

Poetry Series

Stephanie Rojas
- poems -

Publication Date:
2008

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Stephanie Rojas(September 21,1984)

i have a 1 year old son which means the world to me. i live in Douglas Az. i'm an easy person to get along with and i'm known to make my friends laugh. one word to describe me is 'payasita'.

All my poems come from what i have experienced, seen and felt through out my life. i don't write them just to write them, i write them when i'm feeling it in my heart and i don't take them from others. although there is a poem that is my fave that i did not write which is 'FOOTPRINTS IN THE SAND'.

New Years

hello to 2009,
good bye to 2008!
hello to the future,
good bye to the past!
hello to the new year,
good bye to the year i lived in fear!
fear of being a horrible mom,
fear of living in pain of heartbreak!
fear of being alone,
fear of having nobody to hold!
hello to the new year i plan to restart!
restart fresh and possitive, restart happy and know that i am only human!
restart as a mom that can manage to raise a child on her own, restart to know that GOD is on her side and won't leave her alone!
hello to a new me!
the me that has a beautiful baby,
the me that knows she is loved by others, other than her baby!
the me that says i'm happy,
the me that knows i can't be broken!
hello to the new year i plan to be me!

Stephanie Rojas

Pain

pain

comes in so many different shapes and sizes, sometimes big
and sometimes small.

pain

can come from scrapes and bruises, physically and emotionally.

But the worst pain is heartache and heartbreak!
cuz while scrapes and bruises go away, heartache and heartbreak takes awhile to fade away.

Stephanie Rojas