A Letter Which Never Sended

Last night I was a dream About your house
Were the roof leaks everywhere
A green-painted house dull
I walk to the room
To the kitchen
To the front
The water to flood (inundate) on the floor
The water rose higher and higher Flow to the visiting room
I walk to bend (bow, stop) and to walk on tiptoe,
I walk on tiptoe to avoid The water flood Everywhere, from the front to backyard
I walk on zig-zag
Head made a low bow
To avoid the bird excrement
Much of bird cage hanged On the roof

when the water to flood (inundate) increasing highest to their food' knee, -you still cook in the kichen in the bend of the dull wall and moss-covered/mildewed
The water flood increasing and increasing on the foots to the broken chairs to wet, dampen the books which to scatter, spread everywhere I could stop to find your mother anymore she likes to codle me (to observe by holding in the hand) when I was child: "She said, I just could walk run around the kitchen, along the corridor and riding the pedicab cycle near the thing being dired/the wash while playing the little car."

To day i find your mother
In the overcast house
A green-painted house dull
Dull painted
Dark and overcast
The water to flood (inundate) on the floor

Everywhere
Just I found your mother walking stick
And her articial foot

A Mystery

life is a mystery puzzle unsolved sometimes tricky that changed the fate of a person so the lifetime must undergo anguish
I never imagined in dreams in youth

A Pandora's Box

when a Pandora's box it opened out many wild animals Satan and all the terrible properties roam the free world raven people who have no faith walk alone in the dark alleys and muddy black water flowing in the grooves of life that emerged from the grudge past long-buried now rising again revenge

A Story Of Sparrow And Dimple

A group of sparrow Waft /glide fly on
The yellow padi outspread
Like ronggeng dancer who Fling her yellows shawl/scarf/muffler
A girl walking
Among the padi tree, her lips Smile with dimple
On her cheek

She never tired seed
Of her hope
Since her father cultivate the land
With her mother she prepare Food
Mow plant
Till bear fruit

A group of sparrow
Waft glide on
The yellow padi outspread
While a group of girl Yell and catchy the field fiend Frighten away of sparrow group
Who will rip their hope?

A group of sparrow
Fly to find their food
The yellow padi field
On the field had no inmate
In the hectares ocean of ooze

A group of sparrow
Fly with no hope
Is looking the yellow padi field
Who never found it everywhere?
Because there is no life
Just ooze everywhere

The girls muse over
With no hope
In the rice field
That no sparrow flies
On that field
That cannot frighten away
Of her distress
Because there is no life
Only ooze
Ooze
No live

Acute Heart

Burrow and search for food around the reef, Crab-crab explore the link
In coral lips
Stand from lacing waves
Never stop strike
Mouth beach, create ripple Split foam spread acute
Acute heart

She wound pursue dreams

Starting from the party
Among the drinks, and palm wine Distributed in a foreign city
With foreign smile
Girls that smile spreads Among the guests who continue to Come

Thousand breeze in the face of the man Spread smile, crawl dream
In a party atmosphere, and the smell alcohol
The intoxicating
In open spaces
Palace
Penetrate the flower garden
A dream place to meet
The Lord who never come

Age Children

It is inconceivable when we were kids childishness comes anytime and anywhere

but when it gets old and had to deal with children we're back to the infancy because we are already beyond the age of adulthood

then be face-to-face we debating something real no need to debate because each of us

live in our own world which is different who left the world a growing childhood
The old is back to the kids

Ah

as my country faces who never deserted from floods and the bitchy corruptors no shame
the spectacle of children onscreen

Ajisaka

I later that night, did not want to be alone, here I want to watch the Night when people around the palace, silence Not to speak and speak sapa
Meditating on the Word of Natural hundreds of centuries ago

Turn of the year, the turn of the night
Many people around the court all night long Blessed hope
Driving around the palace as night patrolling officers
A security guard in every alley, every street Looked with suspicion on the doors are still open
Are there people still keep a watch on them
Or was sound asleep, and sleep in the cradle of his dreams Meanwhile, night birds, flapping their wings looking in Rays are still a crescent moon, a star pendarnya looking away
Reciting praises to Ida Sang Hyang Widi
Hopefully tonight mankind free from sambekala, when bebendu
The Teacher, Harjono, suck smile, advised:
If this works out in the puja and prayers, Janga imitate the deeds of the most Who does not know the meaning of the New Year
Do not surround the palace, as the act of the night watchmen Nothing deities sprinkled fortune to surround the palace
You should go straight to face your King,
Do not just running around like a confused
And the night watchman.
The teacher, a long silence.
While the students, students in performances palace was silent.
Either know, or not, but all the notes.
The professor noted speech.
The Master, quietly leave, guided bicycle, Pedaling slowly toward his home
Through the straight path Malioboro.

