For Love

For love I have found a friend,
In whom grace and sweetness blend,
And is faithful even after the end.

For love I have lost virginity to find
A tender, sexy and kind
Birth in a blissful wind.

For love I sense a beauty near,
A delight only a lover can hear,
Caressing precious thrills and dispelling fear.

For love we shall be one.
For I hate to be alone,
After the sex is gone.

For love my lips fail
To stop the emotions when my legs prevail
In a bliss of wail.

For love I felt no grief,
For your love only bring sweet relief
That comfort this lasting belief.
