

Poetry Series

Magray Izat
- poems -

Publication Date:

2020

Publisher:

Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Magray Izat(jan 10 2003)

Wonderful lands are waiting behind that mountain and not crawl while you have legs to move fast.

Desperate

A note of chance composed depth
on the poet's desk
You are at the great position to leave, but unfortunately you stay.
Can you leave your words?
or your habit?
For a cause,
We repent,
but same, nothing changes.
Although, mountains fled away,
Will you reveal your name?
a destiny is waiting
Hurry! you are all alone.
You may hide
but something will betray.
Leave!
or endure torment.
I'm disloyal
and I do not deserve.
I will win
When I will leave.

Magray Izat

Set Him Free

Set him free
to the mountain of valley
Let him go through the lane
Of his own; to a place unknown to him and her Let him live by his own thoughts of heaven and
And let him go to sail the ocean of history
Let him go
To know the value of a sin
And remember he will come again; one day
Asking for forgiveness and you the forgiver; will forgive.

Magray Izat