

Classic Poetry Series

Wen TianXiang
- poems -

Publication Date:

2012

Publisher:

Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Wen TianXiang()

Crossing Lonely Sea

Delving in the Book of Change, I rose through hardship great,
And desperately fought the foe for four long years;
Like willow catkin, the war-torn land looks desolate,
I sink or swim as duckweed in the rain appears.
For perils on Perilous Beach, I heaved and sighed,
On Lonely Sea now, I feel dreary and lonely;
Since olden days, which man has lived and not died?
I'll leave a loyalist name in history!

Wen TianXiang