

Poetry Series

LaShisna Bridges
- poems -

Publication Date:
2013

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

LaShisna Bridges()

Dance Of Romance

Sitting here thinking, listening, and wondering...

Sitting here imagining and trying to find the smell, the dance...

An unforgettable beginning of a revolving reminder...

A vivid picture that can capture the essence of time in between time

The beginning was innocent, a blush of powder sugar, and falling white soft feathers...

The middle was fire that smothered you, twirling winds that were contagious and free...

I lift my arms and breathe all of the innocent, sweet, soft, and hot wind in me freely.

On top of a mountain that made my worries commit suicide...

The end was a shower of romance...

A bed a pink soft romance to slumber in...

A delicate blanket of a thousand kisses that surrounded me with your smell

A whisper of lavender wisteria that broke free and flew with the wind, looked backed, and kissed the past goodbye

Own it

LaShisna Bridges