Meanwhile Ajisaka sleeping on the streets
That reads the letters
When the books wallow policy heaps scattered in the library of the Palace of the King sacred along with letters an heirloom that at any time in the look human nature is so very easy to forget history

Awaiting

awaiting day elapse elapsing of it memory for the shake of memory when beauty of wave that kiss the coast awaiting something that is no meaning.

awaken the flank hoe dig the gold farm
so that we can harvest the fruit

Banda Aceh 2

Sun of Banda Aceh burn the my Body pore Flaking husk
Second moment [of] my footh
Have to step non-stoped Circle to knock each door Rousing grandmother
What fall down the body Because hot weather sting the Old husk of its bone bandage Looking of Window and door Bunged up
From empty house Without dweller dusty and Silent here and there Non-Stop by step Turn and knock at Where met by the slipper, shoe Natty align in front of door
What is friendliness of people who medium Besotted joke and loughing,
What is thy house?

When Teuku and Tengku have foe
And is ing each other door

With the space and time racing Non about bringing suit debate
And bring suit the strength in party Local and national,
Non that our intention
But about our house

What start brittle, meeting old house of us what its pillars is groggy our belief history will be besapattered of blood because all will omit the memory when all smoothed down equivalent of land; ground changed by the building newly filling balmy space during racing racing in the loud sound of hammer compiling each; every our house brick glue informed againstly is love, reconciling with history handicap to get our future to breath in the fresh air our house

Barongsai

Around the temple procession Barongsai Colorful ready around town
With the sound of drums and kencreng
A sensitizing teling Duung creng-dung, dung-dung creng
The Mother with daughter are obese Fond of eating, whacky again Delivered whining for watching

The Mother who refused, was busy It did her cake kranjang who,

From a distance, my friend shouted,
'Delivered aja, klo can not not post

Catch The Shadow

I crawl through the back door Catch the shadows
Wake up from my depression to hear the gamelan sounds Flute, drum, ending,
Saw the puppets shadows
Which able to open the spirit traveling Behind the suffering of meal
From the historical stage of man

When I went home, my father were angry
And my father ask why I saw the puppet shadows Through the back door
Like a thief
I shut my mouth, no answer
When I answer this question, am not polite and get angrier
I recognize, it is dangerous to left the door
Left the door unlocked
But the God could came like the thief
Through the back door which unlocked
Or the locked in front of the door

At that time, I really did not know Why my father always looking me
When I saw the puppets shadows Although I crawled into the mass
My father always found me
In addition, ask me to go home
In the middle of the show
And then to live over my worry
Leave some question, what kind of the end of the story To echo in my ear and to pound on
In my hearth wall
Then flow and crawled in my blood
To the whole my body Became my life story
And leave the big question who always Remainder me

Every step in my life

Always remained me to the sound Of gamelan music where Fluid, drum and xylophone like Sturdy
Become dreams
In my slept

Until my life regarding To pursue the shadows

Command

Every morning I see the army commander Provide command his soldiers ran around the field Before learning marching Using weapons
Horseback riding
As he aimed his arrow into the target enemy Far and near Invisible to the eye, and which slipped quietly
In a blanket in the recesses of our hearts tonight
Hidden Enemy
A far more dangerous
From the superpower nuclear arms
More than just a play on words

And bad words for their families

Dewi Sri, The Goddess Of Rice

In the frontyard and leftside of my grandpa house
When the padi harvests and holiday came I certainly went to my grandpahouse
Where before and after the harvests we have a religiousmale together
We pray and praise the Lord
Through the smoke of incense up and up to the sky
And the wind brought its to people around the village For avoiding disaster and thanks to Dewi Sri, the Goddess of Rice (fertility goddess)

My partjob is waiting the rice in the place for drying firewood, from morning till evening Till its rice and firewood to become dry
While I saw some people were paced back and forth over the path Beside my grandpahouse
To carry padis on the back after the harvest
With pureface
After they got part of their work during threemonth
In the ricefields
Wheter they have and havenot the ricefield
When I am boring for waiting I called the people who sell the sugarcandy
I Change its with my grandma rice When teh eveing came I feel tired waiting the rice dried the whole day my grandma brought torch made from coconut leafe went to uncle Amat Sirat Where his wife able to massage while her whusband work in the ricefield Malam istrinya memijat kakiku yang pegel, ototku yang kaku,
At that night she massages my foot who feel tired
After the holiday finish
I turnback to the town
Back to school

