
With notes Amorous: Oranges
That wake
Into the gloomy brilliance of the day
Into the gloomy brilliance of new dawn
In to the cooling white of the new day
And
Still
The hisses and the amorous
Notes
The violin notes are All at home
For Oranges
That wake
Into the gloomy brilliance of the day
Into the gloomy brilliance of new dawn
In to the cooling white of the new day

Orchestra Of Animals

In the deep night playing slow
In the deep night sad all playing Slow and sad, and sad and slow
Orchestra of Animals.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Orchestra Of Sounds By Animals

Orchestra of sounds
By animals

Attend!

The fires are lit
In Hastings Gardens
They prepare
For the nocturnal feast
By the Monument of the Tomb

I saw a pair of skeletons Hand in hand
Lover-like
They to the feast
Their steps were tracing.

For
In the Orchestra of Sounds
By animals
In Hastings Gardens
They saw civilization new

Emmanuel George Cefai
Orpheus

Orpheus in a mist of cloud descended to the Earth
in Hastings Gardens.

Tinkling became every leaf and every bough
competed with the song of the nightingales.

Ceased the nightingales each to the other in wonderment they looked.

The Muse from her heights looked down to Earth her chin was in her hand.
At first.
Then smiled.

Midnight struck and the cloud of Orpheus lifted itself and unto the familiar heights it soared as a golden vessel thousand oared

And ended the night
And came the Dawn
And smiled the Muse
and heard Tinkling every leaf
and every bough

May Orpheus re-visit Earth
again!
And again and again

Emmanuel George Cefai
Orpheus Sings, But Hoarsely Sings

Orpheus sings, but hoarsely sings
To-night.

See, see how the tall thin fir trembles Trembles to-night.

See how the north star vibrates Humming to-night.

Then Neptune churns his waves Green-dark to-night.

Then the cathedral clock-tower Strikes to-night

Hour after hour go, and reverse
Not, to-night

The tall cathedral thin in the shroud’s eye:
To-night

Then the whole night dances wearily Around to-night

And the moon turns around in trances
All to-night

North, cold, and windy houses bleak
To-night

Centuries that rise as ghosts and shrouds Lament to-night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Other Side

The cats on the floor
They Moved among the rats
But caught not one
For the rats were too Cunning
And then
The cats on the coin's
Other side
Too friendly were:
So joining up
The faces of the coin Resulted
In
The cats on the floor
They Moved among the rats
But caught not one

Emmanuel George Cefai
Our Lips Dry Yet Burning

And I hold you
And
Our lips
Dry yet burning On rim
Rim to rim.

Ah! love be parched

And we will Not to stop
Yet
Time to stop full And motion be Motion of us
Only us.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Our Propensity

Our propensity is in the direction of storing, storing,
storing not so, my Monsignor?

you
you sir, my Monsignor, ask me to comment
your verse:
but it comments itself
I feel unworthy of being your judge.

then take this message.
And remember, sir,
that more we store
the more at the Pyramid of Ageing
lose in the black havoc.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Out In The Blue! Out In The Blue!

Out in the blue! out in the blue!
said the Poet Seer:
beyond
the waters stretched and a full Ocean made beyond and upwards heavens stretched in their first gleaming blue the blue of post-dawn the new day - another new day
at last
at least!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Out Of A Few Ideas The Cluster Grew.

Out of a few ideas the cluster grew.

Ideas! they part of the body intangible so to say in the parlance of ancient philosophy.

The One who the Ideas expressed went
below.

But ah! the Ideas remained and grew and
grew

And as the sere leaves tossed by the wind in eddies and in circles ever-growing so the Ideas and their ever-widening circle grew and grew.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Out Of My Own Verse I Read.

Out of my own verse I read.
And out of the verses Are born other verses
In an ever-increase That be a generation after generation More numerous than The grains of sands on the vast shores That girdle land on Mother Earth.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Over the bridge
Pass a labyrinth of figures:
hedgehogs, snails, lizards, small
and great, thorny elephants slow and stately, tiger with her cubs.... and wait...

there's a long, long train to pass creaks the bridge, the wooden bridge, spaces glitter, nymphs and satyrs stand by liveried and they pipe and play the flute...

and a Poet Seer at the end very end of the bridge
plays a lonely violin

Emmanuel George Cefai
Over The Bridge Airy In The Heavens

Over the bridge airy in the heavens Hanging by golden threads of Safety:
Over the bridge the gods in sandals Golden Look down smiling at the dots of Stars and planets
Fixed
Transfixed
Condemned to their place as Ixion
Or the donkey round the water mill.
See,
Human, the dots of stars
And planets are Fixed
Their will moves them not As they will.
And the gods chuckle slow, Laughing sardonically

Emmanuel George Cefai
Over The Edge Over The Slippery Ledges

Over
The Edge
Over
The Slippery Ledges
The Gaunt
Bird-Figure Slides
Below
Thirty and more Storeys
Looms
The Sea
Up
High
Overhang the cliffs
White and chalky
Ghosts
White
In the dark of night
As Interrupted by the moon
There be A secret round of Steps Down to the very Seas:
There it stops
More
Than just thirty nine steps
Yet
Shrouded in the mysteries Of its own
That speak and Whistle
In the nights of cold
And
Tell tales to the lightning
That comes and goes
In winter
In winter.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Over The Heap Of Buzzing Bees

Slowly
Slowly
Over the heap
Of buzzing bees
The crackling last remains Of fire Slowly burnt
And Fell
By slow degrees
The whispering of
The fire
The clouds crowning it
The cocks that crowed
Had moved long way
With the Dawn's going
And the growth of morn

Emmanuel George Cefai
Over The High Cliff Edge

Over the high cliff edge
The Poet-Seer looked Below shrieked the giddying whirlpool
Of waves in the rock cleft:
Behind
Over the rocky plains droned
The humming bees
Solitary in the drear routine
But we humans are not so different
Only
The brain gives sparks of light that differentiate The brain only Practically:
Over the high cliff edge
The Poet-Seer looked
Below shrieked the giddying whirlpool
Of waves in the rock cleft:

Emmanuel George Cefai
Over The Houses

Over the houses
over the aerials over the hills
over wide expanses of Ocean and the seas
over the Earth in blue rotating half dark half light stars on one side and moon
the other side
for night-in-waiting

Emmanuel George Cefai
Over the seas
Over the waves
The white captain
Speaks
To the oar less vessel Un manned
Yet
Moving secret seas
And waters of dark nights

Emmanuel George Cefai
Over The Silver Waters, Relax You

Over the silver waters, relax you
Just as Moses flowed
Over the Nile unawares a young child.

And Destiny took care and still
It makes the Moses case not just
The single exception.

But more, more Destiny knocks at the door
With joyous tidings for those who Expect it not, the more for them to joy.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Over The Streets The Wind Flew

over the streets I passed over and over pace after pace
and the violin played and sang the violin

over and over and over there bea beauty, rainbow of beauty, on the increase, colors, colors, colors,
and the earth is still wild the earth is still of black milk and the earth still with red of blood dyed

over the streets the wind flew
over the streets I passed
over and over pace after pace
and the violin played and
sang the violin

Emmanuel George Cefai
Over The Walls

'Over the walls!

full of surprise stars of white star light.'

tigers burning inside

'Over the walls!
Over the walls
said
the Cock of the Blood Shot Eyes
'such roaming thoughts
such roaming thoughts
are not to be lost.
This way

Emmanuel George Cefai
Over To The Muddy Streets

A ghost and a shroud
Moved.
The night-rain was falling
Slow.

Rapid and furtive
Why?

My mother and I.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Over Woods And Gardens

Nights in the light of Hanging stars

Lamps that hang over woods and Gardens

Haunts that betray the playing of The violin.

Showers of white particles adown
The columns of the heavens

A nightingale that Poet-Seer sings
Lonely

Emmanuel George Cefai
Over-Riding

How over-riding
Be
The verse and Poesy Over laws and Institutions in The State and everywhere.

And
All things of the same ilk.

Water
Water
Shouted the Figure
And
They mixed garlic
With water

Emmanuel George Cefai
Overt Night, Overcast Heavens,

Overt night, overcast heavens, frowning men, speeches over a man who moves not.

Heavens are overcast not necessarily with clouds and rain and storm.

Face upwards, without moving, in the suit favorite to his father.

The crowd that gathered would then soon disperse.

This man had a love as a Muse.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Owl

Soft owl
That downy calls
It be past dusk
The seas recline
The first stars fast Emerge Tremble the trees in The familiar garden
Sprawl
The circlings of the bat
And its shrill calls:
The nightingale on the Home bough Grips
And for her songs
And chants prepares:
Though
Midnight be Far away
The day is faded
The day is faded

Emmanuel George Cefai
Owl Of The Sharp Call

Pain - ah - pain - and the chill icicles hanging hanging hanging from the vindictive hanging - no, no, sweet pity bring even to the doer of the deed!
there was a man who on the Cross
suffered:
and so my mother suffered He too forgave, and why not my mother?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Pain Of Heart

Pain of Heart
Today.

Of this Many days
Come

Of this Many days
The heavens
Of the heart be overcast.

I fell
But rose
To keep on marching But fell again
Those rose not.

Rest! Inner Soul
There is justice in you And rise again
And walk again
With a high head
Of one whose Inner Soul
Be innocent and noble:
Let others fear
And let others woe

Pale Strutting Star

Slow by degrees
Though fast in miles
If near to it be.

The wintry hoar
Below
The tempest subdues
Now
As lights of midnight Glow.

Time passes
Time passes
All things look so far
To come
But soon they come
But soon they pass
And we.
We humans with empty hands
Are left in discontent.

Pall Bearers Hedgehogs

Pall bearers Hedgehogs at The funeral of the Ant.

A Squirrel played slovenly A saddening violin:
Played slowly
Slowly.

Owls, nightingales, on foot Glow-worms, (for it was night), Insects and the rest
All lined
The way of the bier
A handsome funeral!

The while Continued playing slow
The slovenly violin.

No false tears shed.
Slow
They laid her in a half-inch Grave
Deep half-inch
Only.

Strewn
A fire
Burns in the chimney place Of mists
Below
On Earth blow warring Storm and rain and frost And chill and Night and stars and moon
And more.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Parched Throat

At times
the parched throat
feel I
and raise my eyes to
the heavens
A Voice speaks one sentence
but that be enough
I obey
that be enough.
What if one year
Of one single canto be composed?
What if?
What if?
No, my Monsignor, assertion.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Parrot That Dances

Parrot that dances
to and fro
ah! in your routine
there be so much a blotting of the consciousness of us humans
the stress the worries and the angst
you
parrot that dances
to and fro
live in your life a stable line of quiet tranquillity
whilst our line arises falls arises delirium-like and yours your line quiet and straight almost all day
you garrulous rascal
dear and endearing
you dancing parrot dancing to and fro know you too knowledge without pain without the sufferings of a human you dancing king
you garrulous rascal
so endearing

Emmanuel George Cefai
Particles Of Night

Particles of night
Blizzards of fields
That shone in spring Where Spring and Venus made Together their abode each day When Dawn had settled
Its rays upon the Earth
Inside
There’s Holderlin
He has not been out of his Castle
For long now.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Parting

Night is the site for parting It yearned for it.

New lovers part every day.

I saw a railway packed With Skeletons.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Passé!

Passé!

No in this earth and mass universe relative Passé no!

There be a no to all
For all be relative.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Passing

but wait! wait! in the background a chorus sings chorus of Fisei untouched and green and hills and streams and glaciers that gleam
trees that dream birds that chirp
and tears in the eyes of a Poet Seer on a new dawn!

I saw the mourners in a vest of black I saw the figure in a veil whose face was hidden:
mystery was written in that figure tall

Adiemus! Fisei is in waiting
There is much of it we will not touch So much there be for our puny be:
and much beyond our Earth beyond our greed and power and glory, so much!

I saw a lonely bird of plumage vast chirp lone and thin and tall on a high bough of green and it was sunset

a shroud passed by tiptoeing and went round the corner then silence fell again: night had begun

passing
passing
but wait! wait! in the background a chorus sings
chorus of Fisei untouched and green
and hills and streams and glaciers
that gleam
trees that dream
birds that chirp
and tears in the eyes of a Poet Seer on a new dawn!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Passing By At Red Of Sunset

Passing by At red of sunset
I
Asked the bending flower:
‘Why flower of such beauty, Such beauty bends and fades
When in the skies so other beauty be?’
To which Replied the bending flower
At red of sunset:
‘Ah! we of beauty handmaidens fade
For other beauty to make way and change’

Emmanuel George Cefai
Pasternak Said That Our 'Complex' Life

Pasternak said that our 'complex' life would only be written in prose not verse and song

But my great master look! there is but relativity as between verse and prose and one in to the other transforms and vice-versa

It be like Einstein's e = mc 2 and indeed one of its extensions.

I want to read prose that be verse and song, though not so divided and arranged formally.

And to have prose sung to me in verse To lull me in the arms of sleepless
nights.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Patches Of Sad

Patches of sad Patches of dark Hovering
Hovering
Above the cemetery.

The bells
Last time they rang Were in the vesper hour
The dusk hour
The fading
And Thus the bells rang
Already.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Peace Is What Remains

Peace is what remains
After the warriors are exhausted:
Therefore peace is born in flames and fumes?
Amidst torn bodies?
Amidst an arm here, a foot there?
Is that the genesis of Peace?

Our rationality, the ship of our rationality Can travel green tempests.
It fails yet oftentimes To course on the flat sea-breast

We humans are forced to Peace
And therefore say that we love Peace:
We love what we are forced to Or because Our biology so dictates:
For when biology dictates the fumes of war Very little rationality remains In the time-glass of the brain

And Peace becomes a wish, a sigh, a word.

Emmanuel George Cefai
We
We humans yearn For peace
Though we stay Taciturn so often
Not speak so often Drown
In to the beauty of our silences
The Port of Dawn
Is quiet
And taciturn too:
Small the quiet waves Lap with the sand
And black-grey rocks Where sirens sate themselves Into last night:
We
We humans
So often
Let
Of our will
The grains of time-sand
Through our fingers pass
Falling
Falling Undressing our wealth Undressing our powers
Voluntarily:
And feel a joy Rational
At hearing the earth-chains Breaking
Breaking.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Peak By Midnight

Spirits of the night
Will you peak by midnight?

Then follow me
Adventurous Poet Seer

Walk,
With me
Up the aisles of Organ cemeteries Cathedrals of the Inhabitants of Spirit
Bones and skeletons
Walk, Come unto these Our brothers and sisters
And
You will change
Civilization

Emmanuel George Cefai
Pearls

Secret fountain of pearls.
Night shines from my eyes.

The waters reflected A red crop of hair
that stood on end.

Yet
the waters shone beautiful.

Emmanuel George Cefai
I saw pears Overlooking
The palace garden Wall
The palace
Where doors are closed
For more than century.

Ages here
Weep in its sacred Gardens.
But they do it
At night
As and just as A secret burial.

I thought and Thought of the Pears
The pressing of The juice
Its falling slow
And sensuous down
The mouth-watering glass Melons of beauty
The pears
In their yellow Sports gears:
And scented even In deep night
Mellow at bewitched Midnights.

Ah! even so
Is life are ages
That one on one Make life:
Dark-faced and
With brows of fire Brazen and restless
In their dancing
The glow
Of distant beauty over
The seas and oceans Coming in
In over the nights
Following the dusks.
With the hoar echoes
Of the giant hearted Water-waves that hurry
First in coves and caves:
Circe in a wind furled Mantle
From above watched
Smiling.

The waters were Twilight
But that was rather
Long Hours have passed
And little
An hour or two Separates us
From the dawn waters

Pebbles Of Charted Seas

Pebbles
Of Charted Seas:
There
Must Be Energy
Dispended Energy Stored
The Walls
Of Pain
Have Risen
High
And Higher
Before
Me Barrier
Of
The Day
And
Of
The Night Weary
And Grinding
Another Form
Of Suffering
In These Days
Another Form
Where Valley
Full
Of Luscious
Trees
Yet Pain
By their Hostile
Floors
In Passing
Through
Other Gethsemane.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Peer-Review Rests On Peer-Review

Peer-review rests on peer-review and on and on we go:
to be fair and just we must continue going on and on
till we reach levels where no peer-review but just assertion will do: therefore my Monsignor why, why peer-review?
When an assertion, just assertion that has never been made, will do.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Pelted With Disaster After Disaster.

Pelted with disaster after Disaster.

Fear grows.

The glow of Fight is Dim.

Our sinews break,
Piece falls after piece.

And fear grows Grows exponentially

Emmanuel George Cefai
Pendulum Of Masks

To left
To right
In alternation
Swung the pendulum

There was no clock
No tickling
But a large aerial Pendulum
To which The masks attached were.

And Danced
Each mask
Puppet on springs
Drawn by the ropes
Of pendulum.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Penelope

Line after line
As spinning Penelope
The Poet Seer
As the wise spider
Silent
Waves
Verse upon verse
Suffering in Time Till landmark makes

Emmanuel George Cefai
Penumbra

Penumbra
On the shadows of the wall
Make up on tired eyes
Of beauty

Still the waters glide Somewhere beautiful Still the Time glides Hand in hand with motion

There’s a Pandora’s box Of thoughts and small-winged Nymphs and fauns and satyrs
All want to navigate away from this night

Emmanuel George Cefai
People Are Bristling

The people are bristling
And in the bristling Though others have boxing gloves History for compromise Tends to settle.
Rats along the streets.
Waters foul and drinking Water bad Lights dimming, some out Some electricity be broken
And
In the houses people Hide and go They eats cats
And
They eat rats
That's desperation.
But the heroes resist
And Earth needs heroes.
History needs heroes
For heroes Change her continual Making evolution.
Go up!
Go up human!
For in bristling
There's always something To gain by bristling.
That's chance and probability, my Monsignor.

Emmanuel George Cefai
People's Soul

the cell a people's Soul a tiger

that once in to the woods pounced hearing its own majestic paces

but now
but now she withers
and she fades but still a tiger

once a tiger always a tiger?

Bring, bring on bronze for statues;
you will little tiger statutes and one giant tiger for the square people's curiosity and photos and elements

Emmanuel George Cefai
Perdition Of An Enchanted

Perdition of an enchanted Wood just Outside the ardent city Snakes
That run silvery yet Perilous
Everywhere
Everywhere
Perdition, sound of Crushing hoar and Frost
Rivers that bathe
Of human blood Sparkling in the Deepening night:
Cries and screams Ridiculous to right
Of a sub-conscious night.

Perhaps The Nightingale

Perhaps the nightingale
that in our garden sings As dusk wears faintly
And the stars one by one Usurp the darkening dome of heaven
Perhaps the nightingale
Is a black beauty queen of the south That still no scepter holds Save her transparent veils That fly with night
As she Dances over the night-floor.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Permutations And Combinations

as into permutations and combinations
chance and probability sweet life herself
enfolds into their hummock
smiling:
dews of life
fall ever night to go at the touch of the first of sun rays and the sands pass through our naked hands
falling
falling
falling

Emmanuel George Cefai
Permutations And Combinations And Tricks Of Poesy

Of permutations and combinations
There be some tricks of poesy
Not dogmas
Not absolute
But freest of the free

Ah! tricks
You smile
But so they be!

And on and on Goes the train of poesy
And song
All merrily.

Persistent Fear Throbbing

Persistent Fear Throbbing
Of
The

Wandering
Blood Finding
Its Way
Through Thistles
And bushes warm
still warm.
And Then
A Cry
Of Hunger
From

Petals And Stems

Petals and stems
that bend in the cold of cruel dusk and night

night even more cruel dawn savior of the wounded flower

just just in extreme!

Petty Light

Petty light
In my beauty’s eyes
Playing
In the her love shrine Dwelling
Petty light
Light of the universe!

Phaeton The Reckless

Well
The Poet Seer looked into the mirror And saw Phaeton the reckless And reckless he clicked on the Computer keyboard
Flowed the reckless verse Reckless As Phaeton the reckless

Phosphorescent Skeleton

Phosphorescent
Phosphorescent skeleton
Rattling its teeth
It be night!

The chill and cold
Conspire fast
The bastions
Twilight changed
And frown all black

In the garden
Trees in silhouette Wise owls and Amorous nightingales

Emmanuel George Cefai
Piano

Piano that plays subdued and Wanton.

Syringe that goes in Sucking the blood.

The older year is out
The new is come To the same Order.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Pied Piper Of The Mask

The Pied Piper of the Mask
he wanders out at night and children in the sleep rise tiptoes all to peep.

But ah! the Pied Piper of the Mask came not for children but for other Masks - hedgehogs and all that followed him in Masks

And smiled the awed night and smiled the moon dancing carnival steps in its delight

Emmanuel George Cefai
Pigeons Of Desire

Pigeons of desire
Across the water-spuming front
The irate rocks desire Desire as the pigeons desire

And instead Of seagulls circling round there Be seagulls in a dim light of Centuries.

For by descent, descendants Extend over the centuries and
In as proportion direct
The light of an ancestor Grows
Dim Dim
Dim

Emmanuel George Cefai
Pigs In The Air Flying

Pigs in the air flying Blue kites zigzagging Moon that floats here and there
Moving
A miniscule meteor
A tree taller than the other tall trees
It stands among Silhouetted still and majestic
In the dark Horses that drive across the heavens without chariots Wild and directionless Going here and there In danger of once getting higher Hitting into a star
How far
How far.
A rabbit limps giant across the film disc of the Heavens.
The hours tick-tock on a clock that strikes in the Heavens suspended.
A sleepy Poet-Seer stranded on a rock yet content At having witnessed the dusk
And now the night.
Moon that floats here and there
Moving
A miniscule meteor
A tree taller than the other tall trees
It stands among Silhouetted still and majestic
In the dark
A scientist with dark patches round his eyes
A discovery from proportion made this night
This night that walks into the streets Amidst the cold and frost and storm In and beyond old Valletta.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Pilgrim Of The Night

Pilgrim of the night
I saw you pace restless Restless over the plain In a plain robe and tall
And gray and humble
I saw you, pilgrim of the night:
And in your plight
I saw the pitying stars,
The pitying moon,
The night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Pilgrims Of The Grey Walls

Pilgrims of the grey walls
Fairy that string harps Clouds that tremble Dancing
Dancing
Dawn that barefoot walks
On the sea-bosom trembling.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Pilgrims Of The Night

Pilgrims of the night
Gray and humble Shadows of silence
Hearts broken and mute And Dawns gone by.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Pillow Of The Night

Pillow of the night
And beauty pied!
The glooms are in the Background
And the tombs after the sad Dusk of thirst
Now at their thirsty most On verge of night
They
Will become more thirsty
As night deepens Heats
More thirsty, more wild!
And
The sea-waters majestic will Respond will with brushing of Equally Majestic tides!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Pince-Nez

Pince-nez down sloping Nose
Bags of eau de cologne Each linked with its Own specific emotion
Particular
Chosen from the war-chest Of contending
Emotions
Shifting and rattling.
The circus throws its
Light
And all be dreaming.
A whit hand
I saw
And then more
All in veils white to Black in color Varying:
They danced
To here
To there
All silent Made no sound
Save
High heels clicking.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Pinches Are Every Where.

Pinches are every where.
The brain is the last fortress.
If the brain fall,
Lost will be the All.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Pinching Soul

There was a Pinching soul
Restless
Angst Stress Felt Guilt
There was A whole pack
Of Emotions.

There Stayed
I
In
The Rumblings
Of
That Womb-bay

Soul
Restless
And Mixing bath
Of all the Emotions
As fire
They Rolled
And Rose
And Fell
The Gamut
Of Those Emotions.

I
Had
To Wash
The Bath
And Sterilize
It Every Day
Before
The Rumblings
Of
The Labor
Of
The Earth
Began
Before
The waters
Frothed
Seethed
Giant bubbles Ready for The Mixtures
And Rumblings
That Resulted
In
More Rumblings
Echoes of desert bays Cries of the Harpies
That yet were echoes
And echoes of echoes Signs of the times
Yet mirrors of the past Ante-diluvian and before Time of the thick dense Weald and sweaty soils
Time of instant growth Of trees and plants Heat and swelter Multipliers of the Tropical.
And Multipliers too
Of such exotic.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Pine

You see how Verses walk.

Time walks
But hand in hand
With motion
Direct proportion.

But verses no,
They boil
As fire boils Burn as desire.

The lo0nely pine wood
How many pines
It has
How many
Yet I forget all
For my verses Though stunning
The beauty of the Woods of pines Swooning in the Hands of the red dusk
In the hands
Of a slow-declining
Beauty.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Pining Be Joy Subdued

Pining
Opportunity on opportunity
Lost
I'm grieving.

My heart is rending
In all this pining.
I
That am the Statue of Sadness Ridiculous puppet of lost Chances and sadness.

Yet
In my pining
There's a little underlining Lose all:
The chains fall
Amidst the peaks of sadness
A green vale
At last
Of joy, but subdued Subdued joy sinking.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Pining In Love

Sweet girl that in your teens Pines by the window
When the dusk calls in.

Alone, alone, you wait
And wait more patient Than Patience itself.

The sweet dusk red to Reddened glows
As the day fades.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Pinned Here On Earth

pinned
pinned here on Earth I raise my hands
and hear the clanking
feel the weight of the chains and the suffering.
the waters glide
I yearn but my thirst continues
I hear the same chains
I feel
the same chains
Only distancing from Earth
I cut the chains
Even
if be by cutting the Gordian knot.
For
pinned
pinned here on Earth
I raise my hands
and hear the clanking

Pity Me

Pity me, pity me,
here where I lie,
the night is warm in
its very chill
the snows on hideous mountain tops turns lead and
zinc.
around all things go I am surrounded
as in a giant coffin
where I go, I be.

No light of Dawn to cheer me on from these my plights:
no, no light here
save a dim grave yard light that drops stinking dews and on above I hear fluttering the wings of large red bats that overhead fly.

Time I hear strike by some far distant clock that so loud bleats that sounds to me
as yet
as yet
and in deep midnight accordingly
I hear
the rustling of hooded capes of hooded shrouds and dress inside I view not things:
how horrid even the rocks
sigh
and the rock floor all pointed belches red and lava-hot from irregularly distant spouts
horror with me!
horror with me!
O pity me!

Things unclean pass around my flesh:
insect like I feel them or else scorpion-like I hear too their snouts and moustaches brush
my skin whose hairs stand on end:
so horrid, and so long, so
pitiless!

My Inner Soul is frozen Anxiety stress horror fear
instead and the sweat on my body covers
full:
So be so kind that I who in this dark, dark place Sight almost lost to just a minimum to grope:
So
Pity me, pity me,
here where I lie,
the night is warm in
its very chill
the snows on hideous
mountain tops turns lead and
zinc.
around all things go
I am surrounded
as in a giant coffin
where I go, I be.

Played

The elfin pipes but not On Scottish hills but on The dunes nigh our Ramla bay in Circe’s Isle
And the red dusk Waned
With surfeit and Sweetness of the heart
At the sweet paradise of music
Notes
From very start
And every second a newer Pleasure a Newer surfeit
Brought.
Then came the night egged
On
By the night stars who Begged and prayed for Him to come to light
Them on his chariot gold.
And Heard I – as a Poet Seer – The grinding of the axle Star to star

Please

Please
The song yellow
Winds
Through the last few Orange drops of sunset Becoming Egyptian sensual Beauty-sucking as in sump
By the red brazen dusk:
And fading as into A silver stream of night
To join the stars, the moon.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Please hurry
Hurry and at
The heavens look!
The comets numerous
On this rare night Shoot free
O! this be night
Of magic!
Please hurry
Hurry and at
The heavens look!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Plot

What is the plot today?

Night will soon come.

Sunset the same as night,
Nearly

Dusk the same as night, Nearly.

What remains
But plotting romantically?
The old moon will be out,
Out everlastingly.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ply Boats On The Silver Sea

Ply boats on the silver sea
And lurk below the rays
Of the sweet moon:
It is a quiet night
To-night:
To-night
As many other nights Let me in sadness and Despair
Together mixed Together sizzling
As in one glass
My failure after failure
Celebrate

Poems For Ella (I)

thunder loud
and morning Dawn
all, all dazzle your brain lights your eyes open lovely Ella!
sleep, my love,
my innocent,
my loved one,
my thunder loud,
my lightning proud,
my stars that twinkle
one by one
and morning Dawn
that your brain lights

Emmanuel George Cefai
Poems For Ella (Ii)

Congeal water to frost congeal
my Ella to see you
smiles!
Make her happy!
She deserves! night has come wild the winds
but night be beautiful for the light
open, open the wide eyes!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Poems For Ella (Iii)

Verse beautiful must I chant verses are verses
yet they be a song each verse a song
make it for Ella!
In a hummock soft sweet Ella of the ruddy face and eyes of wonder beauty lies her eyes be closed closed for now
yet when she opens them the earth and heavens jump and chant and sing

Emmanuel George Cefai
Poems For Ella (Iv)

Though late in life you came to me my fairy child came from my brain
you
be more beautiful to compensate the cramps and regrets of age!
Sleep in the hummock
I prepared today
and I will tend you fondly, child,
recount many a lay.
And then
your eyes will open wonderful adding to me
new day after new day

Emmanuel George Cefai
Poet Of The Abrupt

I, Poet of the Abrupt, do I delight you before so abrupt
I end the verses and I end my chant?

My pleasure is delight Yet my depth be in
the thought
My heart be in the Just

But then must I forget that last but not the least I love Beauty too and for her will vigil all nights; go hungry;
go thirsty with a parched throat; sing verse at her hest parched and sick?
Then know that, my Monsignor and be advised.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Poet Seer

The Poet Seer to the balcony Escaped
For a few moments.

You too
My Monsignor must seep
The oxygen of things Inside you.

Outside farmhouses and cows Bask
On the arid plain Sweltering in the Noon sun.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Poet Seer In Parable.

Poet Seer in parable.

Ah! yes he versified and sang Because the people said:
‘We want to hear you,
But here you in parable'

So spoke the Poet Seer of life
So spoke and told a parable.

And the people heard intently because The experiences of the parable had In one way on another been One or more of their experiences too.

For that is how all Individual Sovereign Wills And the Will of the Plurality co-incide, Find common factors and The One becomes as of the All and The All becomes as of the One.

And when finished the People said to
The Poet Seer:
‘Speak more to us for your words
Are as waters to us in the midst of the desert And as food in the midst of the desolate snows.’

And so the Poet Seer spoke again and again Till tired, he slept And the People bent blessing him United, One Will in All and All in One.

Emmanuel George Cefai Poet Seer of sad verses
now
that you have heard me often you know that I am sad and know that I am
broken-hearted:
yet
you never looked intently in my sad eyes
pining
then you would know all that be sadness

Emmanuel George Cefai
Poet Seer Restless From The Crowd

The Poet Seer restless from the crowd Himself detaching
Roamed disconsolate
Searching for the lost verses...

Had he writ them
On slips of paper
He missed them
And restlessness again
Agitated in him.

Sang and rang the crowd
In the square of enjoyment Wine and song went all Along; and dancing and Other joys.

In the dark the Poet Seer Fetched the missing verses:
Too deep his tears were Too great his emotions for Expression stood.

For
The Poet Seer restless from the crowd Himself detaching
Roamed disconsolate
Searching for the lost verses...

Emmanuel George Cefai
Poet Seer Thrive

I Poet Seer thrive
In the silence
In the night
Not of wealth
And Not of power
But
Of night
Ah! welcome night
In your arms
I will to sink
In your arms
To drown as sweet Sweet and slow
And in the mellow of star light

Emmanuel George Cefai
Poet Seer You Go

now Poet Seer you go towards the woods
to hear the winds
blow
as organs in the church
the more the better
now you go
in stealth and paces low.

ah! you be wise!
you left civilization though on Earth remained colossus-like you kept a foot
here and there
a finger in each pie...

so that
now Poet Seer you go towards the woods
to hear the winds
blow
as organs in the church
the more
the better
now
you go
in stealth and paces low.

Poetry and Prose

Poetry and Prose in a tavern Met.

Poetry said to Prose 'In Background of me you are'

Replied Prose to Poetry, ' In The background of me you are
And we be One and All in One'

Emmanuel George Cefai
I sing:
but without look at class at school at gathering but all admit admire all, and suck as the bee from each yet let no one be my golden calf:
thus of all, in all, the Muse be my golden calf, or approximation nearest approximately

Poetry Is Like A Gem

Poetry is like a gem
It is not easy to find
But once found
It is worse than a gem
Because a gem will stay Unless the thief gets at it:
But poetry flees away
At the first blow of frosty wind Cooling its frenzied heat and ecstasy.

Poet-Seer Who Suffered

Poet-Seer who suffered Poet-Seer hero of the Earth Poet-Seer martyr for your verse and song Poet-Seer bold in the face of storm on storm Poet-Seer bold in the face of adversity on adversity Poet-Seer you are still silent yet Poet-Seer the verses still come out drawling In to the mysterious quandary of silence Posited by Mother Earth, just now Just now.

Will you subscribe to a civilization of the night?
The bells are tinkling as of cows that walk on clouds and alps of snowy flakes before they rain on earth
before they rain on earth
O sing and dance a jig with me
O sing and dance a jig with me
Sing

from clouds to green of grasses skeletons and bones to living
again
The bells are tinkling as of cows that walk on clouds and alps of snowy flakes before they rain on earth before they rain on earth O sing and dance a jig with me O sing and dance a jig with me.

Poisoned Violets

Poisoned violets but from love
ah! how on this Earth
as sands slip riches, power slip from me!

ah! if poison be from love ah! if poison be of love then let poison be made quick
and let poison be made such in large quantities in all times

poisoned violets but from love
ah! how on this Earth
as sands slip
riches, power slip from me!

Port In The Night

For us
Who dream about a Lonely bell Past vesper times
Which rings and weeps:
The port at night
Is as the flower
To the bee.

We,
The romantics,
We Humans not romantic
But with a percentage Romantic, however minimal,
We,
Flock to the Port
As the night comes But now with feet
Of flesh and bones
But rather and often with The wings of brains.

They be machines the same.

The port waters
We sip
But drink not:
Yet
The delight in sipping
So greater than the Delight in dreaming
Those twilight waves
The twilight in our mouths
The twilight in our lips
The twilight in our taste.

In us
And yet evanescent
The twilight foments in The dark
But sweetly Foments.

Till the Dawn
Many hours of night Before us stretch:
The beauties of the dusk
That dazzled us and Made us wild:
Now
Fade in higher beauties
Of the night
And I see vessel and small Boats kissing the waves
They ply:
And subdued machine sounds
And flickering lights
Most come and go
The others go Just go
In to the glorious night

Pregnant Girl Why Weep?

Ah! pregnant girl why weep?

Make your calculations now and exact Calculate.

The father of the child now Lays face upwards in the cherished Tomb
And moves not

In vain to fill the church with sobs and Shrieks occasional.

So with all us of flesh and blood And human, all too human!

Remember the child.

The future beckons though the past Be past.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Prepare, prepare, Poet Seer Long is the voyage and The barge awaits:
The Port is void of human eyes
That peer:
Prepare, prepare, to flee Yes, flee Poet Seer
From this country, from Land as this,
Sail
Sail
Directionless yet afar
In to the Ocean Sea prepare Of wise lone immensity.

Pretty Ghost Laughed

Come! Come!

She laughed, the pretty ghost.

In white without a spot

Come! Come!

Problem In The Brain

There be a problem in the brain that will not go
still goes unsolved.

I Am shivering.
Since Dawn
However there is Little cold.

The waters glisten Malicious and Sensuous simultaneously:
I heard
The weather-wave
Rattle
Rattle
As it turned Round and round
And round
In its wild gyrations
And
From over the sea
Azure
Came the colorless wind Neighing and Singing.

Processions At Night

Processions at night
one after the other
processions at night
ghosts and shrouds in arms
ghosts and shrouds enraged in the holy rage of incense processions at night

flambeaux
voices that soar high laments and groans and prayers at the same time
flambeaux
voices that soar angry
now high, then higher,
emotions that fly,
processions at night

processions at night
one after the other
processions at night
ghosts and shrouds in arms
ghosts and shrouds enraged
in the holy rage of incense
processions at night

Profound Thought

Profound thought
the Aetna beckons for this night the lave flows the red lava.

More fertile
the fields will grow
You and I hand in hand by the edges at safe distance will go
aware and beware of the lava flow Philosophers have been and thinkers discoverers and science grows poets dramatists prose writers to literature added too so step by step by degrees

slow Civilization will grow

This month was fairly heavy in the heat this month the sun shone long and heavy afternoon:
this month was not so kind but neither so cruel too.

Ah! Earth gives to us Humans First the day through her magnificent Dawn; but then in return Expects her fees, expects us to repay At least with peace between us and move forth instead of warring: Reason be easy
reason be difficult Round the circle turns to a full
cycle:
behind the bars of Earth we always be from birth and stay and stay willy-nilly, and irreversible till come slowly hobbling either old ancient mortality or newly-crowned Immortality So far, so far,
things go.

Ah! the Poet Seer look what grace
As he plies his lofty trade:
As he ushers in to our Earth
Such Beauty
This man, this Mid-Wife of Beauty!
I yearn to be more and more of
A Poet Seer!

In the span of the Earth's Radar of the day so many dots and Lines:
Occurrences the dots,
The lines the human plans
At least even though not a iota Does he execute At least there's the dream-vision of A promised land!
A dream vision that aggressive dusk
In its own time and way in vain Will to erase attempt.

Whistling through his crooked Shoes
On and on trudges the Poet Seer Cacti and xerophytes Pass by
And long the plain stretches and Dry:
Yet undeterred and suffering
The Poet Seer whistles his way
Through
Till the flow of the verse in that dry
Land
Comes home to him and sings Sings the Poet-Seer!

'I will stay here not long, '
Said the Poet-Seer
'I must not have passed all,
All in this ungrateful land
And time has come my shoes To clean and shake off the dust That stuck from this ungrateful land.
To another land go I, there Not this land will
At the stroke of the Time
My bones posses'

'Misfortune after misfortune has Been my lot:
Here I am always tempest-tost Here always crave
For just a little break
From suffering malice and hate:
Just crave, just crave and beg The noble Beggar of Misfortune's Way'.

I saw last night beneath a fir Tall and straight and proud-erect I saw two Figures bent and
In the dark
Destiny the one
Other Misfortune
And whispered both
And stealthy approached I And heard my name
In that nocturnal conspiracy.

I had the night, I had it in my hands
As it fled before Dawn
Just a few minutes - I giant Soul Captured the night.
And in the waning end of The moon's light
I spoke; Night silence stood And spoke without a word Then my hands opening Night fled.
Dawn came
And with peerless flame Lit a new day though still Reeling from a sub-conscious Night the Earth still lay.

And there is come the moment when My verse to you for now I end:
Thereby all hath its end and Must gracefully know and learn When to retire just before Others retire you; so I

Promise Me. My Friend,

Promise me. My friend,
Promise me.

Promise me to put the lines
All that I wrote
Before
The judgment of the generations.

I do not mind their sentence.
I only want, want those Generations that will come
To know
That once was I, a suffering
Human:
Whose mother cried at birth
As I cried too:
Whose mother treasured him Alas! Too much:
But made me what I am,
You, my mother and my Ancient father, thrones on Which I sit.

On them I wrote and thought And thought and wrote Civilization was in my ear Song and verse in my heart Thought and all in my brain-mind:
But now
Now
No mother lays her hand on me Nor father gives his blessings by
The night:
Alone
Alone I pine and my dorsal spine Towards the earth as an old oak Whose youthful days are done Now bend and bend.
Times to me and peoples to come Will judge me.
But how judge me if You lay not before them
Each verse I wrote?
That is question and that is your task.
That is your promise.
That is How to unravel my problem.

Whistle; whistle to the stars.
The time is come.
The night with sadness
Shrouded ghost and mute.
I descend the steps:
If no Dawn brings me up
Then
My friend remember
Remember the promise that you made Publish my all, each every verse,
Then
Let the times and peoples judge
And judge.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Promises

Promises be made

So said the Skeleton

Then the nearby Skeleton Rose and said

Ah! words I will not
To hear!

For yes, promises be made
To keep!

Protest Of Alternative Civilization

Merrily the Dawn sauntered as every day

But there was a civilization that bred and grew at night blessed kissed and bath by Oceans of star-light and sudden winnowing moons...
in the celestial spaces
roamed it arising from our planet returning back when Night was passed and Dawn established a new day
of the old civilization

There was civilization It read skeletons and ghosts and shrouds and spirits It typical animal was the Bat the Night-Bat
drear and squeaking-lamenting.
There
that be another civilization, the alternative civilization.

No,
No, no, not wealth, not power,
not dynasties,
not descent and heredity
but the hungry throat and the broken throat and the broken things in the mass universe
that still went on and on evolving, evolving... a grey civilization
thought on thought
wave currents circling through the brain hitting colliding
shifting, rattling,
shifting and rattling
the Broth of Wisdom rose abhoring wealth and power and their ilk:
though it morning, new morning
and though it was Dawn - see the larks were still flirting high in the skies

Away with wealth!
Away with power!
Away! Away with the whole list of the same
ilk!
Away with examinations!
Make collective education yes but make her yield unto the individual search and thought and produce intellectual!
A new civilization usher in Let the other civilization be but in competition.

The new civilization be of
night
as the old one be of day:
both siblings are yet separate!

More the Soul than at present in communion full with the old woods and trees and sounds of life:
more with the rumblings of seas into the bays and rumblings of the waves and the seas' roar.
Let civilization new be one of thought,
depth thought,
all times
all places and works scientific, philosophical, verse, epic, social sciences...all!
A new civilization usher in Let the other civilization be
but in competition.

Of monuments of war and squares let go!
To monuments of the new geniuses
exchange!
Of palaces against hovels equal housing make for all:
and let all work, be entrepreneur, taxation in the glass of history will go down.

And in the night with shrouds and ghosts and spirits roam the cemeteries awake
the night, the full night to watch the sudden-falling stars the flight of moon and bats and before you witness the birth of new Dawn.

But there was a civilization
that bred and grew at night
blessed kissed and bath
by Oceans of star-light and
sudden winnowing moons...
in the celestial spaces
roamed it arising from
our planet returning back
when Night was passed and Dawn established a new day
of the old civilization.
Back.

Proud That I Dream

I dream
and am proud that I dream proud that I hold my hand

I dream
that millions of the ill holds hands unto the heavens
and dream
that there be health where sickness was before that is the Earth the Earth of all of us without races without barriers without frontiers

Puissant To The View, Hoarder

Puissant to the view, hoarder of sleepless nights, perverse (so to say, so they said in our modern civilization) perverter of the thought and feelings
emotions rampant under siege from holy crusaders decked in cuirass and iron arms scarce
moving
and yet puissant remain the view, the feeling the enchanted thought the yet unrequited desire the still thwarted will puissant

us to do all the bed is waiting plain yet inviting linen as white as the cold frost
outside we inside plan then make new life

Purgatory Of Poet Seers

Into the purgatory of Poet Seers Wait I
At night
Dream of horror
I see oblivion in a Yellow gown
Coming to me.
Why this?
Why me?

The pains of a purgatory
Are severe absolutely:
The chains more heavy
The sighs more subdued Freedom of speech limited Albeit all this Heavy and prolonged Groans arise
‘I am in oblivion
Give me light.
Even dim light,
At least I will ferret some Way here.

Down my chin
Tears fall rapid:
Yet I view
Oblivion statuesque Jelly yellow made up Constantly wriggling
At me laughing.
I bend my head
Resigned
Increased in fear
And the incense of Anguish
I loosen the strings of consolation Look vacant to the heavens Know despair.

Purple Blowing Wind

the waters turned to a purple blowing of wind.

Ay! allow me to resist and cry.

The drear is falling, falling, falling already.

The trees weep and nightingales sing not but cry.

charade
of

march
of ghosts
and shrouds
along a high steep road of red grueling charade

I found a man trembling, trembling as per Earth

'I have a secret missile-plane to the high skies

Will you ascend with me?'

His hurry made him still and in he climbed with me to the Altar of the High Heavens whence our Earth be viewed as a small dot.

There will be breaking of the

Queue From Oblivion

so great the queue from oblivion was:
all waited on the bank of the dark river
which flowed slow
as stew boiling:
bubbling:
their faces white and nervousness was of them fo long centuries waited they to be ferried whilst they saw others as them ferried at once a distant mile
these from oblivion swept away at once and they,
they they waited there in a purgatory
of yearning souls;
that crowd, that queue was I
and only I.
O if had to list the suffering and the stress emotional!

Rare Lighting On The River

Rare lighting on the river
The mud banks Croak with bronze colored Toads
This night for The red dusk is gone
And
The house light one
By one
Are going off:
Silence was there Already in the dusk Already in the pink Twilight
Trembling
Already
Already in the night
Growls a sound that Was not on the previous
Nights:
Already there rustles
In the sparse bushes
The scent of mists Gathering since the sunset Painted orange
And the sun set.
Ruthless the clouds
Frown: Threatening with Water-deluge the river
To flood:
No human will pass here
Except
Some straying Poet Seer
This night:
There will be
The animals of night Led
By the twinkling glow-worm
And the mirth
Of ghosts and shrouds
That after each other
Play Round bushes to the Ancient castles on the surface Of the black river reflected In the shivering rays
Of the white moon.

Rarely, rarely

How plaintive the wind neighs

Rat that runs slow through the vaults Underneath the city: look how many Beetles red and black and antennae Moving horribly; there one flies;
There one the other follows:
Is it rape?
And in the vaults the silence of the drops Mysterious falls in to those deepening Labyrinths.

Raucous

Raucous,
Raucous,
The ball settled in the Moon's light after Running in the shades relative of Hedges and field-walls: Raucous
Raucous

The night has come
No Longer the night is coming
No longer

The stars have rung Their door bells of the
Heavens

The night-dews have densified
And Fallen Obediently

The nightingales have Ceased singing Silently

Two hollow eyes
Then Four hollow eyes
My parents have My parents had

How hollow
How hollow are your eyes
You
Must have wept long
And
Are still weeping

Raucous,
Raucous,
The ball settled in the Moon's light after Running in the shades relative of Hedges and field-walls:
Raucous
Raucous

Raw Bones

Dancing bones Raw bones
A night
A heart-beat
A fright!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Raw Owls

Raw owls Cooing and ageing Speaking slow stopping Starting again as Threads of golden wisdom
Drop
A life line to our Earth Bring the Babel translator Or similar machine:
The wisdom must be writ down in Our books
The wisdom must be kept in our Records
Their wisdom must our new civilizations Conceive.
I,
Poet Seer ageing and tired Turn over the pages of my book But close it not as yet
As yet
The magic of our ancient wands
To hold
To keep
To be Life line to our Earth that Needs so much:
Lifeline to our civilization
That breathes a little low
Now.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Raw Verse

Raw verse I sing Raw verse I write Raw songs I sing
You read and at The end,
Feel the raw inside
An undissolved jewel
In stomach.
For
That be the raw

read my verses see the world that they convey.

read again and
read again and live that world.

let it be alternative to our civilization and history

Read And Digest

to read and digest all that comes
not just what the peer says the best!
ah! a jewel dark, muddy and shoddy will lie in the garbage oblivion from peers
o we must change
the civilization we live
all have their worth all have produce all have genius light.
And
all that we need is just to light flames
for all have a genius light.

Read My Monsignor, Read

Read my Monsignor, read
And in the beads of words
The lines
The verses
Hear the gurgling seas
The gurgling waves
The gurgling Oceans
Read my Monsignor, read
The castles of the sea are nocturnal And they are fairies
And there are nymphs
And there is water-level rising
And there is gurgling
That is the language of the seas
The Oceans
You must understand it my Monsignor Apply for the dictionary of experience.
The night
The night is ending

Read My Verse

Read my verse
Read my verse
Then
When you go Into places that
To the alternative Subconscious civilization
Appertain
As cemeteries and Graves and Tombs and Ghosts and shrouds
You
Without much explanation
Around
Will go Whether alone
Or in a shady crowd:
You
Will as colossus
Then
With feet the one On one civilization
Other the other

Rebuffed Unanswered By The Inconstant Stars

Rebuffed unanswered by the inconstant stars
I walked away, away into the night Beneath the lanky trees without a move Looking half—afraid half-dreamy down On to the cobbled paths whereon I tread.
And thus that I to the statue came That in the garden stood alone and sweet Marbled full white half-robed : to meet My fate to her I went - vain fool! - That she might speak to me and know About my lady-love my beauty-queen And so in to the night amongst the trees Alone stood I beneath the pitying stars.

The moon smiled faintly languidly

Red Dawn

Dawn today is red
See
The horizon
See
The waves of red
See
The reflected towns
And buildings
The old forts
The bastions
Moving
Moving
Red.
And
The face of Dawn
Be red
This rare day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Red Eyed Hawk

The red-eyed hawk Enamored of the Ancient castle
Where cobwebs too
One on the other
Had made their home.

Through a slit-window
It flew in and out
The whole day long
And in the night

Frightened the bats
First stood away
But then
Habit ah! habit Made them more Confident Till they came to The hawk, not fearing.

The night, realm of The bat was shared With the hawk,
The red-eyed hawk.

And the red-eyed owl Philosophically sate
On her bough
Resigned to the hawk Flowing out and in Through the slit-window.

Pondered
The red-eyed hawk Even while flying
His heart beating
The music of deep thought Little by little Found himself
Foundered in deep Thoughts transformed
In Soul and Inner Soul
Into a wise baffling Owl he was;
He was Philosopher.

The ghosts and shrouds
In red Danced and Groaned
The
Night.

Off its old aged Ancient dross
Set on a modern dress Sexy and to the tune

Relentless

Slow yet relentless pass
month after month
hills, towns, cities, countryside change
yet not the change that Age wreaks in one man:
For me
Age has wrought change bitter change and stress and works of adversaries and tragedy upon
tragedy
injustice on justice wrought
and survive I by a thread Attached to the navel of pitying gods;
looked on and watched furtively by the eyes of shrouds and ghosts;
and in the realm of Morpheus I calculate that divine hands above me have saved me
of late.
Prepared for the voyage I That any time a Voice from the vast heavens
will call me unto its bosom and then
go.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Remember My Love?

remember my love?
we were by the sea in the sea-side town
the tavern of fresh fish
and scents of spume rock-bitten sunset had gone
and you looked more sultry in your love than the coming dusk of red:
at the restaurant table sate we your lovely legs askance
and your look that of pining love surfeiting
in excess flowing ale flowing from the brimming jugs
slowly:
and dropping to the earth in golden tresses:
so you that day
sultry and lovely and in love
together
by the sea
in the sea-side town
the tavern of fresh fish
and scents of spume
rock-bitten

Emmanuel George Cefai
Remember, Remember,

Remember, remember,
The earth is yawning
And the timber creaking
And the wide eyes open
The wide eyes of heavens
On the seas and oceans Blessing their quiet Stillness in the humility
Of night.

Rendezvous Of Spirits

The rendezvous of spirits
Ah! in the summer
They gathered in the night
But now also in day
The Spirits!

Around and around dance
The Spirits in their Rendezvous Feel more at home
In the coming winter
Nay even in the autumn
They bolder grow
The Spirits!

With merry cup on cup They dance even in
Dusk:
For wilder do they grow
And wilder in their dance
The Spirits!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Rendezvous Of Spirits 1

We,
We spirits that have broken chains,
we here gather.

Here is our agora, our parliament
together.

See! a Spirit-Skeleton already beats the drum and a Band of Skeletons play in their orchestra.

Others that were speaking to each other cease and gather round
hand in hand
as in a dance.

Dance Spirits! dance!
the night defeated dusk!
dark weighs on human eyelids!

This be a line of evolution to where we old humans arrive:
from birth of child
the human grows and ages then having many times garnered the wisdom of the sages the human to here transforms crosses the bridge to us welcoming.

Drums flute and other instruments play.
The dance slow Begins with measured steps and measured paces.

the haunting silhouettes form the scenery:
our eyes close slowly in serenity.

the hours fleeting we will not to see though as Dawn approaches a brusque cessation make we.

but then will we not have the night enjoyed enjoyed together?

Time flies not on our side
but we,
we spirits with human's intelligence and more adjust together.

See human see to where so many humans came that now as dust you can pick in your hands but not the spirit catch.

Hush! do not disturb let us enjoy each second each second utilize the drums, the music
plays
and the night-dance goes on with measured step after measured step together.

For
We,
We spirits that have broken chains,
we
here gather.

Here is our agora, our parliament
together.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Rents

Rents are to be paid.

We humans must pay rent to Earth.

And we, naked, pay rent
With our bodies.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Replace What Of The Earth

O replace!
Replace what of the Earth
Of power be What of the Earth of glory
Be What of the Earth Of wealth and palatial be Replace!
Replace!
Dreams lie in wait
By corners of The nights!
And
We will touch again
Those heavens that Each of us
Saw and touched In us
The child!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Reproach Me

Do you reproach me
For Ending verse
And my song cease
So abject
So abruptly?

Then Please recall That for me
All is broken

And
That broken wilderness Mirror to me harnessed
In all sides
Everywhere I go
Every time I sing.

Resigned
Resigned to beauty

Resting

Pacing restless.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Restlessness The Evolver

Of things that evolve
There be restlessness
However
Minimum the percentage

Of things that evolve King Restlessness rules
Those who his commands Obey
They thrive and move.

Let us be with King Restlessness, come Give me your hand,
My Monsignor,
And whilst not giving up On the civilization of Consciousness
Let us together go
In that of the Sub-Consciousness.

Rhapsody In Hasting Gardens

In Hastings Gardens the wind makes rhapsody but not alone
no.
not without accomplices the drizzles of the rain the blaring thunder
over the waters
the distant lightning:
the firs, the elms, the oaks shaking and
trembling
the owls silent nightingales silent yet cozy on the boughs accomplices of the wind!

Together
Through the night
Together

La rapsodia in Hastings Gardens!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Rhapsody Of Wind

Valletta, the Bastions.
The wind sates itself running round embracing this house coil as a snake
round this tree and that thus that it goes to Hastings Gardens
place favorite coil round an elm, and then an oak yet full with nightingales from the next night.

The
waters
sing
they feel
the coil wind skim
them lover-like
with windy kisses

All
all in a secret rhapsody the winds thrives
the wind makes.

Restless
with throbbing
heart
and pale as guilt silent as silence the wind round and
round cools itself the day comes the day grows into its dress of drear usual dress of drear:
cars lighting to carry secretaries and men for work
students to the schools o! the winds yearns pale in the face of sounds newborn in the new day

the rhapsody it carried forward
from the night

the buses clonk
look there's a bus waiting someone something
and
with it jams
the rest
of
the traffic

Come! come! little by little the silent rhapsody of the dusk originated
wind
little by little goes the rhapsody
little by little.

by noon its stops to an inaudible minimum.

but sunset will come again but dusk will come
again

the wind will rise again the wind will originate
again
traffic will subside and house lights will light up
first then as the wind rhapsody grows
one by one lights off:
and the dark comes.
The rhapsody continues.

Right Up To The Heavens Like A Smoke

Right up to the heavens like a smoke
Of mist of magic rose the chanson fair
The singer sang; her heart beat out In the cantilena what she felt.
Word by word, like hammer-blows
The singer steamed her emotions Almost – but not as much – one Blow for each emotion.

Ring Old Bells

Ring
Ring old bells
Of the old chapel
In the countryside
Alone
You stood
For centuries
The gales, the tempests
And the winters Left you Left you, standing.
Human look
Look at these sad Stones
The chapel coming
Out
Of magic vespers Few people from The vespers
Came
And to Their homes
Amidst the dust
And fields
They hied.
Closed the doors
One by one
The moon went up
Before
The white stars
Then Completed
The dark night
From the horizons of The sea-edge upwards
Upwards!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ringing Bells Of Vesper

Ringing bells of vesper Extending into night
Through the black Clouds and haunting Cries of bats.

The waters almost froze
In the first call of the cicada In the garrulous cooing
Of the first owl.

Ah! nightingales came next
But far away.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Rise Above

To rise above
A million pointed swords
Of trouble
To rise and head
That must the human be:
The stars of heaven will applaud.

Not flowing strategy
Just Set-piece after set-piece
At last
Will have Propensity to the goal.

And
In the distance dusk the red Leaves stage with a bent head.

Roaming Listlessly

Roaming, roaming Listlessly.

The sun is fading
And with it day
But lesser fading.

An Artist with palette On hand Paints slow-morose.

The water-lilies bend their
Head.

In the heavens the first clouds frown
In host
Though
Not numerous.

Nightingale
Prepare
Your time to sing Soon comes.

In the Port darkening
The ferries slowly roaming Grumbling
Their machines
Turning.

Veteran of the heavens
The waters turn
The waters turn
With them
The clouds
Of light-blue
On tiptoes dance.
The waters moan
The clouds groan
The heavens and

Merry with stars
The face of the heavens one by one

The songs amorous
The verse warm
The heart
Throbbing
Throbbing.

Robber Of Joy

Robert Burns

Robert Burns

Robert, Robert, whither go?
'It's the night
And 'tis
the chill
Ah! I see your test of life Poet's chords of its sweet thrill!

Night, moon, day, dusk, dawn all together gather round when you pipe your verses sweet and the animals and plants stir in magic, magic-bound.

Robert, Robert, whither go?
Father of children, of verse more, Forget poverty - you had all!
And I hear distant sounds from the Scottish hills abound nocturnal chanting verses round verses yours,
high rocks, cataracts, the deep vales the wise owl, the nightingales, spell bound dance in Tartan trance.
Robert, Robert, whither go?

Rolled The Thunders

Rolled the thunders - opened the clouds Thunder the heavens again Then the Voice spoke
And it was the same Voice as the Poet Seer's
And its words were as the as words of the Poet Seer And its majesty was as the majesty of the Poet Seer

Emmanuel George Cefai
Rolled The Waves

said
Rolled the waves
fired white the spume in anger
the grey caves responded each to each reciprocal
the heavens and
the seas
cathedral of fresh beauty
lurked
the town was sleeping but now's awaking!
As the cock rises
so on his feet the maganimous Poet Seer and the Monsignor.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Rolled Then The Waters, The Rains Fell

Rolled then the waters, the rains fell
Wild and shaggy in that stormy night:
And as the torrent rains from step to step Bounced ball-like in their sad display
The step whispered but their whispers In to liquid suffocation the more loud
In direct proportion to their suffocation:
Rolled then the waters, the rains fell
Wild and shaggy in that stormy night
And went the smothered whispers
They went from step to step:
In liquid suffocation the more loud.

Roman Figures

roman figures roman numbers
on the wall written I saw yesterday they were not there.
when against the wall I pressed you dear
the wall; blank was there;
no figures Roman figures
but now numerals since last night
some hand placed on the same wall
silence
silence
and sweet whispers kisses sweet and yearning
words
words of love slow sensuous turning echoes fading and re-starting sound of kiss after sweet kiss but to-night was that, my love
now
there's silence:
save
for a rare distant foot-step proud and strong but once passed fading
in the dark
in the night
fading
fading, love....

Their hands up Ghosts ships only Sweep Silent through As fish swimming at
Sea.

Romantic Clanking Of So Many Things

Romantic is the clanking of so many things

the clanking of the
old lamp-light in the night-growing wind or more the gales in a tempest storm

the clanking of the bridge that sighs and creaks at night:
even in summer
without wind
and yet it clanks, clanks.

no hope just dark and groping

distant the clanking iron in the brain less, less romantic.[

Therefore let we together Go out

And shrouds and
Centuries
Round the sleeping town
Go round and round.

Continually
By the trash gales
They Hear not the bell
The vesper bell
No
Not even in the distance
No.

Me
But Then
I Am
Poet Seer
Yet
All
of us
will be Poet Seers
if
only
we will
so.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Roof Of The Stars

Roof of the stars
the immense heavens
on this our Earth so opening a circling ball of land and water viewing.

Yet what lies therein where life breathes out!

waters lave the Earth
herself
she washes her face
yet
her heart will remain torn though white Dawn shines

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Roofs Of The Heavens Are In My Brain There Be The Target Said The Scientist: He Stretched His Hand he strove and strove this Scientist This Human And Higher Went And Higher Went And Always Higher Yet Never Touched
The Roof
Of
The Heavens
That Faster
Up Than Him
Moved
Yet Smiled
The Scientist
And Evolution
Smiled with him

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ropes Of Hope

Ropes of hope
To you I cling
Now!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Rosy Scented Wind

West that brings
The rosy scented wind
The sigh
Of the fading dusk
The Awe of night.

The waters that Rustled
Since lazy afternoon
Still rustle
And more Since dusk
Red dusk
They sigh.

Tonight the heavens
A growing tinge of Red
They have It's growing
See the deep of night!
And
Comets stars and moons Swim in the ancient sights Of heavens
That centuries know
And count
As we the days
And in all this A laugh -
A scream
then
A groan
A sigh

Emmanuel George Cefai Rotating

light rotating
on
the bald flat top head
of
the hill village
below
that dreams
in
the long nights
I
saw
a civilization bleed
I
heard
the cries angry
a little painful
more
at
the shrine
of
suffering:
light
we
a dim light
to see beyond star
light
for
so much dark
around our civilization lurks
that we
must get more light
more
light!
More
Soul wake
up Inner Soul!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Round

round the mirrors of the Earth
went round him poor Poet-Seer child
of the innocent eyes
he looked around and saw around the first gleaming waters of the sun
go round and round and round

Emmanuel George Cefai
Round And Round

Round and round
the same thing like the donkey round the water mill like Ixion turning round around round but ah! from that turning round the same there grows diversity mutation and variation and ever-increasing evolution not less of emotion.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Round and round
The nymph
On her tiptoes
Danced

And
The night
Played
The minuet

As heavens play
As heavens play
At night
That night of magic
When
Beauty's eyes were In spells
By a Poet Seer Captured
At last Enmeshed
At last.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Round Round

Round
round my head whirls
my Inner Soul
a pole round which all turns gyrates.

At least!

In this jelly sea
there be a fixed point Inner Soul
a Hand that touches high and long as need
be the mighty heavens.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Round The Earth

round
round the Earth
the myrrh and incense blew their way slow, slow, slow

yet
continuing as in ever-increase
there were sacrifices

there was suffering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Round The Gorges

courts, conquests, police, generals, armies, admirals and fleets
unknown
kilometers from here stretches alone and immense a haughty sea

Emmanuel George Cefai
Round The Land

Round the land
The waters vast Immense bound Hedge in every Inch of land
Wise the waters Waters vast They control at least
The Earth round and round
In the last!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Round The Tree Of Spell

Round the tree of spell
round round
of silence holy silence
the sound

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ruddy Wind

Rate of the ruddy wind this eve of feast eve of Saint Paul's Day though on other days you bring not joy
you bring joy
now if you keep the rains
away.

the heavens
with niter-flushed clouds are beset:
the kerbs and asphalt
still dry and my hearts will to see them so remain:

for it be the feast my mother
made glad at least
once in a whole year
now no longer her sweet
voice
the solitary house does haunt
no,
no longer:
but her spirit yearns
and I heart it yearning in the house
more
in my heart.
I heard it.
I felt it.
I obeyed it.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Rude

By my verses of all suffering

Rude
And raw each word

Rude
And raw each note jars harsh

Emmanuel George Cefai
Run Of The Ages

Now that in the run of the Ages
My black hair grays in part
And
My spirits fail

Yet for all these I feel
The wisdom of the sages.

Emmanuel George Cefai
In the rushes
There was a wind Going round
And round
Restless
With a lament of sound
In the rushes
In the rushes

Emmanuel George Cefai
Rustle The Mighty Waves, Whispers The Storm!

In to my ears both join symphony!

And in my heart
both breed verse and song!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Rusty Clouds

the rusty clouds - the bells of vesper -
'All hands on deck'

merry the wind though showers light - Earth speaks nasal through her microphone.

Emotion tired sleeps.
Sub-conscious surges
high.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sacred Incense

Sacred incense,
Sacred incense, rise!

The temple-shrine it scents
Of holy smoke-incense

And quiet be the night Barefoot the monks

And in that awesome Silence rise
The voices of the monks
And canticles.

And from behind a pillar In monastery
Peeps out the Dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sad Departing

In the sad departing Towards the cemetery
In the sad loss
Of an Immortality!
In the fears of futurity
In the angst of the funereal In the fugue of the blocked Memory

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sad Figures March

To-night sad figures
March

Tonight sad figures turn Grey into dark

On a twig a nightingale Occasional Chirps silent

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sad King

Before the sad King Sang the minstrel.

In the vast hall
They were alone

The one to sadness
As a King of desires Unbounded.

The other as the servant
Smiled
And sang of made-up joy Though as sad as his master Was his heart.

For an hour
They stayed so.

Then
Of a sudden Like to a light stick fire arose enraged the King Bade him go.

And
On the face of the minstrel
There was writ the stark Question: ‘Why?
Be this the reward of My patient suffering? ’

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sad Rocks

The waters lap
The waters lap the rocks
The sad rocks.

I see apartments,
Shops, lands and
More
All sinking.
In the damned waters
Before my eyes
They be sinking.

There’s fear too now Add
To suffering.
I will not look.
I will my eyes
Close.
The waters lap
The waters lap the rocks
The sad rocks.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sad Sad Star

Sad
Sad Star
that
from the fellow-stars
fell
fell down
down
lost and disheveled
always
falling
falling:
so me
from summit heights
that
I
Had Labored
So
To reach
Now
Falling
Falling
Falling

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sad The Notes

Sad the notes
Sad is funereal
And Funereal is sad
And now
You be amidst the ghosts and shrouds.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sad The Wind

Winds
Sad the wind neighs
And
Your eyes Glisten more
The sadder
The more beautiful!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sad. Not A Verse!

Sad.
Not a verse!
Not a word!
No,
Nor even a parched throat!
Eyes cast
No, heavens too high!
Life too rich
Not a verse!
Not a word!
No!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sadness Was Walking Lone And Mute

Sadness was walking lone and mute
A lyric Poet sadly played his lute.

The moon was vying with star light
To win its place in the lone night.

Shrouds and ghosts were lamenting
And a Mother in a corner weeping.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sadness, Angst, Ennui

Sadness begins
But then begets
So much of angst
So often!
And so much
Of angst
Over the days and Weeks
Spills in ennui!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Saint Joseph

Verses.
Saint Joseph on the wall.

My father moves his Bones.

Today's the sun.
No wind.
No storm.

May the approaching Spring
In its feast
Now begin.

I saw bones moving up the Road
At Dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai Saline Cliffs And Smelly Waterways

Thoughts that as smoke Ascend
Winding

Wave currents that through vaginas Suck chromosomes from female eggs:
Then re-throw back
In zygotes made.

Violins
That sings slow and plays meanwhile Ducks
Head-moving gargle notes of violins.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Same Hapless Thing

Ah! woe is me!
The same hapless thing
Again
Again
Again
Again
Occurs and re-occurs.

How many nights
Had I
With open eyes of Waking fretting
Stood Fearing
The hapless thing?

Time had to pass
For the hapless thing
Not to occur:
But as the game
Stood finished in tow
With extra time
The goal of misfortune Destiny scored
With the last breath
With the last try
In the last second.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sands Speak

I heard the sands speak and Did not care.

I heard a giant lyre played In the high desert heavens
But I cared not.

I heard the whispering of
The Muse
Perhaps it was the best of Verse
And did not heed

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sank The Poet Seer

Sank Sank the Poet Seer Sank more and more In the mires of despair
And dark thoughts
Dark, dark, dark,
Ah! where be Beauty?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sappho 2014 Now Long

Sappho 2014 now long Centuries separated with Voice eerie whispering Through the long, long Tunnel of Time-Motion:
I read
You yet again
When dusk had settled

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sate Sipping Energy

Sate sipping energy
It
Had just gone
Out of the body mass
She laid silent
The chains one by
One
Undressed the earth
In earth
From earth
Sate sipping energy.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sate The Owl

Sate the owl
Wondering in her empery:
The empery of the Vacant
And it was silent
It was a way of after-thought
Its face looked white
Though
Dawn was far away
And Deep the dancing:
Brimful of Candid stones That glimmered with The eyes of night-dews
In the forested
Night.
Sate the owl
Wondering in her empery:
The empery of the Vacant
And it was silent

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sate The Wise Owl

Sate the wise Owl
Sate on its thick bough
The winter was not deep But was begun
And just
The broken heart that In September waned
And in the summer faded Faded slow
That broken heart
In silence found its sway
For wisdom in silence breeds Most time thoughts propense To such variation and Experiment
That Silence be preferred to A loud Voice.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Satin

Satin hands
And Satin eyes
The spirits round
They dance
The night
Spectator night
With stars and
Moon
And lake glimmering!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Satyr

A satyr jumped With giant strides
A Satyr flew
As the wind flies
And more.

A Satyr sung
A sacred song Tress, flowers Among:

A Satyr he
As in a bat Transformed
Over the town
He flew
And at the night
A powder light
A magic light
He threw.

And woke the town next morn
Next dawn

And though the conscious civilization Kept
It added the sub-conscious one too
Yet.
Yes, so, my Monsignor.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Satyrs Fauns

Flurry of feet
Of satyrs fauns
And nymphs
Piping bacchanalians
And staring owls
And piping nightingales Whither go they?

The night be cold
The rain be sharp
The frost be dense
The chill that cuts
The clouds that frown
The thunder roars
The lightning lights
To-night
This night.

For Flurry of feet
Of satyrs fauns
And nymphs
Piping bacchanalians
And staring owls
And piping nightingales
Whither go they?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Savage Winters

Beast
Of
The Savage
Winters Beast
That Talks
And Down
The Wetted
City Stairs
It
Walks

Emmanuel George Cefai
Save With The Stars

Save with the stars
gather with the dusk spend with the Dawn the generous Dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai
Saw Him Yesterday

I
Saw Him
Yesterday
Yet
This
He
Has
Not Come
This Way
No
This Dawn
Be
Not
For Him
But
A Tear
But
A Sigh!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Saw I A Shroud The Passed.

Saw I a shroud the passed.

It was a lass.

It was a lass
But of last century!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Saw I The Castles Falling

Saw I the castles falling
Falling
The walls were burning Down they crashed
Falling:
Burning
And I had joy
To see my castle falling
Burning.

Emmanuel George Cefai Scarecrow

the scarecrow
it was night
with secret eyes
the scarecrow
saw its redundancy

'I'm heavy heart'

The shout woke the owls stared
the nightingales

Emmanuel George Cefai
Scent Of Camphor And Myrrh

Scent of camphor and myrrh
Issuing
From Earth
There be
With us
A human rights activist He’s willing To shed his blood
And
More
A Poet-Seer
And I think
His blood will soon
Be shed in martyrdom That’s why
Earth be already Preparing for his Parting.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Scented Gardens

Scented are the gardens
The meadows on the Rhine Garlanded in the night
The green is overcome
By black
But not its scenting!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Scents And Motions

In the walk
There are so many Things
Phenomena
Scents and motions
Surprises and wide Open eyes:
In the walk.

But
Not these I look for.
But
For the thoughts
That come to me
Come
In those deep and Profound of silences.

Even a leaf falling Turns me round.
My steps go slow
As thoughts Slow them as it gets Deeper.

In those times too
The night is not
Of dark completely
As I walk Between the aisles of
Trees
There be a certain twilight Glimmering
Trembling in the dimness
Of the moon-light.

Before me
Stretch the passages And layers
Of thought on thought Synthesis and drops
Of experience on experience
Before me
And
The night goes
And Winter be not of necessity
But
The calm sequestered solitude That after all is where Man speaks to Man In ages all
And in all destinies
And centuries.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Scream

The scream I heard
But this was not
Of Earth

Slowly, slowly slow
Shadows thick

If you saw my lines then you Saw my heart
And read it

For our ways be different
From
The ways of the earth.

I want a jungle

Emmanuel George Cefai
Screams And Shouts

Screams
And Shouts
Verses
Will
Not Avail
The Hammer
Of
The Clouds
Pricks
Then
To Night-dews
Waters
Of
The heavens
Cool Places
Of
The Earth
And Glittering Lakes
By Hamlets
Of Hamlets Glittering
In
The Sole
Night Thinking Groaning
Mourning
Emmanuel George Cefai
Sea Bosom

The thin sea-bosom Having tea
Quiet
At Dawn
Beginning of a day
Muscling itself
For woes to follow

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sea Craft Of Magic

Sea craft of magic Rolls
As thunder clouds
Over High peaks in Patagonia
snows
there grow the mists of yesterday and the growing spell of the night of today the sea craft with its magic wings
flies on and on and on in the wide twilight waters glaring:
southward
the waters glow northward thunders blow
and
lightning
and still the sea craft goes on and on deriding

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sea Roars

To-night the sea roars not
Though
On the sandy beach Under the palms
The sand-grains tremble.

The pebbles rattle not Nor does the bat
Whistle its way
Around
Screaming.

To-night Hesperus wills Calm
And quiet
And silence of the tomb.

Emmanuel George Cefai Seagull

gull gull
that lonely flies
and hoarse
it cries
over
the dry sand
and
the mountains
dark whose slopes peeled off
slow
but secure
and sinister
over
the centuries
of dilapidation dressed gull gull
that lonely flies
and hoarse
it cries
over

Emmanuel George Cefai
Seas And Oceans I Left

Seas
and oceans
I Left
A Flag
In
The Midst
Of
The Oceans
And
The Flag
Had
All
The Flags
Of
The Other Countries
In
It
Little Afar
A Man Floated
On
The Waves
Face Upwards
To
The Sun
To
The Stars
And
To
The Heavens
Immense
He Was there
And
There
Were Around Hundreds
Of Flags
From The First Flag
That
Was
And
All
The Flags
Floated
Round
The Man
All
In
One
And
One
In
All

Emmanuel George Cefai Sea-Shore

on
the sea-shore thinking
I
found
a Soul
but
not
the body
the do-ve-Soul
as
the do-ve strutted the sand and the oncoming waves the rush the thinking
there
was a man escaped
from what
I
call lunatic asylum.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sea-Spirit

Sea-spirit
There's a basket
It floats
It floats
Along the Ocean Right in to the bay Where golden dreams
Be made
For the old dwellings Already slumbering
In the first dusk
In the first dusk.....

Emmanuel George Cefai
Secluded Town

Into
The Secluded
Town Willows
Weep
The Wind Speaks
Slow
And Many Times Whispers
Only:
And
In to
That Seclusion
Was Heard
The crystal
Music
Of Waters

Emmanuel George Cefai
Secret

Now that the secret is out put off the lights and let me cry
silent
and in the dark
all night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Secret Eyes

the scarecrow
it was night
with secret eyes
the scarecrow
saw its redundancy

'I'm heavy heart'

The shout
woke the owls stared
the nightingales

Emmanuel George Cefai
Secret Fountain

Secret fountain of pearls.
Night shines from my eyes.

The waters reflected
A red crop of hair
that stood on end.

Yet
the waters shone beautiful.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sedated

The wines went round

Sedated
They sat green wand
On head
Amidst the green Alighted by the moon
And incense rose

Incense
To friendly gods Selected from Olympus
As the leaf Selected from the tree
Then from the bough.

Emmanuel George Cefai
See

The shadows slowly steals.

See wall and shadow are one.

I felt the struggle to become A father

I experienced it.

I had the pain, the suffering

Emmanuel George Cefai
See a flower walk
And walk
The flower in red boots
The flower in red shoes
Along the moon-lit sward
The moon-lit sward of green Amongst the scent of mists Of magic and of notes
That music sweet and weird float:
One after one
As chained though free Untied
The ghosts and shrouds
One after other walk:
Soldiers of the magic night
And of the dark mute brides:
See a flower walk
And walk
The flower in red boots
The flower in red shoes

Emmanuel George Cefai
See In The Year – Open The Calendar:

Fetch up and look up the holidays Look the Sundays, here and there Calculate a Saturday;
These are days of oxygen?
Amidst the weltering pressure of The throttling martyrdom my enemies vowed For this year each hour
Of those aforementioned days
Be a dower, as precious as the Orient
All its pearls, not just one, but all, all, all.

Emmanuel George Cefai
See My Cold Hands,

See
See my cold hands,
Outside the gelid frost Reigns.
Yet Sad, sad heart,
The cold here in my hands Goes deeper Deeper roots than Just gelid frost

Emmanuel George Cefai
See Though Drear And Sadness

See
Though drear and sadness be all near And covered are the cheeks of the heavens with fear Yet Winter’s days are falling one by one
And in the midst of chill, this frost, this chill
The first signs of new warmth begin A Dawn of Spring.

Emmanuel George Cefai
See, see, calculate, how many hours
As we humans calculate – are there In a span all round of a whole one year:
You will find rough and approximate
About a eight thousand of them:
Now
On the first day already twenty four
By now
Already almost nine have passed:
See, how Time slips away?
And Time is Motion; Motion therefore Slips so away: that is the syllogism.

Emmanuel George Cefai
See, see, my Monsignor, Take Time at least day by day,
Not year by year, or Week by week:
But even hour by hour take
And every hour that be gained, is gained.
So let me do this year: at least To it have I little alternative:
With all the daggers in my direction drawn And on my head already I see The crown of red and bloody martyrdom.

Emmanuel George Cefai
See, See, Thoughts, Ideas,

See, see, thoughts, ideas, climbing climbing
and they be irresistible occurring and occurring as day and night and dusk and
dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai Seed

The Seed
Of
The Plant Dispersed
Lay
In to the gales of night
In to the chills Of winter.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Seeing And Realizing

Seeing
And realizing
That all around
His own built Fort Storm upon storm
Green mouthed
Red
In thunder and In lightning Was swiftly Gathering
In the relatively Safe Haunts of the night
He left His castle
Drunk the spell Became a ghost and Shroud
A type he willed:
himself
Another Dracula

Emmanuel George Cefai
Semester Of Lineage

Semester of lineage
Ghosts that pace Noble and
Round
With sibling shrouds.

The food be ready
So the cry
The Cook of the Olympian Table
Cried
Hoarse and bawling.

Accordingly
Went out the fires of the stars
The trembling shades
Of moon
The ghosts that elude
Centuries
And mock
Century after century!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Send me Minerva The Light, Even Dim,

Send me Minerva the light, even dim,
Even if the first flame,
The stone that in pre-history Pressed against the rawness of another Stone
Made fire: but not that fire,
The flame of wisdom give me
That I may in these days be indifferent To the black Winter haunting me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Send us Minerva a wiser man than me
I dreamt to humanity of Immortality Of Body plus of Soul already:
Send us great goddess from your head
Some wiser man than me beget More practical and engineering too:
I lit the light; let not the flame-glow Wither before some turbid winter-thaw:
But catch it while it be, I lighted it.
I meant it to grow, not wither.
I was a dreamer, perhaps, yes, perhaps.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sensing Our Ways

By sensing our ways Groping and Scuffling Hoarding and Pondering
We Think that in the race
Of Time
With Time
We win
Time sits on a trimmed edge and smiles Sardonical

Emmanuel George Cefai
September Expectation

September month of expectation September month of trepidation the leaves to tremble start
and in their trembling starts their anguishing:
on the one side
the Inner Soul
begins its angst on the other side
the Inner Soul
awaits expectant
the end of the year:
day after day pass superfluous and sterile with every passed day resignation grows the foot slides further in the grave.

Emmanuel George Cefai
September Night

Sitting on the branch in a September night the wise Owl garroulous cunningly garbled her wise saws.

Beyond the line of dark seas where the moon plays she sees and dreams as humans dream and more.

too soon too soon the cool September will soon pass yielding to a ferrous October than thin taut cold and frosty eyed November and December.

Yet
in the fortress of your brain wisdom as old wine betters with every day deepens with the chill and the wind ruffling feathers.

September slips quickly day by day and night by night October grimly looks at its near triumph

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sepulchral Eyes

Sepulchral eyes
Hollow
With desperation
Loaded
Red and lighting Emotions find Their seat in them
Sepulchral eyes
Praying of the beady Anchorite: Sepulchral eyes
Hollow
With desperation
Loaded

Emmanuel George Cefai
Serene
Serene
Serene
The pictures roll
One after the other Roll
Serene
Serene
And the violins play
The drum beat Rhythmical
And the violins play
And the violins play

The ancient Greek gods
Haughty and sweet Mediterranean look Latin look
Yet
In them the look of gods
The look of inspirations
And the violins play
And the violins play

Loud
The drums beat Stately and majestic
And most of all Rhythmical
One after the gods
Rotate
Then the deep-browed Thinkers
One after one
Hear!
The drums are beating
Rhythmical
And the violins play
And the violins play Serene
Serene
The pictures roll
One after the other
Roll
Gods and thinkers
Then
As in roster
By the turn The drums are beating
Rhythmical
And the violins play
And the violins play

Emmanuel George Cefai
Serene The Face Of Earth

And all
All
All be quiet
Serene the face of Earth
Serene
The stars to-night
The moon in its light
The sea in its bosom
Bright Silver night dews of
The night
Fall, fall,
Fall
Night closes its eyes Drowsing
For it be past mid-night
And soon
Dawn be on wing!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Serenity In Vexation

More thought
Serenity in vexation propense More reason
More plan
In to the works of night When all silence will be When all silence will
Fall
Not merely winter
But in summer too
The thrall
Of the night be:
Said the Monsignor: How will silence remain
If all awake the humans be?
Spoke then the Poet Seer:
That
As with our choice of Night Over the Day on us depends:
We Must a civilization be, a way of
Life
Conduct in silence to the night’s Respect
Do things but silent,
Not work with trumpeting,
No, no,
Things and events be done in Silence equally
As things we do now
Yet
Not the same things:
Not wars, not injustices, not ill Not sheer necessity of laws
But still
An ever-evolutionary will Ever-increase, silent suffering, Advance without trumpeting.
Emmanuel George Cefai
Serenity, For You I Wish

Serenity, for you I wish serenity, for you I sigh serenity, for you I pray serenity, for you I yearn serenity, for you I cross the bridge of sighs serenity, for you I spend nights walking serenity, for you I be in solitude serenity, you have become my Dawn and Dawn serenity.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Serpent In The Fold

The Serpent in the Fold
The hedgehog silent
Goes
And innocent
He trudges
On and on.

