

Poetry Series

Natasha Wilson
- poems -

Publication Date:
2014

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Natasha Wilson()

More Than A Father

hey definition of a father according to society is to financially support you but my dad made it sound effects in everything you do I cherish every moment when I was a child whenever I would cry he always make me smile he tucked me in at night and when I was scared of the dark he showed me it would be alright he was my playmate when I was very young even if I had to do the chores he made them very fun he took me to play video games for momma still asleep even if you were tired he never missed a week he always held my hand when I was full of fear after every heartbreak as a teen life away my tears I could trust him about my secrets no matter how big or small he'd never judge me for my fault and he pick me up when I would fall daddy was my biggest supporter and I was his biggest fan it was my dad that was my hero never Superman I wish I could bring him back again he was more than more to me than just a father he was my hero and best friend

Natasha Wilson

Young Love

look into my eyes my friend tell me what you see do you see the one who longs to cry you were meant for me let me take your hand my friend I'll follow you anywhere time with you is magical can't you see I care listen to my words my friend the silent one to pray please don't ever let me go I love you more each day one day I'll be brave my friend and will stand face to face all say these words are allowed to m and melts in your embrace

Natasha Wilson