

Poetry Series

Veda Shree

- poems -

Publication Date:
2013

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Veda Shree()

The Dancing Tree

As the wind blows,
The tree dances ballet.
As I watch,
The tree sways, increasing the grace.
I wait and wait for the tree to dance again,
As if waiting for someone
To give me free diamonds!

Veda Shree

The End Of Time

I was standing in a place where the good present was past,
And the bad future was present.
The past was already a tiny memory in our brains
Where all were wishing for an undo button! !
We want to go and change our bad past,
To bring a better future
But now, life has become the worst of all times
Where people wish either for death or royalty.
So, death has entered all the minds on earth...
So, it is only a matter of time before death merges with life for real.

Veda Shree

What Is Love?

Love is a thick, powerful blanket,
That covers us from the rest of the world.
Love is a light that blinds us.

Love might attract you to the wrong choice.
Love is a symptom of a very odd illness
That can't be easily cured.

Love gives your life a meaning
When you are in desperate need,
But it can sometimes ruin your life too.

Love is like a banana peel
That you can slip or trip on.
It sometimes makes you feel sad
But can still keep you happy!

Veda Shree