

Poetry Series

Steven Heiser
- poems -

Publication Date:
2011

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Steven Heiser(August 5th 1973)

Last Fight

Picking up my life from where it still stands
Lain upon the dreary sands
Time is of the essence in trivial pursuit
All pales in comparison subject moot.

Passion is real and love is true
Stories of this seam tried in lieu
Most stifle in what comes to pass
Stammering words from a mental compass

The direction in which we tend to stray
Letting everything come what may
Holding the beast at bay
For your life will surely pay

He who goes alone into night
Though intension true and right
Those will surely lose their sight.
Fight on and strike with all your might.

Steven Heiser

Steven Heiser

Sex Period

Mental stimulation over sexual frustration

☒ Heiser

Steven Heiser

Silence

How do you tell someone what they are doing is wrong
When someone else is telling to say nothing at all?
How do make something right after making a wrong?
When someone is begging to take it all back?
Where do you go from the darkness of life?
After the light has lead you on the wrong path
How do you tell someone that you do not love them?
After they have professed their everlasting love
What then? How does one know?
Can there be happiness in solitude?

Steven Heiser