Great crowds Saw I
But lines erect
And moving
The figures stood.

Over the bay
Turned the light Of the old lighthouse
While Night silent lay.

From
The

of
the cemeteries seven diamond crowns
on head
they bore
you
had not better
looked
to them
for they
so
had beauty
in their eyes
that dazzling
it
was blinding
thunder
and

Shade That Giant Looms

Higher than human height by far Yet have chains tied for your legs

How creak and clang the chains
Your feet move, Shade that moves And the chains remain tied and tight.

The centuries pass
The centuries pass
Yet despite, the chains remain Remain tied to the legs of the Shade.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Shadow After Shadow

Shadow

Shadow after shadow Creeping

Grey ones, greyer ones, Dark ones
Yet all be Shadows

Yet all be ghosts

Yet all be shrouds, my mother.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Shadows Of All Shades

shadows Shadows of all shades
and colors
sub-dividing matter: energy ramifying and rarifying
the skeleton of old I heard them laugh
a big laugh
then they ceased
silence.
Ossuary
Of long deep quaffs
Of bones from graves
And tombs and Charnel houses.
the indifferent moon
is used to these laughs.
Ah! we humans will propense be to laugh as skeletons:
human will you not like and relish crumbling into a handful of red-white dust?
There be nobility too and sacredness in such a
dust.
For sacred the human be and more he grows
more with every shadows
shadows of all shades
and colors
sub-dividing matter: energy ramifying and
rarifying
the skeletons of old I heard them laugh
a big laugh
then they ceased
silence.

Calmed be the waves
Those same waves
That rose at dusk
And made havoc Of twilight beauties
The bats ceased to shriek
And went back To their hanging upwards
Downwards
Calmed be the waves
A current of strength Fanned by Neptune blew
As to a ramming road
A little below
The breasts of the seas
And liquid waters.
But now
But now
There be the return to night
As of the other night
As yesterday
As the day before
As before
Before.

On land and sea Floated the scent
Of ossuaries and of Sacred bones.

Shakespeare Had Sung This Too: Wisdom

Shakespeare had sung this too: wisdom
On this unite us.
If his country and mine had but two rivers Principal we would have joined them:
But
Shakespeare has his Thames and I have no
River.
Therefore we can join the Thames to the Mediterranean sea.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Shakespeare Too Unfolded His Emotions

Shakespeare too unfolded his emotions
Like the waves that roll and roll majestic When roaring stands the mighty Ocean:
Wave upon wave, wave after wave Time and Space, Space and Time united All in One and One in All:
So I; so write; so feel; so versify
And times to come will perhaps Brush off the dust over the lank words
The ironed passages and the highlighted words:
O! Shakespeare too unfolded his emotions.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Shall We Shall We On Earth

Shall we shall we on earth
Finish as walking cadavers
As walking cadavers with jittering teeth?

Our civilization has sapped our blood
That the mass universe hath given us:
And now like Dracula feels its wings To fly in to the dark lake of the night Where war, destruction, disease fly As hideous night-birds with full hideous cry How hideous - as they pass and wheel all by!

They wheel mechanical prevedible like rotating planets.

And on a pitch-black crag Envy and Hate two lovers of the Night Put hand in hand and smile and look

She Came Round

She came round and asked Him; she the princess.

‘Why do you languish and Hours spend looking in the Waters of the pool? ’

He spoke not; only Sighed; and he replied.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Shine In The Light Of Glory

The ghost tonight
They feel the
Chill
But not as me
No, for their bones
Strong
Shine in the light of glory
Of those Who cut the chains of Earth With Earth they fall

Emmanuel George Cefai
Shoals On The Sea

Shoals on the sea
Rocks
Where sirens stood Little islands
That hide in the night Vessels know of these They have to zigzag or Run aground
The waters
Whisper
They hear them
And
The shoals rustle
As grains of sand Turned here and there
And with fury Tossed
Occasionally:
Ah! the mass universe Has ensured these
So many centuries gone
And yet to come!

Shoot On Sight

Shoot on sight
From the guns
Of night dews Sight
Dark cut through
By the Knife
Of Glow-worms
Adding
To the stealthy Moon light.

Ah! how many
How many Nights as this Love, centuries
Long, long centuries
Witnessed and felt
In long experience and Deep heart!
How many!
How many!
How many!

The doves of night
Those turtle doves
Lovers of gloom
And Eyeing waves of Doom
Those turtle doves
They roam the night Borne on fragmented Clouds of fleeces light.

The night is as the nights
And so many things Phenomena expected as Exceptional
When passed and When experienced be
As others gone Long gone
And others lined to Come!

Ah! how many
How many Nights as this Love, centuries
Long, long centuries
Witnessed and felt
In long experience and Deep heart!
How many!
How many!
How many!

Emmanuel George Cefai Short Verse

Short verse but felt into the heart
where it touched the chord strings the writing on the wall that was at night disappeared in Dawn all out of sight;
I saw a Hand that wrote as with charcoal
black clear letters, large for eyes to read yet little before Dawn a white hand delicate passed over the writing on the wall and swept it.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Short Verse Yet

Danced the fauns
And danced satyrs
And danced the nymphs
They danced and danced Till bright-eyed Dawn Froze them in trance.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Short Words

Short words
Brief
In verse Face book Twitter
Everywhere
Every time
Everyplace.
The moon's brief
Its lips pursed.
Tonight.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Shout

The syringe of the heavens
It shouts so many times Loud and clear and Deafening:
With every injustice that goes
In its face Hidden at night the heavens call
And shout.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Shout Slow And Hilarious

Shout slow and Hilarious
The heavens will
So
And you must Obey the heavens
For they be immense
And
From them emerge Lightings and Thunderings:
The statue stood slow
And erect
For it was thinking
It was thinking

Emmanuel George Cefai
Shouted The Owl

The night
The night
Shouted the Owl.

She ruffled her feathers.

On another bough
A nightingale hid Behind a cluster of Searing leaves
That yet remained
For now
Till now.

Sung the first note,
The nightingale.

The Owl was first, there
Before Wither
Wise grumbling

Emmanuel George Cefai
Shouting Colors

Shouting colors
Vivid
Yet all sad and gaudy
All sad
A cemetery is Near
Yet Night is yet Afar
And day
Yearns so to fade
Yet
Fading is far away!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Shouting Red.

The land
It is shouting
Red.

It is night.

The wind has usurped the
Trees.

Insects of the night are At work or love.

The mill works as in the day
But slower.

The ploughman returning looks At the high heavens.

And says not one word.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Shrine

Shrine
That in the wall
Of an old street
In the old city hangs Where grime and Dust
Crept in centuries
Shrine
Last night I passed
I heard words Speech
And in my language
I recognized:
To me directed
Were those words?
I asked the Shrine
But no reply.
No sound.
Only the grit blasting Distant sound
Over the waters
Up Nix Mangiari steps.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Shroud Of The Earth

Shroud of the earth
wandering with our shrouds associating and conspiring in dark and straitened alleys
whispering.

ah! what the sighs
what yearnings
the regrets and the unrequited
wishes!

Shrouds in pain increase their pain the waters of the Earth console them not nor drive away tears from their red socket eyes

Emmanuel George Cefai
Shrouds Of Black Whither

Shrouds of black whither go with Hurried step and pompous pace?

Pace after pace, torch-bearing each In a hand hidden all in black?

Down the streets, down the alleys,
Down the winding ways, they go.

Nearer and nearer the sea-shore
They wend hour after hour strikes.

And the night ah! the night of dark Covers their incantations low.

Soon, soon arrive they at the ferry Where a barge in black awaits.

A plank draped black each ascends One after the other torch-bearing go.

And once the barge with its cargo Full, alone unmanned it goes, goes out to sea.

Lone neighed the winds, the waves danced Though not in tempest but in moon lit glow.

And more the barge from share it distanced Itself louder the low chants grew.

Glimmered the torches on the barge of dark Till out at sea a speck from shore it shone.

Glimmered, glimmered, glimmered,
And the moon light smiled, clouds frowned.

And the barge goes, goes out the barge,
Out un to the open Oceans, open seas.
Out, out in to the immensity of Ocean Depths where land so far alights.

And still the motley crowd sang, sang Its incantations loud in to the night.

Still glimmered the torches, still The torches wind-flickering burnt,

And lighted the dark round. Stillness Of immensity in that immensity abounds.

And on and on sailed the barge Without direction and without a plan.

But whither the waters threw it, went it That barge of dark, carrying dark hoods.

And no land sighted, yet hour after hour
Of the night lapsed.

The curtain of the black became as edged With silver as the moon and then with white.

And lo! Of sudden fell the curtain dark And Dawn appeared rosy in her might.

And as soon as at touch of magic wand Disappeared as in a mist the barge of black.

And whither it went let the Dawn sole know
And whither the dark hooded shrouds.

Sign Of The Cross

Sign of the Cross Vesper Bells voices
Wafted in the taut air
Above
The harrowing clouds
Of vesper time
For Vesper time
Be
The time of The fading and The waning

Emmanuel George Cefai
Signs Of Tiredness

Signs of tiredness
Signs of ageing
My Muse is Shaking.

During the day
I sowed
But now
Now
Age away.

The heart and spine Beat dim
Yet beat Vesper is past
And dusk
And night be deep
And the stars have sunken eyes
And
The moon groans.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Silence

I reply and the silence be my reply.

That's my methodology.

And a way of my discovery.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Silence At The Round Table

At the Round Table
The Knights at round Their cuirassed King
The Queen set on a throne
Behind:
The dusk was falling
Slow
Slow
Slow
Silence; no words
Not even when old Merlin
Came
Thoughts raced as lightning
In furrowed brains.
Words ceased.
Looks talked and spoke

Emmanuel George Cefai
Silence Broken

The silence in the Wide, wide plain
And in the glen below
Where birds sits Still on bough
And move not
The silence was long
In being broken.

The Heavens, the immense Heavens,
I felt
That they were as pending Clouds waiting for the bursting Flooding of the rains
Whilst
Torrents breaks
And loose Zephyr Lets the string of His bag of winds.

It was thus that the Heavens
Spoke
It was thus their mighty Voice
It was thus
That Heavens broke the Silence.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Silent And Humble

Silent
And Humble
The Sub-Conscious works.

I was in the sub-conscious Quandary.

Then before me
In surprise came
The answer.
Conscious it was The root sub-conscious.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Silent Face

I saw the silent face glide by enter the door
the figure ascends the stairs quickly
I was left behind ah! ghosts!
ah! spirits!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Silent Fields And Roads

Silent
Silent Fields and roads that wind straight
and round dusty dust of stars of the white stars
in the moon's light of the owl calls
nightingales
amorous singing
and then
sudden in the not so distant Bourne
a Figure of Night walks walks so swift whistling
whistling
whistler of a magic night of spells!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Silent Ghost

Breathe silent ghost
The tales of old
The centuries past Let them walk by Walk on their Toes this Last of night
Before the Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Silent Is The Night

Silent is the night
Tonight!
Yet so be so many nights!

Would I be within a night
In the time of the old knights Hear the clanking of the swords Match the clanking of the winds!

And the night-watch from his place the new dawn arising trace!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Silent Masquerade

night’ silent masquerade the chorus made of lizards, squirrels, hedgehogs and dancing raspberries elucidating cranberries figs and firs with top hats stuck against the summit
gales
open
open
open the lids of graves and tombs
hang their heads resigned nocturnal yews shades of the swollen
night:
Draculas fly as large
bats.
For how much blood will skeletons conserve? '

Emmanuel George Cefai
Silent Mute

Silent
Mute Funereal faced and Grim I
My mother
Professor Peter
Both in hospital now
This night
This cold night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Silent Star That In This Night

Silent star that in this night
Fronts the cold and the frost That drop curtain like through The sad heavens:
You silent star are the mirror Where I look to view my Inner Soul, my deep Inner Soul
And in the silent night
As in a film my unhappiness Where I my life I wished To do not as I did:
The pain
The excruciation
And now
The heavy punishment
Of emaciation of the soul, my Inner Soul.
The Soul, the Inner Soul has thirst
In the desert of sadness
There grows the seed of Further sadness:
Dawn after dawn will come and
Be
But power will change its vessels Vessels that hold power now Will not hold power then And wealth will change its vessels Vessels that hold wealth now Will not hold wealth then

Emmanuel George Cefai
Silent The Poet Seer

But not mute
No,
No, not mute
For seeing injustice
His Voice high Raised he unto the skies
The high skies
And the heavens moved

Emmanuel George Cefai
Silent Was He.

Silent was he.

Then
He spoke.
Little he spoke.
Few words.

Then he returned to silence.

The Assembly looked at each other.

And the Assembly was mute too.

And the Assembly spoke not too.

And the Assembly felt a Philosopher in the midst of it.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Silver The Music Notes Ascended

Silver the music notes ascended to the dreary heavens; in one long anesthetic of ever-changing mist.

With every second colors change.

Slow and mute the moon reflects
On its mute face the changing Colors in the frosty mirror.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Simple  Dreary Song He Made

Simple Dreary
Song he made Free of all
And free of things
No thing that was not him
Made
To him
No thing
No thing
And he sang Sang all freely Sang of Spring
That was now
Towards the end Sang of Summer
That was waiting at The door
With parched throat now Filled with wine
Waters and liquids divine
That kept coming
Coming
Coming
On he hopped all Merrily
On he hopped and versed
And sang Poet Seer who had Inside him
A heart of sad Yet he hopped
Yet he joyed
As the Sub-Conscious showed its hand And welled up
Up to surface as a well Magic well
With the liquid almost coming Stream, no end, ever-increasing.
Even dusk
And its failing twilight
Then
The night and the eyes of
Stars
Did not cease him from his Songs
And his lines to heavens rose
And his lines the people sang And his lines were of the heavens
And his lines the heavens rang

Emmanuel George Cefai
Simple Sweet

Sweet the simple Simple sweet
And the two
Be made to meet.

Night is calling Owls are rustling Nightingales singing
Waters brimming

From the cataract leap Glancing moonlit waters
Loud
And the grey rocks light
Aloud!

Souls to this site fly Here lie before you vie For wealth power glory
All.

Sweet the simple Simple sweet
And the two
Be made to meet.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sing A Little

Sing a little Sing awhile
Time an eel Slips and slips Days fade
And so many Things:
Sing a little Sing a while

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sing A Song

Sing, sing a song
The child wants sleep Wants to go along With fairies nymphs and All the throng
Of Beauty and secluded song.

Sing, sing a song
And let The woes of earth serpents
Among
With poison and with venom hiss
Here the child goes, here the Sleep, the dream,
The fairy elfin throng.

Though many a fairy song Entrance
Enthrall
Yet there will remain songs
To sing
Tunes to chant sweet And words and verses meet.
Ah! therefore Sing a fairy song
So many have been sung
And this
Yet as yet another song.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sing I

Sing I
Of dawn and night
And seasons and
The rest:
For these are we
And we are them
And
What in us in not in them
Let us shed:
My Monsignor, remember that:
Phenomena and motion are Behind all these
And these Are boosters of phenomena and motion Therefore
Sing I
Of dawn and night
And seasons and
The rest:
For these are we

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sing In The Garden

My Monsignor, you wish to versify
And sing
So told me.

You aim at the sacred at Divinity.

But forget not the pain, the suffering,
The restlessness
That now you must make yours.

But sing.
For to sing is given to every heart
And
To versify given to every brain.

Look! The nightingale has begun To sing in the garden!
Come! Hear!
And
Like the nightingale begin to sing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sing, Sing, Maiden

Sing, sing, maiden
I know
That your heart has Been pierced
By the shafts of Cupid;
Now
You sing, you bear Consequences'

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sings Sweet

The playing on the violins of last farewells.

I am now come.

Sing sweet
The playing of the violin of the farewell.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sip In The Beauty Of The Flowers

Sip
In the beauty of the flowers

The night
Has endowed them with dews
His lasting dowers

See
Their eyes
Millions still weep Still mourn the spirits of the Night
The shadows grey

Over the green
A million eyes be seen.

And the dawn smiles not
And
The dawn mourns
The funeral cortege
Of last noble night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sir Of The Day

Dear sir of the day
The drear day

We hunt here and there To escape dreariness.

But like going round and
Round
The same planet Earth
We finish

Emmanuel George Cefai
Siren Of A Day

Siren of a day
Sate on a rock of old
With cove in it Wherein
The siren hid from Curious eyes:
No sound made she No song
No humming
But looked With affrighted eyes
For it was day
And
She was out of her Habitat: Waited for a quick dusk
And then
A long and splendid glorious night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sirens Dipped

Into the waters
The sirens Dipped:
Small round circles
Floated
On the sea-bosom:
Above
The stars looked down
With eyes of young Fresh children:
From Somewhere and Everywhere
Sung voice and echoes
Of a Poet Seer.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sitting At A Table In The Midst Of Other Tables

Sitting at a table in the midst of other tables of glass thin and transparent with
skeletons
as guests and patrons sitting too at tables
like me
like me
they sat in the Residence of the Cemetery

And
contrary to human cafes and bars and pubs
they
the skeletons
just sat at the tables
staring staring staring

And they were not friends and they were not enemies

And they did not socialise and no word said they but stared,
stared, just stared in silence

Sitting at a table in the midst of other tables
of glass thin and transparent with
skeletons
as guests and patrons sitting too at tables
like me
like me
they sat
in the Residence of the Cemetery
Emmanuel George Cefai
Sitting On The Desk

On sitting on the desk
Remember I
A tapestry of imageries
One after one
They come whether Desired or not:
They come, they come
For Beauty so dictates.

The picture of life
Changes
In these successions of imageries Whether An Emperor
Or a pauper be.

For
The coin of life two faces has One the routine and rote
The other the reveries That Beauty with her magic Wand brings.

Which choose?

To you, my Monsignor for you.
And to me
I do not for Beauty to root Hesitate.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Skeletal Lights Blind

Skeletal lights blind
Across the cemetery ways
For it be Now deep midnight.

Dresses white and Colored
Move
With no flesh

Old tombs yawn, monuments
Light
Fires swarm as snakes
But not of glow-worms:
The feast of the Spirits Hist! disturb not!
It be deep midnight.
And Dawn is far away
Better for her Awhile to wheel away.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Skeleton

Skeletons people feel:
A Civilization
Of Skeletons

Emmanuel George Cefai
Skeleton Eyes

Skeleton Hollow eyes Wide Dripping
Not tears
Nor blood
But Dripping
Dripping

Emmanuel George Cefai
Skeleton Hopped On And On

I heard the bones crack
though
still the skeleton hopped on
and on

I heard the bones crack
the waters dyed to red
by magic cysts
I heard the bones crack

the ghost lament elongated
united
into the heavens
melted
I heard the bones crack

Emmanuel George Cefai
Skeleton Of The Golden Tooth

Skeleton of the golden tooth that outshines all the rotten peers and sibling teeth.

yet
all the teeth together rattle
in the night

also the golden tooth

Emmanuel George Cefai
Skeleton Of The Popping Eyes

Skeleton of the popping eyes Fortunate
That your eyes remain:
Popping in this wilderness of Earth Skelton
You speak not, but stand Mute and inglorious Hollowed face without The beauty that clothes the bones That now soiled with dust
Reign:
Skeleton of the popping eyes
I see you beckon
You point to humans gathered As in the vale of Josaphat
And
In your eyes I see gleam
The anger and the wrath of justice To be done:
Not of vindictiveness, no,
No stronger
Skeleton of the popping eyes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Skeleton Of The Surge

skeleton of the surge
in
the Tunnel of Life light came and grew and went and came intermittently cyclically:
how fell
a
chill in to those secret passages and ways were they by the skeletons dug away from
light of day?
Westward and eastward
he
they moved solemnly skeleton and human in the world of Age and of the skeleton

Emmanuel George Cefai
Skeleton Snoring

I heard a Skeleton Snoring.

That brought me verses.

And that brought me song

Song to join with the Giant flame of the Skeleton Chorus On nights of gruesome moon
And rabid thunder.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Skeleton That Roamed

Skeleton that roamed
Yesterday
Away from the bunch
Of ghosts and shrouds
That marched with flaming Torches
In the night:
Island of yews Midst of the cemetery Water silvery
That trickles seeping Washed with bones:
And Skeleton that roamed
Yesterday
Away from the bunch
Of ghosts and shrouds
That marched with flaming Torches

Emmanuel George Cefai
Skeleton With One Eye

Skeleton with one eye
Still glistening:
And a hole shining.
Night tonight has a nervous temperament
Yet
As yet the Law of Silence
Is not broken

Emmanuel George Cefai
Skeletons

Skeletons that march
Over the plain
Step after step
Like soldiers goose-step
After goose-step:
And the night-hours strike
And the night-hours pass
And the night-waters flow Clicks the water-mill
The donkey turns not but sleeps The horse awakes and Out of his stall
His head looks out and views
Skeletons
Skeletons that march
Over the plain
Step after step
Like soldiers goose-step
After goose-step

Emmanuel George Cefai

Of life, life now
After all.

A couplet of sweet lines, just beauty And fancied married
In a nocturnal wine goblet.

Skeletons that rattle Ghosts that huddle Shades that grey Circulate

Black, white, grey, in between Surrealist, symbolist,
What more?
All these Intertransform and Be specificities all on one and Same tree genealogical.
And thus related
Accordingly.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sleazy March

A sleazy march
A grumbling crowd I saw
And it was night.

Up,
Up a cemetery road Went up the crowd And sighs and Groans crawled round.

Fatigued and slow
Moved
Round the tombs
The crowd:
White Dawn began to come
And Faded the crowd
Before the Dawn.
Though it was night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sleep And Breathe

Sleep and breathe
Breathe so warm Forget all Forget all Close your eyes
Out and in
In and out
There’s the breathing!

Sleep and breathe
Think not, no, Ban all woe,
Ban all worries Sadness throw.

For outside Storms and tempests
Blow
Dim the light
Out be night
With just starlight Here warm
Sleep and breathe Echo peace
Forget all Forget all.
Forget

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sleep And Subconscious

O give haunting Give me not more Except the Dawn
When haunting be Yet gone
And peaceful days
Of dream and afternoon
Sleep and subconscious
Opium:
Not more
Then
With the fading dusk Bring Bring on Haunting again.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sleep Gave Me Better Verse And Sweeter Song.

Sleep gave me better verse and sweeter Song.

But I woke with a mind relaxed rejuvenated And blank.

The sudden burst of the Conscious masked The wealth of the Sub-Conscious that Had just been.

And that wealth of Sub-Conscious got not
Out

But only sweet of song and parched of Thought

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sleep Sub-Conscious

Read the verse
And Sleep sub-conscious Waking yet
With a little conscious.

A big clock Ticked the time
Impatient
Ruthless yet.

A lark passed high In the drear skies
And silent.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sleep, Sleep, Fresh Dawn

Sleep, sleep, fresh Dawn
Though you be fresh Yet sleep again
For sake of beauty,
More and more beauty.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sleep, Sleep, My Little One

Sleep, sleep, my little one
'Tis better in this world of us
To sleep the sleep of the innocents Than sleep the sleep of the just:
At least you’ll have a greater chance To avoid long knives and plots
And bloody rendezvous.

For in this world, this world of us
The just is alien and his sleep
Most dangerous negligence:
Long knives will wait at corners round And plots and darts abound
For all the just around.
For in this world, this world of us,
The sleep of innocents is better than The sleep of all the just, my little one.

Sleep, sleep, my little one
And let outside the dark wind neigh
And rain and chill make fear
And the sea’s waves make storm and rage And evil win
And the good disappear
And do not open your eyes sweet one Before night and storm have passed away.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sleep, Sleep, My Sweet One Sleep

Sleep, sleep, my sweet one sleep
Let the film of Morpheus come Like a veiled mist
And visit your eye-lids
And in the airs around Invisible a sweet sylph sings
A lulling lullaby.

Sleep, sleep, my sweet one sleep
And woes forget and ills
And wrongs and plots
And treacheries:
Like a veiled mist
Dreams are falling through Falling
Falling
Falling thro’ your eye-lids thick With the lead of Morpheus awhile
A sylph doth sing
A lulling lullaby.

Sleep, sleep, my sweet one sleep
And think of day and night And dusk and dawn And even
As one film images pass Along your eyes a-dreaming a-dreaming
A-dreaming
Awhile
A sylph doth sing
A lulling lullaby.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sliding Through Life

Sliding
Through Life
a wanton star
that parted
with
the other stars
not even a farewell
no
it
was a rebel star
and
the other stars wanted
not amongst them
a rebel Star.
*
*
A sword a sea a cliff other cliffs all high and horrible a cavern deep and arched and other caverns and coves half arched into the sea
gulping waters of salt:

Ah! time passed here became enamored
stayed for long asleep in drowsiness and innocence relative:
ah! Time stopped here.
Yet
by and by Time heard the ticking of his watch
Time heard the hammering on his
brain
Time heard the alarm clock in his veins and blood
He woke And as he woke he looked more noble than Prometheus waking under his familiar rock in summer more muscled tall than Hercules.

A brain that thinks projects
one thing after another:
always wanting more
and more but stable in the end towards sleep
as the old houses facing Hastings Gardens.
They sleep; mid-night peaks; passes
then in the night stillness rolls on the wheels of Motion
silently
till Dawn with her damsel army appears on the line of the horizon.
Time stops; moves not;
then moves again;
there be a higher Urge that pricks so to move.
And we
We humans move with time
All in to History as per History and are rolled on and on the wheels of Motion
silently.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Slight Infringe

Against
All laws that even Slight
Infringe any human right
And civil liberty
I rise
And shed my blood

Emmanuel George Cefai
Slim Grizzly

Slim Grizzly
drear Delight I to glide barefooted in September
from crag to crag
on the raw shore of rocks
and hear the seas and waves echo the Ocean's feelings:
feel the Ocean speak to its depths and under waters vast, hear the martial steps of a realm other than earth, larger and vaster by far another way of life, another civilization as of us,
which we,
so largely often dismiss,
and think,
of only our civilization material.

Slid
Down Towards
The Port
Where
The Salt Mixes Spume
And
The rocks Arched

Sloping

Sloping
Sloping
The Way of the Heavens
Sloping
Sloping

The night of the vesper stars
It lost its way
But in its immensity
Stays.

For the immense be the beautiful
And
The beautiful
Be the immense
The compass guides of us
Our lives
Our souls
Our noble Souls
Our noble Inner Souls.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Slow

Slow
fast exhilarating depressive
you see, cyclical intermittent
verse and song
experiment
I sing
I chant.
even today at Dawn past.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Slow And Pitch

Life and sounds
Slow and pitch
From the base
Of silence rises.

Acid the Ocean Swells
And bubbles froth
Magic
As in the night
Though it be Dawn

Yet
In mid Ocean
Waters, waters,
Waters
All around
No land
No eyes
Daylight relative.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Slow And Shy

The night peeps
Slow
And shy
The Dawn peeps
Bold
And raw

Emmanuel George Cefai
Slow And Sultry

Slow and sultry
The beauty queen Unmoving yet
As moving
Her beauty spread.

No flesh
Just petals Scent - colors -
A flower!
Just a Flower!
Yet
What Beauty encased
In her!

Thus
Slow and sultry
The beauty queen
Unmoving yet
As moving
Her beauty spread
And magic scent

Emmanuel George Cefai
Slow As A Trickling Tap

Slow
Slow
As a trickling tap
Drop
After
Drop
The words woven
In the oven of the brain
The alembic of Rattling emotions and Heaving breasts
The drops continue
In the dark of night
More of mystery
Pendulums
That stately stride Clocks
Of cathedrals noble
That Strike drop by Drop Across the taut and Asphyxiated
Mouth of the night winds.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Slow Beginning, Then Increase

Begin slow, expect little Nay
Nil.
And then you will increase Propensity.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Slow But Sure

Slow Slow but sure
The verses Slowed.

This month
From thousands
A few hundred Grew.

And
In the next months
A few tens of verses
I preview.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Slow By Slow, Slow By Slow

Slow by slow, slow by slow
The past year rolled on at
The line
That we humans have given it in time
It crossed
And instead of winning the palm It won its jactation over the high cliff Ripid into the depth of the Waste-paper basket of a chill January sea.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Slow Chorus

Slow, together, Chorus
Moaned the skeletons.

Into one huge cloud of moaning Moaned they.

Look, I looked at the grey dull Walls and Pained with The solitude

I wanted the skeletons
For
They were not of this Earth

And I wanted suffering out of This Earth.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Slow Fast But Sure

Slow
Fast
But sure
The days pass
And
In as proportion direct Lowers
The guillotine
The hammer of the night Prays
On its rosary beads
With tears in its Eyes
To the tune of The oncoming dawns of Red
Slow
Fast
But sure
The days pass
And
In as proportion direct Lowers
The guillotine

Emmanuel George Cefai
Slow Grinding Of Time

The slow grinding of Time as to the giant stone slab that grinds the chaff and wheat in the mill underneath:
the slow grinding of Time how deep it be flying arrow that suddenly decreases speed then halts faces grow glum
then white and gaunt:
and blanched ah! Time's slow grinding the horse that running was with majestic manes:
but now
there's a bronze figure of the horse motion all ceased with one leg less that such a horse needs not except for standing: September coming the Horse at the entry of the old city will the storms soon
face
and the ungentle winds and the blizzards of rain and the cruel drops of water chill and the frights from thundering in the long distance over other towns and places heard yet here in the Old City entrance the Horse immotile and powerless commands the glances of the populace
yes
yet
the glances dark smiling shallow proud - all sorts of emotion; all sorts of living
awhile
the slow grinding of runes hummed by the skies people hurrying up and down the streets and squares:
and all above Gloom hidden look, views and grimaces.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Slow Moved He.

Slow
Moved he.

The heart beat Saw the hands of The clock of time
Tick wild.
As between two giant crushing stones
The Poet Seer was sandwiched Yet he sang and sang
And the crushing of stones Bewitched retreated.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Slow Night And Day

Slow the night moves slow the night
today

the stars burn bright
today

the winds abate today that were of yesterday and in this stunning quiet

I

to sink, just sink, and go pray I.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Slow the bells ring:
They were more rapid Minutes ago.

My mother time passes.
The wound of yours
Remains.

Deep in the ocean-seas of sad turbulence Lie the gems that sadness brings Lie the diamonds of your eyes that weep.

Time and times will say They will speak verdict
They will be judges.

For now
The empty hands remain
The sands
That fall through them

Emmanuel George Cefai
Slow The Night

Slow the night ascends as does the moon in tandem or in servitude or both hill grew silent
in as proportion direct to their darkening:
sylphs flew transparent after
bats
shrieked the bats the sylphs in silence lay red dusk withdrew his reign
to night
ended the day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Slow The Wheels Grind.

Slow the wheels grind.
Softly.
Softly.
And yet
Destiny is written Not on walls but on the Blood of hearts.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Slow, Slow, The Verses Flow -

Slow, slow, the verses flow -
the water murky turned in to the river and dense and loaded it moved so and so - it was a sort of Styx - yet burned not -
but rather chill under the drear winter heavens flowed discontented and unwilling:
so
my verses flow, do flow, but slow, crawl in the violet light of a waning day But they had their time too - let me say
and so slow, slow the verses flow, this dusk.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Small Bells, My Monsignor, That In The Time

Small bells, my Monsignor, that in the Time
Of the Waning Day,
That in the Time of the Pining Day,
From the small chapel top, there,
Lost in the country-side and plain
Amidst the zigzag of country roads
Wandering hither and thither
By chance into each other reciprocal
The better to blind the traveler:
Confusion will you say?
Utter, small bells, those notes wild That I heard yesterday at vesper as
The red dusk fell into the sea
Accompanying the previous Sun
That dipped:
Small bells, arise on magic nights
On spells of witches on brooms flying Violet lights, transforming continually Quantum physics, patches of the tiny
Amidst those immense plains of desert hope:
And in that night of cold and winter storm
Far, far away hidden in a cave shivering
Lay half-hidden the fair Dawn awaiting.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Small Drop Dew

Eye that twinkles
small drop dew Dew of night
Lover of light Trembling in
The burning starlight!

The sand-glass of time
It moves
It ticks
As each sand falls
It moves
It ticks

For there be Eye that twinkles
small drop dew Dew of night
Lover of light Trembling in
The burning starlight!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Small Kiss

a small kiss all hidden then stop but only a little
a little for the appetite be growing for another kiss
be coming you hungry lass I hungry man
the second of the kisses triggers now succession of long kisses one on one adding each one the voluptuous fire the burning of desire just a small kiss see what revolution!
and in passion-torrent revolution on revolution!
and more than leads to
more for a whole hour
near till I and you exhausted fall all blinded

Emmanuel George Cefai
Small Neutrino Lost In Way

Small neutrino lost in way
floating in the space of day dawn has come protecting night has now gone has flown and neutrino small neutrino
I too
too
I have lost my way
as you
yet
my brain points the way out of dark towards the dawn
the new day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Small Perversion In Repetition

There be a small perversion In repetition

Yet in that continued state of Mind

Great verse and lines be born
And more abound.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Small Thoughts

Small verse, small thoughts,
The grinding suffering
Of the Muse is Quasi-martyrdom.

Yet as a careful parent Keeping her children in Discipline
The Muse starts for her Poet Seers
The discipline of suffering.

Yet
In recompense forth
She bring
The moon, the stars,
The silences of night
And
quiet seas and oceans
immense
and nightingales that sing

Emmanuel George Cefai
Small Verse

Small verse
Terse
Yet captures Beauty in its net
More so at night
Yet too by day

Emmanuel George Cefai
Small Village

Whose people from our island hail How many moons
How many nights
How many centuries

Emmanuel George Cefai
Small Village Bell

small village bell
house of couple they be ghosts.

spirits in the belfry
play chasing each other as midnight
strikes.

phantom grey greedy of hiding disappeared

Emmanuel George Cefai
Small Village By The Sea

There
I will stay
Now.

The quite lapping Occasional sea-gull Crying

And here
A few people yet
No enemies.

At least
In this tiny ness
My soul’s a little free

And Here I will stay me
Here
I will close my eyes
Here
My friend start to play Albeit a sad
Albeit a gruesome playing
Play
Play the farewell violin.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Smell Of Formalin

I was in the smell of formalin

I was in the smell of nitrous clouds

I was in the smell of gunpowder niter

I was in the bleak of the conscious

I was in the smell of formalin

Emmanuel George Cefai
Smell Of Herbs

smell of herbs
magic wettened vesper-time and the hand of Zeus
through the thunder vibrating
through
the heavens immense
the pilot eyes of dews post-vesper thrown by night ejaculated....

the seas rustle
the palm rustle the shore sands grind but slow their sound
and the moon light skips around

beat the drum!
beat the drum!
see out of the dense of trees come out slow but dancing
full animals and inhabitants of wood hedgehogs, squirrels, lizards gay, three owls slumbering, nightingales in mid-lay...

so many
so many then the fairies goblins green, long eared satyrs and fauns, naiads, nymphs and all the troop...

look!
a satyr and near faun steeped in wine fell upwards lay motionless yet gay
dreaming
dreaming dreaming dreams
sipping wine subconsciously on their backs deep bacchanalians!
with their belly heaven-turned and their feet towards the moon.

bats around and low they circle
flipping of their wings
I hear
make the sound
the sound of bats.

and the drum stills beats and
plays
and to it under moon light on the sands they dance and
turn frenzied-silent in a trance of Sub-Conscious conscious dance.

here stay! here lurk
till at least the break of day till at least the first of light till at least the breath that breathes over Ocean and wide seas.

and the drum stills beats and
plays
and to it under moon light on the sands they dance and
turn
frenzied-silent in a trance
Emmanuel George Cefai
Smiling

I don't like Smiling when I do smile.

I am who am.

And I am entitled To it
I am entitled to assert it.

All of us, friends.

I like the wry face
For it tells my woes
My existential stresses
That be
A better X-ray of me.
Photo in depth;
Emotions undressing.
Yes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Smiling Face

Smiling
Smiling face.

A Soul in glee Fluttering
On Oceans.

A Bird fled In immensity From Earth and All of Earth.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Smoke

Smoke
From the candelabras Dark and unkempt Went out to the ceiling
Night
Caught in a hummock Unwilling
Red faced and restless Uncomfortable night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Smoke Rose

High
The smoke rose
And
High
The sacred incense Flowed.

The night
It walked in pajamas
Red.

The night
Is stunned
By beauty in its bed.

Smuggled
The lines, the verses, the lyrics
The Poesy

Emmanuel George Cefai
Snake

Snake that withdraws
Its slow length
Along Verses that long
And slow
Draw their slow Length along

Emmanuel George Cefai
Snakes Of The Night

Snakes of the night
Mists
That rise fear
That fades in to the Sad night
Raises it head only
With a new dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Snakes Wandered

In the fresh lush grass
Snakes wandered Wandered here and
There
With no venom.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sniper Of The Woods

Sniper of the woods
The woods are burning
But not with fire
But with the ire
Of storm, hail, hoar and rain
A cloud of mini-goblins in a train Passes by Three hedgehogs cross
The dusty pathway.
The days count themselves
This night
This wood
For
The woods are burning
But not with fire
But with the ire
Of storm, hail, hoar and rain

Emmanuel George Cefai
Snow

of snow statistics word for herbs
the waters of discord and the round sows the thief with knife between his teeth held:
waters
waters
waters
my mouth is dry for waters berries and buds public sales outrages of sun and moon stars in the offing harbors sheltered Circe wave currents
trembling
in warm snows vibrating
burning
burning
snows geriatrics of the landscapes no reply after seven days
and
not an acknowledgement:
he stopped old mariner that he was with white-browed eyes thick and uncomfortable yet there:
you respond asserting.
lips red and pasted with the tastes of twilight waters
in deep wells and cool where heard the chants of the old monks fat
the chorus of the lizards squeaking
from their respective hiding-places.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Snow That Falls

Snow that falls
Night
Night
And in the chill
A Soul restless Treads the earth
Restless
Restless

Emmanuel George Cefai
Snow That Melts

snow
that melts
falling
but water turns
on touching
of
the earth
the asphalt snow mantling weary souls
that in
the street
fell
trudging

Emmanuel George Cefai
Snow Was Falling

Snow was falling Fast not hoar

And in midst
Red devils dancing

Long tails here Long tails there
All a-dancing

All slept; lights
Were out; save starlights

Snow was falling
Fast not hoar

Emmanuel George Cefai
Snows

Though it be June
Snows
Snows

Two boxers fight Fight to the utterance
And
The snows fall Fall in June

Snows
Snows
Though it be June
Snows
Snows

Emmanuel George Cefai
Snows Be Of The Breast

Snows be of the breast
But
Lighting be of the brain
And Thundering of the heart

That's done for me.

I walked to the cemetery Told the rusty gates
'Open and close for me'

Emmanuel George Cefai
Snows Will Not Come

Snows will not come not come that easy but winter cold already beginning be though be just September.

For
after all how many days separate us from December?

Christmas New Year's Eve and then the fateful New Year?

There will be many rains
in between and many storms and many tempests and my eyes will so to weep and be dry.

My sides be dry
Not with summer heat of Parchedness:
But with the hunger
Born of wintry dread

But wait:
Autumn still has To deepen Nay to come.
But then time passes
As sands that glide
Through fingers.
As in time-glasses.
Time be swift and With it age
As time with motion
Goes Motion be swift, so Time, so age
So the fleeting days
And slipping sand.

The cold chill many a time
will cut my face,
the fields be soaked with
waters,
the leaves fall,
and sere bend the olden
trees
fear will raise its head in the last year's few days:
few?
Over a hundred days and more.
Wrath, despair lie in store.
And
the cold chill many a time
will cut my face.

Emmanuel George Cefai
So Beautiful

So beautiful
in Beauty already there no need for perspiration
no, just stretch your hands
over the table the viands are there ready for the taking!

Emmanuel George Cefai
So Beauty Speaks

So beauty speaks
So
Beauty ordains.

Waters rise and
Fall
The flow goes on
With ages.

Above Above a peak Chin in hands Scant clad and Almost naked
A subdued Zephyr

Emmanuel George Cefai
So Many Few Minutes After Waking The Muse Comes To Visit Me

Then I be strong in verse and song

Then as the mid-day comes I wane before the coming of the dusk.

Emmanuel George Cefai
So Many Groans

So many groans
The wooden bridge
That over the street stretched To join two other streets
That night
Sighs came from every where

Emmanuel George Cefai
So Many Humans Forgotten

So many humans forgotten
Or quite!
I ask a reason.
Then I blot my brain.

Emmanuel George Cefai
So Many Lines

So many lines
So many sighs
So many whispers
So many cries

So many oars at night
So many oarsmen transparent
So many barges without Sailors ride
The seas nocturnal and The seas of dark.

So many oars!
So many oars!
So many lines!
Whispers and sighs
And demon cries
And rattling
Skeletons deep night
Till
All a little before Dawn
All banished be!

Emmanuel George Cefai
So Many Things

Of
So Many Things
To Think Aspire Sigh
Desire
The Night
Violin
That Plays Dangerous
And Sad
But Mostly Sad
And Slow Fire
That Burns
Low Fish
That Sleep
In Upper Barrakka Gardens

Emmanuel George Cefai
So Many Times We Humans Meet

So many times we humans meet
With blinding lights!
So many our hands arise
To cover our trembling furious eyes.
I saw a hedgehog with light in His eyes. His eyes turned red Transformed chemically.
And he crossed the street away
Fast
Hopping on one leg the other he Used as a hand to shield off
Light.

Emmanuel George Cefai
So Many Verses

So many verses Songs
That all compete
To all:
Better so
Though
Very little outstanding
Yet
All in all
And
All the All Together string
Of masterpieces, masterpiece

Emmanuel George Cefai
So Many Verses In Their Tens Of Thousand

So many verses in their tens of thousand
now
and more:
so many golden years torn of out my leaf-book
now the bones remain the carcassas
and the skeleton that was the price paid
and I fear
more balances in the future loom
for so many verses just for
so many verses

Emmanuel George Cefai
So Much About In Pain

I
Poet-Seer
So much about
In pain
And Suffering
Go:
So many Times
I breathe
Most now With scope of Escaping
From such oblivion
As to never hear
My name in centuries
Three or five or ten Or more
And Then injustice be More done
To Earth herself Harming herself to Deprive itself
So totally of me
So cruelly
As not even my works to discuss Nay criticize as much As it will:
But by that keep
The flame burning
That Oblivion turns away
At least
A little.

Emmanuel George Cefai
So Solitary

For speech
For speech I thirst:
So lone
So solitary
That speech to me Even if not
Of joy
Is still a boon
That I must now enjoy Sweet sounds and
Words
And thoughts
I hear
Sweet music to employ In singing
My new found joy
This dawn
After the horror-night

Emmanuel George Cefai
So The Economy Of Times: So It Goes

So the economy of times: so it goes My health so far now ties me To my computer, I hear
The first bell of a church in old Valletta ring:
And to me it is an indifferent thing
It is New Year; and in it I hear no Mass.

Soft Clouds Hard Rocks

The willows mourn but do not
Weep
The soft clouds on the hard Grey rocks
Their shadows cast
And stay in frame.

Cry
Cry
Soul
Your
Time
Has Come
The Night
Be Past
You
Will
Not Take Refuge
In
The Night’s
Deep
No
No
Now
Dawn
Has Come
Now

Dawn Has been

Yet Making
Your Calculations
You Choose
To Let Off
The Angst
And Sorrow
In
The Heart Your Heart
Now
You Count
Not Your Years
They
Be
So Many
You
Weep
You Mourn
Of
So Much Wastage
You Cry
You Cry
But
The Wise

Hear
Not
For
They
Will Let
You Cry
Take off
The pain
That Burdens
And
That Loads
Your heart.

In the night in the day
Civilization always peers Attentive:
With God-like eye and God-like power
With its hand directs and Moves the traffic of life
And day and night:
Ah! Evolution so requires
And evolution be so sovereign.
I saw hearts pouring out
The soot in them Soot
That issued as dark botches of Mourning blood
In the night in the day
As civilization does.
And Evolution smiled
Sat on her fence
Silent not sulking,
Smiling.

Minarets of talk,
An afterthought.

Calculate, my Monsignor,
Calculate.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Softly Sun

Softly sun, softly
The earth emerges
Yet
From realms of cold and Rains and winds High seas and waves
And
Other tempest storms
Softly, sun, softly.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sol

Sol
Sun

The universe is clouding Albeit it be expanding

I give the mass universe
A Soul, my Soul
My Inner Soul

And then
My spirit will breathe over all immensity

Without a stop or ceasing Hover round and over.

And the laws in the universe be The laws of that Inner Soul Hovering.

Whatever powers on Earth Will stop me from that.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Soldier Of The Knight

Come! soldier of the knight

Of Heavens

See!
The angels sleepy
Drowse
In
Lost Trance

Sub-conscious Makes
You
So Turns
You
So
The

Tremble
Half-open
And Half-closed

The

Goes

Soldier Of The Night

Who paces bastion
The only sound
The clanking ancient Armor.
Not more.
Mute and without word
You pace slow in the Moonlight.
The centuries will Discover how many nights
You
did so through them
As this night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Soldiers Of Beauty

Soldiers of beauty
Blue
Azure
Twilight and lightning Thunder and neighing Soldiers of beauty
Marching Marching
Marching

Emmanuel George Cefai
Soldier-Skeleton Moving

Soldier-skeleton moving
As a grey shadow Grey and dark as Moving rats
As stealthy
In those cemetery glooms Where a line was drawn full
As yet
On so many dooms.

Now the onward march
Of their doom
That marched proud While breathing was A ruthless tank
And pitiless
Now moves not,
Stopped.
The doom of doom.

The earth does not open up
The heat throws up a fire
There be no humans
And no steps of Poet Seer

Even so
The cemetery and its inhabitants
Would share with the Poet Seer.

He made
A rite, sacred or not Or relative:
For in his village they Controlled destinies in fumes and Smokes

For after all
Were not destinies transformable
As matter: energy their carrier To fumes and smokes?

The self-confessed
Witch-doctor smoked his pipe Muttered his words, syllables
As in other languages
His own?
As burnt as a tipsy man
He chanted.

For life
Be as of everything
No fairy tale for ever Not just sweet talk Play of sweet violins Beauty enmeshed eyes of Surprised dawns.

In Those myriads of rows
Of tombs below
So much
So much
And spokes in the wheel Need I list more?

Soldier-skeleton moving
As a grey shadow
Grey and dark as Moving rats
As stealthy
In those cemetery glooms
Where a line was drawn full
As yet
On so many dooms.

The night is closing
The night is closing Hurried shadows and figures Slide
Often colliding.
Emmanuel George Cefai
Solemn Pattering Of Waves.

Solemn pattering of Waves.

Dust of recorded Ire
From the Olympian table
Down.

Fires that in the woods of
The heavens
Shot blood faced.

Verse upon verse building
As the Spider Weaving.

Ah! we humans Spend so much of life In weaving!

Tell tale face Guilt dripping
From the frowning
Not from the gibbet

A guillotine prepared And Thoughts were Queuing.

Images that change Scenarios that One after other Burst.

Change of style
As driver changing gear Bewildering and To put off Traces of detective Critics.

Driver of clouds
Slovenly part of the clouds For rains Storing

Drizzling on the Seas and Oceans
Immense and wide and Daring.
And at last
The guillotine cuts down Once, but the first
Time.
More to follow.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Solitary

Solitary
Solitary

Emmanuel George Cefai
Solitary Christmas Pain

Solitary Christmas pain and blindness to joy!
To hear cavalcades of humans pass and merry talk and joke merrier than the chirp of birds
more boisterous than the song of bacchanalians in the delirium of the drunken night
of joy:
for me
for me
Pain is the welcome home, cocoon, of my solitude and ever-growing bitterness

Emmanuel George Cefai
Solitude: This Night Was Blessed

Solitude:
this night was blessed you were night with the night
coop-regent and throne sharing airs serene, the winds around surrounded the solitary Poet Seer with oblivion all around

Yes oblivion!
Ah! oblivion!
So much need I from my wounds one on other
I am falling Away! Away!
Bear the scene!

And let all this potion work ever permanent oblivion sweet filming mask of all my woes

Emmanuel George Cefai
Somber Dazed With Ravished Hair

Somber
Dazed
With ravished hair
The maid went Went about the woods
The thorns Bled her feet Drops of blood
And in that forest dread
No thunder roared Nor heavy rains fell Nor moon light penetrated
The thicket of bronze leaves No, no, the drear was silent
There.
Yet
She went on and on The maid with bleeding feet.
Somber
Dazed
With ravished hair.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Somber Figures That Pass

Somber figures that pass
Grey
Grey Pilgrims of the night walls writings on walls
When the moon hides
When the stars fear
The dawn wakes dazed And weary the day trudges on and on

Emmanuel George Cefai
‘Song’, said the Poet Seer

Then a Voice loud erect And majestic
Said from above:

Let Song for now to the
Heavens
For now be only time.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Song Moved Us Along

When young Decades ago how high
We!
Then song Moved us along, and It with us
Sung strong!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Song Of Beauty

A song of beauty
That be propensity.

So
I do my work
As Poet Seer

I glide
When anger screams
Below me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Song Of Heart Broken Nymph

A song
That rings
Sweet
Into a mourning night.

A heart that broke
A will that bent
A health that went.

The broken hearted nymph Is you
Is I
Is us
Us humans too.

This night
By the still waters Sad she stayed
The moon rays above her Played as she Mourned: ‘Cruel, cruel life
And cruel destiny’

Her heart that broke Her will that bent
Her health that went.

The moon mourned too
The night stars wept
The mountains dropped
Some tears.

For After all
The broken hearted nymph
Is you
Is I
Is us
Us humans too.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Song Of Spirit Wandering

I
wandering Spirit
I
lonely and heart-broken roam
along not even with the other Spirits.

To sadness therefore loneliness be added.

I Spirit lonely
wandering

Nasal
voice
of thirsty
throat

Broken accents syllables of a sad heart

Wandering Prophet Seer poor
in body
yet rich in the Soul, the Inner Soul

I
wandering Spirit
I
lonely and heart-broken roam
along not even with the other Spirits.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Song Of Spirit Wandering 2

Spirit
Wandering
Not by design
By chance
And random Spirit Arising
Over Earth Speaking
On Rare
Days
At Rare
Time
On Rare occasions
Pilgrim
Not gaudy Running Running
Running
Spirit of the times
The Soul
The very Inner Soul
Of All and One Of One and All
That very Spirit wandering!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Song Of The Blue Night

Remember, remember, my Monsignor.
We have cards
And where have Not already up our sleeves
Then as the spider weaves her silk And web produces
So we, my Monsignor our cards Produce.
That is our survival, our mode of
It
And direct proportion to it.
Remember, remember, my Monsignor.

Song Of The Desert Thorn

Song
Of
The Desert Thorn
Song
Of
The Lacerated
Soul
The Lacerated Inner Soul Bleeding Bleeding Bleeding slow
And Seeping
Parched Throat
In
The Desert
Out
There
There
Be Thorns
Born
Of
The Arid Land
And
The Dust
And
Wind-whirling sand.
Here
Let
Me Let me alone
i I with myself
I
Only

Emmanuel George Cefai
Song Of The Long Extinct

We,
We the long extinct
With centuries that Hang from us
We
The long extinct
Are dried and baked

We
Our bones are by the Hour becoming slow Fine dust
Inaudible
And Silent

We
Where memories were Stored
In vases scented sacred
We
To whom burning candles Burnt
We
To whose vases shrines Erected were
We
Who scented in incense
In our dry nostrils
We
The long extinct. (iii)

We Heard a High Voice yesterday
And then a Figure saw A Figure tall and lank
And spoke he to us:
'Look! There must be Justice Done to you Who suffered and joyed not At your descent on Earth’

We Then rose up In Chorus said: ‘How will this be? ’
Then
The Voice rising but not
Loud
But kind in its each syllable
Said noble:
‘There will be a Day of Wrath Once it will be,
No more
No more but once,
But that once for the Earth
Will wipe all descent in the Earth And with you
The descent, ancestors, all Will know at last What be the humiliations and The pains
Of all the long extinct, all,
One by one,
Each one, and all.’

Emmanuel George Cefai
Song Of The Morn

Song of the morn
The dawn is come and gone
Yet
Her white freshness still Goes round and round
We
Of the new day
In this new day need it so!

Last
Night
The Moon
Slept
Yet Shone
The same
Last Night
Opiate
Stars Trembled
Not Yet Shone
Last Night
Last Night
The Cocks Crowed
Into Deep Midnight
At
The
Time
That Certain Tombs
And Graves Yawned
And Slow Opened
Up
And Ghosts
And Shrouds
With flambeaux Turned around
The streets and Ways
Of the old cemetery

Song of the morn!
Hear
Hear
The richness of the lark
Hear
The sad beauty of The hours passing Passing irresistible.
Now
That days' begun
And
The morn's on Its way
Now

Emmanuel George Cefai
Song Of The Nightingale

Song of the nightingale on your bough you be alone but not in the garden on each tree one and more nightingales inhabitants of the boughs their loved territory
so high they do not have to fight for it
for it nor thus aggressive me malice and hate are distant from them:
that's the genesis of serenity that in the notes rings through the streets and houses dreaming nearby:
a sleeper would not dream but hearing the songs of nightingale the Sub-Conscious drowned him in its wines and kisses.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Song Sing

ea song sing and let it ring
around the numbing sound
the Voice
the through the microphone speaks
nasal
and slow
of syllables almost.
and in this song
let me
with my hand catch the red dusk
raise it high prolong it at the expense of the night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Songs Of The Boar

i.

The donkey round the water-mill Is plying, going still:
And her poor ears are hanging And all her flesh is dangling And she is always at her place Though making many a pace
She always goes To where she started

ii.

In the monastery
The monk is pacing, pacing
And in his books he holds The Psalter and the Rosary
And from the censer old
The incense cometh slowly
And to the roof ascends
And from the chimney goes That o’er the monastery-roof grows And overlooks a vast expanse Of sleeping fields and sleeping farms A vale not large but misty-full A stream that distant, distant Gurgles with a water-mill
And the moon smiles
And the moon shines Without a cloud Then all is still.

iii.

how the night walks
how the night walks
when cities are enchanted when towns sleep when waters are wild with awe of clouds that smile across the face of moon:
and the white mounts are capped at their extremities where the clouds soar and soar
to-night

iv.

how the emotions flow to-night like the electric wires hum they:
like the systole and diastole of the fast-beating heart
how the emotions flow to-night

v.

there was a god who as red dusk fled into the far east descended to the earth this earth of ours and then over the solitary field roaming he looked up at the moon and saw red drops of blood tears of blood from the moon’s eyes were falling

vi.

how the night falls slow and austere and the night-sirens sing from hidden rocks posted at strategic intervals in the magic bay:
from hidden caves from hidden juts the night-sirens they sing and play

vii.
in the wild foot-path and clean that lies between the airy colonnade of firs and oaks fast-dreaming in the airs and in the wave-notes of the summer night there is a gurgling distinct and clear though looking here and there by flower-beds and rooted tree-trunks and o’er the red soil looking everywhere
the hidden stream you’ll see nowhere

viii.

the wild ox roameth lonely over the field and the field overlooks the lonely seas that shine the moon-light on their bosom wide the clay-built hill of grey looks on in dark silhouette in that stillness where you’ll hear a needle that falls, a hedgehog that passes rustling with slow and awkward feet moving towards its family in that lone night over that lone field
the wild ox roameth lonely over the field

ix.

night-stars are reeling reeling
reeling
and in the night
on the floor of the heavens
there’s a wild type of music there’s a jazz-like type of music and the stars are dancing dancing unconsciously and so they reel reel into the night
on the floor of the heavens
there’s a wild type of music
there’s a jazz-like type of music
to-night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Soon

Soon
The ten years of verse
And song Uninterrupted quite Will in their anniversary Celebrate modestly
I
Fight a strange moth
I
Will for this year
At least not total bad
Of destinies.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Soon Enough

Soon it be frosty nights
And though
Waters will not congeal

Drear will spread
Its fingers over land and sea
And air

Soon
The hours
Days are rolling.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Soot Of The Night

Soot of the night
sour clouds and curdled mists cathedral spires trembling thunder the very earth splitting vibration after vibration see! the Earth is desperate!
Bring on Doctor Dawn before her time.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Soul, Inner Soul

Soul, Inner Soul
That soaring ever Flies wherever it wills Endowed still
By that Human Intelligence
That it received at birth:
Soaring
Soaring
In the high heavens
No, no, it soars
The Inner Soul in freedom that It had not
Now
Where no power however great will reach it Where no glory of the earth will tamper it.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Souls And Shrouds Will Travel

when not in meetings souls and shrouds will travel single in the spheres of bleak black cemeteries as in concentration camps the guardians tour and look out the night with cemetery lamps

shrouds and ghosts and shadows harassed feel:
yet they be not human!
not liable to harm
as humans thereto in those camps.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sounds Of Rattling

Sounds of rattling
Coming from the caves
Though
It be dawn just yet:
Of rattling sounds
Mill-stone of life
Sub-conscious version Transformation
Of conscious and Vice-versa too:
Sounds of rattling.
For life as a coin Has two faces
And the duality
In to the conscious
And in to the sub-conscious Lies.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Spades

In the night of Spades
There was digging

Shovels at work
In the dim
Light.

No hands Manned.
A light wind blew
In the soft bushes

Emmanuel George Cefai
Speak

Speak, speak to us and sing
They said.
The Poet Seer nodded just And forward bent

Emmanuel George Cefai
Speak Human

Speak human
Speak
The Verse is up
Erect
To speak to you.

The Poet Seer he looked Around the shadows grey And the clothes lighted gay Walk in the night
The road way
Up the cemetery.

The Muse wills
To come to each of us:
Open the doors Let her in All humans of the Earth Speak human
Speak
The Verse is up
Erect
To speak to you.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Speak Not

Speak not to the night: it is silent
So wills it – it shows you.
Obey.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Speak We, Pendulum Here And There.

Speak we, pendulum here and there.
this and that weep, for mother is not here:
a year ago she was here.
no, to fear, to courage, yes courage entered through the back-door because it had courage so to do troops of the night, not solely shrouds and ghosts celestial dust, milk of the gaseous night of dews.
first dawn feisty dawn await you like the sick man in the delirium of the night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Speak!

Speak clouds from which The thunder last night
Roared!
Speak cliff edges
Where
The wind played as a violin
Last night!
Speak lightning
That terrified a town Ancient you beauty made
Speak!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Spectacles

I took the spectacles
Away
To see things
Naked
With eyes naked

Emmanuel George Cefai
Specter Of The Night, Whither Go You,

Specter of the night, whither go you,
You shudder realizing that I espied you Yet look! There be thousands of ghosts And shrouds that roam the streets and Alleys of this old city
 This night in this cold city:
 Where winter and the night compete For sovereignty over the old town:
 The winds, the frost, the chill
 Have not deterred you To go underneath from whence
 You came
 Or from the yawning tomb: Specter of the night, I will sleep now,
 With one supreme desire That you haunt me in my dreams, be One with my Sub-Conscious All
 And All with you.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Spectral Dance

Into a spectral dance
And glow
The bony skeletons
Of the hollow
Eyes Move hither and Thither so!

Why
I opt for the spectral dance You must be
As I am
A lover of the night
Though not a hater of the day.

But when You put up I prefer Night to the light that’s Day
Though
For the Dawn I have my sway.

But night too wonderful
That is Full of wonders
And I deem night
Too beautiful!

What more one needs
Than night and beauty
And subconscious too?
Put them in the scales:
And for yourself
See which scales fall
Or whether for you It's the case
Of having just an equal all.

But for me yet
The scales towards night Fall rather easy:
My verse shows
How in the night
My song glows.

And
In all this Desire so
Into a spectral dance
And glow
The bony skeletons
Of the hollow
Eyes Move hither and Thither so!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Spirit Of The Dawn!

Spirit of the Dawn!
This night I dreamed of goblins wild And horrid
Green were their looks - and menacing Their very gait - in every move
And in their hand
A bloody axe they held:

Spirit of the Dawn!
As lightning comes and goes In wintry thunder-peals
So at the touch of You
The ill dream dissolved
And I could breathe again
And I could dream again.

Spirit of the Dawn!
I saw you walking on the waking sea
The sandals in your feet - how they Gleamed in the first chills of day:
And from the distant cape
The light-house still turned round.

Spirit of the Dawn!
Great ancestor of all renewal Of hope and re-construction From aught that remains From civilization!

Spirit of the Dawn!
Not just
Not just the body renew
But in the Mind of all of us Renew the ancient fire of Prometheus And all its ire.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Spirit Of Woods

I am the spirit of woods drenched in winter rain

I am the tongue of Cicero with a pin put by a lady

I am the pen of a Poet Seer who bends suffering in solitude

I am the dough that makes fires burn in gales and rains

I am the Poet Seer who sings
I am the Poet Seer who trembles

I am burnt in angst and boiled in throes of fear

My body vibrates and trembles
I wither in the costume of a clown

I am the Poet Seer who paces restless at night the City Town

I am the Poet Seer whose sufferings Dawn pities nursing wounded heart.

I am

I am the Poet Seer, I am.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Spirit Spying Over Morning Mists

I am the Spirit that hovers spying over the morning mists

I am the watcher of the Dawn as the hunter watches birds

I watch the night stars as astronomers

I the circling clouds without a
wind

I speak word upon word as my heart
speaks

I am who restless thrives irreversible

Emmanuel George Cefai Spirit Sub-Marine I

i.

Sub-Marine volatile
And translucent
Transparent
Fleeting through The waves arrow-like
And it be night.

ii.

No hands man
But yet Propels itself
Through the seething
Waters
The Spirit sub-marine

iii.

Soft waters, dark Yet dark, walls, Whole walls
Storeys high,
Dark walls,
Solid yet liquid Liquid yet solid
No hands man
No hands man

iv.

seething crowds of fish
with eyes of light lighted eyes as bulbs light
pass by slumbers above the night
v.

indifferent rather night and day here in the Spirit sub-marine the Spirits of the Liquid in the liquid kingdom thrive:
here little civilization and yet you pass and thrive no volumes, tomes, thoughts, masterpieces, universities, geniuses.
No, just liquid dark
And cold
And just a little light.
The Spirit Sub-Marine.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Spirit That Arrives At Dawn

I am the Spirit that arrives at Dawns

I arrive from my night rounds

Yet I, I know not tiredness

I am the Spirit who remains as fresh
At Dawn
As in the deeps of night.

I blow in faces of humanity that they Forego tiredness as I do;
Be yet as me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Spirit White

Down the Rhine glides
A Spirit white.

The groves scent magic On each side.

The river banks all curious Watched and looked

All ears were the trees and Plants and animals.

But spoke not that Spirit
White.

Though down the Rhine they Saw it glide

At times over the waters walk
At others by the fringe of the Germanic shores.

Ah! life goes on like that – it Glides and glides.

And this Spirit spoke not word but With sovereign mien it walked.

Yet all felt thrilled from tree to animal
And the waters of the gurgling Rhine.

There was no Voice, only glide after Glide; and gliding only just a Spirit white.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Spirits

The Spirits
They whispered
Of old dreams
The Spirits
They whispered
Of old castles Tales and screams
They whispered
They whispered
The Spirits
Whispered

Emmanuel George Cefai
Spirits Are Light

The Spirits
Are light Lighter than Feathers are.
The Spirits
Turn life
Light
And Suffering less.
Yet if to catch A Spirit you Attempt
The Spirits
Will treat you
With contempt.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Spirits Of Delight

Witches of the night Spirits of delight
eyes bedazzled
bright.

the green swans wander
wander
though it be night
over the rippling pool.

the garden round the heavens overcast
over the bastions
occasional the ancient sound of
thunder
thundering

Emmanuel George Cefai
Spirits Of The Sub-Conscious World

So many spirits of the sub-conscious World

Moving as extinct saurians on a plain Red with bursting fires

You see the blurred images in their Transparent living

Your hand to touch them they elude In spirit

And leave your hands emptier than Hands where the sands slipped.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Spirits Whisper

The Spirits
Whisper so
And mischievously
The Spirits
Whisper so
And sportively
The Spirits
They glide here and
There
The Spirits
You do not catch
The Spirits
You not touch
But hear
In the night
Hear
Whispering,
Whispering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Splendor Of Moon

The splendor of moon Delights us, delights
The bats and the woods
The oaks and the firs and the cats
On the prowl:
On the thick branch the wise of The Owl
And near the sweet nightingales Ah! night the beautiful
The magician of yet Another civilization alternative
To day.
Hear humans!
Another civilization!
Hear, the night comes each night!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Spoke slow the General
'The cannon's roaring to fire'

The sun came low
and
even the grass burnt

And the cannon exploding got on fire.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Spoke The Eerie Voice

Spoke the eerie voice
and
the voice was skeletal
and the voice was hurt
and the voice was sad
and the voice was hurt
and the voice was that of a Shroud and the voice was of a Poet Seer the eerie voice
the voice was skeletal

Emmanuel George Cefai
Spoke The Shark Revolving

Spoke the Shark revolving Amidst the other Sharks.

At first it spoke a babbling
And then the Shark spoke A gurgling.

And then audible words
For us my Monsignor:
'Red dusk! Red dusk! '
He said

'For if they sing
So much of red dusk
Do not in the mirror Themselves view
Fading
In their fading time
And fading days? '

Then silent was the revolving Shark
And it spoke not more
Then.

Spring Has Bolstered

Clean
Clean dryings of sand Darlings of the sun
That Spring has bolstered.

And Though there be No washing in and out Of a high pebbled sea

Yet there's The scent of spring
On the beaches all around One vast organ immense Echo to echo in sound!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Spring Has Come, To-Day

Spring has come, to-day

But there is wind, in early morning there was rain, light rain.

But then Sun to assert herself opened slow and stealthy
the curtains of the day And peered the Sun into the Sun and people walking

O!
light
the brain!
there
has been early rain!

Of Spring the constituents are gathering.

You flower revolutionaries carry the banner of early revolution in the Spring

Sings
a nightingale

though
it
be not
night
but sings
she exceptional

But
curch bells ring
not yet
the violets bud
their mouth opened
to
the little Sun
that comes

I saw a girl and she had sugar in her eyes
this day
beginning of the Spring.

Start Dripping In Your Black Rains

Start.
Start dripping in your black rains.
Your shroud is cold.

The dance of the gruesome too
Has lust in it
The flame of life

Music begins to play
And in it life will Stay.

As in a budding flower
At sweet Dawn opening
Her sensual mouth

So and thus
You lie in the petals, tiny,
Ever-changing, ever-transforming beauty.

Stately

The mast ship sails
In to the silent night
Surrounded
By magic harps
But Manned as by Invisible hands
On the deck solely
Rose
A Figure lank and short
A Poet Seer
He sang and versified
And
Through dark seas and waves
The silent barge it goes!

Step Slowly, On Your Toes,

Step slowly, on your toes,
On this that was common ground
Down-trod by thousand soles
And more in morning
Now in the night
It has become of sacred:
See
See,
Smell the incense divine
Of the old ancient gods:
It comes not from the spare trees
That look on proudly: Silence is the key.
O! that silence were the key
The dorsal spine of History!
Below
The port glares with lights Divers and moving here
And there
Like glow-worms of the night Like shrouds and ghosts
In flight:
Step slowly, on your toes,
On this that was common ground
Down-trod by thousand soles
And more in morning
Now in the night
It has become of sacred:

But now
They sing
Not As usual
As they do
In the dark night.

Strikes
Mid-night.
Shadows move
In a Dantesque dance
To and fro
A background music
Of medieval tunes Florentine scent and Wine
Venetian violins
And
And A midnight
That deepens, deepens.
Ever-deepens.

Still

still there be yet some time to arrange;
the wrecks the tempests left,
the last was great was heavy and the wrecks by far the wrecks of all the previous tempests pass:
thus exceeded, the loss so great that in great times and long will be repaired.

All that the Old Civilization
Had
And more
In its Nobility.

And
The legions from the Earth Raised their standards Threw their old crowns Knelt before

Trembling
And the Orchestra of Noble Violins
It now begun playing.

Still On The Plain; Still On The Plain

Still on the plain; still on the plain
The waves of the fading sun dance.
How? Red dusk has emerged.
The farmhouses are putting off Their lights one by one.
I am not a Mister, you not a Mrs.
(I had to distinguish from Mistress So I went for the abbreviation) :
Hot on the heels of the chilling heights
The clouds raced in the heavens
The surreal is the real plus:
And the real plus is the plain dreary Real Raised Raised
To the ecstasies of the Aesthetic.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Still Strong

To sing
To chant

Rises the incantation
To the night
At night
By me, ageing Poet Seer!

But in the incantation Receive my wish You immense heavens Children to bear
I am a solitary Poet-Seer!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Still The Music Sounds

Still the music sounds and the Sound is one of eerie humming.

It be night.
Delight is weird and raucous.

Ghosts and shrouds in pencil Lines pass by flitting.

For them the steps and stairs Of old Valletta are Gymnastic exercises.

The waters dark beckon their spirits.
The ebb and flow their breathings.

The paintings on the wall
Of faces ancient as in a film Projected.

As fast as come as fast
They go.
The night is weird, the night is sweaty
For it be nigh summer.

And the heavens are heavy and dull Though with no clouds.

Still Waters

Tonight
The waters are more still
Than
They were yesterday

Today
The dusk lasted much less Than
Lasted yesterday.

Today
The fog machine of the Skies immense
Pumps more than yesterday.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Still, Still The Barge Moved On And On

Still, still the barge moved on and on its slow moves through the waters skimmed with motion silent more than silent waves:
the night fell slowly on the town and port dull eerie distant the lights shone:
but still and still the still barge moved and moved.
The moon shone slowly; without a wind
The cloudless heavens gazed and stared.

as in a regal funeral the still barge moved and on and on it moved all soundless quite over the skimmed waters lapping gently white without a noise in that funereal gloom:
without a pilot moved it, without a sailor the still barge moved on and on and on.

And in that gloom, the gloom as of itself
To pilot the still barge seemed; or else
By hands invisible unseen the barge Moved on its voyage in the horrid calm
The stars seemed full to hide; the wind Moved not; and in the night restless
The bosom of the sea lay tall and flat.

But still the barge moved on in stillness
As if its sorrow great it stifled in some mode Unseen and hidden in that frightful dark;
No light shone on the main; no path appeared Yet the still barge moved on and on and on:
The stars seemed full to hide; the wind
Moved not; and in the restless night
The bosom of the sea lay still and flat.

Stirring Of Wings

Stirring of wings
Whirr of the tides Fluttering
Of giant bats
No cities
No towns
Just plains and Fields
And mounts
And hills
And rocks
And
The lake
And Afar the line of the sea
But
The smells of the jungle
The claw of raw blood
The red of the centuries
And ages of geology:
Genesis Extinction
And Extinction
Genesis Concurrent
All time

Stone Upon Stone, Brick Upon Brick,

Stone upon stone, brick upon brick,
they built a tower, already red,
they painted it more red,
and the Red Tower many saw from all afar

Emmanuel George Cefai
Alas! Alas!
The old town sang
And the stones bled Though Dawn was Sailing in to the port town Red were the heavens
And they smiled not
And wild
The emotions ran
About
Trickling blood
Drop after drop
Whilst still around
The shrouds and ghosts
Still roamed with Ghostly sound.

Saw all below
And Oh
She said wandering
A storm wild and

Storm-Wall Of Dejection

flow of the summer currents fruit of parched dust and dried up rocky sides: water came as blood comes from those rocks

In the airy glooms

the thunder perpetuates a long extension extension after extension

Lightning

does not less:

And
in the midst of this all this

I wander wander like a frightened insect-ant across the terrains of the lone rotating earth
I wander
I wander

The screams of Souls Fears all high Liberating
In the night the palms have waved In the night the oars were splashing In the night in sands came foot prints In the night Hedgehogs in Orchestra
In the night Venice with violins
In the night girls in seraglio In the night how many conceptions
In the night
In the night
I heard the Poet Seer sighing
And Crowds hearing were groaning
Then
They turned their groans to praying.
As the day was slowly fading.

Stranger of the night
Star
Blind to the aching cry of day

Yet you hear not

Emmanuel George Cefai
Stranglehold

In stranglehold Beauty sate by the dusk Blushed in the deepening Red that was darkening
As areolas:
In the mantle of vapors
The mist-less air lighted
One by one with stars Blinking
At King Night and his gold Chariot.
In this heavy metal situation Night locked into dusk as Wheel on cog wheel in machines.
Lit suddenly the hills, the little Snow, the villages, Lit the small village streets Closed houses and windows Light by light went out Think! Think! Poet Seer,
The I,
For misfortune and for poverty Intelligence substitute.

Street Of Sweet Music

Street of sweet music
Magic here at night
Makes its sweet home.

Here too nocturnal come
The lanky ghosts and Stealthy shrouds.

Street of sweet music
Magic here at night

Streets Of Saint Elmo

Night.
24th December.
Midnight and deep.

Midnight:
See
the windows lighting.
Yet they sleep.
They drank vodka also.
Once in a year.
Once in a year
let them rest!
See the Ghost of the New Day becoming!

Scene One:
Past midnight now.
See the bats are bolder.
They cry louder.
That bat screams.

Scene Two:
The cats are calling
They have been making love Even on Christmas Eve
They want conceive.

Scene Three:
A posse of figures hurry.
A donkey passes speedy.
Has it fled?
From where?
For short.
Everything
for short here.
Stress

Stress, Fear, Anxiety

Stress is as of Earth Fear is as of Earth Anxiety is as of Earth Anguish is as of Earth Guilt is as of Earth
There is a whole list.
And it continues.
You see so many minuses as of Earth.

Stretched And Tired

So very short
So very short
Time has passed
I am stretched Stretched on the strand
Stretched and tired
The waves no longer be Enraged
Yet my heart tires Tires
Tires

So very short
So very short
I still experiment Still my heart feels Still the light of nobility Intellectual dims:

So very short
So very short
Time has passed
I am stretched Stretched on the strand
Stretched and tired
The waves no longer be Enraged
Yet my heart tires Tires
Tires

String lyre, though a Poet Seer be sad the cliffs hanging the sea crystalline and it reflected the glacier of beauty the blue angels are singing hear them! hear them! and rest your heart, your heavy heart my mother, my mother, life-blood that circulates in me gives me my breathing makes me the scientist, the dramatist, the philosopher, the thinker, the Poet Seer hear! hear my mother!

hear my mother the winds that were loud at your command sub-conscious to please you obedient in their silence cease hear! hear mother!

though beauty lurks in her high heavens where she prefers sojourn; yet in your case mother beauty trod barefoot the black earth barefoot, mother.

String The Harp

String the harp
Tune the lyre Place the hand
Let the brain on fire!

The waters with your hand
You will spread Swimming and as Swans chant.

Open the waves
Your hands be strong
And you will feel the fire Of breathing verse and ire.

Stringing The Lyre

But the lyre
Can I string
But the lyre
My fingers play

And there be Amidst my fingers
That old, old fire
Eternal in the singing lyre!

Preceded by the crowing of the cocks Emotions as lithe as snakes Gasp through the hurrying Feet and crowding.

Stronger Man

There was a time
there was a stronger man than the bent Poet Seer.

Then I would rise hills leaping past fields and country roads.

that alas! went unrealized
now punishes me.

Such Beauty Is To Be Raped?

Such beauty is to be raped?
What pleasure for the Human to rape birds?
[That is by doing the sexual act]
No, humans rape birds differently:
Though
These [birds] bethink them that they have The power to escape human cruelty By flying high and free
At airy liberty:
Till
A barrage of shots was heard from The rocky land below where the birds Upward winged towards the Heavens:
And straight and linear fell
Those up-ward looking birds.

Suffering

Yet in this suffering
Yet in these failures
Yet in this drear
There is some dim light there.

Ah! dim light! Rope Of salvation in the Waters of tempest
And temptation:
Here
The shore is bleak
And the rocks spell Hostile desolation.

The heart dictates the style.
Not otherwise.
The waters lap the shore.
Not otherwise.

We, two, regard you
not we, two, continue
lost in ourselves and our love
we, two,
we lovers!

Suffering Winters White

Suffering Winters
White
Light
That Trembled
Now Frozen
And

Emmanuel George Cefai
Suffering!

Suffering!
Suffering was to be my lot:
It was writ on my forehead
When I was born
The first cry that I gave That was of suffering:
And
It has haunted me for aye Since then
Suffering was to be my lot
It was writ on my forehead.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sufferings And Verses

I Think
Of Crucifixes
Now
I Am
Crucifix
Of Suffering Myself
And
That
Be Why
These Nights
I
Hear
Of Ghosts
And Shrouds
The Sigh
The Groans
The Sufferings
And Verses
Of Beauty
High:
In My Heart
All
Whirling

Emmanuel George Cefai
Suicide Trees

I paced my way
Solitary
To rumored suicide trees
And
I saw them darken with the dusk
And
More at night
Bending in increase Till under weight of Bending
Trunks uprooted themselves
And the trees feel Head downwards
Enrooted Suicide trees
And Sighs of liberation Heard I chains all clanking

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sullen Night

Sullen night
In my desperation
Hanging
Ally of the Dawn
So long in coming

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sum Up The Words

Sump
Sum up
The words
The verses
The songs

We
In conclusion
Are

We
In conclusion
Move

We
In our direction Bound Irresistible
And Irreversible

The night
Moved slow
Yesterday
It will so
Today

Ah! for centuries
Night has plied
Here

For centuries
It will go and come
And Come and go To sighing

Emmanuel George Cefai
Summing Up

Summing up
I Piled a sum That as soon
As assembled pyramid
As by a magic Wand Touch Broke in pieces
Down.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Summit Heights

After the summit heights
The Soul, the Inner Soul
Turns back her look to the Dust
And to bend her spine.

There it goes searching
Why
It the verses did not come That came out yesterday
The song and chant resound That yesterday resounded.

More thought, less words?
A methodology in civilization In motion
Alternately

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sumptuous Temples

In the sumptuous temples That hide
Over the hills
Amidst the jungle crowds Arise fires Arise scents Arise sighs of Ardent desires.

The vestal virgins Lie
And
The moon dimly Shines.

Giant columns
Rise
The monks Hit Hard Cymbals
Occasionally.

And
The earth trembles.

The waters of beauty
In a scent of the suns Burn themselves.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sun At Summers

No, not more.
The sun at summers still to come Will beat upon the grave-lid.

But
You will feel not heat or Sweat
Not more.

And when the winters come Along with their tempests
They will beat all around Unquiet and restless:
You will Not feel them.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sun In The Eyes

Blank look

Sun in the eyes

Gates of the cemetery

'Hurry we will close'

Night lets them lock him in the cemetery

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sun Light

Our world is the world
Of Sun light and of Day: See what these Have brought in History
Still bring:
Injustices, inequality,
To a few power, glory
To many misery:
And on and on Turns the Conscious world
The open-eyed Ruthless without pity
This human be your world
And as with opiate wand You succumb to its Sovereignty.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sun Which Be Born To Fade

Sun which be born to fade
Into your cycle

So we too
Unless we seize of Immortality

Prepare for tombs and graves and Cemeteries

Emmanuel George Cefai
Suppose That You Unclothed Lie And Hide In Veils

Suppose that you unclothed lie and hide in veils
Your limbs dirtied these last years the more You wallow pig-like in the loving mud:
You wear stiff necks in your conventionality.

You quote, you speak, your roar authority And smoke your cigar to the face and laugh In the casino where with your coterie You sit and dance and eat and yawn and piss.

And then in high church with prayer-book
In hand you light the fire of your hypocrisy
The first flames light - away how high It goes! Soon like a funereal pyre
The flames will reach full summit heights.

You glee to see me burn in that sour fire
Then your false pity your hypocrite lips Moves with tears before all to see.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Surfeiting
Surfeiting
Surfeiting
Into the grip
Of the day's iron fading
The swirl and swishing
Of the sinking seas
Into the arms of dismemberment Slow drowning
A top
That hums and hums
As
The earth sinks:
A bell That tolls and Tolls
As the curtain rings
Down
The act for now has ended

Emmanuel George Cefai
Surprising?

Surprising?
Under the warmth
Sleeping: Serpents were Hissing.
In the night
The earth was Beaming
You had to call
You had to call.
But called not.
Time growls in The grotesque masks
Slow\advancing
In the streets
With night-dews
Wetted.
The haloes sprung
It was
An alternative civilization O! let there be Many alternative civilizations
Round
Many and ever-increasing,

Emmanuel George Cefai
Surrounded In The Ocean

Surrounded Surrounded
In
The Ocean Surrounded

Man
By Hundreds
Of Flags
From
The Skies
Floating Surrounded Surrounded
By
The Flags Not West
Not East
Nor North
Nor South
But
All
Were
There
And
One
In All
And
All
For One
And
All
In
One

Emmanuel George Cefai
Suspended As By A Golden String

Suspended
As by a golden string Between Earth and Heaven:
I see below
I see above
I am
In between civilizations
I will compare and Enjoy all:
Take
From this ad that As the bee
That hums round sticky flowers In spring ad winter
And
So often gets the best of deals
There
In her position
That
Be my position
The In-Between
Yet
The perceiver of the All Enjoying
Up and down
In favor with the All Up, down.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Swan Song I

My strength decrease I feel and a light in my eyes steal but it be not the color of dusk

My book I close; to prepare to travel to another land more quiet I stand.

