

Poetry Series

Viviann Gaus
- poems -

Publication Date:
2011

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Viviann Gaus()

Liars Pacifier

I lied,
Terribly lied,
Didn't give a damn if you cried.
But that's a lie too don't you see?
I did care if you cried.
We had a love that left without telling us
Sad isn't it?

I loved you
You loved me,
But we weren't meant to be.
Just please understand when I say I lied but It was for your hearts protection<3

Viviann Gaus

My Light

In the beginning
you turned my word upside down
and now i feel so lonely
when you're not around and in the end
even in the darkest night
just seeing you makes my heart shine bright

(this poem was created by my brother, Victor Gaus, and i take no credit for creating this master piece.)

Viviann Gaus

Why?

Why am i just a kid?
is it love that i feel for him?
In my heart i know he wont care,
for i am wrong for him.
we love all the same bands but,
not the same everything.
Why?

Why wont he notice it?
the void he fills in my heart?
the way that when he laughs,
everything seems perfect.
the way he walk me too my classroom,
never dreading to be late.
Why doent he love me too?
Why?

I

Viviann Gaus

Your Face

Every time i see your face
my heart starts to race beating faster and faster untill my heart explodes with joy and an exiting after taste.

Your eyes, oh your eyes can not compare to the stars
your eyes are like beautiful hershey bars
yes, hershey bars
with little barely visible freckles under neath your cute eyes are what, akes my day all right.

Viviann Gaus