

Classic Poetry Series

Zhu Shuzhen
- poems -

Publication Date:
2012

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Zhu Shuzhen()

Climbing A Tower On An Autumn Day

Scattered shadows of parasol trees play in evening light Dying cicadas buzz cold, mournful
I can't bear to listen
From above, autumn mountains to the end of my sight Eyes brimming over
layer upon layer of green

Zhu Shuzhen

Imminent Snow

ilent winter sparrows
fill bamboo thickets
Frozen clouds curtain the sky
snow about to fall
The north wind gives
no one special favors Plum branches hold
their blossoms tight

Zhu Shuzhen

Jianzimu Orchid

Sitting alone,
Promoting independence is also alone on pay alone.
Standing of trouble,
Qing Han a feeling helpless people.
Who see this situation,
Tears wash the makeup-free half.
Disease phase is still unhappy,
Tick to make the cold light dream accomplished.

Zhu Shuzhen