Belongings no for to where I go they want not belongings so Only quiet, courage, dreams, and not more to carry no, only rest of Soul, in those realms.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Swan Song II

where streams glide and where the sea-tide washes vast beaches of quiet solitude
go I:
prepared! my love my Soul where my earthly disease be healed; and light come strong to dim eyes;
and quiet and serenity to expectant frame at last, at last, go I! At last!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Swan Song III

In the street
the piper pipes a music slow and wan:
the low heart lower goes for many years of war it has gone now;
the body only wants to slow and in fatigued rest dream and sleep and sleep and dream where silence be the best.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Swan That Sing

Swan that sing
White
The lens of view Always retiring Leaving
The swan in Hazes and in
Mists

Emmanuel George Cefai
Swarthy

Swarthy
Tanned Sunny Strong Muscled
Chill
Winter

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet Building Of The Ruins

Agent for Dracula-shaped night things:
And weird things
That in late red sunset Already strike.

The verses flow
The verses flow
So does the chant
To-night
For now the dusk Be fleeing.

And the sun –
The sun is gone long
Ago.
The waters getting
Dark
Swish the night fugue.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet Clear-Water Island Wave-Lapping

Sweet clear-water island wave-lapping
Sweet-chuckling moon-waiting juts Of rock, of wind-cradling showers.

To-night the moon-lovers smoke Quiet and reclined-backwards yet Restless-vibrating in their minds.

And the smoke rises as the incense Rises amidst the silhouette palm trees Amidst the darker in the dark

You island! On you waft me winds of Magic that verse and song will bring Waft me from this Earth so hard and cruel.

Waft we, waft me to the sweet clear-water Island where the waves lap kisses to the Moon on the white-sleeping sands.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet Earth-Sounds

spirit of woods
in this and that tree residing:
in love as I abounding:
with the red dusk
a-pining:
in sweet earth-sounds ecstasy having in depth of nights
below star-lights!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet Friend

Sweet friend, sweet friend who reads my verse appreciates, discusses, comments
sweet friend:
you do not only stop at this noble task
but then yourself dutifully take a lyre and string your verses - a wonderful thing!
You wake up Beauty herself from her sleep!
And in your noble thoughts exalt the Dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet Hell

Sweet hell
A Poet Seer Made it
A Poet Seer Tasted it
A Poet Seer Lived in it

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet is the corn
And salty
Are the seas
Mixtures of night
In night
Fondling of love
Phallic erection
After Erection
Of the song and
The wind
Of dusk into
The night.
Beauty in yellow Bonnet.
Slothful beauty thrives.
Too.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet Is The Morn

Sweet is the morn
And drear the day Ocean and seas
Bend their sway
And vessels be In sway
In port
And outside
This day!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet Maid

Sweet maid
Since that we started kissing
After my long years of yearning
I feel a fire shock my very Soul
Every time I see a girl like you:
But you are the Queen Undisputed and sceptered
In our sweet love
Together
Each kiss a world
Each kiss
Paradise
Your sweet lips yearning
With my lips melting
Sweet maid
Since that we started kissing

Emmanuel George Cefai
Bless
The Earth
It has ailed enough
Hear
Its groans!
Hear
The pain of its Heart!
Touch
The pulse of
The delirium temperatures!
There’s poison in the blood
Of Earth
Yes there’s poison!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet Rivers

Sweet rivers that from The nipple brasts ah! Breasts
So full of Beauty flow And round the world and Earth they lighten and they glow Where drear resides at least To bring a smile they try And joy in part at least To faces dull and wry.
Thus unloosed the tongue
Of a Poet Seer goes:
While a shy satyr in the Bushes hides
When I come near The rustlings of his Flight in the bushes hear:
Hold! Stop! A glow worm
I was going to crush
But it lighted at once
To send a warning glow
My feet stopped slow
And I Towards a coppice of Thick trees Where dotted by
The nightingales
The sweet song will glow.
In the night
In the night...
Time for spells
And magic over towns and Cemeteries:

Fragments of moon Afloat the seas
And ocean mains Floating
Floating
Floating
The breasts of the Waters
Lighting
Coffin of waters Seas and oceans Repose
Repose

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet Rose

sweet rose sweet kiss fire in my veins in the forests of seed rage thunderbolts seeds germinate
and germinate sweet rose
sweet kiss

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet silent darkling bosom of the sea
That passes listless beneath the orbs
Of the pale-shining moonlight and traversed By its white path linear over the bosoms
Of waves cooling from the summer’s heat.
Sweet silent darkling bosom of the sea
On you as in a film the emotions Of a hundred dynasties I see Running in the sweet moon-light
This silent silver night sweet-passing sea:
And in your cool embraces this night
The riot of emotions quells and cools And passes with the waves and rides on them There is a quietness this night there scarcely is:
The bosom of the sea is quick yet does not heave
This silent summer night in the faint orbs Of the sweet silver moon more calming looks The under-currents pass and drive the waves Small cool austere like shining boats Over the sea-kingdom captained by the hands Of goblins small a-riding in the night
Over the waves, the silent silver waves.
And all is silence.
Not even the high oak that overlooks
The bastions’ fall into the giddying sea Rustles a leaf: and on its bough
The owl doth shelter full but doth not move.
The roads are still; no foot is heard to tread;
So silent is the night; the neon-light Sheds its red-dusky electrons on the road Where no foot treads. The windows Of the sea-fronting houses dream and do not stir;
The air is calm; the still wind doth not move Alone in distant acres o’er the port
The light-house sheds its lights in intervals
All else is dreamy-still and doth not move.
Not even the high oak that overlooks
The bastions’ fall into the giddying sea
Rustles a leaf: and on its bough
The owl doth shelter full but doth not move.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet Silent Sea-Waves Lapping By The Rocks

Sweet silent sea-waves lapping by the rocks
That beneath the frowning bastions lie

Nature, the tricky one Left the door ajar half-open half-closed And none of them - yet leaving things in the middle:
And he
And he Pondering
Pondering as not be foolish
Said to himself
There’s danger if I open the door too much I do not know what I will let in:
Yet
Yet
The option beckoned: either close or open to full:
So he pondered again
This time being quicker, rasher Decided for the line of least resistance For the prudent path Fear, tall impudent fear Stood by him like a dubious angel His counsel was not lost – it moved him
And so
He closed the door thinking he said
And making sure against ‘the unforseen’.

Courage had stood by him
But Fear won him smiling green Into the face of Courage Another soul was won to Fear Another to Courage lost:

Then Courage went away bashfully.

Fear sate him invisible by and by to watch.

So the drama quick unfolded:
And he sank
He could not walk on water Because Fear had won him Because Courage had lost him:
And so
And so
He sate on a safe rock
And put his feet into the water like a child To feel the cool sweet water rush And press with sweetness round his ankles But Fear, yellow fear won!
For even here:
The sands started to ‘Twas a slippery bank, a bank of treachery And treacherous the sand sank And fast the sand Sank like down the time-glass.

And Fear seizing him
He was un resourceful to the full His mind Fear had made blank
It was blank – worse Than if Morpheus on touching it Had exceeded his dose of opiate sleep;
He saw nothing Except him sink
And sink:
And all around him crush
And all around him go:
And yet
He felt a pleasure in the ruin
A sweetness new not felt before
He felt:

In sinking.

And so sinking
He still heard
The music of pleasantness Ring in his ears
The sea was calm and wave-less So no current churned And linear and tall
He went down to the floor
The walls of water around him raged
The walls of water around him pressed Like flames of wrath Like flames of ruin Nero-like When Nero burned his Rome
And staring stood Stringing here and there a note
On his large funereal harp

And so
He touched the floor of the salt sea Deep in and smiling in his ruin
At least pain had flown away Fear had granted in recompense A painless sinking:

And as he fell
His eyes were open yet closed
And he Could not recriminate himself
As to why
He simply could not open the door - it was so easy
So imperative:
Yet so he did not and he sank.

And thus engrossed
He thought himself alone
If he could think:
And could not see A case like his a-sinking to the floor Another coward Fear his victim made

De te fabula!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet Silver Night

Sweet silver night
This Earth look down Upon and bless Illumine it from Stress.

For stress so much
Be multiplying
That round and round Serpent like it be going.

And
In its wake
The guillotine of emotions Cuts down to The bone and more Sweet silver night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet Song

Sweet song
A child's song Sung
For the child's Sleep

Eyes That when Grown
Weep

Better
Now
To sleep
To dream
To smile

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet Suffering Is Joy

Sweet suffering be joy My Monsignor you must Have fortitude
To suffer more and more
And more
That in the end
As seeds sown in the Winter That show not
Yet
Awake at touch of Spring.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet The Notes Together String

Sweet the notes
Together string
And join
And sweet verses Ring!

Dance
The nymphs and Fairies of the wood Satyrs, fauns, goblins, Sileni - a whole brood!

Hear
The nights are Dreaming
Hear
The very woods and Seas be Ocean
Dreaming

Look the Ocean
Be mark!

For Sweet the notes
Together string
And join
And sweet verses Ring!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet The Old Melody, The Line

sweet the old melody, the line wherein the old play finished, here the fragment,
the broken statue,
the pitcher in a hundred parts and fragments:
sweet the old melody, sweet and sour.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet The Verse

So sweet the verse
That in exchange
I fear Destiny will A string of punishments
On me ordain.

I dreamt of coffins
And of shady nooks
Of graves and tombs Which house the Silent powerhouses
Of wisdom great

For
They have known What to cut chain by Chain
That tie to Earth Means:
And more:
How to cut chain by Chain
That tie to Earth.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet The Volcano

Sweet the volcano Sleeps
From
Whole centuries.

Ah! long, long
It flamed Flamed so often Red lava stained
The red soils more
Red
More fertile

So let our life be So our heart be
The blood stains red
And the more
Red
It stains
The more red
It be.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet Unconsciousness

Into the sweet unconsciousness of the heavens
laying on the soil and dust of the silent countryside looked I looked at the white stars

the white stars
I always loved
I always feared I also saw my grave and tomb
in them.

A hummock coma yet not coma seizes me this night
above
the heavens
guard me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet Verses Now

Sweet verses now
Now
That in an Impassioned heart
I thrive:
Sweet verses
Kisses sweet
Kiss after kiss
The hearts all glow Beauty her reign
She pipes
And full declares
The country smiles
The green all round
Rises from dust
And
From the hills
The streamlets blow Small yet many
For to see you Grow in such beauty Beauty herself more Beautiful she grows.
For Beauty her reign
She pipes
And full declares
The country smiles
The green all round
Rises from dust
And
From the hills
The streamlets blow

Emmanuel George Cefai
Play
Play sweet violin!
The Figures in the Heaven
Move
Silent and mute
Into the airy clouds
And immense wildernesses.

There be enchantment And values be Writ on the face of the heavens.
There be
A giant hand that writes
An all wise Eye that all Observes.

Play
Play sweet violin!
The Figures in the Heaven
Move
Silent and mute
Into the airy clouds
And immense wildernesses.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sweet Welcome Summer Night

Sweet welcome summer night
Brought in the breezes that waft Across the port of coolness where waves sleep Lights flicker on Saint Angelo lazily.

The night is dreaming, the night is dreaming.

Far far inward the Bighi lights Flicker red and white and red predominant
Into the long night
The long and winding night
As in a tunnel of drowsiness
In the long silence that hovers Over the small cemetery unused.

The night is dreaming, the night is dreaming quite.

The night is leaning, looking over the rails
From the Upper Barracca on the port The dreaming port where ships and skiffs Forget past wars and dream of all but past:

The night is dreaming, the night is dreaming quite.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Swift Cathedral Of Alms

swift cathedral of alms
built amidst the roof of palms of the high heavens floating in the spaces and rounds celestial.

amidst
the hails
of adrenalin
of heaven
a Chorus
sings

you see, you see,
this type of poesy
the verses fly, the images gyrate and now you here be another second
there
and yet in a few seconds
everywhere.

I hear the sea-waves swinging and in their swinging they be roaring:
roaring up the caves up the coves up the low hills dark and granite rocks
nocturnal.

hear!
Hear!
the cry goes round
A posse of bats
flies
low skimming the sea enraged and calmed

you see, my Monsignor,
in a few verses
too
from civilization to civilization
we go.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Swimming Crocodiles

Lagoon of swimming crocodiles
but as tiny as sperm glowing as yet as the night stars that fell on the sea's bosom.

owls that flew through red boughs and olive leaves

that was the sub-conscious that was transformations galore that was dreaming that was living the other coin of life the living

Emmanuel George Cefai
Swirling In The Heavens

Swirling in
The Heavens
The Task Master
Of
The Stars
Laughing
Is Laughing
And Occasionally
The Heavens
Laugh
And Laugh
Then
Stop
Why be afraid of the Loud Voice of the heavens?
Not just
When they play violins
Not just
When they string violins at night Not just
Not just
There was strawberry milk
That dropped Profuse yet slow
From the heavens
Yet with time
With time

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sword On The Battlefield

They laid on him
The sword of honors
Proud he rose With hawk eyes Looked around
On the foot soldiers Idolizing.

Ah! they laid on him
The sword of honors
To chase and murder [As hunting foxes, birds Nobles in their immense Woods]
The strong over Less strong
The deft over less Deft
The cunning
Over less cunning:

Then said the Historian
‘But that was long,
Long ago’
Then said the Philosopher ‘Rethink, my friend, Rethink’
And they stopped there.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sylph

Sylph that rises
Just from sleep
Just from dreams
Sub-conscious
Deep
Tell me
Tell me Poet Seer
What you have to tell and tell tell me
tell me
In the conscious
For decades
I have been drunk
In the sump of History:
tell me
tell me
That in the sub conscious Without throwing off
The conscious
My eyes open, I be free!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Sylphs Of Time

round and round the sylphs of time
they go restless and breathless:
I saw grim faces
here
and I saw dreary faces there I saw the waters boiling the raucous seething of acidic bubbling:
round and round
round and yet all remained in drear and surly without sound

Emmanuel George Cefai Symbol

when I go
light a lamp-light
I will be there
the symbol
the lamp-light
and keep it
lamp-light burning burning always

Emmanuel George Cefai
Symbols Of Night

Symbols of Night

Bats Flying Goblins Giggling
Prancing
Out
Of Hedges
Then Jumping
In
One Leap
Out
Of sight.

The flowers were Fading Light and Bending Drying Desiccated with The waning day.

Shrouds crying
Ghosts wailing Shadows flitting
  Lamenting
And a distant zooming sound
Rhythmical
In to that gruesome nocturnal scenery

Dawn will come
  And bring a little light
To the nocturnal horrors
From the night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Syringe Of Beauty

ejected from into the syringe of beauty
naked
I found myself surrounded by woods, trees stand-alone burning smokes and pyres snake rattling heads of desire roses and balsamic
scents
odor mellow gentle steams massaging eyes dazzled;
the fountains of waters burst into colors printed on each spout a philosophical direction a hundred emotions for beauty is beauty is
beauty
and warms the heart's ailing
fear:
heavens that smile with mild suns where stress and stressing
melt:
into the warmth of beauty...
into the warmth of new beauty... woods, trees stand-alone
burning smokes and
pyres snake rattling heads of
desire roses and balsamic
scents odour mellow gentle steams
massaging
eyes dazzled beauty has swindled all her peers
now
today
for for beauty is beauty is
beauty
and warms the heart's ailing

Syringes Of Wisdom

Syringes of wisdom
Ready for injecting
A hundred years from hence.

Then Wisdom will not be Taught Nor much attention
To experience given.

The waters of wisdom
Will dry in their pools Captured
By the syringes

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tale Of The Lamenting Ghost

Tale of the Lamenting Ghost
[A Ghost's Lament] [Struck by Tuberculosis]

i.

Dusk had now risen
In its glory
Not like cocks it crowed
But silence spread
amidst the town and field
amidst the human animal and plant

ii.

O red color that from the orange of the sunset goes
and as the day fades in its throes
winds round the Earth and throws
its twilight on the waters stunned
from the day's and Earth's events:
and the wounds:
O red color of dusk twilight of waters!

iii.

Till then round old Valletta
circling the woods
around caught its eye
and then it settled on those sites
that as the night approached
more and more devoid of humans
turned.

iv.

already Night was on his car
though Dusk still reigned:
and on his car
Night already lighted had one star
then
the cunning sovereign

v.

Till all the immense heavens
shone; Dusk saw; turned pale;
with quick step down
towards the seas and Oceans
trod his way
to safety and rest and
out of the fading day.

vi.

thus settled Night new king
new Sovran but of a fading
day by half
and of the other half of day
the first Sovran and yet
in the dark part
when humans to subconscious betake
and conscious leave

vii.

the new king Night till mid-night
ruled as a new king
then as the mid-night deepened in
his reign more colored yet more
lax became more tottering
with every hour
till at sight of Dawn Night with haggard hair of white
replaced the youth that
hours before ascended heaven's throne
to watch our Earth:
and fled before the Dawn.
viii.

till in a wood of old Valletta old
an ancient spirit roamed desolate
desolate in flesh
desolate as skeleton
what more destitution be made?
he lamented low though quite polite
and his sad notes like arrows
entered and broke the very heart of night

ix.

of how an early end tuberculosis
brought him to:
when in the height of youth
the first joys of life in cumulus
had brought him to life's first pinnacle
and last:
yet humans this enjoy albeit decline
yet this lone spirit faded before he
made offspring of which full lament
he made under the stars and to the moon.

x.

all heard; all pitied; yet still
the spirit tormented restless plained
and ran around with vacant eyes and
red amidst the bending trees and sad.
Still sate the owl, and the nightingales
few that were chanting stopped and
heard and pitied in their heart the tale.

xi.

till by the Dawn as spirits will to do
so oft this spirit unfortunate
he too dissolved as a frail flake of snow
at touch and attack of a fervent sun:
so ends the tale, my Monsignor.
Tall And High And Distant

and the heads roll
and the heads roll
and spears squeak and blood burst
out as spitting
and the heads roll
and the heads roll
now
the drums
already started in the chains
they fall
fall
fall
and once the ties be cut
then serenity follows but see
but see that figure smiles in the mists
tall and high and distant
come!
come!
come!
no!
no!
but just
the violins play and sing
the violins play and sing
the violins play and sing.

Tall And Wise

A man of sinews Tall and wise
He walked
Trembled
The Earth underneath Smiled Earth and Heavens
As in his cave Slept and rested
He in the white mornings Rose the night
To work, to think, to do In the star’s light

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tambourines That Laugh, Tambourines That Weep

Tambourines that laugh, tambourines that weep
Through the salty scent of misty seas
There rose so many wraith of centuries past
And played on and on the tambourines.

Crazy
The Night
Is Red
And
The Moon
Red
And
The Stars
Red
Tonight

Tambourines that laugh, tambourines that weep
Through the salty scent of misty seas
There rose so many a wraith of centuries past
And played on and on the tambourines.

Tangles Of Leaves And Restless Nights

sub-conscious with sub-conscious reveling champagne in hand dreams whirling round the dreamer chance and probability outdone:
outdone we humans outdone our brain
however
though
I be a thinker:
the tangles are too fast, too deep they dance
too deep they cut into the white of brain and the thin pencil lines of blood seep through the convolutions of the brain tangles of leaves and restless nights

Tavern Of Loud Voices

Raucous
Delight of music Voices low and high Notes of music various
Light
Dances in the corners
Of the old city
Where houses and humans
Sleep
And the Sub-Conscious reigns Sovereign
As all the nights
In old Valletta.

Tele Keli Bere Mesret

Tele keli bere mesret Ha! Yes these words, this language:
I project
And what I project in chronology
That is in order chronological
I then assert:
Thoughts, notes, verses, songs are given birth:
Theories and hypotheses, Principles That enroot themselves in Proportion strong You know the rest: need I elaborate?

Telegraphic

The lightning speaks
On the lone bastions
In solitude
A hooded monk

Against
The background
Flare
The lightning Roar
The sound
The waters of the heavens Open their tap
The monk Raises his hood Completely over his head Yet remains
Suffering

You see
My Monsignor
Dusty lizards foul Crawled on the bastion walls:
Frost
Fell without mists Bare and raw
And naked as wild Chill Sparked
The lightning on the Tooth of a heaven-hovering
Skeleton
These, these
My Monsignor, the words,
The styles,
The civilization that shades
Off
In part at least The civilization of day light
These the styles
My Monsignor.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Telephone That Rings

Telephone that rings
Rings
Rings after mid-night

The night is bleak
And long
And tortuous

And the ghost of my mother Hovers Hovers above

And the telephone rings
And does not ring
And its midnight struck

And

The night is bleak
And long
And tortuous

Tempest On The Fields

To be a nightingale on the Boughs
To be tempest on the fields
To be lightning on the roads
To lay thundering on the weald To lay wreaths on the old stone Where my mother dreams and sleeps Then sing as nightingale on bough.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tempest Over Valletta

Over Valletta
When the tempest comes The thunders roar
As in the olden
Centuries

Tremble the streets
The houses
Vibrate more And tremble

The tempest cloud Sad and angry
Flies over the city
All eyes
And remains
Sad and angry.

Tender Village

Tender village
In its smallness
Shining
But planet-like

The moon is on you
In the night
The stars smile
It be night

The waters lap
In the lake
Red eyed a figure In black
Runs

The eyes of the Houses and Their faces Wry and see.

The tender village
In its smallness
Is
In the night
A poppy field of red And dye.

Thank you

Thank you for your verse
You made me go Fast in a sub-conscious throe
From the stark conscious.

I am not stark
Now
And
I am not conscious

Let me in this dazed stunning
Be Sub-Conscious ever in All circumstances freedom, liberty.
Let me

That Be The Way

That be the way of Poetry
The way of verses
The way of chanting
The way of a Poet Seer
Who be philosopher too.

That be the way
And in all
In the All
For the All
There is always the Way.

Yet
After the drunken noon
And glories
Of the lazy afternoon
The dim lights
Start to fail
With
Them
The day to wane
Then dusk
And twilight on the waters Dances:
Then night
Full sovereign and all All bend their heads
resigned
for his long sway

Emmanuel George Cefai
That Creepy Voice

Give me to

That Creepy
Voice
That Slow
And Winding
My Ear
Ascended.

The waters that Yesteryear Defeated were
And losers
See
They have arisen
Have come to advance
For
They look ever
High
High
To
The high heavens
immense they look they rise the waters roll the waters murmur
and the murmurs sigh

scented
the heavy gardens
rose terrace on terrace as the river passed by the sacred river of immortality:
we see it we have it but have it not and see it not.
Scented.

That In Them Smart Principles

That in them smart Principles
With little or no noise.

Silence.

The brain needs thinking now
The dusk is shrinking

Emmanuel George Cefai
That Is Where The Roads Lead

You see, you see, that is where the roads Lead.

I saw individuals, humans walking, trudging, Trudging

From all directions came they from east and West from north and south From all directions.

And Then as into one direction they Joined Joined together

And that direction was the Home of the Individual Sovereign Will The One In whom the Ocean of the All Flowed The All in One, The One in All. That. That direction.

Emmanuel George Cefai
That Thing

That thing
Yes
That thing

That be centuries old That thing

And
In those centuries
Styles of verses, dresses Buildings
All changed though
The common root never dried up
For
It was an ancestor Root.

Emmanuel George Cefai
That Together Hand In Hand For Company

We
That together hand in hand for company
Went
Went walking to the pebbly shore Where caves and the waves resounded Each to each Lovers reciprocal
We Went to seek wraiths and quaint company
The cries that rose half-mumbled from the sea
The words written on the wall
The liquid wall of the bosom of the sea:
We
Were there to hear tales, to be in fear At every word,
At every sound,
There
There the sea and the caves resounded as A bomb, as bombing:
And
There was the liquid mirror Wherein we saw much human misery Men, women walked in chains with Arched backs bent heads and weary steps They walked
They marched
They trudged
Yet once we saw most of them wearing Tiaras and capes, smoke cigars, Ply millionaire yachts – what?
They were too in the pages of history
And in the books, ancient engravings And sullen living paintings.
Yes
We saw them.
Shuddered we.
We saw the level of the bosom of the sea
How at the end
All storms subside and all the waves However high Level and flat with their former lower fellows lie:
We saw there so much of humanity
So much
So much
And looking up we saw Time sitting high on a cliff edge Laughing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
That Was The Child

That was the child: but years that Passed motion that moves as Motion in the mass universe
And the child grew and walked a youth.

No longer boy, though first a boy And then the soul of boy in to The body of youth, then The soul of youth in to the body of man.

Twilights have been as the red dusks
The curtains of the days have fallen
So many times, for centuries:
And rose again in so many Dawns.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Anger

The Aching In My Head

The aching in my head
Feel I
Cataracts will leap Into the moon’s light
And the night sky
But
Yet not so violent.

I feel the coldness in my feet
Ah! that be the mirror of the soul
The heart within!

When
There be last days
How solemn How stress increases with each day!

The aching in the head
The stress
The self-immolated violence.

The coldness in the soul
Ah! it speaks not Mute weeps
You will not hear it!
Yet it be there!

I held a mirror in my hand
And of a sudden felt
The dust grain slip Between my trembling hands
And fade.

I had some joy
When I heard your voice Then I heard
A voice as through a cone Resounding in my head
The brain
Revolved to cemetery, tomb and grave.
The words together joined Made the trick.

Purple the twilight waves
The changing colors
Of my fading with Dusk
See
It takes me by the hand with it!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Admiral Of The Nineteen Stars

The Admiral of the Nineteen Stars
Well
Throughout the night
He at the table sat
With the other Nocturnal guests
Babbling
Almost all time
But
Then Intervals of Small whispering.

Party of faces met
From centuries
Long
Long
In to the clouds and Tunnels of time.
Party of faces!

The Rat of the Long Whiskers
He sate him
Next
To the Admiral of the Nineteen Stars
He spoke Every now
And then
And sparingly.
Was that cunning of a Rat?

The Cat of the One Eye
He was a fighter
In the days of yore
But
One Eye stood
And served him:
At times
Behind the parlance table
He Bent
As playing some card furtively.

A Squirrel in his Prime Youth days
He had to found family
And/or descendants
One way or the other
Not so much on the Conversation of the Table Was he intent
More than in night
Itself
And descendants.

Then dressed in armor
A Knight of Noble Peerage Full many battles Lost or won
He knew and had Experienced
Yet
More than these
More
Than on a battle-field
His Soul had felt,
Experienced
The anguish of the Life
That by now he by-passed
And Viewed sardonically. -vi

By him
Sate the Watchmaker of the Town
A Watch of gold
He held and looked at Constantly
In angst
For he had experienced Loss of time Fast work Descent of centuries
Yet
Bypassed him
And now
In his ghostly cloud
He Failed not to hold Fistful in his fists Cheeky slipping time
And century after Century.

Then there sat
The Mayor of the Town
Wistfully
He looked at the Old Town Into a globe he had
See How it changed
All changes
But as soon as The change is wrought
The vision original Lost the brilliancy Another ever-increase Another style
Another living
From
The ever-increasing permutations and combinations Had to be brought But so are things
But so are days
But so sing nights
The centuries glide Superb and proud Vain fools!
They be just as Ixion
On the wheel condemned Turning and Turning.
All
All these faces
All round
The table stood
In flesh and blood
They were of other centuries
But now
Together gathered At their will
And when they wanted Centuries and age Thought they had Claimed them
But ah!
They cunning they Had the last Laugh
They claimed the Centuries.
So we
So we So all of us
We age
And
Time and age
Wreak their hands
In joy Thinking that They have had us.
But no!
We surface yet Again and again
If
Not in flesh and bones
Here on earth
More elusive
More cunning
More powerful
All powerful indeed
And Laugh jesting in the face of Death
And
Century after century
Condemned to glide
In round succession
As Ixion to the wheel.
We
We humans
All of us
Have power and Right To be These personages
Round
The Table of the Immortal
Winners of all cups
More cups and honor Than in flesh and in blood
They would deck
Themselves
Courage! Take courage humans!
We too
Be these and these Be us
Defying
At will and free
The centuries after centuries Going round and
Round
As donkey round
The water-mill Irresistible and Irreversible.
We, no!
We, humans
No!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Artesian Well--How Cool Is It!

The artesian well- how cool is it!
Its sides with the dews of waters cool
And in it heaven in the waters cool!

How much ‘tis needed now-to cool the brain
The throbbing of the blood in the revolt That now in fury red assails the brain.

The artesian well-how graces it the green Where bees and flowers sport and children play And the shade tiptoes in the afternoons

When lazy summer heat the green leas cloud.
When the soft dusk is knocking at the door Of the antique house alone in country strewn

Where the day resteth after the blazing sun Had stunneth with a pleasant laziness From its full zenith at the mid-day peak:

The artesian well how they heard it Speak in the night to the light-winking stars That look from heaven’s rails adown to earth

And then they say a plaintive tale they hear From the artesian well echo and sound And some stars weep - but the content

Only they know - no human has yet known!

The Band Of Hedgehogs

The Band of Hedgehogs competed with the Band of Toads.

In numbers equal yet not in size.

They marched together playing.

Animals came out of their hole houses.

Rustled the bushes and the grasses: heads out appeared.

No judges came.

For both the Bands played equal with closed eyes into the hand of the Sub-Conscious.

About the results no one bothered they had closed eyes as dream and sleep.

Only that The Band of Hedgehogs competed with the Band of Toads.

The Bat Want To Speak

Black and flitting
Small and swift
The bat on its Restless journey
Goes
Throughout the night

The bat
Wants to speak Hold meeting
To the sparse
People hurrying
On the streets Home-bound and
The doors that lock
The lights that go
The lights that cease

Even we
We Humans are on our Journey
Everyday:
Everyday
We retire in the night
When the bat wakes
We stay face upwards
When
The bat face downwards likes
To hang:
In his hiding in the hours of light.
The bat no longer screeches It has some respect for The privacy of the houses:
But then
Whirling over the bastions Out of town
Its screams and dances

The Beheading Of The Violet

A violent innocent arose
In the sweet Dawn
That day as all the days
It rose.

But ah! Fate cruel smiled
And wry the smile
Was on his face
Where cruelty one traced.

And Fate itself hid Behind the trees to see
The violet swing here and there
In its last liberty.

So few the hours were
So quick they passed:
So joy filled the innocent heart
The violet that day!

Till a boy came: a boy
Symbol of innocence!
His eyes upon the violet Fell; his hands he thrust
And on the poor violet Roughly them he cast.

On her head the murderous hands Fell; a numbing fall
From consciousness; a coma;
Then her head fell
A trophy to a boy
Who threw it away

Ah! broken violet! Broken Head!
How rolled it gently
And the wind neighed
And the wind mourned
And the sun mourned
And the garden mourned
That fateful day!

And Fate itself had hid Behind the trees to see
The violet swing here and there
In its last liberty.

Come out tyrant Fate!
The deed is done:
You can smile openly
But no! Fate’s heart Was struck
With guilt he fled away
And the red dusk
More guilty made him stay.

So, so, my mother,
Like the sweet violet,
You woke that day,
And like the hapless violet Hapless was the last day
The last day that on Earth
You breathed breath of day.

So, so, as the sun mourned
The wind, the day:
So I my mother mourned Still mourn
To the end of my days.

The Bell-I

The Bell in grief
stands out.
And if the winter blows
then more it stands.

the bell in grief
I hear
sing in the night sing with the hoarse wind
dear.

the bell it moves its tongue but a hand pulls below or near.

History is a great friend.
The bell knows it.
The land knows it.

the bell it ushers funerals of state and funerals of us it distinguishing not its solitary usual tone reserved equal and same for all.
The bell's democratic
and the bell's egalitarian
and
the bell's romantic
for
The Bell in grief
stands out.
And if the winter blows
then more it stands.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Bells

The bells their ringing how much it played Its own part in the history of us humans!
High on the steeples Challenging the furies of the Winds
The Gales, the Train and somewhat Snows!
Yet
They continue ringing despite The onset of rust and long ago.

Ah! alas age passes Even on the heavy bronze Of bells
They too grow hoarse at times
But
We love them so well
We
Rotate them all around us Even to a parting knell!

Thus civilization forming Thus civilization following What will the bells, the old bells do When immortality grows in its shoes
When spent the time
When biers and coffins with tears mix
And sighs
And as the coffin in earth lowered Such cries!
All gone!
They will be gone!
These will be specters if
And when We usher Immortality:
Then
Though the violets rooting Themselves in some cemetery Will at the touch of a red dusk Twine bend
And pine
Yet
Tombs will often empty be
For sake of Immortality!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Bells Are Ringing - Some Joy!

The bells are ringing - some joy!

The country smiles - post-dawn!

The dawn, sun, night continue to follow.

Days still go!

In the distant hills
A cluster of magic bagpipes plays.

Owls fluttered to thick nocturnal boughs.

Nightingales
Assembled in a chorus row.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Bells Of The Cathedral

The bells of the cathedral
Ring
This evening
And Even Touching
The edges of the night
The bells are ringing.

The waves
Over the seas
Be undulating
Even afar
Out in the ocean seas
And deep
You see them undulating
See the troughs
See the peaks
Of the waves of centuries
Of salty empery.

Yet
There be no wind
But magic Magic sweet Sweet spells
That hum silent
In that awesome vast:

The Soul
The Inner Souls
They speak
Their parched self Through the loud-hailer
Of the glitzy waves
As moonlit

And
The majestic rolling Rolling, rolling:
The seas and oceans waters
Into coves and into caves Entering.

For Night is beautiful
And these things Beautiful be No need of winter
Though winter increase
The wonders of the beauties all around.

For
The bells of the cathedral
Ring
This evening
And Even Touching
The edges of the night
The bells are ringing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Bells Strike Eight.

The bells strike eight.
A dozen and more churches peal.
Outside the streets wet with rain.
Rain fell throughout the night.
The Dawn is lead and frowns.
The sea is grey and so the clouds.
Dense and thick the clouds threaten rain.
The ancient city sleeps out still the night.
It calculates that is its preference.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Bells Were Ringing

The bells were ringing
Your love was flowing And it was early day Alas! I lost that chance.

Years passed.
With children I saw you Pass in front of me
I in desperation looked

And I remembered Remembered that sweet morn Before you had those children
When you Love flowed to me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Bending Flower

The flowers bends
The flower towards night Bends its head
And eyes
The fierce stars
From corners of its eyes.

Even Life bends Elastic to the chill
Of the emotions
Lacerated
By Earth's woes
The hands of tragedy
Short term or long term

And Even I
Now bend in this
My life
The stage-curtains are
Falling
The light of the eyes
Dimming

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Bird Cried With Pain And Uttered

The bird cried with pain and uttered
Its sad and solitary cry unto the face Of the frowning heavens leaden-faced The pincers in the flesh Tore slowly yet constantly A dropp of blood Appeared and rolled down and then Another followed suit and then More drops of blood red, red blood fell:
And pain and pain the withered heart Cried in its anguish with half-opened mouth.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Black Barge Clothed Was In Satin Red

The black barge clothed was in satin red
And purple sashes fluttered in the breeze
As it sailed slowly o’er the enchanted seas:
Furtive it stole and silently and sad.

The black barge no inhabitants hath No pilot steersman, oarsmen sailors – yet On it sails, it sails on silently Into the funereal seas all draped in black
The black barge clothed was in satin red.

Like a black spot across the ocean vast
The barge moves silent-slow and wearily Seems to draw its weight by its own weight And on it sails, it sails on silently
Into the funereal seas all draped in black.

The dawn sees it still moving wearily
When the sun shone it moved along the sea:
Dusk found it still there and the night Enveloped its dark frown in its dark grasp Silent the wan moon looked on and languidly:
And day did follow day and month the month
And years passed on and centuries – and yet
Like a black spot across the ocean vast
The black barge moved all wan and wearily:

And night and day and dawn and dusk
To call it sister-barge they came and said:
And time seemed there to cease to fall Down the time-glass its sand grains wearily And thunder lightning cold and rain and frost
To call it sister-barge they came and says
And still – like a black spot across the ocean marge
The black barge moved all wan and wearily.

The Black Queen Of The South

The black queen of the south
How warm her flanks
And yet her teeth How white are they!
The black queen of the south
No scepter in her hand she holds And yet in her transparent veils
She rules as from a throne.

The black queen of the south
Is rare as eastern pearls:
And like a jewel shines at night
When nightingales sing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Black Queen Of The South II

The black queen of the south
The pearls I gave her She like a scepter wears:
And in her eyes
The glistening of tears Like autumn paling rains And miry summer-days Now trickling appears
How my happiness is brimming Like beer, warm beer
A-boiling in Bavarian jugs!
And in the distant garden by The first red of the dusk appears.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Black Sweat Of The Moon

The black sweat of the moon that rode through the thorns in the wood where Prometheus passed bleeding bleeding from his torn muscled strength and tired groaning in that wood I saw too
the black sweat of the moon
falling
falling

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Black Winter

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Blind Girl

I never thought
That I would bear
The crucifix!

Yet now I know
Yet now I pain
What suffering!

See
They bring again
The crucifix to me!

Dark night no day
No sunset and no dusk
No dawn!

These have I known
Yet
These have I lost.

The woes of the Earth
In me they hang As on the line
The washed up clothing

I never thought
That I would bear
The crucifix!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Blue Violet Its Mouth Opens

The blue violet its mouth opens
As if with hunger desperate In mid-desert pining, pining, pining Or like a wounded soldier as he lies On the blood-soaking earth and from his mouth
A tall thin pencil of red comes out:
So am I now like the blue violet
I lie in desperation hit to ground And wish for the dews of Dawn To quench my thirst.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Blue Violet Nigh Its Sleep

The blue violet is nigh its sleep
Now that the dusk is tiptoeing by stealth Drawing along with giant hand the curtains of day
And of its glory in the mid-day sun:
A cool wind from the west Sings slow in the leaves and slightly shakes Their verdant branches cooling in the shade
The gentle rustling sound To cool refreshing sleep invites:
The violet bends its head
And into its bed prepares sleep.

It closes its eye one first, then next, mischievous violet.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Boar's Head

The boar's head
The tongue plucked Out and red.

There's time
But you just work
But you must run
Even with a single foot.

The girl leaped
From the island rock
For it was the sun
And stunned
The senses.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Boat I Ply

now all being lost
the boat I ply
with stroke more free with subdued wrath and agony

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Brain Be Tired

The brain be tired
Now
And for the future

A night lamp
Not yet out
But dimly burning.

A sick bed
And
A face upwards

Tired eyes Looking blank
Upwards.

Give to the tired Brain some rest
Some rest at last!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Building Looked

looked on the Residence of the Skeletons

Few
bought an apartment there in those high rise blocks:

For
the building looked
looked
on the Residence of the Skeletons

Emmanuel George Cefai
The bulbs of the feast are lit
Even though
The red dusk is not come
Yet
From my heart
My sadness from the window Flows

The Bulk Of Frost That Fell

The bulk of frost that fell
fell on the sacred streets and the more sacred temples and the churches white as the glum stars of night and pale as trees and bushes trembling in cats in Hastings Gardens.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Bulk Of The Sacred Temple

The bulk of the sacred temple
fell
fell as the snows fall on the lands get lost into the seas and Oceans where they drown

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Burying Of The Ant

The burying of the Ant

It took short time.

On a thin stalk
They bore her Motionless.

We take a little
More?

Stay on the upper Earth
A little more?

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Bustling Of The Morn Is Faded. Still The Streets

The bustling of the morn is faded. Still the streets Slumber in the orange neon lights and Over the grating steps paces rarely sound
The wind neighs slowly every now and then Antique the bastions stand, antique they dream Before the night cloaks the slow eyes of day When the first russet of the welcome dusk Is eagered in.

A woman opens a door and throws Water into the street; closes the door.
A few doors down a door ajar let out
The yellow neon light.

From top of the street the port I see Dreaming in black. Between The saltiness of the sea and where I stand A flight of steps aged hundreds of years Traversed by cavaliers, sailors, whores, Priests, bishops, sentinels, monks, cats, Dogs, scholars, boors, farmers And others.
For all of these time fell down the time-glass.
Little they noticed or did want to.

The cobra danced alone
In the middle of the steps she danced Raising her thin head to the moon Inviting her to war and fight:
Yet the moon smiled, smiled pale and wan and calm.

Over the sea the silver goblins hopped Informal in their Olympics: no crowds cheered No publicity, no medals, none.

A cat walks down the steps without a noise Its tail half-raised caresses every higher step As it goes down.
And the same night similar and equal To other nights that were and that will be With one eye open looked over the Port.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Bustling That Began At Dawn Declines.

The bustling that began at dawn declines.
Declines the sweetness of the first beginning.
Begins the ennui of the next losing.
So when we lose a friend, a mind, a brain.
The Earth mourns duly and dutifully.
And we, we humans must not less than that be.
For the bustling that began at dawn declines.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Calls Of Caves

The calls of Caves
The shouts of Coves Milking the Drops of milk of Beauty:
Golden rings
Liquid and gaseous
And Waters singing wild
Sub-conscious
Green grasshopper
Dancing
Of beauty
The pride.
Of love the Sign
O beauty is too late Just for today
Though as yet Starting with A splendid Dawn
And enmeshed eyes
Where on the lawn
Of green
Lit by old moonlight
Danced
Nymphs and fauns
And Satyrs
Wild
Last night.

The Carrion Of The Trees

The carrion of the trees
The Teeth Of The Trees Are Sick
Many Of Them Though The Trees Loaded Be With Age More Than With Fruits Yet Year By Year Year After Year They Fall And Lie Rotten In The Purple Skies Rotten
Rotten
I
Will
The Drums
Of Days
That Were
Of Sun
Are Now Afar
And
With
The Fall
Of Every Night Glow
Yet
More
Far
The carrion of the trees
I feel
I hear
In our garden

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Castle Of Beauty

i.

In a town of old ancientness a Poet Seer as in a vision saw and what he saw, was For what we see, be as what we assert, be

ii.

He viewed a mist wherein white semi-transparent
lay a fairy virgin half dressed half naked
she
to him to called as a drunken fairy:
'Come Come
You already be a Poet Seer not distant from the Castle where all round I pass my life, a paradise of beauty for a Poet's eyes'.
She stopped and spoke not more But dropped a plan, a document, musty and old yet clear as to the Castle where one would find it easily.

iii.

So heard, the Poet-Seer anon without a word
he bent and gathered the musty document down from the floor where fell it
and though musty and old and rare and in the ancient characters and lines and plans he read, he saw, he planned and his feet for the voyage onward planned.

iv.

thus he
the voyage onward began towards his directionality:
in a swoon of sleeping he laid here and there his feet yet sure the brain guided him in the train of a voyage long through a dark wood and thick where the trees one on other
grew as if lovers with lust in ever-increase together clung.

v.

once in this wood that through the foliage thick served as a roof as thick and welcome rains started to pour for the dusk coming was and twilight on the horizon in the distance rose.

vi.

how cold, how frost the winds
neighed
they full surrounded the thicket of the trees yet so close they entwined that winds would barely pass as through the granite rocks the rain or snows pass not.

vii.

through sluggard snails over he passed as inside further and through the thicket wood went the Poet Seer though cold neighed outside yet inside how warm the thicket stood as thick as fort walls of old as strong as bastions great as scented as a thousand flowers not yet fallen asleep with beauty's dowers.

viii.

though small, how as a fortress stood tree by tree entwined and joined that small wood! When unity be there, then tiny strengthened be! and the Poet Seer through the wood was moving constantly into the direction where the wood the Castle of Beauty faced by and large a-directly.

ix.

trembled vibrating the walls of the Castle of Beauty that night of storm and tempest wild shook the white burning stars shook the earth the hills and gurgled gargling the brook nearby Thought circled round the Castle to find a way in to join with Beauty and her servants inside.

x.

Ah! but in the Castle Beauties diverse inhabitants permanent inhabitants of the edifice:
and Beauty with other competing A Beauty made another look dull.

xi.

Ah! from the wood there's open
countryside
to the Castle of Beauty take the dusty country road that up the hill goes five kilometers often so straight but then there's guerdon at the height for the arrival at the Castle's doors.

xii.

wait till the night deepening will at last through its hours passing freeze and atrophy and then wait but few minutes and lo! of sudden a delight and on the hills and fields the Dawn throws its first light.

*

and therefore our Poet Seer by whispers sweet in his ear betook him to sleep a few hours in to that wood before taking the voyage between wood and Castle whispered: 'At Dawn wake and go'
And so the Poet Seer betook to sleep.

xiv.

sweet was the sleep though all around the tempest wild hedged in with trumpeting sound orchestra of cacophony, of country animals orchestra a minstrelsy and in the fading hours fleet of foot many a thought and beauty came to settle in the Poet Seer's tired brain.

xv.

In the Sub-Conscious! what thoughts will not invade the fortress of the open doors as the Sub-Conscious be!
what beauties will not sylph-like fly! Dawn came and hand in hand with it new day alighted our Earth:
crowed in the distance the noisy cocks and barked the first dog in the fields the first birds in the skies, the first animals and men.
The wheel of day had started.
With them the voyage for the Poet Seer Started towards the Castle of Beauty Beckoning.

xvi.

Dawn brings on me new breath to lungs
And fresh oxygen to the brain Alas! that these so momentary be!
Alas! that a few hours trudge Down on such freshness to the last!
So the Poet Seer as a machine That has been charged started on his Way. The tempest had by depth of Night subsided first, then gone.

xvii.

Therefore the country way strait and up Lay drying from the torrents that Had in the night engorged it.
The kind sun returned mud to dust.
The feet of the Poet Seer quickened.
High above with domes of red and hues
As in the Palace Red so graced the same The noble Castle of Beauty that In the relative distance in the haze of Early morning beautiful stood glimmering xviii.

Fleet of foot to the Castle arise let one pace fire yet another pace and as the Castle red and colors near the more the untired legs hasten and fly.
The day was still young.
And soon before the large doors of oak The Poet Seer wandered at the turrets old the wondrous masonry and the windows diverse in style and facade full of image, statue, design - all handmaidens of the beautiful.

xix.

Anon a creaking heard - the main door opens though empty before a marble corridor no hand lies in with a beating heart entered the Poet Seer.
Behind him half way in the corridor
He heard the door close by itself
And he found himself in that castle old.
For in the Castle of Beauty there was a hall for every main branch of Civilization. The Poet-Seer toured all the halls aided by Minerva who appeared to him at the midst of the grand stairs. At the end Minerva leads the Poet Seer to the door of the Castle of Beauty and bades him to give beauty and wisdom to the Earth, for these be inter transformable, and the more inter transformable the greater the Civilization of the Earth. Here the Poem ends.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Cat-Lover

The cat-lover he looked Into the eyes of every Cat he saw

Deep, deep into the eyes He looked And looking deep was Ever-deeper for him
A thirst that be not slaked
A mystery still in the depths
A problem for solution
But still deep.

So the cat-lover
Took it in his habit
And his stride
He took it
His eyes started
To look as the eyes of Cats
Took on that feline stretch Delved deep Deep and deeper Into the brain
From cat-lover Transformed
To cat-man

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Cavalcade Of Night

The cavalcade of night
The horses glitter bright Of clanking metals made And metal armors light.

Ahi! The cavalcade of day Too weary is,
Too repeating, too Unimaginative
As by Genius willed.

Better then transpose
The cavalcade of night
Unto and into that
Of day:
Then light will too
In after-dawn and after The beginning of new day
Have found its way.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Cedars Are Silent

The cedars are silent
The nightingales
Have flown
Their boughs
Gone
Elsewhere to sing
But
Even so
Silence sings sweeter
Now.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Cemetery

The cemetery
The place of bones
A million?
More millions?

How are the bones Fragmented?

Is a fragmented bone Counting
More than one bone?

Do all sit still
At night
To here story-telling
By the Spirits?

Here,
Here my Monsignor Touch this dim lid of stone
And now
That midnight be
Not far
You will hear Throbbing as blood
The lids of tombs
Look
Look after you

And
You will see Grey shadows
Rat colored Speeding fast
Their grey dark Replicating on the walls
That seep the sacred Waters from the Graves and tombs
That ventures out at night.
Come
Come my Monsignor Before the clock hands of
Time
Race before Dawn!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Cemetery Silence Manifested

The cemetery silence manifested
How human work evaporated Like as the night-mists at the Touch of Dawn riding the Sea.

Compare, compare, my friend Life and humans toiling, toiling, And then retrace to the lone Cemetery and see the silence.

You hear the yew rustle little And startle – so high
The silence in those places sacred Quiet and mute it lie.

The silence you can hear too
If sound be heard in silence And silence be as a sound That round you goes around.

Earth with fruits abounds
Now that the Spring’s begun:
Yet silence in the cemeteries Far, by far Spring’s reign will outrun.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Censer Moves

alone
there be no human hands
and it be mid-night

sudden the monastery and church aisles alight
so suddenly
and it be midnight

the censer moves
the censer moves
alone
there be no human hands
and it be mid-night

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Centuries Go

The centuries go
The centuries steal
Each day the bells
Peal

But all
All slip
As fast as grains of sand Between Fingers of hands

The centuries go
The centuries steal
Each day the bells
Peal

Emmanuel George Cefai
The centuries pass
The centuries pass, my friend,
And the injustices and Deeds that stink
Into the Lethe of the wines
Of centuries
Buried be:
So all be level
And Justice rises
To the face of the waters of the Night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Chemistry Of Hills That Suave

The chemistry of hills that suave scent of burnt mists; incense to
the heavens above;
Olympus old transformed in to just Faith; same as mass to energy transformed; or as the symbol to which transformed be verse then be re-transformed again and then back cyclical:
now that I saw your greening face I understand the chemistry of your emotions then; I am tempted to mutate that is to make (bio) chemical combinations occur: progress that otherwise would not but for my hands but for my brain
but for my will:
and there in that series of transformation that I get my Inner Soul rejoices from its dread
the chemistry of hills that suave
scent of burnt mists; incense to
the heavens above;
Olympus old transformed in to just Faith; same as mass to energy

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Chest

‘the chest of funds’

‘the eyes are hollow,
The hollow eyes’

I will but sleep again.
For winter has introduced Itself
So harshly again’

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Children

The children were In the sperm
But not one Ever came To ruddy flesh and blood Though millions marched
The children remained
Ghosts
Took not bones nor Skeleton
Nor flesh
Nor skin
Nor cried
To gladden with that cry
A father’s heart
No, that heart
Remained as now
A lacerated heart
Laceration with every month
Or so
One after the other
Laceration on laceration
Made

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Chord Of Relations

The chord of relations
I heard creak
to-night
my dear

In to the dark my eyes ferreted
the night light the shadows on the walls the silence of the night stopped the creaking the tossing at the chord of our relations morn early discovered to our eyes

the beauties and serenities of new Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Church By The Sea

By the sea
the church was annoyed with crowds that thronged in its environs.

as was used
after the vesper all went to sleep fell dreaming from the crypts up to the domes.

that was so many days
before albeit in summer and more days to come though many in the face of storms.

And
almost cried the church almost almost

Till
the festivities ended and the small rest of night the church slept and dreamt:
and did so well past dawn well into the day it did:
and next day
was as the days before.
Before the quiet church then stretched the silent sea
and all the sea tales of its centuries

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Church By The Sea II

The church
In the sea reflected See it moves
Continually!
On the bosom of The sea
Even
The church lamps
Light and glitter
Moving
Moving
Continually:
Ah! cunning vision!
Cunning reflection!
Restless
Restless
As the crowds
Of humans
Us, humans
Moving
Moving
With direction?
Moving
Moving
Moving
Restless
Restless

Emmanuel George Cefai
The City

In the city
the Gothic buildings crumble to beauty.

the street half wet half dry bicycles and trams pass

neon lights are on and red dusk blushes
in the countryside.[

Emmanuel George Cefai
The City Sleeps

The city sleeps; but the light laze
On
The streets are still save for The occasional passing Vehicle.

The waters dance
Fount silent
In the night
Disappears in the dawn
When the nocturnal shrieks
Of the grasshoppers cease
And crickets amorous.

The nightingales
Ah! they sung long ago
At the rim of dusk and of Night:
But now command still
Silence,

The waters dance
Fount silent
In the night
Disappears in the dawn
When the nocturnal shrieks
Of the grasshoppers cease
And crickets amorous.

Zeus opened a window
In his palace:
Saw below
The night
The sleeping Earth
The lazy lights
And yawned and Closed the window.

The waters dance
Fount silent
In the night
Disappears in the dawn
When the nocturnal shrieks
Of the grasshoppers cease
And crickets amorous.

Casual lines
Not melodramatic
Nor overtly romantic Not particularly flowing
Yet
Set piece after set piece
Of wine and beauty
Yes!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Civilization In The Verses

The civilization in the verses that in the last few years rang from my chant and writing is not the civilization that we live, we humans, in the sunlight glorious with diadems of a proud peacock day, that bruises.
but a civilization of graves and tombs, and fading, and rattling skeletons, and ghosts and shrouds, and all that reads from my verses a civilization of Fading full antithesis of Rising high:
ah! the reference frame of things must not of Fading or of Rising be but of both mixed, alternately:
and in this followed be the mass universe.
Till then the reference frame be so fatigued with alternation that an Immortality and Rising ever-continually It will dream and will wish and execute.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Civilization Of Our People

The Civilization of our people
From long ago
From centuries
That pained
The Soul of Suffering.

The suffering was of May
And
The suffering was of Before
But
Now the suffering greater is Greater will be
In June, in June today.

But If there be More Production
In to the throes of Civilization
Then
Let the Snows of Suffering Mourn not
The funereal pain
The images of the cemetery
The cemetery trees
The scream in the night
The rosary of lamenting
Of ghosts and shrouds
Stately walking
Suffering

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Civilization Of The Cemetery

The civilization of the cemetery
There be so many cemeteries And that be the civilization of Them all.

I for that civilization yearn After being somewhat in the Civilization of the light.

For so many yearn for alternative After the experience of a thing:
I was in light, suffered from The civilization of the light Disappointed, depart.
And so yearn I for
The civilization of the cemetery.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The clip
Of doom advancing
A trail
White and jet-like Lag of Time And Motion
But not stoppage
No,
Not stoppage.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Clock Hands Go Round And Round

The clock hands go round and round
And round
There is just silence and distant be
All sound

The heavens frown yet what avails it?
The Earth in the mire trudges on And so continues as it has done on.

The clock hands go round and round
And round
There is just silence and distant be
All sound

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Clock Is Fast Turning

The Clock
Is Fast
Turning
Its Hands
The Day
Now Fades Sadness Increases Despair
More
And
The Eyes
Pine
At Such Sad
Beauty
How Cannot Eyes
Pine?

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Clock Stops

If the clock stops
then think again:
Of all that remains take the vital do that then let
the rest do for you

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Cloud Of Rain Dews That Last Night Shed

The cloud of rain dews that last night shed
Is falling Falling still
On the soils houses fields and seas and Oceans Lulled in the arms of a cross Dawn.

Few Verses write I
But I chant the poesy Lull the Dawn from her cross face and Bring a beaming small in place.

So
The day will go, its usual routine,
With a Dawn less cross
Awhile
Decreasing quite but still
The cloud of rain dews that last night shed
Is falling Falling still
On the soils houses fields and seas and Oceans
Lulled in the arms of a cross Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Clown

The clown in the circus
He leaps
And they laugh

His nose red And joyful Bouncing legs
And attire

Yet inside
Weeps
Weeps
All his life
His total solitude Despite
The laughs
The claps of the crowd
He weeps
He weeps
Inside
Inside the heart
Inside the curtains
Entering from show

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Coasts Long And Line-Stretching

The coasts long and line-stretching the waters immense with the undulations
propense to flattening the wide long line of the arm of the Bay of Vastness
here here in Patagonia waters dance the night and horses wild before
dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Cocks By Mid-Night Called.

The cocks by mid-night
Called.

The moon smiled woken
Up.

The dusty farm roads
Smiled.

Farmhouses set alight by
Ghosts and shrouds.

And the cocks crowed light,
Cocks, shrouds and ghosts, Crowing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Cocks Crowing

The cocks crowing - the land smiling
The country whitening - the heavens lighting This be the dawn by Monsignor.

For me the cocks will crow
When I have completed these verses.

And the land will smile simultaneously
With the smiles in my heart.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Cold I Feel Across

The cold I feel across
My hands
But the cold that Bites most
Is the cold in my Soul
The inner depths
The horrid cold Close eyes
An ending.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Cold Winds Are As Of Mist

The cold winds are as of mist
That floats.

The waters are as of red
That floats.

The night issues its stars and moon
That float.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Constant Whirr

The constant whirr
Of the wings of bats
And cries and Screams
Uttered at will

I
with every cry and scream arise me in to the chill of fear with every scream and cry and near whirr of wings

You, my Monsignor,
you should not ever underrate what Age does till mitigated by superior human intelligence:
till then submit we to its havoc uncontrolled all that we build with smile impish on
face
pleasure it takes demolishing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Cranes Were Tall And Croaked Parched As

The cranes were tall and croaked parched as angry birds; the heavens leaden turned their faces at time red as in the dusk in to which the torrid helmet-men delved.

there rested the old landlords, the ancient over-coats musty smelled, yet there were they and there they remained: there were occasional screams through out lone nights.

and through the streets and lanes of the cemeteries; the trees rose high and overlooked the secret processions of ghosts and shrouds that rose at night

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Creaking Bridge

The Creaking Bridge
It creaks and yearns
But not before
The deep of night.

It makes just sure
That no human hears That no human sees
It woes and tears.

The Creaking Bridge
Is also our life:
We hide so many secrets
And most tears!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Cross By The Chapel

Small the cross by the chapel Spurts its head
From out the surrounding Thorns and Bushes.

Small
Small the cross arises
And soon
It will be buried in the Thorns and bushes.

Ah! a century ago
When the cross was planted
The seeds of thorns and bushes Had not yet fallen on The arid plain around it

You think, you think, my Monsignor!

Then you discover, you discover,
My Monsignor!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Crowing Of The Cocks

The crowing of the cocks
The priest-like white soutane
The tunica kissed by dusk Albeit its lips were Fading as the Day.

In
Vacuum
A Human Zoomed
To Fraction
Of
His Size Swam
Restless
And Condemned
To
That Shady Container

The twilight waters sang Their own dirge
Under the bastions
They had been Accustomed
To self-sacrifice and self-immolation
The snow creaked
Creaked
For it was rare and Haughty
And
It was not winter.
The Cup Of Myrrh And Suffering

you offer to me:
to drink to the last full to rim
to drink
up to the last of drops bitter, bitter, the torment, martyrdom

and suffering

the dirge plays slowly on the violin

one by one the lights go, dark increases and in the dark that grows my soul, my soul I feel wafting away, away, in the immensity

Emmanuel George Cefai
The cymbals rattled and the bone of the skeleton it was pointed at me the bone half eroded yet pointed

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Dance

And the dance begins
And the dance thrives
And
The dance sings
And
The violins ring
And
The violins play

Light over the skies
It lights
Not of stars
Not of moons
But
Of violins that play
Of violins that play.

And the dance begins
And the dance thrives
And
The dance sings
And
The violins ring
The violins ring
Sweet the violins ring
And
The violins play
The sweet violins play

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Dantesque Dance Began.

The Dantesque dance began.

For it was midnight struck:
so the high bells of Saint John's Cathedral.

Shiver
the trees by the Cathedral's
face.

Shiver
the houses in sub-conscious dream.

Shiver!

Shiver!

In the square before and in front of the Cathedral the Dantesque mantles fly thin taut transparent-grey-dark and the medieval drum plays silent heard by dancers just.

No, not by the houses

No, not by the dreamers.

Hurry
the hours pass
this night.

This night
in Saint John's Square in front of the Cathedral the temperatures rose suddenly Post-midnight.
The Dappled Apples Willed To Be

The dappled apples willed to be Different from others; a goddess Saw their sighs and heard Their moans
Granted their wish Desire turned to burning Executive fire:
And smiled the goddess smiling
She tiptoed Back to the Olympian sites and Heavens great.

Emmanuel George Cefai
universe by symbol my first sally in metaphysics begins with the doctrine of symbols:
ah! in that we see as is,
but for delight and aesthesis we transform as our power be and that transformation symbol called.
Then back again like to a spring rewound and wound
the transformations goes and back again
all cyclical and all continuing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Dark Night Will Not Speak, In Vain, In Vain

The dark night will not speak, in vain in vain
My prayer to the silent stars
The silent stars hand-maidens of the night
And favored courtiers by his airy throne:
The dark night will not speak
The dark will not tell what in its womb In dark and shady satin full concealed With prudent folds unto the curious eye Lies. Perhaps new stars begot
When the first dews of morn refreshed
The green where Night made love and lay Where the engendering occurred and the seed fell?
Perhaps a race more fairer than marble white Or warmer than the delicacies of ebony?
I do not know.
The skies as silent as the stars remain
And will not their secret non-conceal.
Alone, alone I paced the welcome avenues Amidst the trees that rustled not in Hastings
The Gardens that rude bastions overhang
And many a tale their trees could tell and yet speak not:
Vain hope I had of coaxing some night star
To speak; or else some welcome tree a recent friend
What the night-stars had told it to reveal:
Vain hope! The trees spoke not nor rustled.
And the night into its long, long obliquy Without a word, without a syllable continued.
Below the bastioned fortress the sea-waves Silent with tiptoed rustlings to the shore In language I knew not spoke to the rocks.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Dawn Arose Today

The dawn arose today
but better than the night
last night
stood longer and longer

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Dawn Clothes Its Nakedness

The dawn clothes its nakedness
In to a veil transparent of light blue Wherein its limbs move and her steps Uplift her heaving breasts in veils half—hid.

The grasses green smile with full drops of dew That litter the small leaves so randomly Hid from the bustle and humdrum of day Hid from curiosity and the human eye.

But then in mid-day strong feet came and raw And crushed the small leaves in the grasses green
The dew drops fell to ground – the crushed leaves wept.

And high above the glorious Sun pitied and saw.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Dawn Is Smoking

The Dawn is resting

Keep out the flying lark
The bush blossoming
Birds
Out of the equation.

Just lie down in the grass.

Before you Wonder of another
Day
Another
Morning

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Dawn Is Wide Today

The dawn is wide today
The dawn is open-eyed
The dawn is a lark singing
The dawn is a lark leaping The dawn a pebbly shore
The dawn foot print of Venus in the sand
The dawn the bay hills that light
The dawn the stars that fell from night
The dawn the fleeing moon
The dawn the new breath
The dawn the new wind
The dawn the eyes new washed
The dawn liquid divine
The dawn the sacred verse
The dawn the sacred chant
The dawn the wide today
The dawn is open eyed
The dawn lark leaping, singing.
The dawn break from the sad malady.
The dawn Doctor of a groaning Earth.[

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Dawn Too At The Last

grew weary so weary of coming so fresh
so one Dawn
one day
she came all frowning and the beauty of Earth so awaiting was drowning

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Dawn We Wait

Where be the sun
That went ago,
The Dawn we wait
To bring light
Again
Where be Where be?
The day is done
And eyes are closed
The Poet Seer sleeps
And dreams
By him
The lyre stands

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Dawn-Inspired Seas

The Dawn-inspired seas
the wanton waked breeze the lark in the tall sky the trees on the hill's high the cliff that looks the sea as giddying as free in this short ditty came ghosts, shrouds without a name for in their present state they forwent their names of late:
the chapel opens its doors the philosopher utters his lore and in this little ditty rare martens sing all merry.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Day Comes

The day comes
The day passes
The night comes
The night passes
The dawn comes
The dawn passes
Then the day comes
And the day passes
And sunset comes
And passes
And red dusk comes And red dusk passes
And stars light night
That comes and passes
And so the cycle:
And after cycle Another cycle
One comes, then passes
All come, all pass.
So be.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Day Has Come, Just One Day More

the day after this day, next mid-day and then there will be earthquake of the old habits and adventures

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Day Is Come

The day is come
From
The Silence
Of These Sad Walls
There
Will Arise Sadder
Walls
Much Sadder
Walls
There
Will Rise Energy
From
The Ashes
From
The
Head Severed by the Cruel
Guillotine

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Day Is Near, The Day Is Near

The day is near, the day is near
You will veil your sad face Your eyes will shed a tear
With you the trees That rise in Hastings Gardens will Mourn all silently without a word
The sea below will watch inconstantly.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Days Come

The days come come to fade

come to melt come to weep

and to regret

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Dews Of The Night

The dews of the night
cut like a knife
before
the beauty of the dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Diaper Hairs Of The Eyes Of

the buffoon trembled trembled loud and constantly:
and the earth trembled too vibrated through its entrails
and the vulcan fires ejaculating beneath
a world of passions wild and wild desires

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Dim Pyramid

Over
The dim pyramid
With twilight background
A humdrum of bees Humming grows And flies and Saunters:
In
The convent
The monks
Were chanting verse
And Singing sacred song

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Dire

The dire was roaming
The dire was hovering
In the airs
Over the marsh
To where the zigzagging Farm road meandered Right unto the edge of The chalk cliffs
Low to the sea lapping.

The dire had a blank look
In the sunset.

In the dusk the dire
Had a face of hunger
More than the faces
Of hungry wolves
Benighted roaming.
More.
More than.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The donkey went round the water-mill in her sub-conscious reveries
round and round

A Poet Seer passed by and wished to be in the sub-conscious of the donkey

The Muse passed by and changed the Poet Seer into a sub conscious donkey

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Dreamy Stars

The dreamy stars
ah! the dreamy stars what be their plight
to-night!
so low they burn so low
their fires chastened by dark thoughts fear
dread and more:
for dark thoughts fear
dread and more cloud and disenhearten
even triumphant Dawn avoids them on her way battles them then with all her guns sweeping them away at last a little.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Drear

The drear
the cemetery
the shrouds that roam

the drear
the cemetery
the ghosts that moan

the drear
the cemetery
processions at night

the drear
hood shrouds Gregorian chants by starlight and in dark nights

and in dark nights
chants of howls, desperate howls

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Dried Leaves

The dried leaves
Sere and yellow
Then the red axe
Red
In the brown humid Soil
The fireworks of
The white stars
White stars of an Enraged night
Gobbling waters
Gulping in the sun
Lark of the dawn
White tailed horse
Fleeing
By the lone chapel
In the burning countryside
At night
At night

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Drops Of Rain That –

The drops of rain that – They play on the window-sills Filter in between old stones Old roofs
And leave dilapidated houses.

To the dry soils
They are the saviors and With open mouths Parched and tired
The flowers and the trees and Woods Await Enjoy drop after drop Gorging their appetite.

The night covers all
With a silk mantle
Always –
Irrespective of seasons Weather time and Circumstance.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Dull

The dull and rote of each work-day
the dull and rote stretched long along the way dozing.

sweet afternoon
of summer's heat
the boon
and resting-shade.

down the glade
the hidden animals in the green doze.

no human feet came to trample in the afternoon.

a distant church bell rang
sad out of cloud.

The town by the sparkling water sleeps.

The moon on the wavelets silver dances, tiptoes
lamenting.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Dusk Defeated

Close your eyes day
The vesper's done
The dusk defeated
Runs panting Till it finds
Its hiding cave.

Close your eyes
You will do that Yourself
Waning yourself
That has so long being Waning.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Dusk Slipped

The dusk slipped
from the bastions
from the twilight on the seas of which it was
the genesis:
ah! pursuing beauty
but not catching her!
the unwitting dusk left as usual as all days his weak throne for the iron fist of night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Earth Is Full Of Sap

The Earth is full of sap
as mother with milk in breasts but the sick child is waning and the birth joy is fading
fading
fading

there is a play that was acted and now is over.

the distances from Saint Anne's Way they grow and grow and stop not ever
to grow:
the universe's just extending Hubble is smiling.

whirl the film the filmy-eyed the half asleep be half awake the Earth top around be humming and in the backlash of the crowds of wave on wave the cowing flights are brimming
the night
I saw it go down the fast glade where trees in the small wood coppice by coppice
they were clustering for it was frosty-chill and mists of snow flakes
white all circled round from the nether valley.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Earth, The Land

the earth
the land
silent intrepid in its
fear

breather of mists cry of the wise
owl beating of wings of amorous
nightingales
instead of plaining

the wind is singing a nocturnal suicide
the trees together hit and pendulum-like here and there go

Time speaks through the chimes and bells of cathedral and the churches

the earth
the land
silent
intrepid in its
fear

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Easter Bells

The Easter bells
are singing
the Easter bells are ringing for coming be their time but you
you Poet Seer of suffering sits lone and parched not a word uttering

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Echoes Plained

Too late, too late
Too late
The echoes plained
The echoes Warned
Too late, too late

Then rose he
And erect
He stood
And thought
And thought.

'But, ' said he
'All has a remedy
if only with sacrifice.
I will make sacrifice
And get a remedy, '
And so
He made
And so
It was not ever Too late, too late
Too late
Too late, too late
Too late.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Echoes Rattle

The Echoes rattle
And
The Echoes sing
With
The orchestra of green Goblins
For it be night
To-night
A rare night of spell
Of life under the canopy
Of mirth and wine
And the moon's light
And Fire re-discovered
In that night

Emmanuel George Cefai
The End – The End -

The end - the end -
The breaking of the chains –
The rifting of the valleys - Clamor and clangor as the earth Divides and jaws of rocks Yawn horrid for kilometers-
The earth is bursting—
The earth is cracking hideously—
Is it Dies irae?
Is it Dies illa?
Is it Judgment Day?

Emmanuel George Cefai
The End Comes

I thirst

The end comes

The angles come round
A triangle
In the heavens
At long last!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Evening Wafts The Scent That In The Air

The evening wafts the scent that in the air
Has been since the red dusk riding.

The sunset orange and crestfallen has Swept its way and gone in hiding.

The towns and cities by the Port prepare To pass a night of sleeping-dreaming.

And on the waters the moon and the Dreams subconscious are reflecting.

Till night remains. The curtain rises and The Dawn comes smiling.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The evening walls add dreary sadness Too, though the red dusk begun enough.

The thin twilight irks the moon’s light
And the moon waits for twilight to go

Restless shadows, restless ghost, Restless shrouds, restless, restless.

Even the ancient walls of ancient houses Restless tremble. Asphalt roads vibrate.

And there be an undercurrent in the waves
And there be bat cries commencing fast.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Examination Of A Life

I looked inwards
Pounded by the bombardment Of regrets
Of lost opportunities Decisions I would turn
Like the clock hands
But ah! they be not clock hands
So many
So many!
A paltry life
Towards the end
Fallen
From the summit of glory
Yes,
Fallen

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Eyes Of A Snake

The eyes of a snake
yet the heart of a clown a red nose and beady snake eyes:
calling from behind the high walls of hills
the eyes of the snake rolling
rolling rolling beady-eyed as the reign of the Night
beginning

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Face Of A Poet Seer

It be the night
The face
Of a Poet Seer
Looks up.

The stars look Down
And weep.

Still
The face
Of the Poet Seer Looks up
Moves not

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Family

The family is going
The family down the way
Of
The extinct
The dinosaurs and those Who at the most
Today
At present with a bone or more Or brain:
Yet
At least the saurian Lasted
Their time Lasted
Their days
To me such barren land Glimmers
Obstinate and perverse
With Resigned extinction

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Farm Land

The farm land
Tonight
Seen the moon
The stars
So close Without effort Kindred and Homely

I envy that land
The farm land
Beauty to her
Is served on a plate
To me Alas! I have To fetch for Beauty.

Looking for Beauty
As yet
Worries me not The Muse comes near
And that be most plus.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Farmer Whistles

The farmer whistles
Low
For
He
Has Gathered
The corn

It be dusk.
Head bent
To The country
Dust
Of Winding Rural Roads
The farmer goes

Behind Him Dogs
And Horses
Drawing carts
And
In the carts the sacks of corn
He gathered then.

That was all.
The rest
Lay
Seeds in the soft Ground
Of soil and hemorrhage
Nocturnal

So I
So I
The Poet Seer,
The philosopher,
The Scientist,
The Mathematician
The Economist
Sociologist Anthropologist
And the Rest
So I
These sacks of Corn
About me
Locked
And carried
On my horses watched by dogs.
For now
Age and tiredness have counted.
Now
Homewards to a welcome hearth Dream.
And
From there Inner Soul that flies
As
Through the casements of The Dawn
Flies up
Into the heavens blue Into new days

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Feast Today

The Feast today
Passed by solemn yet
Funereal
Funereal in my heart Eyes without tears
Funereal
Played the band, the sounds
And it passed by Funereal

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Fees

The fees
the human pays for
verses
I pay too and perhaps more.

My strength was good
but now
now it sags under the weight of pressures strain and stresses.

No, I paid and still the balance gapes.
Resolute and obstinate I will to pay even with my blood
at last
at least.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Field Of Coins

The field of coins
They said
From generation to Generation They pointed
‘The field of coins!’
The generations whirled Blind-fold and drunk Together with the
Centuries.

Flowered the crocus
On the soil
Flowered violets
Rare and sparse
Here and there
With the crocuses

So many dug
So many in many Centuries
No coins below
The soil

Even on the tree boughs They looked
And in the crevices
And hollows of their Corked ageing.

Till a Poet-Seer came
He smiled
Up to the heavens
Looked:
Above the soil he stood
The soil of the field of Coins Looked up Right through the Airspace over the field
The heavens above
And smiled
‘There, ’ pointing to The Heavens the Poet Seer ‘there be the Field of Coins! ’
And smiled.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Fields Cut Clear Square

The fields
Cut clear square Rectangular
With precision to prevent The court:
Yet
To the moon that Precision is troubling
But the moon
Has yet
To stay with it:
The moon did not learn
The bitter lessons from The winter.
Dived
When feeling the rash
Of the night dews
From above her on her Semi-Burning skin.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Fiery Symbol Warms My Heart

yet it is no idol, no golden calf:
for when a society have any golden calf it stales and starts to sink and evolution stop-gapped signifies tired fall off of humanity from the wings of the Gods

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Figure Came

The figure came it gripped by the throat

Fear in me lighted
I heard the cruel laugh

The figure vanished then and left me with Fear

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Figure Of A Priest

The Figure of a Priest
with purple surplice
funereal
wandered in the heavens wandered in the night
borne on sleigh of air and
mists
just
just as Santa Claus on sleigh round Christmas time and
day.

But
now it be not Christmas Day:
 alas! this year Christmas be too far away
and wonders in the night amidst comet starlight
but
now
but
now

the Figure of a Priest
with purple surplice
funereal
wandered in the heavens
wandered in the night
borne
on sleigh of air and mists
just
just
as Santa Claus on sleigh round Christmas time and
day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Figure Soared

From clear heights
Immense
Round and round
Below
High peaks of snow Waters that melting
In streamlets flow
Thoughts sub-dividing And Amoeba-like Multiplying
In Patagonia.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Fire In Our Hearts

The fire in our hearts
As in hearth
It burnt
As in lank chimneys
In the winter storms.

My love
I looked to you Spoke not
You understood.

We did.
We knew.
And Heavens smiled on us
At last
And on the charred Remains
Of years of agony
We smiled too

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Fire That Abounds

The fire that abounds
At times
Rare times
I must seize in my Hands
Thawed as the snow Thaws
Place
Against my heart
Frozen as the snow Freezes
The time is come
The time is come
For the fire that abounds Seize
I

Emmanuel George Cefai
The First Night

The first night, your first
Of nights
You will be here.

It will your new home
The place where sadness Marries silence.

And after the first night
You will not feel cold Any more.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Fist Of Dusk I Saw

The fist of dusk I saw Yet it is red
As the dusk ever
Has been.

Waters flow twilight Giggling slow
And hushed by ancient Bastions.

Round about
The towns and cities stretch
Silent
And rueful.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Flow Of Life

The flow of life
Volcano
Lava
Flowing Flowing Aetna-like
Burning
Red and hideous
And the cloak of night
Dark Red and dark Dark and red
And then
The wide wonders of the rising Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Flowers Were Still With Bent Head

The flowers were still with bent head
Though it was dawning: the flowers Had started bending by the red dusk And in the night they looked Askance at the beauty of the night-stars For they did not want To lose such beauty Keep awake as to Feel on them
The drizzling of night-dews Sweet drizzling
Welcome joy
They deemed superior to the Dawn
So
They were not so much surprised At the new Dawn although Not less glad for it.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Fog To-Night Has Come

The fog to-night has come
Early
Early in the dusk
Before the stars
And night

The fog to-night has paid
A visit to us
Workers of the sea
The fog loves the workers And workers love fogs Consoling fogs at night

From sea to land
All clambering the fogs
One whole family
From night
Till Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Foundation Of The Heavens

Chairman of
The Foundation of the Heavens
Chariot of the torn wheel
And burning axle
The moon was bleeding
But on the face
That looked away from Earth
I Poet Seer of Earth Saw it not

The rushes and the waters Bathed by yew smells Floated slow and by The cemetery walls
Gargling
Where at rare times
Black shadowy rats
Hobbled
The cemetery reasons not
Tonight
But restless raves

The vast hole dug
In the rocks by
For the tombs by Lies silhouette Hiding
From the search light moon
O! this Earth is of tombs And loves their blue-black Colors of the Night
And standing silhouettes.

Bite the waters, bite gurgling
The moon as midnight deepened
Sudden
Became red and started
Falling.

A wolf call stood calling The dun smoke of The tomb-smells stinking Tombs creaking
Lids moving and appalling.

Life here comes
At last.

To save this history De-freeze
The suspension of Immortality.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Fountain In The Night

Arises for star-light In love, for its love Fades in the dawn’s light.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Fragments Of My Poetry

The fragments of my poetry
Mirror the tempests green
The billows black and frothing In my breast.

The fragments of my poetry
Are chromosomes littered randomly But from them the body of poetry Can rise.

The fragments of my poetry
Are like the broken mirror:
That I broke silently -
My heart is broken.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Frost Makes Red Noses

The frost makes red noses and blowing of noses this night of Christmas Eve.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Fugue Of Silence

The fugue
The Fugue of Silence
All it be about Is All in All
For All, To All.

The Night bends knee
Before
The Fugue of Silence
Hears Intently
The Poet Seer chants Erect the great verse.

A lonely band
Of Hedgehogs dressed In livers Lonely violins play
Yet sad
Yet sweet
This Fugue of Silence
That will melt at
Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Fugue Of Us, Ah! It Remains

The fugue of us, ah! it remains so cold!

the fugue arises slow like a morbid
snake

the fugue detaches us from town and crowd and sings its lonely veil of black ordering

no wonder, no wonder, it rises though
slow

feeds on my blood, that was sad blood, the fugue, the morbid fugue, that now ends

what with my father's birth began about ninety years ago for to-day my father, my poor father would be round ninety and with that fugue ends all us, father mother son

the fugue of the extinct, where hope is knifed.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Funeral Is Done

The funeral is done
the coffin laid
the great Ideas thrive
the night will come and cast a lid on all the mourning made: another Dawn will be another day
and then so many other days:
so many other suns will rise so many tears in the woes and joys of humans, of us humanity:
for
the funeral is done
the coffin laid
the great Ideas thrive

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Funeral Is Ended

The funeral is ended
go,
go now to open the books he wrote highlight the New Ideas
and with every highlight his energy from the tomb will light each time every time around you!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Future

a seed
the future many seeds the greatness seed of seed evolution genes abounding
yet from the ancient common ancestors
as yet
they be founded.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Garland To The Ground

The garland to the ground the ivy wand
the scepter of the green fell to the Earth
and there was naked Grecian beauty trembling in the soft chill amongst the trees of the wood shameful stood man and woman

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Gate There's Knocking

At
The Gate There's Knocking There's Sound
Of Grating
The Waters
Let Loose
And Blessed Holy Scents
And Mists Bedazzle
Quiet
Eyes
As Child's Eyes
That
Be Unmoving/

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Gaze Of Day

Tonight
Tonight
The Gaze
Of Day
Was Frozen Pining to the west
In full bloom
Of sadness
Pining
Pining
Pining

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Ghost Bell Rang

The ghost bell rang and out the shrouds and fellow ghosts
appeared from every side:
dark grew the green, leaden
the immense skies,
and it was night, deep night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Ghosts And Shrouds

The ghosts and shrouds
That dance
In to the night
With raw boned skeletons On the chilling sands of The wide beach
You
Will hear the very waves Come and Retreat
Then come again
Then
As sudden brushing Retreat:
Even so
The beat of life
For us
And we all need To peg life and its beat
To the phenomena
As these
The sea that comes
The sea that goes Proportionate and Regular-uniform
All the night
The beat
That must be of this life
The seed and mechanics
Of Immortality

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Ghosts And Shrouds At Random

The ghosts and Shrouds
At random Roamed last night
I saw
Their foot-prints
Of the paces
All
I saw
Without a sound
But in my heart Hammering of life
These
Ghosts and shrouds.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Ghosts Of Yesterday

The ghosts of yesterday
Fly in as larks
In the new Dawn.

Mused the philosopher Sitting on a rock
On the calculations of A so-called turncoat.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Ghosts That Mourn

The ghosts that mourn
the shrouds that swing swing and skeletons that play jazz skeleton that rattle jazz as they go
as they go down and up
up and down the cemetery paths at
night

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Giant Of The Red Eye

The giant of the red eye
he about his cave hovers with the clouds.

to them he talks, for he though once on Earth from caves of Earth to higher caves arose.

And though oft blinding be nocturnal light of stars in the dark moon lit rocks of grey and black from rock to rock he scoured his way:
before as yet another day:
and he
from Heavens begged and prayed
for them
the Earth to spare and save and heal:
a thousand humans achieved not what this new Prometheus in his sad lone life:
yet
in that giant sadness there was the giant heart that bore and stole to us the first Promethean fire that we live.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Glass And The Panes

The glass and the Panes
Broken
On the floor Random and Chance
A small Wind
Winds Through the Chinks and the Gaping holes:
On the floor
Dirty of time
And
blackening ever of
Age:
The broken china in A hundred parts and
More.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Glory And The Brilliance

Well
They were:
But now are not:
Cold marble is my hand
And frost surrounds my brain
And on my hand
I feel the thrust of pain Worse than medical pain
The pain of desert
Solitude.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Glow-Worm In To The Distant Twilight Fades.

