

Poetry Series

Jordan Esposito
- poems -

Publication Date:
2010

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Jordan Esposito()

Nikki Marie

Nikki Marie...

Nikki Marie,
A girl thought to be for me,
Her arms my sacrament,
My love her sacrament,
We together made a testament,
A fairy tale, written in ink,
Later to fade, and not to be regained,
Like Rapunzel, her hair so fine,
Shines as gold does to the sun,
Skin so smooth, like that of silk,
Only to gather my mind and fantasize,
Fantasize within my fantasies,
That fantasy is my reality,
My Nikki Marie,
Depicted as fine,
Later revealed to be five,
Her body like metal,
So soulless, but living,
Her heart beats and pumps life,
Oh so cold,
Cold as ice,
Yet warm with fire,
Oh why, why, why is she my desire?

A poem by Jordan Esposito, Date: 10/13/10

Jordan Esposito