Muneindiyehova Ramovha()

I write when emotions rise —
when the heart is too full to stay silent.

My words pour like a river in flood,
unfiltered, unpolished, but always real.

I'm a lover — not always loved — just a soul in search of something soft to rest in.

Poetry found me when the world couldn't hold my feelings.
Now, I let the page carry what I can't say out loud.

Every poem is a piece of longing,
a quiet echo of the love I hope to find.