The glow-worm in to the distant twilight
Fades.

In the distance red now on now off the lights Of Bighi.

And in deep night the vestments of ghosts
Light.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Glow-Worms

The glow-worms
Of the night
You sleep
With them
Now.

The silent stars
And Quiet moon
You
Pine with them
Now

And Your heart Beats
The Dawn
Its coming Fears Changes Color of its face
In
The last minutes

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Goat Of Gold

The goat of gold
It lived long ago
Said the Bearded Man
Long, long ago

And lived the Bearded Man In the caverns high on the Highest hill
Where he was on par
With the silent clouds
Left Behind him the noisy nether
Earth.

Ah! it was of gold Yet moved Yet breathed Looked Sighed
And fell in love Hated silence Hated noise
Was rarely seen
But
In these areas Mountains lived
The goat of gold.

There lived men
There
Ancient men and Honest men
They had arms
They had quivers
And
They had arrows
Yet None of them
Ever as much as Thought of Touching the goat of gold Let alone harm it.

And Lived long
The goat of gold
And Lived too long and happy
The ancient men and Honest men
Yet None of them
Ever as much as Thought of Touching the goat of gold
Let alone harm it.
‘Short tale, short tale,’
Said the Bearded Man
‘but much to learn
But much to learn’
And ended

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Goblin Of Mysteries

The goblin of mysteries that dwells so nearby that dwells so inland
here
ah! I hear him ah! I feel him yet I catch not him!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Gods -

to mention as a symbol,
not necessarily adore,
adore your faith, but shun the allure of the gold calf.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Graces upon a hill high and green Met all unseen and unespied Save by the welcome smiles of Jovian gods Dawn had passed by just little awhile Her footprints upon the naked grass witness’d A freshness that twinkled midst the greenish dews

The clouds below in congregation quiet Still in their Morphean slumber rolled For them the Dawn was unespied And still of night and stars they dreamed And ghosts and lights and thunder-claps And lighting houses and charnels and horrors wild.

And when they danced the Graces in their glee

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Grape Yards

o! the grape yards and the vines
scent

the waters rumble small streams grumble
slowly, slowly, slowly

and
the Rhine flows, flows, flows in the night

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Grave

The grave
The school,
Damp soil,
The tomb.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Gruesome Orchestra

Ah! The gruesome orchestra How gruesome, how ancient How slow, how mechanical:
How diverse its players!
A Hedgehog, a Toad And Lizard
Played.

Played the violin the Hedgehog
Played
The harp the Toad
Played
The strings and chords
The Lizard

And once begun it played
And played
And played
That gruesome orchestra.
And red dusk came
And then the stars
Were lighted by the night That ushered them on his Car, wheeled car
Yet
Still
Still played the gruesome orchestra
And the moon smiled

But ah! for the gruesome orchestra
The heavens littered were With clouds that darker Than the night Loomed
Dense and charged
How dense and charged Those clouds that frowned!
And soon
The first thunder clap
The lightning over the high rocks
The cliff of rock
The forked tongue to the sea

And yet
Yet played the gruesome Orchestra
Undeterred, unafraid,
It played and played
And played
That gruesome orchestra.

And how fell the rains
And thunder after thunder Clap Increased and lightning
More dense grew:
The more rain fell
The more it fell
The more thunder it grew
The more lightning it grew
And yet
And yet
There played unceasing
Played
Drenched and lighted
The gruesome orchestra.

How the thunder light
Lit
The faces pale of
The players of the Gruesome orchestra!
How dripped they from Head to toe!
And shone their eyes
Besmirched with rain
And frost and mist
Of cold
In that time cold
And frost
The gruesome orchestra!

And yet it played
And played

And the night passed Hour after hour
It passed
The time and played
As yet
The gruesome orchestra!
How the thunder light
Lit
The faces pale of
The players of the Gruesome orchestra!
How dripped they from Head to toe!
And shone their eyes
Besmirched with rain
And frost and mist
Of cold
In that time cold
And frost
The gruesome orchestra!
And yet it played
And played
The rains more dense More wild the winds Let loose by Zephyr aged:
Then midnight struck
And after that One o’clock – more and Mire hour after Hour
The Palace Moor in the clock Struck
Hour after hour
But ah! in old Valletta struck!
Yet here too Time
Hour after hour
Hour by hour
Passed.
So life,
So life,
My Monsignor, so life.

But ah! Time Cruel Time!
At last the hours grew
The tempest green in Face became as white
And
With Fear thrilled and Trembled full
And more and more
As the Time passed
As hour after hour
Struck
The tempest less and less
It grew
Yet played the same
The gruesome orchestra!

We, too,
We too
In life
Still play
When year after Year Steal by:
We heed not
We notice not And play
As did
The Gruesome Orchestra!
But ah! if stubborn be
The Gruesome Orchestra
Time more stubborn be More relentless shines

Ah! Dawn will come Soon come
The hours passed
Have passed
One after one Yet slipped away
And though
Stubborn and fear less There played
The Gruesome Orchestra
It did not stay Much less turn back
The hands of Time!
Struck Fate’s great clock
Hour after hour
Accomplice of the Time And ages come and yet
To come!
Relentless, clinical,
Time passed its way
With scythe in hand
It did its work
And more it did
The more relentless grew
And more
And more Blood thirsty grew

Yet played
Now faint now slow
The aged
The ancient Gruesome
Orchestra!
Still the Will’s flame Still lingered on
In mirror of Immortality:
For there it be
And to it must transform:
Till
Science and Knowledge stop This transformation to Psyche’
Where change things and
Yet Remain just the same Transformed:
Where Immortality as lost
In the weather and storm
Yet
Still transformed the last of laughs
It has Though Time relentless be!

Then Came the time when Slow
Slow Slower
The Gruesome Orchestra it
Played:
Already gray the skies were Turned
From the night dark and black:
And thin air faded
As soon as it had come Transformed not lost
Not there, yet there All still Transformed
The Gruesome Orchestra!

The winds at last They ceased
The rains the Heavy rains
And Downpours ceased
The winds they bated Bit by it
And bit by bit
The tempest fell apart!
Ah! transformation was At work:
But once begun – for Long all long At work it was Silent at first Then bolder transformation Grew
And more and more
And more and more
The Transformation grew!

Black had the night
All been How had the tempests
Roared
How swelled Ocean and
Sea!
How wild the winds
Let loose by Zephyr old!
How ravaged ships and Vessels
The tempest green
How many towns
Under the strokes
Of the wild lightning
Thunder
Trembled, shook!
How people from Their dreams in The Sub-Conscious rose
And ghosts and shrouds
How walked the streets
And outside of the towns!
And corpses of the Civilization old
In the new civilization of Future Immortality
The grave door opened Yawned
And corpses by thousands Grew!

Yet played
And played
Its part to full To last
The Gruesome Orchestra:
Till
At the last resistless it Pale grew More pale
More pale
And in proportion faded
Too
The Gruesome Orchestra!

And Dawn at last Smiled on the Earth
The stars went down
And fallen was the Night:
Light, gray of light
Was everywhere
Land.
Ocean, Sea:
And there played not
At last
The Gruesome Orchestra
But
Transformed yes,
It played
But not in Dawn!
The Guillotine

The guillotine
For me
The cut head
Of me
The spirit to
The heavens
Be me!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Hand

The Hand
The Hand that moves over us
The Eye the views always Everywhere and we escape not Play us with us
Humans
Hither and thither like pets Move we Under one form or other Under History and more:
And the Hand
The Hand always Views everywhere and We escape not.
The Hand.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Hands Are Cold.

The hands are cold.
The feet hard frozen.
Yet
the cold is not outside But here – here
In the sore heart and cold!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Hastings Gardens Sleep,

The Hastings Gardens sleep,
the Hastings Gardens dream,
the night exhibits its stars,
the moon ejects its seed of rays, the owl on the bough watchful sits the nightingales cry out and sing the seeds sleep the seeds germinate life be made
the Hastings Gardens sleep,
the Hastings Gardens dream
but I,
any you,
my love
make love
this night of nights
this night

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Hawk Of The Red Eyes

The hawk of the red eyes
It was flying

Not long ago
   And it was dusk
      The red dusk of today

For day was waning
And
The sun had hidden
Herself
Beneath the perspective Of the twilight and The flowers' trembling Haze of violet

For
The hawk of the red eyes
It was flying

Not long ago
   And it was dusk
      The red dusk of today

For day was waning
And
The sun had hidden Herself

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Hawk-Eyed Blood That Trickles Down The Walls

The hawk-eyed blood that trickles down the walls that burn

with passion walls burn - then how flesh burns?

I saw the old primeval archetype in burning

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Head They Severed

The head they severed
after years of suffering years of torture years of pain
then the martyrdom:
yet they could not sever no, not even touch the Ideas!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Heart

A coin
A toss
One face
And
Then Another toss
The
Other face.
The heart.
The brain.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Heart Is Red

The heart is red
And Love has its shrine
In it.

How empty often
Be that shrine of Love
How often!

And instead green hate Malice revenge and their ilk Embroil themselves

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Heath

The heath
The track
See
The track
Goes Unto
The sea
The Ocean
Keep off the moon!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Heavens Are Above

Come
Here
Come
The Heavens
Are Above
We
I
You
My Monsignor
Must Take Off
All
From Our Hands
And Lie
Face Upwards
To These
High
Heavens
Above
Us
Sigh
To Reach Such Heights Sooner
The
More preferred!
You
My Monsignor
I

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Heavens Smile

To-night
the heavens smile

To-night
the heavens silent

To-night
the heavens glow

To-night
the heavens are tomorrow

To-night
the heavens weep

To-night
the heavens laugh

To-night
To-night
the heavens
To-night

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Heavens Surge

The heavens surge
Heavens and seas merge
The dusk flees linear Hoot the coves
And caves
And waters flood the bays Gently
Gently
Tonight is a rare night
My heart speak so Tonight be a rare right

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Heavens Weep

The heavens weep
Today

But high
But high

Below
The feast
The band
The people talk and drink And laugh.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Heavens’ Rage

The rage of the heavens Move into your house
Under
The familiar roof:
The heavens rend
The grounds asunder
The water pour, pour
All through the night
In torrents
The kerbs flow
The water dilungate
Ah! heaven’s rage
And we
We humans
That pricked heaven!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Hedgehog On The Fence

The Hedgehog on the fence
Fat and reclusive
Otherwise
Quiet and still Lover of beauty
Of aesthetics admirer
He waits
The red dusk turn To brazen redder and
See
The day wane in the waters of the Seas and Mother Ocean Thrill
Of beauty treading on The footsteps of another still
That went before
In order chronological.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Hedgehog’s Orchestra

Hedgehogs that the night Prefer
By the advent of mid-dusk Prepare.

Well hidden in Hastings Gardens they
A gruesome orchestra
They play

Slow painful and desperate Low without tears Without a subject, random, Plain the Hedgehogs play

The look of each face
Is sad and resigned.
Yet still continue they
To play and string
The gruesome notes of
The gruesome orchestra.

Moon stops to look
The night stars stare
And still the Hedgehogs play Their gruesome orchestra.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Hedgehog's Funeral

the funeral of the hedgehog stretched over the pyre over the burning fire
and
the squirrel, the mouse, the cat, the dog bearers were amidst a line of other hedgehogs passed:
and it was night for that was the time fixed for the funeral:
and high above stretched still and tall the oaks, the elms, the firs, silent the moon, silent the wild stars, yet all pitying and sad:
away with Dawn, all declination
now,
no looking forth, no freshness needed,
no, no Dawn:
the funeral of the hedgehog
stretched over the pyre
over the burning fire
the night
this night

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Honey Dripping Leaves

The honey dripping leaves Pregnant
With the flavors of Wild, wild thyme Enmeshed in beauty's eyes Imbued with wild thoughts
In the summer spell Amidst the rows of Dawns
That came and went Lighted the days
Removed the curtains of the night
Strutted
Over the stage of the Earth Sank slow yet sure Into the depth of seas in The nocturnal freeze

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Hooded One

the hooded
One
he
was
but
was
the
One
now
in
the cemetery coffin hood
and
in
the night
with crowds
of shrouds
and ghosts
he
too
has
the hood
but
as
all others
the Hood of a Shroud!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Hours Pass

The hours pass
The hours pass, my friend,
And Monsignor
I am resigned
To see
The sands escape my hands

Emmanuel George Cefai
The House Of Shrouds

Sleeps
The House of Shrouds.

And
It be not night
Not night
Yet.

Though it be the dusk
Sleeps
The House of Shrouds.

Hear them pace
Up, down the steps
The landings
All floors
And on the roof
Post-dusk grey shadows Abound.

No words
No syllable in writing
Yet
In between them all Till Dawn
They haunt
A whole haunting civilization.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Houses

Still
Are the houses that
at night
were sleeping cozy cozy
now on Hastings Gardens
looking
they doze lazily.

the currents passed sweet through the wind-air the house replied not no, echoed not too busy
were they dozing in front of Hastings Gardens.

still
are the houses that
at night
were sleeping cozy cozy
now
on Hastings Gardens
looking
they doze lazily

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Houses In To Their Sub-Conscious Deep

The houses in to their sub-conscious deep Emarginated from all daily thought they sleep For so many things sleep and other more For, for long periods they deep hibernate.

Lightning
Went
Up
Over
The Seas
And
It
Was
night

Forget nor night. Nor cold, nor winds that Neigh, nor dripping frost off ever-searing trees Forget not Forget not ever
The houses in to their sub-conscious deep Emarginated from all daily though they sleep For so many things sleep and others more
For, for long periods they deep hibernate.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Hubbub Of Voices

Through
The hubbub of voices
Rising
From everywhere
In the busy Droning of life
The quasi-Babel hubbub
The verses and the
Song
In their very genesis Faded.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Humming Bees Are Gone

Those were of lazy afternoons
Now
Down the glade
Go the first grey nocturnal shades
Their time be come
Their time be come

And as the seconds and the minutes Tick
And then the hours
Their time be more,
More coming.

The ticking of the tragedy aha!
That be for Earth too
And in the coming
But we,
We dazed by the absinthe
Of power glory riches Just laugh
Yet
That does not stop tragedy ticking
No, not tragedy.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Humming Of The Winds

The humming of the winds breaks this sadness
too
yet in the humming there be the first messengers of wrath of tempest night

Emmanuel George Cefai
The I

The I
The I of the emotions

Then the You to you address emotions

Then the Them
I still describe, but then describe emotions

Emmanuel George Cefai
The 'I' And 'You' As In All Verse And Song - Is It Escapable?

The 'I' and 'you' as in all verse and song - is it escapable?

In my verse and song to escape I tried but found imprisonment

And I said: 'That be of the mass universe'

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Images That Change As Light

The images that change as light that appears in the port night on winter nights particularly the light
the Bighi lights the lights that come and go so my Soul, my Inner Soul

comes and goes
comes and goes
to-night

and about me I feel the cold and the chill
to warmth, familiar warmth turn at last

at last!
long the suffering!
long the years!

long the travail!
my mother where be you,
you that warmed my life
before?

the chalice of suffering the chalice of bitterness quaffed I

the chalice of suffering
the chalice of bitterness drank I

the light that changes light the light that changes color be my light!

for in suffering is it not light that one needs?

verse and song that rattle and shift here and there ring as hoarse cymbals hoarse, hoarse, hoarse and as rude in rude words they explicate as they open the red warmth of the kindness that be their heart!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Inner Soul More Noble

More is more
The Inner Soul more noble
Feels
In the realm of beauty upon
Beauty
Hedged:
A dawn of nightly dews Whose eyes shine pearly
In the waking green
A lark
That soars above Pouring its heart
Aloft
More than the beauty of Last night's own nightingales:
Very last night
And
Very last of nightingales
These
These add the noble to more Nobility:
Hope in its iron-clad despair
And lead bound eyes:
Verses that meander not River straight Though branch
The happy streams that Contribute:
River that gathers
The sap of beauty from Tributaries
So beauty works in earth
And on and all of us:
So beauty works building
The Inner Soul
Splendid and bare and raw
And great.
There came last night and
In that night
Beauty tiptoed the bastions
But not alone
For noble and erect and shadow-built Prometheus with a burning fire in hand Walked restless
To and fro great Dante stole silent Amongst
The tall trees singing
The Shade of Homer restless plied
Of Hastings Gardens
The rural pathways uttering
New verses slow and now and then.
In a corner
Where the sweet moon lit
As in a search-light Dainty Shakespeare stood seated Akimbo on rock and sung that night Listened the owls
And they stood stunned in their Beauty reverie
Out of awed respect
The nightingales sang not but Only heard.
With Dawn
These great and noble Shades
Into the scented airs Dissolved fading:
Yet beauty nocturnal no,
Beauty knows not time nor age
But keeps on coming Fresher than before Magic spring of clearest waters made.
And so
So the cycle runs Runs again
Begins
The end beginning is So many places
So many times
That all thrives always Immortal Only transformed as from stage To stage:
And in the dawn and in the
Day
Beauty continued in the sunset
In red dusk Then with the coming of Night's Reign
Had turned full circle:
As it does
Will do.
For More is more
The Inner Soul more noble
Feels
In the realm of beauty upon
Beauty
Hedged

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Inner Soul Scream

I heard
The Soul
The Inner Soul scream

Her scream
Was
As the brakes
Of a car Screeching Brought
To
Sudden halt
And Bleeding.

Ah! in these times
So often my Soul screams
My Inner Soul
That lacerations
Each by each Line the red
Of heart.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Inward Echo

Time goes Time goes
Time goes
The inward echo
Of the inwards Caves and coves
On the twilight lighted Bay of sunset red Night comes Night comes
The Echoes said
And with night Come the stars
The stars

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Irresistible Vocation

The irresistible vocation
That
A certain muse
Has Inflicted on Me
The vocation
To suffer first Chronologically
Then
After wandering
All dusty
And parched
In the dry Country-lanes
I sing
Though
The noon sun
Be blazing.
And when I sing all the Earth rises, sings
And Beauty dances even when night
Comes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Island Let It Be Our Soul

The island let it be our Soul
And then once that established Let us look deep, deep, deep In to the earth and air and heavens
To look our Soul in to the eyes Fathom its depth, feel the island-earth.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Islands That I Dream Of

The islands that I dream of
that is view in the subconscious film of life
these I see moving and dancing in the theater of life
on the stage
on the film curtain

ah! life is a film that goes on and on and we will life to go on

and on and on.

traitor of the conscious the sub-conscious cheekily leap barge to barge as the river flows
the river of life

I can hear the breath of the Spirits
over the waters
giving life and motion irreversible.

vicious is life and beautiful but cheeky as a vixen
too
ah! that's what be propense to make life of life
and life from life.

the islands that I dream of
that is view in the
subconscious film of life
these I see moving and dancing
in the theater of life
on the stage
on the film curtain
the dawn is far now,
far too far that was so near quite some hours ago.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Jousting

The cavaliers with lance
And decked horses Prepare themselves
Closing their eyes
Through armor slits.

The ladies red
And hot Fan themselves
Cool
From their vantage Positions.

Look
Look
At the survival of The fittest
Or of chance and Probability?

Convention reigns.
The wild and Savage winner Wins
The lady’s hand
And
She has to accept
As
A trapped bird Submitting.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Keys Rattled

The keys rattled
Midnight
Opened the cemetery doors Entering
The ghosts and shrouds
All to meet him Raced.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Knife Of Stillness

The knife of stillness
Hurts

The knife of misery
Wounds

The dagger of malice Cuts

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Lady In The Photo-Shoot Sat Back

No, not in the nude, nor In the photo shoot: Yet it exuded all a woman should Though she dressed beauty jumps Forth into the air though chill They took The photo-shoot there high on The hill
Below terrace by terrace slowed Steeping sweetly unto the sea-edge down below.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Lake Of Beauty

The lake of beauty
Ah! how it sings
When the north wind Plays in and out Of caves and coves.
The sky threatening Of storms and tempests Stars in face
White deep turning
A distant rumbling
And
A flash of lightning
And yet
No rain
No gales
No snow
Ah! the lake of beauty
Let me go in it
And below the sweet Waters sink
Into a nether world Free
Of Earth to us:
O such a lake of beauty
It goes not
From my enmeshed eyes
But
Cools the restless Nervousness of life
Soothes dark despairs
A lake of beauty

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Lament Of The Last Penguin

The last - the words tell it!

Moving corpse
I Marching Marching
Marching
In marching order
With bayonet in hand
With skeletal legs
I keep Trudging
Trudging
Trudging

There was music, more Music, profound -
The moment was sacred Look - the last penguin Sacrificed!
No! No!
The beaches will be empty then
The sea will enter hoar and Dreary more than day
The axe of the extinct Dropping blood
I saw raised on high Smiling sardonically Ready to strike:
But then
A Voice
A great Voice
From the heavens
Ordered: Ordered:
'Stop! Cease!'
Awe was everything;
Shrank the Axe of the Extinct
And fell.
And Survived the last Penguin

And
The heavens said:
After this ordeal
Let there be new penguins!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Large Old Iron Doors Opened

The large old iron doors opened A lady from the castle came Attended by her maids and dogs Her face a haggard look proposed And spoke she not a word, not a single word.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Lark

Since when the lark Fluttered kangaroo-like
And sang
And sang?

'From Dawn'

Since when Since when
The stars
The white stars fled?

'Since Dawn'

Since when
The ghosts and shrouds
Left their shadows fade
And now a little red Shines bolstering
The white face of day?

'Since Dawn'

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Last Bell

The last bell
Yet
The saddest bell
Yet
The sweetest bell
Red dusk falling
The bats calling
The seas skimming
The sea-gulls weeping
The last bell
Yet
The saddest bell

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Last Days Of Cool

Sunday.

The few last days
Of cool
Enjoy before The storms and Tempests.

Even so
In life
Passion breeds passion Angst breeds angst Stress breeds stress
And all
Breed ever-rising Temperatures
You see the temperatures
Rising: Ever-breeding
The glass-tube pressed With temperatures
To almost exploding
But now
But now
These temperatures
At rising from the bed
Have lowered in the night Have cooled
Therefore enjoy
Enjoy before
The storms and Tempests.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Last Fight

There must be
The last fight Often
We
In Our youth
Laugh
Say:
'That's far away'

But
Time catches us
As pass
Day after day
And
No longer
So far away
Be the day
At the last
In the last!

And
The fight then Comes
The result
Be always relative
Now
You win relative
Now
You lose relative
Now
You be just bruised
But Whatever be Day after day
The clock irresistible Ticks irreversible
And Arrived we
At the day!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Last Sonata

1

He willed it so, he yearned it so He prayed for it, he suffered for it
The last sonata!

2

He made it last!
He willed it last!
At last!

3

Not much of verse
For a parched throat Had he:
Yet all in all
There was a sweetest melody
A heavenly melody
Under starlight under the dark Midnight sonata!

4

How much suffered he!
Birth was
The beginning of suffering
And
Of tragedy on tragedy:
Heaved the breast in pain
Continually:
Not all the Earth’s wealth
As quiet Needed he!
Only
Only a last sonata!
Venice was before him
And its sad violins
And Stabat Mater
And the band that played
Sad
Whilst the sere leaves
On that chill even flew
Sad
For
They too felt
They too suffered
They too were torn
They too yearned
for
The last Sonata!

Bits of flesh torn
Here and there
A hundred pieces
And more Parts
Cut here and cut there A Hand that struck
A soul that sighed
A bent that fell:
At last!
The last Sonata!

It was the Sun
Yet the sky grew Grew black in face
Day lost all grace
And light slow fades Instead dark grows
And frowning trace
Then suddenly
Three thunder claps
The Earth did rent
First one – a shock!
Then other – soon!
The third – and fear!
The lightning thrilled Screamed the dun skies
‘The Last Sonata! ’

8

No light
No warmth
Just chill
Just frost
A heart beats dim
A brain gets dull
And eyes that fade
The last Sonata!

9

A Poet Seer
On a bed stretched
A Poet Seer
On the dark clouds
His brain is lost Yet not the Soul
That clear wanes
And knows it wanes Grapples the last Grapples to last
All desperate
A Poet Seer
On a bed stretched
The last Sonata!

10

Quick, quick, low
Is the breath!
Low, lower, lower
A thunder bursts
A storm flares up Early night falls
This last Sonata!

11

The body still Moves not
The body stretched
The Poet Seer
They raise him high
The catafalque
The body still
At last found rest
The Poet Seer
In last Sonata!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Last Storm

It be nigh April
And
The last storm Feels Its fading
And
In its Decadence rages
Triple the mode
As in the previous Storms.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Leaden Skies To-Night My Love They Frown

The leaden skies to-night my love they frown
The wind neighs slowly to the frosted panes
The rain thinks it is merciful not to pour:
And all that's lit in our room's the lamp.

How destitute the dome of heaven shines With its bleak mirage night-dreaming Cruel repressive dour and thin and taut
And all that's lit in our room's the lamp.

The seas a strange unwanted silence keep The tree-leaves rustle not as if Struck by some guilt or sudden meteor:
All that's lit in our room's the lamp.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Leaves Have Fallen

The leaves have fallen
The wind neighs
Frost
And thunder rumbles
It be far yet
But soon here.

Sere the leaves are Yellow now wins over The green,
The loser.

And I pace
The last hours
The last days
The last day Withdrawn in my heart
With fear and sad
For the leaves have fallen.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Level Rock Of Pain.

Crucified
On the old hill
Above the open plain
The level rock
Of pain.

The chill
The frost of pain
That a whip wields
Made of dried figs Sere

Crucified
On the old hill
Above the open plain
The level rock
Of pain.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Light Concentrated

The light concentrated in its own circle.

Danced a Mouse in top-hat and white breeches.

And
the audience of the Hedgehogs applauded greeting.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Light That In The Distance I

The light that in the distance I Have seen swift come and go Into the dark night

It comes
It fades-and goes.

It comes
It fades-and goes.

Is it a lighthouse light?
Is it a ghostly light?
Is it the dancing of the ghosts O’er our port
This night, this dark night?

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Lightning Vespers

Dreaded day!
Dreaded lightning
That came!

Gray and common
Were the skies
And there already Shone a night star

Then a frowning cloud Betrayed
The awry moon Hiding behind it.

Yet
From the closed church
When
The people and the farmers
Went
From behind closed Doors
Rang an organ slow Then higher Higher.

And Outside the first lightning Then another
Then more
Then more Frosty the country-side
Drear
Next full of rain
And a half-gale
That blew:
Mourning all in drear
Black
Then gray and common Without A Dawn
Without new day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Lights

the lights
that come and go around put them not off, King Night.

ey they instill fear then they instill joy.

Thoughts I diminished and moved to philosophy.

Thus armed I will enjoy Beauty
more.

All a matter of permutations and combinations.

just that

just that

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Lines One After The Other

The lines one after the other
One below the other
The computer keyboard clicked
Outside
The cold the frost-laden cold How cold these last three months
This new year,
This end of the old year
And still
Still
The lines one after the other
One below the other Like column after column of red soldiers
Fall
Linear and horizontal
One column after one column
Till
Time shouts ‘Stop! ’ and then Strew with red Littered
The white snow

The Long Lens Of The Nocturnal Telescope

The long lens of the nocturnal telescope
the stars at its end tapering

tapering

in a bay at the same time waters were entering and cove to cove cave to water-cave was echoing.

How our thoughts echo!
That way not forget.
That way we speak out the thoughts.
Assert.
Assert!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Long Long-Drawing Waves

The long long-drawing waves
Foaming and gurgling in their wrath
Across the red sands and gold
I want to hear.

This afternoon
Before the dusk enters its full reign This scene before me see I must:
And feel
And feel
The thrill
Of the long, long long-drawing waves Foaming in their wrath and gurgling.

Ah! no chests of gold And topazes and amulets
Will this face-kissing breeze equivalize:
Ah! my body yearns for the salt reign Of Neptune: for the seething sea
For the long long-drawing waves
Foaming and gurgling in their wrath
Across the red sands and gold.

And if I welcome the advent of human company In other days
In other circumstances
Then here will be the exception:
Alone
Alone
The phial of my happiness
Will flow and over-flow to surfeiting:
For the long long-drawing waves
Foam and seethe in their wrath.

The red sun sets and flushed its shameless face.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Long Marsh

ah! the long marsh
the road that wound wound through not asphalted but white it went through and through around, around the lowly marsh
without a sound.
so we we have a life like as unto a marsh it winds round and round in it so many woes
abound
so many prophets rise and who for a time robs the hearts of people then fades
as the dusk fades as sunset fades and a long deep night carries all but burning stars out of all sight.
ah! the long marsh
with bend head sad through it I went my day sad the sparse buildings and sad the heavens frowned with every step, all way:
the sunset sank the red dusk sank and all, all faded day
I walked, I trudged, and it was dark
I walked, I trudged, and it was night I walked, all sad towards a shore that desert as all deserts lay at fading of that day:
with every step my grew sad, more sad and heavy with each step my thirst for the sea to feel sea-waves splattering around me beyond encircling walls of water and of sea and the high Ocean still without a wave to thrill here I got me, here I willed to walk into the waters, so did I,
and now my bones the lowly-deep of the marsh sea holds and my Voice that each night speaks, each night laments and yearns
under stars and fierce light

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Long, Long Night

the long, long night
hides you in its veils
when at the end of dusk your veils fell to the floor:
and since you have been to the sacred shrine wherein the votaries fair labor to transmit life:
what is nobler?

Be cut?
Pieces Viands
On the tables of gods Freedom and liberty Human rights
No laws
And Above all laws Bank of Legal Interest Not just the Wind of Change
But
Crowds gather and grow
Human rights as in ever-increase.
Now
Now
The Crowds shouted
Now
Vox Popoli.
The Individual Human Rights not the Laws.
Just that
Just that, my Monsignor.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Lyre

When the lyre
Feels tired in the night
Where stars be frozen....

Where waters surge Unquiet
With the wraiths Exhausted both
And Sighing

Where eggs float on The seas
Open and spirit-borne
When Enthuse
The Waves
The Float
The Sacred\waters
I heard in Indian Timbrels
In the distance
I heard Wisdom
That I
Had
Not Before
Heard
And Saw Wisdom
Not
Yet Before Seen
And Opening
My

I Dragged
A pre-term Dawn
Through
My

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Magic Wand

Again I found
The magic wand
The verses, sound
Rhythm and all!

The sounds, the joys
Of word and thought
Again I found!

And not afar Sweet Beauty smiled
And stars - they danced
And satyrs pranced
All round
They danced
This
night
Tonight!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Man Of Snow

The Man of Snow
Yes
Man, human, humanity

He lay
Stretched hand stretched long Over a field of snow
In ancient Patagonia.

And Though he moved not
Out and in He breathed.

And
In that vastness of the wild He cared not Nor had the appetite
For any thing.

Ah! that we
We humans be
Be as the Man of Snow
Stretched
Stretched hand stretched long
Over a field of snow
In ancient Patagonia.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Mantle Night

As of The Mantle Night of dawn of the sun rays as of the mantle leaden-clad days tomorrow's Monday.

the night of Sunday had been beautiful

After all was it not farewell to a week that comes not?

Recall not but look straight!

Behold! the future beckons they say

And so it be Prepare: be prepared; goalkeeper of the team that has to keep out the onslaught of the new week.

For every week a new onslaught
be.

Prepare to shed your blood.

And to keep Fear out just close your eyes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Mask That Danced

The mask that danced
alone in the heavens high in the background lights
that come and go
the mask danced glided Time and Motion

hand in hand they hummed
they sang emulating nightingales

in the shore a huge red mask above the fierce stars snarled in their heat and light

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Mask, The Night, The Window

the mask, the night, the window all remember I - how fears grips Me still as did that still night!

Down, down the silent steps I went
And in the balcony high:
The yellow mask appeared:
I looked: and soon - as soon
As it came it disappeared Without a moan, without a word
And now in to the past it lies:

And all remember I - how fear grips Me still as did that night!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Metal City

The metal city
Runs rivers through The clouds
At night
When all be sleeping:
Then
In to the dawn in to the morning Back to earth Feet to ground
The usual chores and Mores
The usual rotes Routines
The Metal City.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Mighty Judge In Toga Sits

To topple empires of wealth To dust and dun.

The people watch astounded
The mighty judge.

The mighty judge is feared.

The mighty judge makes rich
Out of the poor Poor out of the rich (compare me).

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Mirror On The Twilight; Baltic Delight

The mirror on the twilight; Baltic delight flowing towards the warmth of Turkish waters; clay hills that deck with beauty more beauty the blue-clad waters.

plain the waters, not inverted motion linear no, but intermittent ups and downs, yet even in the intermittence beginning with Chance and Probability under the forge of Evolution became inverted S-shaped motion.

for linear be straight and plain and plane, unvaried pronness to uniformity hater of chance and probability inverted be the graph that up and down, goes, of intermittence sign and signpost, ages calmed the initial 'irregularity' into inverted motion harmony.

the mirror on the twilight; Baltic delight
flowing towards the warmth of Turkish waters; clay hills that deck with beauty more beauty the blue-clad waters.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Mist I Love – I Need

The mist I love - I need
The blue mist that rises
From the valleys of guilt Drowsy in their guilty silence:
And in the mist, the blue mist
I feel it go around me like a snake I feel it press yet it bites not And hides me more within its folds Till earth dwindles; there I Am on Earth and yet imprisoned such As out of this earth am I;
And in the sun
Of misty days in winter
I sing a Poet’s song alone.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Mode Of Mourning Varies As

The mode of mourning varies as the course of flight of a winged random butterfly from flower to flower randomly:
So
the mode of mourning the mourning in to December days continues albeit varying

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Months Have Crept.

The months have Crept.

The years have Crept.

Time
Threw I away!

Now
All the ghosts
Of old mistakes Together round
Gather and come
And torment me
A pound of flesh
Is not enough.

My face is pale My face rigid
My eyes grow wide Age flows with tide.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Moon By Slow Degrees

The moon by slow degrees
Came slow to the sea-edge
To the sea-bosom
To the sea-trembling Experience, not dissembling!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Moon How Wan To-Day

The moon how wan to-day
The nightingale how still From her night song
In our garden lies.

The moon speaks not
And mute the lake
Its waters lap not the still shore Nor in the grass doth any motion move.

The rill has stopped to gurgle with the night Motionless the sheep drowse in their fold
And in the grass
Only the glow-worms shine and stay.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Moon The Sun The Stars

Again
Again
The Moon
The Sun
The Stars
The Waters
The Seas
These
Are
Of Mew
These are of me
Only
Only

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Moor On The Tower

The Moor on the tower below a singing bower it be a spell-bound night and stars of towering light Dawn away out of sight the sea-bosom flickering bright with a low heaving pride

Emmanuel George Cefai

The more I aged the more dread gripped.
Not that before
Not that before

But now
Now
Dread grips me by the throat Dread grips me by the hand Dread grips me all Dread grips me

And in the ghastly twilight of a day that declines drear draws slow yet sure the curtain a delirium dark and night

Emmanuel George Cefai
The More To Reach

The more to reach
The more to preach
Human of the world arise!
The time be come!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Morn Is Risen – The Dawn Is Come

The morn is risen – the dawn is come:
Yet with every new dawn
You slap me on the face
And slap again.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Moths Of The Torrid Heavens Were An

The moths of the torrid heavens were an emergency; their nervousness made them impatient severely and the alarm of the day was written in to the face of the uprising tempests.

O! you have to think, meander here and there, touch life from the flesh to the very bone.

the moths of the torrid heavens were an emergency; their nervousness made them impatient severely and the alarm of the day was written in to the face of the uprising tempests.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Music Of The Clouds Cut Off The Drear

but that be relative! on earth all be relative!

the notes fly in to the silent airs the heavens immense where reign sovereign Night and drear

I Poet Seer heard a crowds of naked angels clustering and some the lute played, some the lyre, and some sing.

but drear persisted a black soul with it being.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Music Of The Lines We Never

The music of the lines we never Want to finish: but ah! there be Always a line as in a race.

The winner touches the line first Raised in glory the hands and falls Covered with kisses and laurels.

So Beauty too. She too wins easily But then to be human too, she falls Covered with kisses and laurels too.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The New Culture

Now we have been in it.
Every culture has its main terms.

And this culture has ghost, shroud,
Death, ageing, drear, Subconscious, graves, cemeteries,
Marches, trudging, flambeaux, Silence, night, stars, moon
So many others to make up A list.

Verse is the expression.

Dreaming the reception.

We keep the previous Culture of the Conscious
But adulterate with the New Culture.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Next Activity

The next activity
next next silent through the woods the woods thickening we trudge so far so far as our feet
the thicket greens and prickly grass and thorns allow.
the glass of life as a big wide bubble floats
before our eyes not a mirage
but almost I will to catch it
then
but then it will burst
beyond the thicket woods whose roots into the sands of the nearby wide-extending shores around Earth's globe extend:
kilometer on kilometer thicket on thicket grains
that in the sun's glare melt and go:
so let me
here
on this stranded beach long, long linear and circular simultaneous arms of vast bays
here let me melt as sand on the beach to salt of Earth
and then a posse of Satyrs in next
night
will come and pointing with a magic stick of theirs
Call:
Here he lies,
the melted Poet Seer
the salt of Earth.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night

How eerie-still it looks:
Wherefore that furtive glance?

All hidden in a cloak it is
And robber-like
It turns its glance away.

This night of guilt I must protect From its suicide before the Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Advances Quick.

The night advances quick.
The cocks are sleeping.
The cocks are for day's beginning.

Ah! the Principle of Compensation!
what wakes up early must be propense to lay down early.

The cocks propense to obey the Law of Compensation then by way of a reward or let-off in the first light they spread their crowing in all directions.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night And The Morn A Wager Made

the night and the morn a wager made as to who had more jewels:

but in the morn
the blinding sun-rays conquered the shining jewels:

and in the night
the stars of heaven made the jewels of the night far brighter shine
than those of day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Awaits

The night awaits
the cold and chill pace nervously:
and the Christmas waits birth for this year.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Bethought Itself To Be

The night bethought itself to be A full rejected lover of the languid moon At which a tear it shed, a giant tear That fell down the mantle of the skies Like a clean river burning fresh and raw At which in going down the immense skies
It cooler grew and thawed to a full frost And thus become a star that shines
When the east wind over the gardens blows.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Civilization

The night civilization not The outer shard
Though
Beautiful be the outer shard Beautiful
Beautiful

Yet
More beautiful
Be
The Inner Shard
Of the Sub-conscious.

The whirling wheel that works
Around
Around
And rolls on the brain
In the night dreams
In the night joys
In the night horrors Thoughts, imageries and Tapestries of thoughts,
Verse, discoveries:
Whirling
Whirling
A new civilization
Spirits
Marching withy flambeaux and Torches
To celebrate The glory of the new
Civilization
The Night Civilization.
Then rose high as on a Pyramid
The Night Civilization in a hood
And It spoke ‘Go now, the night be done
The Dawn will soon bring Conscious and woe with it:
Go, go now, but remember
In the night dreams
In the night joys
In the night horrors
Thoughts, imageries and Tapestries of thoughts,
Verse, discoveries:
Go, go now, humans.’

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Got On The Lute

The night got on the lute
And put its fingers on it:
And tried to string it

Faint discordant notes came out.

At which the night
With anger mouth-foaming
More strongly strung the lute More resolute:

And then
And then
A dirge came out In those strange sounds Ghosts and goblins out From their abodes

And danced
And danced
To those strange notes
Of that strange sound:

And the moon light
The white moon light Looked faintly on.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Has Wept

The night has wept
And all its tears
Have fallen into a lake
And now
I see Dawn walking by the marge Sprinkling a diamond for every tear.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night How Does It Yield

The night how does it yield
Its tearful eyes to the pale smiles
Of the white languid moon:

The fertile fields yield flowers to the sun
The owl yieldeth its wild call Unto the echoing glooms of night Tu-whoo! Tu-whit! Tu-whoo!
The nightingale yieldeth its grief Unto the pitying firmament That cloaks with azure black With every dusk our earth below

Now cemeteries open their doors And yield their graves unto the shining night Of the pale autumn moon
A-now the graves yield up their frozen corpses To the night and to the pale and languid moon

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Is Blue

The night is blue
not dark to-night a vast drop of oil
hangs from the heavens
a vast soap-bubble
a vast figure light amidst the heaviness
hanging:
these images
these thoughts are not as of the day
but
as of night
and dreams
when all bodies equal are they sleep
whether king or president or humble worker:
and
the night is blue
not dark
to-night a vast drop of oil
hangs from the heavens
a vast soap-bubble

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Is Calm To-Night

The night is calm to-night
The night speaks not to-night See, see the waves they ply
The darkling seas so slow
To-night.

The night is calm to-night
The seas roar not nor Be the tempest gale and Clanking lamps and Creaking doors and lamps
That clank

No, quiet is the Soul of Night to-night.
The conscience of the night
Swims in the sub-conscious Quiet and innocent:
And the shrouds hand in hand Move with measured steps Transparent half slow wend.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Is Dark

The night
Is Dark
And Now
The Cold Falls
Erect Stand
Up Barriers
And walls.
This night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Is Heavy

The night is heavy Arched and bending
The white stars glow Till a new morrow
And the sea’s resting
In its teasing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Is Loud

The night is loud
The night is loud
But not on wind
The bough move not Nor
The cooled leaves.

But Night
The Earth
Is scolding
For Laws upholding
So much
Over
Individual Sovereign Will

'More Fundamental Human Rights
And Loosen your grip, you Laws.'
So spoke the Night With red and Angry face
The Earth scolding.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Is Not Deep

Slow
Slow
My Monsignor
The Night
Is Not Deep
No
Not
Deep
My Monsignor
Time
Remains
To Taste
Of
The Refrains
Of
The Dancing
Stars
And Waters Flowing Clear
That Whisper
Accomplices
Of Night
The Waters
Whisper
Whisper
Whisper
The Waters Flood
The Sorrows
Flood
The Serpents
Of
The Brain Roam Nibbling
Fear

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Is Sad

The night is sad
Tonight
And plays the Violin
Plays a sad violin Heart broken too
The heavens and the stars Below the Poet Seer!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Is Suffering

The night is suffering Because
Seeing me suffer
It suffers with me too
And I
I with it suffer too

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Is Young, Still Young

The night is young, still young
The anchorite amongst his beady psalms Saith as the dusk red turned to strains Of grey darkening darkening up the hill Like a cool ball of blackness:
All awhile
The youthful sovereign in his fancied car Lit up one by one the dizzy stars Looking on our earth, of all of us:
High stood the crag against the dusk
And all its jutting lineaments In their proportion huge all hideous stood:
But the sweet veil of night by slow degrees Hath covered its hideousness unwarily
And with its balmy hands has filmed my eyes
And with its murmurings soft like summer bees Has numbed my worries: Morpheus Awaits at the next gate but I will fall Before I need him: these sweet murmurings Are those of paradise above, and music soft As of the spheres azure floats all around:
I am transported, I am moved above Where the planets rotate in silent rounds About them their vast seas and oceans large:
Glimmer in the lightning of the skies
With their blue radiance now turning to green Then to an orange red, then dusky red:
Then in the distance rotating Massing their hues in one white radiant veil
As if the ghosts have taken to the roads Where planets rotate in their silent rounds:
The night is young, still young Yet I feel drowsy in its potions wild Hills now yield before my feet
That in the day looked high and heavy and tall
My feet no longer weary are, my eyes are closed And yet I see more than when they open I see:
The air resistless lies; and in its rarity
There is a sound of peace of the blue deep Moving around as where Planets rotate in their silent rounds And glimmer
With their blue radiance turning now to green
Then to an orange red, then dusky red,
Then in the distance rotating
Massing their hues in one white radiant veil
The night is young, the night is young Saith the anchorite amidst his beady psalms.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night It Hurts When It Should Be So Beautiful.

The night it hurts when it should be So beautiful.

And beautiful the stars, the quiet immense,
Below the Ocean immense.

Yet there is a restlessness that grows, a Heart that with injustice breaks.

There be a heart that with pains Overflows.

There be a heart that cries and cannot Cry.

Below, see, the damp stones below
My mother lies.

She sleeps, she dreams, to-night.

And quiet the trees of the cemetery Tall sentinels of sadness stand.

Alight, alight, on wings of magic bright
One by one the sickly stars to-night.

The night it hurts when it should be So beautiful.

And beautiful the stars, the quiet immense,
Below the Ocean immense.

Yet there is a restlessness that grows, a
Heart that with injustice breaks.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Moths Hummed

The night moths hummed and Wildly sailed
In to the light of the Cranking lamp-posts:
The vacuum cleaner of the Subdued laments
Of ghosts and shrouds
Nocturnal.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Of Being Called Early

The night of being called early complained complained to the red dusk

Yet dusk, red dusk said:
'I that have yielded part of my short reign to you; you should be thankful for it to me too.'

then Night replied:
'my reign is long anyway and to summon me so early in the day is a rude waking to me always'

At which the dusk redder grew than poppies drenched with blood in Flanders fields.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Sighs

How
The night sighs
To-night
Sweet lover
What your Love?
Through the gratings
Of the Inner Soul's
High windows azure
Still
The heavens shine
Though it be dark
A curtain dark Dotted of white
Stars

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Soon Fell

The night soon fell
The stars soon shone Black draped the chilly air:
And many a day
And many a night I waited Till time did come That I no longer waited And now the cool blue sea Holds my white bones
By centuries large eroded:
And ah! Ah! How chill I lie Here now down under But most of all that worries me
The chill my soul is feeling:
And days are past
And months are past
And centuries are stealing:
And here I will surely lie In agonizing waiting".

Thus ceased the Voice.
I stood and feared Yet did not move:
There was some thing
Which rooted me unmoving:
Was it the voice?
Was it its sound?
Or was it story telling?

I do not know.
I do not know.
Yet I do know
That long remained
I on the plain all gazing
The sun had set
And birds had slept
The night was fast falling:
The sea was still Without a wave
And night was fast falling.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night The Wind Neighed

Through
The Night
The Wind Neighed
How
The Wind Neighed
How Broken
Its Heart!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night This Night

The Night
This Night
Be Breezy
But
It
Be
Not
Chill
Nor On the Seas Float
The magic clouds
Of Frost
To
Be Dispelled by Dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Tiptoes For

it wills not to be heard.

though in the cemetery
a violin plays sad.

now
in the distance further further
went.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Walked In Its Tunica

the night walked in its tunica dark black funereal staid like an exiled king by sorrow spent

the night walked in its tunica
over Hastings Gardens:
still the trees without a rustle stood.

The night in its tunica walked
They saw it on the bastions at mid-night Tiptoeing helter-skelter directionless And sneaking thief-like. At Dawn They found its suicide, poor thing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Was Bleak And Mute And Dark.

The night was bleak and mute and dark.
The Moon was dim white but The blackness of its frowning Put off the little white.

I like the Night though I fear it.
I went to the roof though the Frost was a an iron deterrent:
The chimney silhouette in the dim light Warmed my heart a little:
For beauty warms the heart.

Yet though
Though my eyes, my tear glistening eyes Looked to the moon  yet it spoke not Then my eyes to the stars looked And these were silent too and mists Of fear snake-like turned round me:
Frightening: Down to the house again from the open Night went I
Yet still
I like the Night though I fear it.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night Was One Of Curdled

The night was one of curdled
Milk
And black dreams

O! my mother!
You would be eighty-nine
Today!

Your birthday in the bier
Below the earth
Sad you note but not celebrate.

And my heart speaks
And my heart weeps
And my heart moves
As black clouds move
As curdled milk of black
As days
Of history with a frown in black.

How many lines and verse
I lost my mother
These days of weeping:
All your fault and
All your gracious gift.

Now
Now that I string again my lyre
I feel my hands are stronger
I feel the Dawn yet sad
But my eyes rise
And my voice slowly chants Your name, my mother, Mother of the Poet-Seer.

O mother, my mother!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Night, To-Night How Weary Is -

This night, to-night how weary is The sickly boy sickens the more and sweats Into the delirium of the night.

She pineth
She weepeth
She pineth
With her beady eyes
In the slow-lighted night full glistening Like lizard’s eyes.

And the delirium
The delirium of the night
How soundeth it Like a cacophony.

This night, to-night how weary is.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Nightingale Is Mute

The nightingale is mute
And does not sing:
The wind warbleth not To the green leaves
This stillness of the night.

The nightingale is mute
A rat the silence breaks Rustling and running Leaves rise and fall
Upturned by the rat feet.

And the wan moon
Looks down indifferent:
For the nightingale is mute
And does not sing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Nightingale Leaveth For The Night

The nightingale leaveth for the night
Its mantle dark to cast like a witch spell Now silence with love keepeth company And the hefty heart-throbs slowly thrill.
Ah! love, Love why leave you for the night Your best presents, the best Season, Spring, The greenery of love in lush dark night full hid From curious or love’s eyes full properly:
And now our nightingale unto her mate
From her hidden foliage into the night calleth Tu-who-tu-whit-tu-whoo! The call recalls Like bounding echoes from the cataract Where silver bream jump swiftly out of stream And in again to life’s welcome oxygen:
And in the night, this dark and wholesome night
Our nightingale full calleth to her mate.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Nightingale Sings

The Nightingale Sings
Not The Nightingale Is Sad Alone She Stays Today Alone On Her Lone Bough Where Be The Other Nightingales Today?

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Oak Under His Years How Does He Bend

The oak under his years how does he bend
And now its foliage thick less, less becomes With the fast gliding of its further years Its bark more hollowed here and there becomes And his branches to earth more incline.

So, father, in your later years like the old oak You bent under the burden of the former years Your roots were still into the ground transfixed Sure great and raw but losing ground.

And now, and now, where the oak stood There is the soil rich in fertile remains And in the Night the pale moon smiles And sheds its rays to play with the soft ground:

Then methinks Father you pace there invisible.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Ocean Be A Grave

The Ocean be a grave
Above
The Earth a paradise
And both Together joined In your beautiful sad eyes!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The ocean is a grave
It dreamt last night
Yet
Under the moon's light
And the white of Star-light
It was a grave!

The ocean swells
The ocean in the hiding
Of the night
Where stars shine
Not
Where the clouds Cover moon
The night hides
The Ocean's red!

In the cocoon of time Dream waters Dreams a whole
Reign
Where too lodge the Wide giant halls
Of pronged Jupiter!

I
That see you Give hope to me Make too
Some glimmer of a hope
From my despondency
And Utter resignation!

In to the chambers ivory
Of long nights
Dream I:
In to the vicinity
Of utter resignation Utter tragedy
Shines the sub-conscious Revelry!

You will hear
Them
Pass
That rough and anxious Cavalry
Thought after thought Thought behind

And hear Hear too:
The ocean is a grave
It dreamt last night
Yet
Under the moon's light
And the white of Star-light
It was a grave!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Time passes, friend,
Said the old anchorite Saying
In part his beady psalms

I seized the hand of the Aged anchorite
And
I kissed that hand of the Aged anchorite.

‘Bless you,’ said
The old anchorite.
And went.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Old Bells

Ah! The old bells it was Their fault
That I walked through the frost Of winter that Hung down the trees with Their disheveled hair unkempt And let down:
Like girls without having done
Their make-up:
I passed through the frost breathing Out mist like a forge Under the trees with hair
Let down
I passed, I walked, I suffered:
Ah! The old bells it was
Of the cathedral, their fault.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Old Bridge

the old bridge yearns it creaks and yawns.

but its yawns be sad and drawling.

for it has seen centuries and wills more centuries so many feet, lovers, kisses, whispers so many secrets, the bridge has its eyes and ears?

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Old Clock

Second after second
The old clock ticks
Away!

Grinding and grinding
The breath of earth Flies full!

With song and beauty’s Wine
The breast full heaves!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Old Man With The Short Beard

The old man with the short beard
the old man did not speak the old man with the beard looked sideways from his eyes the old man with the little beard smiled

he pulled the curtain of the dark without a rustle, without a noise
a heart that broke and it was night, to-night

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Old Oak Now Reclines

now in the sweetness of the fading day when day loses its possessions power glory and the paraphernalia
the chains are cut and freedom flows from between the strat straits of the sea-waters that through to the Port of Freedom flow begin to flow
as sunset on horizons of sea with land in Africa
it falls
it falls

too the old oak reclines after the rasping of age with leaves sere as white hair and ever-bending head of age and care
and sorrow
too old, too old the old oak ah! that oak in it was the Inner Soul that be my mother

the old oak now reclines
now in the sweetness of the fading day
when day loses its possessions
power glory and the paraphernalia
the chains are cut and
freedom flows from between the
strat straits of the sea-waters that through to the Port of Freedom flow
begin to flow
as sunset on horizons of sea with land in Africa
it falls
it falls
Emmanuel George Cefai
The Old Professor

The Old Professor Drummed
The Talk Pacing Furious
Here
And
There
Walking
Walking
Stalking
He Spoke
And Spoke
He Simply
Spoke
And
That philosophy flowed
As the seas flow
As the mighty Ocean flows
For
The expression of Thought
Is not one large immense and mighty Ocean?

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Old Theater

In the old theater
The marionettes
Each to each other
Spoke
Into the night
But left Midnight to strike
Left
The Dantesque dance
To grow Spirits go round and
Round
To the medieval sound:
And
In a soft whispered Undertone
In the old theater
The marionettes
Each to each other
Spoke
Into the night

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Older Knight

The silent night inspire
The tall firs inspire
The tall oaks inspire
The passages in Hastings Gardens Roaming inspire

The older knight
They march
Around the town
Come to the night march It be rare!

In orders and battalions
They
March listless
Throughout a deepening night
Restless

Hear the owl call:
The night air bears Wisdom to it
And speaks
The wise owl

Hedgehogs, lizards, Squirrels, ants and Cockroaches, insects
And wild rabbits
All
From their hiding home
They came To march this night.

Midnight has struck!
See!
The waters leap Around the fort
Of shadows and changing Colors
It be night not dawn!
A hedgehog on a bastion wall
With a loud hailer round and
Round
Strikes out the marching orders Hammers sound.

An old grey Figure bent and Crown of thorns
On head Grey becoming Black
In the silhouette Walks pained
And solitary.

These Things
Their Ilk
Make Old Breath
Dream
And Age
Less
Old.

If
you subtract
these things
from life pray what remains?
Emmanuel George Cefai
The Olympians

the Olympians - let them bed
as of the Sub Conscious
that way

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Other Side Of The Coin

Ah! ghosts and shrouds
The other side of the coin
To humans:
The qualities of the one To the inverse proportion Of the other
Be propense

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Owls Sleep

The owls sleep
little
to-night
Christmas Eve.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Owls That Rare

The owls that rare
and numbered sits sparse on the trees
warm Hastings Gardens

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Pain I Feel Is Most Of Soul.

There anguish lies, there Anguish breeds.

Ah! when the Soul, the Inner Soul Feels the pain breed
The anguish breed.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Pain The Scream The Cry

The pain
The scream
The cry
The guillotine of extinction Fading of a tiny dynasty:
Instead of growth
We fade
We fade
Passion of suffering
We fade
We fade

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Palaces Of The Skies

The palaces of the skies
And the broad Heavens immense
They too
Shine glimmering as stars
From those immense
Distances
From their white lighted peers Not different

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Palaces Round

You,
Also you.
The palaces round
The quiet square
Sire silent.

The waters trip
Out of the night
The closing of the Keys
I hear grating.

The ghost of ice
He
Cut the glass window
With the dark
Iron.
There was a scream Sudden and Reverberating:
There was a scream
There was a scream
There was a scream

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Panther

In the bud
The panther was nipped.

In the bastions
Cracked nocturnal
Lighted.

Eyes all around
From the old bastions
Eyes
Till the whiteness of The Dawn that is

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Parched Throat Of Sadness

Feel I
I can now only cry
The cry of agony.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Patched Road Of Old Asphalt

The patched road of old asphalt Melting
Of smells more intoxicating, more Than of formalin the asphalt stinking:
There’s the glare
The sun of haziness Beginner of propensity to afternoon’s Pregnant laziness:
Where chance and probability reign
And
Grudge the coming of the red dusk’s
Reign:
Whilst the night crouches slow in birth-pain Comforted by the doctor-stars he Lights.
Ah! tit for tat: said the small child
And I could see her round big blue eyes Shine with a tear in that throbbing night

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Pendulum Of Time It Ticks

The pendulum of Time it ticks
In the immense heavens in their Quietness.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Pier

Walking by the pier
The unquiet waters
I saw Fear
Yes
Fear in the face
I saw it

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Pines

The pines mourn slow
Yet they mourn
The pines mourn without word
And Yet they mourn
The pines!

The trees get old
Too
The pines!

The pines
The pines mourn slow
Yet they mourn
The pines mourn without word
And
Yet they mourn

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Pines That On The Peaks Of The Snow Mountain Clamber

The pines that on the peaks
of the snow mountain clamber ah! they scent
even though
so
high!
vibrating
vibrating all the music
be
in waiting:
on the lake a couple of swans:
but they sing
not
for their time
is still and today they will will heavily
will strongly
to
be
into the night
and then next night!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Pines Were Red Here

the pines were red here
tonight
and the winds around the pines wrapped
tonight
and the Ocean and the seas jettisoned skeletons to the shore tonight

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Pink Elfin Dances Ah! These

The pink elfin dances ah! these Took place in the knife of dark In to the hooting of caves and coves And caverns by the rocks That slanted slippery Unto the silent guilty sea Ah! life is to be this and in this Life be the Propensity to vicinity to the sub-conscious and The vice-versa too
There was a pair of slippers on the rocks
One after the other Paces
Pace after pace
They fell off the goblin feet or the feet Of fairy- nymphs?
Let the Sub-Conscious tell Let the Sub-Conscious assert The fields are full of seed and will To reap
The brain Idea full and Image full
And will to work.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Pirate Peered Through His Long Binoculars

The pirate peered through his long Binoculars Though I would say the Astronomer Scours the heavens and the stars. O Sir, you do well, but I better: For I think with a bird’s eye Coming and born from the Idea of Infinity.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Pitcher Fell And Broke

The pitcher fell and broke
And bleak the cold wind grew:
The dusk-clouds fore the night
Sailed rapidly away.

The sea it rolled and rolled
And restless the tree neighed
In every leaf; the owl unmoving stood;
And looked down pitying.

The pitcher fell and broke
And deep, deep night Is coming on irreversible.
A leaden curtain fell.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Plant Of My Verse

I watered
the plant of my verse in sorrow with tears and with waters I collected from
night dews
and air hovering in the depth of night
when
I walked in my solitude.
I obtained water obtained it from the East and from the Far East to water more the humus of my Sub-Conscious
for
I wanted oblivion in my brain
I wanted Morpheus
and I yearned for Mnemosyne
I watered
the plant of beauty that it grow
but next to it I watered the Plant of Wisdom for I needed at least to look one look for every day
the Plant of Wisdom and
at least have some of wisdom from the Far East

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Poem Ends; The Verse Abrupt

The poem ends; the verse abrupt and harsh to silence transforms; the song sudden silent stops.

Emmanuel George Cefai
For there was not The bursting through That he expected Evolution Get:
The lines were great
Yet
Again and again
Turned inside to themselves
'We too human be!
Therefore to human cyclical Be we condemned!'
Unless that Code and Cyclical
We break
Replace
Albeit with a new Cyclical
We will not see The shores of Immortality

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Poet Seer

The Poet Seer lay back
On the pillow mute
Not moving
And
From a yard not distant I Heard a girl chant
Some lines of his.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Poet Seer In Carriage

The Poet Seer
in carriage
he is come to the monastery up the hill road the shanty road made him more ill
with eyes closed
when the carriage door opened he was helped on the carriage steps by the out coming monks the blaze of seeing vague was in his eyes as they carried him living on a catafalque as ants their precious prey so in the monastery they,
the monks.
Off the shanty road went carriage remained a cell, a bed
a Poet Seer
and monks that prayed

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Poet Seer Lay Motionless

The Poet Seer
Lay motionless:
All around
People thronged Stunned and
Drear.

One said 'I will miss
For some time his Great line
His rhythm and his verse His love of Beauty and His noble thoughts.'

Another said: 'Of Immortality spoke he:
Now
He lies motionless
After
Lighting the fire for humanity'

Another yet: 'Friends let us
For another Poet Seer Pray to match
The great verse of this one
The thoughts, discoveries,
The rest.'

Another: 'Forward look.
Brothers and sisters pray For him and that others Will rise as him, as he Has wished.'

Another: 'Let him live
In us; his works are writ;
Those that are writ
In hearts their residence.'
And
The Poet Seer Lay motionless:
All around
People thronged Stunned and
Drear.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Poet Seer Of The Bays

In dawn
At dusk
The Poet Seer
Often they spot
Around the bays
Walking
At the heavens
Looking
But especially In lonely nights
Of broken hearted
Solitude
In the bays see him:
At the skies looking Even for hours
Not speaking
Not chanting Just looking.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Poet Seer Said

The Poet Seer said
To himself:
‘Another year and
Yet
Another drear after drear.
For just my rights
Just that I must go begging.’

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Poet Seer Sat On The Piano

And he played
And he closed his eyes
And he let his sad heart speak
All he did
Was to unlock the keys if his Sad heart:
The golden axles were not for him
But misery sadness and the Bleak Stared him in the face
To so-called madness.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Poet Seer, Mister Poet Seer

today, Christmas Day from out his balcony from the balconies of his corner house rising as Dawn though later watched, opening a casement, watched the cars below
and opening his eyes a little more
'Another day, ' said he
'another day, this Christmas Day.'

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Poet-Seer Irresistible

The Poet-Seer irresistible
Well
He was as Shakespeare
Was Could not help Stay quiet
Without singing
Even
In the sub-conscious Between his teeth
Or
In the dark dreams nocturnal:
Even so
Even so
I
I restless
Fall
Before
The Idol
Of Irresistibility
And
Sing
Between my teeth
Or
In the dark dreams nocturnal

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Poet-Seer Took The Lyre

The Poet-Seer took the lyre
He sung
He sung three minutes
Only
And
in those three minutes
He caught the Universe, Snapshots phenomena motion Transformation change evolution Then of all
He brought forth Beauty

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Poet-Seer Woke With

The Poet-Seer woke with hazy eyes:
but ah! after a night of sleeping the brain was a new machine the hands worked
and
the Poet Seer sang and versified:
the new machine!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Pointed Breasts Of The Moon

The pointed breasts of the moon in their sexual lust to-night cared not for the storm and lustful tempest cared not for the whirling of gales and of clouds cared not for the gaunt blanch face of the town no, cared not,
cared not,
the pointed breasts of the moon

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Port Hoots

The Port Hoots

the port hoots

and over the fort rise the wave of the wish spume
occasional

the winds blow more more lusty the more satisfied

the drear closes in
the more
in heavens and in sky and from the small church comes groans of moaning

misery

yes! misery for drear and misery on Earth there be no wonder the port hoots

though it be night

the port hoots.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Portrait

The portrait
Smiled at night Talked
To the other Portraits
Whispering

Glided a shadow

A soldier in armor Rattled Annoyed
Without a stir:
At standing stiff
In iron
For long ages

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Position Of Things

For Such counts
The Position of Things:
Look
My Monsignor how Many times
It determines
The fate:
And
More: Solves problems that
We Here on Earth
Hurt our brains
And
Do not solve:
However ach we However pain and Suffering:
Solution would come
But
At the cost of immense Pain and suffering:
See
The Position is the key.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The President Came

In the theatre
The President came the play began
On the lights!
around
the crowd.
music, my Monsignors!
Light and music must combine.
you must render Beauty even
though Beauty be so beautiful

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Price I Paid

This was the price I paid.
They always thought me ‘There be a price to pay For everything
And anything.’
And now I feel too the price I paid

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Prophet Held High His Finger

The Prophet held high his finger
And he pointed that finger to the heavens And the coffin passed with the Great and on the coffin open lay the books of his Ideas, New Ideas And the heavens smiled in their mourning garb.
And the air and streets scented with New Ideas.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Pulpit Violet Opens Its Mouth

The pulpit violet opens its mouth
That its petals (in as direct proportion) :
To-night I will recall some of Tolkien’s Characters – oh! call Kafka to the meeting:
Add, me to them and from our meeting
Let new forms and new characters arise
The profane crowd needs them; yes
Now more than ever; the rate of Balance will be as directly proportional
Between the materialistic down
Down-to-earth characters and the magic characters:
All be that is asserted; so all characters
Magic and materialistic be
But the magic ones prefer we
We, Humans who dare to dream, and save ourselves
At the last moment.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Rain Is Whistling

The rain is whistling
the wind is a gale
the midnight train is coming hear! it stop in the train station.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Rain Was Falling.

The rain was falling.
Though no snow fell the wind of frost neighed through the boughs and trees
that huddled in the wood like naked men and women in that tempest hoar:
The rain was falling.
Deep,
deep the water pencils fell adown the window-panes condensed with breath of the humans inside and with the warmth of stoves and lights and some ancient chimney-hearts.
Ah! the old city, the old town
how many chimneys here and there old and grimy on their faces hurled the winter tempest in its orgy wild.

the
stars
were white

honey
but
with
the acridity
of acid
with
the

There
Was
Clustering
In Another Zone

In ecstasy
At
The play of Heavenly violins.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Rapid Currents Of The Airs

The rapid currents of the airs
the night
the rains that fell

Christmas be near though the sun be dim after the night rains and the town wakes again and hope hobbles again on its slender feet though hobbling

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Rattling Of The Walls

The rattling of the Walls
Commenced just now

Dusk has not finished
Yet
Yet
Rattling begins aloud

The bone of softness
The red of the heart
Have been hurt
Now

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Relativity Of The Mass Universe

O! let it extend To verse:
Let us judge Harshly never
For there’s a minimum of genius In most of things.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Resting Place

The resting place ay! the Resting patch
Of all of us
To all of us
The heart
The brain
The body yearn And seek
All in all
Though the mask of the Conscious Tell otherwise:
The naked
Sub-Conscious Discovers
Otherwise

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Restless Brigade

The Restless Brigade
It Went out to the hill
And
It was night

Moon
Turned on is head

The stars laugh at rare
Times

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Restless Inner Soul

The restless Inner Soul
How restless and how
Deep
The well laughed horribly A silver coin that Time Tossed into the well Shone glittering against the moon that Dared defy the drear of the dark night:
They had exhausted
The oxygen for thinking for a while For a while – I assert – They left unprejudiced Their former rights to think - Philosophize:
For restless was their Soul
Their Inner Soul

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Right We Rolled

To the left
We
To
The right
We Rolled
But took heart
Yet
For near the isle
That was with us
We Saw Bending
Here
And
There
With
The vessel's Fast swoon

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Rind

The rind
The centre
The nucleus
Of discovery
The fount
Of the methodology
Of all discovery
The alma mater.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Road Is Long And Winding.

The road is long and winding.
But we take the challenge.
We rise before Fear.

And the more Fear
The more rise we.

We rise on no warranty
But our courage only.

And Fear seeing us rise Fear leapt away.

The road is long and winding.
But we take the challenge.
We rise before Fear.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Roads Where Dust Gathers

The roads where dust gathers
the paces that on them arrive fro men's shoes and the elegant and sexy women's stilettos, all, all in a hurry breathless in this life of shortage breath:
the honking cars in succession impatient of the time, and of appointments and the way we dress for them and out to be by others seen:
and this and that a hundred a thousand mores and styles and
more human humanity bustling, hurrying,
and yet
much like the donkey round the
water-mill:
and the day passes, darkens,
sometimes clouds,
and in the distant heaven-corners some clouds gather round and round and then the first thunder explosion heard:
till
sweet and tired in the arms of dusk, red dusk, the day of sudden soaked in tiredness swoons, swoons to the intense desires of the stars and night
the wayward beauties of the curtained dark:
and then
the hustling and the bustling finishes:
and in its termination some thinking realize (musing their chin as old philosophy)
that we be back another round around the watermill
just that
just that

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Roaming Of My Thoughts, The Heavy Snake

The roaming of my thoughts, the heavy snake
That crawls diligent Into the dark-green foliage
While the pale languid moon overlooks

And then the zoo.
For there is a zoo
Where animals do not roam alone
But thoughts thunder like peals Of thunder from among the trees
The finger of utter light Barely comes from the thick foliage to the eye
And then after the seconds flash
A stillness.

And then the lines, the poetry lines Ooze out, but ooze out slowly, slowly, Like cider coming from the lazy press
In Spanish afternoons of tepid suns And dreams warm in Spanish wine and song Longer than the thunder-peal they stay But go
But go
Just as the thunder-peal, just as the thunder peal.

And thus poetry and lines Come out fragmented Like a broken pitcher
They do not soar or sing
But lie despondent.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Robe

I hear the robe
Moving Rustling against The unclean dusty floor.
But I hear.
It be night
and dark
And silence shows Life that be sere

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Rock, That Rock, Said The Poet Seer

The rock, that rock, said the Poet Seer how Many nights of spell has seen!

How many roars of sea, one after the other Spume after spume
Roaring white with rage
The many nights of spell have seen!

And time, time, Age, pass and last
And come and go
And the rock, that rock, how many Nights of spell has been!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Rose Rises, Rises In The Wind

The rose rises, rises in the wind
And nurtured in its caress vies
With its peers scent to shed.

The rose rises, rises in the dawn
And in the warmth of the fast-rising sun Erects itself in pride deservedly.

The rose rises, rises still In its sweet surfeiting in the mid-day sun
In the honeyed laze of afternoon In the sick beauty of the lassitude
Of the fast-coming dusk with stealthy mien

But then it bends the rose will bend
Like gleaming sheaves in acres of gold corn:
The rose will know the time to bend is come.

And without potion will it sink and slow Into its drowsiness sub-consciously:
And sleeping feel the cool of the summer night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Ruthless Snows Today

The ruthless snows today
the rare snows for in our land
once every three years or so they fall:
fell though tiny icicles ah! did they do so that I towards ageing am walking to show?

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sacred Rites

The sacred rites
They with the barefoot feet
Walked round and round
And chanting.

The moon was rising Before the white stars
The lake was glistening Rays even passing through high bars!

And in spite of the night
The weird silence relative and The bats' hoarse cries
The sacred rites
They with the barefoot feet
Walked round and round
And chanting.
They said.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sacred Tree That Weeps

In a secluded corner
There was it: the tree
That wept
And sacred was the Tree
Sacred were its tears.

For
When things that breathe
Weep
There's sacredness all
Round.

Sacredness
That has the propensity To raise the soul
To nobility
Here Homer roams Disconsolate and Restless smiling.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sacred Verses Of The Prophet-Seer

The sacred verses of the prophet-seer Hide in their garbs the symbols of his lust His failings so to say if so can they Be called: the desperate call And bite of the despairing bird;
The lull of lazy afternoons;
The glory of the mid-day sun in red;
The orange of declining sun Falling despondently into the frowning seas;
The wind, the air, the waters, the fire,
The sacred verses of the prophet seer
In them encapsulate: in their lines
And words the seed
Of hope from the despondent cry
From the pain and paralysis
The Poet-Seer suffered in the nursing-home:
The strange and raw verses cry and weep Like to a bleeding heart in the nursing home.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sacrifice Is Sacrifice

For Every sacrifice be A sacrifice
The mother stood Face upwards in the Bed
Not answering my cries
My calls
And in that horror room of Brimming sacrifice
The scent of formalin

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sacrifice Of Beauty

More exigent
Than the sacrifice of Abraham
When after long years Wasting for a child
He held his only Isaac
All his all
On the altar rough And raised
The unwilling knife
Of broken heart
Then broke the heavens
And
There was Voice
With held the hand of Such a sacrifice
Minerva and the Muse Sweating pale-faced Had witnessed fearful
The sacrifice to Beauty.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sails

The sails are not torn, but you
See
That they are tired and crest-fallen
You see, my Monsignor

The dusk has been beautiful
And so day’s fading
But it was weak and Unremarkable.

Still
The twilight ripples caught my eyes
Still
The last birds to their home trees Flying caught my ears
Still
The bat shrieks even just begun Were deafening
Still
Still
Still Still

I do not Expect this night
To be a remarkable night
But just a night of stars Of number relative
Of whiteness relative
Of burning relative
As other nights in Other days.

The cold
Increasing and joining up With red nosed frost Increasing and increasing Further
Up the walls of houses and Of bastions
Still
It be candidate for the Remarkable

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Same

The same
The same going
Round and round
And
The leaves of the Calendar of life
Each day one leaf be Torn
One leaf
Just one
But one from the calendar
Of life:
And Thrown away
The torn leaf will not come Back Into the nirvana it has been Sent:
No, no, it will not come back
And
There will be, just be
The same
The same going
Round and round
And
The leaves of the Calendar of life
Each day one leaf be Torn

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Same Going Round And Round

The same
Going round and round
Into the navel
Of the outraged Sound
The piers with painted Lines Were trembling
As the sea waves washed Algae at their feet
For
It was dusk Deep dusk
Beginning of the night
Beginning of first stars
A rare open window on the Sea
And sad playing violin

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Satyrs

The satyrs
the satyrs
they become as human they dress trousers
they dress stiff necks
they dress overcoats
and the rest
the satyrs have lust ah! how it burns
them
the lust
the satyrs
the satyrs
they become as human they dress trousers
they dress stiff necks
they dress overcoats
and the rest
at night
the satyrs rest not though tired
they work
the machine of their lust
and so other satyrs:
yes, other satyrs
have to be born:
crescite et multiplicamini.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sea

‘the sea is empty’

‘look! Look inside! ’

It is a thirsty grave.

Beware!

It wills to be full now, my Monsignor.

It must fill.

Beware.

Its jaws are hungriest.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sea Dark Bosom

The sea
Dark bosom Without nipples
With the milk of
Stars
That drips on it
And

With the night
Dews

There, there
You have
As much of beauty As there be In dusk
In dawn, my Monsignor

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sea Has Its Voice – Its Own Voice

The sea has its voice – its own voice
That tells of secrets and intrigues And love and hate and fear and greed All – all in its feeble language lapping
To the cool dances of the restless waves
To the gold rays of the strong mid-day Sun
To the dark awnings of the coming nights
The sea has its voice – its own voice:
That voice that in its crystalline sparkles spells Indistinct humble mumble like the voice Of a small child - and lapping
To the cool dances of the restless waves.
It dreams, it dreams, it dreams.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sea Has Roared Today

The sea has roared today
And
The sea has roared yester night
And
On its tree the owl has cried
The earth all restless
In a tempest lies
The caves and caverns
Hoot as well
The grass of green to a dark hue
And damp with magic dew
The sea has roared, has roared
Today.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sea Here Today

the
sea
here
today
it
has
the scent
of spearmint
rare
rare
rare
I
saw fish
up
to sea-bosom
with electric eyes lighted
not
one though
one
at first
its body
in
the dark silhouette looked
as a skeleton miniature thrown
by shrouds
into the sea
when dusk
was lowering
its shades
of
red: whatever whenever wherever
I
pine
I
pine
for you
my maiden
my maiden
sweet
not salty
is
the sea
tonight
but
as
of spearmint
it tastes
Come!
Come!
tonight
my maid and love!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sea How It Froths Slowly – As If

The sea how it froths slowly -- as if
By under-currents small relentless slow It churns itself cooling itself afresh To match with the new Dawn that looks in it And with its golden locks falls in love

The sea how it froths slowly - and from The sullen east a strange blue mist arises
To welcome the new Dawn and veil her limbs Naked from bathing in the pleasant seas.

The sea how it froths slowly -- another day
To our earth is given; another chance; Another leaf is cut from Nature’s book.

Our civilization will rise to pollute once more.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sea Is A Treasure, A Chest

The sea is a treasure, a chest
Of the wise lore that old owls have
And in this treasure-chest
There is a consolation for humanity
And
Site where the Earth wounds Heal themselves in the airs of the Long nights:
Where
The sea unfolds her treasures

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sea Swishes

The sea swishes
Swishes
Swishes
Now it be blue On rare striking of Hours
It greenish turns
It has turned off
The tap of its salts away
Now
With fading of the day Dresses slow
And majestic
The funereal garb
Of a departing dusk
Of coming night.
I heard a laugh
A greenish laugh
A sudden laugh
I hear from roof tops
A slow song and sensuous
I heard
I heard
And Dusk by now Silhouetted by the Night:
Let me with the heavens
Let me with tears in my eyes Looking all the night
And weeping slow.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Seas Ah! Those Liquid Waters Entomb

The seas ah! those liquid waters entomb
The water-wraiths in to their folds And hide most of their shrieks and wild lament
Then
All the hidden rumblings burst at once but once In one big eerie-weird nocturnal scream

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Seas In Port Valletta

The seas in Port Valletta
Here
At red dusk
Always pining lie.

And
With them humans Gathering
In pining Vie.

Whilst the last twilight
Trembling
Yields to creeping dark
Of night
And then
To sweet starlight

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Seasons Of The Mind More Fickle Are

The seasons of the mind  more fickle are Than fickle women:
A summer comes –  all founts dry
And the hill springs dwindle into the hard rock Baked by the relentless sun
And autumn cooler is - but blank Its star-crossed gaze into the universe Looks in the azure heavens to read their eyes And feel the breathing of  their bosoms bare:
And winter - ah! winter too
With its cold icicles
And hidden owls in frosty trees all white Dour winter too is blank and numbing: But ah! when green Spring comes The hillsides gush;
The flowers blush
Sweet the rivers glide
And in the night
The starry skies make love.
And the mind-the mind it teems!

How cannot it teem my friend?

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sea-Wall

The Sea-Wall
Yes the Sea-Wall
It be cheeky!

It winks Mischievous
And grey And smiling

In its heart
Growls
All glowing
The angst of Being!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sea-Wall Of The Moon

The Sea-Wall of the moon
The haunting cries
Of nightingales
The interruptions of The owls
The trembling bough
And leaves
From the rare gust of chill
And wind Wind in the lone night
That over the bastions Clambers:
The Sea-Wall of the moon
It glistens
It yields hope
It waters the parched throat
And
In the night ghosts of cicadas
Dance
In long white robes Egyptian style
And the rats hobble round
And hedgehogs somber Play nocturnal orchestras

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sea-Waves How Much Will

The sea-waves how much will
They tell
For him who hears them
For him who goes by them
And it must be night
And it must be moon light
And you
You must hear the sea-waves
Whisper
Whisper
Whisper in your ear
And you will have the patience To wait hearing till the Dawn
To wait in the frost if there Be frost till the Dawn
To wait in the tempest if there Be tempest till the Dawn
To wait in the wild gale if there Be a wild gale to bear till the Dawn
I say
I assert the sea-waves will tell
The sea-waves will speak
The sea-waves how much will
They tell
For him who hears them
For him who goes by them.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sequitur

The sequitur
Of
One Word
To Other
As
To
The Beads
In the rosary Makes Night
And Day
And Day
And Night
As
In Proportion
To Their Continuity Continuous

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sere Leaves

The Sere Leaves Fall And The Nights Come And The Nights Will Come Too Cover My Ghostly Mother Cover Me

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sheets Of My Verses

Ah! my Monsignor below
The sheets of my verses Read, think and read For thought is of the verses And Night is of their culture And emotions there be Synthesized and melt
In the foundry of the brain.
And the glow of sleepy Cemeteries betrays
That they too are As of the verses.
So the Poet Seer viewing
This; his power realizes Sings more and more And verses line the murals
Of the immense heavens
Though
The throat of the Poet Seer Grows dry as he goes on However bravely at a point His elongated verses Stop to rest.
Think, my Monsignor, think
Think.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Shepherd

The shepherd cries:
Night!
His sheep bleat and then cease.

But dry and parched the throat of the benighted shepherd.

Yet
with brimming eyes he watches
still into the face of the heavens white with stars and
moon
till whiter it grows with the lights of Dawn the rustling twigs and branches birds that start to try their voice
and the dry and parched shepherd remains there still there.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Short Gnome

The short gnome of the night how fast
It leaps!

And night after night pass, pass, pass
In the dark spells

And mists of hope in Ages nocturnal
Turn

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Short Path

The short path
To the sea

Hewn in the rock
And Slippery

White rocks hideous Heights
Around

Below the pitch black Of depth of The sea

Ah! how
That sea rages in nights
Rare
Of spell and gales

Then spumes abound
But then
No sea gulls fly

Night has its world
No less than day
No less.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Shroud From Its Nostrils

The Shroud from its nostrils
Exhales
The last gasp breath of the Burning beach-sun
At Porto Ercole:
Though that was morning
And the sun was beating Beating
Yet
The exhalation of the Shroud Was at night on the beach On Porto Ercole

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Shrouds Danced All

The shrouds danced all around around, around they danced and danced in their wild trance for mid-night had now struck vibrated the earth-land!

and round and round giddying they danced and danced and round the mirrors turned for at their will all fairy-style the shrouds will mirrors of gold and round and round they were

and round and round giddying they danced and danced
and round the mirrors turned

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Shutter

The shutter
the shutter on the hot temperatures must come down
about twenty or more days
remain
five hundred to seven hundred hours.

then will begin the human way towards the first chill the first sere leaf the first cracking bough the bending tree the iron wood drenched in a wild night's passion floods in streets nocturnal
where ghosts and shrouds
wade in their journeying
nocturnal
over mother Earth:
their laments as one cloud one flame
arise.

