

Poetry Series

Jennifer Gamboa Bahian
- poems -

Publication Date:
2010

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Jennifer Gamboa Bahian(June 25,1988)

I came from very decent and conservative family. That's all!

Mask Behind Love

Love for you will never fade
Trust is already dead
See as what you did
Heart has been always bleed.

Time goes by
Thinking those stuff you buy
Blood pressure is going high
For memories you build was just a lie.

I danced with you
I've learned a lot from you
I found out your heart is blue
Trying to fix by searching new.

When the eagle fly away
Settle down by her own way
Make you to realized missing her badly
Feeling incomplete everyday.

I wanna believe everything you say
All you need is me
Mask behind Love that I can see
Here you go start hitting me
Baby, I cannot dance when your music is gray.

Life would never be the same

You taught me how to play the game
I will never get shame
For myself, I always win.

Jennifer Gamboa Bahian