

Poetry Series

Parul Begum
- poems -

Publication Date:
2010

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Parul Begum()

I Wish You Know

The sun shines
With beautiful eyes
The tear drips
Every time you make unannounced trips
The moon incandescent every night
To light the endless love of site
The Jasmine blooms
With cloudy attitude of glooms
Your love is short and brief
I have to spend my life with sorrow and grief
I wish you know that my heart has been theft
As if winter comes and erode the summer's leafs

Parul Begum

Sorrows In My World

There are words like Love
Sweet and pleasant to say
On my life-strings love signs
All year every year.
There are words like Affection
That always makes me cry.
'If you had known what I knew
You would know why.'

Parul Begum

Ujjol (Bright)

Bright as crystal
Pure as pearl
Burn as molten lava
Spin as Globe
Cast spells as wand
Floods as Tigris and Euphrates
Deposits silt annually
Endures as Delphi or Parthenon
Collapsed as Twin Towers
Everlasting gesture as Taj Mahal.

Parul Begum