Ahi! those and these be the symbols of the Sub-Conscious
reign
that so akin to night and to its silent sounds voyages and thrives:
the seconds you must hear
one by one
in to the depth of your Inner Soul
in to the depth of Night

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sick Wind Moans, Moans The Sick Wind

The sick wind moans, moans the sick wind
There mystery lies in its every moan:
It tells all and nothing yet it tells How careful hides it the secret in its breast.

The old oak hears the sick wind
And hearing it understands its own And weeps the old oak without a cry.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Silence Of A Room

The silence of a room
A single room
Waters and rivers
Of silence
Flowing.

Drops of languor
Falling
Falling
From the tap of The drear ceiling

And yet
In that room of rooms
Was born
Novel after novel Breeding

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Skeleton

The skeleton
In the tall corridor Knocked his glass Half emptied
Against the wall.

The spider woke
This night
In the summer Sweat and Heat.

Long the bony Finger
Fish-bone of magic Witches' brew
And out.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Skeleton Moved Its Bones

The skeleton moved its bones
creaking
sighing without lungs its peace was seeking

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Skies All Leaden Eyed And Taciturn

The skies all leaden-eyed and taciturn
Have decked their winter garb
And with abuse of their authority
The May day into a winter day changeth.

How still the wind like to winnowing Spring How hot the temperature – without thunder
The drizzly rain-drops fall in a brief shower.

And Dawn has gone down fast the Nix Mangiari steps.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sliding Way

Down
Down
Down
A tycoon with cigar in mouth Found himself on
The Sliding Way:
Ice with a minimum percentage of Friction:
So he slid, slid,
Slid
‘No, no! ’ he shouted Shouted angrily
‘No’
In vain
He slid
And slid
And slid
Down the Sliding Way
Remorselessly.

Then
There followed
Hand in hand
A Prime Minister and a President Aghast they looked As they slid Slid
Slid
Down the Sliding Way
‘We command! , ’ each said ‘Stop! Bring the men! ’ A gust of frost wheezed in Their mouth
And how they sneezed Sneezed
Down
Down
The Sliding Way
Remorselessly

Ah! my friends! My Monsignor!
All we slide down
Down the Sliding Way Resistless, as In the anesthesia of Time,
A Cherub too came the Way
He slid
And slid
And slid
The same:
But at he smiled
The other frowned
The Cherub slid
And as he slid
Smiling
He saw a man of poverty
A man of misery Took him by the hand
The sliding way:
Together went they
The Sliding Way:
At last the end of misery
At last the end of poverty!
All smiled
And all went Went down
Down
Down the Sliding Way!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Slow Whispering

The slow whispering
The low praying
Of the beady anchorite Sad and lowly and trite
A womb in a tomb
But too much for its Birth:
Thoughts coffined in zinc Too much
Too much

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Smell Of Violets, The Sweet Scent

The smell of violets, the sweet scent of oats and burning chestnuts the rugged field stones and the dews of night on the damp soil and the road that to the wide Ocean sea leads through the country and the red soil

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Snake

As
The

My Monsignor
‘after all Beauty matters’

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Snow Flakes Fall

The snow flakes fall
The waters dance
The winter is in thrall
The houses huddle
The houses sleep
And the Sub-Conscious warms And eager brains it fills The lightning by the thunder Stays and Walk both hand in hand
The wind plays violin

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Snow Is Far Away

the snow is far away
ah! the rains too the drizzles also how much then be winter
far away
if Autumn has not begun:
two days more few ten hours of hours and Autumn will begin but not the Winter still to go

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Snow Thaws And Hardens But Ah!

The snow thaws and hardens but ah!
the cold in my soul hurts

the snows and frost and hardened ice hurt the blood and flesh yet midst these ravages the kind look just one look of the Muse to new warmth my heart ensnares!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sociology

The sociology
The laws
Must Obey
The voice
Of Peoples

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Song Of The Free

The song of the free
Ah! how many obstacles
You saw in History
And History in you!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Songs That Chant

'I' the verses, the songs, the chant the lyre that sings, the harp nobly drawn the notes lurid and noble through the halls of kings and emperors ringing I am the dancing animals in zoos
I am the I of so many verses
I am not only for to-day but for the future
I am the Spirit that unlocks doors and cells frees minds and bodies gives rest to the pains pulls out the conscious brains replace by the sub-conscious grey and white I am who clone humans from skeletons and tombs
I am who blows life in all kinds of wombs
I, with me, children will be born
I, with me, children healthy be and live
I am, I am who do all this and more

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Soul Slept

slept that day's beginning slept that Dawn the Inner Soul on the sea-bosom azure and slow in that chill early morn of wild November

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sounds Of Beauty In The Dusk

The sounds of beauty
In the dusk
They flourish
The horses of The flying manes
They go Straight as arrows in The moon-lit fields
And dusty Ways of Countryside
The sounds of beauty
Ah! my Monsignor!
The sounds of beauty.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Spells Of Witchery

Into the waters
The spells of witchery Go round
And round Vapors azure
Trembling.

Smoke azure
Tapering
And then unfolding
Tapering
And the unfolding

Into the waters
The spells of witchery Go round
And round Vapors azure
Trembling.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Spider

The spider on the wall
It rang apiece
It rang down Curtains for all Human descent
So those who had Human descent
Even so large and multiplied
And those who had not Equal lay
In the long last.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Spirit Of A Child

'I
The Spirit of a Child with eyes all crystalline
blue, green and brown colors
that change
as changes chameleon.

I Spirit that grows as the dusk reveries
more in to mournful night my Spirit grows

I am the Child of Night though I wander the day
yet
Night my element.

Bring me
bring me to the lake's moon-glistening edge there to see my reflection
the face of youth and child
the Spirit of a Child.

Ah! centuries pass
and History works humans
round and round
as baker does to dough:
her snares
Power and Glory and Fame too: but upon us
we Spirits no, History works not Nor will.

Slow the ages pass
for me
have passed the centuries
one after the other
more so have passed the years one after yet another.

And I still wander Still wander Earth by day mostly and settle in the Night to think speak ruminate.

My Programme rote yet every hour surprises
We Spirits
I
Spirit of a Child
For
I
The Spirit of a Child
with eyes all crystalline
blue, green and brown
colors
that change
as changes chameleon'.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Spirit Of A Child 2

Dim Earthy
Voice
Nasal
Small
The Spirit of a Child!

With us
Over us
In us
It was
It be
It will
The Spirit of a Child!

To wisdom near
To Peace
Betrothed
A different
Earth
A different
Civilization
Wisdom and peace
Quiet and humility Without
glory
powerless
the Spirit of a Child!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Spirits Whispered

The Spirits
They whispered in the ears
They whispered
To the eyes
They whispered
To the Soul
They whispered
In the dreams
They entered
The sub-conscious
As it flowed in its stream.
The Spirits
They whispered in the ears
They whispered
To the eyes
They whispered
To the Soul
They whispered
In the dreams

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Spirit-World

The Spirit-World as a buzz of Bees or gnats Together traveled Over the silent Rhine

Scented the grape yards.
Silhouetted dark the towers
And the spires.

The water chuckled.
The freshets by the bank
The edge of the river
Went
Marched and paraded:
Above
The Spirit-World in the center
Moved.

Violins sad at rough intervals Sang music to the beauty Of the brains.

O! for these nights
Amidst the scents and sounds Though sadness and solitude Run silent over all No, the Dawn will be welcome
Too
As welcome as the night
And more

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sputum Of The Stars Like A White Mist

The sputum of the stars like a white mist
Cloudy veil-like semi-transparent lucid
And moving fast nay faster than the clouds
When they soar giddying over Everest.

The sputum of the stars how acid is
And trickles burning fuming smoking Down Saint Anne’s Way all seminal
The sputum of the stars the seed of life.

The sputum of the stars fell down to earth
And boiled and mixed and turned and changes More acid grew, more boisterous
The sputum of the stars, the seed of life.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Stairs To Heaven

The stairs to heaven
They ever ascend
They never cease
They ever go
At distance
Equal and unequal
But right
For every foot-step.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The stakes are high to-night
The moon was red
Though
To familiar white Returning
And
In the alley and Strait street Off the end of Saint Paul's Street
Sings silent
The music of the night Baroque airy pianos
Of the roaming ghosts
And bone-clad skeletons
In the alley
And
In the street
This night
Just

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Stars Are Blue Tonight

And sweet
The heavens
Have imposed
Their morning imprint
And night becomes the mirror of the day

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Stars Were Rolling

The stars were rolling
As the waves of seas
That night overtakes
Bewitches with his spells
O this night be a night
Of spells and magic Hear the breeze herself
She sings verses tragic
For the consummate delight
Of stars of the white light
Of fauns and nymphs dancing
Dancing on the green lawn bright
The stars were rolling

A night as this Fit for his Sophocles and his harp For Homer and his lyre Fit by the roar of the Aegean
As the waves of seas
That night overtakes
Bewitches with his spells
O this night be a night
Of spells and magic Hear the breeze herself
She sings verses tragic
For the consummate delight
Of stars of the white light
Of fauns and nymphs dancing
Dancing on the green lawn bright
The stars were rolling

We must not tell, we must Not tell
What we saw in the night
To-night
The stars shone blinding bright
At times
At times
They somewhat fainted
Into the azure black curtain That Night himself had painted
For
As the waves of seas
That night overtakes
Bewitches with his spells
O this night be a night
Of spells and magic Hear the breeze herself
She sings verses tragic
For the consummate delight
Of stars of the white light
Of fauns and nymphs dancing
Dancing on the green lawn bright
The stars were rolling

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Statue Of Wax

trembled
trembled alone in a non-frosty night yet past midnight!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Storm

Ah! The storm it ends not to-night To-night a winter night
The storm is lustful:
Wants more,
The more the chill and frost
The more savage it prowls:
The towns and cities sleep
White-faced and scared Through trembling neon lights
And wind-clanking lamp Lamp-posts that vibrate as the Earth Trembling and fearing

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Storm-Child

The Storm-Child
The storm-child ah! she wandereth
Alone
Alone
Along the dark wood she wandereth

And the thunder lights above With iron fist and clapping And the rains downpour full And the leaves drip
The leaves of the wild wood

But, yet, the Storm-Child
Goes Goes on her way and Wandereth:
Over the muddy ground
She wandereth:

The storm and tempest
Come and go:
And the Storm-Child
The child of the big eyes
That are as lakes
Ah! the Storm Child wandereth

But this tempest will not go Nor will this chill go Nor the frost gelid go
And the trees startle with The drippings of the icicles
But, yet,
The Storm-Child goes
On and on she goes
She wandereth
I too, we too, my friend
As the Storm-Child we wander:
And I too, we too, my friend Are in the eye of storms and Tempests every day:
All time
All place
And yet, and but,
As the Storm-Child on and on and on we wander.

Ah! let the tempests and the storms Roar
They will not stop to-day
To-night
Yet, but the Storm-Child still Wandereth:
And the Dawn though it be risen It be grey and dark and bleak And mute of bird songs and of Sounds
And yet the Storm-Child
Wandereth

One time, one day,
Persistence pays,
Patience pays,
For Then the Dawn
Will not be as the Dawns
That went before:
And the Storm-Child will lay Herself out of her will Amidst the leaves and Move not
And the birds and the wood-animals
The plants
Will cluster round
Round the Storm-Child that She wandereth

One time, one day,
Persistence pays,
Patience pays,
For Then the Dawn
Will not be as the Dawns
That went before:
And I and you
As the Storm-Child will lay Ourselves out of our will Amidst the leaves and Move not
And the birds and the wood-animals
The plants
Will cluster round
Round me, round you
As the Storm-Child that She wandereth

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Story Bumps

Slow
Slow
The story bumps
Slow.

Here and there
Diadems fly.

The diadems fly
The heavens
Slow
Slow
Yet
Unsupported slow.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Stream Gurgles

The stream gurgles of
The dusk.

The dusk heard though It was sunset.

And in the pining day
The red dusk came.

Came strutting along
The dusk.

The dusk came and pined
And
The stream that gurgled
Was happy.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Stress

That you on fire put That stress
Will grow and grow
Has grown
Has grown
See my trembling hands
And see Where I and dust together have arrived.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sun Around Her Views All Orbiting

The sun around her views all orbiting
The various planets of our system Made. To-night
They will be orbiting
And we
On our side of the earth see the stars
The others see a view different:
But so phenomena work
So the Principles of the mass universe Though relative to proportion bend Their knees, always propense.

We
We humans, as we are, to-day Consider ourselves as the evolved Of the past days, and better, Higher to the clouds and Heavens, higher to Jove
And the Olympian Gods,
More fit than previous centuries
To be Nearer the tables of the God themselves.
We
We humans consider so, so ourselves.

Amidst this earth rise high in glory And pleasant living the rich and Powerful: for them suffering is Relative. The rest of the human herd Is bound to suffering; for it Days are always of black nights
And no new dawn Arises on horizons in each day:
But the same grueling dark of night
And sufferings.
Is this great gods, Justice?
We,
We boasters of democracy, of Order international, law international Allow all this: we know, know well For our means of knowledge are Refined more than in other days:
Yet, we, the self-named sons of Democracy allow all this and pass
And smile.

So bound in this evolution of ours
We tie chains international
Now
Now yes, not just in States Isolated here and there and Interspersed with small areas Where freedom at least relative still Reigns.

Now
In the dwindling light of the old Ancient stars we lurk With ghosts and shrouds and Better do, if we with them
At least our souls arise With them lament and roam
About the streets and cities
At night.
Then sleep in our cozy beds
And dream and smile.

You see, my Monsignor,
There is but little, little,
And that relative, to smile.
Our civilizations grow and yet is Stale somewhere.
O cut the chains!
The glittering blindness of gold And wealth and lands and power Wise human forego:
Arise! With evolution to these Limits too.

And you,
And you,
You, my mother, who passed
The last days breathing, Nay last years,
Here in poverty’s miseries
And
In the throes of saintly sufferings
In you
Mother I see how should heal,
The medicine for our earth is
But
In your last years breathing here:
O human be advised and wisdom hear.

The ghosts lament and the shrouds Too lament
In their own language
And in any case
Their lament is so low
So like bird humming:
Wise Poet-Seers will indicate What lament ghosts and shrouds Nocturnal make of late.

We are fallen too low,
Relatively,
Or put in as in other words Not raised so high as we Picture ourselves in our revelry
That we in evolution move so fast:
The first of lesson be more humble Too; the next more earnest; then Shed all The chains of power and wealth and Steel your souls with ancient virtue Such as Rome and Greece In their own days heroic demonstrate:
Then
Humans going back that way,
We forward go.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sun Be Out

The sun be out Yet in the air
There's scent of drear
Yet in the day
There's not the gay
But sad and sad

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sun To-Day Is Smiling

The sun to-day is smiling
From behind its armor Temperature-proof and Legendary more Than Hercules and his Seven Labors.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Swan-Song On The Waters Floated

The swan-song on the waters floated, yet
There were no swans

Green-eyed the shrubbery around, all moist and Damp

‘Ok’ said the goblin and he leapt into the waters Swam under the night moon

Along the shore how many, how many, sacred Ancestors queued!

Yet our population was their population though Diminished, less

They lisped rather than talked and less than Whispered

Yet in their communal prayer communication They lifted
A plaint that went up absorbed in the high heavens

There dissolved and mixed with those immensities Themselves

Rattled and shifted in mixing, became one with them,
With the high heavens immense.

Of earthly emotions there was dour suspension;
The doors were closed for Sovereign Night had Come

And still grew the queue that ceased not, that of Ancient ancestors

Along the shore of spells how many, many, more Came all the time!

The Angel on his harp with servant seraphs, Strung notes solemn verses epic and noble

For in that moment those verses were the verses.

The night rained its night-dews the same, slow and Steadily.

Then as the night deepened the spells transfigured and Transformed to mists of rainbow hues

Yet in the distant kilometers shone the mists as white For the night still Rained slow and weeping its serene night-dews.

The yolk of egg, the crown of white lilied beauties Floating Through those dense misted reigns they marched Over the waters to the tune of music And stringing of a million violins From all sides of the waters’ edges all around.

Thus proceeded forth the demure maidens over The growing frost They tiptoed light, so light, on the sea-bosom, And floated sighing by the water lilies.

Fragments all these, yet together gathered, They shape an Orchestra of Night still In the shaping.

You will stop at a fragment now, they have been Several And still the shaping of a structure still Not complete and never to be complete In evolution continues yet On the other side a percentage of it stays A structure rudimental, but a structure.

Thus we, we humans; thus with our lives incomplete And with what we accomplish incomplete However brilliant, however our sacrifices, However our toils till in deep midnight.
Evolution ensures no satisfaction, that from Completeness comes.

The silent skeleton always rattles with desires Plans thoughts and fires
That were to be accomplished yet were not Accomplished.

Even so, let us the silent skeleton take as our master Even as we breathe
He is the epitome relative of ruthless ever-going Evolution Let so be so.

And now
The sounds of violins lessen, lessen, lessen, Evaporate the mists, fade the long queues
That loaded all the edges of the waters,
And all the other things we sang of now,
They faded slow yet fast as the grains slip From under the hands of our stunned faces.

The Dawn advances soon it will be here.
Another day, another cycle
Yet another fading
Another night as the above in making In birth of Dawn next night be in the making

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sweet Coffin

The sweet coffin
Round
Go round
Without a sound.

Bare is the night Frowning starlight
A small rill growls
On trees wise owls

And on the sea Spirits swift flow
Shades of the past Sad shades
More sad will grow.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Sweet Curse

The sweet curse of
The night
Hung on The walls
Round the Olympian
Table
Before
The Olympian banquet.

Torches flared Voluptuous and immense Immense and beautiful Stress but in beauty
And sensuality
Of voluptuousness nocturnal
And
Thought upon thought Carnal.

Aye! The gods of old Humans be and we Humans be ancient gods
We at our sole will sung about
And versified
In hall of king
And emperor.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Tagus

The Tagus dances on the golden Vapors

The Tagus dances on the red of Dusk

The Tagus dances on the mirror of sleeping Stars.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Tanks Of Time

The tanks of time
In Youth
Ah! in Youth we care not For in the mists of beauty are they masked But still trudge, trudge, trudge Trudge all the same:
Yet
In ripening of age and years Clear the mists of beauty that were masks And peeled the vision, the tanks of time Reveals
Trudging, trudging, trudging ruthlessly,
With the ruthless turns of the wheels of time Without a pity, and without a wait Trudging, trudging, trudging ruthlessly.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Teacher

Stood
Up
The teacher
Asking:
Procrastination
Be
The Seed
Of Laziness Or Giving Sleep
And Oxygen Results
In An Awakening
To genius?

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Tempests

The sea is calm
The tempests went
That tore and ripped
The fort ago.

Yet
Though and all Albeit
With heavy heart
All linger I.

Though sea be calm Though tempests went
More tired roam
More drowsy-spent More lost
Directionless
More drowning in the Vats of cruel disappointments:
Though sea be calm
Though tempests went

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Theme Recurs

The theme recurs just As the donkey round
The water-mill
Ixion in punishment:
Drear was Drear is and Drear will be:
Motion that was Motion that is Motion that will be But ah! time is the succession
Of that motion:
Directly proportional thereto Equivalent
And drear.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Thought Deepens

The thought deepens, deepens, Heavy,
More heavier Grows
And rattling.

The brain
Under the stress works Labors in hammering

The Inner Soul is quiet Speaks not Thinks most
And more
And more.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Thought The Soul

The Verse
The Line
The Thought
The Soul Emotion
Calmed
Yet
Ticking
Ticking
But Ah!
The Brain Ticks
More Ticks
More!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Thunder Goes

As where
The thunder goes
And flares
Take me
Take me
The gardens
Right below are on Fire:
The trees are pyres of Dense smokes
The flower-beds the crypts Of mists that lower to The ground:
For it be Dawn Rough fellows pass
As figures to and Fro
Restless
Restless as the crowds Restless as the earth
Where trudge the crowds:
There
There verses go
My friend, and rule.
And you
Getting on their back Will rule too with
Them.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Time

The time
How passes it!
How fell
And bent
Our House!

So noble
And so great
And yet
So humbled
In the dust!

The last scene
Of last act
I wait
For
The time
How passes it!
How fell
And bent
Our House!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Time For You

The time for you
Was set
I set.
But
Now
Today
You exceeded
Time
And
Time exceed you

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Time Is Come

The time is come.
The time is come
To lay my magic wand
To rise and take Off my gold crown
The time is come.

Ay! Ay! Now I Am enough honest For me comes
The withered hand of Age
The dark of Night
Follows the reddening dusk
And paints with black
The azure eye-lids of the dreaming skies.

The time is come.

Already hear I
The seething sea
In one vast ocean surge coming and going
And on the heights
The light-house turns and turns Over the dark sea-waves it turns and turns.

And in the soul
The longing and the yearning now More, more than ever grow:
The breezes turn and come Unceasing is their flow
The insensate sub-conscious Switches its magic wand, turns on its switch
The breezes turn and come
And I
I Dream restless with my open eyes
No longer the dark night Will see my face be dark with sadness Nor fear pale my cheeks Nor ill or thought
Will longer throb my heart:

But now
In the long night I sail voyage begun
On the long rolling ocean and the breeze Fans continues my insensate dream.

And travel I and yet still think me stopped.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Time Is Come Dawn

The time is come
dawn
has arisen the light to Earth
is come!
and through the glooms
I saw Night wending slow with a bent head

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Time Is Come, The Time Is Come

The time is come, the time is come
And in to port victorious our ship sails
The waters green have silenced their hoarse roar
The skies no longer frown by great Jove pacified And by Phoebus’ golden mane full beautified:
Cast the oars! Cast the oars!
The haven is now found, the voyage stopped,
The guerdon got, the workman to his home
Now in full happiness to rest returns:
And the weary soldier to the welcome hearth
We sailors of the world to land return:
Cast the oars! Cast the oars!
The waters lap in coolness by the shade
Of the new-coming russet dusk
The night is still away.
Yon, yon the hill a welcome beacon burns
And there we’ll go to home and to the hearth
To a warm plate amidst the children’s leaps And the soft night by crackling fires cheered.

We are arrived my friends, we are arrived.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Time Is Passing

The time is passing
And
The mood is dancing
And
The nymphs are singing
In Transparent veils
Turning
Ah! glorious youth
Time that passes
Music that dances
Waters play violins

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Times Have Passed

The times have Passed
And ages
Have grown Wise yes
But old
Older
The machine has Rusted
Somewhat.

Ah! in
The circles of living
We bask
In to the glorious suns
Of youth
Then Imperceptible
We slide
We slide
We fall Fall down
Slowly
Slowly
As age
Rises
As the dusk Reddens
As the head Bends down
And Looks to earth Slow walking
Walking

In to age Drifting
The younger generation Takes over Slow and irresistible
Slow
Slow and unperceivable
Slow
Slow
The ageing fall by the Way
One by one
We
We too, my Monsignor,
We too
Are with those Who fall
One by one
One after the other
We, too,
We, too, my Monsignor

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Times Will Come

The Times Will Come
And Season After Season Cycle After Cycle Thrive:
The Heart Beating And Red Throbs So!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The title set the verses; the soul started Singing
Then the verses followed:
The Title is a Master of the Orchestra Consider it not verse in itself But Master of the Orchestra
Of verses.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Tombs Erect

The tombs erect suddenly stood up that was a rare right and a rare
cemetery.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Tongue Of The Serpent

The tongue of The serpent
Sung Silvery in the Moon lit glooms
For it was dark and
Sad.

Beauty hobbled
Yet Always on Its feet.

Romantic even in The sadism of a Winter-storm
The night lamps trembled Bravely Bravely on.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Torrent Burst

The torrent burst
in the night -
a vein of night?
and
in the dawn
it had spread yet
so much that dawn be fresh.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Tortous Lightings

The tortous lightings that Light in my mind-brain
Are saddened by you
Mother.

In the womb of thought
And
In the womb of enunciation Principles boil in to The forge of suffering.

And suffering be Directly proportional to Saddening.

Sad, sad, sad
Mother.

The tortous lightings that Light in my mind-brain
Are saddened by you
Mother.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Towers Bulging Out

The towers bulging out
Ah! they did so
At night
When spirits and demons
Let loose from graves Roamed around and around and
There
They made their wild Laments Processions with Flambeaux
And bones that walked
And marched
In skeletons.

Around the towers Mud
Green and murky Turned
And
In that mud
Millions of hostile Germs
Hostile above all
And
Most to humanity

And Stinking
Stinking
In that vapory dream
Of mists and twisted Thoughts:
And
The deep heat of The ghost night
Albeit around the cemetery Corners
Lurked and turned
The chill of winds.
And
Hidden in night darkening Mantle
Unseen
The curious Dawn watched all.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Town Never Stirred

In the whole night
The town never stirred
No, no even once
But as in a coma
Slept
But as in a coma Dreamed.

Nor the lightning
Nor the tempests
Of rainy
The howling of the gales
The cracks of thunder Woke the town from Coma.

For
The sub-conscious from Dusk onwards
So had took over the Whole town
It was one whole Big brain
In all hands

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Trash Of Life Was Slow

The trash of life was slow
As through clotted arteries and Veins
Slow moving Sinister
And dark as Styx.

They told me that Nowadays
There were children
Who loved the Gothic Horrible:
Let them then
Be on their way to Poet Seer Deep thinkers sad Profound
But beware of other roads
That be.

In life
As yet
We be at liberty
To take the road we will:
But
Some friendly advice
In the receptive ears
Whispered
Would do things nice.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Tree Of Days

The tree of days
One after one
As in a rosary lies
And grows

In growth no check
At night the dews Will bless and fall
And add to magic thrall

Ah! life! Ah! life!
That as the grains of sand Passes through fingers
And all we leave
And children verse and land.

Let land go Children and verse
Remain:
Let them not compete
But be the twain.

And day after day
The tree of days
With life grows
On its way.

The nights destroy it not But make nightingales Assuage her soul
And owls their wisdom
Pour.

The day bear on it Poor tree! It waits and Yearns for night and sighs Till the first curtain of dark and White stars lights.
The Inner Soul of us Are one Just one with
The tree of days:
And with joy
On rare occasions
And so often sorrow Through all the day
Wishing a newer morrow
That in turn to the same Or worse turns history

For
The tree of days
One after one
As in a rosary lies
And grows

The tricks of life have The propensity to facilitate knowledge.

If life had feet
It would have propensity to move

The Twilight

The twilight
Trembling
Trembling
That
Was Just our fare
For
The
Night
The rest was cold
Outside
Inside
The Hunger
Gnawed
But
More
The Sadness
For what the beauty of the stars
That peeped?
And of the moon?
No, no, only sadness
And
The frost
The chill
The iron first
Of Suffering
These
Were
The Notes
That Came Jarred
Broken
From
That Deep Sadness:
And Night Taking Pity strayed its clouds
Over the heavens
Immense
Of
The cold
And sweat of the blood passion

The Usual Rote Of Sadness

The Usual rote
Of sadness

The usual night
Of stars

The usual night
Of silence

The usual tiredness

The usual mind-beckoning
To rest and sigh

The usual drear of Night
In
The increase of dejection

Day and Night
And Night and
Day I move to the Edge
The cliff edge Beckons.

The Verses As Humans After A While

In their proud – justly so – state And first more recognition demand Then next a higher recognition on Their feet they walk as does the Poet Seer Who fathered them. Then they on sudden Plot and conspire long on long deserted plains In secret caves and coves, not by the sea, Then from their plotting and their whispering
A plan hatching; they in sacred revolt arise As humans do to liberate themselves to free.
And though they add not to the original state Of resplendence relative yet they From their father Poet Seer decree independence.

O! what an Earth! Those to whom we give birth Become our pirates often, often so:
We that we weaned in joy and treasuring
We that pined when we saw them sick
Protected them when in danger to preserve
To the last iota every line of them:
Yet see, how often occurs then
They rise, set themselves free in sovereign Solitary haughty independence
And we, their bearers and their makers
Treat with cold reserved independence.
As so many children, yet, on raising Families, that in themselves detach, Axe and sub-divide the parent families.

From long,
From long when Jove against great Saturn rose, and him placed In a miserable exile from his status Great:
Replace a dynasty by new dynasty Family that spring another Replaces by new family
The same,
The same,
The same.

O! what an Earth! Those to whom we give birth Become our pirates often, often so:
We that we weaned in joy and treasuring
We that pined when we saw them sick
Protected them when in danger to preserve
To the last iota every line of them:
Yet see, how often occurs then
They rise, set themselves free in sovereign
Solitary haughty independence
And we, their bearers and their makers
Treat with cold reserved independence.
As so many children, yet, on raising
Families, that in themselves detach,
Axe and sub-divide the parent families.

Speak to me often!
I, parent
Feel abandoned:
The verses have independence
That most like to indifference
Speak to me often!

O! what an Earth! Those to whom we give birth Become our pirates often, often so:
We that we weaned in joy and treasuring
We that pined when we saw them sick
Protected them when in danger to preserve
To the last iota every line of them:
Yet see, how often occurs then
They rise, set themselves free in sovereign
Solitary haughty independence
And we, their bearers and their makers
Treat with cold reserved independence.
As so many children, yet, on raising
Families, that in themselves detach,
Axe and sub-divide the parent families.

The Verses Ended

Abrupt
Abrupt
The verses ended
For the trembling
In the lyre's heart Had ended:
What ravished magic rose
At the first strike Now's faded
And the Poet Seer's voice
Is hoarse and jaded

The Verses Slow And Sultry Now

The verses slow and sultry now
Move as half opened lips
Parched throats, faces of white,
Fear entrenched where soldiers
Thrived in channels, in tunnels,
And in trenches
The night had been there and a Passer-by half-drunk with Absinthe had spotted some white Into an otherwise dark relative Starless night that slipped Oily to a shore where waited Slowly a rats, three hedgehogs, Eight flowers that rose their Heads from the torpor of a waning
Dusk
A surfeiting it was that waned them all.
Round after round of poisoned yew dews Drank in the Tavern below Olympus
The night, one after one, he drank them In a gourd from broken coconuts:
That had in them the incantations of A witches’ night:
That had in them the seed of murky Mists and yellow perilous fright:
The verses slow and sultry now
Move as half opened lips
Parched throats, faces of white,
Fear entrenched where soldiers
Thrived in channels, in tunnels,
And in trenches

The Verses Splash The Computer.

The verses splash the computer.
The keyboard ticks.
Midnight approaches
And
With it
The new day.

New day!
Day past your birth day
Mother!

A birthday not as the last Birthday:
Hoar and white
You lie in the sad earth

Over you the charnel stones Above the mourning chill
The cemetery trees.

And here my broken heart.
O mother!
Mother of a broken Poet Seer.

The Vesper Song

There
The vesper song
The vesper chant
That
With wind goes
Along
Whole fairy Throng
One after
The other
As shadows
Swift and grey
Pass
And re-pass
The chill winds of the Night
Blow fast Blow light
In to the face and under Star lit domes
For
Dawn be still far away
Quite far away!

Fear and stress
Angst and drear Conscious conscience
Sweating

The Vinegar Of Life Touches All Of Us

The vinegar of life touches all of us

And all of us drink, drink, the cup that is offered us to the rim or almost, not much willingly

And therefore let us those below on nether earth, revere

Sweet dance

See
They have grown little feet
And
The vessels dance
And
The vessels dance

Awhile
The rhythm plays
One Unmistakable
And the violins play
And the violins play

And as paper boats
That on the waters Float Leaning Leaning
Now here
Now there
A thunder flash
So rare!
And then drizzles of rain
Sweet
They fit dance to an Irish

But above all
There be one sweet song
One sweet Voice
And the violins play
And the violins play

The Visit To The Countryside

The visit to the countryside
I liked Passed by the humming electric wires
The humming bees of night My desire cosmic turned With every step I made
And of the stars
And of the moon
My mind thought far And burned
And on and on Continued I
Pace after pace
The country through the night Without a drop of sleep, I,
Pace after pace
Pace after pace
To see the Dawn ban the night stars
Then
Wonder of the seas!
Out of the waters rose the Dawn
And light from the salt seas.

The Wagons Of The Train

With cranking hit
The wagons of the train
Moved here, moved there Ah! the Train of Life
Goes on and on Through country and Through fields
Through towns
Under and above bridges Waters, clouds,
Over and under hills,
By sea and over seas,
Vision and dark,
All wild, and beauty
In some mode:
Ah! this be life
This be the Train of Life Although
The wagons move here,
Move there,
The Train of Life goes
On and on Through sorrows and Through pains Sacrifice and blood and Sweat
The Train of Life goes on And on and on

The Wall

The Wall it burns ah!
In the night
It turns a twilight red It burns
It burns
And yet
No tongue of fire Comes

The Wall
It was built long Long of centuries
Ago
Arm lengths of time
How much they heard
And saw
And Even whispers heard
Centuries ago
Repeat they echoing Echoing
As caves
And caverns do

The Castle round Abandoned and Half dilapidate Mourns with An open ear
The grim hand of Fear
Throughout the night
It moves over dark seas
IT moves
It moves
Till Dawn it moves!

The Wanton Waves On The Shores

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Waste In The Head

In the Head there Arose Thought against Thought Note against Note
Discovery fought discovery
Yet
The universe carried on And just said:
'These are the birth pangs, Again, yet again!'

Spoke
Again
The mass universe:
'Let them struggle!
Let them be confused Awhile!'

And
The Pharisee from His armchair said:
'What waste! I must Purge ourselves of waste!'

Then
Angered and indignant Spoke the Heavens:
'Leave alone
Leave alone Pharisee!
For from this what You Waste
Noble towns and Institutions Will arise
And All
And Geniuses'

And spoke not the Pharisee.
The Water From The Tap Dropt In The Pail

The water from the tap dropt in the pail
Drop, dropp by drop, it dropped It never stopped:
Like life’s flow it went Unheeding day or night or dusk or dawn:

I looked and thought how dropp by drop My consolation grew proportional As the pail got filled all dropp by drop And water dropped and dropped As my consolation grew.

Hope at last lit her faint niche in my heart.

The waters closed
The waters closed at dusk
The waves hummed slow Yet sure and sweet
The coves and caves
Replied:
Though waters closed

And the old reign of magic In Earth’s hearth
Under
The watchful gaze of caring Stars
Restore

Go up:
Yes
Sadly fall
And Further fall:
Youth passed Popularity fell Strength melted.

For
The waters
Fall
The waters fall Down rock to

Down rock by rock
They fall
And fade
Flattened all.

The Waters Loom

Small verse
The waters loom The mists be A doom.
Dawn having woken
Her light in the Port Dances round the Ships bustling and Depressed.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Waters Mild

The waters mild Pass
To-night
With little motion
They yearn for Time
To stop
Yet Time obliges
But in part only Stops here by a castle
There by a ford
There by a scented garden
There by a soil-damp meadow
Yet
As on wings now fast
Now less in flight
He passes; passes on and
Waters
Gleam twilight-silver nearly As the waters in the dusk Mixed with moon.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Waters Of Life

The waters of life
they run into a stream by green banks humid how flowed they just three months ago!

But now
But now
The stream is slowing that three months ago so gaily flowing

now
the waters of life
enter into the threshold of the languid
waning
and result in the life-day
slowly
fading
yet not yet fading

The Waters Wild Shriek In The Night.

The waters wild shriek in the Night.

The night dews rise and dance
Then fall.

The winds are quiet but hum Quietly.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Water-Wraiths Are My Voice To-Night.

The water-wraiths are my Voice to-night.

The sea-waves are the same Voice as the water wraiths.

And the sea-waves are restless, spume on rocks, like spitting
The venom and the poison to-night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Water-Wraiths Are Shrieking In The Waters To-Night

The water-wraiths are shrieking in the waters
To-night

The dance of fear on the waves lights that come and go
To night

The water-wraiths are restless, somber in their woes
Tonight

The water-wraiths have been gathering sadness and anger

And the water-wraiths are bursting that collected sadness And anger to-night.

Below
Stretched the nocturnal sea and deep And the benighted waters Spells all round

Clucked wise and rarely
On an oaken bough.

The Weather Vane

The weather vane
It crackled
And the wind Turned round

The Wheel Of Time Saw I

The Whirr Of Wings, Fluttering.

Throughout the night
The whirr of wings,

The Whisperer

'Yes some thing as that, '
Grumbled the Whisperer
Over head the frowning clouds Struck seven.

To the last Continued he Though through meandering Morasses and jungle-thick Trees and wood vast He had to get past
Now struck nine.

The whining leaves Regaled a scent
Particular to the owls
The wise owls had Their appetite
As open as stark caves
And liquid belting coves
'Yes some thing as that, '
Grumbled the Whisperer.

Fish swam
In the archetypal pond A dragon by Lizard like spit out His forked rose tongue
And
From his nostrils
Smoked
A scent of Orient Pearls.
'Vere on sea to-day, '
The waters spoke.

Then Came a garbled pilgrim Garbed in a multi-colored tunica

Time knelt before him Bent his head
In submission Smiled the pilgrim

The multi-colored pilgrim
'Yes some thing as that, '
Grumbled the Whisperer
Over head the frowning clouds Struck eleven.

The Will Of The Poet Seer

Vanished
The Poet Seer.

One week after All the town knew ‘The Poet Seer is vanished’

Then one said:
‘His will?’

Another said:
‘Go fetch his house’

And they went and found The will.

And read aloud
In front of the whole crowd.

‘Friends when you find me
Not Look in to my verses Read and read
And the more you read
The more you see of me
The more you have of me.’

So short?
One said.

‘Yes’, said the Philosopher ‘that was a Will’.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Wind, How The Wind Neighs, How Slow

The wind, how the wind neighs, how slow
How stale the bosom of the lake
How rare the rustling of the breeze
In the oak trees.

The sun shines faint, the clouds how grey They turn, how still scarce moving they
And in the poplar trees in row A yellow leaf falls every now and then.

How dull the day, how quaint
The slow-gurgling water falls
From the still mill, a solitary bee Or bird flies now and then
Into the quiet.

No animals their sittings hold On the lea that greened some months ago
And now from the Far East
A chill wind starts to blow.

'Tis not yet Winter, 'tis not yet frost
The trees are not bare, but still And rare the rustling of the breeze
In the oak trees.

The owl on her old bough full staring sits
And looks and looks but does not stir or move.

The moon will soon shine languid-sick.
How stale the bosom of the lake
How rare the rustlings of the breeze
In the oak trees.

The Windows Clank

I
Hear
The windows
Clank
I feel
The winds want
To come in
But are clipped off Assailants of the

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Windows Rattle

The windows rattle
Then
Of sudden quiet
The houses
That for century after century Dreamt in the sunset and Dreamt in the dusk
Now melt
In sleep and dreams
In
The reign of the Sub-Conscious Might:
Empery of fairies elves and Ghost and shroud - so many!
So many a train
Before the Dawn on Earth
Again to smile!

Emmanuel George Cefai
The Winds

the winds neigh horse-like a wild horse
to-night

the dews they fall on flowers bent cold and then warm
to-night

the clouds they dance and music make eye be in orchestra

ah! for the heavens
they as for them like the orchestras

and after all these orchestras as of night be as of Ocean and sea and gulping caves
that hoot around.

scream the high bats scream the white spumes scream the high rocks
and sleep
and dream

the water's edges high and low eye dance the Song of Morgue
the Song of Night
and in the mirror of the Night
glisten fiery red their burning eyes.

the rains they bend they sag from clouds they drone they swell they go around and in that dark distribute their sound

Anon, anon, as to a rock Prometheus bound his groans are
heard then comes with book of magic too Merlin with his beard.

in dreams
how much looks as in day but more looks far away some little further some further still some other day.

and all
the while two civilizations lie themselves side by side and into Motion and his love Time they wash and glide:
for
the winds neigh horse-like a wild horse
to-night

The Woods

The woods are there for walking Outside the city
My breathe begin to tranquillize
From the hammering nervousness of town

Down
The Soft Valley There’s Still
Time Left
Till Dusk
And Vespers
I
Will Return
Then Thistles
On My Feet Hurried
Walking
Down
Down Crushing
At Times
With sighs
a rose
here
a violet
there
I Nearly Fell Off
To Avoid Colliding
In a hedgehog....

Time passes
Time is ruthless Time does not wait
The first vespertine bell Is quickly Followed
Towards the end.
People to their homes Return
I remain a little To see the red cheeks
Of a fading red dusk.
Then go I too.
Sere leaf after sere leaf Crispy
Under my weary feet
And tired brain.
Closes the door of home
My castle.
Till midnight remains
Time to be the lord
Of this warm castle.

The Wounds Of May

The wounds of May
Now

The Wrath Of Sea

The wrath of sea
Begins
Way beyond
The mysteries of the horizon.

For beyond the beyond
There beckons
Always
A beyond
Another
And Another
And Another.

The calm relative
Of the sand and dust
By the beach and
The water-line Are awaiting The foot prints
Of the goblins fauns
Satyrs and nymphs
This night of nights

Then

Then
Will you pine at the red dusk as you Did yesterday with those jet-black eyes?
- Asked I

I will see, said she, what I feel then.

Ah! Woman how you distribute Your emotions as by interlude A play, scenes, acts, go by.

In the declining sun of yesterday
I saw three children play About the same age were they And laughed and laughed and laughed
As from school away
They rolled over the darkling green And wondered with wide eyes at The moon’s growing sheen At the popping night-stars they
In the declining day of yesterday.

2011
The year has come: a month ago
My heart trembled at each hour
That the new year came nearer:
Now what was exceptional is Become routine:
So life, so history move, Ruthless, mechanical, and clinical.

In the dark night of years and centuries Down in to the sump of ages
And of gravities Saw I the planets circulating
And yet
The sun danced strangely side to side Coming back where it started from What distance covered on one side To the other went; neutral and as Unmoving went, though ever-moving was.

And so the Voice of the Poet-Seer went:
The rays of the then scorching sun bent Themselves to the sea and to grounds Below where vast the long horizon abounds:
In the declining day of yesterday.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Then all the Masks of sudden stopped.
Then all the Masks bent gracefully.
Then all the Masks farewell partook
Each to each, with respectful reciprocity.
And soon in the air as the night-stars
One by one light at the flight of Red dusk – so these Masks in the Air
And Vapors Blue within less than minutes
Five
Disappeared and on the place
There stood the trees a-shivering
And the wind still blowing wild
And the rain falling, and the chill
And frost and the rain pattering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Then He Rose

And Then he rose and Felt the strength Of past days in His blood Overflow.

Great was his shadow as The giant moved.

Round one word or a few
There circles all.

And round him there circled
The All.

Reduced the All to One.

Emmanuel George Cefai
then in another hall entered we.
There I shouted 'Einstein!' and stopped for Minerva motioned to me.
I stopped for control of emotions is as directly proportional to their playing and engineering as of them:
and vice-versa to the same These as the philosophers speaking were and in the same way one spoke the others silent stood all civilly then all spoke one by one and in such wisdom I enchanted felt as in the company of gray philosophers
and more;
Many a time I wanted to intervene; Minerva understood and smiled and on her lips
she her finger put and I silent remained Amidst that august assembly.
'After all, ' Minerva said as we beckoned outside that hall 'That be all of humanity. Those be examples, and examples to be.
Humanity to rise en masse and equal them. Arise as them, humanity hath faculty, but with faculty must come dedication and sacrifice.'
So ended she towards another hall Led me that I would view the halls of all the Castle in that visit tall.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Then In That Hall There Were Voices

low but calm-serene and almost whispering of gray philosophers:
I heard one speak, the others stopped and heard intently:
that was civility; that civilization be.
Of all things spoke they yet I understood [Though being of their kind their words by other humans too to be understood] Enchanted I heard discourse after other and at times saw I that Minerva smiled with pleasure at my pleasure Enchanted stood I in that august assembly and the pit of humility felt I amidst that austere august assembly.
The which Minerva noting said:
'Shore up your spirits! You too to the same belong, as after all, all humanity who will to sacrifice their lives for wisdom too' I replied not; and I let Minerva pass before me seeing that that she wanted to show to another hall.
She moved first; she led; I followed
And in another hall we went.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Then In That Time There Danced

Then in that Time there danced Masks in a place by the woods
where the trees shivered and trembled in the frost and chill.
Yet the Masks danced, danced
silent:
some on human feet; some manifested on all fours; some a tail beneath the frac of white or black but behind a Mask
all faces are the same and equal stand.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Then In The Night I Walked On The Stars

Then in the Night I walked on the stars
Then in the Night I walked in pain
When I began to walk I was in pain
But when an hour passed the pain Began to diminish till to zero came:
Then hear me, walk with me,
When in the Night I walked with stars.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Then In The North Sang The Wind

Then in the north sang the wind
Then from the north came the chill
And then the rain that formed a little rill
And splashed with rain-drops the dreamy window-sill
Yes dreamy! The housed dreamt and slept
When before their pining eyes wept
At the red dusk’s fall and passing
At the night unwelcome coming
At the grow popularity of night
As star by star he cunning light:
Then in the north sang the wind
Then from the north came the chill
And the rain formed (see above) a little rill.
Uli sere feri ghere Pesi fere teli mere

Emmanuel George Cefai
Then In The Red Challenge

Then in the red challenge
Of the paramount dusk
There was the reign also Of twilight on the seas.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Then In To The Night Pray

Then
In to the night pray
If thunder you will roar Roar gently:
My fear grows

Then
In to the night pray
If rain you will patter Patter gently:
My fear grows

Then
In to the night pray
If wind you will blow Blow gently:
My fear grows

Hear Hear the windows and The doors
Creak – they creak already Though but red dusk is Still on wing of flight.

And the sea waves I hear Rustle
Rustle
Rustle as they hostile Enter into the port
Those soldier-sailors of the benighted dark:
And tempests will be as centuries were
And as the tempests were in centuries old
In old Valletta

Emmanuel George Cefai
Then
On reaching the edge of The garden
We looked over the
Waters
Sparkling with fizzy moon’s
Light Silver ware on display from
Above
Fireworks of the sea
In front
The towns dormant and Lighted to night’s tune
The moon is not enough!
The stars
Look interested spectators
In this show free of charge.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Then Sounded The Beagle.

Then
Sounded the beagle.
It was an instrument of heaven
By heaven for heaven.
Ceased the thunder roars
And
The lurid lightning struck not
More.
Rested the ancient town
From the cacophony of that Orchestra of wild raw sound
And Night made it enter more on Rote
Yet in the Conscious as yet
For
In the Sub-Conscious brains
There worked There wrought
a new civilization
Every day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Then The Computer Rang: The Computer?

Then the computer rang: the computer?
Do computers ring?
On New Year’s Day it rang yet!
So I assert and so it be.
This is my philosophy and so It be too the philosophy:
For what we assert be, and what be Not all, not all assert full we.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Then The Full-Fledged Fleshy Poems

Then
the full-fledged fleshy poems of
verse and song
I dissect line by line
And will each line to be A poem.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Then Through The Forest Thicket

Then
Through the forest thicket Cut he:
Bough on bough
He brushed aside
The moon shone not Through such thick foliage Wild and savage Kindred animals of the Night
Broke raw and random
That misty silence:
Then
The Scream
The Voice that from Heaven
Broke
The pre-birth of that Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Then Through The Pain The Rain Drops Pass.
Then through the pain the rain drops
Pass.
Strange, but let this happen.
O! better that these things happen.
Better for life to rise, then
It is energy that proportionately rises.
That is my night, for this be winter.
So it is my season too.
Just towards the end was I not born
In Winter?
The Fishes were in their reign, the pond
Of human genes was mixing, but Not enough.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Then When She Gives Birth You Will Say

See how easy it was, how feared we In vain: I love to park by Hastings Gardens if Only you will allow me:
Or I need.
But I live in Valletta – so what need?
Below the bastions froths the ancient sea Ancient with ancient go forth merrily.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Then, The Bells Rang

Then
The bells rang
Then
The chapel lighted
Then
The country lanes in the dust
Then
The horse was heard coming
Then
The hooves were heard beating
Then
The dust was seen flying:
Then
The seas dark were moon shining
Then
The horseman crossed the edge
Then
He dropped slow into the sea and safe
Then
The horseman and horse walked on the sea
Then
Night when they passed yielded to Dawn
Then
The legend had been consummated.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Then, Then Again The Eerie Voice

Then, then again the eerie Voice
That dread
Spread through its nasal microphone
Chanted again as if by sheer programming:
'Be merry sirs, no human sees
Hum hum around like nightly bees
Or like the crickets on the summer nights.
But merry be.
The waters trickle.
The gutters full.
Slope the water-rains.
The heavens open remain.
Rain falls.
Thunder opens white in rage
its mouth.
Then vibrating Earth
it sounds.
One after another Light
after Light
the Thunder goes.
One after another Sound
after Sound
the Thunder goes.
And the day is in throes.
The red dusk fled.
Throne has been left
Into the hands of night.
Be merry, Sirs, the storm
Has ushered humans in:
To their warm hearth and home
And most now sleep profound
Go round, round and round
For no human espies
Long, long and far
the Dawn be; your faces
have many hours to whiten
with pale fear of new Dawn and Day.
Be merry, dance, round
and round,
without a sound, silent,
ghosts and shrouds, animal,
bust and All, dance, merry be:
The storm will last as long
As the night be with me.'
So said the Voice then stopped.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Appeared A Child

Before me
There appeared A child
And then another
A succession Child after child
As in a mirror
And
At each child
I groaned
And
The ground me
The millstone of My conscience's misery

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Be A Captive

There be a captive in the Snow
I saw snow Ferreted
Out
And heavy breath
A brief mist
And then
The tiny feet
Of
The struggling hedgehog Even we
We
Humans
Struggle in the snow of life
Struggle in the gales of storms Struggle in the chill of emotions Struggle in the sere leaves of sorrow Struggle in the culture of the sad Struggle in the pining eyes of despair Struggle in the hunger and the parched throat Struggle, struggle, in the last throes Of the human rights activist
The Poet Seer that be
That was
That will be
In struggle, struggle, struggle

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Be A Day In The Humdrum

There be
A day in the humdrum
But
The Will says:
‘Though I be not strong
To carry on for a week Yet I will all the Energy draw and Sap
As in a single day:
Then fall
But for a single day
I will be king
I be Sophocles
I will Archimedes be And Prometheus

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Be A Happiness In Drear

There be a happiness in drear
there be a joy in drear
there be a chill in the spine
yes in drear

and in that chill in the spine my spectlaces lighted as night stars
but by the way that was just yesterday

there be a happiness in drear
there be a joy in drear
there be a chill in the spine
yes in drear

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Be A Joy

There be a joy
In fading embers

Souls that walk
The nights alone

Detached from the Crowds
Of ghosts and shrouds

There be joy
Even if night and dark

There be joy
Even if Dawn far away

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Be A Mellowness In The Voice

There be a mellowness in the voice
echo
of startled stars milk
of tears of Milky Way lane
of Saint Anne's Way
emotions
of your breast and beautiful eyes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Be A Notepad

There be a notepad of the dark winding
labyrinths
of waters clanking slow yet musical how beauty duly her web and mesh prepares!

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Be A Sword

Of all of us for all of us
there be a Sword that hangs over the head of each of us.

Till Immortality be brought to shore the Sword will hang as a guillotine we have to stay under when it falls at and in its will.

Not us.
Not us.
Not us.
Though for all of us.
Of all of us.
We in the Sub-Conscious just wait but know not days or months or years
calculate when the Sword fall will in the last.
Then the Head be severed and silent roll
with splurging blood.
And then that's the last Scene of the last Act of each 's play individual.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Be A Whole Civilization

There be a whole civilization
Of words the repetition:
After all
It is the case of Cyclical
So much of life in that
So much
So much
So much!

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Be Another Reign To-Night

There be another reign
To-night
For
In the night
Who is not elevated Who be not raised Somewhat in nobility?

The gorges smile
Smile in the moon light That lessens as the Gorges deepen.

The shrouds and ghosts
In council high Aggregate below
At the pitch bottom
Of the hideous gorges:
There
They whisper and conspire
The plans for the next day, Next month, year,
Century.
For these See in terms of centuries
To come
These
Bring with them
The Ages and the Fates
Down
Down
In the dimly moon-lit Gorges

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Be Divinity

Poet seer

There be divinity

There be incense
Here
Incense to the sacred

Dull the heavens
Roar

Grey-dark the Oceans Soar

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Be Emotions

there be emotions that be glaciers the coldest chill is in their tip
so with icebergs:
for emotion
resides in all, is one of all:
the cart-wheels of the night rumbled through the streets and steps of the old city:
as in a war
the throng of ghosts and
shrouds
alterative marched routes I will suffer
so long as I have strength to suffer:
I will draw on the sub-conscious too
so long as I have strength
in the sub-conscious the cutting-edge, the knife glistening in the dark silhouettes amidst the trees clustered head to head.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Be Fine Moments

There be fine moments
Where the brain sings
Where the brain thinks Not always
Yet
Not often overmuch
But neither rare.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Be No Voice

There be no voice
That suffragates me
From dark oblivion.

I suffer Suffer in pain and Sacrifice
Yet silent

Float through The awnings of the ship of life Float
Sub conscious
In dark silence

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Be Pain

There be pain
And
There be suffering
I know them
I know
I know
There be fruit from thorns
That grow
There be genius from the Suffering There be beauty from the Bed Amongst sick
In hospitals.
Beauty hovers in these places
There Beauty wills her shrine
For Beauty pities so Amongst pain, amongst suffering!

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Be Pain In Exile

There be pain in exile, even if voluntary.

Yet as in all in the mass universe
A percentage of joy however minimal.

And I scented the air, and that was the gift, the only gift I willed to make for myself.

and I scanned the air, for those were my friends

And I beheld the Dawn to the last till her disappearing for that was my new breath

And warmed my hands in the rays of the rising sun the exile emarginated be content with part of the whole!

even an ever-increasing smallness, fraction, does!

and in exile there was freedom that I made by escaping chains though I suffer as the Jews suffered in Babylon

yet beneath the stroke of the ferule and the spattering of blood drops and the pain and the groans and the shouts
I have come in to my exile, grown and yet to grow in it!

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Comes Mourning

There comes mourning at the end Vague watercolor of Ghost and shrouds
In procession
In procession
And the eyes that swim around And the silence full abounds Tragedy after tragedy
 Strikes and funereally
All in mourning
All in shrouds
All in rattling skeletons
And at night
The sound of chains Long the streets
And groans aloud!

Emmanuel George Cefai
There He Passed

There he passed
And
It was night Long his nose Almost a sword
Yet
His eyes how cunning Rolled!
Yet
His clothes colored bizarre!
Ah!
That was five centuries ago
And he faded in the ages Was he wise as wisest sages!

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Is A Justice Below The Heavens

There is a justice below the heavens
That in a way levels every-body Human with human, and human with non-human:
A justice they used to say that is:
Writ in the heavens; though observed below.

Pope and emperor (of old): king and President and prime minister;
The grave-digger; the head of department;
The soldier; the cleaner; the free;
The prisoner; what else, what else:
All these are flattened long-term below the heavens
By that unwritten justice.

‘Tis a justice that is not corrupt nor can Be bribed or bought or prejudiced:
Moving constant as the stars and suns Ruling without war, or law, or parliaments
It needs not armies;
Yet holds us all and we, and we,
Respect it all the more for what it is Respect from our hearts, not fear – For after all we agree with what we have to.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Is A Shadow That Awaits Restless

There is a Shadow that awaits restless
Under the penumbra of the sunset Then under the growing beauties Of the red dusk: the glaciers Broke into fragments and the night Covered them with his cloths.

You see, you see, said I
The night is moving slow to-night
That is you must profit:
Yes, you must profit:
You must profit where there is every thing
At least, try,
That’s Economics:
And the more so in beauty

See,
See the pre-historic temple, the Stones, giant and standing,
And above the clouds that fly:
Those were reared by Humans By Human hands were reared they:
And I said: Let us have life.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Is A Town

There is a town, in it
There be sunny mornings Even in April, March, Interspersed with storm
And shower and Rustlings of the seas
Restless
As the restless palms that Hover over the high bastions
As yet to ears of Poet Seer
The city sighs
It sighs.

There is a town the even In April, March blooms with Flower and decked in Flower pots the buildings Smile even in the dust of
Some
And interspersed with storms
That come, that go Some days, not always Even in winter's height:
As yet to ears of Poet Seer
The city sighs
It sighs.

There is a town that Even Night bids not Beauty away:
Nay
Beauty increases with the dusk
Red dusk
And in the night continues In the lighted wonders of The city lights
And peace
As yet to ears of Poet Seer
The city sighs
It sighs.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Is An Inner Lining

There is an inner lining
But
That is in the most Of inner parts of me Where torture and Degradation reach not:
Where
The mirth of Christmas Blocks.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Is Hunger Again

There is hunger again
again in the Soul running
blood of the graven gods and statues:
temples pass
one after the other
the reign of images and the reign of terror interchange and Intertransform

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Is No Hail

There is no hail
That falls this frosty morn
But in the distant fields
The thunder lights and claps.

The grey skies dim and sere Lie - the waters wild Half-grey and murky move With every gust of wind.

Above, above in every house
The lights go up with dawn
And one by one
The lights like stars of night
One by one become alight.

A rare bird flies
Across the turgid sky
A bat returns
From its night rounds to hang itself Where human eyes see not.

And down the city stairs
The flurry of hurried feet every now and then The driving of the car, its razing heard:
And fits and gusts of wind Around the corner play.

If day can be so sad and drear then what will the night be?

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Is So Much To Learn

There is so much to learn A whole University of Verse
A whole University in Verse

Thought as a bee Sucks flower after flower That of Verse be

For
There be so much to discover
There be
So much of new civilization
So
Much
Reflection of the olden civilizations In Verse in Thought, in Thought in Verse!

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Must Be

There
Must Be Here
Down
From
The Soil
Of
The Earth
There
Must Be Here
The Treasure
Of Silence
Silent
Suffering Martyrdom
The buds and seeds and sprouts Of rights

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Must Be A Justice

There must be a justice
Below the mighty heavens
There must be a justice.

Too many, too many injustices Scar the face of this Earth, every day, day by day

Too many, too many.
Too much, too much,
The Pain,
The sufferings,
The malice.

There must be a justice
A justice where hearts rest
A justice where the Souls, The Inner Souls be blest A justice
Below the mighty heavens.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Must Be Wondrous Things

There must be wondrous Things
To us.

These
Will to verse and song Prompt me.

And you, my Monsignor?

Emmanuel George Cefai
There the oil-lamp burnt.
Flickering of times as
In a film of history
It burnt and lighted.

Creaking heard I in the Humid crypt wherein Flickering and burning
The light dimmed yet turned

And scene after scene
The whole tale went
The whole tale built
And that was history.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There The Vessel Rolled To Left

There the vessel rolled to left
To right as incense in a censer Swung by devout hands of sacred Votaries in sound less nocturnal Shrines

The verses as wheels oiled turned First as slow, then little more,
Then more, more and more and More till they wheezed all around.

Yet when to the Shrine of the Muse Came they barefoot knelt they
In that nocturnal cemetery silence-sound And down the hills amidst occasional Cricket hisses tiny eyed glow worms abound.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Was

There was A martyrdom of things
A Rubicon of fire And rivers of History as Fires molten from Aetna Marched.
I saw the Perspex
That of a sudden stood
Before me,
There were three ghosts Nine hedgehogs and a Crowd motley of turkeys
And of doves.
Pigeons were cooing but Quite distant.
Then a loud lightning
The night heralded and Exploded.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Was A Boar’s Head:

There was a Boar’s Head:
Tall and high,
he towered above all, and his feet brown and far from human stood,
yet
with calculated paces round and round
he went.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Was A Buzz At Night

There was a buzz at night
In the closed shops of Flowers
The petals furled
The bees exception took
The more
They loudly knocked
At the doors of their Paramours
That yet opened not

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Was A Flute

There was a flute
But
High up in the skies
The heavens
Resound it
In the cold desert Stretching Stretching
With distant snow-capped Mountains:
The desert stretched Blue and mysterious
And Flared the musicians Airy
And lithe
In the wild desert
In the air
The heavens
And then
Then Lights went up
And down
Flickered
And the desert
Was as a desert of A million flutes
And more
All playing
Playing simultaneously.
Playing.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Was A Goblin

There was a goblin
he had just got out of the dripping waters.

there was a nymph she took her
transparent veils
swam in the waters.

night looked and smiled the stars turned red a little, over the horizon joined straddling sea and night

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Was A Head That Like A Sibyl

There was a Head that like a Sibyl grinned; behind was it a Sibyl
or else?
Still like the others danced
As all danced mechanical Unearthly and ghastly their look
And more since mid-night struck
the more.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Was A Poet Seer And He Loved The Stars.

There was a Poet Seer and he loved the stars.
He loved the red dusk and the golden sunset Turning to orange that heralded dusk.
He reveled in the twilight waters of the dusk.
And pined with tears in his eyes at the going away
And fading of red dusk.
He, the Poet Seer loved the coming night That was a-pulling the curtain of the dark And on his golden axled car Light from a golden torch of fire continuous
The night stars to fire and to burning
One by one.
There was a Poet Seer who loved to wake
To view the shadows and the ghosts and shrouds March in the golden marches torch in hand
There was a Poet Seer who loved to hear The striking of midnight deep down in heart.
There was a Poet Seer who loved.
There was.
There be.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Was A Poet Seer And The People Gathered Round

There was a Poet Seer and the people gathered Round

Dusk was deepening and the night's advent was In the first stars.

And the people said to the Poet Seer: 'We are Thirsty'

And the people said to the Poet Seer: 'We hunger'

And then the Poet Seer said to the people:
'I will give you water that you may not thirst;
But
This is not water as you know
But water of the Soul in verse and song.
And
I will give you food but not material food
Yet
It will fill the Soul, The Inner Soul,
With desperation and the will to think.
And you will think
And the propensity will be
That of great things and thoughts and noble Thoughts and deeds you think.'

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Was A Poet Seer Of Old Ago

There was a Poet Seer of old ago there was a Poet Seer of mien sad there was a Poet Seer wose heart bespoke there was a Poet Seer who drowned in his emotions poisoned by old foes
there was
there was a Poet Seer

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Was A Return Of Blood

There was a return of blood
the sap within the green
the Muse to the lyre

ah! in the courts and palace how rote-routine the kudos and the fire of life not just relative!

there was a return of blood
the sap within the green
the Muse to the lyre

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Was A Skeleton Head:

There was a Skeleton Head:
though somewhat exposed
it was made so that all the zones
were covered that were not white bones:
mysterious, mysterious danced it
in that cavalcade of dark and silent din.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Was A Sphinx Head

There was a Sphinx Head
and mystery added all around silent it moved yet with the rest it moved and danced

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Was A Time

There was a time when humor was of the stars was of the heavens
immense

that was a rare time huge current-waves gulped bubbling
energy:
and it was night

Ah! would that These humor times
In the heavens
Be less rare and More often
You hear in the midst Of the deep night
A big joke cracking
A jester laughing
In the wide immense heavens!

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Was A Town But It Was As

Of centuries.

Then it became a ghost town
Of dilapidated buildings.

The winds liked it as a magnet Whirling around.

There they would sing their sad Hearts out in solitude

Round the wide desert of solitude Stretched.

Yet in the Night with ghosts and shrouds Roamed Inner Souls.

I see Hope move away before the Dawn
It comes at night then leaves.

The days always rise drear even in Spring
When some wayward flowers blossoms.

And in the winter there’s the feast of Dread storms all time, all hoar and ever.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There was a Youth who be the grave of his grand-father lingered
though the dusk was wide on wing as the black bat
to demonstrate the fading of a day

Said from underneath A Voice, a dear Voice whom the Youth recognized:
'Grandson tell the others to help you arise me to the former life'

Then sobbed the Grandson.

But the Angel of the Sword
in his loins appeared
saying:
'Ah! though there be descent
it help not the ancestor however numerous.
Otherwise
a descent-less person will unfairly fare'

The Youth understanding Justice went away with a sad heart
an a bent head whose brain as yet had understood all.
There Was An Artist's Head:

This the most mysterious Mask
For under it it hid some Artist who Long, long ago in his wild reveries Painted the walls of his house with strange shapes and things:
this made him more than welcome guest
and all more wanted to this ghastly feast.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Was Fear

There was a night
There was Fear
Roaming
Roaming
Directionless.

Pulsating as
The stars.
The loud Voice of The heavens
Wore out.

The chapel trembled Hazy
In hazy mists of
Magic Throw confetti style
By wise Minerva.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Was I

there was I thought a fading of sheer
suffering
but when it came there was not sweeter fading.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Was Look!

the wind-exhausted Prometheus
yet though exhausted still fired by his Will the Will that drives that turns tiredness to strength and works

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Was Prometheus

There was Prometheus Wandering with Red eyes
Where be you wandering Aged hero now
Out in the storms nocturnal
And the rain and winds That whistle sharp?
Wander, wander
In the nights if your Soul Restless be
When you stole Fire.
But that was altruistic
And annuls the theft:
Fire had to be stolen Necessity ah! how we Forget it
And why
Why look you to the stars
And in your eyes are Drops of tears?
He spoke not; but pointed More to the stars
The winds whistle around
The more
And darker the night Frowned.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Was The Earth

the sun, the shade,
the delights of a glade,
the humming of a mill worthy the earth with sucking
cranberries
sucking the milk and sap from roots of Mother Earth.

as the play grows more and more to the end as the barricades in the streets
go up signals of the coming fights and final tragedy let me once more even just one more in pining in a red dusk
delight
then take me to the fighting
my blood
be ready for the shedding my eyes on the tragedy for closing

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Was Water And It Tasted Dreary

There was water and it tasted drear there was cold walking in the street yet no human felt the frost and the asphalt of the streets lay calm in defeat in their wrath
in their rebel rage.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Welled A Fountain

desire
that
on
the last winter
night dreamt
of the Spring
today!

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Were Sobs In The Light

There were sobs in the light
I heard them
I, the Poet Seer but more a son to sobbing mother

Tender they were, the sobs:
in silence the shroud sobbed a pin falling would have made more noise
yet
my senses and eyes and ears detected that sobbing by way of Poet-Seer

Ah! mother why you sob!
Your chains are fallen with the end of your residence on this earth and the beginning of that below freedom is as of you, freedom of silent and sad joy
there were sobs in the light
I heard them

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Were The Springs

There were the springs that burnt with ruffled feathers rising
rising hot springs where humans dared not near go
but fearful watched away from distances of safety.

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Will Be A Time

There will be a time
When even though a Poet-Seer
The rivers of my verse and Inspiration will be drained:
But beware my Monsignor:
My dedication such be
That these rivers of verse Will drain just for temporary

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Will Be Times When Others

There will be times when others

Succeed me

So will I
So will I

The time is come now
And the necessity

Emmanuel George Cefai
There Will Not

There will not
Be left
Too Many
That
Will Contest
And Then
We See
The Games Dry Weary
As
The sun-baked Summer
Time:
We see Drought
Parched Throat
Suffering
And Pain
But Greatest Suffering
The
More Biting Pinching
The Slow
Slow Game
And
The
Time
Artful Passes Passes
Passes

Emmanuel George Cefai
There, There Will Be More

There
There will be more
More chances Few or many?
Seize them
Seize each one at once.
So that If few your chance or Chances
Will bear fruit too

Emmanuel George Cefai
There’s A Funereal Music

There’s a funereal music
There’s a funereal music in the church
In the church by the sea
And its night
And lap the waves the water-seas

There’s the funereal church Lighted Lighted up
And I saw Figures dressed
Few as Hedgehogs Few as Squirrels Few as Ants
Few as Glow-worms
Few as Bats, Owls, Nightingales Few as the rest of Animals and plants
And the rest
Wore all mourning masks

In the choir sang Masked Nightingales!

Ah civilization here be not
As the civilization as the day!

And yet
In the civilization of the Night
At night
My brain in sub-conscious Might Dreamt Immortality and its Principles, Saw the universes expand without a Big Bang Discovered Principles of the mass Universe that great Newton set aside;
So many more, so many more!
Lines, prose, drama, epic, lyric All grew their seeds in The civilization of the night
In Me
To revolutionize and re-write
In Me
The civilization of the day
I touched Evolution with my hand And I felt mightier than Had I touched the heavens with My hand
And it was night
The civilization of the night
It was,
My Monsignor, the civilization of the night!

Emmanuel George Cefai
There’s Waters In The Heavens

There’s waters in the heavens
There’s waters high.

There’s a red to-night in the heavens
And casts a shadow red On the reddening stars.

There’s beauty in the eyes Of the ancient moon
And there’s quiet at last, at night

Emmanuel George Cefai
There's A Carnival

In the night
there's a carnival
a new one every month and every week summer winter spring and autumn the new carnival.

goblins, gnomes,
faeries, nymphs,
satyrs, fauns,
snakes, squirrels,
hedgehogs, owls, nightingales, bats and the mists of deep-clad vales all, all hobbled slow and out
in the night
parts and particles moving here moving there some with glass in hand others flushed red with wine others still yet to taste
the new wine begin.
yet all happy all in joy
all oblivious to Earth's strange sorrows
with eyes closed to Earth's full woes nimble, nimble marched they danced they
on their silent nightly toes.
and in midst
a nightly cross with the crowd and with the mob hobbled
hobbled
through the night.

time stood still Age donned her mask out of bounds
fled
ghosts and shrouds:
smiled the moon
and her weak rays the green lawns lighted as lays a dozen minstrels sang
and out in the joyous night their sweet songs rang.

Ah! but this carnival Will it be permanent?
so asked the merry souls
That hobbling went
And dancing:

Then spoke from Heaven a Voice:
'What be done to-day will Be done for ever though not Daily, but on fixed future Days in permanency.'
Sighed with relief the merry souls
And
The carnival continued on and on
As the night deepened
As the night deepened.
Emmanuel George Cefai
There's Depth

The waters surge
The waters surge my love

And in the eyes of stars
There twinkles beauty

And in the eyes of night
There's depth
That going inside
So deep
I did not reach
The final bottom.

And on the trees
Of Hastings Gardens
Sang three nightingales

And
In the Hastings Gardens Reposed with Rare sighs and
Whispering
The Monument

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thermoelectric Love

Thermoelectric love
Magnetic
Pointer of stars
In clear nights
And storms
Nocturnal up to dawn
Thermoelectric love

Emmanuel George Cefai
These Are My Children To Date, These

These are my children to date, these my lines, I sing and versify, For years, I labour suffering:
I experiment and blind my eyes Yet I see yet and still hear the melody from my own lips arise and in that my despair like snow at the touch of Dawn and Sun does melt.

Emmanuel George Cefai
These Fields

These the fields; there the town
Lights neon at night and dark; Random rumbling of a car;
Home lights off all one by one Love and sex and then dreams Conscious reign sub-conscious yields.

Emmanuel George Cefai
These Sounds Are Sweet

These sounds are sweet
And tremble these hands
In the warmth from cold
And chill that before
Were.

Gone the summer warmth
But in the winter cold
As it blows there's A violin that plays.
And fall the snowy flakes
And the myriad eyes
Of the night-dews
In spell.

A violin as sweet
As a hundred and more Violins
In lovely Venice.

Emmanuel George Cefai
The tears flowed the language soft the words and faces pale the lovers went the lovers kissed the lovers left each other
ever.

Emmanuel George Cefai
They Are Already Making Preparations

They are already making preparations
In the old ancient town for crucifixion Already the light bulbs no longer dim.

But though there be more light
The background is deep black Where sadness made her shrine so long ago.

Already the Passion, Crucifixion.
Resurrection then that too must be of us Humans, in the Immortality work of mine.

Emmanuel George Cefai
They Call It Mediocrity – A Small Child Wrote It They Say:

They called it mediocrity – a small child wrote it they say:
An idiot they say – an incompetent - But once done all it needs Refinement hours-long if need be Repeated and repeated and repeated
And you will have a masterpiece.

Emmanuel George Cefai
They came all masked
I saw them on the bridge the old and creaking bridge over the untidy street in the old town
I heard one whispering
slowly
undertone:
they came all masked Dawn was far away
Night was sovereign
and they came all masked

Emmanuel George Cefai
They Found Somber Foundations

They
They found somber foundations
There
The prowess was Of the skies
And waters
Over the field border A posse of Niggling horses
Livid raced Escaping:
Here Then was
The music of the other party
Here
The previous year
The elegant hedgehog dancing In frac
And black Solemn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
They Found You

They found you
Too
The waters charged
The water pinioned
Their fists
The clouds grew grim
On the waters floating
Where Waters still shallow
Be
A floating body in a Floating
White:
For the waters pinioned
Their fists
And the clouds grew grim
And green.

Emmanuel George Cefai
They Heard The Cracks

they heard
they heard
they heard the cracks and clankings
by his head
'Going mad'
No,
said a Poet Seer,
it's the chains of
the Earth
that tied him
falling

Emmanuel George Cefai
They Levered The Grave Lid

Slowly, slowly, they levered
The grave lid.

The coffin the grave-diggers
Slid.

Into the hungry mouth of the Yawning tomb.

Not one of us protested

Not one of us objected

All of us were aghast

All of us spoke not

Emmanuel George Cefai
They Loaded His Heart

tyey loaded his heart with pain with suffering with injustice

and then his heart burst in a small pencil of blood the little that remained in it.

Emmanuel George Cefai
They Made Me Suspect

They made me suspect
Suspect that the blue violet Hides poison in its mystery And wide-eyed beauty weeping in the glooms Of dusky eves half-hidden from the day And in the other half from dark Night kept.

Therefore I
From the blue violet kept away Admiring from afar
And loving from afar all fearfully.

And thus I left in solitude
The blue violet to the plaintive moon
And to the dewy paces of the dawn Passing by on the grass from her east cave
And to the wan embraces of the wanton Night When darkling wavelets lap their way to shore When nightingales sing their silver melody At the full distant faces of the startled stars Fleeing before the madness of the Night Into the ever-expanding universe that is Of all of us and all of us contains.

And the blue violet lay in solitude Like an unstrung Venetian violin
In summer nights where crimes occur and lovers rapid flee.

Emmanuel George Cefai
They Of The Country Side

Ho! Ho! The farmers
Cried
And maned horses
They of the country-side
You should have Heard their hoofs
Expression of their Sub-conscious sun and Weariness of the day.

'A few verses to save'
The whipped stars
Cried
And it was night
And dusk was done.

Round the corner
Of the vast farmhouse
The rain, clouds and Winds they looked When to start on The heaven's orchestra
The day was done
And maned horses
They of the country-side
You should have Heard their hoofs
Expression of their Sub-conscious sun and Weariness of the day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
They Say The Snows Are Hard And Cold And Raw

They say the snows are hard and cold and raw
And cover the mountain sides like iron brace And hard to melt even by rays of sun
And the pale languid smiles of the high moon Too feeble is, too mild
The pillars of white snow to warm and thaw.
For snows they say are hard and cold and raw.

And you, and you - whom I counted warm Your heart is harder than the hardest snow
And colder lies than even the coldest snow Freezing and raw your very look will chill
The warmest wines in Bacchanalian feasts:
In summer nights of ivied Academe Buried in some green vale of Thessaly

You speak not so to freeze the frozen snows More than they are that no warmth can The iron of your chill heart thaw:

For snows they say are hard and cold and raw.

Emmanuel George Cefai
They Search For Me

They searched for me.
They went to the Temple of the Muse
And found me not.

Then
Then
They went to the sea-shore Where Dawn had just arisen
They asked Dawn
‘Come where be the Poet Seer?’

Dawn smiled.

A little away from her
On the beach
Stood Venus bathing...

They asked her too

A sweet smile
As Dawn she smiled Yet told us
‘He passed by towards yon Woods as he saluted me.’

Then
They found him in the woods Face up
Whistling and thinking.

Emmanuel George Cefai
They Stayed

They stayed the night
They melted in the morning Early morning
Before the Dawn
Just.

Purpureal and glossy
The wave current particles Shone across the Electric strait

Vibrated the strings of Twilight waters
And hidden covers

Emmanuel George Cefai
They Told Me

They told me
That
The sirens sing a song of mystery
A sad song
That befits the drear of the seas
In those dark waves
In those darkness under the stars
And lit but dimly by the weakly moon:
The sirens sing a song of mystery
And for us humans Preferable to go to these sites
And hear the sirens singing Singing their sad songs
In the sad nights to the Sad heavens and the dim lighting moon.

Emmanuel George Cefai
They Walked, They Walked

on castle-walls and as shadows lead-grey sliding stealthily on the thick torch-lit
walls
Ancient times! how many a joy how many a thrill these times do not yield yet you yield and in the seas below the castle ancient roar blue and white spume
together mixed:
and over at the cliff edge
stands
A Figure with a Scythe
sarcastically.

Emmanuel George Cefai
They Weep

The winds and air
They
Weep
Approaches time:
My mother
My mother!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thick Was The Mist

Thick
was the mist you could use the knife to juggle and to carve ways out of it:
there is a Nile of red red blood on saffron wedges and on cliff hanging ledges tall
grey giant shadows pass sliding at times from rock to rock
then sudden disappearing
in the caves by the clouds
hiding.
fire! fires!
I saw three shrouds
whose scarce clothes
and shabby
were on fire.
Those three shrouds
were running into fire as rapid as the fires blared.
No, not even in the
dawn
nor after.
fire! fires!
I saw three shrouds
whose scarce clothes
and shabby
were on fire.
Those three shrouds
were running into fire
as rapid as the fires blared.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thin Blue Veil

Wipe off
Wipe off
The thin blue veil of Mists azure
Wipe off

Beneath
The angels of The blue eyes Frozen on in a Crib
Of snow and ice
Look
With affrighted eyes.

The Muse herself
On a noble lyre Strings and Sings
The verses rise
And fall
A Poet Seer high
On a pedestal
He sings and chants
The swan song

Emmanuel George Cefai
Things That Change

Of things that change
And change
At times
Upside down
Be History made:
You
Will learn that so
Soon
As History will be your boon

Emmanuel George Cefai
Things Transform

things change
that is
things transform
and blood congeals
It is dark now
in the streets of old Valletta the lights of romantic street lamps gives passage through dark some light some hope
some warmth in heart...
tonight
this night of frost

Emmanuel George Cefai
Think Poet-Seer

Think Think Poet-Seer
and
then in the first prodding of the Muse
the first wine in the stringing of the lyre
sing:
versify and chant:
you
be the lark flying in face of Dawn
you be the Beauty over the seas at Dawn hovering you be the beauty of the woods in pain of towns and seas and country in tempests grueling you be you be

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thirst

Thirst!
Thirst!
Sitio
Sitio
So long and Stretching
With every second Tentacular thirst
I heard it the brain
For it was Speaking
There was a chorus
Then
A group of loud hailers
In the brain
Spoke often Simultaneously from All parts.

From the heavens Waters were Falling
Falling Into dry mouths to Clean them and To slake them.
Blest waters of the cool!

Thirst!
Thirst!
Sitio
Sitio
So long and Stretching
With every second
Tentacular thirst
I heard it the brain
For it was Speaking
There was a chorus
Then
A group of loud hailers
In the brain
Spoke often Simultaneously from All parts.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thirteenth Hour, Then To The Thirteenth

Minute we are moving – hurry!
All my emotions are in fear’s flurry!
I must deposit my eggs before I must sing my song before I must finish the last verse of this part.
Hurry! Hurry!
The time will soon come; she will give birth.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thirty Years Ago

Thirty years ago
And even less
I used to go Out in the gardens
Breathe the air Feel as I passed Through sentinel trees
An earthly emperor.

But that time passed:
The brain
Cannot come to terms
With slipping time:
Yet
The clock reads so
And so it be.

Ticking less and Less
My clock of biology:
The glistening iron
Of the guillotine
Comes down slow
But remorseless

Then
Thirty years ago
And even less
Of love of life Business power Glory talked I Acquisitions and advances Material all
They put me in trances.

But now
Now
Now my blood has cooled Under of experience
The anvil
Now
I look not on Acquisitions though Glimpses of the olden Wishes come and go
But they go
Thirty years ago
Remained they:
And now
Even in my verse
Of graves and skeletons
And ghosts and shrouds
Of dusk pining and Night’s long silences
The stars, the dawn
That comes and goes
And comes again by rote:
These
These
I chant now
These
I sing:
These my vocabulary
The notes of my song
The sounds of my sad violin
And
Now
Now
It be night
On the scented waves
The spirits of the night Transparent sail and go
And
From my turret high
I look on the dark seas
Know
And will to go:
Go
To the land that’s Far
And far away.
Sooner or later Same result will be
And I will go Go far away and Dissolve
As snows at touch of sun
All my persona
All my things
My all
My All in One
My One in All,
I go
Resting.

Emmanuel George Cefai
This And This And This

This and this and this the voices are still loud the voices turn melodious
notes
the voices still sound the nightingales have stopped in wonderment:
in an Age of Frost the blue vibrations tremble and twinkle:
the blue eyes look into the green eyes a desolate Soul runs alone little higher than when the Earth sleeps
this night
There be a whole immense city larger than the whole Earth below larger larger called Pandemonium!

Emmanuel George Cefai
This be life.
Do not discuss.
Think a little, for
For thinking
There always lies
A little space.

This be life.
Time has passed
And
You have aged:
Now
Desperation rules That you must Act or fall.

Like to a game of football
The ninety minutes are Close to be past:
Do not rue the lost time
Now is to act
See! The clock hands move
And you Must reproduce even not from
Love.

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Day Is Soft

This day is soft
For my soul
Be restless Less
More quiet
Fading.

The times pass
And
The days pass
The earth with Snow
And sweat of labor Covered.

On the low hills
Away
The sounds of Fading horns
And bagpipes
On display
Fades, Fades.
Fades.

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Day, My Feast, Feast Of My Name

Christmas, Christmas Day

my parents anchored me to that feast,
that day

and though my freedom can wreak me otherwise
with my parents go I, no, of conviction, not by habit mere.

