

Poetry Series

Michael Basseby Johnson
- poems -

Publication Date:

2014

Publisher:

Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Michael Basseyy Johnson()

Michael Basseyy Johnson, nicknamed (Maestro) is an uncommon Nigerian penman who is interested in nature, human beings, science and philosophy. Immensely inspired by the grand teachings of Eckhart Tolle, Osho and Rumi, his areas of concern are vast, ranging from social and contemporary issues to romanticism and spirituality.

Eventide

Morning comes and goes,
noon comes and goes,
and here is the eventide;
a golden caressing sun,
with its friendly breeze,
whispering in soft tunes.
Inspire me, o yellow sun, and speak to my empty heart,
for i know not the direction,
to come or go,
but thy little light may know,
all the secrets,
of this and other days.
A special angel of the evening,
lives in the sun,
and renders all the qualities,
to the intrepid souls.
The recipient is you and i,
looking at the source above.

Michael Bassey Johnson