Till your father come

Ride bicycle
Across the cold night
Across the whole black

Empty Path

Empty path of the Halmahera Guest House
Throughout of oldtime
As old as the dust attached on the door leaf Old dust attached on the wall
And dark room
Where painting laid
From the mad life
Throughout the cantings
In the room corner
When my soul cried Fighting to myself fighting alone interpreting the dream

in the old well
the old man catch chicken and drinking black wine eat some rice with the black lips where nicotin and bear aroma smell around his face
in the old well
cried his brokenlove where I am alone sat on the rattan chair smell of the naughty wind blowing fall of some old bamboo leaf opened the envelope contens of pray and word love disappointment cut through all the word

Moving slowly, in sobs,
continue down the valley between two hills shocking life

behind the lush green trees in the foothills of the start up slowy memories that emerge from the subconscious who try kurangkai of dreams broken which used to be wonderful, now trapped in old age foot of the mountain but still foggy until the age of snake bites in the fog claimed immortality love stories

Fruit Marriage: Children 'Outsourcing'

Abundant rain this afternoon
After the workers shouting in the street
'Deliver us from outsourcing! '
Our marriage failed because we were oppressed
Like the birds in the cages cattle
To cut and served at fast food restaurants Owned gentlemen,
While the gentlemen just calculate profit and only profit
No matter our fate every year there swept horns 'outsourcing' Oscillate from one factory to another factory
With the same labor agreement 'outsourcing'
Our roving from one factory to another factory
To save our children
In order to survive, but what she said
'Outsourcing' just like fresh-powered workers Who would be paid less, older workers, useless, slow Only useful for garbage collectors
And cleaning the table, in the afternoon
When a fast-food restaurant, crowded Young children, who sang brisiknya
The latest stuff
While our children, it is never clear Where was about to step
When home from school..... and when it exploded brawl
Has always been a focus accusations, Hah, basic wild children, punks do not know the rules
From the fruit of marriage, children are 'outsourcing'.

He Want To Be Married

My youngest brother want to be married, we his older brother all confused.
He was not yet the work.
From long before he more liked chatting with his friends in the village that in general also not the work.
If the night arrived they gathered in our house, stayed up all night long til the morning, chatted did not have the special focus.
The habit had been carried out for years since the mother was still living, to currently, three years after the mother died,
the habit continued to be carried out.
Was not thought about by them from where they received the source of life.
they still believed on the good day and the bad day.
In fact the Lord created all the good days, depended his humankind,
the work of humankind for the peer.

The day changes everything's My idealism, wishes, happiness
When the news comes from my younger brother Telling me that my father was pastaway
I couldn't think anymore and must go home Saw my father for the last time before we send him to the cemetery
I walk and Elizabeth walk beside me
I never know what she thinks about my father Who never seen him before All member of the family saw us with sadness
My father potter's field under the asem tree Together with my grandpa and grandma
In the environment of Sawunggalih family cemetery Where my mbah buyut Sontowijoyo lived too Nowadays many people come, pray and give the flower To their place, burn kemenyan for entering their prayer to Paradise (Kahyangan) , the place of Goddess
To ask manythings will happen in the world
As there hope in their belief at that evening after the ritual

Regret comes after
When I sat
On Bamboo Chair
Under Mango Tree
Felt my soul not free
Had detained out of our desire

Rose flower on a pot Release softly perfume
In the windy air
Hide in smelt softly
Of sins

My soul could not slept Along the day in a time, wrest
When the women sat

Ruwatan Of My Mother

My grandma had planned 'ruwatan' a long time ago
In front of her house
They build a stage for playing a pupit shadow play
From day to night
Where neighbour, friend, and visitor from random ranking came I run anywhere, nobody care about me Where all people busy with their duties
Only one focusing to prepare meal for prayed together
To the God for saving my mother from the angry of Batara Kala Ruwatan ceremony
In the stage in front of my grandma house Dalang, play the pupit shadow Where the Batara Kala still angry
To all people just play play along the time
They do not work hard and pray together to the God
To avoid the God Angry
My grandma present the pupit shador for along the day to night
With the religious meal from various fruits, animal Dalang lead pray together
While he play the pupit shadows
As long as harmony with the ruwatan story Ovoid the God (Batara Kala) not to become angry
To punish my mother and her big family
Her only my grandma doughter
From her complicated sins
But I saw at the end of my mother life
She laid in the hospital bedroom for a month
With mny pipe to help her respiration
And for eat her foods
But my mother know
She doesn't like to die there
At the end of her time, batara Kala pick up her soul
In her friends house
In Yogyakarta
When member of the family
She sound-asleep forever Alone to the promise of land
Her only message to the youngest son
To choice his wife from a good parents