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Day, This Night, The Bliss

This day, this night, the bliss of lovers, embrace and kiss

and through the stairs to heavens
spiral

they made their way, grey lovers, pilgrims grey, ghost and shroud, naked and clothed.

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Even I Was Walking Solitaire

This even I was walking solitaire
Green, olive-green the trees incorporated In to the growing darkness like impending thieves Stood where I passed lined like sentinels Or like the guards in silent parade stretched.
The water gurgled in the turning mill
A leaf falls to the ground all silently:
The rest is silence.
And from a distant tree I heard a voice
First indistinct then uttering syllables Which I understood and not: then more Distinct and understandable and nearer The Voice grew.
I heard. It was the Muse. As from a sacred tree
She stood and spoke:
My loved Poet to-night I hest
That you pluck one of the night’s stars And bring it to me here shining bright.
To which I answered:
How can it be my queen, my sovereign?
Then the reply came:
You can because you will:
Therefore will first.
The Voice then ceased.
Alone, alone I walked for a few meters.
I had passed two or three trees.
Then stopped I and on high
I saw a nightingale begin to sing:
Her plume reflected the moonlight
And dark her silhouette rose against the bough That bore her. Like as when water gushes out Of the clean rock into increasing streams And these uniting down the hillside run Into one stream, one current solely joined And dawn and morn and day and dusk and night Will the coursing stream full find and leave So sang the nightingale: her numbers flowed Like to a current ever-flowing full.
And her emotions her heart emptied full:
Into the night, the air of night
The air of the still night - she sang and sang.
And in her song my heart’s blood turned And in her song a little light lit up Into a nook in my brain: still she sang Into the bosky moonlight when the stars Twinkled from heaven’s realm to our earth And silver shadows gilded the still fields With passing clouds like robbers of the night.
The leaves and boughs responded rustling still.
And my mind lit, my heart’s blood riot turned And in that revolution random I Within my heart felt rising like a cloud My song-like a mist transparent rose she When the dawn full rubbing her fairy eyes With naked soles treads over the grassy dews And smiles her breath into the waking green.

And I saw the lone stars, the welcome stars Were near me and I all giant-like seemed To be an equal in the size and light Below the azure vault of heaven moved And energy hummed like a taut wire.

And I-and I, could my hands stretch And touch the stars and see my hand descant
The shadows grey as over its face it passed And cloudless shone the stars that night.
And of the stars at will a fair one chose I And touched it with my hand and made it mine That I could carry it to my sovereign queen And sang I in that night like to the nightingale Whose numbers flowed
Like to a current ever-flowing full
And her emotions her heart emptied full
Into the night, the air of night.

And from below in olive greenery hid A Voice bespake trembling and full:
My son, you have now touched the skies
Now that your heart is full Full as the heart of nightingale:
And you have touched the stars and chose the stars Because you heart was full Because your song was full with all your heart.
Continue in this way, my Son And sing for months and years to come
That you
Amidst the silent stars
Will with them lie for times and times’ So spoke the Voice; so ended she.
And in the Night, the air of Night
The Voice went all away; so faded she.

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Hideous Height

In this hideous height all are with eyes wide
open
though it be night:
they must be on the look out
for
the white stars
they throws spears and those who hit bleed and fell in a mound that hovers in spaces celestial celestial body.

goblets of poisons divers and colored lie in the heaven zone
for
after all
it be deep midnight

skeletons drank from the poisoned goblets and how rattled they but skeletons remained skeletons
only they fled them before the white of Dawn still rattling

Emmanuel George Cefai
This incomprehensible ennui
This heat – this summer
This thought that comes robber-like Whose genealogy I do not know Nor care to.

The wind winds slowly round the pine In fretful gusts
All playful half-discernible
Without a noise
And secretly tiptoeing.

The bat saw me and gave its eerie cry
That rent the heavens piteously
And then
And then
It went back to the eaves to hang itself.

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Incomprehensible Night

This incomprehensible night
Is moving like a cloud Towards the edge where Dawn Rosy and virginal awaits:
In the blue dome
Of azure heaven only the moon Smiles languid and seems fixed:
The stars inconstant lovers of the night Wander their fires here and there And roam all randomly.
There is no steadfast star right now above.

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Land, Land Of Ours

This land, land of ours
gloatning with styles on this brown land of ours
dry brown bread humble and desiring
fire that quenches not at night more so past midnight
when Shades and Shrouds roam and meet:
together march in the cemeteries of the Earth.

we will be known to eat the light that through and all around emanates just every night
we need not hear amorous notes of nightingales
no
nor the wise jug-jug of the ancient
owls.
We need not.

they bade me eat the bread
and it was sour
yet in that sour there was a sweetness I experienced not before the smell of ghosts and shrouds and yews
all intertwined and mixed:
was in enchantment?

they bade me stop
and 'Look! '
they said the fields and country are red all red not green:
such a sight have you seen? '
I asked furtively:
'Why red? '
'Ah! ', replied a voice
'Is not blood red? '
'How can they be so soaked
in red? '
'Ask other not me.'

There is a red that quenches when it be so soaked we next had interruption of the
red for midst the snows there was a cover on the land that color hid.

I had not hollow eyes yet I became and more becoming, I, you see the incumbencies of a
Poet Seer?
You hear the whistle of the suffering?

Forest upon forest cloud on cloud And covering all a helmet of gray skies That nigh to frowning is with winter chill Thrust in the heart of this helmet lights A sudden thunder clap that roars
On yonder hill:
And the first drops of rain fall Like wanton jewels of the wildest night

I went to the palace of crystalline glass
I saw it hovering in a field
I saw it hovering in a country plain I saw it hovering amidst dancing mists I saw it, I saw it:
with hollow eyes
I trod the damp earth soaked with pieces of a broken mirror all the glory gone when once in palaces it shone
and went the round of the palace rooms:
the mirror on the poles the heads frowned grim
and as the day waned more grim grew more dark and awesome more dark and cumbersome:
to the palace of clouds I rode on a sleigh of gold made by the Muse with her a-riding two lovers?
We were just riding
and in those summit heights increasing my brain was ever working my Soul was ever-beating those summit heights we went and went how solid the clouds of fleece
they were how solid, how solid!

there is beauty on this world of ours amidst the ill and evil there lies beauty that shines more than the north star in the night when breezes blow and soft the currents flow round in the moon-lit lake without a sound:
there is a beauty in the fields, the trees, the woods,
the homely springs, the dark raw rocks and bays, the rustling seas, and the reeds soft-whispering the ripid vales, the ever-greening hills, the red dusk, sunset and the wanton night murmuring murmuring than humming of the bees on nectared flowers the beauty of sad eyes, the furtive glances, a thousand and one other joys and thrills,
there is beauty on this world of ours.

over the hill of Clouds wandered goblins green above an ancient moon around the night
below the cliff a sea where swam open toothed sharks where the waters were bleak not blue and drear and green
though it was not tempest.
over the hills one by one there was a wind, a breeze that settled from the dusk installed there in its throne by the red dusk by the red dusk that passed.
that ancient tiredness was closed closeted that ancient scent was smell of fish:
blue waters were away
blue waters were away.
you
you do not have that much to show
to demonstrate
to be so proud and haughty:
was that the sign of inferiority?
I saw a lightning pass and then
it went
all suddenly.
across a strait there stood a colossus of wind and
energy:
there was a wistful thread of glass that hung from the old heavens with night dews that precipitated the morn was full of them the Dawn - of myriad eyes, it was.
And on the roof they were playing marbles ancient Maltese game
I heard the settling of each marble or the group as it settled on the roof cement all turning then sudden stopped and fell as tired drunkards in nocturnal revel.
there were few towers
rare
that haunted the brain so yet!
as yet!
as yet!
I saw those towers or some steeples red that mosque-like rose, other more pointed as pointed breasts or as thin swords to pierce up the skies.

how wild the eyes of night can turn in the chill burning of the winter’s frost whilst icicles from unhappy trees descend and winter sits grim o’er garden and land in Hastings Gardens; while the lightning the hoary laughter of the gods recalls and the long fingers of it the thunderbolts of Jove repeat, recall:
how wild the eyes of night can turn.

there was competition, horses breathing hard, with verses on their tongues, they did not speak
nor utter syllable,
I saw them
I saw them.
Hurry! hurry! the clock-hands are turning!
the dawn already is out and gone the day is not bustling but trembles and shakes with relative laziness:
I saw a shadow pass so swift
it was so swift yet my eyes saw and easy lost as saw the lanky shadow.

in the mortuary dressed in white impeccable doctor suits ten hedgehogs bent in operation around the table:
'Hurry! hurry! , ' said one he had big spectacles on his nose and trembled.
Frenetic panic in that room
of formalin
suddenly arose:
there was a commotion of a hubbub of sudden voices
arose
a tall and respectable hedgehog
who had been quiet reading a large newspaper that hid him almost:
'Ho! Heigh! is this not mortuary not an operating table? '
Then silence,
silence fell and disseminated.
Hard is the land
And swarming with ants
That prowl around:
Swarming, swarming
As they turn around Around, around,
Abound.
They were directing towards The mortuary or the operating Room?

Towards the cluster
A Rat ancient and old Was directing:
With curiosity burning To watch ants building Ants that were building
A tower high, a sort of Babel.
It was over the humid land
The river was passing By the river was gurgling
Was the land sinking Was the land rising?

Rising high rising high
I saw reproduction rising
high raising its head
high
its head held high:
and life was streaming:
the heavens that were frowning now were gleaming.
from behind tinted spectacles
I saw a new found land
To my heart I wanted To keep the discovery
Not share with humanity Disgrace! Disgrace!
somebody shouted.
'Stop crowd! Stop! You will leave me in oblivion or give my dues that honesty requires to the best of our civilization?'
There was no reply.
Loomed in the distant mists the Silent City.

There was a rotten crowd
Of Mushrooms:
Yet
Still they scented not And hung their heads
At times
At other times they ranted Shaking their heads here and
There
In quasi-rhythm:
There was silhouette
Coming
For night with scimitar of a half moon
Was on the earth, the turning Earth, Rapidly descending
To his divided moiety of reign
One by one the stars alighting.

Began to shout the Chorus
We be in the land of the Dark Walrus So we suspended laws that are now
   By
Passed and forgotten:
Now our brains think different O! how easy relative it was For writing in one tenth the size
The reformed and evolved laws
The other bulky plump and unwieldy laws replacing.
Lank a Professor with a Bulbous Head
And Half blonde half dark moustaches thin Trimming and Brimming:
`O! O! O! the laws! Where the Codes they took from me?
Were they not mirrors of the Codices venerable Where has our civilization gone astray? ’
He put his hands to his head
Touching
On that Bulbous Head
The few lank ancient hairs Remaining.

We were all oaring, oars that paddled
To right,
To left,
Here,
There,
And the skiff of civilization moving With smile on its ruddy face displaying.
Our Captain and our Leader said:
`Slow! Slow! Direction good but slower Evolution is glancing forth More than a lance fast thrown We must be slower.’
Then
Rose a Sailor and a Poet Seer `No sir, no sir, see how fast Earth be rotating and the other Bodies and thing of the celestial Spaces.
We must not be less, and catch up
With them.’
Then our Captain and our Leader
With chin in hand
Closed his mouth and ceased his ranting.

Then said a Prophet-Eremite
He was emerged just from His cave
Where with beetles and rats and Animals
He stayed.
'Ve have a voyage before us
We have a voyage before us
There are these options:
Either we stop
Be fossilized: Either we move
And with evolution grow.’
His eyes wide open wider, Wider grew
And red:
And Then he rent his clothes
And said:
'Ve,
We humans of the noble blood That noble
Through suffering of ages Have hesitation
To move
With Evolution grow and reach? ’

I
I saw old ancient styles fall
I saw of dogmatic forts walls crumble
I saw Crowds rising after centuries’ sleep:
I saw they rose at last and recuperated:
I saw the waters rest from turbulence
I saw the waters glide as evolution glides
I saw that it was better then to turn to beauty
I therefore went out when night was out
I therefore had tears in my eyes of stars
I had therefore sang so much of Evolution
I therefore sang so much of civilization
I sang an ever-growing evolution
I sang not wars, prisons, or tortures I sang and sing civilizations new I re-write from the start, tabula rasa,
I
I re-write each time a new civilization
I call on you, Earth-people, do the same:
I call on you: Earth-people, fear not!
I call on you: let all reform all ever
I
I will rest in peace replaced by you Earth-people
I will feel my Soul rest, hear it whisper
I will reside with Dawn, reside with Fire.’

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Morn Rose I

This morn rose I
And Thankful am I
That as the Dawn
This Dawn rose I:
Others rose not Though I put forth an Immortality:
Ah! sore heart!
Sad heart!
I carry with me
In me
The universe in this misery:
In this obscurity,
Will rest I.

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Night

this night
the dawn lay with the night in the jazz club midst smells and smokes and dying embers she awoke late in the night and rubbing her eyes stole out into the night drawing with her the curtains of the night unconsciously into an uncertain grey but then having slept well the uncertain grey became a white whiter and whiter and whiter and dawn announced without a sound that she had come to all us, mankind and all of us.

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Night Floats Along

A Chorus Song
This night floats along
The harbor and the ancient sea
The ancient fort and bastions Old; the bending trees; Sing the Chorus Voices:
'We are free, now that
Were not free; when In chains floated in a sea
Of woes on Earth;
To power, to glory
And to the rest Were bound; look
When the chains fell;
Long; long;
Already rust around.
Pity that Earth bind thus
But so bound we.
Till
The time comes When the eyes be Opened
The chains fall
And then the moment Of song:
'We are free! We are free! '
Roam about the Earth in fantasy We phantoms of the night Genetic of beauty;
Now the freedom gained
We roam about dark and obstinate Grim faced determined
Round
Never to lose our liberty'

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Night How Rattled!

This night
how rattled
the castle nearby

old stones sounds new nocturnal funereal

this night
how rattled
the castle nearby

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Night I Saw

This night I saw
Fear fleeing over the ramparts of the Night Into the suicide sea that waited it.

This night I saw
The cheeks of Fear yellow-pale Into the suicide sea wherein it leapt.

This night I saw
The corpse of Fear floating in the dark Into the suicide sea wherein that waited it.

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Night I See

This night I see
A yellow corpse
A-floating on the sea
How wild its eyes Still open wide
And staring blank
In the salt sea.

The waters still Lapped darkly by
And in the distant town
A church-bell rang:

How strange this night, how strange.

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Night Is Somber

This Night
Is Somber
This Night
Is Gaudy
Only
A Little
This Night
Is Dusky
This Night
Is Growling
This Night
Is Bursting
Out
Of
The Shell
That Ages
And
Time Impose Centuries
Turn
Them
Round
And Round
But
This Night
No!
Let Go!
At Last Embarked
The Vessel of freedom
On the open seas
And hybrid Oceans!

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Night It Rides Witch-Like

The night
This night
It rides witch-like
It is sad Yet be glad To be free
Of the chains
That down on earth
Bind
Its reluctant hands

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Night The Windows Of The Buildings Of The Town

This night the windows of the buildings of the town
Light up one by one
One after the other
One house after the other One building after the other One street after the other One city quarter after the other

And then
The night will have gone away
When all the city lights useless

The freshness of the Dawn defeats the lights

On a huge rock outside the port Our civilization sits and looks Looks at its lights all wandering

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Night Will Come As Other Nights.

The night
This night will come
As other nights.

In other centuries.

The houses sleep.

Silence bustles through the streets.

The bridge of wood sighs
As for centuries did.

The beetle round the blinding Neon light flirts blindly.

A bat whirrs fast and shrieks and Is lost suddenly

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Night, This Night The Sky Is Red

This night, this night the sky is red
And redder with every hour turneth
The blue azure that like an ocean hung Now like an ocean of blood looketh And stars still twinkle white and bright.

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Paradise Is Easy

This Paradise be easy
This Paradise be made By me
For
I have long prepared
This easy paradise.

Sweet rain be sweet Sweet night-dews sweet
The humming bee be sweet Ah! here so much be sweet!
From everywhere sweet clustered
Here
Clustered sweet.

Yet
Here no power I see Nor the rumbling drums of Glory hear Nor battlefields of boiling
Blood
Assail in to my mind.
This Paradise be easy,
Easy say I

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Season Stammers

This season stammers
The woods tremble
The firs shiver
The owls ruffle feathers
The soil dampens
The rains prefer night
The thunder glories
The stars chill
The red dusk still
And the dawn
Ah! the dawn in hear eastern cave Comes to land over the wave
And the day a little lights
In its drear of winter nights.

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Side Of Night

So
Slept the night
This side of night
So dwarfed waxed
The moon
This night

So Slept the Waters
Of the cemeteries
This night

So Bayed the wolf
So Trembled the night-stars
This night
Stood still the cemeteries

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Star

I will pluck from the heavens
See how tiny it decreases To adjust to the palm of my hand
And
I will place it on my breast
This Dawn
Next Dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Tomb

So Stood Pieta this tomb Silhouetted
Night

The walks of
The cemetery
And access ways and Streets
Are enemies of breath

So Recompensing
Dawn
On reaching the Edge
See it arise below

Emmanuel George Cefai
This Winter Was Cruel

This winter was cruel
Cruel winter that touch With your frost hand of Skeleton:
Not just my body
My heart
But deeper Deeper
The emotions
Deeper

Emmanuel George Cefai
Those That Rise

A world that raises those That rise
To summit heights:
Lets us temporarily
Bask in its glory
Then Mows you down
At least if not To oblivion’s pool
To the realms of drear
Of fall of from glory.
Such be the world and Civilization of the day!
And our emotions propense to
dance
According to its tune
According to its sway.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Those Verses Were As Of The Night

Those verses were as of the night
Not of the dawn
For that was long past
The hours passed
That was long passed.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Those Who Suffer

For Those Who Suffer
For Those Just Look
At Me
Just Look Don't
Speak

Emmanuel George Cefai
Though Age Has Passed

Though age has passed
His cold here
My heart still red advances Burns and anguished Itself tears – but stops And halts
For Life be beautiful.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Though Ages Press

Though ages press
Yet
We Humans
Must Press
The
More Undo the works
Of ageing by our brains Set the brains at work Push back
The pressing ages

Emmanuel George Cefai
Though Beauty

Though
beauty extrinsicates itself into a world of tempests calms and sunsets
and more
and more yet there be beauty too nay a whole universe to be described in the emotions

Emmanuel George Cefai
Though Christmas Ring

Though Christmas ring
though the streets scent amidst the cold and frost scent with holy incense ah! still my heart be
lone
the heart of a lone exile!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Though Suffering And In Stress

Though suffering and in stress from cruel oblivion lie I though, though, though, here I walk hoping, hoping,
hoping that in the end Justice be done [at least by some fair stroke of chance sheer and mere probability] to my works though I be dust.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Though The Head Whirling Goes hough
though
yet that is the time to catch the butterfly of poetry
verse and song:
look! the time is fortunate and at first I was not minding it:
the Muse ah! that cunning trickster I though that was dry and parched
yet stealthy behind me
stood
the Muse

Emmanuel George Cefai
Though The Oak Wept, And The Tall Fir

Though the oak wept, and the tall fir shook in the burden of the gale, though a star neared a tall elm, planted long ago by British hands in a Mediterranean clime.

struck loud the thunder, screeched the ominous lightning, the palace of the stars was full or argument this night was full, cup to the brim, control over, Prometheus shook his fists, and the sun from afar saw its watch saw that it was hours away from its mid-day glory and smiled.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Though You Speak With Broken Voice

Though you speak with broken voice
and broken your accents half-parched arise from in side your breast
and this following your return from the funeral:
you must this night honor the coffined body by through his works and Ideas ply:
there you will find founts, founts of joy not weeping:
and from the sleepy valleys nocturnal;
will rise silver calls and chants that with Ideas sparkle a sign that these above the earth dwell and are far from resigned with the body in the nether earth:
then when you tire through the night to read the great works of the coffined shroud:
then will Dawn resplendent come and console you and as in airy hummock in her hands taking your body tired to deserved rest.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thought

Thought
I lay thinking on my bed the Poet Seer lay thinking but he smoked not
just he looked at the roof over his head
then round and round the mirror less room he thought he thought he thought lay thinking

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thought After Thought

Thought after thought
A whole of cavalry Horses neighing
With broad nostrils Sweat and red of blood
The night became a toad
The moon a sea of blood.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thought Goes Round And Round

Thought goes round and round In so many Permutations and combinations.

Anguish saw Thought and it
Narcissus-like
Fell in love with his mirror image
Then
There and then.
Immediately.

And Thus Thought has since borne The loads of Angst
In human brains and souls Turning angst and suffering Into the Beauty that at last Redeems us humans, all,
All Deserving.

Emmanuel George Cefai Thought Philosophical

Of Thought philosophical With emotions
Mixed
And In comfort
For
In the mixture
There
Thought philosophical
From
The emotions came

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thought saw Verse and fell in love
With it

Emmanuel George Cefai Thought So Much

A Day
An Hour
A Minute
A Flash
In Thought
So Much
The Difference!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thoughts Densify

Verse upon verse
Thoughts densify
I confessed
The Soul kept to itself

Rattled the skeleton
In me
There was internal war
A civil war

Look! Here we play With the Emotions
But they are hard
And today abstruse.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thoughts Of Fire

Your thoughts burn
I feel them in my hands
They burn as fire

Yet your thoughts Burn not my finger-tips
Though they scald them
Softly

Arouse sensations from The nerves as Expert playing an organ
In a celebration

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thoughts On A Grave

On a grave pondering A Poet Seer touched his chin rested on it for he weary for he was tired for he had swam up and down
hither and thither
in the river of life

So many times
the current carried him away and far!

So many times
he sighed to retreat to the womb whence he emerged!

Life is that: when things be sad then in as direct proportion resignation becomes medicine

To think
to fear
to look with a vague look and hear the silence walk in chains right after you.

Tonight
the glow-worms gather round
without a sound
yet their lights betray them
gathering.

No thoughts as usual.
But new thoughts.
The old thoughts
he closed off
harsh as falling guillotines.

And
the tomb meanwhile basked in the moon light insipid and still
yet
awe-inspiring!

Even the fool becomes wise
here

Even the fool wiser becomes the more here he stays.

Behind I saw a troupe of goblins green
and in the back ground helter skelter grey
passing
of ghosts and shrouds
a motley crowd.

I thought not on the inhabitants of the graves
For I prefer in cemeteries not to think of the inhabitants of graves yet be with them.

A Speaking Yew
A speaking yew in the cemetery stood up and high solitary and sad
solitary
in solitary nights sentinel and guard of honor to nocturnal lights

and groaning of the ghosts and shrouds
and the creaking of tombs opening by mid-night to let restless Souls
to pace and vent

Preferable so.
Midnight and night
together
shrouded in conspiracy
whispering
walk up the cemetery roads the restless Souls by till Dawn and light.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thousand And More Lights

I wish the Thousand and More Towns and Cities were Thousand and More Lights
Horeb-type
so the multitudes will follow
and following bring forth a new civilization to the Earth oh! that we humans were lights and yield lights into that Horeb where all congregate
A Voice high will always turning in all directions
sate:
'Crowds and multitudes, rise up, you from the Continents that are not Europe and the Americas rise and be as dignified as the rest rise to the same heights produce the same great humans show that the Wheel of History has turned full round
the circle
and because you turned it.
Rise!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Three cities
Three towns
Three tales
So works History.
So work humans.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Three Lines

Three lines, my Monsignor:
All genes be social genes Descent or no, always.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Threw Was A Wilfred Threw was a Wilfred
Here
But that was long Ago
He was a child
Now
In his whereabouts
I met a white bearded man
How white the beard!
How long the beard!
He had not children.
And
He was there with that Which only made His failures and his verses!

Through Out A Certain Night

Through out a certain night
There the house hid amidst
The dense foliage of shrubs and trees
Sentinels of oaks old and firs and elms:
Imported from a country in the north Yet still staying surviving in the south Well, well, the lights past midnight lit
And then the house was lighted bit by bit:
Then
Of a sudden as soon as the lights lit
They went out suddenly, though No thunder struck, nor lightning,
Through out a certain night
There the house hid amidst
The dense foliage of shrubs and trees
Sentinels of oaks old and firs and elms

Emmanuel George Cefai
Through Out A Night Of Storm

Through out a night of storm
You expect drear.

But if drear comes in weather Fair?

You will indicate a Desperation.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Through Out Last Night The Tempest Over The Town Raged

Voice One:

Through out last night the tempest over the town raged. And through its ancient heart the bastions assailed

Voice Two:

But ay! remember Dawn if there be night what follows Is not Dawn?

Voice Three:

The heavens speak but let us whisper for the ancient town awakes.

See, see, beyond the clouds there comes Minerva on her throne for wisdom more than strength is foundation for Earth: ah! that wisdom more foundation be than strength and its offspring power and glory. How wry the face of Beauty turns when power and glory on strength prevail.

Director:

The Voices whisper between them.

Enter the Spirits, the Spirit of Life, the Spirit of Storms, the Spirit of Power and Other Spirits

Director:

All emotions and phenomenons Spirits have To each his Spirit and now all are gathered here.

Chorus:

Power has its reign as glory has but wisdom rule; power and glory fade at the frail flower at the gelid touch of the first frost begot at the red dusk and the star chill of the deepening nights.

Spirit of Life:

I will not assail you Spirit of Power

Spirit of Power:

Will you assail the stronger? You assail not because you fear

Chorus:

Power has its reign as glory has but wisdom rule; power and glory fade at the frail flower at the gelid touch of the first frost begot at the red dusk and the star chill of the deepening nights.

I

We sing, we Spirits, sing and march, undeterred, noble, proud, as of right, the world and Earth are our in the night and the orb eager for our processions high and the sea and ocean for our chants and song with expectation still await.

Spirits:

We all together be brethren and so must You Spirit of Power remember that from dust you rose and to it will return. A fading flower is as your cycle.

Chorus:

A

See, see, beyond the clouds there comes Minerva on her throne for wisdom more than strength is foundation for Earth:
ah! that wisdom more foundation be than strength and its offspring power and glory. How wry the face of Beauty turns when power and glory on strength prevail.

B

the sea-waves speak, and in their whisperings
be the syllables of wisdom inspiring.
Go to the shore to hear the sea-waves by some bay derelict when the coves and caves still to each other as from night respond.

C

Toil we, toil we, humans, over land, over sea,
and through the night the wheels of mills turn all as in magic though no Merlin comes No, no Prospero, with the closing of his book Nor any nocturnal witch with haggard look.

D

In verses, not resplendent, wisdom too her seat will have, and be as plenteous and more than in verses that resound with sound and beauty of word and splendor of the notes:
The humble verses no less proud be they Than other verse.

when on the Earth the spirits take their charge; fear with wry face to its lair retires fast; as the red dusk before the cunning night as red before the dark till the dawn's reign and coming of a lark.

F

In togas bound, in hoods dressed, with brows furrowed and vexed, with chin in hand one after another the august thinking band paced slow through the walk amidst the trees and the soft winnowing of a silent breeze.

G

Come night, come night, let the dark cover our loves from eyes of curious men and draw the bustling loud from town and street Till the dawn once again start on her beat.

H

Power has its reign as glory has but wisdom rule; power and glory fade
at the frail flower at the gelid touch of the first frost begot at the red dusk and the star chill of the deepening nights.

I

We sing, we Spirits, sing and march,
undeterred, noble, proud, as of right,
the world and Earth are our in the night and the orb eager for our processions high and the sea and ocean for our chants and song with expectation still await.

Voice One:

Would you bring Prospero? He closed his books and now must be revived magic by magic; spell by spell.

Voice Two:

In this fragmented world we sing fragmented verse, yet in it there grows experiment as seed that finds the fertile soil
to grow.

Voice Three:

Would you bring Merlin? For long ago he was.
And many incantations would for him do.

Toil we, toil we, humans, over land, over sea,
and through the night the wheels of mills
turn all as in magic though no Merlin comes
No, no Prospero, with the closing of his book Nor any nocturnal witch with haggard look.

Director:

In the halls of kings and lords where they assert that poesy was born where and when harps and lyre strung upon the first sweet notes, the first verses raw at first but sweeter grew with more experiment and experience too.

Chorus:

See, see, beyond the clouds there comes Minerva on her throne for wisdom more
than strength is foundation for Earth:
ah! that wisdom more foundation be
than strength and its offspring power
and glory. How wry the face of Beauty
turns when power and glory on strength prevail.

the sea-waves speak, and in their whisperings
be the syllables of wisdom inspiring.
Go to the shore to hear the sea-waves
by some bay derelict when the coves and
caves still to each other as from night
respond.

C

Toil we, toil we, humans, over land, over sea,
and through the night the wheels of mills
turn all as in magic though no Merlin comes
No, no Prospero, with the closing of his book Nor any nocturnal witch with haggard look.

Spirits:

Over the airs Sail we Facing
The aggressive Tempests
That Rose
On air
In Sea and ocean
And
The clouds
Our Confessors
Be
As we Fly Over them
As bees over Flowers.

Director:

We into the sub-conscious have wandered Far; though in the conscious we too
Are.

Chorus:

See, see, beyond the clouds there comes Minerva on her throne for wisdom more
than strength is foundation for Earth:
ah! that wisdom more foundation be
than strength and its offspring power
and glory. How wry the face of Beauty
turns when power and glory on strength prevail

Director:

I direct.
For in al, and all in all, is there not In prose, in poetry, in literature, That quantum, that percentage minimal Of both the conscious and sub-conscious Too in all of them?
To vary those proportions is an ever-increase
As it be relative.
And experiments vary as in equation form In as direct proportion to the variations that Percentages of the conscious and sub-conscious Have, obtain and manifest
At the moment time of the event.

Spirit of Life:

Ah! how glows at birth the machine That’s born!
In its new relatively unused mode
How strength in it Gathers as it grow.
Like climbing a hill for children or For youth.
But on reaching the top what glories Does one view when all below
The plains and oceans stretch and All the glories of the nether Earth:
That is the mid-day of life:
The top of the mountain From thence We to the other side opposite whence We climbed go down.
Easier to go down but there at the foot Drear and oblivion masked await.

Chorus:

In verses, not resplendent, wisdom too her seat will have, and be as plenteous and
more than in verses that resound with sound
and beauty of word and splendor of the notes:
The humble verses no less proud be they
Than other verse.

Spirit of Power:
Though you Spirit of Life, life celebrate The strength of Power you ignore:
What be life without power?
What be life to serve and obey?
Is that the Individual Sovereign Will?

Spirit of Life:

Ay! The Individual Sovereign Will by power shackled is

Spirit of Power:

Shackled?

Spirit of Life:

Yes because its freedom conditioned be
By the exigencies and fretting of power

Spirits:

Spirit of Power keep your silence!
You recollect how many wars you Brought?
How many corpses strewn on battlefields?
Speak!

Spirit of Life:

You see friends; he speaks not.

Chorus:

Power has its reign as glory has
but wisdom rule; power and glory fade
at the frail flower at the gelid touch
of the first frost begot at the red dusk
and the star chill of the deepening nights.

when on the Earth the spirits take their
charge; fear with wry face to its lair
retires fast; as the red dusk before
the cunning night as red before the dark
till the dawn's reign and coming of a lark.

In togas bound, in hoods dressed, with brows furrowed and vexed, with chin in hand
one after another the august thinking band
paced slow through the walk amidst the trees
and the soft winnowing of a silent breeze.

G

Come night, come night, let the dark cover
our loves from eyes of curious men
and draw the bustling loud from town and street
Till the dawn once again start on her beat.

Power has its reign as glory has
but wisdom rule; power and glory fade
at the frail flower at the gelid touch
of the first frost begot at the red dusk
and the star chill of the deepening nights.

I

We sing, we Spirits, sing and march,
undeterred, noble, proud, as of right,
the world and Earth are our in the night
and the orb eager for our processions high
and the sea and ocean for our chants and
song with expectation still await.

A

See, see, beyond the clouds there comes Minerva on her throne for wisdom more
than strength is foundation for Earth:
ah! that wisdom more foundation be
than strength and its offspring power
and glory. How wry the face of Beauty
turns when power and glory on strength prevail.

the sea-waves speak, and in their whisperings
be the syllables of wisdom inspiring.
Go to the shore to hear the sea-waves
by some bay derelict when the coves and
caves still to each other as from night
respond.

C

Toil we, toil we, humans, over land, over sea,
and through the night the wheels of mills
turn all as in magic though no Merlin comes
No, no Prospero, with the closing of his book Nor any nocturnal witch with haggard look.

In verses, not resplendent, wisdom too her

Emmanuel George Cefai
Through Out The Birth Of The New Day

Through out the birth of the new day
There was the birth of a New Year Silver confetti fell
From the heavens
The dews, the night dews that Fall on the grass, fell, Fragments
Fragments
And the church bells started ringing Early:
And the streets were deserted early In the day
As till almost noon
The people celebrating New Year’s Eve Slept in the Sub-Conscious while The Conscious Dawn presided over where The New Year entered port in the old town.

In the menu that Dawn brought with her
For to-day New Year's Day there was
the special and the not so special:
Special rang the tunes of the church bells
different from other holidays:
overdue after all!
New Year's Day!
But the old city dressed as it had dressed
the day before
and the day before that
and before that for centuries
old in the memories of ancient times:
and the people
who survived into the New Year survived
either as flesh or blood or else as ghosts
the former in the morning streets
the latter in the Night swarmed
to the old town in hordes and shrouds
and there rose high a long sad lament
an All in One, and One in All
to the sad heavens and stars.

I wish for Fog yesterday: long through the year this wish in my Sub-Conscious hid
but
now with the guillotine falling
on the Old Year's head it rose
restless and restless
in the Deep Soul it rose like to
an Egyptian snake of magic dazzling spells
could I resist?
Wanted I to resist?
And in the mist I had the Fog I yearned for
though little the mist over the cold port
in the cold early hours of New Day
Soon at the first touches of the Sun dispelled.

Slow, slow, the verses flow -
the water murky turned in to the river
and dense and loaded it moved so and so - it was a sort of Styx - yet burned not -
but
rather chill under the drear winter heavens flowed discontented and unwilling:
so
my verses flow, do flow, but slow,
crawl in the violet light of a waning day
But they had their time too - let me say
and so
slow, slow the verses flow, this dusk.

The rain was falling.
Though no snow fell
the wind of frost neighed through
the boughs and trees
that huddled in the wood like naked
men and women in that tempest hoar:
The rain was falling.
Deep,
der the water pencils fell adown de the window-panes condensed with breath of the humans inside and
with the warmth of stoves and lights and some ancient chimney-hearths.
Ah! the old city, the old town
how many chimneys here and there
old and grimy on their faces hurled
the winter tempest in its orgy wild.

Then in that Time there danced Masks in a place by the woods
where
the trees shivered and trembled
in the frost and chill.
Yet the Masks danced, danced
silent:
some on human feet; some manifested
on all fours; some a tail beneath
the frac of white or black
but behind a Mask
all faces are the same and equal stand.

And then of sudden there came a sound
strange as if from the nether earth
from soils damp and wet arising;
and it sang in a strange microphone tongue
'Be merry sirs, no human sees
Hum, hum around like nightly bees
Or like the crickets on the summer nights.
But merry be.
The waters trickle.
The gutters full.
Slope the water-rains.
The heavens open remain.
Rain falls.
Thunder opens white in rage
its mouth.
Then vibrating Earth
it sounds.
One after another Light
after Light
the Thunder goes.
One after another Sound
after Sound
the Thunder goes.
And the day is in throes.
The red dusk fled.
Throne has been left
Into the hands of night.
Be merry, Sirs, the storm
Has ushered humans in:
To their warm hearth and home
And most now sleep profound
Go round, round and round
For no human espies
Long, long and far
the Dawn be; your faces
have many hours to whiten
with pale fear of new Dawn and Day.
Be merry, dance, round
and round,
without a sound, silent,
ghosts and shrouds, animal,
bust and All, dance, merry be:
The storm will last as long
As the night be with me.'
So said the Voice then stopped.

And the Masks turned and turned.
Slow they danced with measured steps.
Studied each step and pace and slow.
And the Masks turned and turned.
And though the winds
that Zephyr sent to blow such frost and dreary chill
yet they touched not the Masks
that underneath their identity hid:
and reveled in the mystery of it.
There was a Boar’s Head:
Tall and high,
he towered above all, and his feet
brown and far from human stood,
yet
with calculated paces round and round
he went.

There was a Sphinx Head
and mystery added all around
silent it moved yet
with the rest it moved and danced

There was a Head that like a Sibyl
grinned; behind was it a Sibyl
or else?
Still like the others danced
As all danced mechanical Unearthly and ghastly their look
And more since mid-night struck
the more.

There was a Skeleton Head:
though somewhat exposed
it was made so that all the zones
were covered that were not white bones:
mysterious, mysterious danced it
in that cavalcade of dark and silent din.

There was an Artist’s Head:
This the most mysterious Mask
For under it, it hid some Artist who
Long, long ago in his wild reveries Painted the walls of his house with
strange shapes and things:
this made him more than welcome guest
and all more wanted to this ghastly feast.

Then, then again the eerie Voice
That dread
Spread through its nasal microphone
Chanted again as if by sheer programming:
'Be merry sirs, no human sees
Hum, hum around like nightly bees
Or like the crickets on the summer nights.
But merry be.
The waters trickle.
The gutters full.
Slope the water-rains.
The heavens open remain.
Rain falls.
Thunder opens white in rage
its mouth.
Then vibrating Earth
it sounds.
One after another Light
after Light
the Thunder goes.
One after another Sound
after Sound
the Thunder goes.
And the day is in throes.
The red dusk fled.
Throne has been left
Into the hands of night.
Be merry, Sirs, the storm
Has ushered humans in:
To their warm hearth and home
And most now sleep profound
Go round, round and round
For no human espies
Long, long and far
the Dawn be; your faces
have many hours to whiten
with pale fear of new Dawn and Day.
Be merry, dance, round
and round,
without a sound, silent,
ghosts and shrouds, animal,
bust and All, dance, merry be:
The storm will last as long
As the night be with me.
So said the Voice then stopped.

And the Masks turned and turned.
Slow they danced with measured steps.
Studied each step and pace and slow.
And the Masks turned and turned.
And though the winds
that Zephyr sent to blow such frost and dreary chill
yet they touched not the Masks
that underneath their identity hid:
and reveled in the mystery of it.

But ah! The hours fly though
Danced they slow:
The measured paces served not
To delay the motion of Time:
And soon
One called – it was the Voice –
That spoke in to a nasal microphone –
‘Look the Dawn within the hour
Will on the shore pebbles be Treading: prepare you
To Vanish in the airs and Vapors Blue
Whence in the night’s beginning came you.’

Then all the Masks of sudden stopped.
Then all the Masks bent gracefully.
Then all the Masks farewell partook
Each to each, with respectful reciprocity.
And soon in the air as the night-stars
One by one light at the flight of Red dusk – so these Masks in the Air
And Vapors Blue within less than minutes
Five
Disappeared and on the place
There stood the trees a-shivering
And the wind still blowing wild
And the rain falling, and the chill
And frost and the rain pattering.

Call after call I will not cease
To tell you to reproduce: while
You still breathe though slow,
Though obesity
Makes you in danger and increases it:
Yet
The more so you should thrive
And your blood to delirium warm
Even if it be the coldest winter day
To make new children in your wake.

Shakespeare had sung this too: wisdom
On this unite us.
If his country and mine had but two rivers
Principal we would have joined them:
But
Shakespeare has his Thames and I have no River.
Therefore we can join the Thames to the Mediterranean sea.

Breathe, breathe, Greek breath, the pines
Are hanging down for they pined
At the parting of the red dusk:
And since they bent their head
They will not rise, no, not even Night-stars lighting after the other
Will do the trick: they still bend
And further bend as the night deepens in Even though the winter chill bites not.

If you do not versify in the level
If you do feel your hand
Reach to the high peaks
Where at least the clouds soar
Or better
Higher than the clouds:
Then retire speak not, write not
And think and wait.

Then
The bells rang
Then
The chapel lighted
Then
The country lanes in the dust
Then
The horse was heard coming
Then
The hooves were heard beating
Then
The dust was seen flying:
Then
The seas dark were moon shining
Then
The horseman crossed the edge
Then
He dropped slow into the sea and safe
Then
The horseman and horse walked on the sea
Then
Night when they passed yielded to Dawn
Then
The legend had been consummated.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Through Out The Rushes

Through out the rushes
the river runs: the mud banks stick in the middle:
and that manifests
that the river is a stream and the stream a river to the sea.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Through Out The Streets Of An Ancient Town By

Through out the streets of an ancient town by far I walked, I walked, I walked and in to the night figures came and vanished.

The walls just outside the town were painted with graffiti and the ilk by nocturnal hands or else?

the pregnant windows, black prevalently soured in the growing frost the vinegar of life touched the lips of night drowsed by the poppy-fumes of the narcotic dusk of that day:

in the gardens inside the city bastions a hoarse cry rose and fell and then silence again except for rustling cats nocturnal lovers, animals, owls and cats and nightingales, a hedgehog that followed by his paramour crosses the street and dawn is away, and the movers of the night wish it away and distant, away, though not for good.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Through The Air I Saw That

Through the air I saw that
The birth-cord was cut: the children Asserted their independence early.
No coup they needed, bloody or not.
But needed only to assert themselves.
So long I said: I assert, you must Assert.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Through The Bushes

Through the bushes
Inside the fields Away from human feet
Even the feet of hedgehogs
The glow-worms hobble Merrily
The night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Through The Glades

Through the glades
The Soul went treading On soils full of sharpened Iron.

Hurt
Was the Soul and Ached.
But at each treading
And each shout Came the Emotions.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Through The Main Of Sewage

Through the main of sewage Swam I
The miserable.

Sweat on the back
And Sweat on the eyes.

And
In the dorsal spine
The muscles screamed.

Yet Desperation made Brought forth and Weaned
My strong determination

And
On and on swam I Through the sewage main.

And Rats, grey short and tall Long-tailed short-tailed
And
All Around me swam.

And
In the length of a night
I had come to shore
And Dawn
And a new risen day.
So far
So far
Through desperation.
Through The Old Night

Through the old night
the waters fell
drop after drop desire after desire emotion after emotion as to the Ganges
there to be purified.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Through The Thick Throng

Through
The Thick Throng
He Passed
The Man
With Lizard
Eyes
Yet
In Those Lizard
Eyes
There Hovered
The Beauty
Of
The Particular
There
Was A Shrine
Of Beauty
In
The Specific.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Through The Thick Veils

Through the thick veils that
Then
Then in that blasted night Surrounded me:
I could see
The convolutions numerous Around me:
And then I said:
‘See this the mirror of my life’

Emmanuel George Cefai
Through The Thicket

Through the thicket
Of steam Where beauty
Smokes
Calm Serene
Her pipe
And Earth unto her hummock
Bends
And grass wetted with dews
That fell at night
That fell at night
Beauty supine lay Looking at the number Of stars increasing
As the day was fading

Emmanuel George Cefai
Through The Thin

Through the thin
Staircase
The flood of ghosts Rushed
It was night dark Though outside
Day shone bright
And
With rain.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Through The Tunnel

Through the tunnel
The waters gulped
And bolstered bushes Spirits that with Open mouths
Crying
In the night of the world
There was a heart
And tongue
That were all hoarse
And vanishing
Slow
As the red dusk Melting
As the tired day
Slow
Fading

Emmanuel George Cefai
Through The Verses

The thought
Ran
Through
The verses hidden as a glow-worm
too beautiful
yet
too fragile for treading.

the onslaught of the ways
of Earth

toil and sweat
and shocks and fear
what more?

for
then the thought ran
through the verses hidden
as a glow-worm
too beautiful
yet
too fragile for treading.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Through The Web

Through the web
Dense and musty of Ancientness I Peered through the
On flowing River of Time: Motion Took a weak shock Alerted to my brain
A dusk suddenly came
And
Then
The dark without a star
The dark without a moon
The dark without a sound

Emmanuel George Cefai
Through The Wields Of Ancient Days

I passed the centuries
I grow older
I aged but with centuries:
I aged
I bent
The leaves turned sere with rage Not age
The black milk that you drunk
When you were not running Then resting was sunset
Yet it was not night
The first stars only were bright
The others were not yet lighted
The rumblings of the chariot of night
The golden axles of it had not Trudged
Trudged the hammering skies
The wide-lipped heavens
The leaves turned sere the dawns That failed Into faded days.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Through The Windows Of The Soul

Through
The windows of the Soul
The upper windows Thin
And taut Peeped the Soul
The Inner Soul
To cry
Weeping tears
That fell
On the dewy grass
They fell
And mixed.
The Soul-tears.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Through The Wooden Wall

Through
The Wooden Wall
Through
The Chunks
I
Saw
The Bull
The Horns
I
Saw Him Pawing
At
The dust Relentless
And Furious Flew
The Dust
To
The High
Heavens
And Fell Symbol
Of Restlessness

Emmanuel George Cefai
Through! Throughout!
A hidden Voice did shout!
Was it from tree or bush
That by passed and flew
As the horse galloped Galloped through?

Where goes the horse all Galloping this night?
To hide from the frozen Spears of star light?

Or from the thunder rumbling Speed?
From whispering things of night
That out of way hide Spare themselves out of light:
And in bent head shrouds And soutane all somber-dark Their waning bodies hide Or skeletons.

Why flee, who so trembling go
As light that in the fading dusk Did tremble so
And waters twilight that vibrated Lo! When the first star arose In the wide heavens still darkening.

Through! Throughout!
A hidden Voice did shout!
Was it from tree or bush
That by passed and flew
As the horse galloped
Galloped through?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Throughout
The things of Earth
And all around us
The phenomena of dusk
And stars and dawn
And all the rest
They flock around us
We have them
They have us
And Verse
And
Song Sing of them
Chant of them.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Throughout The Cloisters

Into the space Ran we
Throughout the cloisters
Of the hill top monastery Close to midnight
Run
The ghosts and shrouds Stately dance Organized
The bells
Ring slow
The belfries light
In the nocturnal trance
Into the space
Ran we

Emmanuel George Cefai
Throughout The Dusk Heard I

Throughout the dusk heard I
under the privilege of Poet Seer heard I arising as a snake song from the twilight waves of the decline of day
I heard, I the privileged
I heard the eerie song of the ever reddening dusk-signal of the now fading day.

that snake-song too reflected as in a mirror as in a crystal lake transparent my emotions buffeted by currents underneath yet at the surface quiet:
and declining with declining day.

the oaks were sleeping already, and the boughs and leaves a-hanging in the first sub-conscious ecstasies of sweet sleep and sweet decay.

ah! mother ah! mother ah! mother

you too declined as the day declined:
life was your day;
how beautiful you were in your heyday
and in the mid-day drunkenness of beauty when life at its zenith sings and vies with Venus herself...
time comes alas...
time comes alas...
and after the sleeping giddying afternoon as in hummock starts the sweet decline of age:
the hair grows white as green leaves hoar at touch of winter and impressed by snow and winter storms and tempests:
you
you too declined as the day declined
my mother

throughout the dusk heard I
under the privilege of Poet Seer
heard I arising as a snake song
from the twilight waves of the decline of day
I heard, I the privileged
I heard the eerie song of the
ever reddening dusk-signal of
the now fading day,
my mother.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Throughout The Inner Sighs

again
throughout the inner sighs
of the Inner Soul
the inner circles fair with beauty
blow
and thoughts
ah! thoughts run riot in the wild exchange
and more they pine caught in the throes
of love
each every time my maiden-love in kisses
melts
and with her sweet tongue in ecstasy
groans.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Throughout The Night

Throughout the night
I hear the pirates of old times Their voices
Their whisperings
Over the waves
Coming
Coming
Coming
Throughout the night
This night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Throughout the night how neighed
The wind. It had a rose on its foot
On each foot. So two roses.

That night wind had two feet.
It walked over the bastions and It churned in the open spaces as In Hastings Gardens the firs and Troubled oaks full rudely shaking.
Trembled the nightingales that Singing were but sudden stopped.
The owls all wise sate silent
On the shaking boughs
But they maneuvered to keep their Claws round and tight.
So they survived a fall through the Whole night.

Throughout the night how neighed
The wind. It had a rose on its foot
On each foot. So two roses.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Throughout The Night Raged The White Hoar

Throughout the night
Raged the white hoar
Under the anvil red
Of deepening winter
I have begun again
After a brief parched
Time!
A whiff of Spring in All this winter dread
Even in just one line!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Throughout The Night The Tempest Was

Throughout the night the tempest was but calm, no thunder heard but muted over woods and town, with retained rain upheld
the dreamers woke not
and
the sleepers woke not

Emmanuel George Cefai
Throughout The Night There Swam Planets

Throughout the night
there swam planets in the extreme frost of the
heavens
there swam discs that spoke of despair
there swam humans but not wholes
but parts here an arm,
there a leg,
there a head
and so on
and so on throughout the night
no,
no wonder the gales went no wonder the gales roared forcing robber-like the doors and the windows

Emmanuel George Cefai
Throughout The Pain

Throughout the pain
the patient must have chloroform: refrain
from the high heavens sounds and shrieks of damned and desperate:
throughout the pain.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thunder and heavy rain drizzles – Spirits That roamed since Dusk, red Dusk, Into the chill, despite the frost, Strong, raw, challenging, undeterred.

Saw I Prometheus walking defiantly In to the storm and tempest For him Winter as of Summer be And as of Spring’s felicity.

For us, humans, must we rise To wise old Prometheus, to His strength and prize
And bring new fires from Earth primeval.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thunder And Lightning

Thunder and lightning
The set is done
The play begun
The curtain fallen.

Come airy clouds
And sovereign thunder Earthquakes that rend
The earth asunder
Iron that gapes out Of the vein-lodes.

Grey that pops out
Of the old dark
The night
The rise of day
The Genesis
The Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thunder Exploded

The thunder exploded Thus then flew Over to the hills
That gloating sad
Were sub-conscious in large Part.

Emmanuel George Cefai Thunder Strike

And
I heard the thunder strike

I heard the windows panes
Screech
The windows rattle

And
I heard the wild call
And
I heard a thousand whisperings

And
I fell to earth before all these.

And I felt my Soul, my very Inner Soul vomited towards the Edge.

And I felt my heart sink suddenly.

And
I heard the thunder
Striking and striking

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thunder Struck, Thunderstruck Recoiled I,

Thunder struck, thunderstruck recoiled I,
The architect said: Pay attention Before you go up the road
Your breath looks short, your face
The more I see – the better – Looks so pale:
Pay attention, move slow, pace
After pace you move and go.
And in the heavens I looked and Saw winter and tempests green writ in the clouds.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thundered

Thundered the old man Half-dressed as Neanderthal (Or rather half-naked as Neanderthal) With him growing fast his goat beard Unwashed and untidy:
Thundered
He though that he was Jove
When in his sinewy hands he seized The giant couple of rocks and beat Them together: fire burst
Flashing
In flashing each other And the mighty sound of
Thunder:
Rolled as the waves of Ocean from land to land Rolled as the waves of Ocean to the sand Of beaches on desert and half-desert islands on the Earth.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thundering Of The Poet Seer

I saw verse light
In the skies
In the heavens
I heard the Thundering of
The Poet Seer:
Long and erect
In the night storm
He braved the rains
The winds, the colds
The blizzards and
The frost
I saw him
I heard him
I call to him
But no!
No he continued Continued chanting

Emmanuel George Cefai
Thunders

Nine times the thunders
Struck
Ten times the lightning Struck
One time the benighted tempest
Came.
Three hundred times and more
The old owl screeched Five hundred and more Notes sang out Each nightingale

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tick, Tick, Tick

Tick, tick, tick,
Love and Thought and
Verse
And Verse and Thought And Love
And Thought and Love and
Verse.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tides Of Seething Venom

Tides of seething venom
Emitted by crocodiles
Enraged
Floating in the rivers Where the heavens are Black
Black with frowning
Though it be not
Night
As yet

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tidings

Tidings
coming
from
the sunset radio-waves
radio-waves
radio-waves echoing
echoing
radio-waves
'day declining
day
be waning'
hear you?
atention!
hold!
hear!
hear!
the dusk hums!
the red hums!
there's the first scream from the bat
as it flies low over the waters still a-stunned by the noon
sun.
radio-waves
radio-waves echoing
echoing
radio-waves
'day declining
day
be waning'
hear you?
attention!
hold!
hear!
hear!
night is coming
already
the edge
of
his dark mantle
comes already already already woman's heart
she loves she loves
and
the night
this night
for her days
are passing days
are slipping
as
the sand stars come out to demonstrate moon be not shy be not faint clouds fly low, avert the moon.
this the night
the bridge will sigh creaking, creaking
as when my father and mother, two, lovers hand in hand over it they paced and went.
Long ago! Long ago!
old Valletta! long ago!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tidings, Brains, Happenings

Tidings, brains, happenings:
in the nights sleep pitiful comes to aid
my brains to calm.

For in the day's other hours
my brains burn on a tragic fires turn.

To the rendezvous Of Oblivion bring Sub-Conscious happening!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tiger Of The Night

Tiger of the night
With brimming eyes
Of giant stars
With spots
Again the stars
A cluster of stars
Vestal virgins in
Of Beauty the nocturnal temple.

Shouted the crowds
Aloud
As the sea-waves Giant one after
The other Entering

Sound of the Ocean might In its wild beauty raw
Up
Up in the heavens immense
In the glooms of hanging Destinies
In the verses writ
In the night's sensuous light
A matter such for Beauty's own Delight.

Humming the stars
The crowds of the skies
Voters of the heavens Flocks roaming of Beauty's particle toys Toys of the Olympians Their delight and Long term wisdom
Without need of owls Hanging on trees and Boughs.
Tiger of the night
With brimming eyes
Of giant stars
With spots
Again the stars
A cluster of stars
Vestal virgins in
Of Beauty the nocturnal temple.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Time

Let Time tick, tick, tick Motion will tick proportional
And now
That you my mother are In the damp ground
Time, Motion, Motion, Time
What relative relevance?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Time And Evolution

Will one day point to Pines
For our fruit-eating.

There will be streams That play as Pleasant violins
In Venice.

There will be lights
That will all come and go Mysterious yet usual
To those who yearn them ever.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Time Be Passing Said The Poet Seer

Time be passing
Time be passing
Said the Poet Seer among The strewn leaves of Verses strewn.

Time be passing
Time be passing
Said the Earth
Now in motion
Now in motion

Time be passing
Time be passing Sang the heavens
Dangling
Dangling

Emmanuel George Cefai
Time Before Time Before Time

Time
Before
Time
Before
Time
King
Of Succession
And
In Any Succession
What Occurs
Has
Time
Before
It
Will
Not Escape
That

Emmanuel George Cefai
Time By The Hour Count

Time by the hour count.
Time by the minute count.
Yet
In more pressure
Count Time by the second.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Time Comes And Moves

Time comes and moves
As motion moves
Time goes and moves
As motion moves
We wait for time to come
And then moving
We move with Time
And looking behind
See how much is past

Emmanuel George Cefai
Time Flies So Much.

Time flies so much.
I feel the anguish.
Now.
That is My vessel is Turnings its sails
From the winds
Of the Conscious Zephyr
To the Sub- Conscious.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Time Is A Pirate: So I Slandered It:

Time is a pirate: so I slandered it:
But it smiled; and recoiled not
At my words:
Though I recoil and planning to retract
The words that I had uttered in Hypnosis
Yet Time, ah! Time’s so cunning
Knew well that under the Hypnosis
I uttered well, and wished that
All civilization would be in Hypnosis
That is from king and president to power less Tycoon to relative poor: see!
All is relative on these tongues of earth
That from the Sun-circulating Oceans project:
Time is a pirate
Time is a pirate, emboldened I,
Uttered again, Time is a Pirate.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Time Passes

Time passes
We the powerful
Age
We find That we were Powerful
Now
Be less powerful

Emmanuel George Cefai
Time Runs

Time runs, time runs,
There was no way I could Persuade it stop.
There was no promise that Could buy it.
Time whistled.
Time giggled.
Time laughed as small children laugh.
Ruthless it smiles.
Ruthless it goes.
Time soars as the kites soar in the heavens float over the Earth yet Time be not propense to the motion of slow soaring but It hobbles innocent as a toddling grown up boy whose eyes are still glistening:
whose heart smiles
clean:
whose hands are white and unsoiled:
That boy was me too.
Yet
that boy was human too.
Yes.
We, humans, oblivious
So often and so much,
We humans
Barely feel its stealthy Undercutting our very feet
Time runs, time runs.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Time Slips So Fast

Time slips so fast
So sinister
So ruthless
Yet Looked back and Long-term
How much better so!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Time Stately Passes

Time stately passes
I Hear its regal cape Screeching the earth
Slowly.

I hear Dawn and the new Day
Whispering

I hear
A lark in the heavens
Still Kangaroo-like Hopping.

I feel
The scent of formalin
For in the night
Earth had its stitches.

Crushing meteorites
Flew
In each other's path
Grumbling
In the light of an Earth that lights
Blue bulb of sadness Rotating
In the immense spaces Rotating

Ghosts groan with shrouds Lamenting

The bridge sighs its sighs
Of centuries
Time Stealthy

stealthy passes
time
stealthy
for as we ride our lives in the Cars of Life tree after tree we by us view
passing:
we think not but pleasant sensous Beauty
feel and blinding serenity on our eyes sits
but ah!
some point comes mostly when we
we humans understand
we be at the end of the journey
the best be past the rest dismay and white-grown hairs
and faces.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Time Surpasses Us So Often

Time
Surpasses
Us
So Often
So Often!
Its Clock Hangs
Over
Our Heads Irresistible
And Irreversible

Emmanuel George Cefai
Time Ticks.

Time ticks.
Low the flame of life.
Desire throbs still
Slow.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Time Walks Slow

The
Time Walks
Slow

But
It Walks Ruthless
Too
And Age Follows
In Train

The
Time Walks
Slow
And Ruthless, my Monsignor.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Time Will Pass

Time will pass
Too
For the young That now jest
To see an old man Bent and frail
Yet
Singing yet
Of verse and wine
And song

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tin Soldier On The Box

Tin Soldier
On
The Box
Of Pandora Drumming Drumming Drumming
Look
Look
It
Be Winter
Past
But
Just
And Spring
Is Only Stirring
After Such Hoar
Drear
To Find
Its Feet

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tiny Oars

Tiny oars
That had from the heavens
Fallen
Fallen the silent seas
To ply
In to that paradise nocturnal Where sweet palms Flourished all secret over The waters though coast by Yet whose roots
Uprooted from the soils of earth
Now rested on the liquid seas There were the waters that Flashed by
And danced rising and falling As dolphins of the night:
As dolphins do by day and morning
So
The relished silver spouts arose and Fell
And played
And Poet Seers would hear them
Gargle and chuckle as fond water-babes In fairy tales of deep and ancient age

Emmanuel George Cefai
‘Tis known and seen that arrows even small Shot and sped from bows their havoc tell On the frail human flesh with gaping wounds Like mouths reddened with wine at festivals Wherein the rowdy drinkers in their bacchanals While the whole night with speech and deed aloud:
Till the young Dawn ascending up the hill To where they lie half-dreaming half-awake Turns its soft steps and full tiptoes away
But when sweet Cupid his assailment made Unto my fort instead of havoc there My blood revived again as was in youth.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Titans See No Time

the age moves past at first slow
the more to deceive you the more you laugh and smile and think of Hercules laugh as loud as Titans, see not time
running:
then the rot increases
you still notice not
then you notice one day that the rot has been gnawing at decades and helpless as a boa constrictor
winds
around you:
then you see age move and see at a desperate pace
and hanging down the head that once was proud and roared hanging down the head the haughty soul to the dust becomes resigned
once and for all.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Adjust The Brain

To adjust the brain
To adjust the brain

That be task main
Now

To all sorts of suffering and pain
To all
In all
For all
In all of times and all of places

To adjust

That be the Action
Now!

Emmanuel George Cefai
To An Abrupt End

The verses walk
Yet
In that abruptness Experiment and style Revealed
A sweetness yet not Felt.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Be Blind

To be blind Without not to see To be in Love
To fall
From frigid reasoning
To warmer and Warmer Love reigns.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Be Of Beauty

To be of beauty
Will not save us
In the end
Beauty must flee
The end
When all descent
Be wiped out That end
The Dies Irae
When flesh be stinking
And
When bodies rancid
When Souls be burning Cumulus of suffering Beauty must be energy
In flight

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Be Sad, To Sigh, Be Sad

To be sad, to sigh, be sad Funereal, funereal, funereal.

Black clouds soaring, white Heavens instead of blue-azure

Hanging from heavens candelabra
And censers of incense suspended.

The yawning-yellow mouths of Ghosts and shrouds hidden in crevices

And the Dawn, Dawn riding on the Waters of old Valletta, with bent head.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Beauty Added - Dilution

Beauty
To Beauty added - dilution Mixture more powerful Than spells
Fostered in red dusk Conceived in sunset
As days wane slow
And covert
In Hastings Gardens
In dream-clad Hastings Gardens
The leaves, the boughs,
The trees in their torpor Anaesthetized by the beauty Of the histories of the rich
Past Arcane and dazzled Stunned
In the earth's fading beauties
Look
Below the bastion just Right in to the Twilight waters
And enmesh their spelled already
Eyes
With Beauty after Beauty.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To begin is painful, but once begun be ruthless.
The heart has to bear the brunt.
The heart has to bear the danger.
The season is cold, verses must keep me warm.
The year begins, the travail starts.
I see the foot path going up, up, up.
I see the thorns,
I see the summit heights.
I see the clouds frowning bleak and loaded.
I begin the first step, a stone rolls.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Begin With

To begin with.
A verse, a line that sparks the first flame
and then another
and another all sparkling the flames
then in the night the fire-tongue leap and fly and leap unto the heavens and sky those giant things we slumber
below
restless resting from our tired day and possibly warring

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Call These Verses

To call these verses that we did today
call them an ordeal a hurdle skipped in the race of hurdles

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Copy To Follow

To copy To follow Exact precise
The Itinerant Intellectual
If Fame must come my Way
But more [Fame being relative]
If
What discovered
Thought
To the rest of humanity
I have to feed, communicate Through my methodology

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Cut Me To Pieces

To cut me to pieces
Is less of pain Than stressing thus My brain.

Thundering
Lightning
Within my brain

How more severe Than in tempest
Within the brain!

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Cut The Head Of Sadness They

To cut the head of sadness they attempted but ah! once it was cut as soon as it was cut it came itself again and was still sadness

Emmanuel George Cefai
To D.

Your voice let me hear Your violin thoughts
Your immensity.

I hear paces in the night.
Last night
Was a full night.

Now fear, angst, guilt Together gather in just Violins that play
Violins that play

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Daniel Brick - I

Fellow worker in the fields where the Muse trains us in the war of verse.
For verse must softly war on many things, on many mores, prejudices
and more.

The Poet Seer ever sad works slow; and
suffering
looms in his eyes as he bent rises from the arched back of work.

Yet the Poet Seer gives life the meaning to our each very breath at times in magic and to magic, as he sings, rises.

He (including she and they) has to.
And
Your verse to this be witness and more yet deserves.
You tell me Master.
I reciprocate; and all the things you said of me made me more humble in my sacred work.
Continue, Master, in your noble work.
A sacred duty that we both fulfill.
A sacred fire that we kindle both.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Dissolve Into The Night Air

To dissolve into the night air
Is the course that bests befits now; Clear is the night
And from below
The wave less sea murmurs in its sleep
No cloud this night obstacles the moon
To shine on the sad port all languidly.

And now
And now
Will I into a ghost dissolve Dissolve for aye, immortal be Without the arm of science

And in the morning air Sailing in cloudless serenity Will I see dawn
As human eye sees not.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Dream And Dream

To dream
And dream
Sub-conscious the Conscious dream
To rend
The curtain that from us
Hides
The interior shard of each of
Us
The Holy Grail of the Sub-Conscious Dream on dream
And scents and myrrh and incenses
That
Ensure that in our dream
We never cease
But
Every now and then
In alternation to the deeper dreams
We dream less and more conscious open Our eyes to baubles Awhile the dream that Mnemosyne Kissed on us before our Very first cry of birth Before our eyes were opened to the world:
Before
Before
That be the moment that defines Fixes and pins that we but dream
And dream
Even in the heaviest wars and functions Of the State and all their tribe:
We dream and so continue even if Our eyes we close Under and in Any circumstances
We dream; and dream and dream.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Express -

To express -
yes, to express the signifying of the morning
the dawn
then the usual routine the walk of day
the walk through day till a peak of Midday at Noon or whereabouts:
then the droll afternoon of lazy declining
then further declining sunset orange of sweet agony
then the red of communist dusk it comes every day to every
one:
and then the night father to us all.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To freeze Dawn into a white glacier.

Then see Dawn melting slow but not all.

And the Dawn Glacier still remain by half By midday.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Have To Worry

To Have
To Worry
In
As Proportion
Direct

Emmanuel George Cefai
To His Site

Night after night
They from All parts of the world
To his site
Came
At least
To look at his photo
If not read the verse
And chant it in their Hearts
And seep it in their Souls.

The lyre
Lay down
Abandoned by the Poet.

In the vale
The chant of some peasants Scents from the nether
Clouds
To the higher ones:
Ascends.

The Inner Souls scent
This ennobling.

And in the lakes of heavens Water freezes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Join The Stars

To join the stars
To join the moon
To join the mid-night Yellow pale of moon
Mixed with the silver
Of the sea-crest waves:
To join Unite, not tear asunder
As the Dawn comes Fast though as from remote What nights, these nights
To pass
Beneath the lightning lamps Ancient and new Hear your step fall one as
By one
On the deserted roads and Streets
Alone, alone, what chill!
These nights
In old Valletta

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Live

To Live is to be Restless
To be Restless to live

Live and be restless Evolution will smile Innocent without guile
For Evolution requests
Work and work.

And work and work
Of evolution
By restlessness multiplied Of Evolution be a genesis.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Live To Hover

To live
To hover Between the toiling and the Lazing thought
To hover between habit Repetition and
The fiery spark
Of genius Condemned
To these extremes
And in between
To non-extremes relative Condemned and Irresistible
Condemned enchained
And Irreversible
No,
No Not even every New dawn will change this

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Me You Give Just One Year

To me you give just one year
Knowing that you hold over me power.

You play the strings, my head bends
And where you order my foot wends.

In to the forest of Fear entered we To drown into of miseries the sea.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Meet Us

To meet us at the door of the smoking incense
was life in a mask
by columns of the Temple

we felt giddy then and scented in the incense deep subconscious in our nostrils.

our masks still edged our noses and our nostrils fumed back the scented incenses
and life was there still there
life in a mask
by the columns of the Temple.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Meet You

To meet you, cousin,
I yearn:
To ask
About other relatives
We
Who came from the Same flesh and blood
Over the years
Over the centuries:
Too
Time simultaneous With remembrance Throws
Into the quarries of oblivion
But no!
We have the power
To hold up our hands
To stop oblivion
But
That must be done
In union Between us all
And
We must know us all
And
Be All for One and One for All
All times.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Night Come Out

To night come out
To night come out
The winds abated
And the tempest ceased Still the waters and The seas no longer roar Nor Oceans long majestic roll And now that silence reigns In this sad world of ours
Now
Bring out, bring forth
A violin to play

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Night The Waters Drunk

Glide and glimmer
As the Bacchanalians
The waters will
To wear ivy on their Heads
To-night
To-night
The glamour of the Nightingales
To-night has waned
Alas! too early before Strike of midnight.
They stopped suddenly.
On the advice
Of the wise owls.
Pigeons cooed instead
That came that night
Nestling in the boughs.
The dark hand
Stretched
In it the knife of Time
And labor of the years
Now
To desperation transformed Barefaced
In the sacrifice to Beauty

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Night This Night

To-night this night
how sad
The church-bells ring in the long distance

From the church all lit
The bell-sounds foam over the dark waters Silently.

And in the haze
How sadness dwells to-night.

I wish, I wish
They could not fade
They would not fade
But ring
Ring
Over the whole night
And silently.

Vain wish! They fade! They fade!
Seconds seem to make them less Less audible!

Alas! Alas!

And in the night
over the waters dark dwindling
They bubble and foam

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Play With Chance

To play with chance and Probability
As tennis football
And the rest

That's courage
I term it

And we my Monsignor Must have Plenty of that courage.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Rape A Bird: Not Necessary Sex;

To rape a bird: not necessary sex;
But the same intent of over lordship That the Human is prone to Well: that is enough.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Rise Above Others Is For You To Do

To rise above others is for you to do

All others can rise as you too

All can rise; to genius all attain, if so they will

And one rises now, now the next, then again ah! that be evolution at its best

And that be the best of civilization for each of us

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Rise More And More

Said my Monsignor:
In verse, press more and
More
To rise more and more

Replied the Poet Seer:
I press not But resigned
Without expectation Bend my head:
It be then that I rise
I rise, I rise!

Then Intelligent
My Monsignor said:
‘And then
In direct proportion Verses rise’

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Roam About A Vacant House

To roam about a vacant house
Save for one self;
To shout and cry
Like a wild beast innominate;
To prowl and stalk
In lonely solitude
About a vacant house.

And in the night
Dancing devils and complacent Shades Flicker on the dancing walls Like grains of time
By-passing the time-glass Like falling stars down Saint Anne’s Way.

Alone, alone, alone..

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Savor Of Fame

The glory of the wreath Around the Poet's head
The crown
Of years of toil
Of Inner Soul suffering!

No, no, not that
That breathes life
To my verses
But the heart
That throbbing beats
Of life
Just life and all That meets
In Evolution's ever-increase!

On the Aegean shores Long, long, ancient Ago
A Poet lonely strung His lyre and His heart was sad
He saw the future
Clear
Though
In his eyes rose tears
And
His Inner Soul was one With mine centuries between!
That be
The wealth of verse
Of Civilization wealth
Power and glory:
Permanent, long term and Great
The Inner Soul, the glory!

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Scrape The Barrel.

To scrape
The barrel.

Youth fled.

Age remains Sardonically.

How many years
Alas! I lost
How many days Went by!

And Age remains
All restless by

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Sleep A Little More

To sleep
To sleep a little more Wished I.

The summer heat
Had crumpled me
And thoughts
My brain
My beating brain
Had plied.

There
Will I
One day to sleep
In to the lap, the Very lap of night
While
Ghosts and shrouds Brush by Lamenting all aloud!
Great Spirits! Even
The hardest stones at this Will speak and stir!

Emmanuel George Cefai
To The Bough

To
The Bough
You
Be Restless
See
How
The Winds Shake
And Rattle Sacred Boughs
And Sacred Leaves
Tonight:
They
be Too Much
In Dialogue
Engrossed
This Night
Of Nights

Emmanuel George Cefai
To The Hill

Of the hill! -
To the hill-
so shouted the hoarse
throats
and the hoarse voices

Trudged
tanks and horses
and carts
up the old hill trudge after trudge
after trudge

And the voices grew
hoarser
And the night grew darker

Emmanuel George Cefai
To The Night

To the night
I sing today, to the night this verse dedicate:
here
from the hermit grotto stringing
my lyre in the nocturnal singing as bodies celestial are rotating as night's dark curtain to beauty be clinging.

here on this cliff, these winds, this gale, and on the jut below I look into the hideous depths by the dark hidden a little lit by moon and rock-arising spume:
here on this cliff, here the nest of my old wildness

to the night
I sing today, to
the night this verse dedicate:
here
from the hermit grotto stringing
my lyre in the nocturnal singing
as bodies celestial are rotating
as night's dark curtain to beauty be clinging.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Think

To think
And yet to be blank
In the conscious
But ah!
Those are the moments
When the sub-conscious thinks.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To This We Be Come.

To this
To this we be come.

The grave is open.
But I recoil.

I run from the cemetery straight into the hands of life's nymph
falling.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To those
Those who made you suffer
I
I ask forgiveness today
And ever in the time
My mother
I pray you do the same
Though
You have done
Let us do again
The forgiveness of all to all
Together.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Those Sacred Places

To those sacred Places
The glow-worms go
To-night
As almost every
Night
Their bar and night club
Under the bending palms
The bristling jungle;
The echoes of cockatoos Still awake at night Monkeys that climb
In the dense silhouettes Of dark trees
Themselves
Silhouettes.
To those sacred Places
The glow-worms go
To-night
As almost every
Night
Their bar and night club
And Night obliges together
With his serving night-stars Whom he sends waiters to The wakers in the night
The haunters of the dark Night's favorites

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Tragedy

To tragedy
We
Be married now Tragedy after Tragedy

Emmanuel George Cefai
To Watch The Till Of Beauty Full

But always fall
We
Here:
But Turning round
And round
The place
We so often be Propense
To watch the Till of Beauty
Full

Emmanuel George Cefai
To You Bequeath I A Song To-Night

To
You Bequeath
I
A song
To-night
A Song
From
The Heart
A Song
From
The Sea
A Song
From
The Waters

Emmanuel George Cefai
To You Mother

To you
Mother
Who holds still
The keys to my heart
Though
Under layers of thin Snow
You Lie face upwards Bony skeleton
In a small box
That we
We humans make
In a small hole
That we
That we humans
Make

Emmanuel George Cefai
Toad

In the mood of the toad
There was croaking

In the temple deep In deepest midnight
There was incense

There was censer
And a violin music
Of croaking

Emmanuel George Cefai
Today

To-day I write not but tomorrow will.

To-day I sing not
But tomorrow will

This my proposal
the heavens do the rest!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Today I Saw Enough Of Moon

I saw Enough of undiluted sadness
I saw Horror face to face
See
I met Horror in the corridor
I saw enough of it
Today

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tolling Vespers

Run, run, the bells are tolling vespers
already so soon
time slips.
run, run,
before night overtake,
my monsignor,
my human

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tomb Of Flowers

Tomb of flowers
Breathing
Breathing
Of wild winter rain
The dowers:
Yet
To the ground
Scenting beauty around Coloring soil and air
By gentle years you grow
And twinkle to a grove Where in the night Fairies and nymphs and Fauns and satyrs ride
On hedgehogs merry Dance the moon-lit green
A merry and rare sight!
Tomb of flowers
Breathing
Breathing
Of wild winter rain
The dowers:

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tombs Round Monuments And Drying Flowers

The waters chant
The waters go
And seep Through graves and Tombs round
Monuments and drying
Flowers
In the cemetery

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tongue Of Land

The Tongue
Of Land
The Tongue
Of
The Poet-Seer: Tongues
All Utilitarian
All
To Beauty Prone
The Poet-Seer
Has Beauty Without
Sea.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tongues Passing

You
Can leave the tongues
Passing
They were bleeding
But
They spoke not
As yet:
They settled on the boat Before capsizing
So
The others accepted
Them with open hands
Deriding
You must get more, boy,
The Night
Is Father
Of These Horrors
The ghosts of faces and Eyes circled black:
History and thunder

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tonight
make the selection
but
you
must study for making the selection hold your hand on your
heart
hold your palm on your forehead look at the heavens
this night
with tears
look around this blue Earth
without fears.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To-Night

let the stars be pale and weep a little and their tears seep
a little to-night for tomorrow.

Emmanuel George Cefai
To-Night Is The Nocturne

To-night is the nocturne
That in the air plays violins And violins bathed in wine Play to the stars and light.

Silent the night! The curtains dark Immense stretch background of Immensity and sorrows hid From sight of kindly moon.

To-night is the nocturne
But tempest will be soon
And thunder rain and lightning That keep sweet Dawn awaiting.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tonight The Calls Reciprocal

Tonight
The calls reciprocal Of coves and Caves
Be not
For
The sea-waters quiet sleep
And no winds neigh

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tonight The Feast

the festering of ghosts and shrouds and swarming
shadows
round and round and round the idle Poet Seer sad and solitary by him hand in hand roams
with him a broken Soul, a weeping Inner Soul.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tonight The Night

Tonight the night
the fairy on her toes dances daintily

the moon looks lustily the stars watch intently the fairy dances daintily and dawn be far away the night is long; dance till first warnings of day

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tonight The Stars Pray In A Group

Tonight the stars pray in a group tonight the stars procession form
to-night
to-night
with ghosts and shrouds with yews of cemeteries with Spirits of the Night with rivers dark as Rhine as they together glide

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tonight The Windows Creaked

too
Tonight the windows creaked although there were no winds
outside.

the night
had stars in heaven that he lit
and in his eyes the mirror of the swimming stars slow and sad.

too much
too much the glass of sadness to its brim and more has flown:
now
the curtains of the stage fall and close

Emmanuel George Cefai
To-Night They Will Carry The Prize

To-night
they will carry the prize their nymph naked on their hands above their heads with trembling
hands the satyrs will march
with her in procession
nocturnal
this night
this night before they get drunk
before they get warmer with wine plus the lust

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tonight Tonight The Tempest Roars

tonight
the house is lone
tonight
the lights waver
tonight
life wavers low
tonight!

Emmanuel George Cefai
To-Night, To-Night

to-night, to-night
we'll storm
the house that hangs above the narrow street that leads to port.

Ah! that small house
How queer it is:
Its garden how deranged
How creaking
The iron stile
That opens into the garden!

And in the night
The stormy night
None go near the house
For all around
The ground’s unsanctified
By horses’ hooves
And elves and goblins green
And ghosts unseen.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Too Blinding Light

Too blinding light
whiter than star-light higher than star-light mysterious as the night silent more than night walking sole alone past night in a fresh Dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai
Too Many

Too many Too many shadows from the past Flitting beyond the water gates of Styx.

Too many shadows new ferried just Surprised with baleful eyes over The boiling waters and steamy mists.

Charon laughs ugly yet sardonic.
The ghosts and shrouds huddle.
The boat hums sailing under their lank weighting.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Too Many Nights

Too many nights
Have passed
And went Too many Too many
In old Valletta!
And Time sits frowning Sits in discontent:
Too many nights
Too many.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Too Many Thoughts

Too many thoughts
Too many
All ferried over the convoluted Windings of the brain its streets and Alleys
A city brimming with the steam of stress A city brimming with the pale face Of a tragic morrow
Drear Dawn be not enough.
It be worse.
Worse than that.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Too Pricking

Too pricking Too pricking Too deep
Too deep
The anguish for enjoying Our own very own discovery Of spells and sweet enchanting

Emmanuel George Cefai
Torch Torch Flames
Stairs
Long
Long Winding
As Secret Stairs
Of Castles
Long Ago
The Mists
Are Coming
See!
The Mists
Are Coming
So Hazy
So Hazy
And
There
Look!
A Drop
Red
Another
Another
Another

Emmanuel George Cefai
Torn Documents

Torn are the documents in shreds statues of glory and the pompous past the pitcher is broken
only
the bits litter:
the violin that played albeit of sad
is gone
the silence weeps without a word
the doors are barred and barren every where.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Touched The Mist

I saw the mist
I raised my hands and touched the mist
it was so low so humble friendly
was its mark.

I heard the instruments
play
as in an Arab land as in the desert as amongst the red sand
that stretches and stretches manifests
what be immense.

I saw the mist
I raised my hands
and touched
the mist
it was so low so humble
friendly
was its mark.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Towards Fields

Towards fields of Rice Escaped I Running
The dawn was Rising
The drear Increasing
The drear in my Soul, my Inner Soul

Emmanuel George Cefai
Towards The Ageing Of Life

Towards the ageing of life
the waters take on twilight leanings:
they become calmer as setting to rest after a storm after a tempest that exhausted them after a day of labor that made them groan: so they turn twilight and then with every hour passing deepen and deepen.

there's waiting waiting on so many occasions in this life were I and others to make it immortal then there would be immortal waiting.

the snows already start to breeze themselves slowly and rarely already begin to thaw in the chill of after-ageing For the Dusk Will take off his clothes and in a hidden pool Deep leap swimming.

Trembles the blue of night paces are heard on the roof that be the Olympian heavens.
And then
A wide big laugh
the Night
the visage of the heavens
changes

Emmanuel George Cefai
Towards The Earth, The Damp Earth

the hand points towards but the hand is skeletal, of bones, not flesh.

and the damp earth recoils at first, then embraces with love.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Towards The End Of The Plain

Towards the end of the plain
A dim light over the main A star above detached From the rest of her peers
A Voice that whispers Loud in silence

Emmanuel George Cefai
Towards The Night

Towards the night
the curtain of night
the direction of the dusk ship
was
and over the air and
clouds
the skiff went out then of sudden by random chance and probability
directionless
towards the night
the curtain of night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Towards The Night But Not The Night

Towards the night
But not in the night.

A Spirit tall
Walk over Santi on the plains.

He has a turban and a haughty Look of fire and kindness

My ancestor!

Speak, my ancestor!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tower Bells

when the tower bells ring
the waters of the river
overflow
the hedgehogs by the banks gather
the row of firs that line part of the banks lights red and the wool of the trees warms...

glades
frost
and
chill icicles and hanging frozenness lighted lighted
lighted

when the tower bells ring
the waters of the river
overflow
the hedgehogs by the banks gather
the row of firs that line part
of the banks lights red
and the wool of the trees
warms...

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tower Of Bronze

Snakes with forked tongues
That pile themselves
Level upon level
High High to low:
A hissing tower of dread Mirror of a life.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tower Of The Red

Tower of the red
Of flames
Of games
Without a name.

Blue blood That drips
With every breath
That heaven grips

Flower that bends
In chill and unclad
Still.

No rays of scorching sun
No dazzling drunken run Of pitcher wine

No, no
Just Tower of the red
Of flames
Of games
Without a name

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tower That Burns

Tower that burns
You
Can touch the walls
And feel them Burn
After red dusk
Has tiptoed
Fast a secret hill of silence great.

So many tower in the vicinity Towers
Towers
Yet this tower only burns
As flesh burns
Whispers
As humans whispers
Sighs
As human sigh.

