Joseph Clint Masa()

Born on July 27, 1996, in Iloilo City, Philippines, I grew up surrounded by warmth, resilience, and stories that shaped my heart. Now residing and working in Illinois, USA, my poetry travels between two worlds—rooted in where I began and evolving where I stand today. I write with passion and intensity, but most of all, I write for the people I truly care for—those I love, those I have loved, and those who have left permanent fingerprints on my soul. My poems are not just words; they are offerings. They are confessions, gratitude, longing, remembrance, and sometimes goodbye. Every verse carries a name, a memory, a heartbeat. Love—in all its forms—is my greatest inspiration. Whether near or far, present or past, the people who have touched my life live forever in my lines. Through my poetry, I honor them.