To be carefull be a good heart

'Sate'

'Sate, sate..... te te'

Sound builders satay at night echoed through the halls of the capital go on and on so every night the walls of the houses across the street, alleys in the capital of the kingdom witness craft, tenacity and perseverance peddle wares
favorite food of all citizens, officials and the king anticipated arrival moreover the king's wife and family they secretly love it although manners forbade direct contact with the repairman satay

'Te, te..... te goat, and cow's father.... '

Until one day the king, officials and retainer
In the vicinity of the royal palace Angry, out skewers Preceded by residents who are hungry
From staying up all night, patrolling

The Nayaka, the courtiers can only be silent
When the officials angry Moreover, the royal family.
'If so, tell the repairman satay'
Only selling to serve the royal family.
Or call a palace cook
The rickshaw satay did not enter the palace Become a palace cook
He prefers, the king occupies land
In addition to the road to the palace mosque
And do not want to be separated with customers
In this life
Most prized possessions is the fidelity
To the people who love him
Not germerlap money, rewards and praise Of courtiers

Which at times was bored
So kick

Life can not be measured only of desire

Wide spread eyes could a glance
Along to the south
On the brown land and sand Fenced marsh
Wild large frog, spinach Mangrove
To appear from low tide
Mixed with the ocean water

I went out
Through the gate
Till I catch the pure consciousness
On to the real life
Wake up from dream

Ah, it is still at five o'clock
I wrote down and to muse Through ink which I scoop out
From the deep of feeling From trough of my hearth
When the morning air flow Felt fresh and joy

Also the death shadow
I have to pick up
With joy, without sorrow Like the earth who never To moan of death rattle Always receive the whole

The Old Rattan Chairs

When I received that letter
I sat on an old rattan chair
Under the Yellow Bamboo tree
Where its leaf flying down on the frontyard

Because I know her during seven years Since the second years of senior high school Till finishing the bachelor arts on Pagelaran,
The streets of Sosrowijayan, a cross to the Tugu Station, and then through

There is a house number 48, Gowongan Lor, Leaving out of carved our breath
From the house lizard story as a symbol of could bad happens
To the realities of fact that my father were dying
At the hospital till deadly ceremony

Night before burial

And the smell of formalin of my father's corpse
In the silent night when the bell church clang in the town and the voice grandpa Iman call to prayer flowing in the deep of my heart mixing with the smell of smoke incense to stings of my chest

when my father gone my love grown up in my heart dying and love were attached each-other when we walk to our destiny on the seedling field which brought in the dream when we slept with ours-couple that shadow always grown up in my minds through the papers start yellow coloring because it was a long time to settle/precipitate in my memory always sprout to become my dreams grown early the morning, morning, or midnightnight, through loneliness which hangdown on my shoulder to bears all my trouble while run and run till finish line of my destiny

Trunks Glagah

Trunks Glagah

Scramble to reach the blue sky
A breath of fresh air Lined-row at the edge of the village road

Cane flowers

Moving shimmy like a dancing girl
In the dry season
When the girls in the street berjajr
Waiting for loved ones back home to harvest sugar cane

Cane harvest begins when the flowers are in bloom Come truncated because trunks to be cut, collected, loaded on lorries To be included in the rolling machines Sugar mills

I do not know where the girls disappeared After harvest sugarcane after
At the base of the field lived deciduous trees
And trunks transformed into sugar

Only the remaining voices
The foreman and workers
Echoes in the strains of music open stage Graceful hand shadows village girls lost in music
Far into the night

Tunable Sound Of Nyai Panjang Mas

I am the village women, can only read and write Java script, Javanese
not the letter Pallava and Sanskrit rather than the Latin alphabet, Arabic and Chinese if every person who comes to my house Should replay pronunciation sounds the letters Although my eardrums vibrate by a strange hum, vowel pronunciation of foreign languages swirling around my body style difficult to flourish in the garden a sense of my life let alone love

Under The Banner Of Reformation

A don't know
What I'm happy
Or suffering
Every time
When last night
I had dreamed about you
When my wife
Had been fast asleep
After watch the last film on TV
Where all children were lied on the floor
While the vane of fan rotary Along night
Ah, hot wheatear
In draught

I have been waiting for along time
Your desirable hair coil
On the old rattan chair
My hand to and fro open
The old magazine
Which full of photos of Soekarno
With his baldheaded Suffered in the army jail
He had been lost their adoration Democracy and freedom grow
A moment and then fade off
We have to think in uniform
In the whole archipelago
After its creativity had been fade off
And changed with praise
To the national leaders Aught, its already done Changed a revolution word
With development of cities Highway juts from point to point Among archipelago with chain of debt Strangulation on our neck
Which paid by our whole natural resources And perspiration of our people