Ah! to every arrow
There a counter-strike Remember that It counts
It serves!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Towers

In the towers Dames came out.

In the minarets
The mosques shone
Red in the motley
Dark.

In the dunes
The winds sang
To the seas’ whispers

Emmanuel George Cefai
Town

Town whose upper levels are The streets and houses Where Earth is bruised
By day

I want to live in the Town below
The lower level cleared From debris
Made habitable

And
If you will to leave me
There alone
Bring the Sub-Conscious with you Lock him there
That at least we two together
Circulate
At least if not hand in hand Those lower levels of the olden Town.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Town Of Ancient Night Lamps

I left the house.

Pace after pace
street after street Into strait alleys peered I in the dark half-silence.

Every fixed distance a night lamp clanks vision is blurred tears in the eye the head dreams the eye-lids lower but not sleep.

So many streets!
So many night-lamps dim, half-dim, some rarely bright:
yet all romantic yearning for a wind to clank
clank
in the nights romantic.

Do not look at the palaces
Do not look at the monuments Ignore the churches
and your heart will still fill with night-lamps
clanking
clanking
clanking.
Town Of Ancient Night Lamps II

Town Ancient Befits
The Ancient
And
Then
In as direct proportion
It
Be Romantic.

Ancient Lamps
In Ancient Streets
In Ancient Squares
In Ancient Town
Romantic!

Sad violin
And waters
Trembling
Streets
All vibrating:
What town
What Spirit of the ancient
From Over
The Waters
You see the dots
Of night-lamps Flickering
Town of ancient night-lamps!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Town Of Markets

champagne and town of markets
old town of markets poor

pigeons fly a monkey climbs a long nosed hedgehog flirts with a giant beetle red and smokes not incense rise

and shout
shout to the heavens as they knock

ah! these assail me in the
night

senseless in the Sub-conscious fall
I,
I
the Poet Seer!

keep Dawn away some hours, then let her
come

I know her beauty and I want it too

Emmanuel George Cefai
Town Of Mighty Heels

Town of mighty heels and little streets and fewer squares houses more abundant to the trees and the nearby sea
that azure rises.
Even so I strange and confused
I versify
I sing
my emotions fly
my Inner Soul
in to the lap of the Subconscious goes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Town Of Pride

Town of pride
To dwell in you
Feel
As the knights of old
And
Go out in the night
When the red dusk
Descended Fort Saint Elmo
Walk
Amongst the banners of the Centuries
Old centuries
Around
Whirling
Whirling

Emmanuel George Cefai
Town Of Sorrow

In the Town of Sorrow
The priests and monks Swing their censers
To the tunes of incense.

In the Town of Sorrow
Sadness keeps away all Other emotions.

In the Town of Sorrow
Silence is strong; has power Sadness and Sorrow
Make a compromise.

And after all,
They need not haggle,
They be one,
One aim, one way.

So in the Town of Sorrow
They bring the coffins
And they open grave-lids
And they bury coffins.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Towns Whisper

the towns speak
and the towns whisper
yet this they do and do it to themselves in deep of
night before the Dawn and
morning.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Towns Woke

days still to pass remaining
few.
the town woke angry
it had been disturbed
and the pattern of deep dreams of horror and of joy warped.

Emmanuel George Cefai Tragedy Strikes So Swift.

You see,
Tragedy strikes so swift.

You will not even see
As you see the
Lightning.

Nor hear its clap as
Thunder.

No, tragedy is too swift,
Rapacious, ruthless.

And tragedy follows upon Tragedy.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tragedy Struck So Often!

Tragedy struck so often!
Now
Tragedy after tragedy
Is
As the Dawn of days
New days Emotionless only
And crass.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Train

Like a train going on and
On
The heart and life together
In the same compartment Go and travel;
As a train going on and
on
And always ageing
And always struggling
And always suffering
So with me
Suffering always was my lot
Yet
In it was the manna of
The brain.

Emmanuel George Cefai Transformations

of transformations not as in deserts only but as in life if you close see and watch the plants, trees and we,
and all of life.

And other things too they be a pearl in their gloom hidden beneath their sad brows
there be gowns of gold.

We humans be gold mines hidden but alas! our mines we ignore and weep in our dread
lamenting.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Traveling Island

Traveling island
Property private Washed by waters
Views of waters
From everywhere
Fit for palace after Palace

But ah! the heavens
That impend over
It
Then they themselves
Be fit for palace After palace

Live in them
Then Look downwards to
The floating island.

Emmanuel George Cefai Travels

night night travels fast
light
traveled straight earth rotates and sweats

blurred thought... in the canal
a boat steals by the playing Venetian violins

Emmanuel George Cefai
A tree, a tree! A tree burning Red in the garden of ghosts Where shrouds cluster round and Dance in dilapidated red.

Dilapidated the house behind the Gardens surge upright.
I saw them level with the falling House
But no! they go up, up And I did not see: so was Negligence.

But then Negligence in such head-whirling Spells that swept around In my poor flesh and brain
Was not so unexpectable.
I did so, and now
I excuse myself my slip.
Magic versus Poet Seer.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tree On Tree

Tree on tree in thicket
After thicket Jungle wild and Serpent hissing

Thought on thought Even as tree on Tree
Thicket on thicket
Be

Stretched long and
Erect
The philosopher gray Searching through The thicket
Sifting through The thicket
Sifting

Emmanuel George Cefai Tree That Bending Speaks

tree
that bending speaks
though
it
be nigh
dusk
and
the frost
be gelid
your throat
be hoarse
and dry
and parched
for liquid:
you say
and say calculating
that only few hours remain
before
the night depens claws
full inside
you

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tree That Overlooks The Port

Tree that overlooks the port; for long Long decades; more, more, you were.

Lone yet stately, winds and gales and Tempests tear the sea-breast, but not you.

You see history as in a film; the asphalt Road, the houses are your cinema.

You hear the night play the fugue of Sadness; even at Dawn it still lingers.

Your that hear the night ghosts and Shrouds roam restless and lament.

My mother with them, soon I.
The night is made for them, they for it.

And now the time is come to end
This sadness; not destroy, transform.

Into a ghost and shroud will I roam Restless old Valletta, heart-broken man.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Trees In The Woods

the high trees in the woods are restless this sunset and will more restless be in the shade of the dusk in the realm of the red horizons
the blank brain suffers
from the hammers of the night before night comes:
the town reflects herself upside down in the on flowing river slow
and sub-conscious.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Trees Ready For A Suicide

There were trees ready for a suicide:
they had the power to bend them to the breaking point
and being at the edge of the bastions throw spring like themselves into the hideous depths.

one flame
arose and the trees saw
and redder
higher stronger grew the flame
that was so weak
before

and the trees read
and the trees heard
and
the trees learned:
and
the trees
were now not ready for the suicide.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Trees That Hang

Trees that hang
From the high cliff side Land arid Parched
If pierced with a lance
No water flows
But dust
Only dust Dust drops

Emmanuel George Cefai
Trees Wake

Trees wake Oblong
Lanky trees
Shake!

The high trees
Walk
On sticks of time!

Lanky
Lanky
Trees
Downpour of silver Particles!

Woods
That rise
Slow
From valleys Thundering Spark
In to the day
Though Dawn
Arriving quite.

Hear Hear a nightingale Escaped
Escaped
From the retired trees
And woods
Where sleep and dream
The other
Nightingales!
Hear
My Monsignor
The cry
Of the sufferers
Of injustices
Their screams Are as of The sea hawks and Magic vessels!

Touch here with The pastel Touch there Bursting veins of Ink
Water colors
Water
Water Open the chests of
Drear
Cut the chains
Fill the chest with diadems
See
The hours of night Slip fast:
Because Patience be great
And Suffering: Touch here
The pastel burns
The colors bleed
And Dawn be nigh!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tremble Before Heavens

Tremble before heavens
today
so the Olympians above
will
and wreak their giant hands in thrill.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Tremble The Bones

Tremble the bones
Of skeletons
When they see things
When they hear things

And in the grave
Instead of quietness
A furnace burns
Of restlessness

And tremble, tremble
More the bones
And creak and creak
The lids of the sad graves

Emmanuel George Cefai
Trembling Bough

While the boughs be trembling
In anger
Look at them with piteous eyes
They will propense be To subside their anger.

Just while the boughs Tremble with fear Sit below silent and By you falling
The sere leaves stealthy
Hear.

Now the razor of cold Walks round the threshing floor
And the corn hides Trembling in Both anger and fear

Emmanuel George Cefai
Trembling Glow-Worm

Haunting nights
And Haunted nights
Trembling glow-worm
Fire lights Silent crackling
Whispering
All of beauty
The offspring:
All of haunted
House and lake
All of haunted crag
And cave
Hoot the coves
To other coves Hoot
The caves to Other caves Tremble what were Twilight waves
But
Now in sombrero Decked Enjoy cool
The night's silhouette:
Beauty!
Beauty!
Earth blessing best!
Lights that flash
On snow and chill
Lights that flash
Where lights be best Lights of beauty
Lights of test
Jumping lights
And northern lights Southern glaciers gliding Quite
In the hammer still of Frigid night
And the heart ah!
The heart slows
And its eyes with tears grow
In this maze of beauty pied!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Trembling Hand

I am the trembling hand that trembles dropping the knife of murder the killing of Immortality I merit sacrifice before the Altar of Justice and spill my blood I merit. I am the ghost of Justice I am the Spirit of Christmas that visited Mister Scrooge: I am the Three Spirits too you see I changed and I transformed I took rock bits of history in my hand: but did not shatter them arranged thing after thing
time after time
and woke the Soul, the Inner Soul.
Wake up humans!
Fear not!
All that you have to do is to remove the blinds that be before your eyes before your brains the conventions that chain
your hands
shatter the chains!
shatter the chains Individual Sovereign Wills and every Individual be a State and the State rise in life in Individual Sovereign Will.
For I too
I changed and I transformed I took rock bits of history
in my hand:
but did not shatter them arranged
thing after thing
time after time
and woke the Soul, the Inner Soul.
Wake up humans!
Fear not!

Firs Oaks
They walk
See!
They walk slow
Yet move
Yet walk!
And Blood
Blood
Blood Drops
Of Blood
And Dews
Rains
Of night
Dews
Cleaners
In
The
Night
Emmanuel George Cefai
Trim river winding through the garden Between fairly green banks all quietly And gurgling in half-ecstasy:
Soon the white moon will rise and look Look on the lovers.
And when the white moon goes
A dozen embryos and more are there.

Tristia
Tristia
So many of sad
So many of drear
So many of black

Emmanuel George Cefai
Trudging On The Reserve

I walk
Trudging on the reserve
Of verses
A small arsenal Explosive to who succeeds In opening the iron door
Of recollections white:

I walk
I walk
And not far
The sea runs on the pebbles Grating them and rolling
Them
In love and hate and Play

I walk
I walk
I understand a little more
In the drear thirst
In this agony of poetic dysentery:
Pride walks alone
Poor Figure erect-proud While the Ocean grates
The pebbles....
Under the moon's light.

Twentieth Eighth Day

Twentieth eighth day
Ticking
Ticking
Where be the garden
Of your dawn?
The simple beauty
Of your Eye-dazzling sunset?
The bewitched spells
Of twilight waters?
Where?
Twentieth eighth day
There's only night
Now
We
We humans grope
Still breathe our way
But it be dark!
The stars are out In few
No armies save
In distant Milky Way
No, no, this dark
We grope
We grope
Where be the garden
Of your dawn?
The simple beauty
Of your Eye-dazzling sunset?
The bewitched spells
Of twilight waters?
Where?
Bacchus drinks this
Night
Drinks too
But in the chalice
There be no wine
There be blood:
Just blood
And Time ticks
Time ticks
In the cemeteries Where hopes are Lost amidst
The burning tombs
In deep midnight
There
Time ticks not
Time ticks not Nor hopes for Dawn
Nor waits a Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Twilight Curtain Block Of Night

Twilight curtain block of night but only for a while not block of beauty for beauty continues in the stars and the wild night:
in the scented town gardens the brushing bough bird-flow and owl laden graced by amorous singing nightingales:
in the cat-piss and cat love in the hedgehog glistening on his back dim mirror of the moon:
curtain of night now drawn in full the bird-flow sings and hums the sacred moth in the mystery of gold and marble palaces where Art mixes with lewd lasciviousness and luxuriousness:
now the time comes now the time moves time irreversible

Emmanuel George Cefai
Twilight Waters

The twilight waters Almost Everyday
Even
In winter
Except in dark Dark tempests:
Then
The twilight waters
Flee
The frost and chill and Ire
Go hide
In the caves and the Coves
Nearby
In the welcoming bay arms
The twilight waters.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Twine In Verse

'Ah! how you twine in verse Philosophy and verse and Melt’ – said my Monsignor Smiled the Poet Seer and no word spoke.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Ah! Two civilizations!
To More than one civilization
We humans be propense
Already
In the morning when The cock call Dawn
The Civilization of Morn Begin to play her rote and Role:
The Civilization of the Light Though in the Winter frost Clouds and rain all blight:
Yet Another Civilization then arises
To which perforce we humans Bend on knee:
We yearn for it Being of body tired
And the mind less sharp
And the Soul, the Inner Soul
too
of the woes throughout the Civilization of the Light Received to nurse the wounds
It yearns and yearns:
While the Soul too romantic Irresistible
To symbols of the coming night Herself prepares.
Night lamps romantic, alleys, Streets deserted, houses that Turn off lights, humans
That fall in beds,
And read, make love or sleep
Or all or part;
The bat, the cricket, the moon,
The white stars,
The open casement on the Bosomed seas and waters Sparkling silver moon Reflecting; the quiet port And harbor; neon lights Cats that cross roads swift Rats that stealthy hop Hedgehogs that in the Country dust hobble;
So many symbols of the Civilization of the Night!
But of all them
Dreams reign all sovereign Over lords of brains In sleep with wondrous Thoughts they feed
And in the early dawn
Or other time spark discoveries.
And thoughts and wise philosophies Verses are here conceived
So often; plays; plastic arts;
And all the rest
That in our human civilization Shone amongst the best.
And to each other each Of the two civilizations alternates In rough equality:
Irrespective of power and of State
And
In the last the Civilization of the Night In sleep that lasts holds sway
As lasting way

Two Poems In One

Two poems in one
One work Erotic dance

I told you
'No'

But disregarding
You
Said 'You yourself correct'

Emmanuel George Cefai
Unbottling

Unbottling
The waters stored
So long.

Our mouths be too dry Too thirsty.

Wild we sip on The teats of the water-bottles

Emmanuel George Cefai
Unbridled Morning, Taxis, Cars,

Unbridled morning, taxis, cars,
vehicles, flying with speed, others more slow, pedestrians hurrying,
the town awake its slow motion rejects.

girls and ladies, hair colored, peroxides and all the rest, fluttering moving here and there with the quick steps in a sonata proportional

All hurry, all cannot wait, those who pass without greeting, others briefly greet and talk, then move, move on, unbridled morning to make up for the night's slow.

me
in
to
the house of the Muse the air is windy
and the clouds have eyes
and warble the winds of the wild veritable orchestras in this plight of verses a hedgehog plays with top hat

Emmanuel George Cefai
Uncompleted

To leave things Uncompleted
Has been My tragedy after tragedy.
My Monsignor, so with High Immortality.
Yet I lit a fire
That I will humans
To further light
In their sacred ire
In their sacred desire

Emmanuel George Cefai
Uncrowned King Of Dark And Stealth

I am the uncrowned king of dark and stealth

I be the Voice that whispers conspiracy

I be the serpents hiding in the bush

I be the sharks and all the blood they bite

I be the tainted waters of blodd
and tragedy

I be a restless Spirit of the tombs

I be fed of all on Earth, yet roam in curse

Emmanuel George Cefai
Under The Flag Of Civilization

Under the Flag of Civilization
There march the waters,
The seasons, the phenomena
And the motions, the dawns,
The dusks, sunsets and nights
And kindly stars, moon and their lights And trees, and owls, nightingales, And malice and Love joined Hand in hand walking:
All,
All as in one direction marching
Hand in hand
Under the same Flag
The Flag of Civilization.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Under The Hammer Sledge But Not Of Snow

Under the hammer sledge not of snow But of thoughts dreary and dark and multiple I forged throughout the evening.
All aglow the heater burnt orange Then igniting to a redder hue It turned.

Then
I saw that there was no Christmas tree
I could sing under if song came No magic cavern of the Circe type I could sing in if the song came No magic bay of fairies and of nymphs
To sing from high up on the pinnacles Or rock.

No, no, no.

You asked me why I assert so much About the times that I am dry and parched When my bottle and my glass are dry Or well to nigh:
You asked me.

You asked me why so pessimistic
The looks I cast upon the mighty heavens And why so sad the look I cast on The wide-bosomed Oceans.

I replied not, hoping for my silence to speak.

You asked not more.

But that, yes that,
Made me ask myself why.

Blank, bleak, blank
At first.
But then I found that in the dreariness
There be that humility which required Is in the Doctrine of Sacrifice whereby Great works of intellect are produced.
So be it.
Expect a little so to reap the more.

Unlock, my Muse, unlock the fairy door In the castle of Verse and Song, Unlock, that I may enter And though cobwebs and must smells Meet and greet me
Yet I will the treasure chests of song
And more
The treasure chests of discovery and lore:
What sovereign, power, tycoon can do more?
I will not exchange intellectual power with human power.
For you, my Monsignor, to judge now,
For you, my Monsignor.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Under the Hand

We

Humans go to hide
Like Adam naked was said To hide
When the Voice from the Heavens
Spoke:
So we
So we before the Hand.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Under The Paeans Of Beauty

There was azure

Where looked I?
Here on this roof
Of cold
And dwindling day
Here.

The old enemy
I saw him Looking from The balcony

Withered and Shrunk
The waters still Flow
Though inland
There’s some places
Withered and shrunk
And old dilapidated.

He closed the shop.
He did not sell
That much.
And Age was getting him.
So he closed shop.
When and if shall I view him?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Under The Shadows Of The Old Hill

Under the shadows of The old hill
The clouds moved low
As the low hill

From the few houses lined
At the hill's low edge
You go to the back windows Looming on the yard
At the back of the house.

The tempest lightning croaks
Thunder from above the hill Cold electric
And the winds pass
As through the through Between the hill and The few houses.

Verses still, not full of Spring's wine nor of The Bacchus mood.
Blood of the hill Savior of the loam That unwinds with the Fall of liquid currents Down the hill
In the nocturnal stealth
Where ghosts and shrouds
Still roam at the edges Early edges of the Dawn.

Under the shadows
Under the shadows of the Old hill
The verses of the Poet Seer Moved sad and slow.
Under The Sun-Blinds

Under the sun-blinds
Rested tired eyes
Under the sun-blinds
Rested dreary eyes
Under the sun blinds
Rested saddened eyes.
Under the sun-blinds
Rested a restless Soul.

Unfortunate

Unfortunate Holderlin
To me
Extend your hand
I too
As you be
The friend and slave
Of misfortunes too
My life is torn is Charred is chained Together let us go Sad mute in silence Hand in hand
Up to the Golgotha.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Unfortunate Lermontov Can I Otherwise Say?

Unfortunate Lermontov can I otherwise say?

A cruel guillotine stood above your life to cut it short.

Chance and probability in the universe conspired against you.

But not enough.

Though cruel Destiny chopped your life, your life had its last laugh.

And will continue so in your warm verse.

The throbbing heart, yes, it still throbs,
I feel it, I feel it in the verse!
Lermontov is with me, yes, still!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Unhappy

Unhappy ford the scene of last farewells

Emmanuel George Cefai
Uninspired

my Monsignor you do not write verse that way
uninspired
no.
That will not come
That will not do.

the verses echo and I wake in terror so many nights

so many unfortunate days I lived

so many unfortunate ways through slime and drudgery I swam

no
no
my heart is pierced
and my heart be broken blood be exhausted water trickles out and the last tongue of verse and poesy.

And that last tongue is the heart-beautiful verse and poesy.

Emmanuel George Cefai
United In Flying

United in flying
Here and there
In the heavens sailing Through clouds hailing
The tempest season
Is by long months a gone
And the Sun's reign
More safely smiles
After the early Dawn Heralds new days.
Let us people and humans be
As in one civilization United
As under the Flag of Civilization As under one flag of will And full contented
Marching

Emmanuel George Cefai
Unlock The Doors

So moaned the winds
It was a wintry day
And light and sun were far away
And stealthy already had
The shrouds begun roaming along the way.

‘Unlock the doors!
Unlock the doors!
The winds to enter will They neigh; then all falls still The doors unlock and sudden Fling Themselves out; enters the Wind all still and noiseless

For it was A dreary wintry day
And light and sun were far away
And stealthy already had
The shrouds begun roaming along the way.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Unnerved The Soul Melted

Unnerved
The soul
Melted
In the wry winds Of cold and Winter blasts.

In the wild waves
Spuming
And white
The fondness of the Earth mirrored Itself.

In the hug of The bastions
Flowed the streams
Of passing centuries
That passed too
Those too
The flow

Emmanuel George Cefai
Up

Up
Up the Mountain of Sacrifice
You
Father I view and view
Again
Mounting slow Stopping often to Take breath that Always so often left you.
I felt the pain and Endured sacrifice with you.
I saw the snow caps of the mountain
The Mountain of Sacrifice
And
In my younger age stood Fearsome and awed Prepared for more of effort:
But you
Noble father continued Continued trudging on and
On
In your own way Humble and noble yet With head held high and Eyes upon the heavens and The skies that smiled.
To me
Spoke you without speaking.
To me
You taught without teaching.
Father noble of the Pain and
Suffering
Who ascended so often The noble Mountain of Sacrifice
Not
Out of penance
But of own discipline
For you
In your sweet greatness Realized
That you had to depart From that power glory
And brilliance that was Yours so long
So long years
Grown little by little
So many years:
You did all
You did out of the beauty Of the Soul that in you Glimmered as the seas and Oceans great before the Dawn Announcing to weary Earth the New day.
And that was nobility of body
And more of Soul
The fire that still burnt As when young in the Inner Soul Your heraldry of beauty and nobleness,
My father.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Up The Usual Streets

Up
Up the usual streets Went he
The ghost
As was fading he

His reign of night Was over
And he fled.

Silent as swift
As a thief innocent
He faded
In the fields and the Low hills.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Upon His Breast

Upon his breast
Upon his breast
A cross he bore
A cross he bore
And step by step
And step by step Down narrow lanes
He walked
And walked

And with him walked
And walked
The other men:
And in their hands
A torch each bore
As one by one
One after one Down narrow lanes
They walked
And walked.

And as they walked Hymns chanted they Or psalms
In language strange and queer How eerie the idiom looked And the sounds jarred:
Yet still They walked
And walked
And on their journey walked
And on their breast
And on their breast
A cross they bore
A cross they bore
And in their hand
A flaming torch
A smoking torch
They bore
And in the night
And in the night
They faded
They faded
And last to see
And last to see
The torch light smoke
The torch light smoke.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Valletta

in Valletta
there be people with blue eyes there be people with golden hair but most be of black hair

In Valletta
if you be shown you will go underground in the grueling city below the city that burns in its asphalt with sun and the soles of the shoes of the thousands that walk to and fro

In Valletta
a centaur sits at night on a bastions for few minutes then goes:
and all this since they brought the Horse of Three Whole Legs and placed it on the stone
in Valletta

Emmanuel George Cefai
Vanity

Ah! for vanity Cease it ever
Even If it be of Beauty!
For Beauty!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Variations

Night has such variations Rather gradations

That I term them as a periodic table

See night with a lens
From alpha to omega You’ll always seeing it trembling
And
In the trembling there be transforming Direct proportion

she twists
her feet hobbling
as if falling
into this or
that pothole
yet never falls
and walks
her distance
from place
to place:
she arrived always
and
tonight
she
will arrive
too
her words
are as
of
a philosopher
You did not think what she said
and
you
will say: 'How easy'
But after hearing her:
'My life is to be changed
My life is changing.'

Verse Feel The Breeze That Is Not Wind

Verse feel the breeze that is not wind
That is not gale
But riding on the wings of poesy
The winds become gales Revolt grows rife
The heavens rend their curtains
And in the sanctuary of the High The Gods albeit Olympian
Tremble.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verse Finds Its Feet

In desperation
Verse finds its feet
And thought whets its knife.

Emmanuel George Cefai

Verse Rolls On And On But Tempered

Verse rolls on and on but tempered by the sweet hand of sing

Verse is unbridled horse, song is the bridle.

And over them oversees all the Poet Seer

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verse See How It Be Written

Verse see how it be written written in my song in my chant it be easy if you have a sacrifice and a kind jeart:
verse of rythyhm verse of song verses clinical and yet verse to belong
to all of us all humans
all humans
one life, one string, one song look to where we be belong that be the place wherefrom we came along wherefrom we came along

at least at least amidst this drear celebrate
celebrate this with a song as we go along
we,
we humans
along the dreary way along verse see how it be written
written in my song

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verse That Will Flow

Worm of the night
That will glow
Shrouds and ghosts
That will play
Laughing
Silent: Castles ancient that Will dance with the Waves slightly
On the mirrored surface
Of the dark river.
This night
This night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses Are Like These

Verses are like these
and the war-tanks are on the streets
and the corpses stretch in line
and the war tanks pass and pass
and more corpses stretch in line

For
verses are like these
and
the war-tanks are on the streets
and
the corpses stretch in line
and
the war tanks pass and pass
and more corpses stretch in line fires burn streets and houses and a human burning runs, falls
moves not.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses Are Noble

Verses are noble even when coming from The parched period and are just arising.
I will arise me to the quiet fields
I will arise me to the low green hills
I will arise me to walk up and down
I will arise me to be by the lochs, the fords,
The rivers of the estate and watch the waters
There
I will hear the lament of water-wraiths
I will hear the history of old centuries
I will experience emotions of so many humans
All encapsulate
I will hear from far the coming storm
I will denote the first thunder rumblings
The first frowns in the heavens when all Looks be covered in the clouds of fleece.
Arise spirits of mountains!
And roam about free not as of night only But in day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses Be As Food

Verses be as food
Made for digesting:
Thoughts be as air
That the lungs breathe
Waltzes of ghosts and Shrouds they clasp
And meet
And in the warmth of day Forget
The trammels of nocturnal Storm:
For Verses be as food
Made for digesting:
Thoughts be as air
That the lungs breathe
Waltzes of ghosts and Shrouds they clasp

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses Be Less Flowing

Verses be less flowing
More rare
More parched
Now!

The night is flown
But
The same sadness
Mist-like goes round
The Earth's ways
Around!

O for the roar of the sea
In winter's tempests
By
The shores of Zonqor Point
And further
Further beyond where the Sea deepens to a black outrage.

I think
I yearn
For the white curly waves
Of winter tempests
Yes
Off Zonqor Point
Beyond
Where my Inner Soul proffers
To fly.

Giddying thoughts Ruminating fast
A spinning top of Thoughts!

And
O for the roar of the sea
In winter's tempests
By
The shores of Zonqor Point
And further
Further beyond where the Sea deepens to a black outreach.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses Born Of Pain

verses
verses born of pain born of suffering burning verses carriers of pain fruit of suffering

tragedy makes cry and in our cry
the pincers on the parched
throat
speak of suffering reveal
the Soul, the Inner Soul that its nobility lies mainly in the suffering

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses Come

if not to come then let
the verses not come.

but I will not sing
if my heart does not sing
I will not chant
if my Muse does not chant if my fingers
the fair lyre do not string.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses Condensed And Words

Verses condensed and words
Though homely – more This is the thrust I get Single
Yet from so many experiments There’s some sweet thing That emanates from you My father
father thus my feet so my paces
towards your grave
towards your grave
from distance over the seas themselves beget
to be near you to imbue
your humble nobility and that be great in all humanity

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses Hang Looming

It be night
And this night will Be a night of storm
So said the watch man
Closing the gratings
That creaked:
And
In his shabby cape
He coughed and Wept.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses Has Come

To here
You see my Monsignor Verses have feet
And songs have ears

And chants have brains That think
And chant word after word That others
Do make think.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses I Wrote

In the verses that I wrote
So many guitars played in the background
harps and lyres competed
together.

And
in the night
a lone violin wept from here and from there to break the nocturnal
solitude.

ah! so many tragedies on this Earth tongue yet most should you become parched on tongue and dry in your sides.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses In Desperation

verses in desperation
wit verses of fleeing horses
verses of clouds fleeing and frozen tempests verses writ to prove the verses verses chanted to prove the chanting

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses In The Long Run

Verses in the long Run
Unto themselves revolve
And turn

So my life
Does as Ixion
I tried to evade
The circle
But I failed

Permutations
Ad Combinations of
The same

AllThe same
Verse Upon
Verse
Will excel
Once
You Suffer
And
You
Pain

Verses in the long Run
Unto themselves revolve
And turn

Emmanuel George Cefai
Of verses like to like Sing I Sung I Will sing:
For
In the turning of the mill-stone of life These be the things That count, remain the most
And
Be sub-conscious most.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses Must Move With Evolution

Verses must move
With Evolution
Move
And every night
To the stars Manifest
Not just his sovereignty
But too his love

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses Of April

Verses of April
I want to sing
Transform me to a nightingale.

Take me to Hastings Gardens
That
I will rest on the thick boughs
And
the secret whispers in The ample foliage.
Hear.

And I will have whole nights
Whole Whole
Nights
To sing April and of beauty's
Reign

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses Of Bones

Verses
Of bones made
To dust returning Choosing
The pathway of the old
The pathway of the patriarchs

Rather Rather Than the pathway of the Immortality:
The verses choose.

But once completed Immortality will be The pathway busier.
And Verses though
Of bone made Will not return to Dust
Nor
Choose the pathway of the old
The pathway of the patriarchs,

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses Of Wonder

verses of wonder
and striking thunder!

the hill under the fading
day declines

thunder past midnight lightning past one what night!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses Of Wrath

Verses of wrath
tall, tall figures walking giant strides the woods shaking-trembling how cannot the Earth be not otherwise?

In wrath Earth be because of injustices and more.

The wrath ceases not nor abates but increases with the frost and the oncoming night.

away, in the distant, miry the lighthouse turns and sheds the light over the dark, dark waters.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses Pour Slowly

Verses pour slowly
trickle drop by drop by drop day, night, dawn circle all around enthraling beauty
yet
with ruthless hand
Time and Age cut off a page from the diary
each day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses Run High The Low

As an ECG or graph
The verses now
Are high Then low
Yet
Always
In the end Though dim
So many times
The flames rise
High:
Always.

Emmanuel George Cefai

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses That Screech

Verses that screech throughout sand and beach where Dawn has passed
where Dawn has passed

But even if Dawn has come I will more inspired to be Sub-conscious of the night come to the fore in sight

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses That Twinges

Verses that twinges
verse that cringes
verse in pain
verse in suffering

verses of shrouds verses of ghouls
and the old days
one after one
continue their treading drear over earth slow the Earth turns slow rotates sad and drear

always as before sad yet so fair and we humans walk, walk, walk, the violin plays

the ancient violin drawls drawls slow its sad music notes

and everything is sad hopes have got wings away have they gone:
though still day after day there be a new dawn

with eyes of sleep red as we weep
we wait an end not forward look but a place in the end to book

verses that twinges
verse that cringes
verse in pain
verse in suffering

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses To Complete The Day

Give me some more verses
And
Complete the day.

For
The day has been drear
The day has been seer

And
I wither as a crunched-up Leaf
That fallen sere
Has yet passed more time
In the frost
And
In the chill
And purple dooms
That light
The dusky dooms
Before the old knight
Comes.
Before graves yawn
And stir
Before the rise of Cemeteries
Before
Before.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses Will Be In

Verses will be in Experiment
But whatever the Experiment
And how number of Experiment
There will always be A new flame lighted in The emotions free.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Verses? Advances?

verses?
advances?
there have been
verses but can I say
the same for advances?
My advance is on a cemetery nowadays that Age has blossomed with Motion of Time:
and
verses
verses
I thought and calculated their issuing forth would
be a sheer triumphal march
and now I find
that they are in a march but of pain and
suffering:
and follow me
too
to the cemetery directions.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Vesper

Vesper in a diaper
Dusk
In A Bath
And Tub
A nymph washing by A grave
A bent black Figure
In front of a tomb Spirits that Hand in hand
Go round and round
A cricket
Makes silent sound.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Vesper Bell

Vesper bell that tinkles
And yearns for stopping Tired
Stands in your fortification
And
The first night wind Blows
In the stars’ faces

Emmanuel George Cefai
Vesper Time

the bell struck vesper time
along the winding streets of strait and cobbled
wealth:
the waters glide
glide as the mists stealthy thieves
amidst the old old houses tonight
whilst
the sun behind the old mountains fades and then beyond another thing
the sea.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Vespers And Thunder

Vespers
An old man
With blue lips Sick in heart Lisping slow Praying
With his blue lips.

A grave dreamt I
And
I dreamt a tomb 1955 -

I saw
Immortality
Weep by Silent
Red-eyed
For the lost chance
The last great chance
The great chance.

Thunder!
Number one.
Then another.
Then began one on one.
The series.

The winding path
All dusty.
The winding trees
All sentinels
Of the path
In the thunder
Trembling
In the thundering Vibrating.
Atmosphere and Civilization
From the sub-conscious
Away
And fading.

Verse was always
The eyes of me
I paid to you
My verses!
I paid!
I paid!

A joy
How transient
A smile
It went!
Darling memories
Images
Projected
And existence asserted Existence being
In the throes of chanted Vespers
From the sad sides
Of the dilapidated Convent Rising.
And
It was dusk.
And light was fading.

Inside me
I felt the corpus
The whole corpus of the Poetry and verses Inside me
I heard the songs
And Chanting.
Emmanuel George Cefai
Vesper's Long Past

Distant bell
Vesper's long past It's near deep of Midnight.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Vessel That Swings

Vessel that swings
Here and there
In the murky seas
Amidst the waves
That spare no rock
From stunning it to shock.

The night
Knows that it will Be re-born
In ever-increase Fears not the storm.

And thus the drums of winter play
Into the night
Though they flee not at day!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Vexed By Pain And Doubt I Ran Into The Woods

Vexed by pain and doubt I ran into the woods
And there among the trees I cried Hoping vain fool that trees would be thus pricked To answer to my calls, betraying then All that they knew about my lady-love.
Vain fool I! Thus left in doubt poor doubt That all alone was left for company cried And lo! Remorse in dress funereal black With eye severe and cowling haughty look Entered into the room where I lay and raved:
At which now have I tormentors twain To prick and vex me: but myself console I That my enemies are twain because of me.

I will not cry of cruel fate at least.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Violet Amongst  Throttling Thorns

Violet amongst Throttling thorns Stones and dirt
And dryness:
Yet
In this you survive
Bravely survive:
Survive in pain:
With me, a Poet Seer Hedged in by enemies
The same,
For me,
Too,
The task be to survive
Hedged in by enemies.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Violets In The Wind

I saw the violets in the wind
I saw Lined one after one Yet free
All in the service of beauty.

I saw lush slavery
That yet
Was harmless free
And beauty.

And
If I be thus a priest of beauty
I would become On condition of slavery

Emmanuel George Cefai
Violin

A violin over
The sea
Is wafted by the Wind
It rings over the land
It enchants the night-seas!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Violin That Plays

Violin
Violin that plays Plays sad and Quiet:
Restless
Restless
And still Though restless
The violin plays Plays sad and
Quiet.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Violin That Plays Now

Violin that plays
Now to the right
Now to the left
But the sounds Travel always And make Sweet music where
The sweet be sad.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Violin That Weeps

Violin that weeps
Violin that play
Sad, Sad notes,
Violin that rides
The cleft of Broken hearts
By day, by night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Violins That Think

violins that think violins that ring

Voice

Hear, hear, the voice
My mother speaks at last
The heavens!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Voice From Heaven Spoke

When a Voice from the Heaven speaks
It wills obedience from Below.

Yet
There were those Who raised their pinions
And fists clenched
To A Surprised Heaven.

For they had Intelligence And they had
The Idea of Infinity.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Voice Of The Wide Ocean

The Voice of the wide Ocean
I in my ears here continually it brings to me Life.
Meditate and think!
Meditate and think!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Voice That Was High Now Low

Voice that was high now
Low Wriggles in the sands that Burn and flow
And Whisper life:
There was a silence
Then
The lines began Verses began
And far
The song of the Poet Seer
Went
Voice that was high now
Low Wriggles in the sands that Burn and flow

Emmanuel George Cefai
Voice Was Loud

The Voice Was Loud At First Then Chronologically In The Retarded Glooms It Faded Faded With The Day The Thoughts The Dry Cold Chill Waters Falling Drop By Drop Drop Large Beautiful Eye Each One Of Them I Saw The Slant Of Them At The Least Touching Of The Wind I Heard The Loud Pitch For Each Drop That Fell And Then And Then Having Made Such Sound As So Many Things Faded Dried The Drops In Pointed Icicles For Chill

Voices Of The Creepy Hollow

Cried out the Voices of The Creepy Hollow

Cried out parched into
The night

But that was a desert
Night

That was a Night of Chill

That was when Dawn was Sleeping

And Spirits restless were All circulating

Restless among graves and Around tombs
They sighed
Roaming

Amongst them that and I
And you and me

All restless in a world that's Wild with horrid beauty.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Volcano That Long Asleep

Volcano that long asleep
Lies in the folds of clouds And just one silent lake.

Even so.
Even me.
My emotions folded lie.

But Seeing you
My emotions rose and Burnt
More red-hot that volcanoes that erupt.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Volcano That Sleeps

When the volcano sleeps
The clouds gather round Like hawks on the face Of a frowning heaven.

The volcano sleeps
And dreams
Of lava red and scalding
And smokes from vents
All spurting.

And it was night
And above circled high
The night-stars
Frightened
The bats flew, now and Then
A solitary owl wisely Sped herself Opened full her wings
To by-pass high
The nether hell of red
To trees of safety.

History behind a rock Near yet safe
Hides
Writing.
Then when the feast of the Volcano’s wrath subsides
In hieroglyphic hands
And characters Writes down
For discoverers to come Decades after, see Discuss and wonder What happened on the night
The fateful night of the Volcano.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Volcanoes

Volcanoes opening their fiery Mouths

Spitting red blood of fire-lavas Sizzling

Towns under the tsunami lavas Street by street sinking Lights go out; black outs prevail;

And people in the streets
Flee
From street to street
As ants.

Dies irae, dies illa!

The time has come

Final:
Descent, extinction, genealogy,
Dynasty melt with the fire-lavas.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Volcanoes Exploding

Volcanoes exploding uncertainties of flooding waters giant cascading cataclysms and giant vales opening Earth belching its entrails digging forth and up.

Voyages
The Vessel Travels
The vessel And With Carries
The shrine Of Beauty
For what Hands Stole
The beauty of the All?
The passion Night Dazzled day
And Dazzling dawn Where?
The Palaces Float On

Now It be night And Paris lights.
For what Hands Stole
The beauty of the All?
The passion Night Dazzled day
And Dazzling dawn
Where?

Wait for the sound it has not come
but only the night dews have as yet
fallen

Emmanuel George Cefai
Waiting

I waited by the phone
But it rang not.

My thoughts fluctuated.

At times
I willed the phone
To ring.
At times white fear Filled my face
To hear it ringing.

when
the waters pour cool
and earthy
in
this

Emmanuel George Cefai Waiting,

Waiting,
waiting,
waiting and patience:
around, around,
the weather be storm-bound and faces change ground and masked figures turn
round and round in a maze of mirrors turning amidst fires human-high
burning
round and round they rotate to their round
waiting,
waiting,
waiting and patience:
around, around.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Walking

A walking
A walking Bone
Walking
Walking
Tiptoeing
Tiptoeing into the night
Into the silence dreaming: Oxygen of things Drunkenness of work
But Above all
Walking
A walking bone
Tiptoeing
Tiptoeing into the night.
Walking
Bone walking.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Walking In Hastings Gardens I

walking in Hastings Gardens I now better feel my guilt is less now that this morn with dawn I rose to sing my poetry:
And in the distant haze I Could see the Dawn as none had seen.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Walking Round

Walking straight
Walking round
Walking in circles
Walking
Walking Always walking
Walking
Walking
Thinking
Of a direction
Following Straight now Then round and Round
Yet
Always
Walking
Walking
Walking
Walking

Emmanuel George Cefai
Walking This Night

Walking this night
Walking in Valletta Sea all around Waters salty and Under tempest.

For it be tempest
Tonight

The waters deluge
Down the gutters
And the strait streets
Under the eyes of dreamy Houses and palaces.

No sound except the storm.
No,
No pace except the whistling
Of the rain and winds and Roaring thunder
Flashing lightning

For it be tempest
Tonight
Tonight in old Valletta.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wall Of Song

Define the words Define
My friend
You Poet Seer
Almighty preacher without Pulpit or word but verse

You only sing
You only go by the Wall of Song
You sing.

I hear your laments
I hear
In that song
In that chant
In those verses
I you your heart
Break
I hear the creaking
I hear
The drops of bleeding Drop by drop
A breaking heart.

They told me
That the heart Breaks only once:
Not so, not so, my Monsignor,
My heart broke once and
More
And more and
More

I had thought That once
My heart would break
And then no more
But no!
No, it broke yet Again and
More and more,
Blood dripped each time
My Monsignor!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Walz

The waltz
Over the city played
For
It was night

Competing
There was a tango Playing and Danced
In a town hall

And Then a violin Solitary over
The sad fields and Sad horizon Began to play
The closing of the day

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wander Of The Night

Old wander of the night
Bent under thought

But ah! under pain
More bent
More suffering

You
Wanderer of the night
You
Poet Seer

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wandereth

a satyr piping wandereth

the plain is cool but the feet of the satyr burn with love time rolls ruthless

yet the satyr enervates time with his coolness

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wanders The Feather

Wanders
The Feather
Always Off
The Ground
In Street
And Alley
On House Roof tops
On Gardens
Of
The Old City
And Then
The Glorious Bastions
All
Aloft!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wanton Desire

For in our the ticking There's wanton desire Blooming: Red faces Flushed faces
Of me
I
The Poet Seer imbibing
The beauty of lust
The lust of beauty.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wardens Of Night

the wardens of night
they too
go a pack of beer and spuming corks are opened smell of absinthe too
and green.

o ocean of weeds that floated in the dusk
and further
in to the night

o echoes that went round the caves and coves in the vast arms of the vast sleeping bay the Ocean received you
and the Ocean transformed you
echoes
echoers sweet transformed talks and whispers of the ghosts nocturnal and the shrouds and skeletons walking the Ocean-bosom where they meet far from land and talk and whisper sigh and groan
these.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Warm Rooms

in the warm rooms of houses
in ancient Valletta.. some of them palaces...
outside
the streets steam with frost and chill thick treble walls keep out the tempest enemies

Emmanuel George Cefai
Warning Laugh

I heard the warning laugh
I saw the warning flash
I saw the finger red and it was dark
I heard the oak door creak and it was cold cold inside a cold room I heard I felt I saw

the night is long
the night is long
the night is long

kere teli semi talen peri fere meni valem jonkert gere seli salem ya gontert de veri kralen

ancient language
I
heard
the rustling
I
heard
the words
I
heard
the cold
I felt it
round
my hand
my arms ancient language
in that ancient place
of cobwebbed
haunting cold room
cold room
cold room
the night has still
to
go
deep yet hurry
time will pass hours will pass Dawn will be near Hurry!
Goodbye! Goodnight! Buona notte!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Was Last Night Afraid Of Curdled Ghosts?

Was last night
Afraid of curdled ghosts?

The shrouds roamed freely.

In the air as humming bees
The ghosts and shrouds
Grumbled and lamented.

Dawn opened one eye and Raised her shoulders in indifference.

Routine and rote Sphinx-like Looked from a hedge below The firs and sleepy oaks.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Was The Heaven

Was the heaven
Yesterday:
Questions that were Made Fingers that were Pointed
For

Dappled Dappled thick and Dense
With stars was
The new heaven
Yesterday
It had disowned
The old heaven
Of dawn the haven
The sea
Was dappled too
With non-motile fish
And Dappled

Thought and Thoughts of Never-before
Are now in store
In the heavens of yore

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wastes Of Waters

In the wastes of waters
The night in dark blue veils Walked on the waves
By
Passed vessels grey
In the silhouette of Night Sea-bosom mirror of The trembling stars Trembling waters

Emmanuel George Cefai
Watch The Sea, My Love

Watch the sea my love
Remain as long As you will
But remain long While age and sorrow Cunning eyed carry along Ah! that watching Bring fond memories Inscribed
In every rustling
And sweet pebble churning.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Watching Bats

Watching bats
Was my task today
In the red dusk
On the terrace
In the chill of The roof
Under frown of the heavens.
I watched the bats
Smiling.
But they shrieked and They screamed terribly Disrespectful animal-birds!
Do you not Respect a Poet-Seer who wills
To view and to think But right through his brain Send wave-currents
In shock and in speeds
That light has
That light breeds
And split the orgasm of thought In to two
A duality that needed a single Unity.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Watch-Tower Of Fires

Burning
More than morning desires Rotten walls
Falling Waters drear and Failing
And
How the skies are frowning
How the skies be frowning.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Water Drops

I heard the water drops
But giant Ones

About me Stalactites and Stalagmites.

The waters echoed
Sweet \as the waters fell Into cooler temperatures Wisdom and cool combined Making love together In those solitary haunts Of caves nocturnal Wombs.
Well of love and wisdom

Emmanuel George Cefai
Water I Thirst

Water
Water
Water
I thirst
I thirst
I thirst Feel it
Down
Cool though plain Working cool.
Beauty.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Water Lilies Sweet

Waters of the lilies sweet
And
Dazzled eyes to meet!

Winters of song and Waters crag to crag Leaping raw!

For beauty be to raw propense
And
Raw be to beauty propense!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Water Mills

Turning water mills
one by one plain of turning mills

the waters pump the waters brim
the waters bubble
and the beer oozes

below
the street of taverns full in to the
night
and in to the mugs of wine and beer geneses of Sub Conscious.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Water Turgid

Waters turgid that now Calmed in the Aegean
Frost and cold
Tonight.

Mediterranean waves
And Waters wild
Yet Subdued in the thrall
Of haunting beauty.

Waters turgid that now Calmed in the Aegean
Frost and cold
Tonight.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Waters

the waters will flow and the rains
chill the field stone-walls
the frost
blow over Santi and Mtahleb skim the high rocks the giddying cliffs of Dingli:
passions that satify
the assuaged senses sphinxes sudden arising on the country trails one by one statues and megaliths
of olden centuries:
brows furled of thought cloud upon cloud below
the cliff ridge:
razor of beauty that cuts color after color to the deep then to to the high then alternates again
high
high
the waters
flow
low low
the frosty rain drops
flow sly faces of stone though not of sphinxes each different each statue hewn of the old rock of Earth's willingly pillaged womb:
O! sing for lo! that lark that flies jumping high in humps along the heavens and the skies
It jumps, it rings, it sings!
blow, blow, unkind wind, blow, though Winter be not here.
statues and megaliths of olden centuries:
brows furled of thought cloud upon cloud below the cliff ridge: razor of beauty that cuts color after color to the deep then to to the high then alternates again

Emmanuel George Cefai
Waters Chant

The waters chant
The waters go
And seep Through graves and Tombs round
Monuments and drying
Flowers
In the cemetery

Emmanuel George Cefai
Waters Flooding

The waters flooding
In the mouth
Spuming.
Matron of beauties.
The night wears
Down
Its subjects with
Dancing
Deep of night and yet beyond Right up To the Dawn
When all go fleeing!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Waters Flourished High

In our dreaming
The waters flourished High and Azure-transparent

The sweeping arms
Of a giant night figure Hovered over.

The ants in the garden
Looked up
Staring at the heavens

Emmanuel George Cefai
Waters Flowing

waters
waters flowing
yet it be summer
but
that day
the doors of the clouds opened
waters
before their time
winter
be yet far
and
yet so near

Emmanuel George Cefai
Waters Glow

At two the light Arises.

The waters glow and Rustle.

A lone crab over the pebbles Moves

A soft succession of waves Floats on to the pebbles
And
The pebbles rattle.

A skiff white and transparent
Unmanned
Passes in the background distance Fading slow.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Waters In The Garden Leaped

You Walked
With Me While
Waters
In
The Garden Leaped Leaped
Around
Us Haunted
By
The Sperm
Of spells
that rose
and faded
in
the past
of
time

Emmanuel George Cefai
the waters leap
the waters
wild desert
sands
and heat
but lovely solitude
where war
and armies propense
to fade
in mounds
of sand
the waters leap
the waters leap
and save.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Waters Of A Night

Waters of a night, you will Not be all nights.

Last night you were with red
And hollow eyes.

Between your hands prayers and Beads of rosary.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Waters Roll Chanting

Waters that once Lay hid in the rocks

Now out
The waters roll chanting

And
The night was hiding

Emmanuel George Cefai
Waters Scents

Waters
Scents Various
Of Burning Herbs
The Soul
Flies
Up
As
In A Winding
Taper
Going
To
The heavens
Sighing
Ever
To Go Higher Sighing
Sighing

Emmanuel George Cefai
Waters Sounds

Waters
Sounds
Then silences

In the monastery yard
A lone monk Draws the pail of Waters up
Up from the well Grates
The pulley wheel Old ancient and Grizzly.

There was a familiar Sound
In that pulley of Ancientness
The sound of quiet mixed With sad and resignation:
I saw
I saw
Waters
Sounds
Then silences
Heard I.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Waters Surge My Love

The waters surge
The waters surge my love

And in the eyes of stars
There twinkles beauty

And in the eyes of night
There's depth
That going inside
So deep
I did not reach
The final bottom.

And on the trees
Of Hastings Gardens
Sang three nightingales

And
In the Hastings Gardens
Reposed with Rare sighs and
Whispering
The Monument

Emmanuel George Cefai
Waters That Dance

Waters
That Dance
Yet
Slow
Yet Tarrying
Beats
The Hot Sun
Now
Is May
And
The Sun
Will Be Propense
To Get Re-enforcements
Each day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Waters That Rise

Waters that rise
Though there be no fountain
But as magic surprise
And dances the snowy mountain.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Waters Vibrate My Love

The waters fail
The waters vibrate my love
The waters tremble
As the humming bird's Flapping

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wave After Wave

Wave after wave
The ghosts of today
The shrouds of yesterday

Crying
Crying
Crying

And amidst them
You
My mother
Crying
Crying
Crying

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wavering Light

Played with the wavering light Both land and sea
At the Dawn's first sight.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Waves In The Night

Waves in the night
Restless

Restless as my Soul
To-night
It has been gathering
Since waking:

And now
That restlessness Explodes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
We

We must hie ourselves
To the roofs of the Earth Fix wings
Make wings
To fly to other spheres
Not Earth
Not Earth!

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Approached The Winter Cold

We
We approached the winter cold
With gelid hands of frost Not flesh but numb of bronze We felt Experienced:
And saw
The icicles one by one drip
Drop
From our hands not flesh but numb of bronze We said: ’It is the weather’
But Inside laughed the Inner Soul Laughed deep and audible and
Said:
’See my restlessness. I am of You.
And I am restless.
So You.’

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Are Arrived My Friend

to there to there we go to there
the promised land
we are arrived my friend
I heard chains fall
I felt a breeze of heaven in my wearied Soul and my eyes fixed on the heavens went for we, we have to go to the appointed place,
the tombs, the graves,
the cemetery roads,
the still of a drear nighted
chill:
to there we go, my friend
and that be why and wherefore
my friend
in my verse of an ageing man Of these things often so
I sing:
For there I am arrived, my friend

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Are Into A Play

We are into a play
The Play of Life goes
Round
As the watermill
Scene after scene
Some scenes are rich
Some scenes be powerful;
Some scenes be as of joy
Relative
Other scenes of sadness and Of woe
But all
All equal and irreversible
All
Faint, slow and fading as
The day
And
When their time comes
Then
They remove themselves Slow but determinate
On their direction
And
In their direction Full obstinate:
For
We are into a play
The Play of Life goes
Round
As the watermill
Scene after scene

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Are Passing

We,
We are passing
continually
under swords hanging suspended by thin threads
we one sword here
one sword there
we,
we are passing

Fear on our faces
Grows
Though we put brave
Faces
Our hearts throb
Wild
One throb after another Throb.

For
We,
We are passing
continually
under swords hanging suspended by thin threads
we
one sword here
one sword there
we,
we are passing

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Build

We build
we build in life
we humans

some without ceasing some with continuous toil weary the spine the back and the machine creaks for lack of oil

forget we that there be a residence that waits up us and how that residence is hungry; it gobbles us, the cemetery

we build
we build in life
we humans

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Burn

We fire
We fire
Because we burn
Though cool the moon
And chill the stars
And frosty on Earth here

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Continued To Walk

Continued
To Walk
To Walk
To Walk
The Long Straight
Walk
We Continued
And
The Hard Face
Of
The Hard Road Never Failed
No
Not Once
Not Even Once
And
The Sun Burned
On Us Cruelly
Though
It
Was not Yet
Noon.
And Still
We Walked
And Walked
By
Time
Our Soles
Had Become Sore
And Aching Started
Yet
We Trudged
On
And
On
We walked and walked.
For
That
Was Life
The Invisible Chain
That
Was
On Us
And
The Irresistible
The Sword
On Our Heads Dangling Continually Dangling
All
The
Time
More Cutting
Than
The Guillotine
More Dangerous Than
The Sword
Of Damocles
Yet
We Continued
Trudging
Fear
In Our Hearts
Sun Shining
On Our Faces.
Parched Throats
And Masks
Of Suffering.
Yet
Trudging
Trudging
Trudging
For
That
Be
Life.
Dawn, noon, afternoon
Sunset dusk night
Are
All Irrelevant
We
Just Trudge
On
And
On
And
On Continue
Trudging.
Verses
Kept Occasionally flowing Flowing
Drop
By Drop
Drop
After Drop Cumulus
And Gathering.

Flowing
Verses Kept Flowing
And
The Mask
Of Peril Began
Its Dangerous dancing.

Cycle Relatively Irrelevant.
Trudging
Trudging
Trudging
We Suffer
Yet
We Joy
We
Be Still Breathing
Just Enough
To Be Yet
Trudging
Trudging
Trudging

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Develop In Pain

we develop in pain we learn by
suffering
we learn by losing
then we think we gained Wisdom
and in terms of that Wisdom very Wisdom feel
the sands
between our fingers
slipping

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Grow Old

We grow old now
We grow old now
And yet
I will not call you son!

The trees and woods bend
To the humble earth Incline
In sleep birds animals and All, in the dark deep.
And dream.
And dream.
And dream.

We grow old now
We grow old now
And yet
I will not call you son!

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Hate Formalities.

Nowadays
We hate formalities.

So
Being with you
Is marriage and not-marriage.

The emotions
They be still united.

The nights
They be still of dreams.

The graves
Will wait our coming Sooner or later.

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Have Entered

We have entered
For we see Shades of glory
Walk all stately
In their empery
Down the path Between fir and oak Shades of glory
Walk all stately
And to the square
Moon-lighted and serene they go.

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Have Proof And True And False

We have proof and true and false
And in this a new civilization
grows pales the old civilization though from it conserve

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Have To Wait As Yet.

We have to wait as yet.

we have to go to the roots.

we have to utter what comes.

the sub-conscious well vomits new things.

not all, not all.

but so many, so many, yes.

That be civilization, that be evolution, too.

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Humans

We humans
We
Must be humans of the Night
As the bat and as The nightingale
The slick hedgehogs Glow-worms light
Of the moon
And of the stars
Ah! for grace
Keep Dawn away
Stop the clock of Time
From heralding the new day Remain frozen-fixed in night
And
The silent awe of star light.

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Humans Are Thrown Ever

We
Humans
Are thrown ever
Here and there
Buffeted in the winds of fate Molded in the hands of History.

We Intelligent Deem and calculate
That we
Auto-determine all about Ourselves
And brow beat history
And outwit destiny

But ah! my Monsignor Our intelligence be not infinite
Though
In our breasts and brain Infinity abides from birth
Yet
All that we deem
All that we calculate Though shielded by high walls Built by us humans
Yet
History silent peers over those walls
Yet
History silent watches all our plans And knows in detail all our Arsenals:
So
We are taken back Only when
At the Point of Destiny
Where History and Destiny Unite
At that point then We realize our fate
We realize intelligently
But then
My Monsignor, it be too helpless
And it be too late

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Humans Go Around

We
We humans go around
round and round
even in our verse.

We
fly - at least - must fly away from chains in verse.

Yet ever we return here or there in some percentage however minimal to the self-same things.
Ah! Ixion!

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Is

we
is
I
we
is Poet Seer
for
I
be
Poet Seer Around, around as in haze and trance
the Hastings Gardens
dance
around, around
with ghosts and shrouds and spirits moaning loud:
white is the thunder and the flash that roars is because the heavens immense
to-night
became one giant lion.
a lemon hangs
a peasant
in
the fields
at night
he
sings with him a shepherd sings
competing.
The sheep go round quiet sleep not are one with night
We Lose

We lose
we lose
here
there horizontal vertical
and find that now losing
now
and losing ten twenty thirty more years later be the same!

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Lose Hour After Hour

we lose
hour after hour
and the clock ticks
and the clock ticks
and Time goes on and Age goes on.

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Must Do In The Night

O! we must do in the night
We humans
What we do in the day:
Only
That the environment will Have propensity to change our ways From more war to more peace From disagreement common to More common awareness of Agreement for the sake
Of our survival:
From the attractions of power Glory wealth
To the attraction of thought Discovery and word and All that new civilization will assume
And
All that evolution will embrace
As in to ever-increase For our survival these
My Monsignor!
Change, humans, change.

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Speak Of Raped Women: For Instance.

We speak of raped women: for instance.
But birds?
Yes when we enclosed them in cages
We raped them in
As direct proportion.
And when we enclose humans in prisons
We rape them too
In as direct proportion.

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Speak So Much Of Night, Of Storms, Of Winter.

We speak so much of night, of storms, of winter.

But ah! last winter made my life a tragedy.

And storms and night to winter be adjunct.

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Term Black That Which We Fear.

We term black that which we fear.
We term black that which saddens us.
We term black that which we assert as ugly.
We term black that which we are not in comfort with.
We term black that which annoys us.
And that is why
We term winter black, as we term bats as black.

Emmanuel George Cefai
We That Go Afterwards

We
We that go afterwards
If we go
To the land where my mother Face upwards
In a bier unmoving lies Of liquid perfume-mist
Yes
There lies she and still And mute

We
We the torch-bearers of an
Immortality;
Put forth a different path
Yet
The heart yearns to follow
The same path
As you my mother followed in your time.

For your warrior-song Rang unto the last breath
And
The will to live
Was yours
And with it too
The Will for Immortality.

You Saw hazy and distant That light where breath Stops not
And Immortality beacon is
To all:

Alas! You saw
But did not reach.
My mother, my mother.
We
We here chained unto the earth
We
In our chains
We suffer
We toil
We sweat:
And yet we breathe
In queue of one Way, your way
And in hope and Prospect Of another way
Of Immortality.

We sing not
Now
We versify not
Now
We in the haze Grope our way
Just that
Just that
Now.

Let me
My mother any way
Visit your grave
And lie
On the damp earth
Below the which
Your flesh by now Melted has:
And now
Your proud warrior face
Is a skeleton face
Yet
Still a warrior face.

The earth will tremble Tremors slow
But sure.

The night will find Glow-worms around Light-islands midst the dark.

The high trees will neigh
As the winds neigh
All night.

The dawn will walk
Up the steep cemetery road
With moist eyes.

The birds will find
It Uneasy to sing
And chirp their lays.

The sun will arise
Slow.

Slow
Will the night-frozen earth Stir.

Let me
My mother any way
Visit your grave
And lie
On the damp earth
Below the which
Your flesh by now Melted has:
And now
Your proud warrior face
Is a skeleton face
Yet
Still a warrior face.

Emmanuel George Cefai
We The Childless

let us rise
we we the childless
let us make exception at least challenge
those who grin and smile though whose hearts laugh
the descendant-holders:
rise we
see!
with us there be many shades from graves that arise and pray
for many dusk their wounded
hearts
have prayed long, long
many, many dusks:
let us rise
let do what was not done by ours before:
this
the mark of history
we be called to it
we
as noble as those whose hearts laugh
we with whom there be many shades from graves
that arise and pray
for many dusk their wounded
hearts
have prayed long, long
many, many dusks

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Think

we think
we think we little act:
we think just think.

yet in the thinking
there be
another civilization
to the muscled one
outside

a finer one vehicle of greater beauty more refined:
there be
another civilization
to the muscled one.

But
the muscled civilization has bread has wealth
that the finer civilization has not:
the finds bends thus to course the mature to raw for just survival.

And yet
we think
we think
we little act:
we think
just think.
We Too

We too
Here or there inside Whether on plains or inside just A cage
As caged birds
We Always have a heart
That beats
And so long As it beats our tongues Voices and thoughts
And verse and chants.

We too
Be like night birds
Though
Oft and by large prefer
At night to sleep
Yet
In our hearts
Even if so sleep
There the Sub-Conscious beats

We too
With the Sub-Conscious have The root
Of all of us
Our dreams our ideas our deeds
And
These combined
Our thoughts and more Civilization to all peoples addressed.
What is more of the root to human race?
We too

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Too There Inside

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Trudge

For
The sake of it
We go
We trudge
To go away
From drear
And dreary day.

Benighted sounds
Clanking and Rattling as the Bones of ancient Skeletons go round
And neigh as
The wind neighs
And round
And round.

For
The sake of it
We go
We trudge
To go away
From drear
And dreary day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Try

We try and try Again
We
The way though desperate We draw to the last on Our intelligence:
That way
At least even though Losers in the end
We regret not.

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Wait The Dawns

we wait the Dawns after the night
we drank
the attar of the dews
that fell got drunk
and aback turned and slept
on to the languid lawns that in their glory
moonlit bask
and in the rites and
scenes and scents of magic and of spell:
then as not to interrupt
too much that strand of reckless
joy
the moonlit drunkenness of
beauty
in speed by the sweet and fresh whiteness of Dawn be displaced:
yet
all the same there is the basking pleasure in turning to and fro
on the lazy bed from the corners of our eyes the very first clones of dawning white espying:
then day beginning we wake and our mask
falling
we face off life hard right from the beginning to noon already I be stunned and exhausted:
and fall
prey to the wolves of laziness and of tired sleep
again:
till that the day in its fading
as
by a sweet cycle always turning carries forth with it our Soul and thinking:
the dulcet sunset paints orange a day
to which we acknowledge part-resignation
then the red dusk films our pining
eyes
with beauty that scorches over the rawness that our day
experienced:
bring and carries dons a mask to each of us the sub-conscious night to relive
the experience of the sub-conscious as more once
again
the thrall begins:
the throbbing of life
inverse
of its hard dour working one noun-term or the other:
Sic et Sic Non nay
more riveting:
and the night comes again
we drank
the attar of the dews
that fell
got drunk
and aback turned and slept
on to the languid lawns
that in their glory
moonlit bask
and in the rites and
scenes and scents of
magic and of spell:
then
as not to interrupt
too much
that strand of reckless
joy
the moonlit drunkenness of
beauty
in speed by the sweet
and fresh whiteness of Dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Who Ate Dried Bread

We
We who ate dried bread Sipped in a little dirty water
We Knew misery, looked at it Not in a mirror but in The face
We looked at it
Our heads humble bowed
Our hearts were cold
Our brains resigned
We
We who were eating dried bread of misery.

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Will Know The Destiny

We will know the destiny
In a day’s length
Not more
Not less
So many be the instances
Of life
Of life itself in –
The not more,
Not less!

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Will Not Go Further

We
We will not go further Long the road and winding.

The frown-clouds gather And denser grow Quickly.

We
We will not go further
Long the road and winding

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Will Soon Know

We Will soon Know What
We Want
To know
Will
To Know
We Humans philosophical Machines.

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Work

We work
We work
We work
Our arms get tired
And
The dusk will bless
After the vesper song
With a warm hearth
And home of rest
We work
We work
We work; then rest; then work

Emmanuel George Cefai
We Workers Of The Sea

We,
We workers of the sea
In our lamp-lights
In our ancient skiffs
In our sea of waves Rolling
Rolling
Rolling in the night

We
Workers of the sea
After the vesper song
Our work intensifies
The white-eyed fish at night
Are our starry heavens of light And dangling the lamp-lights Flares that explode all bright.

We
Workers of the sea
Muscles brown and brawny Dark at night they work
We oar, we stop, we oar again,
We set the net, we raise the net,
And there's wealth of the sea Awhile sweet clankings of The dangling lamps
At night
At night

Emmanuel George Cefai
We, Dew Of A Morning Madness

We,
dew of a morning madness when all the processes were full done and completed:
drunk in to the very cool of the earth roots and sap.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Weaving Stars

Weaving stars
Golden delight
Sugar clouds
Hanging drizzles
Frowning screams
Thunder and bolts Looming moons
Creaking doors Iron first Soul of bronze

Emmanuel George Cefai
Web Of Tangled Emotions

Web of tangled
Emotions
Piano that plays
And rings Without hands on it
Yet
The emotions are Triggered to and fro
Into the bath of evolutive Mixtures: Shifting
Rattling Genesis of Evolving
From the civilization of the Cemeteries
To the civilization of plane Immortality.
Come!
Come!
Spirits that buzz
Around
As the night turns
And goes
Come!
Come!
You need the Dawn?
You will not find here
In the very depth of
Night
You will not see her Smile
Feel her warm breath
But instead Feel the creepy hands of Frost:
Both civilization be

The wisdom of the earth
It stood
The wizardry of the blue
Heavens
Laden with the muffins of the Dark
They called us;
I heard them;
And the more they called I sped away;
They called more;
All circular.
All of a circle.

I felt the creepy hands
Of winter’s seasons
Near
I felt obliging night
And frost of red Noses red, eyes red,
Coughing red,
I heard
I heard
The paces of the Night
On chill and asphalt.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Weep

Are there more eyes to weep?
There are holes of a Skeleton beneath the skin
And not more Eyes to weep.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Weep Not For Joy

weep not weep not for Joy Your eyes my love
have become more beautiful.

And every look of fire
a love-arrow emits.

Cunning woman-in-love your prey is willing to be caught provided that your lips and mine become as one enjoined

Emmanuel George Cefai
Weep Not More

Weep not more
Your eyes sore Too red Too sore:
Below
The cruel snow
Bury your sadness with sadness
See
A Spring will be
And Summer too
And on the Ocean-Sea
With furled wings the Dawn
Will sail courageously:
And
From the wrecks
That litter the sea that was in storm Another day is born Another beginning if you want Though now
All be broken.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Weeping

Eyes be made for Weeping

And then the hearts rest.

Rest a little from The martyrdom of suffering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Well Of Desires

The well of desires
I match
With the well of verse ejaculation
And as ejaculations
So much require orgasms
So
I have to have aesthetic Orgasms
And I do
And I do
That’s why
The well wells up Desires, emotions, rants
All mixed Conjured by magic wand Mightier than Prospero's:
The well of desires
The well of verse
The well of mighty tanks

For a time
The well was empty Dry the sides
With over growing moss
But
Then
Explosion of the well
The Bomb of Emotion
Splashed as it fell Trembled and vibrated
In the first chills
Of the cold waters:
Then
Burst the lid of the well Face red with orgasm and with effort joy and suffering pain and heaving upheaval of the dormant
feelings.
there were some moments yet that you had to travel through the music of emotions keep up with me Keep up!

the first rain had fallen
not long it had been but the first rain
had fallen:
I told you to photograph the old mansion auto-termed 'palazzino'
but you shoved my hands away my pointing hands said 'It be not beautiful' But all things be beautiful!
Gradation
there be; but a minimum percentage of beauty equally.
The Well of Verses splattered all over the place verses and seeds before the night before the dusk after the Dawn:
erect and short a Poet Seer chanted high in that silent wilderness

Emmanuel George Cefai
Well Rehearsed Act

Well rehearsed act
A polka
A tango
And the night on Fire Adrenaline Desire!

See
See my Monsignor
The brain is opened quite
You
Can peer inside
Enunciate my Monsignor
In never-end
In ever-increase

Well rehearsed act
A polka
A tango
And the night on Fire Adrenaline
Desire!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Well Through The Streets I Passed

Well through the streets I passed
And it was New Year’s Day:
Ah! The Day: the Institution must give way To the perpetuation of the Day
All the year round: then, Perhaps, there will for me
Be no martyrdom.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wept the bastion wall, and trickles of tears Precious as precious Orient gems fell Slow by the drop against the wall On certain special night of fairy spell:
Few words, few words, my Monsignor,
The Orient’s wealth was there for taking Yet so many passed and honked indifferent:
And yet the Orient weeping treasure
Of the old bastion continued without measure.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Were I A Witch (Of Old)

Were I a witch (of old) Then I would fly on my broom At least over Valletta in the night.

And street by street With aerial view nocturnal I Will lower myself to peer Over the dreamy houses Scour deserted streets
And alleys strait.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wet The Land

Wet the land
And Wet the bush
With dew drops
Dew-drops of night Wet the eyes
From the cries Coffin bear
Shed not more tears Renounced now to Immortality
The deal's done with mortality!

Emmanuel George Cefai
What Be The Zenith Of A Day?

The zenith of a day Winter
Autumn Spring
Summer?
Is the zenith of a day
Relative
Or separated by the Seasons' whims?

Emmanuel George Cefai
What Best Emotion Best Be Linked

What best emotion best be linked Attached to the mellow turning
Moon?

What best emotion best be linked Attached to the spears Thrown by the night stars Few nights ago?

What best emotion best be linked Attached to the harsh parched Cry of desperation
Of the Poet Seer
In to the face of the heavens
but yesterday?

Emmanuel George Cefai
What Colors Have

What colors have
The cattle of the night my eyes never saw?
Nor on what pastures will night find them on Have I seen.

Yet I feel
I feel the cattle of the night
Are here pasturing in the green Hid and enveloped in the mantling night Where silence hides its face And freedom blindfolded
On perilous ridges walks.

Then will the gaudy clouds below me sail
And earth turn around me
And the dawn
Will burst its glory in the firmament
And round me dance:
The Graces on a top Of a Greek mount will tiptoe on the edge And earth will turn and turn Around the incense of the new-born morn
And dawn will then tiptoe away
And burst its glory in the firmament.

How happy this day, how happy!

Emmanuel George Cefai
What Fire Burns As Hot And Scalds

What fire burns as hot and scalds
As Love’s fire?
Ah! Love ah! fire - how Love scalds every piece of skin Warming it to burning with touch invisible

And yet
The fire of Love does good to me And abates not When chill and frost do come And rains on the casement come And from on high hang white icicles.

Emmanuel George Cefai
What Happened To The Violin

What happened to the violin that sang and played in the nights though the winds raged and the storm ravaged?

what happened to the dreamers and to the sleepers of that night in the warmed houses that stood for centuries?

what happened to that night that evaporated in the first mists of the new dawn, at the first touch, first, first?

Emmanuel George Cefai
What Remains Now

What remains now
today, my friend,

but celebrate the fugue of the last lines and the last verses?

I hear the sad tones of the fugue
I hear the sad notes of the fugue I feel them in my heart

the fugue of the last lines and the last verses though even now, since now to the last remained my conscious as my drear sub-conscious, both sad and drinking acerb from the glass of pain and suffering the fugue of the last line and the last verses.

Emmanuel George Cefai
What Remains To Immortality

We are on the road – see the City of Immortality glimmering!

In the night dark and cold and frost
How glimmers it!

The City of Immortality be not far
To-night!

We had not reach this far, my friends,
As yet!

For years I guided, I proposed,
I toiled.

Now that we are near a strange numbing Tiredness strikes.

Pity that we who proposed who led will Not be those who enter the City.

Let it be so, others will enter glorious Into the City!

The gates of the City barriers shine
But wait their opening!

And Death dark-veiled in face Hides stealthy a corner behind The ramparts of the City.

Emmanuel George Cefai
What Siren-Song Arises

What siren-song arises
From the sweet silver bosom of the sea
By the three rocks?

No human eyes to watch
No human eyes to see

And yet
The elfin forms in dwindling shadows dance
And then
Of sudden the shadows grow
As in a trance.

What siren-song ariseth
From the weary sea, the funereal dirge Of mariners lost and gone, perhaps?

What siren-song ariseth
This sad night, this endless seeming night
From the sweet silver bosom of the sea
By the three rocks?

Emmanuel George Cefai
What Value All The Years

What value all the years of studying?
what value all the years of children raising?
If all that work be undone in so short and cruel time when all that work be thrown in dust and mists?

Emmanuel George Cefai
What Was That Sound?

What was that sound?
I heard it-'twas distinct.
The rattling of the skeleton it was.

Ah me I have a skeleton That rattles every now and then Not all the nights.

But when it rattles
The nights are dark
And no moon shines.

Emmanuel George Cefai
What We Did

What we did
In our youth
Alas! that passed Alas! we now Mature fruit
Droop
Droop
Down the tree of Life In Life’s red dusks.

Emmanuel George Cefai
What Wealth

What wealth
What realms
Be there in the deep Soul
Ah! that deep that ever deeps
The more you stretch your hand
The more to it you creep!

For
In the realm of nobleness
There be so much
So much
More than of earthly emperies!

What wealth
What realms
Be there in the deep Soul
Ah! that deep that ever deeps
The more you stretch your hand
The more to it you creep!

Emmanuel George Cefai
What Will Happen?

What will happen?
To what?
These verses!
Now they lie hidden in obscurity.
Is it better for them to shine the while?
For me it is better.
And there a command to obey to the letter.
What will happen to these verses? will they be undisclosed with dust on them When their maker goes and lie forgotten?
Then who can guarantee That yet five thousand years from hence
Or more
Or less
Earth will be singing each and every verse?
For Earth has changes of style as changes of heart
And we that move with Earth, un revolving
Yet
As revolving:
We, humans change heart as change style.
Our propensity that, therefore, to it be prone:
: Almost an axiom, that, my Monsignor.

Emmanuel George Cefai
What Will You Do In Arrogance

What will you do in arrogance
Today?
You are wealthy, powerful, and Do your will Your will’s your way
As you stand round in the armchair That turns.
You think not at this time
Of cemeteries
Of the quiet graves, the birds
That sing and how in the morn
When all us humans wake
The inhabitants fade in sleep.
You do not want to think.
To think of this.
Below
The tomb-stones lies Truncated an immortality
But immortality befits the less The wealthy and the arrogant But mostly those who know What misery is and gone Through all the trammels of A sacrifice.
You smile at this and smile Sardonically.
That be
One reason why I suspended
The long, long voyage to immortality Some years ago, and slowed
My pace.
For
You think not at this time
Of cemeteries
Of the quiet graves, the birds
That sing and how in the morn
When all us humans wake
The inhabitants fade in sleep.
You do not want to think.
Emmanuel George Cefai
What With My Eyes

What with my eyes
I saw these fifty Years and more
What with ears Heard these fifty Years and more
What with my heart Suffered these fifty
Years and more.

Emmanuel George Cefai
What You Will Get

Get out And get Even the least Long term
You will turn best

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wheels Turning

Wheels turning Wheels turning
Over the brain Wheels turning
And Fires of night
Burning
And Inflamed eyes of Red Tired Tired
Eyes
A saffron beach
In tempest Skies overcast
And thunder Sad and drear
Suffering.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When All Be Said And Done

When all be said and done
For to day
For to day
Pull down the curtain of the day Usher in the night
Bring candle-light
Think
Write.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When all the styles be counted
In all, for all, of all
Remain
The verses and the delight Of Beauty and her eyes all bright.
That's what remains
When you synthesize
And that be all The All in All, the All of All.
Enough and full requited.

Beauty remains.

Reduce to ashes
The All to ashes
Beauty: one remains.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When Beauty Leaps Into The Stream

When beauty leaps into the stream of golden liquid
then my emotions will rise from their drear as the stalk of the violet at touch of dawn and sun

Emmanuel George Cefai
When Clover From Day To Day Drips

When clover from day to day drips
With thin pencils of ice and rift With restless frost and itching
Then this be Winter of all times.

When clouds in heavens thicken
And a long arm of lightning Lights kilometers up and now
Then this be Winter of all times.

When in the nights wherever you lie
In a rich bed or in a bed of sty
All the same with no difference
You will hear the night-wind neigh
And you will hear it sob through door and window chinks For this be Winter, Winter of all times.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When Dawn Is Risen

When Dawn is risen
And yet
The woes of yesterday Still linger on
Then
Close your eyes
Think not Think not

Emmanuel George Cefai
When Dusk With Trembling Brush Did Paint

When dusk with trembling brush did paint
The grey embers of the mid-day sun with red
The yellow marigold started to bend its head

Its head the yellow marigold did bend
And slow, slow, slow in the quiet field Where no one saw and no one roamed:
The yellow marigold slow bent its head.

And the from glooms behind Came the first wafting breezes Of welcome cool in the reclining day
The soft-reclining day in arms of the red dusk Swooning into an endless night of drowsiness Wherein it swallows in its humbled suffering.

And the yellow marigold bends its head, bends its head.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When Earth Does Some Injustice To Herself

When Earth does some injustice to Herself
Then she injustice to her Children does:
And When Earth does Injustice to her children
She Does some injustice in part At least to just herself

Emmanuel George Cefai
When Horses Upon A Plain From Steep Inclines Descend

When horses upon a plain from steep inclines descend
Then will they faster move with brisker pace
But when to this be made addition of a spur Then trees and fields and houses and waters fly Nay the wind whirls - and being in island now Only the sea and its long linear marge remain Constant azure and thin unmoving in the eye:
And when the Night with his incense ascends As the lamp-lighter did in old the light-lamps That light the darkling skies and spaces vast So your mere look, the glancing of your eyes Will light me so that burning reach I speeds Faster than light immediate reach to thee.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When I Saw The Hanging Man

When I saw the Hanging Man
I learnt a lesson:
My face grew dim and serious
For I knew that I had no right Not to be him:
I could have been Him
I, a Hanging Man.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When I Saw The Hanging Man 2

I remembered my martyrdom
It will soon come:
It has been coming long, long
And now the Time is come As it comes for All, and All
For it bend and subject:
That is the consolation:
For when the Wall be crossed After I end up as a Hanging Man
There will the others be with me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When I The Poet Seer Breakdown

When I the Poet Seer Breakdown
I
See
The Sad
Face
Of
The Muse
And Lay
Me
Just Below
A Tree Willing
All Ageing
To Divert
On Me Finish Finish
Bring
On
The Dusk
The Day
Is Nigh
The Day
Is Faded

Emmanuel George Cefai
When I Think Of You

When I think of you
place where snows almost every day falls where winds almost every day
sing:
where the winds knock at the doors of the lone villa
and the shearing shed of sheep clean
and
white:
when I think of you the chains of law
that here bind
me
Go: and breathes again unleashed unfettered
my Individual Sovereign Will

Emmanuel George Cefai
When I upon the stars gaze and stare
And wish that had I the deft lore Of wise astronomers and more That might I all their book unlock and read.
Vain wish! Poor self! Presumptuous self!
I look at stars and vainly covet their lore.
Yet only if I knew how to unlock At least one time the heart of the night stars Then would I take my chance, ask my desire That I might know whether ’tis writ that you My black queen of the south will stay or go.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When I Will Be Fifty-One

When I will be fifty-one
You will father me
And in one year redeem
The other years: in our child
The other years will color take From the white face of agony
And blood will course again
And fast.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When Into The Folds Of Heaven’s Face I Stare

When into the folds of heaven’s face I stare
And in that book to read the full attempt I to learn how my love will fare desire
So anxious I so tremulous and such the green And wondrous tempests that Cupid churns Into the oceans of my unquiet breast:
That I start losing hope and my hearts falls:
With every moment like the sand that falls Through the time-glass my fear proportionate grows And how heaves my breast, my forehead burns
When jealousy hath caught me in its throes That wish I that heaven fall on me or else
The earth its entrails open, devour me.

Love like an aspen leaf in the wind trembles me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When My Emotions Are Stop-Gapped

when my emotions are stop-gapped
how bleak my face
how blank my mind:
like one bleak stone fresh cut without the twinkling of the diamond or of the topaz stars in summer nights.

But when the black queen of the south Enters in her transparent veils Then the emotions surge tsunami-like And my face is no longer bleak Nor my mind blank
Nor without the twinkling of the diamond
Or of the topaz stars in summer nights

Emmanuel George Cefai
When Night Ascends The Palace Of The Skies

When Night ascends the palace of the skies
And one by one all heaven’s stars doth light Then will a gladness o’er that solitude Of vastness and chill space descend:
Jove in his heaven himself will smile
And send his blessing to the heavens below.
And here and there at will and randomly Will the stars twinkle all inconstantly Like pilot eyes of the enfolding Night Whereby Night watches on the earth below:
The oceans large and vast flow slowly down.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When Night lights up the switches of the stars
And they as one by one light up the skies Gladdening with light the funereal dark Which Night upon the heavens enfolds The fires of the stars how brave look they As hero-like defy and warm and light
The gloomy darkness of those frosty zones Then will the fires brave of the night stars
The Poet’s praise engage and have:
The silent moon awhile all languidly Will shine all constant and neglected quite In the frail shadows of stars that fire.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When Nights Are Sullen

When nights are sullen then Emerge Poet Seer Go to the roof top and The dancing grey shadows of Mystery:
And eye the heavens well
Till
Tears in your eyes
You take the lyre and sing
Sing
Even through the night
Into the first of Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When Sadness Reigns

When sadness reigns
When sadness reigns
There be a gargling in The cemetery
I search
I find it in the trees
Then move
And by the ossuary
It rings:
There's a hammer Beating Beating Beating
The old sadness returns
With
Its companion
Yellow faced depression:
The sea waters dirty Rustle
And
The birds in the bushes
And the reeds Sing not Though it be dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai
When snow at last will fall on Kuljat hill
The red-tailed rabbit will limp to its lair Amidst the flakes and frozen icicles
The skies will be as lead and overcast With worries and ills they never had;
The night will hide into a well and then The dawn and morn will rise not on the hill.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When stones sang
When aerials hummed
When the wind skimmed frost itself
When fields slept drenched
When over Santi farmhouses lighted When the stars overawed the clouds at Dingli
When
The Frost Turned Leaves
Into Sudden Sere
And Then
The Executioner Wind Hatched off
Their heads.
Those days
Those times
Those happenings.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When The Beeches Cried

When
The Beeches
Cried
When
The Wind Swept
The Sad
And sere Leaves
When
The Frost Became Deep
And Thick
And Yet
No
Snows
Fell
Then
The Nightingales
Whispered
Together
That in That Night
They Would
Not
Sing

Emmanuel George Cefai
When The Brain Grows Tired, Then Yield And Cease

Wait for next dawn. next day.

