

Poetry Series

layne narrowes
- poems -

Publication Date:
2008

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

layne narrowes(ry.1974)

split time growing up in rock hill, s.c. and coronado, ca. parents split up at the age of three. raised by every member of immediate maternal family (aunts, uncles, grandparents.) hence, the split time between ca. and s.c! Because of this, a great fondness for traveling and seeing other countries and cultures. an avid reader of stephen king and the study of stoicism; namely, epictetus' enchiridion! currently living in the rocky mountains of colorado and engaged to be wed in september to ms. ventresco (another member.) love reading, writing, editing, and composing music, and, especially, my cats! ! !

In The Snow...

in the snow

when nothin' ever grows

will the detritus decompose before anybody knows?

sleep
glorious sleep
my secrets you keep

in a hole
my deadly role
the bodies out cold
the future on hold

ahh, the deepest cut
that gut feeling rut
o.c.d. never gives up
surely they'll say
'nut'

layne narrowes

Stealing My Mind...

delayed by chance
he set out to pounce
and, lo & behold
there's the story in the shadow ripping and tearing

and cursing and swearing
to be quite unnerving
pinning down the subversive

enter his mind
press rewind
to point of re-find
whispered slowly to remind

i remained behind
to hold the line
stop the crime
of stealing my mind

layne narrowes