

Poetry Series

kimberly whittenburg
- poems -

Publication Date:
2009

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

kimberly whittenburg(10-31-90)

my name is kimberly whittenburg i am now 18 and i have been writing poetry since the 7th grade. the reason i started writing was because i was having some problems in my life. i have lived with my grandma all my life i love my grandma i do but she resents me because i look like my mother, i read to much, and i act her.. and she hates that so to calm my nerves i started writing it made me feel better it was my life on paper or what i felt. i write what i feel or see..

Grandparents Thank You

thank you to those who understand me when life had no meaning thank you for love, care, and support in all that we do your love is unconditional bond like no other a love that can never be broken and for that we are truley grateful your love makes us fill as if we truley belong thank you to those who took the time to care thank you for being my family when there was no other we thank you always for your respect, love and care so you see my love is unconditional

kimberly whittenburg

I Cry No Longer

i cry no longer
your no longer worth the wait no longer worth my time no longer worth the trouble i go through each day so i hide my tears that should no longer be there at all

kimberly whittenburg

Learn To Love Forever More

As my heart can no longer take the pain and my tears can no longer fall?
I want to know what love is that I no longer have at all But if I fell
I ask only this Who might I hurt is it you Or am I only hurting myself Many may say I'm only Running from what I'm scared to have But I can run no longer
For my soul can take no more
So I love
I love the one that I could no longer trust
I love the one that once was in my shadows
I love the one that will no longer hurt me
I love and cry with joy
I love and show what's inside
I will love with all my heart
I ran from those who were too close I ran from those that are forever in darkness
I ran from those that could no longer hurt me
I ran from rain that makes my face wet
I ran from those whom I did not know I ran from what was inside
And worst of all I ran away from love
I run no longer for I love
And love and rejoice
We love together Forever more

kimberly whittenburg

Words To Me Mean

words are just word that mean nothing at all as my heart turns cold i can no longer say i care at all to you that may be wrong but to me words are just words that mean nothing at all but to others they are so much more they are words of felling words of hate and joy and worst of all words of hurt but words are just words i could care less at all with words of love, joy, and laughter you can no longer get me down words are just words that no longer hurt at all so no longer let them take charge words are just words of many words of few may cause trouble or cause joy my heart turns cold at the sight of your hate and rejoice with joy at the sight of happiness so you see words are just words that i can no longer take at all

kimberly whittenburg