You will then sleep and rest your clay.

Your clay even if clay to the brain sends arms and troops.

And when you wake you use these arms and troops.

See reason lingers, lingers slow and tired eyes half closed

Round it the dusk gathers red, she looks into the twilight waters.

The wounds that parch are healed at night.

The gaping rock that gives the water of verse and song is dry.

But that rock fills again with water at night.

Night fails not, rest deep.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When The Chains Are Cut

The breath be gone
And the head sideway goes Motionless

Begins the rigidity of The gruesome dance.

Let wailing! Let wailing go!
Stop!
Tears be too harsh Swearing too tender.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When the heart speaks
When the heart has its mouth
Then
Verse and song
Sing of sadness
On the harp of sad eyes
Of dreary hills and grey Of seas dirty gray to Green of storm:
The emotions
That churn in me, beat, Throbbing hammers.
Now.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When The Heavens Mourn

When the heavens mourn
The wind is not a gale
But neighs its heart
In the general orchestra of sadness Nor thunder flashes loud
But low and humming Mixes with the drizzling rain
The village sleeps
The village dreams
The cemetery in the cold
But not snow as yet
As yet
Mother o my mother!
A skeleton and bones Tremble in the withering Cold in the numb coffin:
The village sleeps
The village dreams
The cemetery in the cold
But not snow as yet
The coma of the moon
The ecstasy of the night
In beauty paralysis
And ghosts
And shrouds
Moving restless
Restless
Restless lamenting
Carrying with them their familiar Shroud:
The village sleeps
The village dreams
The cemetery in the cold
But not snow as yet
The heart speaks soft and sad
The breath on the panes
The cold climbs walls and Chimneys vibrate frost:
The village sleeps
The village dreams
The cemetery in the cold
But not snow as yet
O mother my mother
I saw tears in your eyes
And they not liquid
Were
But crystals: chill or Time the master’s hand?
In the chill
The putrefaction dwindles Dwindles as the day
The dawn the sun
O mother my mother
I saw tears in your eyes
And they not liquid
Were

Emmanuel George Cefai
When The Long Night Paces The Bastions

When the long night paces the bastions
It will pace restless, Restless as I be The sadness wherefrom the restlessness
Grows
When the long night paces the bastions.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When The Night Rests And Ruminates

When the night rests and ruminates
As hour after hour strike and pass
The sea-waves out of tempest’s clutch How mellow-swish the coast-rocks they lap!

When the night rests and ruminates
And houses one by one put off the lights
As the stars one by one put on their light How wonder strides on that noble sight!

Sad, sad, sad but noble in the heart:
The mind speaks, the tongue is mute,
But the hands writes and verses flow
And Emotions roll wave after wave of Art.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When The Owls Chattered Together

When the owls chattered together
In a swift language
Then the sea will discover a mystery Of old and ancient To the dim light of the moon
To the light that ghostly shines From the skies and heavens?
They say that it be Venus?
Venus on the seas and waves Coccooned in a cloud-mist of blue Over the darkling seas
That in the day were blue.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When The Rains Fall

When the rains fall
In to the strait
And quaint street
Of a dozen houses
Or so
Between two sides
Of the street Distributed:
And thunder sings
Afar
Over the Port
And the chill winds
Sing
Over the Port
When the rains fall

Emmanuel George Cefai
When The Soul Sickens

When
The Soul Sickens
Then
Earth
Will Be
As Sick
To Sick Poet-Seers

Emmanuel George Cefai
When The Time Comes I Will Drag With Me

When the time comes I will drag with me
the papers
that I have prepared for the meeting.

The boats go up and down slow in the mooring.

And
my Residence of the Human is turning to Residence of the Cemetery.

Time is pressing
Time is pressing

Around litters of newspapers and old news passe'

And
I wait at the table the home coming of the meeting.

When the time comes I will drag with me
the papers
that I have prepared for the meeting.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When The Times Comes

When the times comes Let it come
At any rate
I will destroy the statue that I built Its name is Immortality
And all will be the same No power, no wealth, no glory
For me, for you,
So let it come, my Monsignor
And there will be no dawns.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When the wind sighs
When the wind sighs
The blind-fold statue sings
The faces of the skies are dark
And the cloud flies.

When the wind sighs
From the door-crevice in It begs to enter in How darker are the shadows on the walls How sad how sad the flame wavers
As on the wall it flickers:

When the wind sighs
The sea’s black turns to green
And on the city-bastions tall
The first chill blow of wind
The first chill dropp of rain
And in the alley strait Rain-waters gurgle down
The old stone-cobbled streets:

When the wind sighs
When the wind sighs.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When The Woods Restless

When the woods restless
Be
When the woods restless Sway their trees
And move
Move slow and sad
In the grueling dance
Of a sad sunset pining Red in trance.

Then
The Old Man
The Poet Seer Carried the heavy lyre in Hand
And with voice Tremulous
Yet he found words
Noble and great
And sang and chanted Chanted and sang.

And Came out
The stars
The white stars
To watch
And slow Down their Vast faces Rolled
A tear
Then
Another
Tear.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When Things Erupt

Volcanoes are not all Volcanoes are just part

Everywhere Earth spouts Rocks giant from its restless Bowels.

The humans run from place to place
As ants at feel of human fingers Observation

Emmanuel George Cefai
When Thought And Verse Together

When Thought and Verse together fell
In love
Leopardi was in the love-garden.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When Times Will Ring With Bells

When Times will ring with bells that in cows' ears
ring:
when the scent of the cows around no more intoxicates slow yet sinuous-sure my senses
I will arise arise me out this house
and through the streets wide and level go wandering

Emmanuel George Cefai
When Two Things Transform

When two things transform
The one to the other goes Vice-versa too
The two become as one Intermittent restless Interchangeable Ever-transforming evolution

Emmanuel George Cefai
When Verses Come They Must Be Blessed

When verses come they must be blessed by the wise Muse.

You see no drops fall on verses.

Often tears, bitter tears fall here and there.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When Waters Run

When Waters
Run
The Streets
On Winter
Night
When
The rains
Flood
When
The rains
Flood
Let
Then
Let Them mix
With
The Roar
Of
The Thunder
The Flashes
Of Lightning
The Sad Orchestra
Of Nocturnal
Music Secret Garden
Of Beauty
When Will The Time Come?

When will the time come that the ailing Saturn
rise from the ivied cave where he his face in his hands
silent weeps:
even we
we,
we my Monsignor must rise up for it be
time
no longer in the silent glooms despair and
weep
no longer thought directed
be pining, but to Eagles high erect and proud triumphant victory.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When You Be Ready I Will Then

When you be ready I will then Climb with you into The clouds that bolster up the Trousers of the high heavens
Immense:
There was a feeling, then an Excitation
Then a stimulation,
Then of verse the fire Lighted up wanton desire Broke off
The parched and dust-clad rock struck With the iron of the Poet-Seer Pierced to the heart
The stubborn rock at last Let out the verses and the notes and Songs.
At last.
At last.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When You Be Thirty

When you be thirty
A better Poet Seer
Will chant
From your lips
The sacred verses.

I will be dust
You blood will be Bubbling with the Acid of life
That I had before.

And as with me
Take your opportunity To chant and sing
And verse be the salt of the earth
Acid of life.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When You Become Sere

When you become sere, you will rue That you have not made the Principles To stop all this before or else
To reverse back to youth:
Therefore be wise and use your brain
That by new Principles this occur not again.

Emmanuel George Cefai
When You Have To Free Yourself

When You Have To Free Yourself redeem the centuries! the thumping of the fingers of time moving moving moving in synchrony with Motion looking here looking there the Poet Seer crossed the ocean of the seagull wreaths

Emmanuel George Cefai
When You Look Back

When you look back
Old Aged Ageing
Man
When you look back On life
Remember
That you have composed this
Verse
And spoke your heart At will Nonchalant
If the rest
Is sheer disaster on disaster
The vase into a thousand Bits and pieces
Broken
Yet
There remains Something that be Not broken.

Emmanuel George Cefai Whenever Whenever
The Sub-Conscious dictates
I let it flow Without a vetting
That I do for Conscious

Emmanuel George Cefai
Where Be The Circles

Where
Be
The Circles
In
The Sun’s
Eyes Growing Growing Circles Growing
Then Decreasing
But Growing Immediately
The owl of the red eyes Sate on the bough this way
The nightingale on another tree Sang her heart out For it was moon
For it was stars
And from the clouds and through There were stairs to the Heavens and the stars.
There were.
There are this night too.
The moon dust falls Fine and perceptible to Dusky eyes.
Poet Seers are privileged Here at night
Where in the day
They roamed as bent pilgrims
To the Earth.
Heavens are theirs.
Where Are The Honors That Donned

Where are the honors that donned your head?
today power has shorn of them.
Tomorrow or the days after
tomorrow
since that I suspended Immortality the heads of you, and you, and you are in for the nocturnal guillotine

Emmanuel George Cefai
Where Are Words, The Words Of Poesy?

What are words the words of Poesy?

The jargon as in any profession?
Necessities to be understandable?
What else?

In this magnifying-glass analysis...

This dawn
This morn
This new birth

A simple answer I

Words stick to emotions
So long
As the right emotion at the right time and place Then all is well with words Whatever they are.

And that be Poesy.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Where Be

Where be
where be the quiet humming of the moth wings that round the bent tree
fluttered last night?
If these have fled can Dawn be far away?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Where Be The Cataract

Where be the cataract
That yesterday
Shrieked with the wind?
Where be the gales of
Yesterday?
The silence of today
Is but the tomb of yesterday

Emmanuel George Cefai
Where Be The Emotions

You tell me: Where be the emotions
In the verse?

I reply: Ah! the emotions are all Round even in image and Description too.

And I will tell you too: Be so kind; read Again my verses, Monsignor.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Where Be The Wind?

Where be the wind?
Said
The man with the disheveled hair

He asked a Child
Just a Child of the mischievous eyes

But the Child of the mischievous eyes Replied and said:
‘I have a bag and Here be the winds.
What pay you? ’

And then Took the Poet Seer
His lyre.

‘With a song’ ‘Agreed, ‘ said the Child, ‘ and I will let Open the bag a little For I be responsible’
Then
sung the Poet Seer Enchanted heavens and
The wayward dusk
And setting sun and Child of the mischievous eyes

Emmanuel George Cefai
Where Did He Bring The Pitchers

Where did he bring The pitchers
From the old of Centuries?
P[resent
Them now
Now
In this night
In this cemetery Drink
Drink
The cool, cool draught
Inside of them
You feel
That you have drunk Yet you Feel no wine Between your Teeth
Nor does your palate Melt in the touch with The famed wine:
The skeletons drank
And they laughed
Still
As the wise men
They had invited:
Polite. Not drunk
They became
The utterers of wisdom
And wise words:
Sailed by a ship
From the land of Osiris
By
Slow
The moon-goddess
Smiled cautious.
Next Came the men from Galilee
They were bearded But little And brought The scent of holiness
With them
Thus full
The assembly
Throughout the night
Each with each Chattered in the cemetery:
Dawn found them not

Emmanuel George Cefai
Where Earth, The Wide Earth Has Space

Where Earth, the wide Earth has Space for by now Thousands of her genius children
She has now space
For more:
In this Earth must not be limited Restrained from ever-increase In any mode:
Else
In direct proportion to restraint From ever-increase of geniuses She will herself
disown her children and their works
And
In that process will she harm Herself and children too.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Where Have The Remains Of Last Night Been Hidden?

Where
Have the remains of last
night
been hidden else
reduced to ashes in the Barbecue of Fear in yonder cemetery?

Amidst the tombs and graves
and the sad monuments you sit and find relief as the day
fades
and sunset fails, then the red dusk starts pining waning too with that certain surfeiting

then comes the cloth of dark and will find me sitting by a large cross
monument on a humid tomb:
the heavens are the roof the Earth the room the grave the Inner Soul
all whispering

Emmanuel George Cefai
Where Is The Isle That Floats

Where is the isle that floats Just outside Valletta on Nights when the mists Rise off Xghajra and move Down the coast to Marsascala?
A Poet Seer told me he saw the isle.
It was a blizzard tempest yet He ventured out; for desperation Made him find the isle.
And in that desperation
The Poet Seer too found his inspiration

Emmanuel George Cefai
Where Is The Promise Of My Youth?

Where is the promise of my youth?
When I attempt
To review my past years I close my eyes:
My cheeks turn warm with shame -
They burn.
Where is the promise of my youth?

Ah! long ago - long years ago
I dreamed full many a dream Hot warm-nighted Mediterranean With flurries in the youthful breast Ambition in the head And stubbornness in the heart.
Now all’s subdued and still.

The bustling thoroughfares
Of this my port, my town,
The city that lies in my breast
Are full of unclear air, smokes foul, The chimneys full of soot are
And I feel
The oncoming asphyxia of dreariness.

There’s here an abandoned city
An exhausted profligate
After the bells of debauchery Have rung out all his energy And so with empty hands
He falls:
As in the desert, the burning desert
The sands pass through his hands:
And he cannot look at the sky
And he dare not look on the Sun That burns too hot for him:
And his hands tremble.

Where is the promise of my youth?
Where Is The Vigor That You Showed

Where is the vigor that you showed
When you raced miles in minutes?
The profane crowds applauded then;
As was their want as day follows day.

Your legs are wrinkled like creased apples
And when you stand and walk
There is a long, long trembling.

You could throw spears like Ajax did Or other heroes dwelling under Jove
When he and his God-clan sate high above:
Heaven and earth trembled at their thunder-bolts.

No longer now high chants arise amidst
The holy smoke in temples of the night:
Jove has withdrawn it seems to higher zones:
The grass now grows abundant-wild alone Amidst remaining pillars wind-frost-gnawed:
And human feet have rarely trod to hence:
Here the night comes shameless and the moon Smiles languid and unseen: here and there Glow-worms light the dark all light-house-like.
Or planets falling down Saint Anne’s Way
Like heaven’s sperm-cloud heaven’s azure bedeck.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Where Souls Are Bought And Sold?

Is there a market Where Souls are Bought and sold?
I would invest in Souls
If there's that market

Emmanuel George Cefai
Where Statues From Their Eyes Shed Tears

Where statues from their eyes Shed
Tears
When skeletons in armor
The streets of old
Valletta roam
Rattling to ears of Silent Poet Seers:
And
To the sleeping Dawn
As distant echo-vibrations
To her sacred cave:
Not waking her
But hummock-pleasant notes Of dulcet sleep be making:
And the stars join
The white night stars
O where the night dews Voluptuous falling on the Humid soils and Open mouthed flowers
Were basking in the noises Notes and sweet music They drank in as wine of
The night
Nocturnal sweet delight
Where statues from their eyes Shed
Tears
When skeletons in armor
The streets of old
Valletta roam
Rattling to ears of Silent Poet Seers

Emmanuel George Cefai
Where Will I Find Them If I Go Now?

Flowers
That were placed in November
Last year:
The grave was still
And cold
And
You
And
I
At that time
Though not
Of the gales and Floating rains
And lightning
And thundering
That passed over the flowers
Where will I find them
If I go
Now?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Whereby You Too Unfold The Emotions,

Whereby you too unfold the emotions,
Your emotions, that is,
Hear!
Hear the wind in the pine,
The sad pine on the cliff Half-dried, half-withered Where was the Spring wind That blew, the Autumn wind That cooled and went?
Almost barren the hill’s side lies With tufts of stubble for its population: O! the ravages of Winter! And Just started are: what when completed And Winter bows its way before due Spring?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Whirling

whirling I feel my head
as Van Gogh's night stars and
more:
and I cannot take off my
head
I cannot take off my head

Emmanuel George Cefai
Whirring

Whirring
Whirring
I
heard
The Soft Bee Fly
And Silent Shy
Go
By An Insect Civilized
Whirring

Emmanuel George Cefai
Whispering Leaves

whispering leaves
trembling yellow Monuments of the Sere trumpets of shrill and clamorous rustling clanging of steel passage of armies beauty in a street crown of fevers
a sweeping of snow thin yet dripping dripping down the trees tower of iron cast and of red minarets palace of mosques river of royal naming torches and flames nocturnal to the subconscious
funereal:
whispering leaves
whispering
whispering

Emmanuel George Cefai
Whispering Sound

The wind
It turns around Fast whispering sound

The waters in the rains
They come
And drench
Then cease.

The gutters and the kerb
They sing a sad song Sung once by a owl Nocturnal wise.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Whispers

In the château garden
The white marble statues
Whisper
Sitting white-grey Against the partial dark Cloth.

The palace not large Imposes its style
And silence.

Fountains remain neutral Between silence and Whispering:
So
Their silence be not deep But shallow as their waters.

From behind statue to statue Figures grey yet
Rare
Run in the distance Between statue and white statue

All the same
The fountain waters rise and Fall mechanical:
Even at night
Even as of night

Emmanuel George Cefai
Whistler Of Winds

Whistler of winds
Of Zephyr competitor
And Yet boon most of friends:

You Find in the Spring whistling At night to ghosts and Shrouds and rattling skeletons
In cemeteries:
Amidst the yews around
You find him there.

And
In the chill of winter
He
Attaches himself since olden
Centuries
To buildings
Dreaming houses Sleeping breath and The in-turmoil of sub-conscious reigns

Emmanuel George Cefai
Whistling In Life

Whistling
In Life
Yet Thinking

Thinking.

I will to Have more time For standing
Face
Up
To
The Heavens Thinking
Just Thinking.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Whistling Train

whistling train

the tunnel lights dimly but remains dark

at the extremes of the tunnel bursts light
outside

Emmanuel George Cefai
White Bearded Shroud

White bearded shroud that Hides
Almost completely beard in Shroud of brown
Now all be dark and Odorous of night
And of the chants-laments Of spirits hollow-eyed.
Ola!
Ola!

Emmanuel George Cefai
White Dog

White dog large and Waving its Tail Rarely
But when it waves
It throws it heart out
More than its tongue:

White dog
I too as you Throw and threw My heart out more than My tongue:
What thanks received I?

Ay! In your world of Dogdom
Your action means Means more Gets more White dog large
And Waving the tail Rarely
rarely

Emmanuel George Cefai
White Faith

Soldier column of the white Faith

Thoughts white, thoughts slow Thoughts of suffering

The haunted anvil in the Well of the monastery Struck rare at night
Last night
But struck

And a monk errant by Deep midnight
Saw a lightning
Of red
With white days

Then the dawn
The trees were still
And
Rustled not of winds Nor sung benighted
The nightingale

Emmanuel George Cefai
White Freshness

White Freshness Limbs
That Uncovered Glimmer
White Flower
With Beauty's
Pride and mischievous smiles:
Ah! so the Earth wish I After a new restart of the
Dawn
But ah! as the day goes Deeper and Deeper in
I sigh! The more I sigh!

Emmanuel George Cefai
White Lily Of The New-Cladding Fields

White lily of new-cladding fields
I must deliver and reproduce
The gas cloud wherein my seed lie Now lies impatient in its universe Frosty and frozen in its energy
The gas cloud lies still and lonely

Soon, too soon Must I the gas-cloud warm
And then
The seeds will maddened move and fly Without a rest Till that They clear their conscience: now they feel The guilt of being lazy and of not Having their duty till as yet.

But then
But then
The frigid gas-cloud melts in the friendly warmth Of the waves of southern winds of heat In this new summer ushered in While winter frost knocks at the pane
And here
And here
The gas-cloud of the seeds in this warm room Becomes a universe of life and now
They clear their conscience: now they feel
The pride and happiness
Of having done their duty.

Emmanuel George Cefai
White Of Dawn

the white of Dawn - the red of dusk - mix you will have Soul and Heavens
You will blood
drop after drop up the cemetery roads of groans and creaking:
mix
mix humble grave-diggers throw up the soil and
earth
the frozen crystals of broken hearts and wild despairs
my Monsignor
too

Emmanuel George Cefai
White Snail

In the world of
The Sub-Conscious
A snail that White glistened
Trembled
And
With every Trembling
There was vibration
And since night it was Vibrated the white stars
On the jazz floors of heaven Ah! color new Towards new civilization!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Whither Do You Go Lone Star That Strays

Whither do you go lone star that strays
From your path towards the arch
Of dark that surrounds you?

Why stray you from the company of peers
And kin of stars this night that so Serene looks over the earthly scene?

You will not speak; you will not tell;
But give me the key to your heart
That I may know. I will not tell.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Whither? Whither?
Whither? Whither?
Whither are they going Into the dark night?
With hooded cloaks
In black bedecked
And shining flames of red?

Why, why they pass Through the thin alley That winding leads To the seashore?

Why not a word they speak?
Why do with furtive glance
They look each other?
Why in procession
With solemn steps they fend?

Why do I seem to hear Gregorian chants this night Quick wafted on the wind
From where they come With hooded clothes
In black bedecked
And shining flames of red?

Ah! In the past
These figures seem to go:
And yet in present move
And methinks that I see Another night, another troop Like this dark night
With hooded clothes
And black bedecked
And shining flames of red
A hundred years from hence.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Who Shall Remove The Snows

Who shall remove the snows but the Sun?

The snows have gathered day by day
And through all the winter

Though in to the close of the winter
The snow-falling got deeper and More piqued

Who shall remove what has gathered for Months?

Will be months to remove what has gathered
For months?

Aha! Said the Sun and at the door of the Spring

The Sun suddenly waxed angry and red in The face

Induced Dutch courage induced heating up Of the Sun

And in a single morn it determined The Sun blew to mountains of liquid that Melted
The mountains of snow piled one on the
One
The mountains of snow that had gathered
For months
That piled one on another the snows had for months

Emmanuel George Cefai
Who Will Note

Who will note
When butterflies lie down and fall
And do not move?

Who has caught the glow-worms of the night That most elusive be?

Who has touched
The snowy peaks of mounts Jutting their fingers to heaven?

Who has touched
The clouds that soar a mile Above blue Everest?

And who will notice
When the stars start falling down and down Down Saint Anne’s Way directionless?

Who has seen heaven weep
And felt the scars on its face
And tears trickling, trickling warm?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Who Will Sit When Bound To Lose?

Who will sit when bound to lose?

The Fates in sleep and dream have whispered.

My cruel destiny now
I carry in my Soul.

They passed and called me
'Come, compete we're going
there.'

I replied not and hung my head.

They continued laughing and jeering
even.

For
who will sit when bound
to lose?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Who Will Write The Obituary Of This Winter Hoar?

Who will write the obituary of this Winter hoar?

Let the Spring do it.

It has a pen of gold wrought from A sheath of gold corn and transformed As mists transform
From the fields where Circe Used to roam just by her cave Over Calypso.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Whole Night

In the whole night
the whole time romantic night lamps black shine in the street of an ancient town.

Bridge of wood Ancient wood Carved centuries gone Yearning with sighs
Of lovers and of ghosts.

Strait alleys House to opposite House
Whispering.

the steps alight
as it were day without the obfuscating heat

but ah! romantic more in nights of thunderstorms and tempests and of rains glittering on the white lighted steps:
then will the soul of old Valletta roam and speak:
'My days that were past are Now these'

Emmanuel George Cefai
Why Do I See A Light

Why do I see a light Burn silent and austere
In that small dark room Where magic rites and dark
They say occur at night
Where happenings strange and dark
They say occur at night?

Why does the light burn bright Into the solitary hours of the night And fade away
With birth of dawn and day:
In that small dark room
Where happenings strange and dark
They say occur at night?

Aye! Happenings strange and dark
In that dark room occur they say:
Away from light of day:
Fleeing into the dark night
And I would like to know and see What happens as they say:
But then should I leave you
To flee and go away?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Why Do You Not Write?

Why do you not write?

My heart spoke broken in so few words.

And no reply
Made my heart more broken

Emmanuel George Cefai
Why Earth?

Why in our Earth
There be
Who suffers
As much as me?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Why Storms Like So The Night?

I
Poet Seer will not say But feel
That storms like beauty
And beauty the storms
Both
Be the paramours of Night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Why? Why Not Go To Sleep?

Why? Why not go to sleep?
We worked so many years
And all the years and yet Lower and lower in the deep.

The twilights are on us.
The reign of Sadness is The reign of us.
We walk as ghosts, already.

That is desolation.
Yet that is consolation:
Remember: we have had Failure after failure after failure.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wide And Blinding

In the waters

Wide and blinding

A figure floats

And it be black

And it be unmoving

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wide Chest Beauty Fluttering

Wide chest beauty fluttering Violet of the abandoned woods Abandoned on an abandoned knoll.

So pretty in your tiny isolation:
So inviting, so wanton make me Grow, and then to love you.

And I will watch over you,
When the night chill arrives
And dark turns the heaven’s former blue.

Emmanuel George Cefai Wide Gap Of Light

Wide Gap
Of Light Dazzled
Eyes Stunned
And Stunned

Waters
Of Gliding
Nights
And War-like
Mists

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wide Open Lanes

Wide open lanes
Full
Of galactic dust

Milk drops that Massified Half way their Voyage

Below on Earth Fairies and nymphs of
Night
Consorting with goblins
Wild.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wide Smiling Sun

Wide smiling sun
You know the Spring is here
You know you have to smile
And Spring is King
You obey – cunning, cunning Sun!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wider Than Realms Higher - Poet Seer

Wider than realms higher by far in intellect and its worth
into the clouds Minerva called unto her the bent aged Poet Seer: looked up the Earth in awe no clarion calls trumpeted yet the verses of the Poet Seer into the background with a hundred tunes ringing were heard in a soft undertone.
Come, come, you satyrs you, bacchanalians of the ivied heads
come.
Nymphs of woods and streams, and Sileni, fauns and dryads, goblins green and mischievous.
Come.
Come.
From your tired nocturnal eyes as with a wand Minerva tears off the sleep and waking full and strong her Poet Seer to honor.
He heeds not much the honors nor wills nor gloats nor wants.
Yet
Still they honor him from cloud to cloud:
and festive season hold and court
for wider than realms higher by far
in intellect and its worth
into the clouds Minerva called
unto her the bent aged Poet Seer

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wild

Wild was the shriek of the

that night
the stars were in

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wild Cat?

Your heart tires
You say Forgot
When told me
'I am a wild cat'?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wild Night Birds

Wild night birds
Fluttered on the skies
Tonight

The heavens immense Stunned
In the background
Stared

Ah! we too
We humans
In our intervals Stare Stare Stunned
In our very background

Emmanuel George Cefai

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wild Thyme Of Bearded Hogs

Wild thyme of bearded hogs
A muscled ox
With a violin between the teeth Ten hedgehogs playing out An orchestra

Ah! the lines and verses Are scarce
Today
A day of parching heat Thirst
Hunger

Hiding
Behind the curtain of a day
In the high heavens
Afternoon and sunset and dusk Wait

Emmanuel George Cefai Wiles

no longer you call me frenetic
a woman's wiles?
your resignation?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Man of duty, for we to our country duty have to render it brave and grave
and great.

You did your duty, you knew your duty, and you did duty well.

Now the verse remains, open the book, read and
feel.

And that be you; to feel, to be, to be, to feel.

And in that phenomenon to all of us common, there issue the wonders from your homely verse, and great lines.

Your heart looks greater, your brain no less, but more than these the throbbing of the pulse Brave Ireland-Eire, brave Yeats, green land of beauty in the small, amidst the vast and greater in this Earth

Emmanuel George Cefai
Willows That Groan

Of willows that groan
Of streams that gargle
Verse
Of Ides that roam from March
Sing
Poet Seer who woke before the Dawn
That you May watch her rise and Speak to her.

Life
Be Jumping Hearts
Be Throbbing
Blood Pulsating

Yesterday
The nightingale sang
And sang
'I smell of blood'

Hedgehogs were roaming
Yesterday
One held a phonogram
The other sax Another trumpet
Sang
Another violin.
Played.

Throughout
The grasses and Bushes
There was nocturnal rustling
Yesterday
In Hastings Gardens.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wind

What wind, what wind
That neighed an hour
Ago?

That wind was slow.
That wind was sad.
That wind was a hammer.

Zephyr let off the wind
From his bags of winds Numerous.
And he gave not a name
To the sad wind

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wind Blows On A Turrent High

on a turret high
over the wind blows
to-night it came abrupt in the morn as abrupt will go
at Dawn

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wind Is In The Yard

The wind is in the yard
It plays, goes round,
Makes growling, sound.

Even so
My Soul, my Inner Soul
I feel restless
Going round and round
To find a peace
That transforms more
To a sad restlessness
And sore
Even so
Even so

For
The wind is in the yard
It plays, goes round,
Makes growling, sound.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wind Who Neighs

I am the wind who neighs in chunks

I am the wind who tricked Zephyr to let me loose

I am the wind that in the blizzard rides and chuckles

I am the wind that visits nocturnal caves and coves on land and sea hooting through them echoing re-echoing

I am the word of hope

I am the wind of the dim

I am the wind that rises with the Dawn

I am the wind that settles at red dusk.

I am the wind, the restless wind, I am that wind.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Windmill Street

In Windmill Street
Reflected the old town
The Satyrs put a mirror
And the old town
Swam in it.

In Windmill Street
The waters on the kerb Slippery with forked Tongues
Of bubbles busting Moved along Carrying the dirt
With them.

The drains
Not far away
Sumps of the waters Worked Ceaseless pumps of night
A magic night
And drear

But ah! that was ago Centuries ago

And yet
Yet Still reflected be
The measures of the stars,
The moon, and all,
With awry faces.
All.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Window Pane Was Broken

the window pane was broken in the night it was broken and there was no wind.

ah! the machine of life works like that too:
so its disgregation.

and observing quite and quiet you will see in slow motion the mechanics of sweet disgregation.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Windows Clank

I
Hear
The windows
Clank
I feel
The winds want
To come in
But are clipped off Assailants of the Bastions

Emmanuel George Cefai
Windows Peeped

Emmanuel George Cefai Windows That Are Eyes

the soul
the whispers
the whispering in it the whispering of it the windows that are eyes the casements open on the Earth's new dawn

more light more the eyes open
and
we
we need open eyes
the more
open eyes.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Winds And Air Weep

The winds and air
They
Weep
Approaches time:
My mother
My mother!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Winds Playing Playing Violins

Variations have I.

Bastions I heard speak.

I heard the trees whisper
In Hastings Gardens.

I hear the winds playing Playing violins
Now in the evening
Not
In the distance

I go to my roof erect Below the early moon Singing my verses.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wine Of Delight

Wine
Of Delight
Sparkling in night

Wine the eyes of
Night

And myriad of stars
Starlight.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wine Of Life

The wine of life
We drank
But that was long ago.

Long, long ago.

We smacked our lips
Of red
For deep red the wine Tasted
Of chill passing centuries.

Now in the goblets
The hot wines no longer Pour.

Nor rises song
Amidst silences of night
No, nor verse
Nor of night's beauties the throng:
For
The wine of life we drank
But that was long ago.

Winter brings tempests hoar and frost and ire Amidst the white-frothed waves in tempests loud
And on the bough most distant from the cold
The owl shelters her ruffled feathers from the frost.
The wild loud wind how it churns the lake’s calm And prints its bosom with echoing waves That frenzied leap and go as in a trance:
And when the night its silence deems to wave With its gold scepter lo! The thunder-bolt Of the lightning is heard, the flash, the cold And roars o’er dale and field its sound to town.
Yet this is nothing to the storms that roar Within my breast my lover’s breast all hoar.

Ah! Love, love, love

Emmanuel George Cefai
Winter Rhapsody - I

An hour to midnight.
All asleep in heavy Blankets.

Light thrown out
In all the houses

Shudder
The houses in every waft
Of wind.

Where be the fortitude of the Houses?

The wind neigh round
And round
From mere chance and Probability Violin like and Cyclical.

The rain patters
Indifferently.
It provides the intermittence
In the cycle:
Cycle in intermezzo.

That's Winter's Rhapsody!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Winter-Soul

Round the winter-soul All gathered:
rain brought out pitcher a little snow the brooms birds clustered further in the numbed foliage
dripping
all
all round the winter soul.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wintry Gales

Of wintry gales and of tempestuous seas dream I
Though
Outside the Sun shines summer heat.
And no wind blows.

Both be: one in the dream, the Other in the sight and of Experience Hoard.

And bridge of sighs wooden crooked
That nocturnal sighs and heaves
As does the breast the wooden antiquity.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wipe Off The Sweat

Wipe Off The Sweat
Wipe off the rain
Of thunder of suffering Of ever-chameleon lightning

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wire Of Thought

Wire
Of

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wisdom Does Not Grow On Trees

Wisdom does not grow on trees
But
Grows from suffering.

Wisdom has the propensity to free.

Suffering and liberty Often do not go hand in Hand.

Knowledge comes from Other knowledge

The first knowledge is the Chronologically most ancient
And
Yet the basis of the new.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wisdom Falling

'Wisdom To All' Said The Philosopher

'Wisdom to All' said the Philosopher
'Not the select few'

'This way,' continued he
'avert the Dogmatist'

'And avert Dogma in the ever-continued fresh assertions everyday coming from everywhere
from the All'

Then Wisdom will smile and close its eyes
serene.

Then will wisdom will be to All, of All,
by All.

All This Mortality Must Future Time Reverse

These last months, years have been verses chanted in the shades of drear and cemeteries ageing and tombs and end and ghosts and shrouds and all the world that with these goes.

Yet though I begun to sing of these in my verses
yet
my heart and my spirit
yearn to bring back the old work
to Immortality.

Ah! these last months and years the heart spoke to me but yesterday there missing a thing be
'and that thing was the struggle to Immortality'

Love the World of Ghosts and Shrouds

I love the world of ghosts and shrouds
And made you love it in my chants and songs.

I will arise me
now
to think of different world and different thoughts

Yet that now I have known the world of ghosts and shrouds I love that world so much
of ghosts and shrouds

Every World-Type its Beauty has and History

Every World-Type its beauty and history has for so that there be beauty in all things

For so that there be history of all things.

For so that there be world-types in increase ever-increase and that the bone of Evolution be.
I Yearn to Reverse My Time

I Yearn to reverse my time Go back to four five years
old
and start from there again.

I am the one who says that I have made mistakes.

I am the one who regrets his mistakes.

Shambles of a life, advance in youth that in it had the seed of reverse reverse in middle age and more.

I am the one who therefore yearns
yearns for the misery of life to be overturned to start again with hindsight of this pain.

With tears I wet at night My blanket and silent sigh.

Yearning so goes around me as my life as the snake round its cornered victim as the noose round my ageing neck as the guillotine above my head.

Wish so that life a blackboard was and that one fine day I enter the room Wipe all off and begin again.

Alas! what remains only are the shambles of a dim life and the words of a Scientist, thinker and Poet Seer!
Not more.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wise Owl

Wise owl
That on the bough sings
That circled briefly
In the dusk on hobbling wings Transform me in your Wisdom to yourself
That
I may be an owl and have The privilege and joys of happy nights To rest my Inner Soul
On sleeping boughs:
The privilege and joys of many dawns.

Witch That Scowls

Witch that scowls and Thinks with furrowed Yellow brows.

Witch that trembles
In her few Remaining teeth
As rattling skeletons

The half moon with A vast ice sheet of Cloud
Covers herself:
A white star Devours smoke
From incense of A monastery old
Below
Where barefoot monks
Up to midnight
And Further on
As yet
Chant holy psalms
And verse
And song

Emmanuel George Cefai
Witches With Lank Faces

when witches with lank faces fly when sea waters away from shore spume like in giant waves to heavens soar when hungry faces prowl and vespers be done and houses closed to storm and dark, King Night his scepter wields over the land

And over seas and the Oceans immense there you will find me sad Poet Seer one of the All, and One with All, of All, to All.

Emmanuel George Cefai
With

With Fire in my eyes
The drear I gobbled
I saw
The green goblins Speed
Away Away from their Hiding place
And saw Dawn Frowning
Willing
Her reign to ending.
And the morn still Continued
In the same vein of Cold and drear:
I was a sick Poet Seer.

Emmanuel George Cefai
With A Buckle

With a buckle
On the Soul, the Inner Soul, With a bubble on the boot
Passing
Through everywhere
As thin ghosts do
As thin shadows
As thin shrouds
As a broom Dressed up
Walking
See a walking dress Propped
Walking
Walking
The night in the cemetery

Emmanuel George Cefai
With A Sad Heart Dance I

With a sad heart dance I.

Dance!

So said a Voice above.

I looked at the heavens saw the stars
the moon
and still mantle of oblivious
dark.

I am in the square right in front of the holy cathedral!

Dance! said the Voice again.

Then Heard I the Dantesque tune begin and danced I with the figures wild and masks danced the whole night crawled home at dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
With Bated Breath

With bated breath
Arising
As snows cascading High from high Mountains
Melting
Or as the mists Arising
From vale from sea Coves and caves
From whispering

Emmanuel George Cefai
With Black Ordeal

With black ordeal
The shrouds and ghosts of to-night Covered themselves to be as night
One with the night

Descending step after ancient step With torches burning
The ghosts and shrouds transparent Moved in cluster
In procession:
The torches floated by themselves Upheld.

Drew backwards, linear, proud and Humble simultaneously
The whiff of the torches
Their fire
Their nocturnal pride and self-esteem.

Silent the toes fell on the steps
Silent
Silent
Silent
And yet,
On and on and on they marched Directionless:
For they wanted no direction
But only march and march So willed they,
The shrouds and ghosts, that night.

They somehow went by the black sea
The mirror of the dark heavens That frowned:
Dawn was still away and there Before the outreach of the Dawn
They faded
And so the suspicious eyes of Dawn Evaded:
These ghosts and shrouds, these we Must transform into, at least by trial,
At least one night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
With Drear

With drear emotions bent all cramped
but now with Dawn arisen
and with its risen light emotions open again as flowers of early morn
open.

Emmanuel George Cefai
With Enemies On My Back

With enemies on my back
With enemies on my forehead
I walk the nights
As centuries ago
The lone mysterious knight
Out of Mdina.

Emmanuel George Cefai
With Every Star

With every star that Lighted be Heavens one mark
Gain
And three for night.

A high red steeple tower
Lured Thin and taut into the Heavens
A satin robe as the magic Carpet flew
And magic all around Turned, turned and grew
And
In the night, that night
Smoked incense, witches’ brew.

With every star that Lighted be Heavens one mark
Gain
And three for night.

Emmanuel George Cefai
With Feelers On The Head

With feelers on the head
Go I
Through the fields
Of night
Through
The roads of dust Whitened by the Moon
Go I.

With head Hung down
And up
With tears
At the heavens Alternately
Go I.

Lone shepherd that shepherd be
Not
And wants not sheep:
Yet Round about him
The bleats of the Spirits Drawl
As sheep around, around Into that nocturnal desert
Without sound.

Lone solitary man!
Solitary pilgrim
Bent
And aged
And broken down
Yet free
Yet free
When will
The nights be nights
Of sound
The waters gurgled
Loud
Not silent?
The cemeteries not Filled with sound
Except in ghost processions round?

With feelers on the head
Go I
Through the fields
Of night
Through
The roads of dust Whitened by the Moon
Go I.

Emmanuel George Cefai
With Glass In Hand

With glass in hand
the skeleton stood the Skeleton of the Hollow Eyes and the skeleton was human

Emmanuel George Cefai
With Glass In Hand 2

With glass in hand
they raised the glass
raised so many times the glass
the Skeletons

How rattled the glasses as they each other touched the sound was as the sound of violins

yet
as yet
silent and without word the Skeletons were though their teeth (that remained) grinned
and their jaws opened

and in their hand
the glasses shone and twinkled

with glass in hand
they raised the glass
raised
so many times the glass
the Skeletons

Emmanuel George Cefai
With Hands Up To The Heavens

We
We Ascended the Sacred Mount
Of snow-capped heights
The other mount below
How hideous high the peaks
And
In the trammels of the fleece
Of clouds
Loaded with frozen icicles
There was a freedom that lower Earth has yet to learn
There was a freedom that was
Of the Earth, due,
But not in the Earth,
The Earth below.

Emmanuel George Cefai
With His Red Prong

With his red prong
and giant legs taller than hills stood he in the frosty waters
the Sub-Conscious He
the Man of the Sub-Conscious strong and raw the plastic arts he willed in the image of himself
then said
'Lo! things are for they are of me, as me.'
Laughed a small humble
hill.
He turned, found not.
And
then he laid him on the shore
where snore after snore frightened the face of fauns satyrs and nymphs that popped up stealthily and as Dawn approached
went away as stealthily

Emmanuel George Cefai
With Is Finger

With is finger Night traced
A sign

A sign on the face
Of the heavens

A tear fell
The stars
Were near

Emmanuel George Cefai
With Ivy Wands On Our Heads

With ivy wands on our heads
We this night will celebrate Under the horns of Bacchus We that dwell in Sicily the fair isle!

And as the lava falls down Aetna’s side
So let the wine fall down oesophagus And feel the sweet burning falling Falling slowly

Emmanuel George Cefai
With Me

the ghosts they wake you see
my Monsignor
I took you with me
please stay behind
in the dark my figure spare and small will hide you.

You will see what Poet Seers will see with their own eyes so many, many nights!

at least
feel the Soul, the Inner Soul, its chains melting one by one without a violence and without arrogance and you will hear chains clank
on the ground
as spirits, souls and ghosts
and shrouds
barefoot the frosty night on the cemetery stones and ways they tread

Emmanuel George Cefai
With Septic Hands Washed With Septic Medicine

With septic hands washed with septic medicine
the Poet Seer stirred

And he sung scenting of septic medicine

Though the notes scented sweet, he scented medicine

Emmanuel George Cefai
With sweat from my head
I roamed
I foamed
As the wild boar
As the thunderous ox
As the roar of the lightning
As the Voice of the heavens With courage of Bastion walls
And the tidiness of precision.

Little Groans Burst
From My Mouths
Bubbles
Of Blood
And Water

To-night I will be better Albeit by little
Than the past night.
I will.
I will.

Emmanuel George Cefai
With The Fires In Deep Of The Snows

With the fires in Deep of the snows
That thaw so Do not melt Ice-blocks crystalline
Where the intensity of white Hides the blocks
The hoar locks
And
Of frost the arched shrine Burning fires of cold Wrath in the limbs
Even of Prometheus
Bearded white and long-beard Trudging in snow
Now sinking a little Rising always
For Age has not Vanquished the fire.

Emmanuel George Cefai
With the grip of drear
now
adds the grip of cold completing with me
thus a story yet not fully told.

Emmanuel George Cefai
With You

With you
With you I will climb
By slow uneasy steps
The sides of snows
The side of the Mountain of the Blessed Pines
This we will climb
And
Time will bring us sacrifice
Time will bring us pain
Time will bring us sacrifice
With you
I will climb
Reach the heights
With beating breath
With bated breath
With snow furred eyes Icicles
That drop from my hair
But I will climb
I will to reach
And there
In to the small plateau
That
On the top of those heights Giddying
Will rest I:
with the halo of sudden Greatness splashed on my wall
I will climb
I will climb.

Emmanuel George Cefai
With You  I Will Usurp

With you
I will usurp
The heights of the snow
Mountains:
With you
I will sweep with broom Of witches
The gelid particles
The genesis of night-dews
The petals of manna
That fall from the heavens
When the night installs Itself as sovereign
All these
With you
With you only
I will usurp.
When the time comes.
When the owls hoot.

Emmanuel George Cefai
With You I Climb Beyond

With you
With you I climb beyond
The icicles blue and changing Colors
The icicles that hang Insecure willing not to fall
Yet
All in peril of a dangerous one
I saw.
I hopped from one side to the Other side. The Street or country lane was Dusty and dread-murky Grinned.
I liked not.
My lips I pursed.
And I kept with bent head Just trudging
Trudging.
With bent head.

Emmanuel George Cefai
With You In The Anemic Cab

With you
With you
In the anemic cab
I rode
Through Old Valletta

Emmanuel George Cefai
With Your Eyes Only You Enkindle

my heart so, bring the end of might in it, and shines the Inner Soul with the smile of a new Dawn in it!

Emmanuel George Cefai
With Your Iron Hand

With your iron hand you hurt me with your toxic breath you freeze me with your punishments
you numb me:
now
what remains is that we transpose into another region of the Earth where at our age we begin again
that's where you forced
us:
your scepter hurts
to us we came to seek some kindness and comfort:
found these icicles in the cavern of your reign:
and iron hand

Emmanuel George Cefai
Within My Ears

Within my ears
Constant Repeated
The sounds of the sub-conscious
The whispering
The half-conspiring

Glaciers were melting Others were Hardening
As snow
On mountain-peak of Blue
In Patagonia.

Sparse in the snows
With eaves dripping
And chimneys smoking Doors full closed Assaulted by the wind
A few sparse houses
Of the conscious suffering
Inside
The house walls treble
Dreams
Sleep the sub-conscious

Emmanuel George Cefai
Woes Sufferings

Days of drear added to Woes Sufferings
Their ilk
Easter has not come
As yet.

Trees bend Graves frozen Seas crystalline
And paralyzed
Not a whiff of wind Even the tree-leaves Sleep the sleep
Of the sub-conscious gold

All stopped
All paralyzed
As in a photo:
All

But then as dawn crept
By
I heard a Voice from Inside and I Spoke with it
As my eyes to consciousness
Opened
'Lo! I am risen! '

And
As time goes To rise I will continue Echoed Soul, the Inner Soul
And
Then I will cast drear for Above it Writ in gold and red
'I will arise, I will arise'

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wolves

Wolves from the Heavens high From high they Came Direction: Heaven

Emmanuel George Cefai
Woman

'woman
you are a machine and reproduce the most valueable commodity' shall we scoff at this and rend our robes?

for women are propense to noblest of noble when they will

that is the materialist, the romantic, the realist?

but we men, certainly need with us all these machines.

and all men are gems, whatever, whenever.

the Individual shines so many times in men.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Woman Of The Wrinkled Brows

woman
of the wrinkled brows perplexed
confused
dark complexion and dark looks

looking round looking round
the woman furtive
moved.

in the dark disappeared she pursed her lips.
had furrowed brows
dark looks.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Womb

Womb
Where centuries
Gyrate:
Heavenly music
Above
Discordant notes Separate:
Inner Soul of music
Full Inner Soul sleeping
Wise owl of dreaming.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Womb Of Desperation

Womb of desperation
Stretching Over whole
Countries and continents
To-night
So many children slept Hungry and in the mud
Of life and humiliation Knowing
What desperation bitter Means
The first of times
The heart
Hardening
With the day's fading
And
Advent of the night
Womb of desperation

Emmanuel George Cefai
Womb Of The Heavens

Womb of the heavens
That opens your sweet Mouth
Yet
With no curvatures save minimal Such as
Curvatures of the heavens immense Womb of the heavens

Emmanuel George Cefai
Womb Of The Nocturnal

Open the womb of the nocturnal
Heavens
Will you have Dawn?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Women Of Hunger

Women of hunger
On their heads Cool pitchers Carrying:

Night closes in.
A lost eagle Rushes through
A posse of bats.

Animals stood up Questioned their destiny Clouds came with pen
As witnesses.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wonder In The Night

There's Wonder
In The Night!
There's Haunting
In The Night
A Horse With Mane High Saw I Speeding And When
With Its Beauty Accosted Alas! He Sped Into The Clutches Of A Fading Dark!
Alas For Beauty sinewed!
Wonders

Mantle
Of Sand Small Remaining Grains
That
Yet Remain

The Storm
Was Heavy
And
The Gales
Were Pinching

See
See
The Flag
That
In
The Quiet Noon
Now Fights
The
Hordes of Zephyr's armies.

Wonders
The Flag Bends
Its Head.

Cunning Glow-worm
That Declared neutrality Cunning
Cunning

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wood That Burns

I am the wood that burns crackling
at dusk

I am the fire dropped from fierce night stars

I am the excess dropped from reference frames

I make way for the serene being troublesome

I am the caves that Time chooses as
wombs

I am the seas the waves the Oceans

I am tragedy after tragedy of the
centuries

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wooden Bridge

When the wooden bridge was Creaking
The winds were coming up from The port
Climbing up the bastions Winning the resistance of warm facades Of houses and palaces With flushed faces
This is Valletta...

Oaks in the garden creaking
The wind missile through Their bows
Was busy all
The night.
Then at the Dawn it stayed

We
We of the grim haggard
Faces
Are not cheered by the Dawn
We come from night
And dark
And howling winds
Those be our places....

Emmanuel George Cefai
Woods Cry Out

The woods cry out
Tonight
For the seas roar
And Oceans roll
The pebbles rattle
And
The wind neighs
The trees streets and The homes that dream.
All be in orchestra
This fairy night
All through the streets Of the small hamlet by The sea enchantment speeds:
And haunting are the songs
Of nightingales.
For
The woods cry out
Tonight
For the seas roar
And Oceans roll
The pebbles rattle
And
The wind neighs

Emmanuel George Cefai
Woods That Weep With Rain; The Winds

Have neighed to-night since sunset
And before:
But grew in intensity after red dusk Departed to make way for the cold Night:
The woods, the boughs, the trees,
Move, shake, tremble: the houses
As if with earth quake move Faces turn pale inside; rain patters Thunder roars loud and raw; it Will not dissemble
We assert that from long ago.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Woods, thickets high, morning and nights
dawn and dusks
the friendly animals of the country
rides
the winter chill, the frost, rain neighing winds and stubble bending here on the hill in the rain drizzles in the late of noon:
these, these,
both the Conscious and the Sub-Conscious join into one family one commonwealth and one unity and our verses must this commonalty reflect and chant:
we repeat, we turn again
to what before we said, we arrange little or arrange not at all:
but ah! this be the human to which he be condemned the hands of Infinity though ever-expanding Infinity remain and so human civilization

Emmanuel George Cefai
Word After Word

Word after word
With every word
Speaking a chapter
So word after word
Chapter after chapter Resultant.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Words Asserted

Words asserted, verse, song, thought, what?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Words Leap

Words leap Words dance Words skip
Where our brain fail Word will often blaze a trail.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Words Of The Poet Seer

The words of the Poet Seer Ah! they floated high Over the clouds
They soared.

Into the kingdom of eagles Rose they
And beyond went.

That power is of all of us!
Only I suffer that I rise
So high.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Words Of Wisdom

Hear, my Monsignor, the words Of wisdom.

Be honored to hear in your ears
The whisperings of wisdom
Ever

Know that History wills to Teach us wisdom at our expenses
So that we learn.
Remember, my Monsignor
Remember.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Words Were In The Heavens Writ.

Words
Were in the heavens writ.

Poet-Seers saw them
And
Saw them writ in red.

And
The waters reflected red

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wore Away The Enthusiasm

Wore away the enthusiasm
That was first,
Before.

Saw the flower, realized
Her dreams were falling:
Before Age's cruel calling.

And pined the abandoned Flower in youth at dusk
And in to night's despair

Emmanuel George Cefai
Work I

Every day
Every hour
Work I

If compensated even miserably Have I not secured
A shelter from oblivion Old at least?

My vessel sails unmanned
The streets are wet
With gales and waters
Of a tempest stand.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Works, Assertions, Principles

Works, assertions, Principles, the chain of words, chapters, verses, lines together
by chance and probability some day some time will in the hands of humans fall appreciating humans:
if not so
then Justice from the heavens should remove!

Emmanuel George Cefai World Wars

as in the World Wars time spent in destruction
alas! what pity!
yet
even in that lost time of all there was a little either saved or earned
or both.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Worms That Came To Hears From A Distance.

Worms that came to hears from a distance.

Here you hide in the soft grasses bathed by the dews of the night.

And frozen into beauty by the day.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Worms That Rise From Dews

Worms that rise from dews
Of night
That fall in the star light That revel on magic nights
That drink up wanton sights
One after one since The red dusk faded to night

The waters are benighted
The waters are in spell
The waters Ocean-flow
And rings the Gothic bell!
Peal after peal, the night
The air, the stars, the light!

The airy sexton brother to A ghost from the bent Host of ghosts and shrouds:
This airy sexton airy Swims in the nocturnal spell Where rings the Gothic bell Where beats the heart with fear Where eyes will cry with no tear
The airy magic scent
And music notes weird and bent.

O verse one by one alike
To drop after drop that fall Into the pail
What was part full now
Full:
And in the air floats
Of ghosts and shrouds
The wail
And magic with the mist
An airy sexton kissed.
Ah! nights like these all Nights should be!
And let forget all
The power and the wealth
The towns, buildings and stocks
And all their brood as well:
What count are nights like this When the red dusk is fled And heaven’s veins are bled
Ah! nights like these all Nights should be!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Would That I Be Now

Would that I be now
In Hastings Gardens amidst the tall, tall trees: Silhouetting in the dark, unseen, unheard Their rustling matched by the sea swishing:
Like two lovers they, they speak together
And in language that they know, not I.

Would that I understand.
Perhaps indeed they speak amidst themselves
The laws of the mass universe
The laws of life of immortality of ens

Perhaps Perhaps
More down-to-earth they speak full lover’s words Or else make lover’s oaths: the night
The sovereign witness to their plighted love.

And still
The trees rustle gently as they did for years And the seas as they did for centuries Laving the shores of earth full long Before this city rose, before within its walls It inbuilt the warm hearths that give the warmth Of life to us, its citizens.

And still
The trees rustle gently like a twilight lover
And the sea seems to serenade its love Its white waves lap the night-draped shores.

The bastions dream, the bastions giddying dream.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Would That It Be Dies Irae, Dies Illa!

Would that it be dies irae, dies illa!
Then we humans will look
Up at the clock of civilization
Stop the hands
The ticking
At least temporarily.

We will learn from the drear
The bleak
The thunder rain and storms
The overflowing rivers
The brimming Oceans.

Tsunami of hate, envy, and dark That moves python-like across The Earth that has become Polluted as ancient Styx:
Would that it be dies irae, dies illa!
Then we humans will look
Up at the clock of civilization
Stop the hands
The ticking
At least temporarily.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wounded

Wounded
In
The Head
The Snake
Of Beauty Reeled Glide Rapid
Through
The green
Of Grass Snake
That Drops
Blood Drops
As
It Glides
The Belly Screeches
But
The Sound
Be Silent
The Stars Looked Surprised
And Stern
Below
Them
Look Watched
The Drops
Of Blood Glittering Glimmering
As the sea waters
And the lakes
By the snow mountains towns and villages
Nocturnal
Glimmering
Of Quiet Cavern
Airy
Of Shades
And Ghosts
And Rattling Skeletons
Night
Of The sward
Where Helmet on The soldier
In Armor
Passed
And Passed
And Walked Faceless
Of Iron Faceless
In
The Iron Wealth Of Solitude And Silence That’s the night That was Last night yesterday

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wounded Be Red

Though
Wounded be red
Then
What my destiny
What barren be?
What extinct?
What motion irreversible
Towards
The rock of extinction?

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wrath Of The Heavens

Wrath of the heavens Subdued
And in the mouth
Of the red dusk Choking.

We will go on.
We will go on.
We will go on.

Life and Master Time
Are hurdles hard
To skip and leap:
And
They be inevitable.

The days come and
The days fade too
The dawns come
Then the red of dusk
Is cancelled
Again
In an inter-regnum Before dusk.

O let me live!
Life is to be lived
Some suffering
In the leeway
But not the Quintessence
Of suffering all time.

Let life be lived
Not suffered all Joy must never be A ban.

So
We will go on.
We will go on.
We will go on.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Writing On The Wall

Writing on the wall
continuous writing,
writing
the walls burning the walls heated
red as torches.

o! the night
all the castle walls burn bright!
and
here and there
there be shadows giant grey that in them
the thrills of night in pregnancy in them bear.

writing
writing
writing on the wall
continuous writing,
writing
the walls burning
the walls heated
red as torches.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wry Lips

I saw a wry lips
and it was weary somewhat
of verse and song:
but ah!
when the night-lights in the romantic lamp-lights
lit
the Soul, the Inner Soul
inflamed again and came back that fire of noble Prometheus

Emmanuel George Cefai
Wry Smile

The waters wore A wry smile
Today
A sardonic pursing
Of the lips.

Smoke broke out
In the wood of thought
The wires of thought Melted in disconnection.

Savage and proud
He went up the stairs
He said
‘Come what may!’
The night is shining
Pulsating
The stars wander by.
Heart-broken

Emmanuel George Cefai
Xerophytes Of Silence

Over the plain
The Soul roams
In a transparent veil

Over the plain
The winds are blowing Dust on dust
All churning.

On a high rock
I managed to sit Surrounded by that Ghastly landscape
Plain
And thousand and more Xerophytes:
They prick
The tired Soul,
The nodding head,
Yet half-awake
Conscious and sub conscious Pump
For yet more yearning.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Yawning Face Of Pale

The Dawn
Though
It
Came
Yet Still Drear
All Turned And turned
I
Saw
A Yawning
Face
Of pale
I
Heard
The Creaking
Of
A Groan
I
Was Drear
Even
In
The Dawn
Then.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Yearning

Bridge of yearning
Sighs

Rattling along yet only Night and dark

And the faint neon light Before Dawn.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Years Begin And Years End

Years begin and years end

But the afternoon, sunset dusk night Dawn continue cyclical.

And
In their mirror
Year after year
In this misery on Earth
For me
Too be cyclical.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Yellow Was The Star

Yellow
Was
The Star
That Apart
From
Its Sister
And Brother
Stars
This Night
Made Show
Of Itself
This Night Yellow
Was

Emmanuel George Cefai
Yes, See, See What I Collected?

Yes, see, see what I collected?
I, that sung, so nobly and so bravely, Burst my heart years ago
And now
Trudge with a loss of breath each every day What have I got?
What won?
The verses and the song remain.
And must I stand and fall by them
And what I thought and asserted:
In science, philosophy, and more:
I, that labored so nobly and so bravely:
So far can I say
The rest to the third parties leave.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Yes, You Have Won.

Yes, you have won.
At last.

Time told another of the String of Great misfortunes.

Hire me,
I shouted in the night.
At least
I will not get worse Than that which be already.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Yesterday The Snow Fell

Yesterday the snow
Fell
And
Today
With the rays of sun
The first rays
Melts:
But ah! your heart
Be hard
So hard
To melt!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Yesterday Today Good Friday

The Night Was Silent
Yesterday Today Good Friday Night Wills To Be As Its Previous Sibling: Ah! That's Good Friday!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Yet It Will Be My Home

Let me suffer at that
But then
Let me suffer in my home
See
See
In the dark solemn night
Of passion of suffering Carry the cross Dripping blood from face
And nose
Let me suffer at that
But then
Yet it will be my home.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You

You will send a martyr to the block with just a signature of your quill
You
will send to the block a man
a noble spirit who did you no ill.

Ah! but envy winds snake-like as for long ancient centuries
it did
alas! and so you fell to lick the dust of envy and for blood her lust

You
will send a matyr to the block with just a signature of your quill
You
will send to the block a man
a noble spirit who did you no ill.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You and I
And I and you
We both walk
Here
Hand in hand
And silent
We both await
The deep night
To get thin
The disc of dark
To be overpowered
By the disc of light
That be new Dawn
That be new day

Emmanuel George Cefai
You And I Meet

When you and I will meet we will be two shrouds bent and
humble:
Earth will have been unkind
to us:
yet we will walk the Earth and move hand in hand in low-undertones whispering in mourning garbs sorrowing

Emmanuel George Cefai
You
Are not free; have will Had will
To choose freedom to After conquering in some way Freedom from You had a choice:
You chose descent
And the joys of descent of descent
But
Ran
In the arms of an Earth that has From every tick of time
The sword more than of Damocles Hanging over it:
That is, my friend
-For I shall not call you –
-That is
-What you chose:
-Descent of descent
-With and to tragedy after
-Tragedy
-The while
-A baby you hold in your hands
-And fool! Smile with joy and pride -At the ancestor of victims and the gruel meal
-Of tragedy upon tragedy.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You are not satisfied with The onslaught
That you made?
See my hands are trembling And my skin Renounced
The beauty of its youth
For wrinkling:
And my eyes dim Even in day's light
Weep
Through the night
Before sleep piteous Comes home to nurse
The pain and Suffering of day.
You be not satisfied then?

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Are Not Young

You are not young
You, my Monsignor.

But there is still Some fire.

Let us be taught:
What we have Even minimum
We must light up a fire

It will embrace light
It will embrace desire.

You are not young.
You, my Monsignor.
Yet you must strive Your conscience be at rest
That all, I assert all,
You did
Till the last second.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Are Still Power, Still Move

though energy:
you free are now, cut off from the chains of mass that lead voraciously to glory and to power

now
my mother I better understand for more I concentrate on what power and glory are and where they lead.

I saw a hunter shoot I saw the dun, the smoke

That like that smoke power and glory evaporate.

Energy be freedom:
At the grave and tomb when Immortality weeps her loss and her prey Futile Death thinks has reclaimed: Conservation and Principles conspire together to defeat Death's ferocious ire: Not Immortality that I suspended, that from science came and clinical:
Immortality of mass, and energy both But Immortality of energy prevalent, yes,
Yes,
Mother you live immortal with the other cemetery residents

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Ask: Why Winter?

You ask: Why Winter?
Winter gives warmth to my verse
And as no other season it gives Birth
To beauty in its hoar and horrid wonders In its rattling cold and sundry thunders Its rain that floods woods and vales And hamlets trembling small:
O Winter! Winter!

Emmanuel George Cefai
'You be not one of us,' jeered the Youth
You see Age has slipped by you
And
You did not realize as the rabbit When the turtle passed him by.'

Ah! time! Entering into domains Of Intellect suppressing them;
In the least freezing them:
The round of Time is that.'

Nearby a stream gurgled fresh Out of the summer rocks Beaten by summer sun and Summer heat that sweltered.
'You see Age slipped by you'
'You be not one of us'

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Cannot Be More Wise.

You cannot be more wise.

now you must lie in the manger of the Muse.

The snow will not fall but crystals of thought.

For thought has fallen in love with verse and song.

Civilization looked from a bastion high and smiled.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Cannot Look In To The Stars That Far?

You cannot look in to the stars that far?

You cannot draw the curtain on the years and centuries yet to come?

you cannot?

Here is the night, the cold, the sad fugue.

there is the frost but more serenity.

I cannot choose but to remain tied to the Earth.

I cannot escape the embraces rough of the old dust

The night is cold outside, here cold but not as that.

you cannot look in to the stars that far?

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Discern If You Just Look

The way is there
And
You discern
If you just look:

Thing after thing
You will discover Discovery on discovery
You see
Here and there
The thoughts run with The words unthinking Nor to think willing.

Yet so they do:
In randomness there be Such beauty
To be discovered Dream by dream
For
The way is there
And
You discern
If you just look

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Do Not Speak

You do not speak
you do a speak
No, not even a syllable.

The night walks up the roads of the drear cemetery.

From beneath tombstones and behind monuments
Watch
Watch aghast and suspicious Inner Souls.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Forget

That you are dealing with a broken heart

You forget
That you speak with a suffering all-life

You forget
This face, these hands, this all Be sick and bends unto the grave.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Give Me Courage, Sir

read my verses
and make the other read:
then judge
but read at least mankind, all mankind!

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Have Ever Woken

You have ever woken
Up to now since your first cry - when the white line of the Dawn
the Night's reign supplants and moves.
then Sleep's opiate wand is pale-faced conquered it grows feet to flee faster than the light

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Have To A Soldier Of Love Now

You have to a soldier of Love now
And
Be wanderer in the face of stars
That deck the quiet immense face of Night.
You have, you have
For you must bear, be father,
After years lost,
So many years,
Not more.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Have To Stretch Your Hands

You have To stretch your hands
My Monsignor
The roof of the gilt cavern Where are wandering
Round and round
So high it be
Though
We
We think that with Our bare hands
We touch it

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Must Be Aware

You must be aware
When you tread sacred ground.

You will feel in you
A throbbing a blood-coursing Rarely felt before

And
By you see passing slowly A rattling skeleton of Hollow eyes

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Must Be Stronger That Is More Machiavellian

You must be stronger that is more Machiavellian
To win this political chess in a democracy
Where the incumbent has the upper hand:
And is unashamed to use the upper hand:
You must never hesitate in the circumstances
To use the dirtiest of tricks, one after one,
ever-increase.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Plant A Bomb And You Destroy

You plant a bomb and you destroy
You plant a child and you build.
That’s civilization, our civilization.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Poet Of The Stars

You
You Poet of the Stars
Poet-Seer
How many nights will You look face upwards
Gaze
At the night stars Humble and still Humble and still with tears in your eyes That glisten as foreboders of a
Dawn?

Your mother is not with you.
I know.
I know.
And in that
In that Poet of the Stars
I see mirrored your sad eyes Your glistening eyes of tears Sorrows one on one
In this life’s tragedy.

You need not Dawn.
You wish not Dawn.
But roaring Ocean nocturnal Howling tempests and raking waves And tremor after tremor in the Earth
When ghosts and shrouds arise
And leave their tombs
When Immortality turns back And tempest upon tempest everywhere Block out all Dawns.
There is your place.
There be your pulse.
And
In the silent fall-in of the stars In to the Oceans bleak immense Let me in favor with you descend Then we be two and two be One In those cold regions of the frozen sad Till Earth revolve around a burning Sun.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Reply Not

You reply not But my words
Your heart pierce Make heavier
Your silence relative

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Sang What I Feel Leopardi!

You sang what I feel Leopardi!
To be, to experience, to suffer that what makes the Inner Soul so steeled and at the same time
yet
accustomed to the pain and solitude!

Outside I hear the merry people pass, celebrants of Christmas,
after meals with families,
other humans,
and we,
we sit at tables solitary
and moisten the dry bread we barely eat
with tears!

the bells from churches ring
but every peal is but a peal of pain a dagger in the heart
that weeps
and clutches as a mother her babe to her when both of hunger pine

Though others with more intricacy opened the human Soul with experiment and lore
you
in your suffering naivety opened more doors than them more wide-immense as the wide Oceans roar the Inner Soul under your impress, your feeling glows:
the hammer of feeling if left to
itself
will dig deep wounds but then such deep wound reveal the greatness of the Soul that hurts the offended Individual Sovereign Will the beauty of the suffering.

My hands these verses click on the computer
As you with more aching wrote gleter by letter word by word unfolding the spring of your
suffering:
so I
so I my noble friend and great Poet Seer!

Our souls have met, have in this solitude and pain that haunt me day and night, day and night haunted, in these we be kindred souls we join hands and in that my soul, my Inner Soul and yours some consolation feel though mild.

Time will come my noble friend,
Time will come
That the Earth wake and to our thoughts conjoin herself if it progress must make and be walking on par with evolution free and equal in full liberty:
Then verse and song will flow
As from an ever-deep Artesian well Then will human to human hands unite And send together but a common groan As they their combined strength commingle in the walk of ever-increase that evolution and the mass universe ordain.
That Time my friend, my noble friend, great Poet Seer will your great name increase hundredfold and more and yet your merits not be paid:
That Time will war be peace not because
The humans tired of their wounds but because brains of humans join to ban wars and such ills when they still even without them be so prone to suffering.
Time will come too my august friend when spurred by works - if my works the scythe of oblivion someday avert - of me will own yet Immortality:
but it will also be an Immortality of suffering too, pain and anxiety:
and in that they will call to us and our common thoughts that long, long before you echoed, then that I reading your verses joined to suffering personal and mine deepened so much the great Soul, the great Individual Sovereign Will,
that then in your light and my resolution
will shine resplendent as the Sun from Dawn!

Emmanuel George Cefai
You See

You see
You see
Earth is offended, is in wrath, and rage

Injustices, we humans, other things of us have made it so.

We meddle here and we meddle there Earth patiently suffers in silence Till her glass to the brim Loses her patience.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You see -
said the Poet Seer - I rocketed to Fame = all suddenly - without plan for I made no plan nor wanted a plan
but left as babe Moses was left floating to chance and probability
and see where have arrived me
chance and probability.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You See Next Week

You see next week will be a Week of Tragedies
and I will be just the spectator just Nero watching Rome burn
and fall.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You See, My Man, What We Have Carried Through?

You see, my man, what we have carried through?
Ten years.
Eleven years since coming here.
Now
In thousands of verses, I steer.
I lie successor to all this wealth:
Before me stretches Time, long
A tunnel
Whence I see a dim light, but I calculate that this time
I will not manage To fork all my way to another Ten years, eleven years, this Grouping of time: no, no, no.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You See, Sir, My Monsignor,

You see, Sir, my Monsignor,
There is another martyrdom
That is not as of blood: no Blood is drawn but all the same
The pain and suffering be there and more.
O! let the haloes in anticipation shine
At least I will say:
Martyrdom was mine.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You See, You See

my verses of today are lines that take not off are verses that yet sound yet planes to runway

bound

Emmanuel George Cefai
You See, You See How

You see
You see
How experiment in verse Works
You see
You see, my Monsignor

Emmanuel George Cefai
You See, You See The Arrows Of Time How
You see,
you see the arrows of time how they speed.

one after the other go down
we lose one by one the brains that be the jewels of the earth

you see,
you see the arrows of time how they speed.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Shall Be

You shall be of water
You shall be of sun
You shall wear a star
You shall touch the moon

You see, you, my friend when in the sub-conscious what the human will do,
will be?

you shall be as of fire you shall be tired but slake your thirst in waters, go up again and walk, then run.

you will find strength again you will find verse again you will find life again and you will sing and chant.

and you will the waters pass by surrounded by the Old Towns the quiet turf, the happy cries of children innocent.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Silence Me

You silence me
It be easy now!

The heart be broken
And
The chains are cut!

The blood has seeped
Through
And the head be cut!

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Sleep Mighty Judge

You sleep mighty judge
On a feathery bed.

And mighty judge
I am a puppet in your hands.

I the Poet Seer, the Philosopher,
The Scientist, a puppet.

And I am not mighty
And I know I can be poor from rich.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Slept Alone, You Slept Alone My Poet Seer?

You slept alone, you slept alone my Poet Seer?

Abandoned or semi-abandoned you roamed Earth, suffering and sorrowing.

then you were seeing Oceans that few see, then you were singing heavens that few look to.

And in that sleep began the dance of end the breath was slow, the Earth to her drew you invisible

Her embrace you felt to the dust, though in that invisibility no dust saw or felt or spoke there was a pact?

No, no, here on Earth chance and probability reign, reign so.

You slept alone, you slept alone, my Poet Seer?

Emmanuel George Cefai
You So Often Speak Of Night

You
So often
Speak
Of Night
Of Dusk
Of Pain
Of Suffering
Of Dawn
Of Pining
Of Fading
Of Rattling Skeletons
Of Ghosts
Of Shrouds
Of Shadows Marching
In
The Cemeteries
You
So Often Speak
Of
these:
And
He
Then Stopped
And Bent
His Head
And Spoke
Not
For
He Saw
That
There
Was Beauty
There
Was Minerva
At Him
Frowning

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Spoke My Heart

You Spoke my heart Touched
Chords that pained
Me
Did so Recklessly Chance and Probability
No calculation!

Open hearts
These
Be universes
While
Breath we there
And
As long
Open the hearts!

After
They will open At their full Will All Sovereign!

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Tell Me I Am Grim

You tell me I am grim
My friend:
You be precise
You read my Soul
Well in my verse Drink and taste the waters
Of its well, the well
Of the Inner Soul.

On earth
How cannot one be grim
You have to be propense
To be a rascal or a fool
Not to be grim.
Here
Here on Earth.

And
I think that as me you Have so many a preference In common:
No wonder
For the gentleman and the noble
in you Shines distinct, very distinct Through the rest, throughout.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Tell Me To Repeat – That I

You tell me I repeat—that I Mention the sun, the moon, the dawn,
The night, the dark, the light, the stars,
The trees, and birds and green,
The heat, the frost, the pain, the happiness,
And mention them a hundred times and more:
You are right -- but do not be sarcastic
These are my lungs my breath my air:
And the emotions of everyone one of us.

So let me be excused in repeating them.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You That In The Night

o you that in the night
last night
walked with closed eyes went to the edge of the old ancient bastions
then hearing the rustling might of the sea-waves you opened your eyes
conscious you saw the waves
the edge
the wall of the bastions
and you drew back.

Come out, you sleepers, there is one who is alone there is one who needs help there's only dark and night with stars and moon
now
dawn sleeps far off hidden

Emmanuel George Cefai
You That These Verses Read

You
That these verses read Must think Must dream
Of beauty and of Beauty's things:
Awhile
Philosophy its nostrils breathes
In the newly furnished oxygen
In the newly furnished oxygen Philosophers with furrowed heads Brows
And togas white
The pavements rustling
By the academic gardens
Discussing
Whispering
Gesturing
Sometimes
At the heavens looking Then suddenly down
From their Statue-like stopping A frozen photo
And
Frozen flash
They go
They go
Their heads more
Serene
Their eyes glistening
At a nearby solution.
Chorus of the Garden
That the long day Slept and Dreamt
Profusely
Now Awakens with
The first star in the skies
The first morn since the love
The first
The first
Dame Owl hops
Down from her bough
Nocturnal
Where she dozed
In the last half of night
And
In the first half Wrought philosophy on Philosophy
Silent Speaking not Occasionally
Laughing subdued Hearing and not Disturbing
The amorous nightingales
Of Love albeit
But of less thought Amorous
Amorous nightingales.
The night is past
And
The streamlet through The garden flowed
The night
Tired in the early dawn Slackens:
There's beauty
And there be nymphs Sparse and hidden by The sacred reeds and bushes.
The night is past
As centuries olden pass
So
The night passes.
The night is past
Emmanuel George Cefai
You Tore Parts

The Soul
You tore parts of it
Already
That be my Inner Soul
I will not say
'it was'
For always the Inner Soul
The Soul
Is
Be.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Traveled Whilst I Worried

in your land of chill and frost where snow is easy as the rain
and more
where thunder be continually in store
and its bolts make up the long night
for you
in joy; keep dread out of sight though dread the neighing winds;
the icicles on the glass windows' from beneath the doors the besieging winds all hoar.
You traveled whilst I worried.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Were Swimming In Cold Water,

‘You were swimming in cold water, ’
Said a Voice suddenly from Behind the trees ‘and you are Blue and that dangerously’

‘You are a goblin should I take Advice of you? ’
‘Depends on you, free are you’
And disappeared
The goblin feet to back all
Suddenly

Then another Voice from a high Bough tree
Said the same: ‘Beware! ’ Ended ‘the waters be enchanted’
And
I felt my red heart melting in me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Who Are Reading

You
You who are reading
These and other lines
Of mine

Remember me

When I no longer sing
No longer versify:
Remember me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Will Attempt I Will Test.

You will attempt
I will test.

I have not employed you
Yet.

Nor otherwise accepted
You.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Will Remember My Lines, My Verse

You will remember my lines, my verse Perhaps not every one but most perhaps And will remember the emotions that I with every word and line aroused in you:
And when thus roused you could look in your soul
And speak with it and hear it reply:

Then feel I, like to old Merlin - as of old I go to ancient days and rites and times
And with my magic wand more color breed
And with my lyre more verses chant and sing

And then
When times comes that the lyre stops And sound of the voice is silent still And silent is the song that used to chant Then look inside you and feel-
And then
You will know what a Poet is and means!

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Will So Often Frown

You will so often frown
At these my verses Seeing them so raw
You
Like cooked food
Spicy and smelling
Not
This raw meat still Red in tooth and Claw.

Emmanuel George Cefai
You Wrote

You wrote to me
But I answer not.

I hide my identity.
My face is masked.

And I do not will to unmask it even though Dawn and Sun beat on it shining.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Your E-Mails Comfort Me

Your
e-mails comfort me
at least a little.

At Least
in you
there
is another holy person
just
as my mother was!

I repeat: Sometimes
When
I Read Your
e-mails
I
Feel Like Hearing
My Beloved
Mother
Speak
To
me.

Dear
Now
I
Go
To Eat
And Rest
Little
With
The Help
of God.

Kisses

Emmanuel George Cefai
Your Breasts Are Mountain Hills

Your breasts are mountain hills
Fostering a green vale without streams
I would be in the vale and rise with it And fall with every gentle breath Feeling the gentle trembling beneath my feet Like gentle earthquakes:
Then let me sink in the warm mists That from the valley rise and founder there.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Your Choice!

Your choice!
Your choice it was!
Your choice!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Your Emotions

Your emotions are distance that light runs
yet they be finite distances between whose poles-extremes the wires of exotic Eastern fluttered as a cranking iron door in the wild winds and there walks solitude and it found that she walked amongst graves and amongst monuments

Emmanuel George Cefai
Your Eye

Do not touch your eye.
Whatever harm
There be a remedy
As long as breath
Draws in and out.

The tomb beckons
Always.

But before it Do all you can
To the last second.
Even Bring Immortality

Emmanuel George Cefai
Your Eyes Are Pearls

Your eyes are pearls but in The night they shine best With some sweet tears bright And the playful rays of moon’s light.

Magicians assemble!
For today the night be a night
That prowls with the cats But prowls high above Not in hedges of Hastings
But in hedges of clouds:
Magicians assemble!

The night be arrived
The day has now closed
And midnight soon strikes:
So many a church and a chapel
All belfries be ready to strike
Deep midnight.
And in the cathedral Ancient organs play
Though the doors be all closed
No humans around Yet how sweet the notes
And floating on air Sweeter floats the sweet sound!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Your Hair Be Beautiful

Your hair be beautiful that You may tear into it:
With eyes of tears
And
There beauty will not hover
Just
But make her shrine.

There
The Emotions will rest:
And
There to sweet Beauty
Be dissolved.

For What be more happy
In its transformation
Even from the breast-heaving Emotions to beauty?
Beautiful the physical expanding To and fro rising and
Falling
Of the breast:
Yet
More beautiful its transformation
To beauty
In the scents and masks
Of early dusk

Emmanuel George Cefai
Your Heart Awaits

Your heart awaits, awaits, You anxious look
At the tall clock of clouds And hazy stillness
Where the clouds hang Over a spent sun and rising Dusk of red
Then
A chill
An emotion that cuts across A wave of lust
A thought
A pair of almond eyes
A light brown face
Large rings that dangle
Love
And a body whose figure Though not exuberant Yet merited to be formed by Venus herself
And
All the blessings that she brings This woman of the clouds Encountered random
With calculation loved

Emmanuel George Cefai
Your Land

Your land is vast
And
In that vastness Gets
From the earth's Orbit
A wider breath of Mists and summers
Long
Combined
A greatness

Emmanuel George Cefai
Your Mother Had The

Your mother had the Pain unfortunate
Of your execution Witnessing.
I
Now have no mother
But in the earth
There, under.
At least only myself
Will mourn
Will close my eyes Will suffer

Emmanuel George Cefai
Your Sacred Hummock

Into your sacred hummock Lull
The Dawn with arched back.

Night brings his breezes,
The rustling of the sundry palms
The old ancient sea bosom teases.

And in to the sacred hummock With closed eyes the Dawn Lulled be as she pleases.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Your Tongue Will Tell!

Ah what your tongue
Will tell!
But it must will first!

I only sing and chant
The verses!

Emmanuel George Cefai
Your Trophies

Hold me
Hold me among your trophies
The wind blows from the west
Now
counterbalancing Yesterday that the wind from the East it blew.
Hold me
Hold me
I see turquoise the waves of the Sea
The creaking bastions
In the night they were whispering
Together
Bastion to bastion:
The gardens of Valletta dream Continue from the night Too lazy
And too wise
To leave Sub-Conscious.
Now
Now Hold me
Hold me.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Your Words Give Strength

Your words give strength
Because Yours truly, emotions Give Me Strength Because Yours Words
My
emotions
string and give me strength strength to breathe strength for suffering your words give me
your words give me
strength

Emmanuel George Cefai
Yours Truly, Eyes

In Yours truly, eyes
I
Saw
The Flower
That Hid Amidst
The Other Flowers
Opens up
At night
Not
At Dawn
Before
The other flowers

Emmanuel George Cefai
Youth Is In Her Face

Youth is in her face
Though
Her age thirty exceeds.

And Life blossoms in her

And
The joy of life
Is brimming in her breasts.

Emmanuel George Cefai
Zephyrus

'Howls of the night'

'I heard you'

'Your hear us heavens?

'Yes I dare hear your immensity for to me is given the Idea of Infinity

to me be given the Promethean fire'

'I will to howl more even in the Dawn'

'You are immense'

'But I need Zephyrus; will you speak to him? '

'At your command
always, immense heavens;
a humble Poet Seer'

Zombies
Every where zombies
The cemetery full of Zombies
The cemetery roads
The cemetery trees
The cemetery waters
Seeping thin and Slow
