

Poetry Series

Rebecca Lafleur
- poems -

Publication Date:
2009

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Rebecca Lafleur(May,14 1994)

Four.

After doing what you did,
Because you thought I was a kid.
Crushing my every hope and dream,
And left with no self-esteem.
Making me cry for hours on end.

Tears and blood now blend,
From my one and only heart,
That you thought wasn't art.

You say you'll leave forever,
Why do you have to be so clever?
You never came back,
And I had a heart attack.
The doctor's say,
It was because someone went away.
Making me cry for hours on end,

Tears and blood now blend,
From my one and only heart,
That you thought wasn't art.

I barely make it through,
Because they had to use glue.
Since you broke me,
I think you should come back and fix thee.
But I know there is no chance,
As I can't even take a glance.
Making me cry for hours on end,

Tears and blood now blend,
From my one and only heart,
That you thought wasn't art.

Tears and blood now blend,
From my one and only heart,
That you thought wasn't art.

That you thought wasn't art.

Rebecca Lafleur

One.

I've been trying so hard,
Playing my face card.

But it's doing no good,
I must have been misunderstood.

What happened to progress,
What is all this distress?

I thought you cared,
When I was scared.

Was I wrong to believe?
That you would actually leave?

Broken hearts are in shreds,
You can't fix with threads.

I'll never understand,
Your foolish little land.

You make no sense,
But in my defense,
It's at your expense.

You broke my heart,
When you said we should depart.

Now that it's over,
I'm lucky as a four-leaf clover.

You weren't so smart,
At the start.

But now I will forgive you,
Because all this time I knew,
That you and I would view,
Together adieu.

Three.

Miracles are true,
Because I found you.

It was a fairy tale ending,
But you were just pretending.

You said always and forever,
Why wasn't I that clever?

You're pretty good,
You lied like I understood.

We seem further apart,
Look what it's doing to my heart.

I pick up the pieces,
As your love decreases.

I couldn't save my tears,
As I have to many fears.

I decided to say farewell,
You took it well.

I fell so hard,
And now I'm real scarred.

I get through,
Because miracles aren't true.

Rebecca Lafleur

Two.

You're starting to feel the space,
But I'm not ready to face.

You want to let me go,
Yet I'm just starting to grow.

You want to leave me in the sand,
But I just want to hold your hand.

You say it's all my fault,
Is this really assault?

You finally calm down,
And I feel like leaving town.

You say your last goodbye,
I think I'm about to die.

You give me one last kiss,
I know I'll miss this.

Rebecca Lafleur