To day, Soeharto had been lied
With his own prison, had been trapped Which his own deed, decrepit and aching While the people who praised in his decade of his powers, sit in rocking chair, pretend think to the people destiny In the mids of economical crisis, eartquake, ooze, flood, Tzunami and smoke from the forest frazzle who sit in the chair of Five Star Hotel drink a cup of coffee, beer, and whisky his eyes ball greedy gobble core of strephtese till daybreak
agh, heve you finished your hair coils you went out from the door with pink kebaya with beatutiful hair coils but why riding bicycle alone ain't I'm already to pick up you for going to the churh only tears

Unthreatened Dark Horse

Unthreatened
Dark horse,

Ten o'clock in the line of fire
At the cutting edge
When all's said and done
Around the corner schoolyard
Under the trees
In the twinkling of an eye
Laughing and joking
While sleeping
Full of joie de vivre,
A lot of fun,
Close the eyes to
It appears that
From head to foot Whiffed-waffle
Unthreatened
Dark horse,

In front of entrance
We berjejal queue up Going to peron
Awaiting cart come
Each and everyone orderlyly
Awaiting cart come
Ushering to target town
Each

Come from west
Going to east
When cart come
With the its black smokestack voice of iron Wheel fiddle
By rel is steel sticking out length Forwards we stand up
I develop; builded from long fantasy
When that smooth radius his arms Sticking out handkerchief Vanishing sweat in my face
We will immediately leave taking When cart whistle sound boisterous Parting sign immediately come Ushered by a white smoke of in between the steel wheel
What start to rotate, moving Bringing wagon to target town Menggapai Expectation
My Hand wave from window
From wagon which start fast quickly
My heart is solid, as stuffed up In this town is we have to leave taking Going to land of promise Chance determined

Wander To The Land Of Fog

Arjuna walked slowly to the top of the hatch train, to the land of mist-gray sky iron wheels of the train collided with rocks cruising round the wheels to follow his heart troubled wanderer drown the eastern horizon traces the wheels spin on the horizon, naim is abandoned, the shade of a fig tree Petruk fig shady place to lie down, weaving Asa.
Petruk subject to a stroke sleepiness, nodding off Whether dreaming, whether menginggau on a speeding train
His heels were moving from side to side, legs bent in too long hold ubtuk train.
Iron wheels keep turning, keep heading west, the land where the fog of wrinkles Cold arctic air to penetrate the bones, which vibrate the body shivering, scared Wandering soul is troubled, not met the meaning is sought.
Here a mist, wrinkled faces Arctic air snow and frozen heart.

To write what you have been seen

To draw what you have been felt

Write, draw whatever you saw and feel of the world

And inner world

Your life experience

Sad and happiness

Sorrow and glad

Your heart

Talk itself

In a blue line

In the God Paradise

That ever you told me

Along years ago

Who I Am

Grandma Kasan, has the Bali citrus fruit tree
Their fruits was very luxuriant Unfortunately with-him, Day And Night after she made the Palm Fruit Charcoal Always the road observed the her loves citrus fruit because of being not again child when the night, I pass away was carried by Old brother under the citrus tree that already ripe around the little path close my house get its with my hand when the grandmother fell asleep and then I could eat citroes when at the afternoon I ask her to have her fruits not permitted such was juvenile delinquency when I older we to like children that wanted to win ourself the developing process of life that always repetitions

Who I am
when the others gone left me alone in the quiet home

Who Is The Girl?

Indeed she was,
Not my servant!
'Then the who IS SHE? 'Mr. Big asked.
Gareng hobbled to lincak, sitting breath, set the answer:
'Children who, yes, he was'
If the parents themselves deny
And the girl herself, nor does it admit it.
Oh, thought Mr. Big, there are children born in this world
Not through the mother's womb
And seeds of his father,
The children of gods who are down to earth
Feel the world is glittering, in the dim Tobacco shop on the corner.
Sariwati Gareng and Goddess alone, couples are not blessed with offspring.
'He's a servant, sir, ' replied Sariwati Gareng and stammered.

Who Should I Write

When I want to write history Apparently there are many facets that must be written Side of the Master, winner of the war Side of Mr. Small, who lost the war

But his position could be reversed
Mr. Little and Mr. Big winners who lost Winning and losing in war is common But the victim is always the common people, who have sacrificed everything gentlemen for gentlemen or a victim of the ideas that are still abstract the problem is not that common people clothing, food, shelter and education
